TRUCKMEN'S STRIKE HAS BEEN SETTLED

But Differences Between Operators and Drivers Still Remain—Egan Says Walkout Unnecessary.

New Haven, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Trucks rolled freely over the highways of Connecticut again today after the second drivers' strike within a month, but differences between the drivers and truck line operators still clouded the horizon.

The Eastern Motor Freight conference accused the union leaders of bad faith in calling the second strike, claimed the strike had been "broken," but asserted "the strike germ still remains."

Frank E. Crowther, business agent for the drivers' union, claimed the strike was still in effect against all but the 28 companies in the Eastern Conference, which had arbitrated the matter through the Connecticut NRA board.

And John J. Egan, secretary of the State Federation of Labor, asserted:

"Events of yesterday afternoon and last night prove conclusively that the second strike of the truck drivers was absolutely unnecessary and that they must go back to work."

SARRAUT NAMED PREMIER; PICKS A NEW CABINET

French Senator Accepts Post—Several Old Ministers Keep Old Position—The Tentative List.

Paris, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Senator Albert Sarraut definitely decided today to become premier of France and a short time later a probable Cabinet was semi-officially announced, showing several old ministers in their old posts.

Three former ministers were retained, but were shifted to different portfolios.

Unofficially the Cabinet was said to line up this way, with the ministers' former posts listed:

Premier and Minister of Foreign Affairs—M. Sarraut (Marine).
War—Edouard Daladier (Former Premier).
Justice—Joseph Paul Boncour (Foreign Affairs).
Marine—Louis Barthou or Anatole de Monzie.
Interior—Camille Chautemps (Same Post).
Finance—Georges Bonnet (Same Post).
Budget—Francis Pietri or Maurice Palmade.
Agriculture—Henri Queuille (Same Post).
Commerce—De Monzie or Barthou.
Posts and Telegraphs—M. Laurent-Eynac (Same Post).
Public Works—Joseph Paganon (Same Post).
Labor—Albert Dalimier (Colonies).
Education—Yvon Delbos.
Colonies—Marcel Regnier.
Aéronautique—Pierre Cot (Same Post).
Merchant Marine—Eugene Prot (Same Post).
Pensions—Hippolyte Ducos.
Health—Laurent Bonnevay.
If M. Sarraut succeeds in listing

FORD'S BID LOWEST ON U. S. CONTRACT

Agricultural Dept. Must Now Decide His Status as Non-Member of NRA.

Washington, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Henry Ford's status as a non-member of the NRA in selling to the government is expected to be determined in the early award of a contract for new trucks for the Civilian Conservation Corps.

The Agricultural Department, which has jurisdiction over purchases, said no determination of Ford's eligibility to bid had been made.

The low bid has been submitted by a Washington Ford dealer.

Pertinent to whether a non-member of the NRA may be barred from competitive bidding for furnishing products to the government if he is complying with NRA requirements is President Roosevelt's executive order of August 10 that:

"Every contract entered into x x x shall provide and require that x x x the contractor shall comply with all provisions of the applicable approved code of fair competition for the trade or industry or subdivision thereof concerned x x x with-out regard to whether the contractor is himself a party to such a code or agreement."

Conn. Doctor Invents Latest Fracture Table

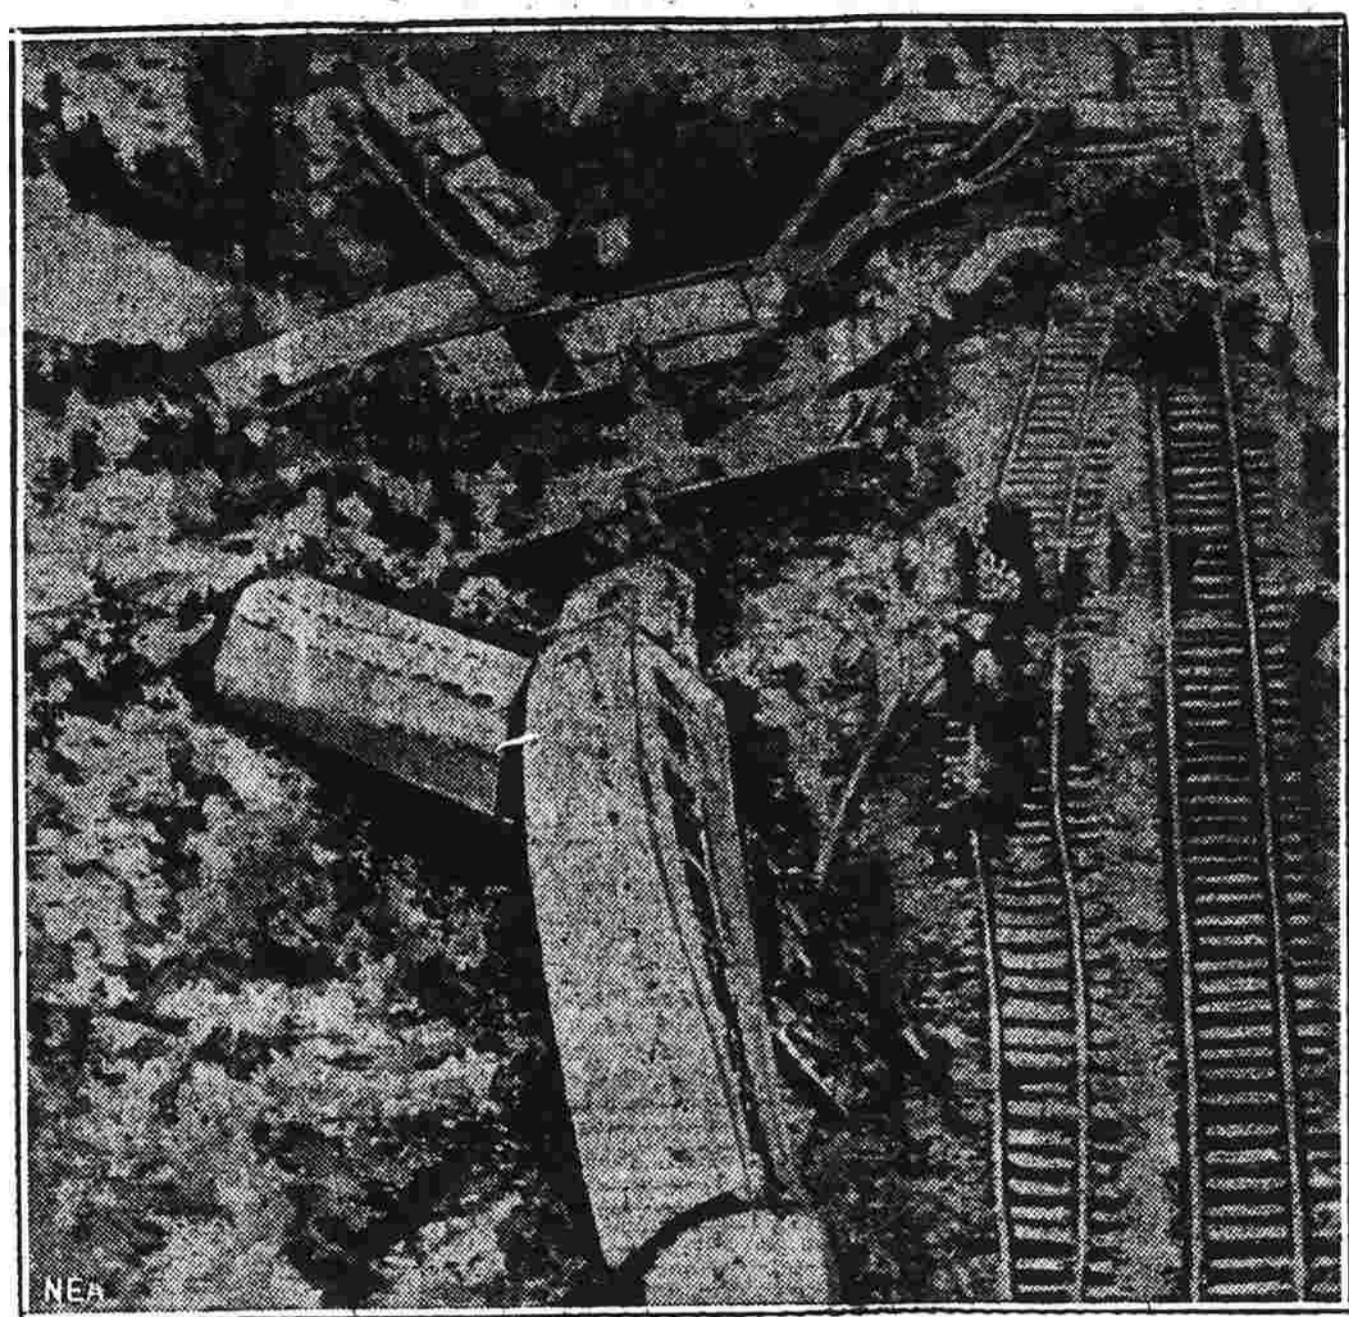

Colorado Springs, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Out of the boredom of a surgeon ordered to "do nothing for three years," there has come a new fracture table hailed by many physicians as the greatest boon to the treatment of fractures in twenty years.

Three years ago Dr. George W. Hawley of Bridgeport, Conn., noted orthopedist, contracted tuberculosis and was ordered to Colorado Springs to forget everything for three years.

"For two years he obeyed but a year ago this long rest pulled on him and he sought diversion."

Twenty years ago Dr. Hawley had invented a fracture table, the original of which is now in the Smithsonian Institution in Washington. It had been used by the

RUSSIAN RECOGNITION APPROVED BY McADOO

U. S. Senator, Just Returned from Soviet Union, Tells of His Impressions of That Country.

New York, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Saying that he saw no looters in Moscow, United States Senator William Gibbs McAdoo of California, returned from a short tour of Europe today and called the move of President Roosevelt to resume trade relations with Russia "very wise, indeed."

In an interview given while the steamship Conti di Savoia made its way from Quarantine to its dock, the Senator said "there was never any reason why recognition of Russia should have been withheld."

"In the first place," he said, "it simply means the establishment of diplomatic relations which are so necessary to intercourse to be carried on. It means the re-establishment of consular offices which are essential machinery for international trade."

"Russia is a large field for reciprocal trade. It is just the kind of trade we ought to have."

Recognized by Others
"France, England and Italy all have recognized Russia. It must be borne in mind that recognition does not mean approval of a form of government or of Russia's domestic institutions or of Russia's domestic affairs."

"From my observations I would say that Russia would be much pleased to have the United States recognition. They feel that their interests and our interests do not collide anywhere."

Senator McAdoo spent only a few days in Russia. He stated that his trip had any official connection, explaining "it was only a tourist."

"Of course, recognition is an essential part of a party to such a code or agreement."

JEWISH STUDENTS TO BE REGISTERED

Nazis Post Notices in All Colleges—12 More Professors Removed.

Berlin, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Jewish students will be required to obtain special permits to gain entrance to classes in German universities this year.

So they were informed today as plans went forward for the opening of most universities Nov. 1.

Read a notice on the Berlin University bulletin board:

"None-Aryan students are to assemble in the auditorium for the purpose of having their membership books stamped. Unless such stamps are procured none will be permitted to register for lectures."

If nation-wide agitation conducted by Nazi students is successful, the honorary degrees conferred by German universities during the days of the Republic from 1918 to 1932 will be re-examined and withdrawn in many cases.

Nazi at the Stuttgart Technical University presented such a petition to the president of the institution demanding immediate action.

Martin Borchmann, the Nazi governor of Saxony, removed twelve professors, including a number of Jews, from Leipzig University and Dresden Technical University.

