PRICE THREE CENTS

GOLD PRICE PLACED AT $31.36 AN OUNCE

Puts It 27 Cents Higher Than Opening Quotation On World Markets; Little Reaction In Wall Street.

Washington, Oct. 25.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's unprecedented plan for controlling the American value of gold in the expectation of raising commodity prices was put in operation today with an offer to purchase newly mined gold at $31.36 an ounce, 27 cents higher than the day's opening quotations on world markets.

Announcing the price, Jesse H. Jones, RFC chairman, said the gleaming metal would be paid for in the corporation's ninety-day debentures, which he added could be easily converted into cash.

Government fiscal experts were working out a plan whereby the debentures can be accounted at a rate which will bring their holders the full purchase price for their gold.

Executive Order
An executive order from the White House and regulations from the treasury department will be issued later in the day, outlining the procedure by which the mining companies will transfer their gold to the corporation.

The price set was an increase of $1.56 an ounce over the world price of yesterday as announced at the treasury.

President Roosevelt was reported gratified with the public response to his gold move. As to Wall Street reaction, it was remarked he will keep his future intentions to himself.

This authoritative comment apparently was evoked by inquiries rising from New York as to what was to come.

His informal reply was that he was working for an objective, and that while New York would probably like to have a schedule of sixty days or a year ahead, it would not be given.

Mr. Roosevelt has received more than two thousand telegrams of comment on his Sunday speech.

It was stated at the White House, that two telegrams on the monetary phase of the speech were not favorable. One was from a man in New England who said:

"Don't like your speech. Don't understand it."

One from the west said:

"Think you are wrong. Silver is the only proper medium of exchange."

HUB'S LINDBERGH CLUE FADES OUT

Police Believe Suspect Knows Nothing About the Famous Kidnaping Case.

Boston, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Investigators who have been questioning John Gorch with a view to being enlightened on the Lindbergh kidnaping today turned their attention to a search for the writer of the mysterious letter that led to Gorch's capture.

Lieutenant James Finn of the New York police told newspapermen during an early morning conference, he would leave for New York on the train this afternoon.

"That's subject to change, you know," he added.

Finn's former bodyguard of Col. Charles Lindbergh, apparently made little headway during an interview with Gorch, who insisted he knew nothing of the Lindbergh kidnaping nor the collection of the ransom money.

"I doubt if he (Gorch) would talk so freely about his movements since the kidnaping if he had anything to do with it," Finn said.

To Check Up Clues
"We have several leads that will have to be checked up and, until that is done and the contents of the safety deposit box are determined, we shall continue to work on the case."

The New York lieutenant planned his leaving to be present when Gorch's safety deposit box at the Bankers Trust Company in New York is opened.

Finn was accompanied by Detective Sergeant Arthur Tierman of the Boston police and other officers.

Sergeant Tierman believed discovery of the writer of the letter which led to Gorch's arrest, would uncover some useful information.

"The writer of that letter," Tierman said, "was correct in every particular concerning Gorch, excepting so much as deals with the Lindbergh kidnaping."

"In view of the fact the letter was correct in other information about Gorch's activities, he or she may also be correct in connecting Gorch with the kidnaping."

ELABORATE RITES AT CONSECRATION

Rector Of Catholic University Becomes Bishop Of Titular See Of Modra.

Washington, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Elaborate ceremonies were arranged for the consecration today of the Most Reverend James Hugh Ryan, rector of Catholic University, as bishop of the titular See of Modra.

The apostolic delegate, thirty-five arch-bishops and bishops, eighty monsignori, and more than 200 members of the clergy had places in the religious pageantry in the National shrine on the university campus.

Fifty members of the diplomatic corps, two members of President Roosevelt's Cabinet, and many university presidents were guests in the great assemblage which gathered for the consecration by the most Rev. Joseph Chartrand, bishop of Indianapolis, the city where Bishop Ryan was born.

The ceremony included a procession from nave to crypt, centered first about a minor altar once used by the first bishop of Baltimore, and then continuing to a magnificent modern marble altar.

Significant Details
Significant was each detail. For Bishop Chartrand's use in the ceremony were a gold chalice studded with jewels, a cherished treasure of the university. For Bishop Ryan to wear at his elevation was a chasuble of brocade on a base of gold made in 1680 for the Archbishop Capponi of Pisa, Italy, the mitre was a gift of the undersecretary of state of the Vatican. The pectoral cross was a gift to Bishop Ryan from his faculty; the pastor from his alumni; the episcopal ring, its central jewel a sapphire star.

SLIGHT EARTHQUAKE NEAR LOS ANGELES

No Damage And Virtually No Property Damage Reported.

Los Angeles, Oct. 25.—(AP)—The foothill section surrounding Los Angeles on the north and east was jarred sharply by an earthquake at 11 p. m., last night.

The shock was felt to a lesser degree in the Metropolitan district of Los Angeles.

No injury and virtually no damage was reported.

Dr. Harry Wood, of the Seismological Laboratory of the Carnegie Institute of Pasadena reported the epicenter of the quake was near Pasadena. That city, Glendale and Burbank reported having felt the quake strongly.

Only Effects
The only effect of the quake in Los Angeles was to jar loose a few stones from the old red stone courthouse which had been condemned and roped off following the March 10 quake, which caused damage amounting to millions and the deaths of more than 120 persons. Long Beach, center of the March 10 tremor, was unaffected by last night's shock.

Dr. Wood reported the shock was considerably less violent than one October 2 which resulted in light damage in Los Angeles. Scientists believed Tuesday's quake was an earth setting shock following the March quake.

Says Steel Corporations Preparing for Next War

Philadelphia, Oct. 25.—(AP)—A church of the future fall into the great chasm of the world, said the Rev. Julian D. Hamlin of Boston, of "preparing for the next war, paying the Hitler to organize movements to crucify Christ anew in his own people."

"All summer long we have had the sorry picture of the great munitions lobbying at Geneva in the interests of Hitler, Japan, war," Mr. Hamlin said in a sermon last night at the Catholic Congress of the Episcopal Church, celebrating the centenary of the Oxford movement.

"MYSTERY SHIP" CAUSED CRUISER-TANKER CRASH

Eyewitnesses Say Cruiser Tried To Avoid One Collision When Other Occurred; Three Officers Killed.

San Francisco, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Tales of a mystery ship in the fog about Point Sur, 110 miles south of here, and death to three officers that came in the crash of the U. S. S. Chicago and the British freighter Silverpalm, were told today by officers of the cruiser as it prepared to proceed to Mare Island Naval Yard to get a 40-foot hole in her port bow repaired.

The two ships collided at 8 a. m. yesterday while Vice Admiral Harris Lansing, Captain Manley Simons and Captain Herbert E. Keys said, the Chicago maneuvered to escape a "large freighter off our starboard side, which disappeared in the fog a few minutes later."

Hearing the whistle of the mystery ship off the starboard side, Captain Keys said he ordered the cruiser stopped. The fog lifted and "there she was, 800 or 900 yards off our starboard going in a direction that would cross our bow."

"I ordered the Chicago to go ahead," he said, "and then almost immediately there came another ship out of the fog on our port bow, close aboard and headed directly for the Chicago. I signalled for emergency full speed astern, tooted the whistle but the approaching vessel crashed into the port bow just forward of No. 1 gun turret which stopped her cutting off our bow."

Three Officers Killed
The Silverpalm crashed 18 feet deep into the cruiser, crushing nine forward of the armored plate which protects only the engine rooms. Three officers met their death and another was critically injured, mangled in their staterooms as they struggled to answer the "collision call."

Chief Pay Clerk John W. Troy, U. S. N., of Newport, R. I., was thrown overboard and died. He was buried in doors with hatchets or cutting the wrenched steel with torches, sailors found Lieutenant Frederick S. Chappelle, U. S. Marine Corps, Waterlool, N. J. He was alive and conscious but died six hours later in the hospital of internal injuries.

JERSEY WEAVERS RETURN TO LOOMS

About 3,000 In Paterson Return To Work; Broad Silk Workers Are Next In Line

Paterson, N. J., Oct. 25.—(AP)—About 3,000 Jacquard weavers, one of the three groups of silk workers who went on strike seven weeks ago, were scheduled to return to their jobs today, and police set themselves for expected trouble.

Representatives of the Jacquard weavers signed a strike settlement agreement yesterday with the Master Weavers Institute, but the general broad silk strike committee refused to sanction the return to work, and issued orders to picket all Jacquard weaving shops.

Dyers Back to Work
The first group to go back to their jobs was the Dyers. Nearly 14,000 of them, members of the American Federation of Labor Dyers Union, returned to 93 reopened shops in Passaic and Bergen counties under an agreement signed by representatives of the union and the Silk Dyers and Printers Institute. There was little picketing and no disorders, but police and deputies, carrying clubs, were on hand to prevent any outbreak of violence.

A smaller group of dyers, members of the Left Wing union, conducted the picketing and refused to return to work.

The silk dyers are receiving a minimum wage of $35 for a 40-hour, 5-day week, and the Jacquard group will get from $28 to $35 weekly.

Hope for a speedy settlement of the broad silk strike, which involves the third group of about 22,000, was expressed today.

WIGGINS GIVES UP HIS LARGE BANK PENSION

Former Head Of Chase Bank Asks That Contract For $100,000 Yearly Be Terminated.

Washington, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Albert H. Wiggins, former chairman of the Chase National bank today voluntarily gave up his contract with that institution giving him retired pay of $100,000 a year for life.

Ferdinand Pecora, counsel for the committee, which disclosed Wiggins' retired salary, gave out a letter from the banker to the board of directors of the bank giving up the contract, because of public criticism.

The letter follows:
"Gentlemen:
"At the time of the agreement to pay me an annual compensation of $100,000, it was believed to be in the best interests of the bank. As the agreement has been criticized, I beg to request that it be terminated."

There was no indication whether Wiggins' action had been approved by the bank.

Pension for Life
Testimony before the committee disclosed that Wiggins was given a contract for $100,000 a year for life when he retired January 1, this year.

He had received during his active service a salary of $250,000 a year, in addition to bonuses up to $100,000 and additional compensation from outside companies.

Pecora handed the Wiggins letter to newspapermen after the morning session of the committee hearing. Wiggins, standing nearby, said he had nothing further to say.

The heavy set banker had been watching the hearings during the last two or three days from an observation seat far from the committee table.

Members of the investigating committee had left when Pecora gave them the letter.

SARRAUT IS ASKED TO FORM CABINET

French Senator Agrees To Accept Mission; Says It Is a Difficult Task.

Paris, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Senator Albert Sarraut today was asked by President Albert Lebrun to form a Cabinet and agreed to undertake the task.

The Cabinet would replace that of former Premier Edouard Daladier, which fell this week after heated debate in the Chamber of Deputies over the government leaders' plans to balance the budget and protect the franc through various new tactics and governmental economies.

The premier-designate tentatively accepted what was considered a difficult task in attempting to form the new Cabinet, but asked President Albert Lebrun permission to consult his friends before making a final decision.

Immediately upon leaving the Elysee Palace, to which he had been summoned just after lunch, M. Sarraut got in touch with party leaders and examined the prospects of forming a new majority to further the Center view, wrecked by the Left Cartel.

As the most likely possibility for the premiership, he waited in his office at the navy ministry for the presidential automobile to conduct him to the palace. There he and M. Lebrun canvassed the situation for a full hour.

Accepts Mission
An official announcement at the palace said: "M. Sarraut has accepted this mission."

The Senator, although he said, "I reserved my definite reply," until he consulted the friends, was regarded as certain to undertake the Cabinet job.

M. Sarraut, explaining the tentative acceptance, said "the situation is sufficiently serious and sufficiently confused" to require him to consult his friends before formally undertaking formation of the Cabinet.

"I am not going to lose time," he said, "but I have no intention of hesitating a second moment. I am accustomed to working seriously and methodically."

The Senator immediately made the customary formal calls on the presidents of the Senate and the Chamber and then went to see M. Daladier and Camille Chautemps, former premier and minister of interior in the Daladier Cabinet.

M. Chautemps was mentioned as a possibility for the premier's post before M. Lebrun asked M. Sarraut to undertake the job.

The premier-designate then went to the ministry of marine, which minister had become the political news center of France, and where

Geneva Hears Report Germany May Return

Geneva, Switzerland, Oct. 25.—(AP)—The steering committee recommended today that the disarmament conference be adjourned until Dec. 4 as reports circulated that Germany would submit proposals under which she could return to the parley and the League of Nations.

