

BULLET'S WRECKAGE VIEWED BY THROUNGS

Visitors from This and Adjoining States at North End Over Week-End — Tracks Cleared.

At 9:40 a. m. yesterday the wreckage of the "Bullet" at Ape's crossing had been cleared away and new trackage laid to enable an engine, and two cars to proceed southward on one of the worst and costliest train wrecks on the New Haven railroad. During the 32 hours which were consumed by three groups of repair men, the motor traffic through Manchester was the heaviest in years.

Hundreds of onlookers from East Hartford, Hartford, New Haven and other division points worked continuously until late at night transporting the large amount of loose material from the sides of the crushed box cars, removing through holes torn in the sides of other cars jammed together in an almost compact mass, merchandise of all kinds, which was piled along the right of way and was later transported to storage for future delivery.

While the hundreds of freight removers worked all day Saturday and Saturday night removing the freight, three work gangs, one from East Hartford, one from New Haven and a crew from Providence attacked the wrecked freight cars from the right of way and along the right of way for disposal later and steel gages went about laying the new track.

Still Work To Be Done
There is yet a large amount of cleanup work to be done before the entire wreckage is removed. On the north side of the tracks a huge pile of cars, heavily crumpled and twisted, in an indescribable mass of wood, steel and steel rods, from which, it was stated, all of the freight was removed by cutting holes through the mass, much like burrowing into a huge tree trunk.

Along the right of way and adjacent property are scattered trucks of the freight cars, bent and twisted steel rails, large heaps of refuse, broken merchandise boxes, lumber, wire, steel rods and gages. The railroad crews were busy on the job and a remarkable amount of the shipment of freight was saved for salvage by the railroad workmen.

Many Sightseers
Due to the widespread publicity on the train crash, thousands of people present from all parts of this state and adjoining states from Saturday noon until late last night. One party from Worcester, Mass., stopped at the crossing late last night. They told the officials on duty there that they had seen pictures of the wreck in the Worcester papers and drove down. The railroad officials were assisted by the local police and state police in handling the traffic.

The big job in this wreck was in getting the two "camelback" engines, each weighing over 175 tons on the rails. The East Hartford and New Haven cranes tackled the job from each quarter and early Saturday forenoon the big lead engine was switched by giant chain and cable back to the tracks and was hauled away.

Carry Away Freight
And so from out of a chaotic pile of steel, wood, ties, rails and broken cargo the workers proceeded to make a clearance for a railroad once again. A lifting chain snapped on the New Haven system and the New England Transportation Company, a subsidiary, were brought to Manchester to carry away the freight as fast as it was brought from the wrecked cars.

It is safe to say that more railroad officials were at the scene of the wreck Saturday and early Sunday than at any previous wreck on the system, at least in recent years. During the righting of one of the big locomotives a lifting chain snapped with a loud report. Fortunately no one was in line with the chain or they would have been instantly killed. It was at this point that police moved the crowd back from the right of way to the north side of North Main street and to the south side of Woodbridge street. After this occurrence, cable slings replaced the chain slings for the job.

Brave Workers
During the huge job it is of interest to give proper credit for a courageous group of men who time and again crawled under the wreckage at dangerous points with acetylene torches to cut away broken steel bars and chains which were obstructing the work. One snapped cable or broken hook on the lifting crane and it would have been instant death for the operative.

As soon as the tender of the first engine was removed the trackworkers began laying the rails for the new road bed so that the trains from New Haven could come for-

TO FREE BILLION IN FROZEN ASSETS

Government to Help Nation's Closed Banks to Release Depositors' Money.

Washington, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Government and banking officials hurried to translate into actual dollars and cents for depositors today, President Roosevelt's plan for advancing approximately $1,000,000,000 on the assets of closed National and state banks.

The immediate Federal job was completing organization of the deposit liquidation division of the Reconstruction Corporation which was designated by President Roosevelt to stimulate the distribution of frozen bank assets.

Co-operation Plea
For those in authority over the closed banks, the task was fulfillment of Mr. Roosevelt's plea of co-operation by aiding in the swiftest possible appraisal of assets.

The President, in announcing last night creation of the deposit liquidation board, named C. B. Merriman, R. F. C. director, as its head.

VOTE MAY ABOLISH REICH PRESIDENCY

Von Hindenburg Plans to Retire as Soon as the Election Is Over.

Berlin, Oct. 16.—(AP)—When the German nation marches to the polls Nov. 12, to give Chancellor Adolf Hitler unanimous endorsement, it may unwittingly put an end to the German presidency.

There are indications that President Von Hindenburg, after the election has overwhelmingly endorsed Hitler and his policies, may decide the moment has come when he can lay aside the cares of office and retire to his home at Neudeck.

Devotion to duty has kept the 86-year-old chief of state from resigning so long as the Nazi regime was not completely entrenched.

There is also little doubt that Hindenburg, from a sense of loyalty to his former sovereign, would be happiest if he could resign in favor of Wilhelm II.

Plane Hits Wilmington Home After Mid-Air Crash

While thousands of horror-struck spectators in the heart of Wilmington, Del., looked on, a plane piloted by Roy Hunt, Oklahoma City stunt flyer, struck a home, struck a plane piloted by Lem Povey, of Boston, plunged into the roofs of two houses, exploded, and caused the damage pictured above.

White Hunt landed unscathed with his parachute on an adjoining house, 10 persons, including three police men, were injured in the explosion and fire following the crash. Povey's plane landed safely five miles away. The fliers were advertising a nearby air circus when the crash occurred.

PUGILIST TO WED RICH N. Y. WOMAN

Refused Permission to Visit Mrs. Dick in a Hospital in Bermuda.

New York, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Enzo Fiermonte, Italian boxer, returned today from Bermuda, where he was refused permission to land last Friday, and said he is to marry Mrs. Madeline Dick, widow of John Jacob Astor.

The boxer said he would leave in two weeks for Paris and that the marriage would take place there as soon as Mrs. Dick is discharged from a Bermuda hospital, where she is recovering from an injury suffered in a fall. Fiermonte said he would give up boxing and become a broker.

Fiermonte was indignant over the refusal of Bermuda authorities to permit him to land and said he intended to retain "one of the best lawyers in New York" to find out who was responsible and make a formal complaint through the Italian consulate.

DISARMAMENT PARLEY ADJOURNS 'TIL OCT. 26

U. S. Adopts a Policy Of Watchful Waiting

Washington, Oct. 16.—(AP)—The United States, while expressing formally a determination that disarmament efforts must not be allowed to fail, has decided upon a temporary attitude of watchful waiting toward efforts to this end at Geneva.

It was made clear today at the State Department that unless unforeseen developments arise, this country will await the results of conferences during the next three or four days between European leaders before taking further action.

On behalf of President Roosevelt, it was said that the nations should "redouble their efforts to overcome the obstacles which are still blocking their path toward disarmament, a situation made more acute by Germany's withdrawal from the rams parley and the League of Nations."

A communication containing these words was addressed to Lord Robert Cecil of England in connection with a peace mass meeting in Geneva yesterday. It was transmitted by Secretary Hull through Norman H. Davis, America's ambassador at large.

Meanwhile, Undersecretary Phillips said at a press conference that no new instructions had been sent to Davis in regard to disarmament efforts.

The attitude of the department was that this country had gone to Geneva purely for disarmament rather than political reasons, and that it continued ready to aid in any way it could.

Nevertheless, it was indicated that this country desired to observe the course taken by European nations which have played headlines roles at Geneva before stating publicly its own course. It was reiterated, however, that if there was any possible way of continuing a program for general disarmament, the United States would offer its aid.

Shall Division of Victor and Vanquished Nations Be Kept Up Forever? Asks the Foreign Minister.

Berlin, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Baron von Neurath, German foreign minister, summarized "the cardinal question" of current politics today by asking "shall the division of nations into victors and vanquished be eternalized?"

Baron von Neurath received the entire foreign press and discussed Germany's withdrawal from the League of Nations and the disarmament conference. He asserted: "The cardinal question around which the entire politics of the present day turns, and concerning which the unequivocal answer must be given is: 'Shall the division of nations into victors and vanquished be eternalized?'"

Struggle Must Go On, Covenant of League of Nations Must Not Be Treated as Scrap of Paper, Declares Arthur Henderson, of Great Britain — France and U. S. Were Against Adjournment.

By Associated Press
The world disarmament conference, two days after Germany's withdrawal from that body and from the League of Nations, had adjourned until Oct. 26 upon a plea for continuation of its efforts by the parley chairman, Arthur Henderson of Great Britain.

"The struggle for disarmament must go on" and "the covenant of the League of Nations shall not be treated as a scrap of paper," was the message of Mr. Henderson to the International Peace Association at Geneva.

Plans for the Reichstag elections November 12 in Berlin provide that only the National Assembly shall be in the balloting which may also result in ending the presidential system. This information was forthcoming along with a statement by a government spokesman that Germany now believes the next move is up to the other nations.

The French government came out strongly in support of the opposition of Norman H. Davis, American ambassador-at-large against adjournment of the conference.

Vienna students, unfurling a swastika banner, demonstrated their sympathy with Germany in riots which resulted in strong measures by police.

President Roosevelt took the stand that there should be a redoubling of efforts to break the disarmament deadlock, while from other sources came the official revelation that the United States, while ready to lend assistance, may stand aside for a few days to determine the trend of the negotiations.

Geneva, Oct. 16.—(AP)—The world disarmament conference today adjourned to Oct. 26.

The decision was in keeping with the recommendation of the steering committee, which suggested a suspension of formal sessions until that date, with a meeting of its own body the day before.

The conference session was opened in a scene of extraordinary animation, with the public gallery choked and hundreds being unable to gain admission.

At the beginning of the session, Arthur Henderson, president of the assembly, read the disarmament resolution adopted by a peace mass meeting last night which expressed its "earnest desire for a successful issue of the disarmament conference."

The parley chairman then expressed the hope that the conference would continue unflinchingly until it achieves the first stage in the reduction of armaments.

Outlines Situation
Mr. Henderson followed this with an outline of the developments in the situation leading up to Germany's withdrawal, and then read a reply to Konstantin von Neurath, the German foreign minister, who on Sunday advised the chairman of his nation's intention to withdraw both from the League of Nations and the parley. The reply had been approved by the steering committee, and was read amidst applause from many of the benches.

The chairman declared he did not wish "to let pass unchallenged" Herr von Neurath's declarations that the highly armed nations had no intention to disarm and that Germany could not get equality rights.

H. Reply
The Henderson reply read "I communicated to the general commission Your Excellency's telegram of the 14th announcing the decision of the German government to discontinue participation in the work of the conference for the reduction and limitation of armaments, and indicating the reasons for that decision.

"The German government took this step at the moment when the bureau had just decided to submit to the general commission a definite program.

"This program, to be completed within a limited period, provided for the realization progressively, in accordance with the trend of the negotiations."

No Reason For a Panic, Reaction to Reich's Move

By ASSOCIATED PRESS
Secretary of State Cordell Hull placed the blame for impeding world progress toward disarmament squarely up to the Reich.

In other quarters the reaction was: "London.—Newspapers urged Great Britain to remain cool, insisting peace was not necessarily threatened."

18 FIRES STARTED BY N. Y. HUNTERS

Officials Say Forests Will Be Closed If They Are Not More Careful.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 16.—(AP)—Twenty fires, 18 of them caused by hunters, resulted in heavy destruction in the Adirondack and Catskill mountains yesterday as the deer hunting season opened. State Conservation Commissioner Lithgow Osborne reported today.