The recent scores of Bernhard Rust, education minister, requiring candidates for professorships to participate in military training was published a year or so ago.

Dr. Hawley was in charge of the American Red Cross hospital in the city of Berlin.

CONNECTICUT YOUTH IS ARSON SUSPECT

Edward J. Pariton of Derby Accused of Setting Fire to Building.

Washington, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Final arguments were presented today in the arson trial of Edward J. Pariton of Derby, Conn., and H. Albert Smith of Humphreys, Mo., charged with setting fire to the Sigma Chi fraternity house at George Washington University July 9.

The case is expected to go to the jury this afternoon, with a possible verdict tonight. Smith was president of the chapter, and Pariton a member.

The state has presented testimony Pariton purchased 30 gallons of gasoline the day before the fire, and took it away from a filling station in a can which was subsequently found in the house. Pariton said gasoline had been spread about the steps and hallways on the upper floors.

Accounts Short
Another witness testified the fraternity accounts, handled by Smith as president of the chapter, showed a shortage of $109.

The two students offered testimony to show they were out of the city at the time the fire broke out. Smith testified they left Washington between 3:10 and 3:15 a. m., the morning of July 9, and that they sat broke down north of Baltimore between 4:30 and 5. The first alarm was turned in at 4:20.

Miss Helen E. Frier testified the pair had visited her at New Freedom, Pa., the day of the fire.

NRA TO GUARD BUYERS AS GOLD PRICES GO UP

Expert Sees Increase in the Retail Trade

New York, Oct. 26.—(AP)—No because of the code, the next two months would be a period of "intense retail activity."

"There will be rapid reorganization of operating methods," he said. "We shall see a period of highly aggressive merchandising."

He termed the code's prohibition of dishonest or misleading advertising its "most far-reaching and constructive fair trade practice rule."

"The code may not be, as some have enthusiastically asserted, the Magna Charta of retailing," Prof. Nystrom declared, "but it is still a notable document."

Provisions had been made for interpretations, additions, recommendations and amendments, he said, and the administrative setup facilitated additional progress towards elimination of unsound practices among retailers.

Escaped Prisoner Who Killed Guard, Reported Here; Scour Mansfield.

With the death last night of Merritt W. Hayden, Springfield jail guard, who was slugged over the head by two escaping prisoners Sunday, state police of Massachusetts said Connecticut today were intensifying their search for Alexander Russell, 23, of New Britain, the remaining prisoner who is at large, in the general vicinity of Mansfield and Coventry. Paul Wargo, 21, of Wallingford, the other prisoner, was captured near Springfield a few hours after his break for liberty.

Lieut. Russell, I. Harman, in charge of the State Police barracks at Stafford Springs, said today that his men were thoroughly combing known haunts of Kaminski in Mansfield and Coventry. Kaminski once lived in Tolland county and knows every inch of the terrain in that locality. He is reported to be heavily armed and, in view of this fact, police expect the man will put up a stiff battle in an effort to break through the police cordons.

Reported Seen Here
Hartford and state police received a report late last night that a passing hitch-hiker had seen a man resembling Kaminski on the highway on the eastern outskirts of Manchester. The hiker, Louis F. Bird, of Billings, Mont., who said he is a former western sheriff, said the youth accurately fitted Kaminski's description and wore a brown leather coat with sheepskin collar.

Bird talked to him on the road," he said. "He told me he was headed toward Providence, and he wanted to exchange his coat for my overcoat."

Lieut. Harman was inclined to believe, however, that the clue given by the hitch-hiker was a false one. Several of his men have been alerted to the state police, the lieutenant said, since news of Kaminski's escape became known.

Evidence of Whereabouts
Ample evidence that the escaped prisoner was in the vicinity of Coventry and Mansfield this week is in the possession of state police attached to the Stafford Springs barracks. A relentless investigation to uncover his whereabouts will be pushed until it becomes definitely known that he has left this section.

Three thefts occurring in Coventry, two in Mansfield and one in Columbia earlier in the week caused state police to feel convinced the jobs were the work of Kaminski. A

ATTEMPT ON LIFE OF CUBAN LEADER

Bomb Exploded in Front of Home, Wrecks It—No One Is Hurt.

Havana, Oct. 26.—(AP)—An attempt was made early today on the life of Carlos Menditea, veteran Nationalist leader, when his home was bombed.

Mrs. Menditea narrowly escaped injury when the balcony on which she had been standing but a few minutes earlier was ripped away by the explosion.

Menditea said he had "no idea" who was responsible for the attempt on his life.

The explosion which occurred about 7:30 a. m., shattered windows in his bedroom and tore away the front of his home, but Menditea, Mrs. Menditea and their daughter escaped injury.

Eastern Half of Country Suffers from Cold Wave

By Associated Press
The North American continent was marked today by the effects of a wintry blast that left behind it a trail of death.

Shipping was seriously handicapped by an autumn gale, that lashed the North Atlantic coast yesterday and last night, while lumbermen were swept to their doom by the swollen waters of the Salmon river, fourteen miles from St. Martins in St. John county, New Brunswick.

The cold belt extended from Canada down into Ohio over the eastern half of the United States. From six to 12 inches of snow clogged highways and paralyzed communication.

Heavy damage was reported by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company in Vermont where the first severe snow storm of the season played havoc with communication lines.

Down south the residents got out their overcoats and shivers and expected to be sold again today, Atlanta, Ga., reported a temperature of 44 yesterday, the coldest since last April 22.

The Susquehanna river near Annapolis, Md., claimed the lives of seven persons, a man, his wife, three children and two 12-year-old girls. They drowned after their automobile rolled down a steep embankment into the river.

Government Will Set Up Machinery to Block Profiteering

Consumers to Get Protection as Gold Operations Bring Higher Basic Prices—Community Boards Planned on Lines of Labor Bodies But NRA Will Keep Own Watch Too—New Gold Price Today Is 18 Cents Higher Than Yesterday's—RFC Paying for New Gold in Notes.

Washington, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The administration sought to give increased impetus to its price boosting program today by increasing the price it will pay for newly mined gold by eighteen cents an ounce over yesterday, the figure set being $31.54.

It was asserted that the increase did not mean necessarily that there would be a daily increase.

Indications were voiced that so long as the American price keeps ahead of foreign market levels, a point may be reached when it will not be felt necessary to increase the quotation.

Purchases of the metal will continue on a daily basis.

Yesterday, when this Roosevelt policy was inaugurated, the domestic price was fixed at $31.36 against a London figure of $30.38, a change rate of $4.75, today's London quotation was $31.06. While this was a decrease of three cents as compared with yesterday, there was actually an increase in the London gold price in that the British pound was jumped from 130 shillings, one penny, to 130 shillings, 9 1/2 pence.

Variations in foreign exchange accounted for the decrease in the dollar value.

Today's price was determined by the committee appointed by President Roosevelt to attend to this detail yesterday, Chairman Jesse Jones of the RFC, and Henry Morgenthau, Jr., representing the President, called upon acting secretary Dean Acheson at his office in the treasury.

The Formal Notice
They received the latest figures from London on gold and foreign exchange quotations. Quickly arriving at their decision, they dispatched copies of formal statements to newspapersmen waiting at telephones in the press room two floors below. It said:

"The Reconstruction Finance Corporation will accept subscriptions for its issue of notes maturing February 1, 1934, payable only in newly mined gold, that is, gold recovered from natural deposits in the United States and any territory subject to its jurisdiction, at the rate of $31.54 per ounce of fine gold under regulations for construction, deposit and tender of gold and delivery of obligations established by the Treasury department and Reconstruction Finance Corporation."

While the RFC offered notes in exchange for the gold today, yesterday's price announcement was accompanied by word that the gold would be paid for in RFC debentures, unsecured bonds.

Meanwhile, Treasury experts worked out a system whereby the sellers of the gold could discount the debentures and yet receive the full announced price for their gold.

Essentially there is little difference between notes and debentures. Treasury and RFC officials still are busy drawing up regulations for delivery of the gold. These had been promised by officials for yesterday, together with an executive order by President Roosevelt. The latter was abandoned, however, and the regulations, it was said, would be ready for publication some time today.

NRA to Block Profiteering
The avowed administration aim is to raise commodity prices, especially for producers, but simultaneously to keep consumers protected. The NRA has in the making the most elaborate system yet attempted to

UNABLE TO LOCATE LUBBE'S COMRADES

Question of Who Helped to Start Reichstag Fire, Puzzles the Court.

Berlin, Oct. 26.—(AP)—After 24 sessions, the German Reichstag building fire trial narrows down to the question:

"Who were Marinus van der Lubbe's accomplices?"

For a long time it appeared the court might accept the Dutchman's oft-repeated assertion that he set the fire last February 27, alone.

A lengthy array of witnesses brought no evidence that he had any helpers.

But on the 22nd day of the hearings there came a turning point when chemical experts testified and evidently satisfied the judges by experiments that van der Lubbe's coat must have been carefully prepared by others.

Since then, the court, the prosecution and the four other defendants accused in the fire have been grappling with the problem of possible accomplices.

Neither the judges nor the state's 33 calibre revolver, a 25-20 Savage rifle, with ammunition, and $25 in silver were stolen from Deputy Sheriff Harvey S. Collins in Columbia; another rifle was found missing from a house at Coventry depot and foodstuffs and automobile accessories reported taken from houses and garages in Coventry and Mansfield.

Reports from Springfield today indicated the Massachusetts police felt confident the capture of Kaminski would be brought about at any time now. It also was reported that the police are sure the New Britain man will be caught in the vicinity of Mansfield. Woods and fields in Tolland county today were being combed, houses and barns searched and every place that might offer concealment to the prisoner investigated. Kaminski will have to be mighty elusive to slip through the police cordon, it is felt. Being a desperate character, however, he will stop at nothing to keep out of the clutches of the law, the police say.

Capture of Kaminski will mean his arraignment in Springfield on a charge of murder, in view of Hayden's death. Wargo was to be arraigned in Springfield District Court today charged with murder. Conviction on a murder charge in MASSACHUSETTS MEANS A MANDATORY SENTENCE OF DEATH IN THE ELECTRIC CHAIR AT CHARLESTOWN. KAMINSKI WAS SAID BY THE POLICE TO BE AWARE OF THIS AND UNDOUBTEDLY WILL ENDEAVOR TO ESCAPE AND DESPERATE MEASURES AT HIS COMMAND TO REMAIN AT LARGE.

Father Arrested John Kaminski, of New Britain, father of the escaped prisoner, was arrested in that city last night on a charge of drunkenness. The elder Kaminski was found lying on a sidewalk where he had fallen while, it is alleged, under the influence of liquor. He was said to have asked of the policeman who arrested him: "Where's my son? Where's my son, Alek? You got him yet?" Automobiles believed to have been used by Kaminski, according to the police, bear these number plates: Massachusetts 222-612 and Connecticut WB-866.

Local Group Suspicious A group of five Manchester young men, who were returning to their homes after attending a cranstonal of the Tall Cedars of Lebanon in New London last night, reported having seen a light-haired youth who might have been Kaminski sitting in a car on the turnpike near Salem.

These youths said they were stopped by a youth in a blue sedan who kept flashing his lights off and on. The person in the sedan, they said, was seated with one foot on the running board. Not willing to take any chances on a holdup, however, the local young men kept on going to Manchester without stopping.

Wargo pleaded not guilty this morning in Springfield District Court to a charge of murder in connection with the death of Jailer Hayden. He waived examination and was bound over to the December sitting of the grand jury on the murder charge and also one of escaping from jail.