These reports, originating in German circles, said the Reich's position would be set forth after the plebiscite elections of Nov. 12, called for when the nation's intention to withdraw from both assemblages was announced.

The recommendation was made with the understanding that the parley began on that date if President Arthur Henderson, and the committee is convinced sufficient progress has been made in the meantime and it would be useful to then convene.

Another meeting of the steering committee will be held tomorrow after the session of the conference which will pass upon the recommendation made today.

The committee expects to make suggestions to the best way to carry on the work during the recess, either by private conversations or by the efforts of a special committee.

The sense of the meeting as summarized by one of the participants was that the conference should continue and should not in any way be used to place Germany in an unfair position.

The steering committee, was given the power and the responsibility to carry on its work during the recess.

Norman H. Davis, American representative, has not decided on his immediate plans, but thinks the committee work likely will be important to the conference in the future.

Drivers In State Defy Injunction Obtained By Trucking Firms—Pickets Patrol Highways; Eleven Strikers Arrested In Waterbury—Strike Called By Leaders Because Companies Refuse To Recognize Union.

By Associated Press
The courts became the battleground of the truck strike in Connecticut today as truck drivers, in defiance of an injunction obtained by the trucking companies, left their wheels and picketed on the highways.

Eleven strikers were arrested for breach of the peace in Waterbury, where the motor patrol was doubled and police cars were furnished with riot guns. Officers said the strikers were stopping other truckmen.

Meanwhile Frank E. Crowther, business agent of the truckers union, which called for a strike on Monday, calling a strike or causing acts of violence, said union leaders planned to ask for a dissolution of the injunction.

Among the truckmen themselves there was confusion, after launching their second strike within a month last night, some returned to work when informed of the injunction, while others continued to strike and picket.

Injunction Signed
The injunction was signed by Judge Alfred C. Baldwin Superior court last night shortly before the strike was to have become effective at midnight. It was obtained by the Eastern Motor Freight conference, and restricted the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Shipmen, and Helpers of America, and its agents from instituting a strike or causing acts of violence.

Kan. Trucks Had Been Halted
Along state highways because the injunction was signed but it was reported that some of these began moving after issuance of the restraining order.

The truck drivers voted to strike at a mass meeting in New Haven last night. Many ordered because truck companies refused to recognize the union. He asserted also the drivers would demand a wage scale higher than one proposed by a board of arbitration named to settle the original strike called about a month ago.

Crowther, who represented the union on the arbitration board was one of the agents served with the injunction writ.

The new strike order followed by a day approved by the board of arbitration of a plan to settle the original labor dispute.

In their petition for the injunction, the 29 truck companies of the freight conference charged that the strike violated the arbitration agreement. They said further that "the police force of the state of Connecticut consisting of approximately 125 men is inadequate and unable to protect the 1,200 trucks and the drivers and helpers thereon moving in all parts of the state of Connecticut."

The writ is returnable November 7, in Superior Court at Hartford.

The strike order affected drivers of all commercial vehicles, including taxicabs, trucks and trailers. Buses, government trucks and vehicles transporting milk and perishables were exempt.

DELAYS ARE REPORTED
Springfield, Mass., Oct. 25.—(AP)—While reports of direct interference with local trucks routed through Connecticut were lacking, trucking concerns said today some delay was being experienced, though they were unable to state the reason.

It was believed drivers were being held up in some places by pickets, who appeared to be active regardless of court restraining action.

Truck union leaders said no overtures had been received looking toward sympathetic action. Some owners said they were routing their southernmost trucks west through

MAY KEEP WAGES DOWN TO HELP CONSTRUCTION

NRA Plans Program To Induce Capital To Invest In Buildings—Parley On Subject Tomorrow.

Washington, Oct. 25.—(AP)—A decision sought by labor on tentative plans within NRA to keep wages of construction industries down for a year as an inducement to capital to stimulate building was postponed today when deputies reported the master construction code not yet ready for submission to Administrator Hugh S. Johnson.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, M. J. McDonough, head of its building trades department, and other leaders had an appointment to see Johnson this morning but the meeting was postponed until tomorrow when the code is to be in his hands.

Meanwhile, however, it developed that the "step-up plan" by which wages would be raised by a definite percentage with a subsequent increase later, had not been written into the general code. Indications were it might be set out of all individual compacts covering branches of the construction industry.

No Minimum Wage
The code, however, does propose a minimum wage level of 40 cents an hour except where by local agreement the wage is set higher. In this way the wages of all skilled workers would be left to arbitration.

Johnson today had before him for approval the result of an international conference of newspaper manufacturers who agreed last night to hold prices at a minimum amounting to a net delivered figure of $40 a ton through 1934; to fix no prices for deliveries after 1934; and to fix no 1934 prices unless accompanied by provision for increases on the first of April, July and October of next year if these are found necessary to come in line with prevailing contract market prices at those times.

No Objections
George L. Berry, head of the Printing Pressmen's Union, who sat in on the conference, said he saw no objection to the minimum but that provision for increases would have to be studied carefully to protect the newspaper consumers, and that some form of control of the price structure in this country would have to be furnished to the newspaper code authority.

Harvard Scientists Announce Important Discovery; Solves Great Problem.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Oxygen in the sun's atmosphere was announced today as the long-mysterious source of the nearby white light which surrounds the sun during total eclipses to form his "corona."

The announcement solves one of the great problems of astronomy and comes officially from the Harvard Astronomical Observatory. Apparently oxygen floats above the sun to heights of millions of miles. In some eclipses astronomers have estimated the coronal light as streaming ten million miles above the sun's surface.

The oxygen, the announcement states, causes the major part of the coronal light. But it adds that

NOTE FOR MCKEE A ROOSEVELT VOTE

That Is Claim Of New York Candidate; Says Mills Is Attacking Administration.

New York, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Joseph McKee's campaign for the majority was definitely aligned by him today with the policies of President Roosevelt.

The Recovery Party candidate asserted that "a vote for McKee is a vote for Roosevelt."

While he made no claims himself of White House support, his co-workers previously stated the McKee candidacy was approved and backed by the "same personnel" behind the National administration.

The attitude of the White House, however, appeared unchanged from its previous aloofness from public expression on the campaign.

Badge of Distinction

McKee, lining up his campaign with President Roosevelt in a speech last night referred to the support by National Democratic leaders as a "badge of distinction."

Postmaster General James A. Farley has been accused by Fusionists of backing McKee to insure New York state's important convention and electoral vote for Roosevelt in 1936.

While carrying his fight under the Roosevelt banner, McKee at the same time accused Ogden L. Mills, Hoover secretary of the treasury, of supporting LaGuardia's campaign as a "back-door method of attacking the administration."

McKee's Charges

His defeat, McKee declared, would be proclaimed by Mills and W. Kingland Macy, New York state Republican chairman, as "a gigantic defeat for Roosevelt, and a repudiation of his efforts for the recovery of the Nation."

"If my candidacy were to merit the interest and approval of those in Washington, who are leading the Nation up to sunlight from the valley of darkness, I shall be proud indeed," he concluded. "My opponents charge it to me as a crime. I proclaim it is a badge of distinction."

MOVIE DRAMA PROVES FOOTBALL NOT RACKET

In football "just another racket?" Is a college gridiron star's great popularity solely the result of his prowess as a player?

"Yes!" answered Robert Young in his character of Jim Fowler in Universal's stirring football drama, "Saturday's Millions." Embittered by the thought, he lost the enthusiasm of his earlier years in school, he proceeded to make a business of the game. He bet heavily on the result of the games, sold his own student tickets at high prices, neglected his training, "let down" the team and the college, and excited the contemptuous rage of his sweetheart.

But he was vastly surprised by events which transpired after final game of his school career, and came to realize the true meaning of "good sportsmanship."

SUFFIELD SCHOOL IS 100 YEARS OLD

Noted Educators Gather For Celebration — President Roosevelt Sends Message

Suffield, Oct. 25.—(AP)—The Suffield school—100 years old today—observed its centenary with exercises in the historic Baptist church.

From President Roosevelt, leading educators and citizens of the Nation came words and messages of congratulation to the school as a century old bulwark of character.

The exercises began with a procession from the North building of the school to the church. Dr. Brownell Gage, headmaster, read the centennial greetings.

President Roosevelt wrote—"To the faculty, student body, alumni and friends who will be assembled, my congratulations on their achievements thus far and my best wishes for their continued welfare."

"Those who have in their care the development of character among our youth deserve every encouragement and commendation."

Historical Address

Professor Lyon Phelps of Yale, a trustee of the school, whose father S. Dryden Phelps, attended the school and later taught there, delivered the historical address.

"Our schools and colleges are not only solely institutions learning," he said, "they are training grounds. Training grounds for what?"

"For citizenship, of course; but for something greater and broader even than that. In one word, for manhood. We believe that character is greater than anything else; and that learning, unless founded on character, is not the summum bonum."

Cultural Education

"One of the finest things about Suffield school is that it has recognized during the hundred years of its history, the place that religion and idealism and unselfishness have in the best general cultural education."

Governor Wilbur L. Cross, President James Rowland Angell of Yale, President George B. Cutton of Colgate, President Mary E. Woolley of Mt. Holyoke, Lewis Perry, headmaster of Phillips Academy, Exeter and the Rt. Rev. Edward Campion Acheson, bishop of Connecticut, were among the speakers.

Greetings came also from U. S. Senator Augustine Lonergan and Senator Frederic C. Wolcott, who termed the celebration an "outstanding landmark in the progress of one of Connecticut's leading schools."

JANGLED NERVES

GOING TO STAY ON THAT PHONE ALL NIGHT?

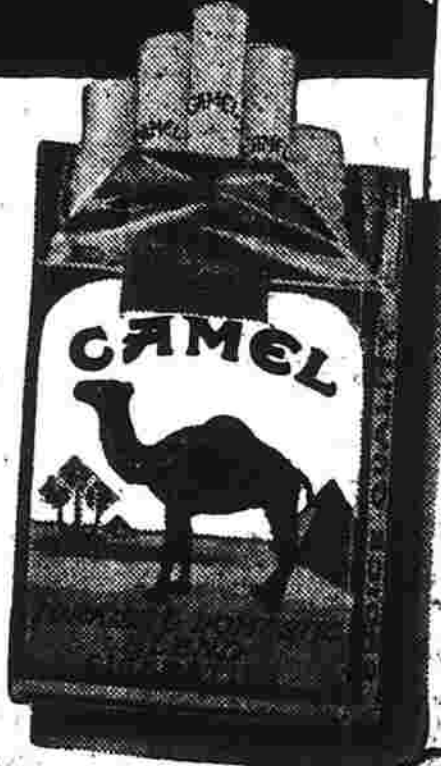

Do jangled nerves make you say things you'll regret?

How many times in the course of a week do you snap at someone? If you check very carefully you will probably find that it happens more times than you realize.

For one of the dangers of jangled nerves is that the victim so seldom knows about his own condition. It not only hurts others—but himself as well.

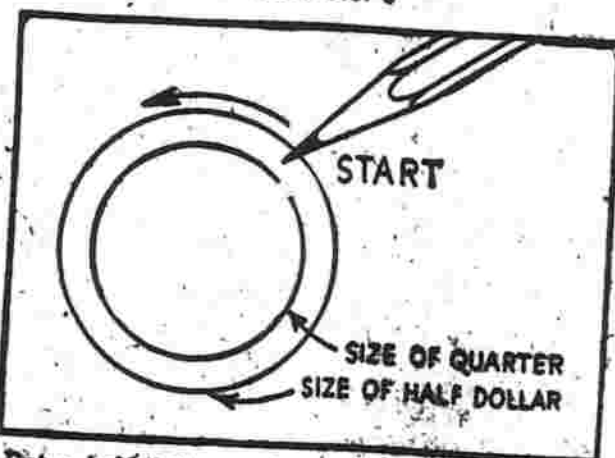

The more alert you are, the more high-strung and alive, the greater danger there is of jangled nerves.

Get your full amount of sleep every night. Eat regularly and sensibly. Find time for recreation. And smoke Camels—for Camel's costlier tobacco never gets on your nerves.

ROCKVILLE

TWO AUTOS DAMAGED IN 'GOAT FARM' CRASH

Occupants Badly Shaken Up But Not Seriously Injured.

Two cars were smashed in a collision at the so-called "Goat Farm" intersection on the Rockville and Hartford road at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

No one was seriously injured by the impact although the occupants of both cars were badly shaken up. A Studebaker sedan owned by Alfred G. of Rosedale, Long Island and operated by Joseph Cuffford, of New York City, collided with a Buick sedan owned by Maud E. Benson, of Roland Park, Balto, Maryland. The Buick sedan was driven by Miss Frances S. Elersade, of Balto, Maryland.