One fire, resulting from a camp blaze left unattended by a watcher on a deer run, swept over 300 acres near Barnum pond, while another burned 50 acres near the Sauganda river camp site. A 40-acre fire also caused destruction along the Recreation Trail on North Mountain, Greene county.

Pointing out that the surface soil is exceptionally inflammable because of the long summer drought, Commissioner Osborne urged hunters to use the utmost care.

"It cannot be too strongly emphasized," he said, "that the protection of the state's forests must be considered as much more important than affording an opportunity to the hunters of the state to shoot deer. If the danger from fires can be reduced by closing the woods to hunters and campers, I shall certainly ask the governor to do this if the fire continues."

OUTSIDE TUITION FEES MAKE HIGH SCHOOL PAY

Rockville Report Shows Profit of Over $400—May Need Addition to School.

Few towns if any in Connecticut can show that they have operated a high school at an actual cash profit but such is the case of the Rockville High School, which is conducted at an actual cash profit of $468.83 to the town of Vernon...

The receipts show that the total costs of the schools of the town of Vernon for both high school and grade schools, as amounting to $109,460.11 which were the amount of the total school orders for 1937-38. The profit is derived from the tuition received at the Rockville High School...

The Rockville High School has been so crowded during the past few years that the trustees are contemplating an addition to the modern school building located on Park street. The building does not belong to the town of Vernon but is an endowed building known as "The George Sykes Manual Training and High School" and the upkeep of the building is cared for by the trustees who are also to pay for the addition to be made very soon.

The town of Somers is sending its new pupils to Stafford but the three upper grades still remain at the Rockville High School. With the industrial situation improving some relief is expected at the Rockville High School from the overcrowded angle. It is expected that the high school will not continue to be the only outlet for those who have completed the grammar school work in this section of Connecticut.

The actual profit of conducting the Rockville High School is shown in the financial statement issued by the Vernon Town School committee. The report shows a total salary cost of $59,134.97 which also includes the two janitors employed at the Rockville High School. The tuition receipts at the Rockville High School for the past year amounted to $39,598.80 which means that the tuition paid the salaries of the principal, 24 teachers and two janitors in addition to leaving the sum of $468.83 to be applied to the heating and light bill.

Had the school the capacity there is little doubt that the enrollment would be such that the tuition receipts would amount to a sufficient sum to pay the total costs of the high school and of the costs of the grade schools. A survey of the school treasurer's report shows the total school orders for the fiscal year ending September 1, 1937 totalling $109,460.11 with unpaid orders amounting to $68.99 making a grand total of $109,529.10.

The total income from tuition and state aid amounted to $44,906.63 making, a net total school cost of $65,117.47 less the orders of the school board which are still unpaid amounting to $320.83, which brings the net cost of the schools of the town of Vernon to the taxpayers of $64,796.64. This is the lowest cost of the schools in the town of Vernon to the taxpayers since the year 1918-19.

Visit Wrecked Train. Hundreds of Rockville residents visited Manchester on Saturday and Sunday to view the wreck of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad fast freight in which twenty-five cars were demolished. More than a score of Rockville men found employment among the two hundred employed in clearing up the wreckage.

Aid was offered the "New Haven" railroad by the Hockanum Mills company who are the trucks to help carry the merchandise from Manchester to Hartford. The trucks of the New England Transportation Company proved sufficient and it was not necessary to accept the Hockanum Company's offer.

Residents of Rockville started their emigration to Manchester shortly after daylight as the mills did not work on Saturday because of the revised working schedule under the NRA plan.

made a careful survey of the wrecked train and expressed appreciation that no one was killed, especially injured. He also expressed appreciation of the assistance rendered by the police to the reclamation department of the railroad in protecting the merchandise.

Old Folks Day Held. The honor of being the oldest person at the Annual Old Folks Day at the Rockville Methodist Episcopal Church was tendered Daniel Presby of Talcott avenue, who has passed his 94 birthday. Mr. Presby is the father of Mrs. Francis S. Nettleton of Talcott avenue. More than a score of bouquets were presented to the "old folks" present at yesterday's service which was open to all creeds. A large bouquet of flowers was presented to each elderly person who attended.

Rev. Charles S. Johnson, pastor, had charge of the old folks service at the annual Old Folks Day at the Rockville Methodist Episcopal Church. A retired minister, delivered the sermon. Mrs. Martin V. Metcalf, former soloist at the church, rendered the selection "Sweet Memories of Departed Days," in a very pleasing manner.

Young People's Rally for the young folks of the Protestant Churches of Tolland County was held at the Somers Congregational Church last evening. The rally was held at the Rockville churches were well represented as they were at the first rally held some time ago. An address was delivered by Dean Vaughn Dabner of the Newton Theological Seminary of Newton, Mass. A special musical program was also presented. The young folks returned to Rockville about 9:30 o'clock last evening reporting an interesting service.

Re-Elect Officers. At the annual state convention of the Catholic Ladies of Columbus held in Rockville on Saturday at which Victory Assembly of this city were hostesses, the officers were unanimously re-elected for another year. The officers re-elected were as follows: President, Mrs. Lillian Mahoney, of Manchester; vice-president, Miss Rose Cribbins, of Shelton; secretary, Miss Louise Sweetland, of Hartford; treasurer, Miss Margaret Delaney, of Norwich; state lecturer, Mrs. Jennie J. Carroll, of New Haven; state counselor, Miss Charlotte Holloway, of New London; state editor, Miss Ada Ruth, of New Haven; assistant state editor, Miss Mae E. Conklin, of New Haven.

Superior Court in Session. The adjourned session of the September term of the Tolland County Superior Court re-opened in Rockville this morning at 10 o'clock with Judge Patrick B. O'Sullivan on the bench. It was necessary to take recess early in September as Judge O'Sullivan had to substitute for a judge who was taken ill. More than a dozen short calendar cases were listed for hearing today, the most important of which was the case of Phineas B. Varum, administrator, vs. The Balloon Yeast Corporation.

Final Plans Tonight. At the meeting of the Rockville NRA Committee in the Civil Service Room of the Rockville Post Office at 7 o'clock tonight the plans for the big NRA parade to be held on Wednesday evening will be completed. The final report will be made by the parade committee headed by Patrick J. Johnston and the layout of the bands and the organizations participating in each division will be made known to the chairman of the different groups may complete their plans. It is also expected to be made known at this time what dignitaries of the state are to participate in the event. Arrangements will be made tomorrow for the construction of the reviewing stand opposite the monitor block on Main street where the street is extra wide.

All organizations which are planning to take part in the parade are requested to get in touch with the parade committee or a member of the general committee headed by former Mayor Frederick G. Hartenstein. At all of the masses at St. Bernard's Catholic church Sunday morning, Rev. George T. Sinnott, pastor, urged a large delegation to participate in the parade as representing St. Bernard's church and to carry a large banner. He urged co-operation on the part of all members of the parish to make the event a big success.

Miller-Badstueber Wedding. Miss Mildred Badstueber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Badstueber, of West street, and Max Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Miller, of Rockville, were united in marriage on Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents on West street. Rev. K. Otto Klette, pastor of the First Lutheran church, performed the ceremony. Miss Eilste Miller, a cousin of the bride, was the bridesmaid and George Miller, brother of the bridegroom, was the best man. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

The bride was handsomely gowned in white satin with a bridal veil which was caught up with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet which was very beautiful. The bridesmaid was attired in a silk dress of light blue with slippers and hat to match. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on West street following the ceremony. Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Miller left for a motor trip to Maine. Upon their return they will reside in this city although Mr. Miller is employed in Hartford while his wife is employed by the Hockanum Mills Company of Rockville.

Mrs. Mary Burns. Mrs. Mary Burns, aged 70 years, widow of the late Thomas Burns, died at her home at 52 Grand avenue on Saturday morning. Death was caused by complications following a short illness due to old age. Mrs. Burns was born in Ireland but came to America while a child of ten years of age. She was a member of St. Bernard's Catholic church, the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Charles Merkel and Mrs. Albert Hauptman, both of Rockville, three sons, John, Thomas and Thomas Burns, of Rockville, and two brothers, Patrick Murphy, of Clinton and James Murphy, of Jewett City; also a sister, Mrs. Alice Kleinhaus, of Holyoke, Mass., and several nieces and nephews as well as grandchildren. The funeral of Mrs. Burns will be held on Tuesday morning at St. Bernard's Catholic church at 9 o'clock. Rev. George T. Sinnott, pastor, will officiate at a requiem high mass. Burial will be in the family plot in St. Bernard's cemetery.

Notes. Frederick J. Sheehan, of Hartford, a former Rockville resident, returned to his home in Hartford last evening after spending Sunday in Rockville with friends. The annual tea party for the women of the Union Congregational church will be held at the church social rooms on Friday afternoon of this week. Rev. Dr. George S. Brooks will address the gathering and an interesting musical program will be presented.

Mr. Francis J. Prichard of Woodland street has announced the marriage of his sister, Miss Elsie M. Gebhardt, to Henry J. Ems, also of this city, which will take place on Wednesday. The sale of NRA pins for the financing of the big NRA celebration in Rockville on Wednesday was started on Saturday with the Boy Scouts in charge. The receipts will be used to defray the transportation of the different bands.

The Rockville Visiting Nurse Association deposited a check for $1,000 in the Rockville National Bank on Saturday morning, received from City Clerk Raymond A. Hunt. This was the city's donation to the support of the Visiting Nurse Association which was appropriated last December. The Class of 1934 of the Rockville High school will hold a Hallowe'en dance in the George Sykes Memorial school on Friday evening, October 27. This will be the first public dance held for the purpose of raising funds to visit the National Capital in the spring.

An important meeting of the Board of Selectmen will be held on Tuesday evening at which First Selectman Francis J. Prichard will preside.

COLORFUL BACKGROUND TO ELABORATE FILM

"One Sunday Afternoon" Coming to State Enacts Scenes of 1905.

Few motion pictures can boast the colorful background of "One Sunday Afternoon." Gary Cooper's latest starring picture for Paramount, in which Fay Wray, Frances Fuller, Roscoe Karns and Neil Hamilton are featured. The picture, directed by Stephen Roberts, comes to the State theater Wednesday and Thursday.

One enormous scene is an amusement park which covers nearly three acres. There are the old-time Ferris wheel, the horse-drawn merry-go-round, shooting gallery, doll-racks, glass-blowing factory, roller-coaster and concessions of every sort from a pink lemonade stand to a greased-pig show.

There's a huge German beer-garden, featuring a 40-piece German band. A lively stable, buggy factory, the smalltown poolroom with its wooden Indian marker, and many forgotten relics of an antiquated transportation system:—stage and mail coaches; sulkeys that spin brilliantly behind thoroughbred trotters; phonographs with their naughty footmen; huggies, hacks and swanky victorias—all so popular in the early 1900's.

THESE CHANGING TIMES

A Student of the Modern School Looks At Today's and Tomorrow's Problems.

By JACOB E. RUBINOW

1914 AND 1938. Over the week-end the spotlight of popular attention was swung rather violently from our struggle against the forces of depression to Germany's drastic action in withdrawing from the League of Nations and the Disarmament Conference. The leading powers are now faced with two problems in international relations as momentous as those which they faced in 1914, and as vital to the cause of world peace.