Sheriff David J. Manning, of Hamden County in Massachusetts, who is directing the hunt for the missing Kaminski, today predicted the early capture of the fugitive.

CHIEF GORDON TO SPEAK TO IMPROVEMENT GROUP

Chief of Police Samuel G. Gordon is to be the speaker at the meeting of the Manchester Improvement Association meeting tomorrow night. The meeting, the first of the fall gatherings, will be held in the Y.M.C.A., building and preceding the talk there will be steamed claims. The claims have been ordered for delivery tomorrow afternoon. There will also be a musical program.

SARRAUT NAMED PREMIER; PICKS A NEW CABINET

Boneway and Pietri, who belong to the Left Republicans, and in keeping peace in his political family, political observers believed he would have a strong majority.

M. Sarraut late today still was in the midst of consultations at the ministry of marine. It was said officially he would go to the Elysee Palace this evening to report on the progress in forming the Cabinet.

After obtaining enthusiastic endorsement of his program to balance the budget at a conference with Radical Socialist supporters, he expected to see President Luberlin early in the afternoon and immediately organize a cabinet.

M. Sarraut was tendered the office yesterday over a half dozen others mentioned to succeed Edouard Daladier who resigned with his cabinet after a vote of no confidence in the Chamber of Deputies.

A firm stand for gold against inflation and devaluation formed the cardinal point in the program drawn up by M. Sarraut.

He definitely adhered to the Radical-Socialist wing and told the party at the meeting that he refused to go to the Right and that his and M. Daladier's party would remain a bulwark.

As a courtesy, he telegraphed former Premier Edouard Herriot asking that he enter the ministry, but M. Herriot declined because of ill health. He promised strongest cooperation, however.

M. Sarraut planned to put little new blood in the cabinet, retaining Daladier, Georges Bonnet, Camille Chautemps, Joseph Paul-Boncour and Henri Queuille.

In the resigned cabinet, Daladier was minister of war, Bonnet, finance; Chautemps, interior; Paul-Boncour, foreign affairs and Queuille, agriculture.

Besides his own and M. Herriot's Radical-Socialist group of 160, the new premier plans participation in the support of the whole Left Wing—except the Communists and Socialists; but he was promised the support of the Disident-Socialists and a scattering of votes from the Center and even Right parties.

Besides a continued stand for the present gold franc, M. Sarraut said his program provided for a reduction in taxes and freights to encourage business and the same policy towards the League of Nations and foreign affairs as that maintained by Daladier.

He was expected to adopt Daladier's policy of cutting the pay of functionaries with a definite pledge to reduce the cost of living.

M. Sarraut as a senator never was required to vote on the war debts, but at the time of the downfall of the Herriot cabinet friends said he would have voted for payment.

His policy on debts, however, is unknown and circumstances have changed and Parliament has shown no disposition to pay or even to negotiate until the British have settled.

INSURANCE AGENTS WIN CONVENTION TRIP

Four of Prudential Salesmen Going to Atlantic City Gathering on Nov. 15, 16 and 17.

Manager J. F. O'Leary of the Manchester office of the Prudential office has received notice that he, together with three of the agents in the Manchester office have been selected as agents to be invited as guests of the Prudential Agents from all parts of the country to be present at Atlantic City, N. J., for having fulfilled their allotment of insurance written for the Prudential.

The agents that will leave from Manchester to attend the gathering at Atlantic City, which will be held on November 15, 16 and 17 are Daniel F. Kenn, William Keating and Paul J. O'Leary. The latter is chairman of the Rockyville territory, which comes under the Manchester office.

PRESS TO BE FREE, ROGERS DECLARES

newspapers are in precisely the same class as is any other industry which, under the recovery act, increases the wages and reduces the hours of its employees.

Not the Editors Rogers declared that the most eloquent voices on the issue have been raised by newspaper editors, newspaper printing rooms and law offices, rather than in editorial rooms.

The articles in the proposed newspaper code which guarantees freedom of the press is unnecessary, said Rogers, because that freedom already is guaranteed by the Constitution.

"But if publishers will feel more secure with such a declaration in their code, then they should have it," he said.

Defenders of the freedom of the press have become alarmed over a section of the Recovery Act which authorizes the President, in certain cases, to license industries, said Rogers.

"The President may exercise licensing powers only if he finds that 'destructive wage or price cutting or other activities contrary to the policy of the Recovery Act' are being carried on," he said, "and he must give public notice and hearing before he can act."

protect the consumer against profiteering. It plans soon to set up community boards to which persons who believe they are being overcharged can complain.

Regulations will be laid down as to the manner in which such complaints are to be investigated, settled locally or referred up to regional authorities and, if necessary, to Washington.

Until this time the consumer angle has been submerged to an extent in the mass of urgent NRA work.

World Initiative Action. A freshly effected reorganization changes NRA into an agency primarily for administration. The compliance network headed by Hugh S. Johnson himself will have general supervision of keeping industries in line on fair practices, consumer treatment and labor questions; but the protection of the buying population is expected to involve an organization developed as thoroughly as that of the National Labor Board which arbitrates strikes in industries under codes.

Besides acting on complaints of citizens, NRA intends to have machinery for price control on its own initiative.

Already it has engaged in a thorough analysis of certain wholesale and manufacturers' wholesale prices. Findings from this investigation soon are to be made known. Word already has been passed that no flagrant violations have been discovered.

Farm Adjustment. Meanwhile, the farm adjustment administration has created an extensive organization to guard the consumer interests in connection with its codes and marketing agreements.

Headed by Dr. Frederic C. Howe, consumers counsel, it is gathering data on retail prices in 49 selected cities, especially to guard against profiteering or pyramiding of the processing taxes being levied to finance the administration's crop control programs.

ABOUT TOWN

Mr. William Keen of 67 Grand street left yesterday to attend the funeral today in Richmond Hill, L. I. of Mrs. Mae MacNicholl, widow of Rev. William MacNicholl, who for years was a member of the New York East conference of the Methodist church and died in October of 1931. Rev. MacNicholl married Mr. and Mrs. Keen and he and Mrs. MacNicholl frequently visited them here. Burial was in Westville Cemetery, New Haven.

Members of Washington Social club are reminded of the first sitting of the weekly setback series. The first session will take place tonight at 7 o'clock.

Christian Endeavorers of the Second Congregational church will hold a Hallowe'en social this evening at 8 o'clock. The ladies are Mrs. Fred Newcomb in Buckland.

The Manchester Green Community club will give the weekly setback and dance tomorrow evening at the Green school assembly hall. The prizes will be awarded the winners and dancing will follow. All players will be welcome.

Winners at the card party held last night at the home of Mrs. John White of East Hallowe'en were: first, Mrs. Amy Coffell and Robert Collins; second, Miss Pearl Banks and G. Peterson; third, Miss Armando and A. Swanson. The next party will be held at the home of Mrs. Evelyn Aldrig of 51 Foster street, Tuesday evening, October 31.

Members of Anderson-Shea Post auxiliary, V. F. W., are hereby notified that the Hallowe'en party, scheduled for Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Brown of Coventry, has been postponed until Friday evening, Nov. 3.

The annual meeting of the Manchester Garden club is scheduled for Monday, November 13, at the Y. M. C. A. The business session will be followed by a showing of pictures of members' gardens. There are any who have not had slides made of pictures taken through the summer, there is still time to attend to it before the meeting.

D. J. Moriarty of Florence street, manager of the Great Atlantic and Pacific store at 707 Main street, has been awarded a cash prize in a business contest at the managers' meeting held last night at East Hartford. The church at Andover will celebrate its centennial on Sunday, with sessions in the morning, afternoon and evening. Many local people are planning to attend.

Max R. Nippel, who drew the plans for the alterations at the hotel Sheahan has decided to locate in Manchester. He has taken space in the offices of the Knoff Construction Company. He will work independent of the Knoff concern and will work on contracts or general plans for any contractor who wishes his service.

William Fortin, of North Elm street, employed by The Herald, having a day off under the NRA schedule, took occasion this morning to purchase a new automobile. His former car was stolen in Hartford and never recovered.

The first effects of the cold weather on the railroad occurred when a bound passenger train which was forty minutes late in reaching Manchester this morning. The air brakes had frozen, which held up the train in Hartford. In addition to the regular cars there was also a special car, which was carrying a show group. It made the mails and express late and also carried a large number of New York papers that were also late in delivery.

EARTHQUAKES RECORDED

New York, Oct. 26. (AP)—Fordham University's seismograph recorded three earthquakes in the past fifteen hours. It was announced today, two of them occurring about the Aleutian islands in the volcanic area west and northwest of Alaska. The tremors were recorded at 6:38:21 and 6:45:58 p. m., e. s. t., last night. The third was recorded at approximately 7:20 a. m., today, but was so indistinct as to make it difficult to plot the direction and distance.

ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 26. (AP)—Miss Hope Purdie, 21, of Pittsford, was taken to Albany hospital early today with cut wrists and gas poisoning.

Police said they found her on the floor of her room after neighbors smelled burning gas. She came from Pittsford yesterday and stated she had been drinking.

WERBER DEFENDANT IN DAMAGES SUIT

Action Against Local Store Manager as Result of Auto Accident Filed.

A civil action for damages of $5,000 has been brought against David Werber of 65 Durkin street, manager of the local Brownbilt shoe company, by Miss Marie Vesina of Hartford as a result of an automobile accident on the state highway between Manchester and Bolton on August 9, last. The writ is returnable in Superior Court November 7.

According to the writ, Miss Vesina was driving toward Manchester and Werber was proceeding toward Bolton, when the latter's car swerved across the road in front of the plaintiff's machine. Miss Vesina pulled toward the center of the road and Werber's machine turned again to the right and smashed into the car. Miss Vesina charges the defendant with carelessness, recklessness, and negligence.

She claims that she was severely bruised, had two ribs fractured and suffered internal injuries and injuries to her back, neck, head, breast and legs, which may prove of a permanent nature. Miss Vesina was in the Memorial hospital for two weeks and claims she could not properly attend to her business on being discharged. Joseph Griffin is attorney for the plaintiff.

Sidney Werber, five-year-old son of the defendant, was also injured, being thrown against the windshield. He was taken to the hospital, where it was found that he had a possible fracture of the skull and concussion.

attorney seem to entertain an idea that there is even a possibility that others than Communists might have been implicated.

Charges from many quarters that the Nazis might have prepared the ground for van der Lubbe are rejected sharply by all officials.

Draws Rebuke Not only that, but the insinuations of Georgi Dimitroff, one of the three Bulgarian defendants, that preliminary hearings might have been conducted in a one-sided manner invariably have drawn rebukes from the presiding judge, Wilhelm Buegner.

Dimitroff's persistent questions and comment on the trial and court procedure have so annoyed the judge that he has twice been excluded from the chamber.

The prosecution, which obviously is trying to prove Communism's association with the deed, fired the heaviest gun of all yesterday by producing a former Communist—now a Nazi member of the Reichstag.

Seen Together This witness, Berthold Karwahne, saw van der Lubbe and Ernst Torgler, former Communist whip in the Reichstag and another of the defendants, together in the building the day of the fire.

It was the first time the two had been linked directly. Karwahne offered no proof that the two conversed.

The prosecution also produced another Reichstag member who said he saw Torgler talking with one of the Bulgarian defendants, Elago Popoff. (The third Bulgarian is Wassil Tanef.)

While the court's questions obviously have been directed at tracing a possible connection of Communism with the incendiaryism, only one defendant—Dimitroff—hitherto has tried not only to wash himself,

COVENTRY ORCHESTRA TO JOIN LOCAL GROUP

Will Combine With Musicians of Second Congregational Church in Concert Here.