State Policeman Jesse Foley, of the Stafford/Springs Barracks, happened to be passing the intersection at the "Goat Farm" shortly after the accident, while on his way to Bridgeport. An investigation made resulted in both drivers being taken to the Rockville police station by State Policeman Foley.

Miss Elersade was driving from Doboosville to Hartford. Mr. Cuffford was headed in the opposite direction, from Hartford to Worcester. Both drivers are held for the city court on the charge of violation of the rules of the road. The Buick was not badly damaged and after minor repairs was able to proceed under its own power. The Studebaker sedan had to be hauled to the Lans Garage by a wrecker.

WHO'S WHO In the Supreme Court

No. 4—Louis D. Brandeis

The word "crusader" in its highest sense best describes Louis D. Brandeis, associate justice of the United States supreme court, shown above in a new photo. A champion among champions of liberal thought and action, Brandeis has won shining fame that will go far in history. It is said of him that he never has been found in error on a point of law in his decisions. His facts and his logic are annihilating. His words, perhaps, a wider influence than any other member of the court.

Justice Brandeis, now 77, was named to the supreme court in 1916 by President Wilson. Confirmation was granted by the Senate after a struggle rarely exceeded in bitterness in that body.

REBEL CHIEF SLAIN Bangkok, Siam, Oct. 25 - (AP) - The slaying of Phra Sri Siddhi Sonogram, one of the Siamese rebel leaders, was expected by government leaders today to aid in overcoming the revolt quickly. It was learned that the government troops were holding their own against the rebels, who, under the popular prince, apparently were making a fresh bid to win the throne.

THESE CHANGING TIMES

A Student of the Modern School Looks At Today's and Tomorrow's Problems.

By JACOB E. RUBINOW THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS 2. THE NEW DOLLAR

The President's answer to the host of new demands for more intensive inflationary measures is the plan to have the RFC purchase newly mined gold at prices to be fixed by himself and the Secretary of the Treasury. This act amounts to official devaluation of the dollar, since its gold content will be reduced in proportion as the government pays more than $20.67 per ounce for the newly mined gold. The theory that prices can be increased by increasing the price of gold, or to state it differently, by paying more for a given amount of gold, is not a new one. Professor Irving Fisher of Yale has long maintained that prices can be controlled by use of a "stabilized dollar," that is a dollar the gold content of which is varied according as it was desired to raise prices or lower them. During the depression, many leading economists, notably John Maynard Keynes of England, have advocated reduction of the gold content of the currencies as a sure means of raising prices.

There are a number of theories as to the relationship of the price of gold to the general price level. In his address, the President emphasized the foreign exchange aspects of his move, for he specifically stated, "Our dollar is now altogether too greatly influenced by the accidents of international trade, the accidents of international politics, and by political disturbances in other countries. Therefore the United States must take firmly in its own hands the control of the gold value of our dollar. . . . As a further effective means to this end, I am going to establish Government market for gold in the United States. In other words, the Administration will control the value of the American dollar in the foreign exchange market by altering its gold content whenever necessary. This will react on our price level through the following channels: If the gold content of the dollar is lowered enough, the value of the dollar will fall in the foreign exchange market. Foreigners whose currencies are of a higher gold content will naturally be able to purchase a greater number of American dollars for the same amount of their own currency. This induces them to purchase more of our commodities, thus increasing the demand and causing prices to rise. The prices will continue to rise until they reach a point where their increased cost offsets the comparative cheapening of the dollar. It is readily apparent that the new plan gives first place to the purchase price of gold as an index of the extent to which the Administration is acting to raise prices. The Administration must be fully aware that it now has a most potent instrument for achieving its aim of a higher price level. We know from the experience of the past few weeks that gold at 830 per cent represents far too little devaluation. Just how much higher the price must go no one can say. But unless the new plan is to become a boomerang that will send us spinning back into the throes of deflation, the price must be pushed higher and higher until its effect is definitely felt in the thinning of our unemployment ranks by literally millions. This alone should be the criterion for deciding what shall be the new gold content of the dollar; not just any other would be a travesty. We shall finally know definitely just how far the Administration is willing in the interests of the nation, to push aside deflationist propaganda. There is another terrible winter in the offing unless business recession and the fall in prices is checked. The Administration has the means of accomplishing that: now is the time to do it.

ODD FELLOWS ALL SET FOR FAIR AND BAZAAR

Carnival Starting Tomorrow Night Will Be Featured By Appearance of Star Drill Team.

Three nights of fun and frolic with all the ideas of fifteen years ago amplified at the first annual bazaar and carnival under the auspices of the Booster Club of King David Lodge, will get underway tomorrow evening at the Odd Fellows Temple, Main and East Center streets. Music for the dancing will be furnished by Joan and Her Melody Boys. The hall has been tastefully decorated with Halloween's colors. Booths and nearly all of the merchandise used in the various booths has been purchased in Manchester. Perhaps the outstanding feature of the entertainment will be the crack guard team from the Sunset Rebekah Lodge, former state champions and runners up at the Odd Fellows and Rebekah field day last September. This team will take the floor at about 9:15 o'clock Thursday evening. On Friday night the famous Kossuth Banquet Patrol guard team of Hartford will put on its drill. Both these features are rarely seen during the year in public, usually being confined to lodge halls. The entertainment each evening will be furnished by John MacLaughlin, who has a variety of entertainers ready for all occasions and are said to be top notchers. The floor show will be divided into three parts to provide suitable diversion from the other activities. The affair this year is taken from similar affairs of fifteen to twenty years ago, when movies and other forms of entertainment were few and far between. All the features of an up-to-date midway are installed and being conducted in the old fashioned way. Many of the older residents remember the bazaars and fairs of those days, and the good times enjoyed then. Saturday evening will be dedicated to Halloween frolics. A harvest moon will shine and the hall decorated appropriately. The entire affair is being held under direct charge of Stanley Nichols and Charles Lathrop. The doors will be open at 7:30 o'clock with the entertainment scheduled to start at 8:15 o'clock. Her Range Cooks the Dinner... not the Cook!

Electric Cookery is cool. Complete insulation keeps the heat in the oven. CLEAN, it never blackens cooking pots. AUTOMATIC, it cooks a complete dinner while she's out for the afternoon.

LOOK at her kitchen thermometer, and you'd never guess she had just taken a roast from the oven. Her electric range is insulated—top, sides and bottom. No flow of air through the oven to carry heat into the room. The heat stays inside the range. Her kitchen stays cool. Hours in the kitchen are not only pleasanter, but fewer. She prepares dinner in the morning, slips it in the oven, sets the automatic control. And while she is miles away, playing golf at the country club or shopping downtown, her oven turns itself on, maintains proper temperature, turns itself off when dinner is cooked. Here is a modern electric range. Fast. Oven hot enough for baking in ten minutes. Economical. Roasts shrink very little. Meats retain their juices; vegetables their natural salts and minerals. Foods are tasty, healthful. Come in for a demonstration. Let us explain our deferred payment plan. Let us show you our actual operating costs in your own neighborhood how inexpensively you can enjoy all the advantages of electric cookery.

Hartford, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Applications of a mutual savings bank of Connecticut to become a member of the Federal Reserve system should not be approved by the state bank commissioner so long as such application carries a mandatory obligation of becoming a participant in Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, is held in an opinion given today by Deputy Attorney General Ernest L. THE GOLD DUD

Establishment by the United States government of an open market for new gold at the price announced today, $31.36 an ounce, is not likely to have any such effect upon prices, as a stimulant to buying and hence as a cause of increased industrial demand and of re-employment, as President Roosevelt appears to hope. The price established is not sufficiently higher than the world price of yesterday to be of anything but trifling use. Nothing short of a price closely approximating $40 an ounce would have created a devaluation commensurate to the circumstances.

But the particularly disappointing in this measure lies in the belief that in this gold juggling adventure the President appears to think that he has done the one thing necessary not only to check deflation altogether but to bring about a substantial increase in values of commodities and property. There is no warrant for any such faith.

Gold devaluation would have been a very much more important step a year ago than it is today. Then the oppressive power of the gold dollar would have been reduced in the indicated ratio between $20.67 and $31.36 because we were on the gold standard, the gold clause in contracts and bonds was in effect, and a revaluing of the gold dollar that cut the content to two-thirds would have reduced the power of the dollar to two-thirds. Now, however, we are off the gold standard, the gold clause has been invalidated by law, the dollar's command over property has already by natural selection been cut down.

The effect, then, of the open market proceedings can hardly be expected to exceed the actual percentage of the increase in price of gold over the world gold price—something like 35 cents an ounce, a little over 1 per cent.

Even if the gold price should exercise its full effect on values, the best that could be expected, apparently, would be a 1 per cent lift in the price level. And a one per cent gain in values, even if general, is not going to serve the necessities of the present situation.

It is no wonder that the inflationists are already storming the White House with demands for far sterner inflationary measures than this which, as it was to have been feared, has been robbed of all its value by the timid manner of its application.

It is deeply regrettable that the President deemed it wise to go to the people with this gold market plan as though it were a tremendous thing when he had no definite plan for employing that market to do something important. The outcome can hardly fail to be a shaking of their confidence in his judgment.

The country is being rapidly, though very reluctantly, forced to the conclusion that the deflationists are not only in the saddle at Washington but are riding with spurs.

WAR AND MILK

It has been repeated a thousand times over that nobody, least of all the millions who died in it, understood the causes of the World War. It is none the less true that the millions died.

It is probably true that not one person in a thousand in Connecticut can interpret, with any certainty of accuracy, the weird phraseology of the State Milk Board's recently promulgated regulations, but it is nevertheless quite certain that most of them are going to be pinched in the operation of that fantastic machinery if it is permitted to start.

For that reason it is probable that public sympathy will run very largely to the Milk Producer-Dealers Association in its adoption of a resolution calling for court action to block the new marketing plan of the commission and for a petition demanding the removal of all three members of the Milk Board.

The Milk Board may lay down ever so smoky a barrage of words but it has not yet succeeded in convincing the people of this state that there is any good reason why they should be compelled by law to pay a higher price for milk than the people of any other state in the American Union or of any country on this green earth while, on the other hand, the very producers of the milk insist that they are robbed and crippled through the law's operation.

The processes by which the Milk Board arrives at its conclusions are as mysterious, as involved—and of quite as obscure motives—as those diplomatic maneuverings which preceded the cataclysm of 1914, but they appear to be quite as certain to lead to the innocent public's getting the worst of it.

The proposed demand for the retirement of the three commissioners will not be deeply resented by the people of the state who are required to pay the highest price in the world for their milk by command of a board two-thirds of whose members at least have admitted that they do not know how much it costs the farmer to produce it.

FARM STRIKE

For some reason that frankly we cannot understand it is difficult to obtain through any of the customary sources much real information concerning the so-called farmers' strike.

There seems to be a misconception of the news value of the action of the Farm Holiday Association in declaring that, until they were guaranteed "production" prices, its members would refrain from buying or selling anything, from paying debts or taxes. To our mind this may be of a good deal more potential importance than the fact that the roads in Western states are or are not full of pickets; that one truck or a thousand has been turned back from market; that blows have been struck or no blows struck.

It has been said that two million farmers are affected by the decision of the Farm Holiday Association. From sources not in sympathy with the strike comes the assertion that "not more than 500,000" will participate in it.

It is to be submitted that the importance of this movement among the farmers does not at all depend on the number of farms that may grow out of it or on the seriousness of the rioting, if any, but rather on whether or not a very large number of people in the agricultural regions join together, in however loose an organization, in an attempt to bring to a halt an important part of the nation's system of commodities exchange.

The physical aspects of the farm holiday, for some reason, appear to be the only phases of the matter to engage the interest of the news distribution agencies of the country. Yet it has a very serious bearing on the immediate future of this nation if even so many as half a million farmers—to disregard altogether the claims that there are four times as many—have actually sat down in their homes prepared to live by eating their own products, wearing their old clothes, burning their own wood or even corn, and to cease for the time being from any participation in the normal civilization under which a nation may exist.

If half a million farmers are involved in any such proceeding that means that a bloc of close to two million people, in addition to the ineffective jobless, is being withdrawn from the system of production and consumption. Not at all a helpful condition.

It all constitutes a subject of major importance. It is unfortunate that in the midst of more florid and colorful news matters this one should be receiving such scant attention. It is not a thing to become panicky or excited about. Neither is it one to be ignored—or, intentionally or otherwise, belittled.