First, there is the need of formulating a policy to meet Germany's action. Should Germany be allowed, even in violation of the Versailles Treaty, to build up her armaments, thereby hoping to win her back to the League and give the way for an eventual agreement on some sort of general armament limitation? Or must Germany be scrapped, at least openly, by the Versailles Treaty, keeping her armaments within the limits there prescribed, even though there may be an armed invasion of the Rhineland by France in case there is a violation of the Treaty? These are the clear-cut alternatives. Hitler is determined that the Versailles provisions must be scrapped. France is convinced that the maintenance of her security depends on Germany's adherence to the provisions.

The second problem concerns the sanctity of international covenants. If Germany is allowed again to treat as "scraps of paper" treaties and agreements between herself and other powers, the entire set of peace-making machinery erected since the war will lose whatever prestige remains to it. The nations will have to admit that they are not yet capable of settling their disagreements on paper instead of on the battlefield. Whatever progress has been made since 1914 in minimizing international war will be swept away. Armed force will again become the chief agency of international policy. International relations will again be on the basis that prevailed since the seventeenth century. In this field alone mankind will have no progress to show for the time that has elapsed.

But what if the provisions of the Versailles Treaty can be enforced only by an armed invasion of Germany? That brings us to the first problem, that of the immediate answer to Germany's withdrawal. There should be only one answer: Germany must not be allowed to remain until its government gives definite evidence of less militaristic inclinations. France, greatly inferior

COLUMBIA

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Porter with their guest, Miss Milly Robinson, and Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Robinson of Post Hill spent the day Tuesday at Misquamicutt Beach.

Mrs. Anna Dert, who has been a guest for several months at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Holmes, returned to her home in Providence, Thursday. Mrs. Holmes accompanied her and will remain in Providence for a few days.

W. C. Robinson and H. W. Porter spent Wednesday at the Stafford Fair. Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Hunt spent part of Tuesday in Hartford. The regular meeting of the Columbia Grange was held Wednesday evening. Carroll Hutchinson, a member of Hebron Grange, gave a paper on "The Grange Spirit". There were songs, and for the lighter part of the program several games and contests were enjoyed. The next meeting on October 25 will be the annual Competitive program between the brothers and sisters, and the program will be open to all who care to come. It is expected there will be a large audience, as these contests usually create a lot of interest.

Strangers passing through Columbia comment upon the beautiful appearance of the Green at the present time. The barberry hedge is thick with bright red berries, which contrast with the vivid green of the grass, which is as fresh as in summer. The trees are also at their best and are a gorgeous sight with all shades of yellow and red.

Miss Harriet Fuller enjoyed a motor trip to Springfield Friday with her nephew, Winthrop Davoll, of Liberty Hill. Miss Anne Dix with her friends, Miss Poshay and Miss Purinton, who have been visiting in Columbia, left Thursday afternoon for Springfield, leaving there Friday morning for an auto trip over the Mohawk Trail.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Porter and their guest, Miss Milly Robinson, and Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Robinson of Post Hill, motored to the Devil's Hop Yard Thursday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Robinson of Post Hill started Friday for Wilhamstown, Mass., where they will spend a few days at the home of Prof. Wetmore of Williams College. Mrs. Robinson and Mrs. Wetmore are sisters.

The annual party for those in the parish over 70 years of age was held at the parsonage Friday afternoon. The few gentlemen eligible were conspicuous by their absence, but there were 13 ladies present, it also being Friday the 13th. The oldest lady present was Mrs. Lucy Clarke, who will be 98 years old next spring, and the youngest was Mrs. Julia Little, who is eligible this year for the first time. There were three other ladies present over 80, Mrs. Abbie Lyman, 88; Miss Amelia Fuller, 85; Mrs. Grooms, 80. The others present were Miss Harriet Fuller,

PLUMBING, HEATING PARTNERSHIP FORMED

Local Men Start Business—Both Have Had Considerable Experience.

Thomas M. Sullivan of McKee street and John Howarth of Cooper Hill street have announced their partnership in the plumbing and heating business. Both men are well known locally.

Mr. Sullivan was formerly connected with J. J. Murphy and Son, one of Hartford's leading plumbing concerns, and has worked on many of the leading buildings in Hartford and vicinity. Mr. Howarth was formerly employed by Johnson and Little, local plumbing concern, and needs no introduction to the majority of the home owners of Manchester. The basis of their business will be prompt, efficient and courteous service and hope they may be of service to their many friends throughout the town.

JAP STATESMAN DIES

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 16.—(AP)—Dr. Inazo Nitobe, Japan's last League of Nations representative died in a hospital here last night. He was 71 years old. The veteran Japanese statesman became ill here a month ago while on his way home to Japan from the Pacific relations conference at Banff.

A member of the House of Peers, he was perhaps best known as an interpreter of Japan to the Western world.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 16.

UNCLE JOE ROOSEVELT.

Among the many enduring tales that served to while away the camp evenings of several generations of northern New England French Canadian lumbermen was one about Uncle Joe's phenomenal jump.

Uncle Joe was the greatest jumper in the whole north country. One day, it seems, he came across a great cellar hole, sixty feet from one wall to the other. He stepped back a few yards, took a huge lungful of air, ran at top speed to the edge, and soared into the air.

"And you mean to tell us," always inquired some innocent, "that he made that jump—sixty feet?"

"Well, not exactly," was the traditional reply. "You see, mon Oncle Joe, she no dam fool. Half way over, Joe she see she can't never reach. So she jus' turn round 'a' com back."

There is a suspicion, fast growing into acute apprehension, that Franklin D. Roosevelt is an Uncle Joe of sorts. He has taken off magnificently on several unprecedentedly soaring leaps. But half way to the objective he appears to get cold feet and to begin figuring out ways of compromising the situation. It is not without reason that countless thousands of Americans who a few months ago were ready to follow Mr. Roosevelt's leadership anywhere are now developing the fear that he is a wonderfully daring planner who in action lacks the complete courage of his convictions and the stark valor to carry on over a stricken field regardless of the casualties.

In the case of the deposits liquidation corporation, announced today, the mountain has labored and brought forth a mouse. What was desperately needed was the bold stroke of government assumption of all the frozen assets of the closed banks and payment for them, at a very liberal appraisal, in cash. There are, not as the Treasury Department keeps insisting, only some three billions of dollars worth of these assets, but something like seven and a half billions. The Treasury Department for some reason of its own refuses to take into consideration the thousands of banks that were closed prior to the bank holiday of last March and treats only with such banks as were closed by the holiday and have not reopened. These constitute, in amount of frozen assets, less than half the actual sources of paralysis.

So the present proposal, stripped of its grandiose pretensions, is to attempt to relieve seven and a half billions of difficulty with a billion dollars of money—and not new money at that. And not, which is worse, by the method of outright purchase of the frozen assets but by the depressive and discouraging method of making more of those exactly calculated loans with which the closed banks have already been hog-tied and rendered helpless.

The scheme is bound to be at least nine-tenths a failure. It jumps part way over a cellar hole.

Half-way measures in dealing with the soft coal operators, half way measures in dealing with Henry Ford, half way measures in dealing with the hoghishness of the American Federation of Labor and the whole strike situation, half way measures in dealing with value-lifting, and now half way—less than half way—measures in handling the problem of the frozen deposits; these things are converting the golden promise of the Great Crusade against unemployment and injustice into discouragement and doubt—and a fervent hope that Congress, when it meets, will demeritly change much of its discretionary legislation into mandatory law.

Mr. Roosevelt too often modifies his purposes in midair.

A WELCOME BREAK.

To those specialists in international relations who, ever since the Armistice, have been working and hoping for some sort of formal accord between the nations that would guarantee world peace the withdrawal of Germany from the League of Nations and from the Disarmament Conference comes as a sickening blow to their aspirations. To the ordinary citizen of the United States and of half a dozen other countries, it is to be suspected, the sudden event of Saturday will appear as the termination of an impossible and utterly unpromising situation and its occurrence will be hailed with relief rather than with sorrow.

There are two nations in the world which are definitely out of place in any gathering of peoples for the purpose of establishing and maintaining peace. Those nations are Germany and Japan. Both of these nations (idealize war; both aspire to conquest; both are capable of convincing themselves that they are the victims of world-wide conspiracy; both are dominated by the belief that it is their destiny to spread their own cultures and their own system of civilization throughout the world. Neither will hesitate to break any pledge or engage in any treachery if thereby it can place itself in a position of advantage in the acquisition of power over the alien and despised peoples of other countries.

The presence of the representatives of nations animated by such purposes as those of Japan and the Reich among the councilors of states sincerely if blindly seeking the way to international peace can serve no end but that of confusion.

Germany is better out of than in the League of Nations and though crocodile tears are being shed over her departure the world, we may be sure, is breathing freer today.

As for the effect of the occurrence on disarmament—in the slang of the day, Don't make us laugh! There simply can be no disarmament—and should be no disarmament—anywhere so long as there are anywhere on earth populous nations who adhere to the pagan belief that man's highest function is to die on the field of battle and that his most shameful fate is to yield up his soul in the bed of peace. So long as there is Japan swayed and controlled by the Samurai philosophy and so long as there is Germany actuated by the homicidal aspirations of Hitler and Nazism the only safety for their neighbors and for the world at large is in armies, navies and materials of war.

Under all this pretense and pious wishing about disarmament during the last year and more there has been a fixed conviction in the hearts of millions of men and women that nothing could come out of it—that, as a matter of bald truth, nothing should come out of it.

There is nothing about the open break of Hitler's Germany with the League and with the Disarmament Conference to bring the world nearer to war than it was before that event. In fact, there is considerable reason to believe that the contrary is true. A smoke screen has been blown away. The European situation now stands forth in a much clearer light. There will be far less opportunity for sapping and burrowing and infiltration.

The world, in short, is to be congratulated that the hysterical Nazi temper has brought the whole operation into the open and put the nations more wakefully on guard.

MAKES IT ALL CLEAR.

Connecticut possesses, in Representative Francis T. Maloney of Meriden, a truly great economist. He is for inflation—not of the currency for he is the stiffest sort of a gold money man—but of wages. Reduce the hours of employment to thirty a week, raise the wages until all the re-employed and the already employed have plenty of money to buy everything that is manufactured, and you will have prosperity presto! Just like that!

It is so simple; how remarkable that nobody ever thought of it before!

Mr. Maloney, like many other very great men, does not clutter up his thoughts with detail. He just goes at the problem in a big way. To lesser minds he will leave such insignificant details as where the employer is to get the money to meet the inflated payrolls and pay for raw materials produced by workers who are getting twice as much for thirty hours as they used to get for sixty.

Congressman Maloney is a great help.

HEALTH AND DIET ADVICE

By Dr. Frank McCoy

OCTOBER IS THE PEAK MONTH FOR COLDS

News from London is that men who work in a warehouse where cinnamon is stored never have colds; it is believed that breathing the fine dust from the spice prevents their catching cold. At the present time, much study is being made of the common cold and one doctor has found a way to give chimpanzees the same kind of a cold that humans have.

The ordinary head cold is a very common condition and estimates show that almost one fourth of the people have four or five colds a year; considerably more than half of them have two colds a year, and the rest either have no colds or one per year. The cold is the largest single cause of sickness among workers and more than half of the workers who stay home do so on account of colds.