Rev. F. C. Allen of the Second Congregational church is arranging for a concert to be given by the combined Coventry Community orchestra and an orchestra from the church on Wednesday evening, November 1. Jack Crawford, well known local musician, is director of both musical groups. The Coventry orchestra numbers approximately 20 players and the Second Congregational about half that number. Rehearsals are held every Wednesday evening. This week it will be on Friday evening.

wild disorders in some parts of the city. During the last two days police have arrested 400 persons in an effort to stem the trouble.

Most of those arrested were Communists.

Outside the capital, the situation was also acute—especially in Matanzas province and at the Alto Cedro sugar mill in Oriente province where the American manager, C. M. Jarvis, was held prisoner by workers who were reported to have set up a "Soviet regime."

Bakers, butchers and truck drivers carried on in their strikes. Police planned to post guards at all butcher shops after it was reported disorders were planned there.

President Grau's cabinet went to the palace prepared to resign, but the president deferred definite action on the resignations pending further study of the situation.

"We will not be an obstacle to any understanding with the opposition," one cabinet member explained the moves toward retirement.

DISARMAMENT PARLEY ADJOURNS UNTIL DEC. 4

Geneva, Switzerland, Oct. 26. (AP)—The disarmament conference today adjourned until December 4 after hearing friendly references to Germany during the sessions discussions.

The adjournment decision was in line with a recommendation of the steering committee which met yesterday.

Captain Anthony Eder, British foreign office under-secretary, said during the discussions that it was quite clear that the withdrawal of Germany could not be without effect on the work of the conference and that it would cause some dislocation.

"But," he added, "the British government feels this should not be allowed to stop the work of the conference. We must look forward a day not indulge in recriminations."

Captain Eder pledged Great Britain's wholehearted support to the efforts to achieve progress.

DRUGGISTS AWAIT RATING PERMITS

Manner of Handling Intoxicants Under Prohibition Measuring Stick.

Manchester druggists, as well as registered pharmacists throughout the state, are said to be awaiting the issuance on November 15 of "permits of rating," which are said to classify the druggists according to their manner of handling prescription liquor during the tenure of prohibition.

Some May Be "Black-balled" The findings which are expected to be embodied in these permits are gauged by the results of frequent inspections made by federal and state pharmacists' agents to determine where the druggists are selling their prescription liquor in strict accordance with the letter of the law. Those found to have engaged in illicit distribution of the liquor—a more refined term for bootlegging—existing at themselves black-balled in the permit rating, it was said.

What is reported to be worrying the druggists who, in their own hearts, know whether or not they have trifled with the law, is the question of whether the marks against them on the permit rating will mean that they will be barred from selling spirits when the prohibition law is repealed on December 6, as seems to be a certainty at the present time.

Package Stores It was reported today that the druggists are hopeful of benefitting by a law which will limit the number of package stores selling spirits to but a few in each community. Hartford will be allowed to have five such package stores, according to belief existing at present. Owing to the tight grip which the state liquor control commission has on the sale of liquors in Connecticut, coupled with the report that a city of the size of Hartford will be entitled to only five package stores, there is much conjecture as to whether Manchester will be large enough to have even one package store. It is this question that is causing Manchester druggists to await with hopeful expectations the developments of the coming six weeks.

Against Code? Commissioner of Pharmacy Hugh P. Belne telegraphed all Manchester and county druggists Monday night to attend, if possible, a meeting of the Hartford County Drug Association in Hartford, Edward J. Murphy, of Manchester, is a member of the State Pharmacy Commission, but did not attend Monday night's session. Although no report of what transpired at this meeting was made public, it was learned today that the druggists voted in opposition to the NRA code as it affects the retail drug stores.

CAPTIVE MINE OWNERS TO MEET ON MONDAY

Washington, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Leading operators of the "captive" coal mines of Pennsylvania have been asked by President Roosevelt to come here on Monday and report on his order for settling labor difficulties.

Myron Taylor, chairman of the board of the United States Steel Corporation, will head the group of officials representing the steel and iron companies which operate the mines. Others, who will attend the Monday meeting, were not announced at the White House.

Mr. Roosevelt has made no secret of his impatience over the long drawn out negotiations between the operators and miners in the "captive" mines for a working agreement.

"Captive" mines are those owned and operated by big steel and other industrial concerns and which do not sell their output on the open market.

Mr. Taylor last night reported progress to the President by telephone and there is a conviction here that something definite will be reported by the group, which has been invited to meet here on Monday.

SIX BANKS REOPENED

Washington, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Six National banks, with frozen deposits of $7,508,000 and unrestricted deposits of $524,000, were re-opened during the ten days ending October 24, 1933.

J. F. T. O'Connor, comptroller of the currency, in making this announcement today said reorganization plans were approved for 29 additional National banks during the same period. These banks must meet various requirements before actually resuming business, however. According to the plans as approved, their deposits will amount to $2,719,000 unrestricted and $31,932,000 frozen.

O'Connor said National banks in all states and the District of Columbia whose reorganization plans have been approved now total 395, with frozen deposits of $422,017,000 and unrestricted deposits of $32,322,000.

LaBranche was suspended under that section of the exchange constitution which covers unjust and inequitable proceedings. The charges and specifications against him covered transactions in stocks of the Atlantic Refining Co. and American-La France Potash.

ROCKVILLE

JUDGE SCOLDS DRIVERS THEN NOLLES CHARGES

Finds Both Parties in Goat Farm Accident Blamable But Assesses Only Costs.

Notwithstanding the fact that they were reprimanded for being an hour late for the opening of court and "undoubtedly" guilty, as the court expressed it, of a technical violation of law as the result of the collision at the so-called "Goat Farm" on Tuesday afternoon, the cases of two defendants were nolle prossed upon payment of court costs by the defendant. Fisk in the Rockville City Court on Wednesday morning.

The defendants were Mrs. Frances S. Elseroad of Roland Park, Baltimore, and Joseph Cuffori, of New York City, both of whom were charged with violation of the rules of the road, Cuffori with failing to give right of way and Mrs. Elseroad with cutting a left turn at an intersection.

While court was scheduled to open at 9 o'clock, a phone call was received from Cuffori from Hartford that he could not be there at 9 o'clock. Court opened, however, at 10 o'clock, adjourned at 11 o'clock until 11:45 o'clock because of a meeting of the People's Bank of which Judge Fisk is president.

Both parties entered pleas of not guilty when put to plea. They were not represented by attorneys but H. W. Sargeant, prosecutor of the Broad Brook court and H. C. Brook, president of the Broad Brook Savings Bank, were permitted to appear for Mrs. Elseroad.

State Policeman Jesse F. Foley, Jr., of the Stafford Springs Barracks explained the accident very minutely, saying that it happened at 2 o'clock and he arrived on the scene at 2:30. A Studebaker sedan driven by Cuffori and owned by Alfred Quinn of Rosedale, Long Island had been going towards Rockville from Manchester straddling the center of the road. A Buick car owned by Maude E. Benson of Baltimore, and driven by her sister, Mrs. Elseroad, was "hugging corner" while going from Dobsonville towards Hartford, and directly into the lane of the Studebaker. Foley said the damage to the Buick was about $50 and the damage to the Studebaker was about $250 to $275. The cars were forced apart 11 feet 10 inches by the force of the impact.

Robert Newberry of Rockville was riding behind the Buick while on his way from Dobsonville to Manchester, and said he saw the Studebaker some 200 feet away. He testified that Mrs. Elseroad was occupying two-thirds of the road when struck by the other car which he estimated as traveling 35 to 40 miles per hour.

In defense Mrs. Elseroad said she was coming from Boston on her way to Baltimore. She declared, she was traveling slowly because of the wet pavement and didn't see the center line of the road. Mrs. Elseroad estimated her speed as 10 to 15 miles an hour when she turned the corner. She said she was accompanied by her sister who is an invalid. She closed her defense by saying, "I don't believe I cut the corner if I did."

Cuffori, taking the stand, said that Mrs. Elseroad was on the wrong side of the road and that the collision knocked him back four feet.

At 10:55 o'clock Judge Fisk abruptly interrupted the court, saying, "This court opens at 9 o'clock and I have a meeting of the bank at 11 o'clock. Mr. Officer you may declare a recess until 11:30 or 11:45 o'clock."

Court re-opened at 11:55 o'clock and continued until 12:25. Upon reopening Cuffori was permitted to continue his testimony and said he did not see Mrs. Elseroad until she was 50 feet away and then he was only going ten miles per hour.

Judge Fisk interrupted Cuffori at this point and he said, "Aren't you sort of a blundering fellow, blundering here at 9 o'clock and also yesterday when this accident happened. It is simply through sheer carelessness that there are so many accidents here."

Cornelius Shea of Worcester, Mass., who sat in the front seat of the sedan with Cuffori, stated that it was an "unavoidable accident."

Judge Fisk said: "That accident was perfectly needless. If I had been driving either car the accident would not have happened. If the cars had been in their proper positions the accident would not have happened." Then the judge surprised the accused by suggesting the cases be nolle prossed upon payment of costs.

Cuffori at first entered an objection. He thought it would be a handicap as he had no insurance for accidents. Mrs. Elseroad was ready to accept the nolle.

Cuffori finally agreed to the nolle when it was explained that the record of a nolle would be entered on the docket.

CORONER CLOSES SKULL 'MYSTERY'

Definitely Establishes Part of Skeleton as Specimen from Hospital.

A formal finding was filed with Willis H. Reed, clerk of the Tolland County Superior Court, this morning by County Coroner John H. Yeomans in the so-called "skull mystery" case which has attracted attention in this section for over five months.

"I find that the skull came from the Wesson Memorial hospital (Springfield) as aforesaid and that there was no death caused by any criminal act, omission or carelessness of any person or persons" reads the formal finding which resulted from an investigation of Sergeant Harrison L. Hurlburt of the State Police Barracks at Stafford Springs which covers close to three hundred pages.

The finding of County Coroner Yeomans reads as follows: "On June 1, 1933, during a search for stolen property members of the State Police working under Sergeant Harrison J. Hurlburt of the Stafford Barracks, were informed that a human skull was in the possession of Walter Morris of West Stafford. Sergeant Hurlburt immediately went to the Morris home where the skull was located and taken into the possession of the officers. Investigation disclosed that the skull had been found by Fred Jarvis and Wallace Allen near the old charcoal pit on land of March, 1933. A short time thereafter it was taken to the Morris home where Allen resided.

"An investigation was immediately begun to learn the identity of the skull. It was recalled by members of the State Police that a number of years ago two Irishmen disappeared in the vicinity of West Stafford. At that time it was rumored that the men had been burned in the charcoal pit where the skull was found, but no trace of them could be found.

"In an effort to determine the identity of the skull it was sent to Dr. Zimmerman of the Yale Medical School, who was of the opinion that the skull was that of a female, 25 years of age or over. After receiving this information, the police started to search for one Quennie Lemmon Alberts, who disappeared from the vicinity of West Stafford about 8 years ago. Some time after her disappearance, the remains of a bag containing woman's apparel was found in the woods indicating that she might have become lost or slain in the neighborhood.

"Various rumors came to the police during the investigation, all of which were checked with painstaking care. One of these rumors was that a skull similar to the one found had been in the possession of one of the residents of the vicinity. This information led to the discovery that about ten years ago a skull had been taken from a skeleton in the Wesson Memorial Hospital in Springfield by some student nurse. It had been placed in a car of one of their friends as a joke. The friend continued the joke by keeping the skull instead of returning it to the hospital. For some time the friend kept the skull at home. After some years, members of the family insisted that the skull be disposed of. It was taken to the vicinity of the charcoal pit and abandoned. The skull found near the pit was positively identified as the one which came from the Wesson Memorial Hospital by nine holes which had been drilled in the top.