EXTREMES OF SEA

Shipbuilding may be a long way from a major industry in Connecticut nowadays, but with the laying of the keel of a new submarine at the plant of the Electric Boat Company at Groton and reports that the next defender of the America's cup may be built at Bridgeport, we are at least reminded that this is a maritime state and that the construction of vessels is not, or should not be, a negligible activity.

At all events the two projects mentioned touch about the extreme limits of purposes of the sea. The implications of the submarine are possibly the grimmest attaching to any form of marine construction. The modeling and building of an international cup defender are matters of sheer artistry serving the gayest and most luxurious aspirations.

Connecticut may not be at all certain yet of participating in the America's cup races in the capacity of mother of a defender, though there appears to be some probability that W. Starling Burgess may build there, for a syndicate, a sloop which he has already modeled, but in any event she is sure of her submarine, with another to follow at the Groton yards. And in these days a contract for a couple of submarines is a contribution to the state's industries not to be sneezed at.

the national metropolis. It is not an unreasonable guess that as the revolt against the Democratic machines in Hartford goes so will go the revolt against Tammany in New York. It would perhaps be a useful straw if the issue could be determined in Hartford first—particularly if one were anxious to get down a little bet on the New York election.

Hartford Democrats appear to be pretty well disgusted. So much so that it would surprise nobody if the coming election were to result in a general Republican victory. And if a party as strongly entrenched as the Hartford Democrats should be, behind their recent smashing majorities and the as yet undimmed prestige of the national administration, can be smothered under a sudden popular revolt, the same causes would seem to be likely to have much the same effect in New York—which, after all, is merely a multiple of a Hartford.

Washington, Oct. 25.—Filing of the vacancy on the Federal Trade Commission by selection of Prof. James M. Landis is another typical "New Deal" appointment. Landis is a sort of minor "brain-truster," a protégé of Felix Frankfurter at Harvard, and thus makes one more of the bright young collegians who have been lending their brains to the Roosevelt administration.

Landis had a big hand in drawing the "Truth in Securities" bill, and nothing could be more appropriate than to put him in the place where he must help enforce it. Ever since the bill's passage, he has been organizing the section of the Federal Trade Commission which will supervise security issues.

This appointment seems to serve notice that despite the succession of squawks from New York on the bill, the president is determined to give a real try under sympathetic administration.

Landis, in his mid-thirties, plays tennis, is young and athletic-looking.

Woodin III? Not a sign Secretary Woodin looking very well indeed, called at the White House the other day with his new colleague, Henry Bruere, the New York banker who is to be the liaison officer among all the federal credit agencies.

Woodin, a symphony in brown from tie to shoes, seemed in bubbling spirits as he matched with Bruere for their cab fare on leaving the White House. Bruere won.

It's difficult to believe that if Woodin should resign from the Treasury, illness would have anything to do with it.

"A Laughing Woman" is About Some Shady Folk

By BRUCE CATTON
 "A Laughing Woman," by Carol Keith, is one of those novels that make a reviewer—this one, at any rate—wonder why he didn't get into the bond-selling game that time he had the chance.

It is, I mean to say, an exasperating book; well-written by a competent novelist, filled with eminent-like characterizations and dialogue, it is an authentic slice of life—and somehow it adds up to nothing at all.

It's a tale of the disreputable fringes of up-to-date New York life. There's a down-at-the-heels press agent in it, an assortment of ladies of easy virtue, a rising movie director, a radio continuity writer, and the usual collection of speak-easy proprietors, night club hostesses, merry villagers and so on.

All of these people get tangled up together when the movie director comes east to make a new picture, which is to be the starring vehicle for the light o' love of the movie company's president. Because some of the people are not very bright and a lot of them are grasping, lecherous and unreliable, practically everybody involved comes to grief in Washington, Oct. 25.—Filing of the vacancy on the Federal Trade Commission by selection of Prof. James M. Landis is another typical "New Deal" appointment. Landis is a sort of minor "brain-truster," a protégé of Felix Frankfurter at Harvard, and thus makes one more of the bright young collegians who have been lending their brains to the Roosevelt administration.

Landis had a big hand in drawing the "Truth in Securities" bill, and nothing could be more appropriate than to put him in the place where he must help enforce it. Ever since the bill's passage, he has been organizing the section of the Federal Trade Commission which will supervise security issues.

This appointment seems to serve notice that despite the succession of squawks from New York on the bill, the president is determined to give a real try under sympathetic administration.

Landis, in his mid-thirties, plays tennis, is young and athletic-looking.

Woodin III? Not a sign Secretary Woodin looking very well indeed, called at the White House the other day with his new colleague, Henry Bruere, the New York banker who is to be the liaison officer among all the federal credit agencies.

Woodin, a symphony in brown from tie to shoes, seemed in bubbling spirits as he matched with Bruere for their cab fare on leaving the White House. Bruere won.

It's difficult to believe that if Woodin should resign from the Treasury, illness would have anything to do with it.

THE GOLD DUD

Establishment by the United States government of an open market for new gold at the price announced today, $31.36 an ounce, is not likely to have any such effect upon prices, as a stimulant to buying and hence as a cause of increased industrial demand and of re-employment, as President Roosevelt appears to hope. The price established is not sufficiently higher than the world price of yesterday to be of anything but trifling use. Nothing short of a price closely approximating $40 an ounce would have created a devaluation commensurate to the circumstances.

But the particularly disappointing in this measure lies in the belief that in this gold juggling adventure the President appears to think that he has done the one thing necessary not only to check deflation altogether but to bring about a substantial increase in values of commodities and property. There is no warrant for any such faith.

Gold devaluation would have been a very much more important step a year ago than it is today. Then the oppressive power of the gold dollar would have been reduced in the indicated ratio between $20.67 and $31.36 because we were on the gold standard, the gold clause in contracts and bonds was in effect, and a revaluing of the gold dollar that cut the content to two-thirds would have reduced the power of the dollar to two-thirds. Now, however, we are off the gold standard, the gold clause has been invalidated by law, the dollar's command over property has already by natural selection been cut down.

The effect, then, of the open market proceedings can hardly be expected to exceed the actual percentage of the increase in price of gold over the world gold price—something like 35 cents an ounce, a little over 1 per cent.

Even if the gold price should exercise its full effect on values, the best that could be expected, apparently, would be a 1 per cent lift in the price level. And a one per cent gain in values, even if general, is not going to serve the necessities of the present situation.

It is no wonder that the inflationists are already storming the White House with demands for far sterner inflationary measures than this which, as it was to have been feared, has been robbed of all its value by the timid manner of its application.

It is deeply regrettable that the President deemed it wise to go to the people with this gold market plan as though it were a tremendous thing when he had no definite plan for employing that market to do something important. The outcome can hardly fail to be a shaking of their confidence in his judgment.

The country is being rapidly, though very reluctantly, forced to the conclusion that the deflationists are not only in the saddle at Washington but are riding with spurs.

WAR AND MILK

It has been repeated a thousand times over that nobody, least of all the millions who died in it, understood the causes of the World War. It is none the less true that the millions died.

It is probably true that not one person in a thousand in Connecticut can interpret, with any certainty of accuracy, the weird phraseology of the State Milk Board's recently promulgated regulations, but it is nevertheless quite certain that most of them are going to be pinched in the operation of that fantastic machinery if it is permitted to start.

For that reason it is probable that public sympathy will run very

EXTREMES OF SEA

Shipbuilding may be a long way from a major industry in Connecticut nowadays, but with the laying of the keel of a new submarine at the plant of the Electric Boat Company at Groton and reports that the next defender of the America's cup may be built at Bridgeport, we are at least reminded that this is a maritime state and that the construction of vessels is not, or should not be, a negligible activity.

At all events the two projects mentioned touch about the extreme limits of purposes of the sea. The implications of the submarine are possibly the grimmest attaching to any form of marine construction. The modeling and building of an international cup defender are matters of sheer artistry serving the gayest and most luxurious aspirations.

Connecticut may not be at all certain yet of participating in the America's cup races in the capacity of mother of a defender, though there appears to be some probability that W. Starling Burgess may build there, for a syndicate, a sloop which he has already modeled, but in any event she is sure of her submarine, with another to follow at the Groton yards. And in these days a contract for a couple of submarines is a contribution to the state's industries not to be sneezed at.

GOLF CLUB PREPARES FOR PUBLIC CONCERTS

moderately subsided today as the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's initial gold price was interpreted as indicating that a conservative policy would be pursued in using this means of managing the dollar.

The wheat market, which had closed at somewhat lower levels before the flurry of buying swept through the Stock Market yesterday, made the test headway today, with early prices at Chicago up 1 to nearly 2 cents a bushel.

The price of $31.36 as announced for newly mined gold in Washington was a little over the London price of $31.65 as calculated on the price of sterling exchange, and compared with the Treasury's price yesterday, based on London, of $29.80.

While some speculative circles in Wall Street expressed disappointment at this small increase, important banking quarters said that the conservative policy indicated was reassuring, in that it manifested an intention in Washington to avoid any drastic inflationary move which might spur reckless bull speculation in the markets such as would lead to a sharp and disturbing reaction later.

As under the RFC plan of controlling the dollar through announcing gold prices independent of the world markets proposes to control the dollar through the largely psychological means of posting a gold value showing what Washington thinks the dollar should be worth. In order to be effective, foreign exchange experts said, this policy must be pursued cautiously, since erratic movements of funds in foreign exchange dealings that the dollar would not follow the posted price.

Should this method of posting a price not work, it was explained, it would probably be found necessary to engage in heavy buying and selling of gold abroad to control the dollar, much in the manner that the British equalization fund controls sterling. This would be a more complicated and probably much more expensive procedure.

SPECULATORS SHOCKED

Paris, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Speculators in foreign exchange got a shock today by the announcement that the United States government was purchasing gold at approximately $31 a fine ounce and rushed to cover themselves in unofficial trading after the market had closed.

They had expected the price of the American purchases to be up around $36. Instead the price which the United States paid for gold, worked out in terms of dollar exchange, equalled the 18.81 francs at which the dollar was quoted in this morning's official trading.

PRESIDENT IMPATIENT

Washington, Oct. 25.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, is becoming impatient over the long drawn out negotiations for peace in the "Captive mines" of Pennsylvania and was reported at noon today to expect a reply from Myron Taylor, chairman of the U. S. Steel Corporation, within a few hours.

The President told the operators of mines owned by the steel and iron companies that if they do not make terms with the miners he will step in. It was made plain at the White House today, he feels action is due.

ELABORATE RITES AT CONSECRATION

(Continued from Page One) rounded by twenty-one emeralds, from Bishop Chartrand. Unique Position Unique was the position Bishop Ryan will now occupy in the American hierarchy—a titular bishop not serving as auxiliary to a diocesan bishop, but as head of America's only National Catholic Pontifical University.

Titular bishops, university officials explained, are named as bishops of sees once active, but now inactive, mostly located in parts of the world once having a Catholic population, but now deserted because of national or climatic reasons. A list of these non-functioning dioceses is kept in Rome, and when a titular bishop is named, his see is selected from the next in order.

To see of Modra, of which Bishop Ryan was named titular head, is believed to have been located between what are now Lefke and Vezirkhan on the Constantinople-Bagdad railway line, its bishops dating from the year 558 to 1401. Bishop Ryan was educated in Parochial schools of Indianapolis, Dequense University, Mount St. Mary's seminary at Cincinnati, and the American College in Rome. He began his career as an educator at St. Mary of the Woods College, Terre Haute, Indiana, and from there came to the capital. He became fifth rector of Catholic University in 1928. In 1932 he went to Rome to report to the Pope in person on the progress of the school.

LITVINOFF'S VISIT

Washington, Oct. 25.—(AP)—President Roosevelt expects Maxim Litvinoff special envoy from Soviet Russia, here early in November and is hopeful he will arrive before Secretary Hull leaves for the Pan-American conference in South America. While Mr. Roosevelt is particularly desirous that Secretary Hull and Litvinoff meet, he intends the secretary of state shall keep his engagement for the Montevideo conference next month. Private advices said Litvinoff probably would reach Washington about the sixth of November.

CIGAR FACTORY LABOR TROUBLE IS SETTLED

C. C. M. Concern Recognizes New Union And North End Shop Will Reopen Monday.

The labor difficulties between the Connecticut Cigar Manufacturers, whose factory is on Apel Place, and the concern's employees were adjusted yesterday by recognition of the Cigar Makers' Union by the manufacturers and an agreement between the company and Van Vorenwick, organizer for the cigar makers, who came here yesterday, that the establishment should be operated as a union shop.