Although a cold is called a minor illness, it may be fairly expensive and I would judge that your last cold probably cost you at least five dollars, if you add in lost wages, and the cost of any medicine you may have bought for it. Colds should be avoided because they are expensive, they make you miserable, you may easily pass them on to others and because they may develop into such serious disorders as sinus trouble, catarrh, deafness, bronchitis or pneumonia.

A cold is an acute attack of catarrh which affects the mucous membrane which lines the nose; it runs its course and then stops. Very frequently the irritation spreads from the nose to the eyes, or to the throat causing hoarseness, or down the bronchial tubes causing bronchitis, or to the sinus cavities of the face causing sinus trouble. Or the acute condition may develop into chronic catarrh.

The underlying or fundamental cause of a cold is a toxemia or poisoning of the whole body by wrong eating and wrong habits of living. When this toxic condition is present, your resistance to the germs causing colds is lowered to such a degree that such a small exciting cause as becoming very tired may be all that is needed to bring on a cold. You cannot avoid the germs of colds, because they are always around you, but you can eliminate those wrong habits of eating and living which produce the underlying toxemia. Keep your nose and throat healthy and keep your bloodstream cleansed of wastes, and you become free of colds at any time of the year, even during October, when colds occur in greatest numbers.

The real cause of colds is a toxic condition and after it has developed any one of several exciting causes may serve to precipitate an attack. Among the exciting causes are: fatigue, wet shoes, constipation, rainy or cold weather, eating too many of the acid-forming foods, particularly of starches and sugars, which also have a tendency to produce abnormal amounts of mucus, and over-dressing in heavy clothing in warm rooms. Bundling up in heavy clothing prevents the free elimination of wastes from the skin and also causes a faint perspiration which encourages chilling upon going out into cold. Dry, hot, indoor air is another contributing cause of colds and men who work outdoors in all kinds of weather have fewer colds than those working in offices. Practical experience has shown that if the patient who has many colds will stay outdoors this will have a remarkable effect in helping to overcome the tendency.

An acute cold is in reality a helpful measure since it is Nature's way of making an effort to cleanse the system of toxic wastes. These impurities are thrown out in the abnormal flow of mucus and burned up by any fever which may be present. During a cold the mucous membranes simply become an open channel of elimination and are

"SAVINGS."

It may be "cheap" criticism to suggest that such a railroad smash as that occurring here early Saturday morning consumes the profits of many years of "saved" labor, but the reflection, while inexpensive, may be worth while.

It has been stated that the cost of the accident to the New Haven road may reach somewhere between half a million and a million dollars. Making the rather lavish allowance of a couple of thousand dollars a year for the manual operation of a single switch or for the checking of the switch's automatic operation by inspection after the passage of each train, it figures out that the money lost in the titanic freight wreck would have been sufficient to pay for such service for two hundred and fifty years.

Of course the Manchester freight wreck will not serve to convince the operators of the New Haven or any other railroad that there may be some doubt about the ultimate economy of automatic service and the displacement of human labor when carried to its extreme. It is much easier and more fool-saving to attribute blame through accident to the will of God than to admit that they are brought about by "modern methods of efficiency and economy."

But when the New Haven road next bewails its poverty-stricken state for some reason of its own there may be a number of people in this town who saw the wreck of that unwatched automatic switch and who will wonder why a corporation that can afford such destruction couldn't better have afforded to pay some old fellow a few dollars a month to prevent it.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Pies and Cakes)
 Question: U. U. F. asks: "May one use milk and cream with any foods desired, and when egg pies, cakes and doughnuts be eaten and in what combinations with other foods?"
 Answer: Milk should be used by itself or with fruits or nonstarchy vegetables, but not with the ordinary meal containing proteins and starches. Cream may be used on cereals or added to vegetables after they are cooked. If pies, cakes or doughnuts are ever used; they should be used as starchy foods and the same rules about combinations hold good with these foods as with other starches.

(Fishes Are Condiments)
 Question: Miss Genevieve E. asks: "Are pickles harmful to one's health?"
 Answer: You will notice I do not recommend pickles in my menus. They must be classed as condiments and not as food. If used at all, they should be used with a meal containing no starch.

(Fiercing the Reys and Eyebrow Picking)
 Question: Miss Gary R. inquires: "Does piercing the ears and wearing gold earrings strengthen the eyes?"
 Answer: Does arching the eyebrows weaken the eyes?
 Answer: The old-fashioned belief that piercing the ears and wearing gold earrings strengthens the eyes does not hold any truth. The eyes cannot be affected in any way by doing this. Picking the eyebrows does not have any effect on the eyesight, but there is always the possibility of leaving the pores open for infection, although, if ordinary precautions are taken, this can be avoided.

24 ATTEND LUTHER LEAGUE CONVENTION

Big Delegation at Conference Held at Upsala College.

Twenty-four members of the Lutheran League of the Emanuel Lutheran church attended the fifth Lutheran League convention and Christian Youth Conference, which opened last Wednesday and closed yesterday afternoon, at Upsala College in East Orange, New Jersey. Seven members attended the conference and the rest were present over the weekend as part of the New England conference chorus.

The delegates Herman Johnson was delegate from the New England Conference. Luther League was attended by delegates from all parts of the country, included an oratorical contest, won by the California entry, with the Minnesota entry second; the appearance of the New England Conference chorus of 300 voices sang in Newark Saturday night, attended by nearly 500 persons, and at the closing session yesterday afternoon.

The New Deal Dr. Conrad Bergendoff, dean of the Augustana Theological Seminary, was the speaker at the final rally service. In his talk on "The Word of God in the World of Today," he pointed out that the Christian in sympathy with the ideals of a new society where righteousness, justice, equality shall prevail. These are the things for which the Christian church has stood these two thousand years. EXPECT BIG SENSATION AT NEXT SENATE PROBE

The committee's staff collected a mass of material in connection with the Dillon, Reed and Company's Dodge and Cash Register operations, but reported it had found nothing in them that would be of particular interest to the investigating group. Some of the Senators asked, however, to have the evidence reviewed again to make sure it contained nothing that should be publicly aired.

DISARMAMENT PARLEY ADJOURNS TIL OCT. 26

cordance with the resolutions of the conference in which Germany herself concurred, of the reductions of armaments comparable to those contemplated in the draft convention submitted to the general commission. "This program was provided also with corresponding measures of security for the realization of the rights which the German government has always placed in the forefront of their demands. "I regret, therefore, that this grave decision should have been taken by your government for reasons which I am unable to accept as valid. (Signed) Arthur Henderson, president of the Disarmament Conference.

GERMAN SITUATION HELPFUL TO JAPS

lements of the Manchurian and other Sino-Japanese issues favorable to Japan would be facilitated. There was a strong rising tone in Tokyo and Osaka markets. This was attributed first to the operations confidence that the German crisis has improved Japan's situation, and secondly the subsidence of last week's Russo-Japanese war scare.

HOSPITAL NOTES

Frank Brewer of 57 Russell street, Hartford, employed on the railroad wreck operations, was given emergency treatment Saturday morning at 10:30 for a liver in his right middlefinger. He was discharged following treatment. Mrs. Hazel Finney of Andover, Mrs. Eric Halliday and infant son of 258 Oak street were discharged Saturday.

SEASON WEARS CLOSE

Chicago, Oct. 16.—(AP)—The 1933 racing season in the Chicago district starts on its last roundup today when Sportsman's Park, the old mile oval on the western edge of the city, opens for a four-day stand.

STATEMENTS 'SHOULD REDUCE THEIR EFFORTS TO OVERCOME THE OBSTACLES'

blocking the path to disarmament was expressed in a statement made public today at the State Department. The message was communicated yesterday to a mass meeting promoted by peace societies, and delivered through Norman H. Davis, representing this government at the armaments conference. The State Department said the message had been written in Washington on October 13, which was before Germany's sudden withdrawal from the arms conference and the League of Nations. Text of Letter The text of the letter addressed by Mr. Davis to Lord Cecil of Great Britain in connection with the mass meeting held in Geneva to express world public opinion in favor of disarmament follows: "The Secretary of State, on behalf of the President, wishes me to convey to you my sympathetic interest in the mass meeting which is to take place on Sunday and to express his belief that this imposing demonstration of the aspirations of millions who are looking to the conference to take a decisive step toward reducing armaments will constitute a solemn reminder to the representatives of the nations of the world that they must not allow the confederated with the knowledge that world opinion is backing them in their difficult task, they should redouble their efforts to overcome the obstacles which are still blocking their path and bring about the constructive achievement which mankind confidently awaits."

GERMANY TO REARM

Swarthmore, Pa., Oct. 16.—(AP)—A prediction that Germany will start to rearm immediately is voiced by William Stone, Washington representative of the Foreign Policy Association. "Nations will drift gradually toward another devastating war, unless the people themselves arise at the crisis," he told a joint meeting of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom and the Fellowship of Reconciliation. "Asserting that Germany, even had she been a Republic, would have withdrawn from the disarmament conference, Stone said 'there is only one sure way to achieve peace—that is for the people to refuse to enter war.'"

CRISIS REACHED

Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 16.—(AP)—Senator Joe T. Robinson said today, "A crisis has been reached which threatens the success of the cause of disarmament," as a result of Germany's withdrawal from the disarmament conference and the League of Nations. "Indeed, many fear that the abrupt action by Chancellor Hitler may result in very serious consequences relating to the peace of Europe," said the Senate Democratic floor leader, who has just returned from a European trip. "The United States is starting and will exert her good offices," his statement continued. "Our people have had enough of war and in my opinion will look with horror on events which threaten a clash between two of the great peoples in Europe. "This is a time for the rule of wise men. Mad men cannot be expected to demonstrate patience and prudence touching causes of great concern. "It is undeniable on the part of anyone charged with the responsibility of leadership to fan the flames of hatred and animosity. I am hopeful that the leadership in Germany may be induced to modify its resolution since the chancellor's course adds to difficulties already very great and perplexing."

SEEK NO PROGRESS

Senator Robinson, a member of the Senate foreign relations committee, said that "manifestly no progress can be made toward the reduction of arms while the present state of public opinion continues in Germany and in France. "It is not often that leaders possessing the temperament which Chancellor Hitler has exemplified seek or accept prudent counsel and this fact makes necessary exemption of caution, well seasoned with firmness when such situations as that referred to arose," he said. "I do not doubt the good faith of the agencies of the League of Nations and am convinced that if the existing rupture can be healed substantial results may be hoped for."