"I find that the skull came from the Wesson Memorial Hospital as aforesaid and that there was no death caused by any criminal act, omission or carelessness of any person or persons."

Signed: John H. Yeomans, County Coroner.

FEDERAL MEN RECOVER HALF MILLION IN LOOT

Chicago, Oct. 25.—(AP)—One man was under arrest today and $500,000 of $613,000 mail loot was in possession of the government as Federal agents continued their relentless search for the robbers.

The man under arrest was George W. (Red) Kerr, seized in a local hotel yesterday along with allegedly stolen securities valued at $100,000 or more.

Chief Inspector Walter Johnson of the Postal Department, said the half million dollars in securities recently recovered represented $200,000 of $126,000 taken in a robbery of the liner Leviathan in New York harbor last year, and $200,000 of $250,000 loot seized in a Sacramento, Calif., robbery last February 9.

Furthermore, the agent said the government was working on the case had discovered that Chicago was the center used for disposal of the stolen securities.

POLICE COURT

Isaac Gatchie, a rug salesman of Brooklyn, N. Y., was before the court this morning for driving a car with improper registration. He was driving a Plymouth with markers that belonged on a Graham-Paige. Gatchie explained to the judge that he had only two days ago bought the Plymouth and produced the bill of sale. He had already sent to Albany for the transfer of his markers. The judge suspended judgment. However, he will have to get the correct markers before he may drive the car out of town.

BOOZE ADVERTISEMENTS UP TO P. O. DEPARTMENT

Washington, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The Justice Department ruled today that the admissibility of newspapers carrying liquor advertising to the mails was a subject for the consideration of the postmaster general, and that it could not institute proceedings unless requested to do so by the Post Office Department.

Attorney General Cummings held the Reed amendment barring such advertising from the mails to be still in effect, and said it would continue in effect after repeal.

"The amendment provides that the postmaster general is authorized and directed to make public from time to time in suitable bulletins or public notices the names of states in which it is unlawful to advertise or solicit orders for such liquors," the department said.

"It is the duty of the postmaster general, therefore, to pass upon the suitability of such advertisements which are intended to be deposited in the mails for transmission into dry states which prohibit such matter."

"The question whether proposed advertisements are suitable is one for the consideration of the postmaster general. This department will give appropriate attention to such cases."

THURSDAY, OCT. 26, 1933.

THE PRESIDENT

Discouraging as have been several of President Roosevelt's recent decisions on questions of vital importance the country undoubtedly will cling to its faith in the absolute rectitude of his intentions. That is a fine thing to be sure of. Perhaps it is, after all, the most important thing.

The President made up his mind to do something big about the frozen bank deposits. There are seven and a half billions of them. To do a really big thing about them it would have been necessary to pour from five to six billions of new money into the checking accounts of the depositors, taking as security, at a reasonable discount, the whole mass of frozen assets and tucking them away to await the time when general national prosperity might restore their value. What the President did was to allocate a single billion to be peddled out by that Shylock institution the Reconstruction Finance Corporation whose method will be to spend two or three years in picking over the assets of the closed banks and lending upon them, to the receivers, paltry sums at usurious interest after the manner of pawnbrokers everywhere and in all times.

That was a shock.

There had been uneasiness but no shock over the President's failure to act promptly with relation to the currency when the July slump in commodity prices developed. He was enraptured then with his NRA experiment—a splendid conception but far from being a cure-all and quite obviously over-extended to a ridiculous degree; but still fascinating. It was not, perhaps, to be wondered at that the President gambled so heavily on the NRA and its potentialities of re-employment and enhanced purchasing power. But as deflation has continued and much of the earlier stimulus of the ballyhoo has died down even Mr. Roosevelt became reluctantly convinced that the NRA could not stand alone; it must have the support of a fiscal and currency policy.

Then came the frozen deposits dud—and thousands of his well-wishers and supporters felt chills along their spines. Is this, they asked themselves, the strong, courageous way in which we have taught ourselves to believe, Franklin D. Roosevelt was going to handle desperate situations? Why, this is nothing more than the same old fiddle-faddle all over again—the kind of thing that brought us into our mess!

By this time countless industrialists and business men, to say nothing of a whole West and South full of farmers, were clamoring for measures that would make it possible for them to help recovery with honest co-operation in NRA codes and the rest of the Roosevelt program. The one thing most loudly and generally demanded was the devaluation of the dollar by putting up the price of gold to $41.34 an ounce at one stroke, thus cutting the dollar to one-half its value of last February, or by starting the gold price at $34 and steadily advancing it to the $41.34 point, preferably the former method.

And now, recognizing the necessity of government control over the price of gold, Mr. Roosevelt, many weeks belatedly, acts to establish it. And, if you please, he puts the price to $31.36. He has pulled his punch. He has gone out to slay the dragon armed with a cambric needle, leaving his broadsword at home.

We don't believe this is going to keep up. The President is too intelligent, too sincere in his devotion to the well being of his country, too clear eyed to be much longer cajoled and hoodwinked by the crew of deflationists who have somehow managed to control his pawing efforts at fiscal and currency reform. He has promised that he will put up prices "if not by one means then by another." Nineteenth of the people believe that he will make that promise good; but it is bitterly disappointing that he has to go through all these harassing experiences to learn that you can't cure typhus with two drops of vanilla extract and that a nation's currency is a far greater economic force than trades unions and pictures of birds.

President Roosevelt still retains the affections and loyalty of the vast majority of the American people; they will still follow him, gladly, eagerly—if he will only lead on in the path of his own designation and in the pursuit of his own program. But they cannot follow if he halts and hesitates every time he finds his way barred by false advisors who fawn and seek to divert his steps. These he must sweep away or, if they will not stand aside, destroy.

The only road to national salvation lies at the end of the road charted last spring. Will the President go, along with his own plans or is he going to ruin himself by letting Bourbons and Tories pilot his way? Because with him or without him, the country is going along. Nothing in God's world can be surer than that.

UNPLEASANT SURPRISE.

The opinion of Attorney-General Averill that Connecticut state banks, trust companies and savings banks should not be authorized by the bank commissioner to join the Federal Reserve System or participate in the permanent plan of deposit guarantees is rather breath-taking. Possibly it may prove to be of far reaching effect provided, as would seem to be a little doubtful, it should become the controlling force in Connecticut's attitude toward this question.

If the Banking Department and the state as a whole accepts the attorney general's opinion as final and the banks of this state are thereby prevented from taking advantage of the provisions of the plan of the Federal Deposits Insurance Corporation, the Connecticut situation will be peculiar. Depositors in its banks will have to rely on the same safeguards as in the past while the depositors of banks in neighboring states are guaranteed by the resources of the banks of the country and to a considerable extent by those of the federal government. It is difficult to see such a condition in any light than as a distinct disadvantage to the state in competition with its neighbors either in the development of industry or the retention of the industries it now has, or even in the retention of its banking business against the competition of nearby insured banks.

Refusal of the Connecticut banks of the right to insure their deposits apparently would make business more difficult to do in this state than in others, and credit lines narrower.

Nor is it impossible that, should the state adhere to this attitude, some of its state-chartered banks may go over to national charters, thereby freeing themselves of the local taboo on deposit guarantees; or, should serious objections to such a move arise, that new national banks may be organized in the cities and towns—in which event it would seem to be fairly clear what would happen to the business of the un-insured institutions.

The attorney-general's opinion appears to be based on interpretations of the law which largely reflect that official's views as to the wisdom or unwisdom of the deposits guarantee act and of its possible economic effects. Those views may or may not accord with those of other lawyers or with possible determinations by the courts should such determinations be sought.

Also there is still the General Assembly to be considered. If Connecticut state laws are such as to prevent its banks from taking advantage of the deposit guarantee act they can always be changed.

It would be going a good way to assume that the turning down of the attorney-general's thumb forever estops the banks of Connecticut from joining in a movement calculated to eradicate the risk of runs, apprehension on the part of depositors and the hoarding of cash in bank vaults while industry and business are starving for justifiable credits.

RAPID BEATING OF THE HEART

Upon looking over the charts for my patients I find that one of the symptoms most often mentioned is too rapid beating of the heart. Too rapid beating of the heart, also called tachycardia, is present when there is an increase in the number of times the heart beats per minute, above the normal. Usually, the patient becomes aware of the fast heart rate. In a normal person the heart beats about 72 times a minute. At rest the pulse rate drops considerably and may vary between 50 and 70 beats. In a grown person a pulse rate over 100 which continues indicates tachycardia. This rule does not hold good for infants, in whom the normal rate runs up to 130 or over. An increase of about 30 beats in the pulse rate is perfectly normal after exercise, but the heart rate should return to the average number of beats within two minutes.

Too rapid beating of the heart may be a temporary symptom lasting for a short time, or may be present most of the time, even during sleep. It is a symptom which alarms and alarms the patient. When the heart beats too fast this may be due to disease of the organ, but in most cases the cause is not in the heart but elsewhere. Many times when the palpitation induces the patient to believe he has a heart disorder, he is mistaken. Healthy people may note an increase in the heart action for short periods as this is a very common symptom and one which may appear in normal individuals, for unexplained reasons. If it lasts for only a few minutes it need cause no alarm.

Some of the conditions which may cause the heart to palpitate are: anemia, excessive use of tobacco, coffee, or tea; emotional shock; disorders of the thyroid gland which may increase the rate to as high as 180 beats; the heart is also accelerated with fever and for each degree that the temperature goes up, the heart adds 8 to 10 extra beats per minute; excitement will also increase the heart rate, any condition which produces pus in the body, such as tuberculosis, or chronic infection of the teeth, tonsils, sinuses, or pelvic organs may also influence tury was the weapon employed by a too arrogant Capital to restrain the ambitions of Labor whenever legislative enactments forbidding workers from striking. It was made the principal legal agency in the creation of the economic system that has now blown up from its own unbalanced strains. Not the least of these strains was the far fruit of the injunction.

It is no wonder that people who realized the iniquitous effects of the injunctions in labor disputes have long regarded it as an outrageous violation of human rights and have rallied against it and demanded its invalidation. Now these remonstrators find themselves in a peculiar situation which is really attributable to the abuse rather than the use of the injunction in the past. Because there is a very grave question whether in the case of the latest truck strike, the employment of the injunction was not justifiable on solid grounds.

In this case the rights of the employee had been guarded by every possible function of the government, the justice of the situation had been analyzed by the highest possible authority and it had been determined that the terms of the agreement reached by the arbitrators were as generous as it was possible to grant to any party to such a dispute without destroying the industry in which they were engaged. And yet, immediately after the truckers signed the agreement of the arbitration board they struck again.

We know of no instance in the history of labor troubles which provides a parallel for this one. Yet such a strike, desperately injurious to the interests of all the people as it might have become, violated no statute law. In such circumstances there would appear to be every justification for the employment of the injunction.

In almost every case of the use of the injunction in labor troubles heretofore, such action has been open to valid and in some cases severe criticism, since it has almost always been employed without any evidence that those who were to benefit by it were entitled to any such extraordinary protection. In the present case, however, the striking truckmen had been surrounded by every guarantee, had had the merits of their claims passed on by the highest authority—and patently were engaged in an action grievously against the common welfare yet still within statute law.

So that what the truck drivers—or more properly their leadership—actually succeeded in doing was to make the labor injunction, perhaps for the first time, respectable. Which is exactly opposed to what organized labor has been trying to do for a quarter of a century.