The organizing proceeded at once to the formation of a local branch of the cigar makers' union. Under the terms of the settlement it was agreed that the company would take back all the employees who struck a week ago and who wished to return, the resumption of operations to be on Monday next.

HATTERS END STRIKE

Hartford, Oct. 25.—(AP)—One thousand workers in sixteen Danbury fur hat makers plants returned to work this morning, after conferences yesterday with Dr. Edward G. Dolan, chairman of the state recovery board, Walter J. Collopy, manager of the board. The agreement which was signed ended a strike which began September 20, after a week's negotiating by representatives of the Connecticut and United States Labor Departments had failed to settle the matter and avert the walkout.

The agreement provided for rotation of employees; the return of hatters at the old wages, pending the adoption of a fur hatters' code in Washington, and that no discrimination be shown because of the affiliation of a worker with a union. The provisions of the agreement were retroactive.

FIRST TO GIVE METERED SERVICE!

The Bantly Oil Company is the first to introduce perfect oil delivery. A de-luxe metered service. The meter is a specially devised gauge for oil trucks. It makes possible a tank to tank hose service direct from our truck tank to your cellar tank. That protects your oil from the dust which is in the air. That is convenient and lightning fast.

Gone are the cans that in rainy or snowy weather collected water which made trouble in your burner. Gone is the tiresome counting of carelessly emptied cans which you always suspected went back to the truck partly filled with oil for which you paid.

Italian Youths Strive To Attain High Ideals

The Sons of Italy, Jr., was organized in Manchester late in 1932. It is under the supervision of the senior lodge in Manchester. The local club has the distinction of being the eighth club formed for Juniors in the United States.

There are seventy members in the club, ninety-five per cent of whom either attend grammar or high school or have graduated from high school.

The club was organized to better the ideals of American-born Italian youths. The club members strive to follow as nearly as possible their motto: "Liberty, Fraternity and Brotherhood," another foundation on which the club was organized was to promote sports activities among the boys.

Prominent in the activities of the club is the drill team, which has attained state-wide mention for expertness in the intricacy of a marching drill. The team has won several cups in competition, which tell of their ability and efficiency.

The club's track team placed third in the town championship last summer. Early in July it won a beautiful cup in New Haven for winning a relay race. The club plans to have a basketball team this year and indications point to a successful squad being built around Eugene Sarrico and Francis DeLuca.

All of the club members from the ages of sixteen to twenty-one were recently enrolled in the Recreation Center at the expense of the club. That activities such as these are appreciated is shown by the club membership, which has jumped from twenty to seventy in six months.

Responsible for the success of the club is Nicolo Frivigno, the popular young supervisor. He holds the respect and admiration of every member of the lodge and has thus far shown that he is capable of holding the confidence of the young Italian lads having placed in him.

The officers of the club are: Eugene Enrico, "33", president; Francis DeLuca, "33", vice-president; Joseph Della Fera, "32", secretary; and William Leone and Albert Siamonde, "34", sergeant-at-arms. —Joe Mistretta, '34.

Captain Timothy Healy Scheduled To Speak Here October 30.

Captain Timothy Healy, former staff officer of the Intelligence Corps during the war, has been engaged to speak at assembly Monday, October 30. Captain "Tim" spoke to the Women's League of Voters in Manchester and gave a very interesting lecture.

He has recently written two articles for the Hartford Courant which deal with his daring adventures in capturing spies. He is listed as a private in the Australian Infantry Forces. He fought in Egypt against the Turks, in the Suez Canal operations in Arabia; was present at the landing of troops on Gallipoli. He went to Belgium and France as Sergeant Major and soon received the bars of a Second Lieutenant attached to the Intelligence Staff.

For bravery above and beyond the call of duty, he was made first lieutenant, and from then on his distinguished record and gallantry in action won him a captaincy. He participated in a large number of battles during his six years on the western front.

Some of the most interesting spy stories included in many of his talks are as follows: "Greatest Spy of All," "Notorious Mata Hari," "Mucial Spy," "Lonely Soldier Espionage," "Turkish Sniper," "Fiasco from Cayton," "The School Teacher," "Two Little French Girls at Fleurbaix," "Clock Tower" and "The Hospital Nurse." —C. Ferris, P. G.

THRILLING PASS GAVE M. H. S. NEAT VICTORY

Playing Of Smith And Mozzer Outstanding Feature Of Game.

Manchester played the most thrilling game of the season, Friday in East Hartford, winning by a score of 12-6.

There was a huge crowd of spectators and large support for the Manchester team. The Manchester students arrived from 2:45 to 3:30, depending on the time that they were excused from school.

It was a "true" football day, the weather being snappy without much sun. By the spirit which ran through the audience, they were all in the mood for a real football game and were not disappointed.

Both teams played a good game and the spectators expected a score right up to the end, both teams being very evenly matched.

In the last three minutes of the game, however, the team seemed to have been disturbed by East Hartford's scoring and a fighting spirit ran through the entire team. This was extremely noticeable in the last play when "Bob" Smith's pass and Mozzer's unforgetable run gave a leading score.

The whole crowd immediately went wild and even East Hartford spectators gladly admitted that it was a real game.

This victory kept Manchester on par terms with Bristol for the C. C. I. L. lead, and was also a good revenge for East Hartford's success in last year's game. —Richard Alton, '34.

MANCHESTER WINS CROSS-COUNTRY MEET

Local Harriers Trim Middle-town By Score Of 25 to 30

In the cross country meet with Middletown Friday, Manchester won another victory by the score of 25 to 30. The race was run over a new course and the time made by March and Packard, of Manchester, was 14:10. The entrants of both schools were in good form and there was a great deal of competition, though Manchester's star runners were using an easy pace, not being very hard pressed. The runners placed as follows:

March, Packard, Manchester; Adams, Middletown; Donahue, Manchester; LaBella, Middletown; Stevens, Daly, Leary, Manchester; Herdman, Middletown; Coburn, Manchester.

This is Manchester's second race and the team has been doing well so far. The next meet will be with E. P. H. S. in Hartford, Friday. —E. Maynard, '34.

EDITORIAL UP AND DOWN!

One of the most familiar sights in the school is to see a student who, having reached the top of the stairs, immediately turns and descends the same stairs. To an outsider this spectacle would be very bewildering, but the explanation is simple.

On the south staircase, one can perceive a dazzling sign "UP ONLY," while on the north reads "DOWN ONLY." These signs are enforced, to the occasional embarrassment of the pupil. It is a fact that some of the faculty would like to see the signs removed, for they always seem to turn up at the right time.

It is not my intention to criticize without giving a few suggestions to remedy the fault.

Modern conveniences are always a help, and are in this case a necessity, not a luxury. An escalator is a suggestion therefore as a remedy, and this convenience would save a great deal of energy on the part of the pupil. Elevators could also be installed. However it would be necessary for them to make more than one trip. For those who have prospects of becoming elevator boys or girls, individual elevators might be introduced to help them to learn the rudimentary elements of their future positions.

It might be a good plan to install chute-the-chut for our football and basketball players, to help them keep in good form.

Seriously, however, our staircase system would be a success if every body believed in signs. Possibly if enough students are humiliated, our stairways will be perfectly conducted highways for the daily rush. —Shirley Richmond, '34.

SCHOOL SPIRIT!

There should be a larger attendance at the football games, especially the games away from home.

Many of the students complain that they have no way of getting to the outside games. If enough students would go, a bus could be hired to take them.

The cheering at the games should be much louder and peppier than it is. If the students would meet at the outside games, it is enough students would go, a bus could be hired to take them.

FIRST TERM EXAMS OVER

All term examinations were begun and finished last week in Manchester High school. Most of the students were certain that they had passed the tests, but a few were doubtful. Report cards will come out on Monday. Some of the students already have received "warning slips," and talked over their failures with the teachers. Only failures which depend entirely upon the examination can be a surprise. —E. Maynard, '34.

TRILLS AND SPILLS

Just watch our speedy "quarter" friend.

On a long sweep around the right end;

Yards he does he make plenty—

Five, ten, fifteen, twenty.

While the sidelines ring with cheers, The goal line now he swiftly nears.

In the end zone he is quickly tackled by one of his brawny foes.

"Huddle!" comes the frenzied call. For more debate on the fate of the ball;

Number Thirteen is to carry. Never a moment do they tarry.

Back to the fray they swiftly go. But soon Thirteen is brought down.

At the bottom of the heap he lands. And the ball very quickly changes hands.

It is the last few minutes of play. When one side becomes uncomely gay;

The huge crowd yells with one accord. It's over! The touchdown has been scored! —Chester Obuchowski.

COOPERATION

The school year has started. And vacation has departed; Let this school year just begun Be a year of great things done.

Let us have more students, On the high school honor roll. So let's each and everyone of us Make that our highest goal.

Let us have successful sports teams That will bring us victory; Make this the greatest sports year, In the annals of history.

So in our high school work and play, In every thought and deed, Let the word cooperation Become our standard creed. —Victor Haponik.

WHAT IS BETTER?

Oh! what a better than to sit down, And observe nature's new autumn gown;

To watch the movements of the trees, Or listen to the humming bees?

Is there any better surprise, Than to see with your own eyes, The busy squirrel so small and gay, Hiding his winter supply away?

Or is there any greater wealth, Than to enjoy good rustic health, And see autumn's latest gown, Spangled with many shades of brown?

I ask nothing more than to recall The days of glorious full fall. When autumn's colors would brighten glow, And strange sights before my eyes go. —E. Naczkowski, '35.

A MANCHESTER REGIMENT INSPECTING A SUBMARINE

Exactly sixteen years ago last October third, the second group of Manchester boys was drafted into the war. They were first sent to Camp Devens.

They arrived at camp just before supper-time, and the staff had hardly been organized. The result of this was that they had cold salmon, a jelly and coffee for supper. This may seem to us an amusing incident; but to those boys it was a serious matter, for they did not know army life. The next morning their regular routine of drilling and camp work began.

Although these soldiers were kept at Camp Devens all winter, the discipline was strict. At night someone was always on guard duty, although the only danger was that the miles might get loose.

At Thanksgiving, every one in camp was given a pass to go home. This blocked train traffic for several hours. When the trainmen's hours were over they left their jobs and soldiers to get home as best they could. This generosity with passes was not repeated again at Christmas.

The rumors of orders to march were thick and fast, especially as spring advanced. They did not actually come until early in the summer. The crossing took twenty-one days. Much worrying went on all through the submarine zone, but especially when, just off the coast of Ireland, a submarine was spotted. Precautions were taken, and no harm was done.

Warfare at the front was not always in hand to hand attacks. In fact, the biggest attacks were made from a distance of several miles. Every shot in this operation was fired out with pencil and paper. One German fortress was so peppered with bullets that not ten feet of its wall could be found.

In this same stronghold were found bowling alleys and other such conveniences. Evidently the former inhabitants had intended to stay for awhile. Some German captives appeared to be terribly agonized. It was found, after a questioning, that they had intended to clamp the American bolted their captives in oil.

Although we all know what a gas-mask is, few know how it works. It had to be put on in five counts without breathing. The first was to put the breathing apparatus in the mouth, the second to clamp the mask, and then fasten the mask.

While it is on, one breathes through the mouth. There is a little perforated can connected with the mouth-piece, which purifies the air.

Although it was these fellows who won the war, they did not know of their victory until long after their keep in the United States were informed. —Ernest Best, '35.

Details of the program, consisting of entertainment, refreshments and dancing, have not yet been determined. Miss Todd and Miss Low are in charge of the affair. —Margaret Sullivan, '35.

IF

If there were elevators in the M. H. S. Wouldn't passing times prove a treat? If teachers always carried a smile Wouldn't school life be worth while?

If seasons were held only half a day, Wouldn't the world seem jolly and gay?

If homework were quite out of style, Wouldn't all our faces contain a smile?

If every student made the honor roll Wouldn't there be any use of going to school?

If teachers had A's and B's to spare Wouldn't C's, M's and D's become rare?

If we were all to have our own way, Would the town of Manchester be willing to pay? —Oliver Skrabac, '35.

WOODS IN AUTUMN

In and out, round about, We find the winding trail; O who would like to follow me; Nature will never fail!

PRAYERS

Prayers have been in the air— They had a reason to be there. For term tests at last arrived— Now wonder of those we survived. —Walter Foster, '37.

Mr. Bailey, principal of Franklin building, called a meeting of the attendance committee, Thursday, at 9:45. The meeting was held in the lunch room. "It is important that the attendance be taken correctly. Any boy or girl who comes in after the first bell is late and must get a tardy slip from the office." Spirito Vesco.