HIGH GERMAN OFFICIAL PRESENTS REICHS SIDE

ed be eternalized or is, at least, the principle to receive recognition that all states are members with equal rights of the Community of Nations. "The recognition and realization of this principle is decisive for every form of international cooperation. Denied Equality "Last Saturday I became clear at Geneva that the German people are denied equality in one of the questions supremely affecting its very existence, namely, national security. "Thereby the powers destroyed the foundation on which the honest and truthful co-operation of nations alone is thinkable. "The German people would defame themselves and act dishonestly if, despite this condition of things, it attempted to keep up the appearance of such co-operation. "The foreign minister pointed out to the newspapermen that equality was demanded by Germany from the moment the question of her entry into the League was first raised. He reminded his hearers of the first official pronouncement of the League of Nations Council in December, 1924, in which Council members declared themselves at one with Germany's demand for equality. "This equality," Von Neurath maintained, "could alone be the basis also for Germany's attitude in the disarmament question for this question was exactly that part of the League of Nations program in connection with whose treatment the powers had to decide whether they meant equality or not. "The foreign minister recalled how Germany in the summer of 1932 withdrew from the conference and how the five-power declarations of December 11, 1932, expressly guaranteed equality. "When we re-entered the conference," continued the speaker, "we learned with disappointment that the foundations of the conference discussions no longer existed. "There was but one answer to make, namely, to leave the conference. "Public opinion abroad seems surprised at our reply. "That is understandable, since the recent negotiations were conducted confidentially, but the participating statesmen were in no wise surprised. "With satisfaction, I observe that during these last negotiations, the representatives of the United States and Italy left no effort untried to mediate. "All the efforts, however, failed, on account of the effort of other powers to erect a united front against Germany, to which Germany could do nothing, but yield." In conclusion, the minister said:

DAVIS COMMENT

Geneva, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Germany's action may make the task more difficult, "but the solution of the disarmament problem is of such vital importance that every effort should still be made to achieve it." Norman H. Davis, United States ambassador-at-large, declared in a letter to Lord Cecil of England here today. His letter was read with a message from Secretary of State Hull of the United States on behalf of President Roosevelt when the International Peace Association received Davis at a public session presided over by Sir Arthur Henderson of Great Britain. Davis explained that Hull's message was received before Germany's withdrawal from the disarmament conference. Had it been sent afterwards, "it would no doubt have been somewhat differently worded," he adding, however, that he saw no reason for recalling the message.

CHINA IS WORRIED

Nanking, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Chinese circles today expressed anxiety as to the future of the League of Nations in view of Germany's withdrawal. "The German withdrawal means the wreck of the disarmament conference and the beginning of an armaments race by all imperialist powers as well as the second great blow to the League of Nations—this instrument for the oppression of the masses and small countries."

DAVIS COMMENT

Geneva, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Germany's action may make the task more difficult, "but the solution of the disarmament problem is of such vital importance that every effort should still be made to achieve it." Norman H. Davis, United States ambassador-at-large, declared in a letter to Lord Cecil of England here today. RECOGNITION AND REALIZATION OF THIS PRINCIPLE IS DECISIVE FOR EVERY FORM OF INTERNATIONAL CO-OPERATION.

friend and partner, Louis Marshall, is here to me," Undermyer retorted. "Knowing Mr. Marshall as I did, I have a pretty lively conception of how he would feel about such a libel upon our people. "He is not here to speak for himself. "Undermyer termed injection of the racial issue as "little short of a calamity," but one "that must be met." "Such a sweeping and all-embracing indictment of a patriotic, useful, law-abiding people sounds to me more than anything else like a reverberation of Hitlerism," he declared, "except that instead of being inspired by hatred, bigotry and fanaticism, which it is not, it is due to a sad and ignoble misconception of our people, among whom he (McKee) has dwelt many years and should have better understood."

Picture Taken Abroad Are Shown at Today's Meeting of Club. An interesting illustrated lecture was given before the local Kiwanis Club at its weekly meeting today at the Country Club by Donald Dunham of Hartford, who with his wife and son recently made a trip to the Holy Land and other parts of Europe. The attendance figure, donated by Thomas Ferguson, was won by James Nishola. Mr. Dunham showed scenes taken in Athens, Nazareth, Jerusalem, Italy, France, England and Czechoslovakia. The film also included scenes taken at a bull fight in Spain, in which seven bulls were killed.

DEATH WAS ACCIDENTAL

Hartford, Oct. 16.—(AP)—William Pring, 75, of an eighth street, who was hospitalized in a bus car off Yorkville avenue at 10:30 Sunday morning, died at the Municipal hospital at 3:15 this morning. Convulsion of the brain and a generally weakened condition was said by hospital authorities to have been the cause of the aged man's death. After many hours of investigation during which a report of a supposed fight was investigated, Detective Jere J. Gray gave the opinion that Pring's injuries were received in an accident.

These, luscious looking (and tasting) French pastries in the window of the Center Pharmacy are, I found out, the candy special from the Schmitt factory this week—sixty-cent value for thirty-nine cents a pound.

Fluffy Pumpkin Pie. This pie is "perfined" and you may prefer it to suet. Use three-fourths cup sifted pumpkin, 5-4 cup sugar, 1 egg, 1-1/2 cups milk, 1-1/2 cup cream, 1-1/2 teaspoon ginger, 1-3 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-4 teaspoon salt.

Small chocolate beads held the decorations of a nude tan satin gown at a recent fashion show.

While Yale blue featured in the game Saturday Blue Eagle was an exciting high note among the spectators. There was one very out-standing suit—Blue Eagle's coat trimmed with black fur, opened at the neck so it could see a dress of the same shade trimmed with white angora, and a pert Blue Eagle hat topped it all.

For Eggplant Italiane—Two small eggplants, 1 hard cooked egg, 1-2 cup diced cheese, 1 cup tomato sauce. Pare eggplants and cut in slices. Sprinkle each slice with salt and pile on a plate, one above the other.

For that troublesome constipation, the Center Pharmacy is recommending a new remedy—Prulium—not habit forming or distressing—the price—only 50c a box.

3 VIOLENT DEATHS REPORTED IN STATE

Two Killed by Autos—One Dies After a Fist Fight in Bridgeport.

By the Associated Press. The lives of two men, both in their twenties, were taken by automobile accidents and another man died after a fist fight as three violent deaths were reported last weekend in Connecticut.

Edward L. Gildard, 25, of Putnam was injured fatally Saturday night when his car was in collision with a truck in Putnam. He died on the way to a hospital. His widow and a child survive.

Howard Eichstaedt, 27, of Hartford was injured fatally Sunday morning when the car in which he was a passenger was struck by another car, near the Hilltop farm in Suffield.

A crowbar was used to extricate Eichstaedt from the wreckage under which he was pinned. He died soon afterward in a Springfield, Mass. hospital.

Joseph Mieczkowski, 50, of Bridgeport, died in St. Vincent's hospital Sunday after he was involved in a fight in front of his home with Daniel Morehouse of Bridgeport.

Knocked down during the fight, Mieczkowski suffered a fractured skull which proved fatal. Morehouse was held on a charge of breach of the peace pending an investigation.

Forgotten Sweetheart

by MARY RAYMOND

BEGIN HERE TODAY

BOB WESTON, son of a millionaire, falls in love with JOAN WARREN, a pretty Memphis girl. He has come to Memphis in connection with a new textile plant owned by his father.

BARBARA COURTNEY, society girl, is scheming to win him away from Joan.

Barbara, in order to show Joan at a disadvantage, invites her to a house party at which Bob is also a guest. Barbara's plans are among so many strangers. Misadventures pile up and finally, when she hears several girls openly criticizing her, she decides to leave the house party and drive home with JIM WARFIELD, who admires her.

A month passes with no word from Bob. Then one day on the street Joan meets Bob with Barbara and an older man.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVII

Joan fumbled blindly with the lock of the car, frightened by the tumult of her emotions.

A voice called, "Here, Joan—let me."

She turned quickly and faced Bob. He helped her into the car, then stood by the still open door. Joan wished unhappily that she had listened to her mother's warning. "Better change into something else before you go. You might meet some of your friends."

"Haven't time," Joan had answered. "Whom would I meet, freezing around a department store and browsing around libraries?" She was wearing a plain, dark dress that had seen its best days. The dark beret had seemed suitable when she left the house on her round of tutoring. The gray day had turned bright and sunny with the capriciousness of spring weather, and the sun had brought warmth. The dark crepe had seemed hot and heavy before she had reached the business section.

Now she was acutely conscious that she was unbeknowningly dressed, that she looked hot and tired. She was aware at the same time of Bob's grooming, aware too that just in the background was Barbara, as exquisitely fresh in her spring suit as the flowers she was wearing.

After all those weeks of longing here was Bob standing close beside her and Joan wishing wildly that the earth would open suddenly and swallow her.

"How have you been, Joan?"

"Fine. How have you been?"

"All right. Busy. I'll be busier now that Dad is here." So the distinguished, elderly man was his father.

"Yes, it's great. But he's a hard taskmaster. Believes in keeping everlastingly at it." Then, irrelevantly, "There's smut on your cheek, Joan."

Joan brought out her vanity case and carefully wiped off the little dark smudge, adding an extra touch of powder to her nose. Bob was smiling a little.

Chin high, unhappy eyes turned from him, Joan's slim, tanned hand moved toward the gears.

"Goodby, Glad I saw you."

He closed the car door. It was like a period, concluding the brief conversation.

Joan backed the shabby old car into the street, conscious of every rattle, and turned its nose toward Union, glad to become a part of moving traffic. She was glad to put distance between her and the place that had witnessed her humiliation, the dining blindly, almost without seeing, the lights of cars that flashed past or hearing the familiar creaks and groans of the four-year-old car.

It wasn't fair to have been caught like that when she was looking her worst, tired, wearing a wintry frock, her hair slipping carelessly out from under the dark beret. It wasn't fair for Barbara to have been with Bob, a picture of spring freshness and wearing his flowers. Evidently they were going to the Carlton for dinner. A family affair—Bob and Barbara and his father.

Joan was on the familiar old street now, dear through its long association. A moment later she was out of the car and flying up the walk. Once inside the gloomy hall, she leaned against the door, fighting tears, getting command of herself before entering the living room.

The door opened and Mrs. Warren came into the hall. "Joan, dear. Is that you? I thought I heard someone come in." Her hands moved over the wall. The light switch clicked. "Joan, in anything wrong?"

"I'm just a little tired, Mother."

"You shouldn't have gone down town. You drive yourself so, Joan. Gracious, your hands are like ice! It is turning colder, isn't it? Darling, come in to the fire. I've just built it up. Did you see anyone you know?"

"Nobody especially."

"Pat's in, dressing to go out again."

"I called for her but she had left the office."

Mrs. Warren bent to the fire, stirring it with the old brass poker. With her head back against the cushioned chair, eyes closed, Joan heard the affectionate voice rambling on. She felt the warmth of the fire gratefully.

After a while words pricked through her detachment. "I'm worried about Pat," her mother was saying. "I don't mention it before because you seemed so troubled yourself, dear. But Pat's not happy."

"Not happy?" Joan's eyes flew open. "Why, Mother, I hadn't noticed."

"Joan, it's these parties she's going to with Jerry. There's—drinking!"

"Well, lots of girls take cook-tails," Joan said slowly. "I'm sure Pat will always be sensible."

"No, dear, she isn't sensible! Once while you were away she had to stay away from work. Oh, Joan, it was terrible!"

Pat losing her head—drinking, too much? Oh, that was unthinkable! Joan thought that she must have a talk with Pat.

She started upstairs, then quickened her steps as she heard angry voices. The scene that followed was to live in Joan's memory. She heard Bill's furious voice and saw Pat, her face flushed above the green dress, swaying a little like a flower bending under a rough wind.

"You can abuse me all you like, Bill. I'll do as I please and there's nothing you can do about it!"

"Pat!" pleaded Joan.

"Don't you start, Joan, I'm no child, I'm 18 years old!"

"Eighteen?"

"I'm sick and tired of Jerry Forrester," Bill was saying. "I guess I was fooled as much as anyone at first. But he's no good. Amusing himself getting a kid tight!"

Pat's face went scarlet. Her eyes met Joan's unhappily.

"Joan, Bill's making a mountain out of nothing. Some of Jerry's friends threw a party and I took a drink—just a little one!"

Bill laughed mirthlessly. "I guess it was a little one! Two or three little, strong ones that knocked you out cold!"