As for the strike itself, the public is to be congratulated that it is over and, under all the circumstances, not in the least likely to be renewed.

the heart beat. A very common cause of palpitation is indigestion, and whenever there is great pressure of gas against the heart, you will find the heart beats more rapidly. Increase in the heart rate is also seen in such heart disorders as valvular leakage or myocarditis. Palpitation is the most outstanding symptom in heart neuroses, when the patient has a great fear of heart trouble and the fear serves to accentuate the wild irregularity of the heart. Very often in such cases, no heart disease is present and if the patient once becomes convinced of this fact, the heart beat steadies down immediately. Before becoming unduly frightened over rapid beating of the heart it is a good plan to have an examination in order to find out if the palpitation is caused by an irregular and rapid heart beat or due to some other condition.

Some of the other symptoms likely to be associated with tachycardia are fluttering and pounding of the heart, a throbbing sensation through the ears or temples, slight dizziness, or the heart may seem to slow down and start again with a loud thump. In correcting rapid beating of the heart it is not necessary to use any treatment directed toward the palpitation, as when the cause of the condition is removed the tachycardia vanishes. If you are distressed by an irregular and rapid heart beat, I would suggest that you have an examination of your heart. You will find that a curative diet, avoiding heart stimulants such as coffee and using moderate meals which do not overtax the stomach, will be of value. I would also suggest that you begin to exercise, using slow, easy movements at first and gradually increasing the number of times you do each one and adding harder ones until you strengthen the heart muscles to such a degree that the heart action is strong and steady as in trained athletes. It is beneficial to use the fast at the beginning of the treatment as the fasting regimen assists in the elimination of any poisonous wastes which may be present and causing irritation.

As a general rule, the average case of simple tachycardia does not indicate a very serious condition and this alarming symptom may be entirely overcome.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Walking and Proslaps)

Question: Miss Alene J. asks: "I would like to know if walking is detrimental to one having prolapsed organs, since you mention standing, riding, and classical dancing as being harmful."

Answer: Standing too much, riding, or dancing may be contributory causes of prolapsed organs if other exercises are not used to develop the abdominal muscles. Walking is a very healthful exercise as it builds up the general vitality and may be used even in cases of prolapsus, but, if you have a prolapsed condition, you should use the special exercises for correcting the prolapsus and strengthening the abdominal muscles. Send me a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope, and I will be glad to send you a copy of these exercises.

(Diabetic Test)

Question: "Baffled" writes: "One doctor I have been to says I have ulcers of the stomach, and another that I have gall bladder trouble. Neither one seems to have benefited me with treatment. I am suffering from indigestion. What do you think would be the cause?"

Answer: It is difficult to differentiate between the symptoms of stomach ulcers and gall bladder trouble without an examination. However, I would suggest that you try the orange juice fast for two or three days. If this burns your stomach, you undoubtedly have stomach ulcers or an inflamed stomach, and it would be advisable to switch to the milk diet; if this does not agree with you, remove a portion of the cream and use more milk.

IN NEW YORK

By JULIA BLANSHEARD.

New York, Oct. 26.—New York's oldest newsmen are among the city's most colorful characters. Among the most seasoned ones is "Italian Joe," who got in on the ground floor and has "worked" the New York Post-Graduate Hospital for 30 years.

Joe has a regular routine. Beginning in the wards at 6 a. m., he goes through every corridor in the hospital, reaching the private rooms in mid-morning. He is a picturesque little figure, with every pocket bulging, for he carries all brands of cigarettes, chewing gum, mints and fruit drops, fine cigars and cheap ones and will buy a patient anything he wants from an ice cream cone to an exotic fruit.

Everybody knows Joe and patients returning for second or third sessions call out to him to see if he remembers them. . . . Of all his rich customers, Secretary of the Treasury Woodin bought the least, only one newspaper daily. . . . Roxy was the most profitable, buying five to six newspapers daily, and dozens of magazines, several cigars of an expensive brand and all kinds of chewing gum and small candies.

Joe's memories of old New York entertain his bed-ridden customers mightily. He even remembers the day that President Grant's funeral procession went up Fifth Avenue, taking the General's remains to their final resting place in the handsome tomb on Riverside Drive. . . .

Likes the Blues
 Helen Hayes, visiting fireman in New York now, has a successful woman's preference for the blues! She wears blue most of the time, all blue. She requested a blue boudoir and bathroom in her suite, but the management did not have one for her. . . . However, her blue negligees and hostess gowns look very handsome against the creamy walls of the apartment she took. . . .

Diamonds in the Rough
 Increasing numbers of New Yorkers are becoming farmers. Chapin Marcus, noted diamond expert, has broad acres at Hillman, Wyoming, which he runs as a cattle ranch in the winter and as a "dude ranch" in the summer. . . . Admiral Byrd has grown some of the finest apples in all America on his Virginia farm. . . . John Raskob raises ducks by the hundreds on his New Jersey place and affords his friends some of the best duck hunting in the country.

The Rise of a Sleuth
 One of the world's most interesting sleuths is Gordon T. McCarthy, now visiting America in connection with the Lindbergh kidnaping case. McCarthy, chief special agent for the American Express Company in France, is the man who handles all thefts there and has been known to "get his man" even when the thief and forger has gotten as far away as China. McCarthy is on the trail now of a confidence man who is reported to have had in his possession some of the marked Lindbergh ransom notes.

McCarthy is a sunny-faced, red-haired, keen-eyed man who wears English clothes, spats, carries a cane and talks in such clipped Oxford accents that it is a shock to discover that he is a plain Irish-American. As a matter of fact, McCarthy was a youngster driving a truck for the company in Buffalo about ten years ago when his alert mind caught wind of some ciphers in the Gerald Chapman robbery and murder cases that had baffled everyone. McCarthy went to the head of the company, laid his cards on the table and impressed that worthy so much that when he emerged from the office he was a full-fledged private detective for the company. He climbed right back on to his truck and in fairly short order he had collected the

Behind the Scenes in WASHINGTON

Washington, Oct. 26.—The NRA is keeping what virtually is a scoreboard on progress of the codes. Strangers having business with the NRA would do well to go first to the "reception office" and information bureau established on the NRA floor of the Commerce Building. There a force of clerks sit all day, just helping wandering men with brief-cases to find the hearing or the official they've come to Washington to find.

On the walls of this room are the "scoreboards," fitted with sliding-panel legends which can be shifted at will, and forming a visible record, up to the minute, of the flight of the Blue Eagle.

Only four codes, the "scoreboard" shows, were adopted in July. In August, there were 18. In September, 13 and October already has been 17 codes adopted, with hearings present and scheduled on 35 more.

By the time you read this, of course, the October figure will have changed—that's why the "scoreboard" has the industrial names on sliding panels, so they can keep them in the proper columns from day to day, moving them forward from scheduled to adopted as the eagle soars higher day by day.

TVA Starts Library
 The Tennessee Valley Authority has been so swamped with requests for information about the valley and about the project that it has been compelled to establish a library to collect and furnish information about the project to those interested. It's growing daily.

So if you want any information on towns, or geology, or people of the Tennessee Valley region, the best place to get it is from the TVA library, Temporary Building F, Washington.

Capital Party Dates Set
 Now that the White House has announced the dates for its most important parties for the winter, Washington hostesses can go ahead and scramble for the rest.

It's always the custom for private hostesses not to entertain on dates that conflict with the official functions of the White House—they wait until the White House has spoken. The Roosevelts are expected to go to Warm Springs for Thanksgiving, but they probably will spend Christmas at the White House. The Thanksgiving at Warm Springs has been an annual Roosevelt event for years.

Fifteen states now have passed the Child Labor Amendment. . . . Secretary Perkins cautioned the A. The longer the Cuban trouble strings out, the worse it is for the Pan-American conference at Montevideo. . . . It might even make it impossible for Secretary Hull and Ambassador Welles to go at all, which would weaken the American delegation greatly.

YACHT TOWED IN BY COAST GUARD

Called for Assistance Off Virginia Coast When Engine Breaks Down.

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 26.—(AP)—The yacht Aurora, reported in distress off False Cape yesterday afternoon, was towed into Lynnhaven roads today by the Coast Guard cutter Mascoutin.

The yacht, which left New York for Los Angeles August 23, suffered some damage from heavy weather after her engine broke down. The cutter Mascoutin, which picked up the Aurora, turned her over to the Mascoutin.

When the yacht reached the harbor a private towing company was called upon to send out a tug to take charge of the vessel. It could not be learned immediately where she would be taken for repairs.

Coast Guard headquarters learned that the master of the Aurora, Captain Greenstead, was aboard, but the names of the other six persons were not available.

The Aurora, a yacht of the 108 gross tons and 175 horsepower, is 33 feet long. She was built in California in 1904 and is listed in the marine register as owned by William Thaw, who is said to have sold her to Lewis Stone, presumably the movie actor.

HOURLY EARNINGS UP IN SEPTEMBER

National Industrial Conference Board Notes Gains in Manufacturing Circles.

New York, Oct. 26.—A further substantial increase, 6.8 per cent, in hourly earnings in September, a slight advance, 1.1 per cent, in average weekly earnings, a reduction of 5.2 per cent in average hours of work per week, and an increase of 2.8 per cent in the number of persons employed are the findings of the National Industrial Conference Board's regular monthly survey of employment conditions in manufacturing industry.

Average hourly earnings of all wage-earners combined in the 25 manufacturing industries reporting to the conference board increased from 47 cents in August to 53.1 cents in September, or 6.8 per cent. The advance in average hourly earnings since the low point in June when they were 45.2 cents, was 17.5 per cent. Average hours of work per week were reduced from 38.8 hours to 36.8 hours, or 5.2 per cent. Notwithstanding the reduction in hours of work per week, average weekly earnings increased from $19.25 to $19.46, or 1.1 per cent. This increase, however, was more than offset by a rise of 1.3 per cent in living costs, with the net result that real weekly earnings fell slightly, 0.2 per cent.

The number of persons employed in these 25 industries increased 2.8 per cent in September over August, a smaller month-to-month rise than was observed last month. This increase in employment together with the increase in actual weekly earnings made weekly payroll disbursements in September 3.9 per cent higher than in August. Total man-hours, however, fell off 2.5 per cent, indicating a slackening in business activity as compared with August.

AMUSEMENTS MADE STAR FOOTBALL PLAYER IN TWO WEEKS

Robert Young Learns the Game to Play Featured Role in "Saturday's Millions."

With an intensive course of training, and the right kind of teachers, it doesn't take a young man very long to become an adept football player.

When Robert Young was engaged for the leading role in Universal's stirring gridiron drama, "Saturday's Millions", coming Friday to the State theater, he had never played a game of football in his life. But in the picture he was to impersonate Jim Fowler, greatest player in the history of State University, and star of the thrilling game which brings the picture to a close.

And so Young was taken in hand by a score of actual football stars, who were to appear in the classic, headed by Ernie Nevers, character coach, as the most remarkable player ever turned out. Long practice sessions were held each day, and within two weeks the actor was, as the saying is, "a pretty fair grade of country football player." His ability to pass, kick and run with the ball stamped him as an apparent veteran of the game.

"I was pretty lame all over, and I had so many bruises that I couldn't count them," said Young after the picture was completed, "but I had a wonderful time, and I am wild-eyed football enthusiast from now on." The football field of Western University forms the background for much of the action of "Saturday's Millions." The fitness of this picture, coming when a large proportion of the public is tremendously interested in the present football season, is said to have resulted in crowded houses, and to have furnished an ideal outlet for the pent-up enthusiasm of gridiron fans. Even discounting the football atmosphere, it is said, "Saturday's Millions" is a highly dramatic story which is a constant succession of interesting situations.