NOTED AUTHOR LOCAL VISITOR

Talbot Mundy Is Interviewed By High School World Reporter.

A distinguished visitor has been in Manchester this week. He is Talbot Mundy, Kipling's nearest rival and one of the most popular writers of adventure stories in his era. Mr. Mundy has recently returned to America from an eighteen-month tour of Europe.

Mr. Mundy has written as many as thirty novels and hundreds of short stories during the past twenty years. Two of his best known novels are: "King of the Khyber Rifles" and "Om" his own favorite. "People seem to like adventure stories, and I like to write from a philosophical angle, so 'bootleg' my philosophy into tales of murder and intrigue in which the same way as when I was a boy my nurse used to bootleg the Gregory powder with a spoonful of jam," said the novelist.

At least two of Mr. Mundy's novels have been used for moving pictures. He says that the only thing he likes about this is the money he receives from royalties. It reminds him very much of a parent being present at the autopsy of its only child to see a picture made of a book, he says.

In a few months, "Full Moon," a serial just completed by Talbot Mundy, will appear in the Sunday American. At the present time he is working on "Winter Take All."

Born and reared in England, Mr. Mundy received the usual conservative type of English education. While still a young fellow, he left England and "wandered here and there over the world, doing nothing special, but having a wonderful time enjoying life as I found it. I rode over India from north to south and from east to west. I've walked Africa from one end to the other."

In his early thirties, Mr. Mundy's wanderings brought him to America, where he made the acquaintance of a young Irish-American reporter. The reporter, a member of the staff of a New York paper, realizing in Mundy a rare gift for telling stories, decided that he could write them. Taking Mundy to his New York apartment, he set the story-teller to work at writing. After several attempts, Mr. Mundy finally composed a story that met with the reporter's approval. It was published with great success. This began Mr. Mundy's career as an author.

In speaking about his work, Mr. Mundy said, "I am a pacifist and yet I believe that war brings out some of the highest human qualities in the same way that evil brings them out."

Mr. Mundy has lived in several states in America, among them Connecticut, California, New York, Maine and Colorado, besides traveling extensively over the entire world. Of America, he says, "I love the nicest country in the world." He goes on to say, "This country goes to the extremes. It is the silliest, the wisest, the bravest, the most cowardly, the most generous, the meanest, the dullest, the most amusing, the most conservative and the most radical country in the world. I love it! It has all the faults and virtues of all the other countries in the world, but it also has something else of its own which is quite unique. I wouldn't swap my citizenship papers for a front seat in Heaven." —Bernice Livingston, '35.

CONNOR DEFENDS ROAD 'INFORMING' COMMISSIONER, WITH HIGHWAY CHIEF, SPEAKER AS HERALD IS HOST TO A. P.

About thirty editors and publishers of Connecticut daily newspapers that are members of the Associated Press gathered at the Country Club yesterday noon as guests of the Manchester Evening Herald, the occasion being the quarterly meeting of state editors.

Guest speakers were State Highway Commissioner John A. MacDonald and State Motor Vehicle Commissioner Michael A. Conner. The addresses of both officials had to do with the dissemination of the large volume of news originating in their respective departments.

Not "Snooping" Some newspapers, the commissioner said, had referred to such activities as "snooping." "You wouldn't call it snooping for a citizen to call up the police if he saw somebody breaking into his neighbors' house, would you?" he inquired; then pointed out that according to statistics more than 120 persons were quite certain to be killed in this state by automobiles before the end of the year.

The luncheon and the succeeding business meeting was presided over by James L. McGovern, editor of the Bridgeport Times-Star, president of the state association.

DISABLED VETS TO SELL FORGET-ME-NOTS IN TOWN

Street Sale To Be Conducted From November 1 To 11 For Benefit Of The Incapacitated

Manchester Chapter, No. 17, Disabled Veterans of the World War, have completed plans for the annual street sale of the forget-me-not, the official flower of the D. A. V., which is to be held in town November 1 to 11.

While this sale is new in Manchester, it is a regular custom throughout the country. In every state, city and town these little flowers will be offered for sale by an organization made up entirely of veterans of the World War, who were either wounded, gassed or injured in service.

Letters of endorsements have been received by Department Commander J. J. Mulligan from the department commanders of the American Legion, and the V. F. W., who have also offered their assistance to help make the drive a success.

It is hoped that Manchester persons will respond as generously as possible, knowing that thousands of disabled men have lost their compensation through passage of the economy bill.

Though the sale of the flowers of the D. A. V. can aid these men to maintain their rehabilitation service, which has been a blessing to many men from this and other towns, President Roosevelt recently endorsed the street sale of the forget-me-not in a letter to the organization's national commander.

ASK FOR $1,500,000 IN HEART BALM SUIT

New York, Oct. 25.—(AP)—The praecipe of a suit for $1,500,000 filed against Harold Fowler McCormick, wealthy Chicagoan, by Mrs. Rhoda Tanner Doubleday, of New York, will be followed shortly by a declaration charging breach of promise.

The praecipe is a formal notice of intention to seek damages and contains no allegations. It was filed in the State Circuit Court at Chicago yesterday.

Mr. Doubleday would charge, Utharth said, that McCormick made a verbal marriage proposal to her. The declaration would set forth, Utharth said, that after McCormick underwent a minor operation at Johns Hopkins hospital in Baltimore his ardor cooled and he wrote Mrs. Doubleday a letter saying they would not be married.

COAL TRUCKS STOPPED BY ALLEGED STRIKERS

Three Men Hold Up Vehicles And Drive Them Into Sand Bank Near Love Lane.

The strike of truck drivers, which again has been called, resulted today in alleged striking truck drivers attempting to stop trucks here and to run them into side streets or returning them to Hartford.

Three young men in a coupe were on Main street this morning. Shortly after 8 o'clock word reached the local police station that two trucks owned by Sullivan and Hayes, coal dealers in Burnside, had been stopped at Love Lane and run into the sand bank on West Middle turnpike.

Motocycle Policeman Griffin was detailed to investigate and found the trucks that had been stopped. He learned that the trucks had been held up by three men riding in a closed car. The drivers of the coal truck were ordered to pull into the side road. They had heard the noise of the motorcycle and had made a get-away, so no arrests were made. The trucks were then able to proceed without further trouble.

NOTED HORSEMAN KILLED BY AUTO IN BRIDGEPORT

James Mulligan Struck By Car As He Crossed Street, Was 69 Years Old.

Bridgeport, Oct. 25.—(AP)—James Mulligan, 69, former merchant who was fatally hurt last night when struck by car driven by Robert Hunter, was well known during his active life as a horseman. He had owned a number of fast horses, particularly runners.

Mulligan was crossing North avenue in a heavy downpour of rain and had an umbrella close to his head. Hunter told police the form of a man suddenly loomed up, he put on brakes and sounded his horn, but could not avoid the collision. Mulligan was taken to the Emergency hospital in an ambulance and died shortly after admission.

The deceased leaves two sons, 15 daughter, two sisters and a brother, all but the last named being residents here. The wife of his son Thomas is a daughter of James L. McGovern, managing editor of the Bridgeport Times-Star and almost at the same moment her father-in-law died, she became mother of a son.

Forgotten Sweetheart

By MARY RAYMOND

BEGIN HERE TODAY
JOAN WARING, pretty Memphis girl, and BOB WESTON, son of a New York millionaire, meet and fall in love. The romance progresses rapidly until they are invited to a house party. Then, through the scheming of BARBARA COUENEY, who is trying to win Bob, Joan and Bob become estranged.

Meanwhile PAT WARING, Joan's younger sister, is in an automobile accident and JERRY ROBERTS, her escort, is killed. It becomes known that they were returning from a night club and that Jerry had been drinking. Bob's father reads about the accident and asks his son to give up Joan.

Pat runs away to New York. Joan follows, searching for her sister and also for a job to enable her to remain in New York. She is engaged as a masked singer at a night club owned by BARNEY BLAKE, who proves a steadfast friend.

Pat is discharged from the wholesale house where she worked as a model, and she looks for another job without success. Joan makes her first appearance as a cabaret singer and is a big success.

NWO GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXIV

There was a ripple of approval and then silence as Joan's clear, lovely voice lifted in an old sea chanty. The young figure swayed across the platform in imitation of a veteran tar. At the end of her song, applause rocked the place, rolling thunderously back to the dressing quarters. Barney hurried to meet Joan.

"Atta girl!" he cried. "You're putting it across. Now hurry into that gypsy outfit. Joan flew to her room, returning in a moment. The applause was still continuing—a jaded public's reaction to beauty and the unusual.

Joan, in her yellow and scarlet costume, with her cloudy hair about her shoulders, received another ovation.

"No more songs, Joan. We'll make 'em beg!"

"They did beg. And finally Joan sang an encore. A hauntingly sweet gypsy love song, in contrast to the gay, provocative song before.

Other performers crowded around to congratulate her. Bea gave her an impulsive hug, whispering, "How does it feel to be a big hit?" Barney had patted her hands, a light of approval in his eyes.

All of it seemed unreal to Joan. An hour before she had been Joan Waring, struggling for composure, standing on the verge of an adventure. Now she was on an equal footing with the cabaret singers. "Celebrate," Joan said to herself. The transition had been made with a costume, expert make-up and a little black mask.

Barney was laughing exultantly. "You made them sit up, didn't you? Little singer of songs and love. Must have been a singer who loved the sea among your ancestors and a gypsy lass who lured men with her grace and sweet singing. Maggie, my dear, I am a rank materialist, proposing to commercialize it. They had a midnight supper to celebrate." On the way to Joan's hotel Barney told her she would be advertised now as "the mystery woman," and the "girl with the mask." And then watch her fan mail grow!

He looked about the unpretentious hotel lobby, frowning a little. Then grinned. "Who ever heard of a cabaret singer in a place like this?" he asked.

"I like it," Joan said. "It's quiet. I can think here."

"Who ever heard of a cabaret singer thinking?" Barney retorted. Joan laughed at him.

As Barney had foreseen, the masked ideas handled differently. She was enthusiastically received by night club patrons. No detail was overlooked. Discriminating selection of Joan's songs, her costumes, all played a part. And then there was her lovely voice.

A gossip columnist started the rumor that the masked cabaret singer was from the Orient, declaring there was certainly something oriental in her slender hands and the wistful melancholy quality in her voice.

Barney was shrewdly capitalizing such speculation. Reports, carefully circulated, were heard that the mask hid a scarred face, the result of an accident. There were other reports that the singer was a member of an impoverished family of Russia, earning a living with her wonderful voice, yet proudly withholding her identity.

A youthful fan had written to Joan, "I hear you drive an especially built, imported car. Is that true? And do you drink only champagne, wear your dresses once and bathe in a marble pool?"

"Tell her 'yes,'" Barney laughed. "And add that your Kefingese has real diamonds in his collar and a special chef cooks his food."

"She'd be surprised to know how little it costs me to live," Joan said.

They were having dinner together again. Barney leaned across the table. "Joan," he said, "I want to talk to you about that place where you're living. I think you should move."

Joan wouldn't hear to it, she said. She was comfortable. Why should she move? She explained about Benny then. He was improving steadily under a specialist's care. The generous salary Barney was paying her had made this possible.

Barney told her then about his stepmother. She had been sharing an apartment on Park Avenue with him, but he found it necessary to move to a hotel near the opera. It was more convenient and practicable to be near his business. He had been taking his brain, wondering what he would do about his mother. She didn't like her life.

"It would be doing me a tremendous favor, Joan. If you'd go there to stay, she's quite a darling and has been like my own mother to me. I don't know of anybody I'd rather have with her than you."

Barney finally won. He explained that Joan could apply what she spent on the rental. She must remember, too, that it would save him what otherwise must be spent for a paid companion. He brought his mother to see Joan and her cordiality and enthusiasm regarding the plan helped Barney overcome Joan's objections.

Kate came over to see Joan in her magnificent new setting. "Aren't you the luckiest girl in the world?" she breathed. "Imagine living on Park avenue! Say, child, you are certainly coming up in the world. The old lady would probably cramp my style, but you don't have late dates with the boy friend or say things that aren't in old Mr. Webster's word book. It's just a lucky break for you!"

Kate was impressed by the arrangement of the elaborate suite of rooms which provided two living rooms.

"Isn't this hot!" she exclaimed. "Almost like having your own apartment—private sitting room and private bath."

"His mother wanted her quarters entirely separate. She entertains a lot," Joan explained. "Yet it's all one big apartment."