"Bill's right, Joan said. "Jerry isn't any good."

"Please, Joan! I won't have everybody interfering in my affairs. There's Jerry now." At the door she flung back, "Darn—I never saw such a family!"

"I'd like to spank her," Bill said.

"I know. But it wouldn't do any good. Pat feels grown up. I guess she'll have to find out things for herself."

Afterward those words were to come back to Joan.

"You've been drinking," Pat told Jerry as he assisted her into the car. "Too much."

"Now, little Prudence, don't start wet-blanketing a happy evening," Jerry retorted. "If you have scruples, stay at home with them."

Pat did not reply, trying to control her anger. She was realizing more and more that Jerry was getting the upper hand. She had slipped lately into a conciliatory attitude. She hated herself for that.

"You've changed a lot," she said in a low tone. "You're not the same, Jerry."

"I haven't changed," Jerry said. "You have! I used to think you were lots of fun. I'm serious, Pat. If you're going to spoil the party, you'd better stay at home."

"Don't be silly," quickly. "You know I'm a good sport."

Well, Pat thought, she had been talking like Bill and Joan. It must have irritated him!

"All right then," Jerry's right hand covered hers for a minute. "That's my girl!"

They were leaving the city behind, the car moving swiftly now along a dark highway.

"Where are we going?" Pat asked.

"You'll be surprised. Some place you've never been before."

Some time later they turned into a broad driveway, flanked on each side by trees. Through more trees lights flickered like fireflies in the darkness. The sound of music came faintly. Soon the flickering lights merged into a blaze of color, the faint music into a blast of sound. Moaning saxophones, the whine of violins, the staccato notes of a piano.

"A party?" Pat queried. "Who's giving it?" she asked as Jerry did not reply.

"Don't be absurd! It's a road house."

"I won't go in," Pat said firmly.

"All right. Don't. I'll take you home!" It was what Pat termed Jerry's "dangerous tone." "I'll leave you and come back alone."

"You wouldn't?"

"Certainly I would. I've no time for a prude!" He was beginning to turn the car.

Pat, with a look at his set face, said slowly, "All right, I'll go in."

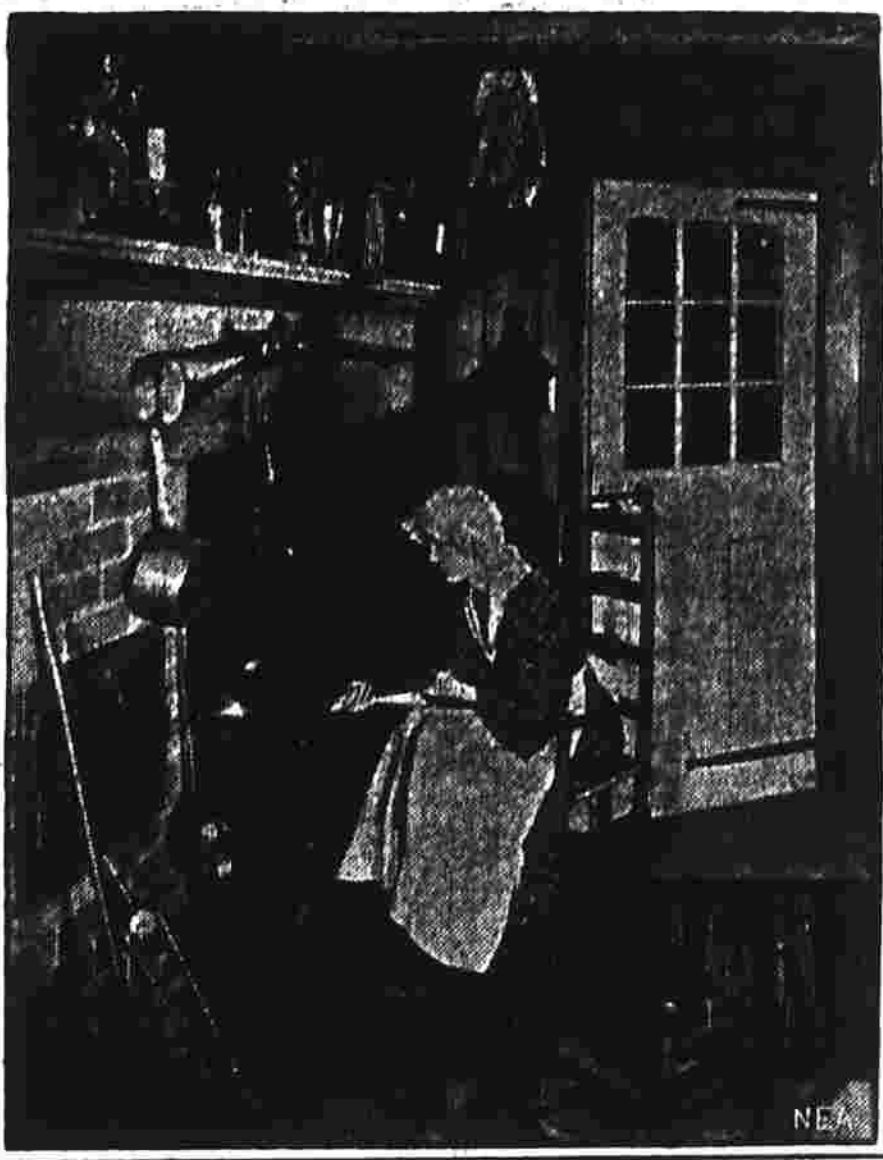

"And mind, you behave," Jerry said. "I'm tired of these tantrums!"

Easing of Housewife's Burden Shown in Evolution of Kitchen

Spinning, Candle and Soap Making Familiar Tasks To Women In Colonial Times

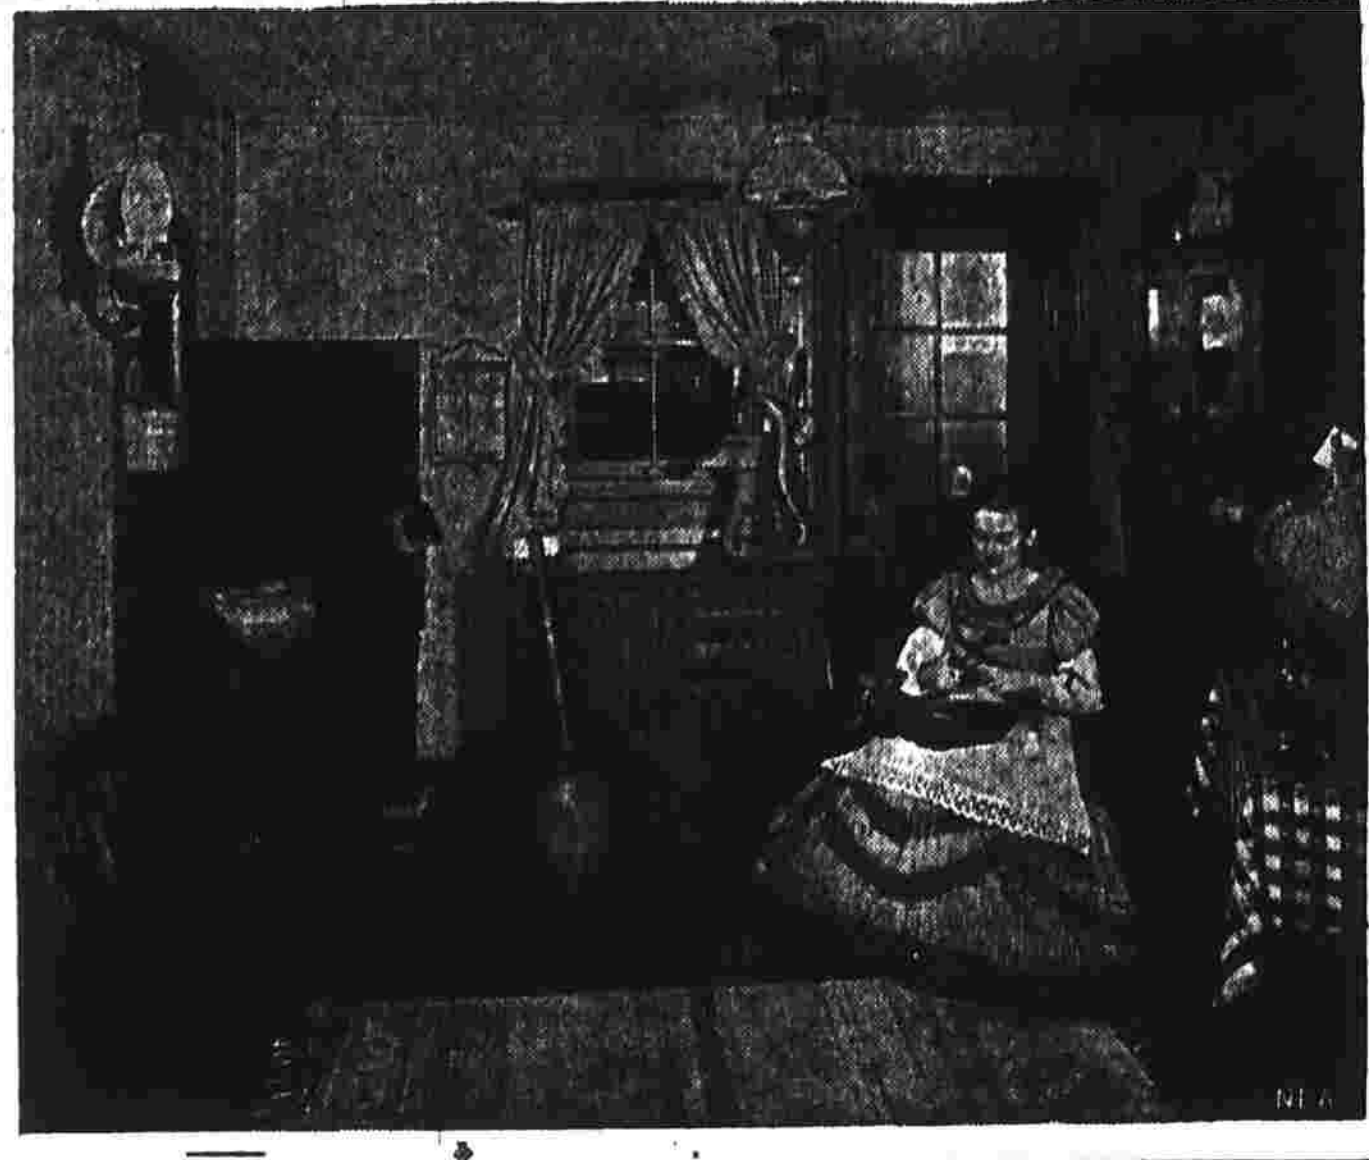

How the American housewife managed to get along in the days before the car opened and the dishwasher is illustrated in these interesting pictures showing the evolution of the American kitchen from Colonial to modern times.

The kitchen in the Colonial period (top left) was more than a room in which to cook the family's meals. In here the family spun, knitted, dined, bathed, made soap and candles. From that great brick oven you see at the left of the fireplace came the luscious baked beans for which New England was famous.

If you were visiting a home in the days following the Civil War you'd probably see a kitchen like that shown top right, in which the American housewife of 1869 "asked her corn and shelled her peas. Here you see the old sink with its hand pump and dipper, the wood stove, with the salt bucket hanging beside it, the checked tablecloth, and the oil lamp. Notice the churn on the floor. Those were the days when housewives had to work!