Stage Show, Too In addition to "Saturday's Millions" the management of the State will present, for Friday and Saturday only, "The Century of Progress Revue." The revue features Jack Kneeland and His Hollywood Collegians orchestra and a line of gorgeous dancing girls. Their music, dancing and fun making will give the State patrons fifty minutes of real Broadway entertainment. There will be no advance in prices.

BEHAVIOR RULED BY ENVIRONMENT

Not Hereditary Says Mental Hygienist of State Health Board in Statement Today.

While heredity is important in determining an individual's physical and mental behavior, it is not as important as it was once thought and far more vital in that determination is the factor of environment, it was stated by Dr. S. Harcourt Peppard, director of the Bureau of Mental Hygiene of the State Department of Health, in a statement today. Dr. Peppard's talk was entitled, "Some reasons for our behavior."

Heredity is not nearly so important as those things which happen to an individual after he is born, although at birth he is furnished with certain potentialities for physical, intellectual and emotional growth. Dr. Peppard said. These potentialities do not change. The variable quantity is the opportunity for their development, governed by environmental factors, among them the attitude of parents and teachers. If an individual with potentialities for excellent physical growth is placed in a good environment where he gets proper attention and does not meet with severe illness or accident, he will develop into an adult of excellent physique. On the other hand, if such an individual were placed in an environment where his physical health was neglected or he was subjected to illness and accident, the probabilities that he will become a robust adult are extremely poor. Exactly the same relationship between potentialities and environ-

The cobblined 4-H clubs are planning a Country Fair to be held in the near future. Arrangements are now under way.

The Fairy Needle Club held a meeting at the home of Wilhelmina O'Hara Monday evening. The girls worked on articles which will be exhibited and sold at the Country Fair.

All arrangements for the Halloween party in which all Manchester members will take part have been completed. It is to be held in South Windsor Friday, October 27. Reports from the entertainment committee show that we are all in for a good time. Clubs from Suffield and Melrose will be guests.

The Original Challengers held a meeting at the home of Ruth Lussier last evening. The meeting was called to order in the usual way, following this the girls worked on their novelty articles. Local leader, Mrs. Lussier, showed the girls articles which they could take patterns from. The next meeting will be held November 7, at the same place.

The State 4-H Club exhibit is to be held at Storrs College October 27 and 28. Prize winners in the county contests are in competition and have re-entered their exhibits. The results will be published later. People from town who attended the World's Fair report that the 4-H clubs have a fine exhibit.

A senior service club meeting will be held in the county building Saturday, October 28. It will be a double surprise party for John S. Hale, ex-county Club Agent, who resigned to accept a position with a New York concern. Mr. Hale has done outstanding work in our county. Russell Anderson, who has been doing club work in Windham county will take his place. Any member 16 years or over is invited to attend.

The Dairy club will hold a meeting Friday, November 3, at the home of Franklin Lipp. All members are requested to be present as this is the first fall meeting. More 4-H Club news soon. Bernice G. Lipp.

Girl Scout News

Girl Scout Week Manchester Girl Scouts will do their part in celebrating national Girl Scout Week, October 29-November 4, which is dedicated to Juliette Low, founder of the Girl Scout movement in this country, whose birthday falls on Halloween in the middle of the week's celebration. The week opens with a note of reverence, when the girls in uniform will attend Center church, Sunday, October 29. Council members, leaders and Brownies are invited to attend with the Scouts and meet at the church at 10:30. Rev. Watson Woodruff will deliver an appropriate sermon.

Tuesday will be "Shopping Day" at the J. W. Hale Company. As this store is official headquarters for Girl Scout equipment, they are giving a small commission on the sales from all departments, except the grocery and drug departments, to the organization. Council members and leaders will be at the store throughout the day and they solicit the patronage of their friends and all interested in scouting.

The week ends with a bit of gaiety on Saturday, November 4, when the Officers' Association has planned a hike and invited the Council members and Brownie leaders to go with them.

Radio Broadcasts for Scout Week Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will speak to Girl Scouts and their friends over WJZ, New York, and the network of the National Broadcasting Company, Friday, November 3, from 5:00 to 5:15 p. m. Mrs. Roosevelt's talk will be the high spot of the National Broadcasting program which has been arranged for Girl Scout Week.

The United States Navy Band will broadcast a half-hour concert, dedicated to shut-ins, on Thursday, November 2, from 11:30-12:00 a. m. The concert, which will be given over WJAZ, New York, and the NBC network, will include selections from the Girl Scout song book. Miss Josephine Schain, national director, will give a short message of greeting during the broadcast.

Sunday, October 29, at 9 a. m., Girl Scout pipers, playing on their own handmade reed instruments, will broadcast for the first time over WJZ, New York, and the network of the NBC, as a special feature of "The Lady Next Door" program.

Quick Arrow Soap Flakes The Quick Arrow Soap Flakes contest is at its height, and we must do our very best and keep "at the top." It is a highly recommended product and several who have tried it have found that it gave very satisfactory results. The Girl Scout movement cannot continue unless all give it support. We ask all mothers, friends and those interested in scouting to vote for Girl Scouts.

Troop 1 We held our meeting at the Lincoln school, during which the new members received instructions for their tenderfoot tests. The meeting next week will be omitted, but on Saturday evening, October 28, there will be a Halloween social at the home of Captain Smith, 55 East Middle Turnpike, from 7:30 to 9:30 o'clock. All are requested to come in costume.

San Francisco—A little NIRA name sake of the recovery act, figured in a divorce complaint. She is five weeks old Nira. Marie Stettemyer and her mother, Cleo, accused Monroe Stettemyer of deserting her and Nira.

Tulsa, Okla.—Called for jury duty, A. W. Gordon, 91, refused to claim an exemption. "I'll not shirk my duty," he said.

Denver, Colo.—Seven fire trucks, three fire chiefs, 40 firemen, three police emergency cars and six patrolmen helped Gerald Shawcroft mail his letter. Shawcroft mistook a fire alarm box for a mail box.

NO CLASS DISTINCTION Hollywood, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Hollywood forgot its class distinction among actors today when the Screen Actors' Guild announced that extra and bit players would be taken into the organization in its fight against "salary control" features of the proposed picture industrial code.

"For the first time in motion picture history," said Ken Thompson, secretary of the Guild, "There are no class distinctions and no castes among the players. The star and the extra will work together to solve their mutual problems."

Among leading actors who yesterday joined the Guild were Dolores Del Rio, Joan Bennett, and Ricardo Cortez.

GOES SIX DAYS WITHOUT CARRYING ASHES because he uses Koppers Coke

YOU and the old furnace can be friends again, when it makes only one small painful of ashes per week—and that's all you'll get when you use the high-test fuel.

Koppers Coke makes less ashes. It gives more heat, less waste, in every ton. And you get action the minute you open the draft in the morning—the whole house warms up while you put on your clothes.

Koppers Coke is a great fuel to use if you follow three simple rules. (1) Fill fire pot heaping full. It burns slowly with the drafts closed—and is ready to flood your house with warmth in the morning. (2) Shake less—just a few jiggles once a day, less frequently in mild weather, because it makes so little ashes. (3) Use less draft—because it's concentrated fuel and burns evenly without forcing.

Best of all—it costs nearly $2 per ton less and you get more heat, less waste in every ton.

Better phone your fuel dealer now—or call Koppers Connecticut Coke Company—and try this fuel that makes a new friend of your furnace.

Sundays, 9:30 P. M. Wednesdays, 8:30 P. M.

The Bureau of Mines of the United States Department of the Interior in its Bulletin No. 242 says: "Coke should be used for heating houses because it is a clean and convenient fuel."

SAVES MONEY He and the wife go to a theatre free every week on the savings—because Koppers Coke gives more heat, less waste per ton.

SAVES TROUBLE You can sleep 20 or 30 minutes later in the morning, because heat comes up instantly when you open the draft.

HERE'S WHY Above is left is the new product, coal as mined from the earth. Note its density. At the right is the finished product. Fewer—that's why it gives quick heat. Redder and proportioned—that's why it gives more heat. Superbly improved—that's why it lights and cleans to handle. Makes no mess when you want to pull a weed.

Forgotten Sweetheart

By MARY RAYMOND

BEGIN HERE TODAY
JOAN WARING, pretty Memphis girl, and BOB WESTON, son of a New York millionaire, meet in Memphis and fall in love. Through the scheming of BARBARA COURTNEY, who is trying to take Bob away from Joan, they become estranged.

PAT WARING, Joan's younger sister, is in an automobile accident in which JERRY FORRESTER, her escort, is killed. Her father runs away to New York and Joan follows. In New York, Joan begins a search for her sister and also a search for a job. She is engaged to sing at a night club owned by BARNEY BLAKE, who proves a steadfast friend.

Barney persuades Joan to move into the apartment where his stepmother lives to act as her companion. Joan hears of another southern girl, a model, out of a job, who is ill with pneumonia. Fearing that the girl may be Pat, she rushes to find her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXV
 Pat's illness climaxed two weeks of hunting for a job without encouragement. As the days passed, the loneliness had begun to oppress her, and her appetite failed. Often she had been too tired to prepare food and her evening meal would be only a can of soup.

At the end of each day she was just a little more discouraged than before. "Return the first of next month. Things might open up by then." Other executives were less encouraging. Summer, they said, was a poor time to be job hunting. Everything was slack. And on and on.

"I'll get a job if there's one to be had in New York," she had thought. Her fighting spirit was aroused. She had heard of girls, whipped into accepting defeat, but they had not the same incentive she had.

She couldn't go back to Memphis where everybody stared and whispered that Jerry who was killed with Jerry Forrester when he was killed. They'd been at a road house—

Pat's curved lips set in a straight line at the thought, and she drove herself a little harder. She was thinner and she had developed a cold. She had intended to stop at the drug store on the corner and get something for it, but always she seemed too tired, or too engrossed in her thoughts when she passed.

One morning she awakened to the sound of rain. That meant nothing another day. It might mean a job lost. And it meant, too, a whole day to be spent alone.

A day alone would be intolerable. What was a little rain? Pat told herself she could walk close to the side of stores on her way up the subway. And on the way home she would buy a bottle of cough medicine. There had been a dull ache in her chest for two days now.

She almost gave up the idea of going out while she was eating her breakfast. She can't miss that, she thought. Her head was aching dreadfully. There were no advertisements that looked encouraging maybe she would stay at home after all.

She ran downstairs to the apartment occupied by Mrs. Baker, her landlady, who saved the morning newspaper for her. Mrs. Baker seemed grateful because Pat had paid an entire month's rent in advance.

Back in her room, Pat turned to the "Help Wanted—Female" column. The first advertisement caught her eye: "Wanted, young girl of neat appearance and pleasing personality. Swift typist and accurate in shorthand. Good job for right party."

Pat had been considered a good stenographer and an accurate and rapid typist. "I can't miss that," she decided. "I'll get ready early. The early bird lands the job."

But when Pat, in her damp coat and soaked hat, reached the address, she found the outside hall half-dark with gloom, though a sign had been conspicuously posted in a closed door, "Place has been filled."

A girl with dark, cynical eyes looked hard at Pat and said in an audible voice to another girl, "The depression must be hard on a lot of office wives! Even the prettiest don't get jobs these days."

Pat left, feeling very sick and blue. She caught the surface car home. It was a long, tiring ride and she was shaking when she got out of the car.

In her eagerness to reach her room she passed the drug store again without stopping. The shaking had increased and Pat got in bed, piling all the covers she could find over herself, and adding her winter coat.

She was having a chill. It had been stupid to go out. And there was no medicine. Perhaps she would feel better after a while. Perhaps the rain would stop and she could go to the drug store. Soon she began to feel hot, terribly hot and dizzy. Oh, if only Joan were here!