"Just swell, if you ask me," said Kate, taking in the rich surroundings. "And the answer to a modicum of marriage for husbands who object to meeting their wives three times a day at the table. Joan, do you know you are lucky."

"Of course."

"Not everybody has such breaks!" Kate said thoughtfully. "I know a girl here in New York who came to 'make good' in the big city and got a tough deal if anyone ever did. She was a model."

"A model?" said Joan. Whenever she heard the word she thought of Pat and something tightened about her heart.

"A little blond blizzard who worked in a wholesale house and was taking the place by storm. Jane Johnson, a model I've known for years, told me about her. I think she came from the south, too."

"Go on," said Joan, trying to control her voice.

"Well, it seems this girl had a way with men. Just naturally good-looking and wearing her clothes like anybody's business. One of the firm's best buyers, a prize peat according to Jane, saw this girl and almost had apoplexy. The manager had to fix up a date to cure him. He took the girl out, but no sooner had they reached the place than the girl threw his soup back at him, you might say, and faded out of the picture."

Kate stopped, her eyes on Joan's white, intent face.

"Please go on," said Joan. "What happened then?"

"Oh, the girl was fired, of course. You see the buyer was a big shot and he cancelled his order. The kid started hunting for another job. Plenty of pluck, but poor head—and little of it, I guess—and tramping around in all kinds of weather. Well, she got pneumonia. Jane was over last night with a girl who used to stay with this kid. They said the landlady and a doctor were doing all they could, but Jane didn't think they could do much.

Since we going in for a different line.

"Kate!" Joan cried. "Hurry! Get that place over the phone and ask your friend for the address. Wait—first let me use the phone!"

She called Barney. "Oh, Barney," she said, "can you come? Kate has just told me about a model, a girl from the south, who's very ill. Oh, Barney, you'll hurry!"

Barney's reassuring voice came back. "I'm leaving at once. But remember, Joan, there are thousands of models in New York and lots of them from the south."

"I know that, Barney, but I'm so frightened."

"Kate, amazement in her eyes, picked up the telephone and called Jane. "That sick girl you told me about—where's she staying? A friend of mine is going out to see her."

She repeated the address carefully. Joan, hat on, scribbled it down and flew from the room on her way down to meet Barney. She had not thought to ask Kate to find out the model's name.

It was foolish to feel so frightened. There was not a chance in a hundred that the little blond blizzard might be Pat.

Health and Diet Advice

TREATMENTS FOR HEMORRHOIDS

To secure the best results in overcoming hemorrhoids, the first step of the treatment is to correct constipation. I would suggest that you try a short fruit fast of five days, using the whole fruit such as apples, grapes, or oranges. The fast is always of value in relieving a condition of inflammation or congestion, and is of particular value in restoring the intestine to a normal, clear state. In most cases, the hemorrhoids will disappear more quickly if the fast is used, than with any other method. The patient should take the whole fruit as it supplies bulk. I sometimes recommend the use of agar agar with this fruit fast, as have the patient take a teaspoonful of the granulated form several times daily. This gives an abundance of non-irritating bulk which gives the intestine material to aid in the elimination of accumulated toxic material from the colon.

When you have succeeded in overcoming constipation you will find the following local treatment with ice effective in reducing the swollen veins. I have never found any method of treatment for local reduction of hemorrhoids which is superior to the application of ice. In using this treatment, you are first to apply vaseline. Then gently break off a small piece of ice, which is to be pushed gently into the interior of the large intestine. The ice is to be retained for four to five minutes. This treatment will shrink the enlarged veins and also improve the tone of the muscles of the surrounding region. Use the vaseline again after the ice treatment.

When the hemorrhoids protrude, the best method of retreating them is to anoint well with vaseline; then manipulate them carefully in such a way that they are returned within the intestine. In case you have difficulty in replacing the hemorrhoid, you will find that by relaxing in a hot bath for a few minutes, this will become more easy to accomplish. When there is local soreness or tenderness, the best way to reduce the discomfort is to use hot applications. You may do this by wringing a towel out of water as warm as may be borne. The folded towel is then gently laid over the affected region. Occasionally, a patient will find that the application of extremely cold packs will bring more relief. The hot Sitzs bath taken with the patient immersing the hips in warm water, may also be used to make the patient more comfortable.

The regular evacuation of intestinal residue must not be neglected for even a single day when hemorrhoids are present. If the movements do not occur normally, then it is advisable to use the enema, anointing the rubber tip generously with vaseline.

Exercises to overcome the propped condition of the pelvic organs are also of value, both for relieving the local pressure and for improving the circulation and drainage of the engorged veins. In many cases, the patient will find that by manipulative treatments and also Morse Wave treatments, in addition to the special exercises, he will recover more rapidly.

I have had many patients who used the simple treatment which I am outlining for you and who have found the distressing symptoms of piles banished completely by this method. At the same time they were able to note that they had been cured entirely of the disease.

EYES CHANGE IN VISION AT MIDDLE AGE

Investigators Find Natural Tendency for Aging Persons Is To See Well Only at Greater Distances

By DR. MORRIS FISHER, Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

When you find you can see better at a distance than close by, and the type in the telephone directory seems to be smaller than ever, it's a sign that middle age has crept up on you.

For investigators have found that the eyes reveal the first tendencies of the passing years. Women begin to complain of greater difficulty in threading needles, and bookkeepers find figures blurring before their eyes along toward evening.

Presbyopia is the scientific term for this natural weakening of the sight. The term is derived from two words meaning "old man" and "sight". The condition is not a disease, but it represents a gradual change in human tissues which comes on with increasing age.

Your body is a living organism which passes through a definite cycle, and all the cells of the body pass through their own individual cycles.

The tendency of the human organism is to live some 70 years. But the tendency of various cells in different parts of the body is to replace themselves at certain intervals which is so often present in this trouble.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS (Cereal Combinations)

Question: Mrs. Alyce B. asks: "Are cereals with fresh fruit a good combination?"

Answer: Cereals should never be combined with acid fruits. However, a glass of orange juice taken about an hour before a cereal breakfast is all right, as this fruit juice leaves the stomach almost entirely within that time.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

AVOID EYE STRAIN

For your health's sake as well as for your beauty, plan to take better care of your eyes this winter.

Everyone needs a good eye lotion and an eyecup in which to use it. Get yourself into the habit of bathing your eyes twice a day and see how much better they feel and how much clearer they look. There are any number of eye lotions on the market, or, if you prefer, a weak solution of boric acid will serve the purpose.

The skin around your eyes has a tendency to become dry and dryness is apt to cause wrinkles. The best thing to do is get a special eye cream and gently massage it in around your eyes about two nights a week. Always roll the cream so that the lower lids get their share of attention.

Massage should be extremely gentle. Take particular care not to injure the delicate tissues and defeat your purpose by causing them to smart.

Be sure not to get mascara or other makeup in your eyes. Close them while you are powdering your nose and forehead.

Never allow your eyes to become too tired or strained. It is better to put down your book or stop working for a few minutes than to ruin your sight. Try and sit with your back to a window while you read and see that your reading lamp has a good strong bulb. If you need glasses, by all means get them. They may not add to your beauty, but neither do strained, tired eyes, and many of the new glasses are by no means unattractive.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

There are three methods of cooking bacon on a gas range—pan broiling, broiling under the flame, and oven cooking. In all the methods there is one essential factor—cold bacon and cold cooking utensils.

To pan broil bacon, put the slices in a cold iron frying pan over a low heat and keep the fat below the smoking temperature during the whole cooking process. Turn slices frequently and drain off excess fat occasionally. Keeping the temperature low prevents the kitchen from becoming filled with the smoke and furthermore gives the bacon a mild, pleasant flavor.

When the slices are a light, even brown, thoroughly cooked and crisped, remove to a hot platter. It will take 12 to 15 minutes to cook bacon this way, depending on the thickness of the slices.

Use Low Fire

Straight broiling under a flame dispenses with the necessity of draining off the excess fat, since it naturally drops into the broiler and pan. Frequent turning is advisable. Put cold bacon on a cold broiler and place broiler about four inches below flame. Turn the flame as it would be needed for a moderately slow oven. Take care that the fat in the broiler pan does not become over-heated and smoke.

To cook bacon in the oven, place slices in a cold dripping pan and put in the center of the oven—top, bottom and sides. The oven should be hot. If a rack is not used in the dripping pan, turn the bacon often and drain off the fat as in pan broiling.

Before cooking in any of the ways mentioned, bacon can be dropped into boiling water and boiled for ten minutes. This is an excellent way to cook bacon that is not very thin sliced, since it insures thorough cooking without danger of over-cooking the fat.

Notice that in pan-broiling the bacon becomes transparent and then turns opaque. At this point it is not brown in the pan, but turns brown on removal from the fire. If cooked until actually brown in the frying pan it is usually over-cooked.

Sheffield cutlery factories are booming at the expense of Germany. Knives again!

KEEP FAMILY TOGETHER UNDER ONE ROOF

Do you remember that famous little book "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," the story of the family who lived across the tracks?

You will know how this famous widow in her little shanty contrived to keep her children and everybody around her happy and fed the occasional visitor by putting an extra tin of water in the potato soup.

I think we shall have to revive Mrs. Wiggs. There are too few of her kind today.

Widowed mother came to me for advice. She has four young children and a small income. It is hard for her to get along in the small town where she lives.

Her idea is to put the children in a school or home somewhere so she can go out to work.

There would be no work there, so that means she would have to move to the city where she might or might not get a position.

My answer was, "Keep your family together under one roof if it is humanly possible."

Certainly I appreciate the value of the institution. It fills a heaven-sent place and I should do without it. It is only that I have a certain feeling about home, real home, for little children, even though the soup is watered and the rugs are thin, that soars up and beyond the fence, although the latter may offer a hundred material advantages over the other.

There must be exceptions, of course. If a mother is ill or overworked and there is no means of assistance—if the child is actually undernourished and the surroundings impossible, I might advice the removal of the child to give both of them a change. But it would have to be a last resort. There is nothing (to my mind) that needs more weighing and deliberation than this matter of separating a child from his home.

My views on the Mothers Assistance Fund are well known. Not only that, but some day soon we shall enlarge on our system and have more state-appointed doctors so that medical attention will be possible for all such children free of charge to the poor mothers.

Situations with mothers are becoming discouraged with every one dining in their ears that the children need this and that—teeth straightened, regular medical examination, bone and tissue building foods and a certain regimen of living that is beyond their means to provide and control.

This is the cause, no doubt, of so many women willingly and even eagerly placing their little ones where they will be attended to. No mother wants to lose her children, and the wrong reasons are too often credited to these who do.

Mrs. Wiggs knew nothing of vitamin D, orthodontia, or ultra violet rays. But she had a vast philosophy and a capacity for happiness that reacted like a strong light on those about her, and on her children. The sun of her soul took the place of science and they did well.

With few exceptions there is nothing like home and mother. So content is too often discounted in this materialistic age. I repeat my work to my question, "If it is humanly possible, keep your children with you."

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

KEEP FAMILY TOGETHER UNDER ONE ROOF

Do you remember that famous little book "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," the story of the family who lived across the tracks?

You will know how this famous widow in her little shanty contrived to keep her children and everybody around her happy and fed the occasional visitor by putting an extra tin of water in the potato soup.

I think we shall have to revive Mrs. Wiggs. There are too few of her kind today.

Widowed mother came to me for advice. She has four young children and a small income. It is hard for her to get along in the small town where she lives.

Her idea is to put the children in a school or home somewhere so she can go out to work.

There would be no work there, so that means she would have to move to the city where she might or might not get a position.

My answer was, "Keep your family together under one roof if it is humanly possible."

Certainly I appreciate the value of the institution. It fills a heaven-sent place and I should do without it. It is only that I have a certain feeling about home, real home, for little children, even though the soup is watered and the rugs are thin, that soars up and beyond the fence, although the latter may offer a hundred material advantages over the other.

There must be exceptions, of course. If a mother is ill or overworked and there is no means of assistance—if the child is actually undernourished and the surroundings impossible, I might advice the removal of the child to give both of them a change. But it would have to be a last resort. There is nothing (to my mind) that needs more weighing and deliberation than this matter of separating a child from his home.

My views on the Mothers Assistance Fund are well known. Not only that, but some day soon we shall enlarge on our system and have more state-appointed doctors so that medical attention will be possible for all such children free of charge to the poor mothers.

Situations with mothers are becoming discouraged with every one dining in their ears that the children need this and that—teeth straightened, regular medical examination, bone and tissue building foods and a certain regimen of living that is beyond their means to provide and control.