That the kitchen labors of the housewife have grown increasingly simple is the picture pointed out in the picture at right, showing an up-to-date kitchen. It has a refrigerator, range, dishwasher, mixer, ventilator, radio, telephone and other electrically operated time and labor saving devices that make for convenience and efficiency. The rust proof metal and smooth enamel surfaces are easy to keep clean. All these model kitchens, authentically reproduced in detail, are exhibits at the Century of Progress in Chicago.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Bonner

"Where are you going, Peter?"

"Down to Dick's."

"I want you to pull the dead plants out of the beds."

"You said I could go after school."

"Honestly, Peter, if you say that again I'll run off. I can't promise anything surely. When I promise I always mean maybe. It is going to rain and I want to sort the seed pods into envelopes for next year before they fall."

"Oh, all right," Peter stamped out to the yard looking as black as the clouds in the sky.

He stacked up the dead stalks any old way. He knew he should have sorted them. But that broken promise rankled. And without knowing he was breaking faith because his mother had done it first.

Result of Indecision

After a while she came out. "You know that's not the way—," she began then she noticed what Peter was doing. He was digging a hole. "Peter! What on earth? Stop that this minute."

"You said I could have my own bed next year."

"That's not the place."

"You said down at the end of the rose bed. Well—ain't this it?"

"I've changed my mind. I want my gladiolas in there. Now the mud will wash down on the drive all winter. What a mess!"

"Oh, all right! But you promised. You said you'd give me some things to plant this fall so I would have."

She stared at his feet. "Who's running this place, you or me? Don't you dare to try to tell me what's what any more. Now you march."

Keeping Promises

In time she learned to say, "I'll see." That meant she would promise nothing ahead too far and it was better.

But she never learned to keep a promise, once made, absolutely. Or even a plan. She would say, "I'm going to take you to town on Saturday." Then on Saturday something usually interfered.

When Peter was fifteen, he had learned to say, "Oh, you know Mom! She forgets as soon as she says a thing."

By it he meant a world of things. She was unpunctual, unprecise, vacillating and undependable.

The boy matched his clever wits against hers, and although he seemed to humor her, he quietly went about sulking himself. He sensed the fact that already he was more adult than she was.

We are all like this more or less.

A NEW TALE OF THE SEA BY F. C. WREN

Virtue, As Usual, Triumphs In "Action and Passion."

By BRUCE CATTON

Mr. F. C. Wren, whose "Beau Geste" tipped off the world at large to the romantic possibilities of the Foreign Legion, has given up the army and gone nautical.

His newest novel, "Action and Passion," hasn't a soldier in it, and Africa Agur's only as a smudge on the horizon. It's a sea story, and it positively fails to rank with Melville, Dumas, and Conrad, the yarn nevertheless will enjoy a further of contemporary popularity.

This time we get a young "Bram Stoker" slipping out as "Erasmus Bounder," or apprentice boy, on an English square-rigger. The ship sails to Australia, with the skipper's wife and daughter going along just for the ride, and then starts back again. And immediately the dirty work begins.

First there's a peculiar series of murders. Then we have a regular 18th-century-style mutiny. Eventually our young apprentice, who is a handy man with his dukes, quells the mutiny and brings the ship back to England safe and sound, and everything turns out swell for everybody except the mutineers.

A reading of this book leads one to meditate on the qualities of Mr. Wren's heroes. Before they are anything else, they are English gentlemen—heroic, clean, athletic, kind to the lower classes, obnoxious and noble. They are also, if you will, unaccountable snobs and fearful pigs, and it would do me a world of good to see vice triumph just once, in Mr. Wren's pages. But it never will.

DOCTOR KEEPS YOU FRESH.

Important Preliminary to Athletic Is Study of Youth's Ability to Undergo Physical Strain.

This is the second of a series of articles by Dr. Fishbein on "How to Stay in the Game" by prevention of athletic injuries.

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBELN, Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

The chief value of examinations made before any student takes up athletics is to determine whether he is fit for the type of athletic competition that he has selected. It serves also to protect him from taking part in sports in which he will be in opposition to stronger competitors.

The medical examiner may advise the inexperienced, untrained student against taking part in such athletics as long distance runs, hard basketball games, football or rowing. Finally, a medical examination helps to prevent the development of staleness and protects the man who has been injured from being returned too early to practice or competition.

An examiner who is investigating the physical condition of men who propose to go into athletics must be exceedingly careful to find out what previous illnesses the man has had that might have left permanent troubles.

For instance, scarlet fever and other infectious diseases may disturb the kidneys. An infected throat may be associated with rheumatic disorders and with infections of the heart.

An ear that has been infected may continue to discharge and by discharging be a constant menace to life and health. Tuberculosis in a very mild form may not be visible or easily detectable and yet for such men to undertake athletics might be fatal.

The examiner studies not only the height and weight of the individual, but the state of nutrition in relationship to the height and weight. He looks also for signs of any of the complications of diseases that have been mentioned. He examines the groin particularly for the presence of fungus, because such a condition may be actually aggravated by the strain of sport.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

You can coax yourself to do daily exercises if you practice them with music.

There's something about doing exercises to music that relieves the deadly monotony. Besides, unconsciously, you get a certain sense of rhythm.

Bending exercises are good for your waistline. Do some of them to music and see what fun it really is. For instance, there is the old exercise of keeping your knees stiff and bending over to touch the floor with your finger tips. If you have a supple waistline, it may be that you can touch the floor with the palms of your hands. That exercise reduces excess weight about the waistline and gives your body a nice graceful swinging appearance. Do it to music. In other words, bend and straighten your middle in time to some favorite tune.

Imagine that you are chopping wood. First, turn on the music and, with feet about ten inches apart, swing your arms up over your head and then bring them downward until your whole body is over forward toward the floor. Bring them down forcefully as though you really intended to cut the stick of wood.

Imagine that you are reaping grain in another good waistline exercise. Swing your body back and forth, arms outstretched, just as does the man who wields a scythe. Drop down, knees bent, when you reach forward to cut the grain. Straighten your whole body on the upward stroke.

The Manchester Green team didn't look much like a town championship contender yesterday morning at the West Side when they lost a one sided game to the West Sides by the score of 7 to 1. The score doesn't indicate what the score should have been had the West Sides played as on the bases. They had nine men left on bases and several runs were out short by loose base running. The West Sides outhit the Green 9 to 1. McConey pitched the only West Side player to get more than one hit. Pinner, Volt and Babel each connected for two hits apiece. The West Sides also played errorless ball while the Green had five errors charged up.

In Paso, Tex., Oct. 16—With so many revolutions happening across the border in Mexico, you would think the citizens of this Texas city would have hardened to warfare. But they're stirred up about one revolution—the Tony Herrera, the Mexican boxing champion. Light-weight boxing ranks. The other night Tony won a decision over Wesley Ramey in Ramey's home town, Grand Rapids, Mich. What made this victory seem so impressive and cause so much comment was the fact that the National Boxing Association had ranked Ramey second leading light in the business.

So, El Pasoans were, since Tony whipped Wes, he's entitled to a crack at the first ranking light in the nation—Barney Ross, the champion. If Barney is looking for first-class opposition in the ring, he can find it in the person of this slender Mexican jumping bean, whose father was Scotch and mother Mexican, and whose real name is Antonio Calvera. Tony was born here in 1908, and has been fighting since he was 15. For his first bout at that age he received $5. The name of Herrera was adopted by an enterprising manager who saw in him another Aurelio Herrera, who reigned among lightweights in the early nineties. The Mexican boy's first big bout was against Jackie "Kid" Berg in 1931. Berg was given the decision, but a good share of the $264 cash customers howled and jeered the verdict. Berg declared Herrera was the better puncher he had ever met. Since then Tony has spent most of his time trying to land a bout with Canezaro, lightweight champion until Barney Ross came along. Now he's after Ross.

Oakland, Cal.—Here's one man who seems to have a permanent job. Professor James L. Hagerly, head of the Philosophy department at St. Mary's College, has been the official timekeeper at St. Mary's-California games for the last 15 years. University Ala.—Top Hupke, Alabama's star guard, has made a specialty of blocking punts with highly gratifying results. In his three seasons he has blocked nine punts, one in the opening game this year, and twice this stunt of his has resulted in victory over Kentucky. South Bend, Ind.—Notre Dame didn't look especially impressive in beating Indiana 13-6 Saturday, but that was more than enough to preserve one college record. No Notre Dame team ever has gone through three successive games without scoring and the Ramblers had lost the last game of 1937 to South California 18-0 and played a scoreless tie with Kansas in this year's opener. Syracuse, N. Y.—Finally Syracuse can speak of Ohio Wesleyan as a minor opponent without blushing. The betting Blisshops were originally scheduled with that in mind, but they refused to accept the nomination until they were beaten 40-0 Saturday. In seven previous games they had taken only one defeat, winning four games from the orange men and tying two.

SECTIONAL BATTLES HEAD THIS WEEK'S GRIDIRON PROGRAM

Intersectional Contests Add Spice to State; Here Is Brief Summary of Football Situation Up to Now.

New York, Oct. 16—(AP)—A demonstration of just what happens when an irresistible force collides with an immovable object will be given with variations on dozens of football fields this week. Glittering intersectional pairings headed by Carnegie Tech and Notre Dame, Pittsburgh and Minnesota, Army and Illinois contribute added spice to a program dominated by such important sectional contests as those involving Michigan and Ohio State, Princeton and Columbia, Penn and Dartmouth, Yale and Brown, Tennessee and Alabama, Texas Christian and Texas A. & M., Washington State and California.

The week's State Briefly here's how the situation lines up on the basis of early season results.

East: Pitt's "suicidal schedule" takes the Minnesota. Fordham will play Boston College with the Rams favored against a foe which always is tough. Colgate should "take" New York University and Syracuse looks too powerful for Cornell. Princeton's sophomore backfield stars undergird their first real test in the meeting with Columbia's crack eleven. Carnegie Tech has not a little hope of overturning Notre Dame's feat of pointing eleven and Navy hopes to rally from the Pitt debacle at Virginia's expense. Auburn faces George Washington in another intersectional contest. Penn-Dartmouth, Harvard-Harvard-Holy Cross, Lafayette-Bucknell are the other leading pairings.

Midwest: Victory over three preparatory opponents, Army should discover its own strength or weakness, against Illinois, at Cleveland. The collision of Michigan and Ohio State, two mighty eleven's, at Ann Arbor tops the big ten program, but Chicago's debut against Purdue and Iowa's second sophomore clash—against Wisconsin—will be watched with interest. Northwestern and Indiana are paired in the other big ten game.

South: Tennessee, broken for the first time since 1930, by Duke last week, returns to Southeastern conference competition against Alabama's "mystery" team. Georgia Tech and Tulane, Mississippi and Sewanee and Vanderbilt and Mississippi State square off in other conference games while Florida and Kentucky uphold southeastern prestige against Southern conference foes.

Far West: Southern California should dispose of Oregon State and California seems to have more power than Washington State.

Southwest: Texas A. & M. hopes to beat Texas Christian for the first time in four campaigns.

Southern Football On Level With Any

By HARRY MEYER

Coch. University of Georgia Athens, Ga., Oct. 16—There was a time when southern football teams had to go east or north to prove their true caliber. But it is not so now. You can see just as much football in the Tennessee-Alabama, Georgia-Georgia Tech or Vanderbilt-U. S. U. games as in the Harvard-Yale, Army-Notre Dame or Michigan-Northwestern tilts.

The only reason southern teams go out at the last of cotton for games now is to get a cut in the bigger game and so that their hard-driving backs and stellar linemen may be appraised by sports writers in other sections.

The chances of Dixie's brand of football improving is excellent. Practically all the stars on southern teams are native boys. Many of these obtain coaching positions in high schools and prep schools where they develop players that are ripe for college careers when they graduate.

The time was when southern coaches had the greatest sort of material, because "high schools" and prep played mediocre ball. Now freshmen in leading schools need only practice and instruction in the in-

Brunig Moske Leads North End Outfit to Victory, Crossing Goal in Final Period; Teams Battle on Even Terms for Three Quarters.

South End Wild Cats Emerge With Triumph in Last Minute of Play on Eagle-son's Desperate Plunge; Happeny Stars at Quarter.

The Eagles scored their second victory of the year against the Triangles of New Britain by a score of 6-0 yesterday afternoon at Hickey's Grove. The score made by Moske, came late in the fourth period and was the result of a consistent drive by the Eagles from their own 38 yard line. The Eagles made four first downs in the drive including a twenty-five yard pass from Moske to Swika.

New Players Feature The Eagles showed the fruits of enlisting the services of new offensive material. "Laddie" Hansen played a good portion of the game at quarter and was at the helm when the score was made. Brunig Moske playing a full game accounted for much yardage besides making the score. Hayes, former Army player made two yards in his single attempt and it is wondered why he was not used more. He handled himself very well on defense as well as doing good blocking when on the offensive. The defensive work of Kripitis and Vince stood out again as usual.

The new British team was not lacking either on offensive power, making five first downs against nine for the Eagles. The big ground gainers for New Britain were Novak at full and Quatt at left half. Eckhart at end and Donohowski at center, lived up to pre-game predictions and presented as sweet a pair of line-men as has appeared in Manchester this season. Chabli Up Fardage showed the first quarter opened with a display of offensive power that equaled any ever exhibited in Manchester. Both teams clicked off four successive first downs before surrounding the ball. On the kick off, Moske took the ball on the 10 yard line and went to the 22 yard line and Bruis Slaga. Following Slaga and Fieder, totaled 13 yards for a first down on two tries by Slaga and added eleven more yards for another first down on the 46 yard line. This was followed by another first down on two tries by Moske and Bruis Slaga. Following two line plays, Moske took the ball on a reverse play and went for a 13 yard jaunt having the ball on the 13 yard line. Here New Britain stepped forward and pushed their mettle and yielded only three yards in four plays. Then not to be outdone, they in turn made three successive first downs of an even ten yards apiece placing the ball on the 23 yard line when the quarter ended. Shortly before the end of the quarter, "Butch" Rowe, Manchester left end was removed from the game because of eye and face injuries.

Visitors Threaten In the second quarter, the Triangles continued their advance and crossed into Eagle territory to the 35 yard line as a direct result of a 30 yard play by Slaga. The 31 yard play was a good one, made it appear as though the New Britain eleven were headed for another first down and eventually a touchdown. This did not result however, as an intercepted pass by Slaga on the 31 yard line and two runs of 9 and 10 yards respectively by Fieder and Moske placed the ball on the 50 yard line and changed the entire complexion of the game. The Eagles failed to make another first down for the remainder of the period while the Eagles added another first down and nearly scored. Vince took a twelve yard pass from Moske on the 23 yard line when he was tripped over himself, just as the half ended.

New Britain again kicked to Manchester in the second half. Fred Hansen received the ball and was downed on the 23 yard line after a 13 yard advance. The next two plays netted a two-yard loss and it was third down and 13 to go. Hayes took a right half in place of Moske made 10 yards which was just short of a first down. On the next down Hansen elected to punt and kicked to Newman who was downed on the forty by Kripitis. Aided by an offside penalty New Britain made their fifth and last first down of the game, advancing to mid-field in the 50 yard line. Unable to advance further, the Triangles booted to Hansen, who fumbled and the ball was recovered by Slaga on the 18 yard line. An exchange of kicks left the ball in possession of the visitors on their own 48 yard line as the quarter ended.

March to Touchdown Knowing that they must score in this period or never, the Eagles got down to work and yielded only two yards in four plays. The Eagles of New Britain to kick to the 38 yard line. Here the Eagles took the ball and didn't stop until they had crossed their opponents' goal line. Moske, Slaga and Thompson made 10 yards for a first on the 48 yard line. Following an unsuccessful pass-Moske passed for 35 yards to Swika who was downed on the 15 yard. Quarterback Hansen, knowing his chief strength lay in Moske, again fed the ball to him and he gained five yards in the attempt, Slaga was stopped for an eight yard. (Continued on Page Two)

Eagles Scores

Happeny gained a yard, Eagleson twisted off tackle and the umpire awarded a touchdown which was not allowed as he had stepped offside. On the next play, with only 40 seconds to go, Eagleson dove over the line, pushed the ball ahead of him and a moment later was carried back four yards. The entire squad of the visitors played excellent football, well coached by Pantore and fought hard for a victory every minute of the game. It was the most exciting contest at the stadium in several years. Only two penalties during the game attested to the clean cut way the teams battled. The West Sides will practice Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock at the West Side playground.

Triangles Improved

Those who watched the game yesterday were impressed with the improvement shown by the West Side club because of the fact that the entire team played heads up football every second and especially the stand in the third quarter when the line rose up and smothered every attack directed at them. The lineup: Kensington: Lynch, lg; Michle, lg; Kainey, lg; Ponta, cf; Prudhorn, lg; Fairwood, rt; Toehy, rg; Sullivan, qb; Cambo, rb; Jeeany, lb; Guido, fb; substitutions, Casarella for Guido; Patsy Matt for Michle; Smith for Prudhorn; James for Lynch.

West Sides: Hendry, lg; Dugan, lt; Zalonia, lg; Anderson, cf; Kaneck, rg; Sterling, rt; Lippinott, rg; Sendrowski, qb; Angelo, rb; Witkowiak, lb; Lukas, fb; substitutions: Brown for Lippinott; Lippinott for Anderson; Vic Johnson for Salomon; Brown for Witkowiak; Happeny for Lukas; Harburt for Sendrowski; Eagleson for Witkowiak; Massey for Anderson; Dugan for Johnson; Anderson for Angelo; Coffey, Morgan, head line-man; Umpire; West head line-man. Time of quarters, 12-15, 12-15. Touchdown, Eagleson.

Michigan, with an estimated field of 2,500,000 have 24 per cent less than last year. As reported in page 14 position. The number of cars produced during the first five months of 1938 wholesaled at a price under $200.

LATEST STOCKS

New York, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Muddled financial markets today dropped heavily for elusive price-trend indicators and traders generally nudged prices of safety while waiting for developments.

Transactions in stocks were at a minimum and most leading issues displayed a sagging tendency. The rail and various industrial stocks were quite heavy at times, due principally to the widening of the gap between bids and offers. Important operators, as well as the public, were reported out of the market. The spotty European picture apparently was confusing element, although not particularly disturbing for the moment. The domestic inflationists and non-inflationists were not too sure of their ground. Grains dipped on railroad speculation.

Bonds showed drifting mood. The dollar again sputtered in foreign exchange dealings, but later gave up some of its gains.

Shares off 1 to 3 or more points at one time included those of Case, Allied Chemical, Sears, Roebuck, U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Chrysler, American Can, John-Manville, National Distillers, New York Central, Santa Fe, Pennsylvania, Union Pacific, American Smelting, U. S. Smelting, DuPont, Celanese and Baltimore Ohio. Some resistance was shown by a few of the oils and utilities.

Traders who have been watching the price of newly mined gold, which is fixed daily by the Treasury, for a clue to the government's fiscal program, were highly interested in the announcement of today's value of $29 an ounce compared with $29.83 last Saturday. Today's rate is the lowest set by the Treasury since daily quotations were started. The previous low was $29.10 an ounce on Sept. 11, and the high was $32.28 on Sept. 20.

Financial quarters, studying the fluctuations in the gold price, both here and in London, and little relation of daily quotations for the metal to administrative monetary policies. Bankers point out that the Treasury's price is based largely on the world value which is fixed in London and which follows the movements of exchanges in the gold standard countries. The decline of the French franc and allied currencies, it is said, means that fewer dollars and pounds will buy an ounce of gold in those countries, and consequently, the dollar-sterling gold rates drop in proportion.

Market observers were not in agreement as to just what effect the foreign situation will have on domestic markets. In times when the United States was a debtor nation, "war talk" abroad was generally considered bullish in that the powers in conflict might be expected to greatly increase imports from America. Now, some Wall Street analysts explain, this country is the greatest creditor nation in the world and most foreign countries already heavily in debt here, might find it difficult to negotiate additional purchases of supplies even if the American government decided to permit exports to belligerents.

PROF. COUPER RESIGNS

Hartford, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Prof. Walter J. Couper, deputy state commissioner of labor, has resigned, effective on November 1, it was announced today by Commissioner Joseph M. Tane.

Professor Couper was recently designated as Federal arbitrator in strike controversies in West Virginia.

GETS DEATH THREAT

New York, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Morris Richman, wholesale candy dealer on the lower east side complained to police today he had been threatened with death if he did not buy and sell German candy.

In addition to complaining of their salaries during the last three years of depression," the telegram declared.

ROADHOUSE BURNS

Winsted, Oct. 16.—(AP)—The seven-room Norfolk roadhouse of Mr. and Mrs. John Whitman was destroyed and their barn was damaged today by fire.

Awakened by the barking of a dog, Whitman discovered the blaze. Unable to fight his way through the flames, he rode two miles into Winsted to call aid.

The only article saved was the uniform worn by Whitman who is a Winsted to New Haven bus driver. The

The newspapers relate an incident that recently happened at Gibsonville, North Carolina. It concerns a Negro preacher who had successfully concealed the fact that he had served a term in prison, but long years of upright living had not destroyed his fear of exposure.

One Sunday, on rising to begin his sermon, his heart sank on seeing his former cellmate in one of the very front seats.

Very quick thinking was necessary. He fixed his eyes on the stranger and delivered himself slowly and impressively as follows:

"Ah takes mah text dis mornin' from the sixty-four chapter and de fo' hundredth verse ob de Gospel ob Saint John, which says, 'Dem as sees me, a' known me an' says nothin', dem will Ah see later.'"

"Well, if I were you," said the telegraph operator who delivered the message, "I'd think twice before I married a girl who kept me waiting so long for an answer."

"Na, na," he replied. "The lass for me is the lass who waits for the night rates."

REC MEMBERSHIP INCREASE FORESEEN

Last Year's Record To Be Topped — Leisure Time Said To Be the Cause.

That this year's Recreation membership will surpass the high mark reached last year is foreseen by the rapid enrollment of new and old members who again are participating in a varied and interesting program during their increased leisure time.

With only the first week of the indoor season over the enrollment is double the total membership as of the same time in 1937. Many new groups and teams are enrolling at one time and the most prominent of these times are the Sons of Italy Juniors, Giuseppe Mazzini Lodge who through their Commandant Nicholas Trivigno have enrolled 21 of their members with many more to be included.

Mrs. Beatrice and Miss Berlice Lydall spent the week-end with Rev. and Mrs. John E. Duxbury at Hills Grove, R. I.