IN NEW YORK

By PAUL HARRISON

New York, Oct. 25.—It seems strange that folktales could flourish in New York, but flourish they do, with the aid of raconteurs and ladies' clubs and strangers falling into fellowship at speakeasy bars. Manhattan folk-tales, though never begin with, "Once upon a time," but start instead with, "A friend of mine and the most amazing experience last night—"

These stories, you see, are always kept up to date, and consequently have come to involve a lot of people. For example, almost anyone you meet these days knows someone whose cousin's uncle was the employer of the girl who figured in the corpse-in-the-subway incident. The popularity accepted version of this tale is that the girl had worked until after midnight getting out a lot of correspondence, and finally started home, huddled alone in one car of an almost-empty Brooklyn express, when three men entered. Two evil-looking, burly fellows supporting between them a third who seemed completely stupefied from liquor. At least, that was the impression given after the trio had lurched onto the seat opposite the girl. Each of the guardians kept an arm about the stupefied one some coarse joke about his condition. Meanwhile, too, they intently stared at the girl, and she grew very uneasy. The man in the middle seemed to be watching her too, through half-open, expressionless eyes.

Pretty soon the train stopped at a station and an elderly gentleman came into the car. He looked at the three men, then rose as if to leave and managed to lurch almost into the girl's lap as the train rounded a curve. "Follow me out of here," he commanded in a low voice. She followed, and they left the train at the next station. "I'm a physician," said the elderly man. "I noticed

THE MUSHROOM MYSTERY

Then there's the poison-mushroom story. People are always popping up to declare that a friend of their next-door neighbor knows a woman who actually attended that unhappy dinner party. Shortly before the guests arrived, the cook is supposed to have mentioned to her mistress that the mushrooms hadn't looked very fresh, but that she'd tried some on the dog and guessed they were all right. The dinner went off happily enough—until the maid came with a tray of dessert and whispered to the hostess that the dog had just died.

She screamed, rushed to a telephone, and began calling doctors and ambulances. By the time these arrived with stomach pumps the guests were rather pale and the girls. Some were stretched out on the floor, and one woman had dispatched a frenzied wire to her husband in St. Louis. Before going to work, though, one of the doctors decided to have a look at the dog. Pretty soon he returned and looked wretchedly at the pale-stricken company. "Madam," he announced, addressing the hostess, "your dog was run over by a truck."

LETTING CAT OUT OF BAG

Another of the current folktales concerns a ferry-boat commander and a dead cat. The cat decided to wrap the remains into an inconspicuous brown paper bundle which could be dropped from the ferry on his way to the office.

As he nervously lattered near the rail of the ferry, though, it seemed that someone always was watching him. He decided to take the package to the office and try again that evening. But he met some friends on the next boat, so he carried the cat back home, determined to succeed next morning. He didn't succeed, however, and that evening it was the same. Desperate he decided just to "save the package on the boat. But he was scarcely over the gangplank before a kindly guard rushed after him and restored the carrier cat.

Or was it the cat? The parcel felt as if it were different somehow. Could it be that? Fearfully, the man tore open a corner, peeped inside and giggled so hysterically that people stared at him curiously. This package contained a leg of lamb.

"MYSTERY SHIP" CAUSED CRUISER-TANKER CRASH

nal injuries and compound fractures of both legs.

The crushed body of Lieutenant Harold A. MacFarlane, U. S. N., of Haverhill, Mass., was found as the ship entered this port, 12 hours later. His stateroom had been obliterated. Describer Collision.

Machinist Joseph A. Oehlert, U. S. N., of Camden, N. J., was found in the wreckage of a passageway, an arm fractured and a hand mashed so badly the arm was amputated just below the elbow.

Lieutenant W. E. Penneville gave a graphic description of the collision as he felt it while hurrying from his stateroom to answer "collision call."

"I leaned backwards to glance out of the port, grabbing the door at the same time," he said. "I saw nothing but water but a moment later there was a terrific crash. My stateroom opened and there not four feet away came the bow of the Silverspin with her anchor hanging over me. Fortunately for me she struck the gun turret above and that stopped her. Fortunately also I wasted a moment in glancing through the port hole or I would have been outside in the passageway and would have been crushed."

Electrician L. G. Glard said: "I too headed for the door when I heard the call. As I got it open the ship struck, throwing my locker against me and knocking me into the passageway. It was all water out there, but I didn't wait for it to carry me up the stairs. I climbed up the hatch faster than any water could rise."

The Chicago, new $9,000,000 flagship of the scouting force of the battle fleet, was coming from San Pedro to San Francisco at the time of the collision.

GERMANS REFUSE TO ATTEND PARLEY

Say They Have No Time To Be At Hearing On Nazi Propaganda.

New York, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Representatives of the United German Societies of New York City, who have been ordered to cancel a German Day celebration next Sunday because of reputed Nazi auspices, informed Mayor John P. O'Brien today they did not have time to attend a hearing on the matter this afternoon at City Hall.

The mayor was informed of their attitude in a letter signed by Dr. Wilhelm Popcke, honorary president of the U. G. S.

A spokesman said the message had been formulated at an all night session of delegates who yesterday afternoon met with the mayor in protest against his order.

Among them were Heinz Spanknoebel, reputed Nazi chief in the United States, whose deportation as an undesirable alien is being sought in Washington by Representative Dickstein, House immigration chairman.

It was said the German American representatives held up until an answer was received from Mayor O'Brien any final decision on cancellation of the Sunday celebration.

"We cannot comply with your directions, not sufficient time having been given us," the delegation wrote.

Referring to Mayor O'Brien's order that "every alien" attending the U. G. S. meeting Monday night, at which dissemination rose to fever pitch, be present this afternoon as the sole condition for the hearing, the letter said:

"We regret exceedingly that you placed such a limitation on the meeting today.

"First, the United German societies is not composed solely of aliens. Good, loyal American citizens to the extent of 90 per cent are members of the same.

"Secondly, it is impossible to bring before you every alien who attended last night's meeting. Insufficient notice has been given us, therefore, if it is your wish to bring delegates of the German speaking organizations before you, we shall gladly do so at a time and place to be mentioned by you, provided you will grant us sufficient time."

"But it will be too late for the German Day which must be held next Sunday."

The letter said principal speakers at the proposed gathering included Spanknoebel, the German ambassador and Theodore Hoffmann—"we cannot withdraw them."

It continued by saying that if the mayor compelled them to appear today, "we would be compelled to forgo much of our American pride."

"We feel that your invitation to all opponents of the German Day celebration would result in an unpleasant situation for the city.

"You would surely not permit anyone to attack or to question our loyalty to the United States. As a result of which you would be compelled to take a determined stand and thereby possibly offend a few fanatic."

The spokesman, Dirk Goss, emphasized the decision was reached by a delegation composed "almost entirely" of German Americans and "not belonging to any so-called Nazi groups."

MOTOR INDUSTRY REPORTS UPSWING

General Motors Corp. Discloses Substantial Earnings During Last Quarter.

New York, Oct. 25.—(AP)—The recent substantial recovery of the automobile industry was shown by the earnings statement of General Motors Corp., issued today, which disclosed that the company, in the quarter ended Sept. 30, had net earnings of $83,841,618, equivalent to 72 cents a common share, compared with loss in the 1932 quarter of $4,484,229.

Net earnings for the first nine months, of 1938 totaled $81,409,794, or $1.73 a common share. In the same period last year net earnings amounted to $10,955,175, equal to 8 cents per share on the common stock. The earnings reported did not reflect provision for losses on cash balances in closed banks, it being explained that the extent of these losses was not determinable at this time. Cash balances in closed banks at the end of the third quarter amounted to $13,108,121.

The corporation, as of Sept. 30, had cash, U. S. Government and other marketable securities totaling $232,568,172 (excluding cash balances in closed banks) compared with $178,760,695 at the beginning of the year. The cash and cash investment accounted was increased $53,807,476 in the third quarter. The item was increased $64,777,077 in the second quarter.

Working Capital Net working capital, at the end of the nine months, excluding cash in closed banks, stood at $285,292,313. This compared with $225,487,194 on Dec. 31, last, and $240,411,639 on Sept. 30, last year. The total improvement in working capital during the nine months amounted to $59,855,115.

The company's net sales, excluding inter-division transactions, in the third quarter amounted to $178,967,032, as against $74,976,664 in the 1932 period. For the nine months net sales totaled $490,921,509 as compared with $371,374,359 in the corresponding months last year.

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of the corporation, said that "notwithstanding the substantial operations of the past three and three-quarter years of the depression period, and the payment of dividends in excess of earnings by approximately $58,000,000 during that period, cash and cash investments as of Sept. 30, 1938, were greater by $108,314,652 than the corresponding items as of Dec. 31, 1932, and working capital likewise by $34,004,831."

Mr. Sloan said improvement in the corporation's business during the third quarter was at a somewhat declining rate.

"It is unreasonable to expect," he added, "other than a curtailment during the balance of the year in accordance with the usual seasonal falling off in retail sales, as well as by the yearly readjustment of models affecting manufacturing schedules, the latter always having an important influence on the corporation's operations for the four quarters, and this year will form no exception."

MANKIND'S CRADLE THOUGHT IN RUSSIA

of years ago, today hold of what he hopes to find somewhere in the Soviet Union's Asiatic territory.

It's a huge job, he said, and thus far only the expeditions have been nibbled. His expedition into the Gobi Desert amounted merely to casual peeps into what he considers humanity's cradle.

Story of the Rocks North of Mongolia and into Siberia, east and into Russian Turkestan, may be buried some chapters of the story of the rocks.

Dr. Andrews has made no immediate plans for a scientific foray into this region, largely because of the retrenchment program under which the American Museum of Natural History is operating. But he is not without hope.

The big reptiles, the mammals that followed them, finally man, followed definite paths of migration, one west and south to Europe, the other up through what is now Siberia and into North America.

Dr. Andrews, who is gratified to learn how willing they were to assist in any work might undertake there. They have a keen interest in science, both pure and applied.

He explained Asiatic Russia's importance in the search for prehistoric knowledge.

Many things began there, it is his history; then they moved out, the mammals that followed them, finally man, followed definite paths of migration, one west and south to Europe, the other up through what is now Siberia and into North America.

SENSE and NONSENSE

The country never seems prosperous to the man who is out of a job.

No matter how little a man knows about the style or fit of feminine clothes he's sure he's capable of telling all of the women just what they ought to wear.

Maybe the reason the younger generation feels so superior is because it has a chance to operate a lot of fool-proof machinery that the older generation invented.

The following amusing incident happened recently here in Manchester. We are substituting names for the sake of (our) safety.

Little Betty (returning from school)—Johnny Wilson's examination papers were so good that the teacher keeps them on her desk to show visitors.

Her Mother—But why aren't yours as good as Johnny's. You have the same opportunities.

Little Betty—I know, mother, but Johnny Wilson comes from a very bright family.

A pastor wisely says: "Shortened hours offer a fine opportunity for improvement, but there is a very grave danger in people's using leisure for their own destruction."

Wealthy Contractor—When I started in life, young man, I worked 12 hours a day.

Young Man—Yes, but in 12 these repaid times anyone who took 12 hours to do a day's work would get fired.

As an example of a rabbit's foot bringing good luck a man reports that his wife felt one in his pocket and thought it was a mouse.

Man—Have you heard that queer story about Williams?

Friend—No, I haven't.

Man—But it happened right in your neighborhood.

Friend—Perhaps, but my wife's been away for a month.

What every family needs: More Money!

A certain man whom we shall call Mr. Jones to prevent embarrassment, was at a dinner party. He was rather shy and could never summon up courage to speak because of his inability to say anything neat and really appropriate. All the evening he had been trying to think of something nice to say to his hostess. At last he thought he saw his chance.

Charming Hostess (with a smile)—What a small appetite you have, Mr. Jones.

Mr. Jones (gallantly)—To sit next to you, would cause any man to lose his appetite.

Rising to the heights of happiness and then falling to the depths of despair won't get a fellow any jack from the workmen's compensation.

Our Education Progresses
Do you recall when it was wrong even to mention pants?

But such bad social breaks were long before the days of "scanties."

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

The Japanese "oban" is the largest coin in the world; it measures five inches across and weighs about four ounces.

Randolph Pinder, 15, has not missed a class at Sunday school since he enrolled at the age of three at West Palm Beach, Fla.

Thirty acres of sea island cotton on the government's experiment station farm near Charleston, S. C., will produce more than 5,000 pounds.

Melvin G. Owens, 28, swam Albatross sound off the North Carolina coast in 11 hours, 40 minutes. He was the first to do so.