What was the name of the hotel where Joan was stopping? Oh, yes, she remembered—the Breckenridge. When she felt better, she would call Mrs. Baker and ask her to telephone Joan.

Barney and Joan entered the bare little room where Pat had been waiting her game night. Now Joan was on her knees her lips against Pat's cheek, her tears on Pat's white face.

The doctor, a worried, nervous little man, came forward. "She doesn't know any one," he said. "She's been delirious for hours."

"You're the sister?" Mrs. Baker asked. When Joan nodded, the woman continued. "We tried to get you at the hotel. They said you had gone."

Joan felt she was being punished for her carelessness in not leaving a forwarding address—punished more than she could bear.

Barney left the room to find a telephone. He called a hospital. "It's pneumonia. I want the best doctor you can get!" he stated briefly.

Then another call, relief in his tone. "As fast as you can get here, doctor. And bring your best nurse."

By night Pat's room had taken on a different aspect. A uniformed nurse was moving capably about. One of New York's most famous physicians sat close by the bed, watching the still, white face, placing practiced hand on the fluttering pulse.

Joan was sitting beside the window, praying fervently. She had refused to leave Pat even for a short time. And then toward morning a smile lightened the grave face of the physician. The tension was lifted. "You must get some sleep now," the nurse told Joan. "Your sister is better. She's going to get well."

Joan went across the narrow hall to throw herself across the bed and weep her heart out, thankfully.

The physician's hand relaxed. Joan stayed on at the dingy rooming house and Barney spent much of his time there, ready to rush off in his car if there were errands.

On the fourth day Pat's blue eyes deep now in a white face which seemed much too small for them, opened wide. "Lo, Joan!"

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

CORRECT DIET NOT HARD TO ACHIEVE
 We don't hear so much nowadays about obesity counting, except perhaps where a member of the family is dieting.

Perhaps it is better so, because I really believe we reached a stage where the average mother dreaded the remark "Cooking turned into arithmetic." If she was too busy to count food units she had a feeling that she wasn't quite doing her duty and that any digestive ailment in the family was due to her lack of bookkeeping.

We graduated from calories to health and growth, there is still too much discussion of vitamins and vitamins so to speak. And although I think the subject more important than that of calories in getting up balanced meals and providing the children with those mysterious chemicals necessary to health and growth, there is still too much discussion of vitamins and vitamins so to speak.

Hard to "Avoid" Right Foods!
 Not long ago I read a discussion of the subject by a doctor who specializes in dietetics. He made the remark that with the varieties of food available in nearly all communities of our country today it would be difficult to go wrong. That actually it would be harder to avoid necessary food values than to get them.

The diet of all babies up to a year old should be suggested by a doctor or a clinic. During the second year the mother should have professional advice about the baby's food every three months or so.

After that she should have a general idea either by reading good books on the subject or by consulting a dependable source—her physician.

For one thing he will tell her that cake and pie, hot cakes, heavy puddings and any rich desserts are not good food for little children. Older children eating considerably, may have a minimum of some of these things, he will explain, without coming to harm—provided they are well, digest easily, and do not eat them at night.

Milk and Lots of It
 He will urge her to see that each child has a great deal of milk, both plain and cooked in food—as much as she can afford.

Not too much meat will be his next warning. It should never be fried, but either baked, boiled or broiled. Fish, eggs, or chicken are good alternates, especially those that grow above ground. The others are valuable too, but should not be used to the exclusion of the leafy ones.

Starches are all right but a meal should not contain more than one starch, bread, dried, or canned. It contains four forms of starch and little else. A bad combination indeed!

Food Variety Not Costly
 Some form of butter fat is necessary and so is some form of fruit, either fresh, dried, or canned. These are things you guide, the doctor, will tell you, I think. Also that the children must not "bolt" food but chew it well. That should be happy at mealtime but not excited. That fresh cooked food has more value than left-overs. That vegetable soup is very nourishing. That children should not be allowed to form too many "food habits" and eat only the few things that they like best.

Furriers sometimes have to go through as many as 300 rabbit furs to find 30 of equal appearance.

Experts say that a herring contains, weight for weight, as much nourishment as a good beefsteak.

Manhattan Island still has a cave which the early Indians used as a home.

There was a decline of 40,000 last year in the number of auto tourists from the United States to Canada.

The first Pullman car was built in 1859.

More pedestrians are injured by falling than are injured by automobiles.

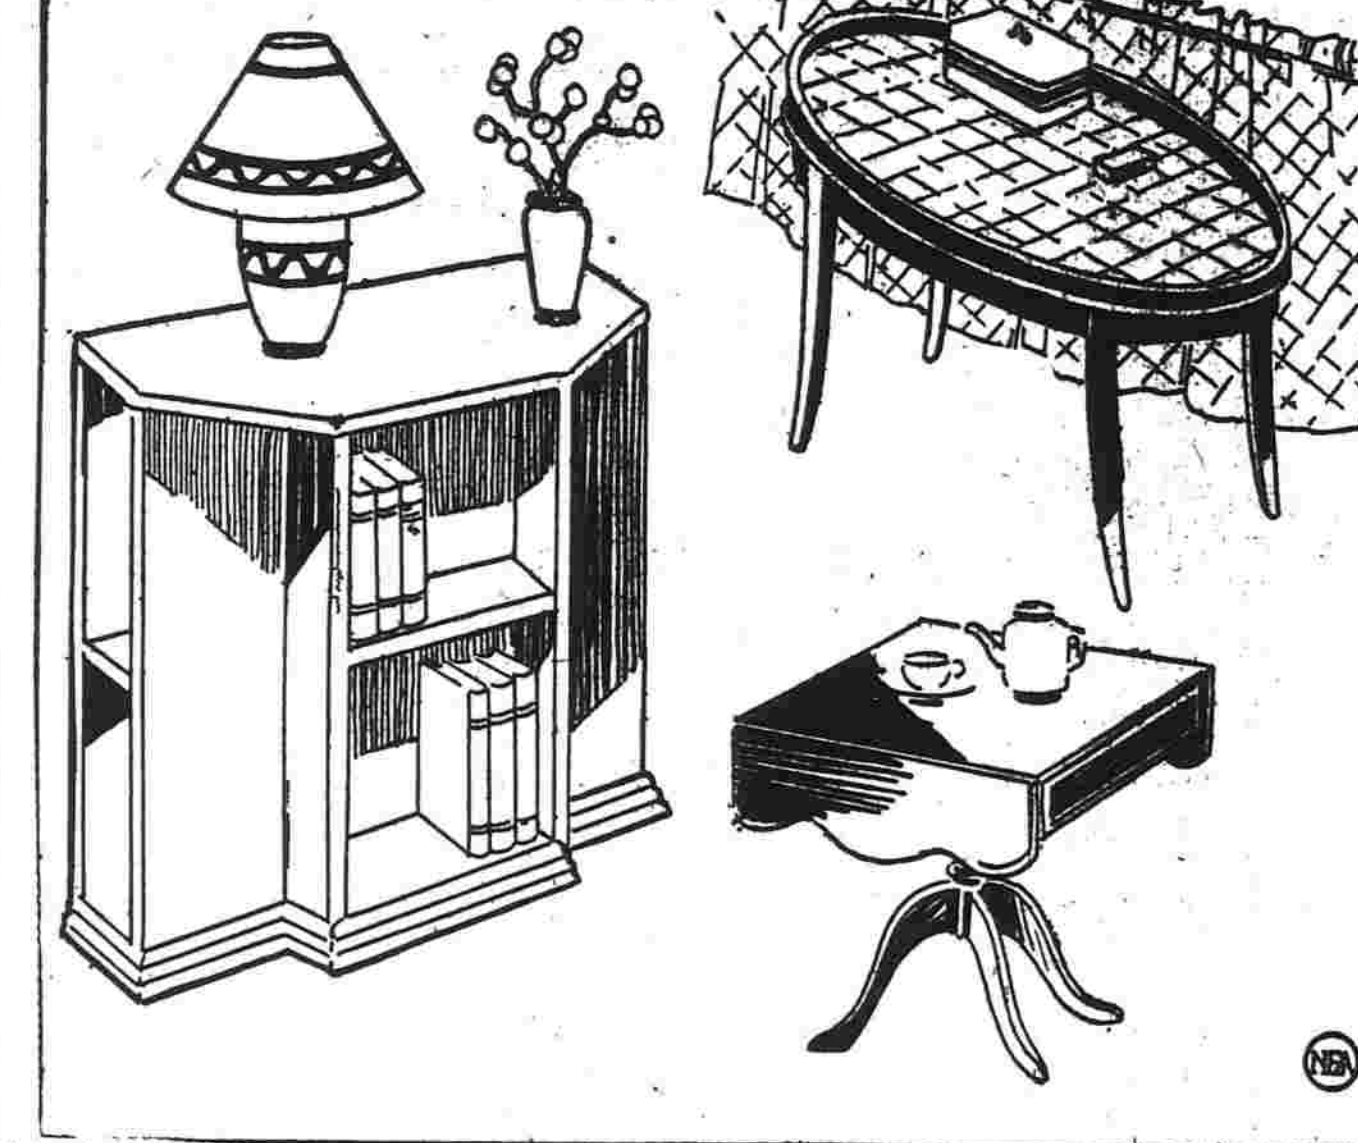

Cooking gophers do not carry dirt in their cheek pouches; they push the dirt from the hole with their heads and feet.

The forest measuring worm, when alarmed, will stand out so straight and stiff from a limb that even the birds think him a small twig and pass him by.

FOR YOUR COMFORT TAKE THESE TIPS ON TABLES

Bookcase Serves As A Rest For Lamp And Vase

A low bookcase (left) that goes against the wall beside a chair has a table top which holds a lamp and vase. The little coffee table (foreground) has ends that can be raised when extra guests drop in for the cover on the daybed.

more than the expected number of guests.

Tier tables are quite new and give you plenty of room for odds and ends that go on a table. The top shelf can hold a lamp and the bottom one may be used for magazines and books. These are particularly good for mother's room, since they hold her mending basket, glasses and her favorite book.

A tier table on wheels—sometimes known as a tea cart—is the forte of the hostess who has no maid. It can be wheeled in, laden with food for the various courses of the dinner, and placed just beside the hostess' chair so she can serve from it instead of having to run back and forth to the kitchen. There are innumerable new varieties of this type of utility table.

Bookcase Serves As Table
 Little low bookshelves have been invented that are just right for a reading lamp and the same time high enough to hold reading matter, they are ideal for both living and bedrooms.

Every bed needs a table beside it and one nice idea is to match a piece of cloth which goes under the glass on a glass topped table to your bedspread or the drapes.

If you're getting a table with an eye to modernizing your home, remember that straight legs are better than gate legs. Also remember that plenty of tables, no matter what the size and shape of their legs, are far better than an inadequate supply.

By BRUCE CATTON

The unending conflict which the world of the spirit must wage with the workaday world of everyday life has found expression in everything that the very gifted H. M. Tomlinson has written. His exposition of this conflict has led him to create some extremely fine literature; but in the case of his latest book "The Snows of Helicon," it has caused him to write a novel which cannot be classed otherwise than as a failure.

"The Snows of Helicon," that is, falls because the narrative gets lost in Mr. Tomlinson's metaphysics. What purports to be a story becomes a series of soliloquies, a loosely-connected chain of essays. This doesn't matter so much, perhaps, because Mr. Tomlinson is always worth listening to. But you can't help feeling that a good story has been spoiled.

The book is the story of an English architect. The architect feels that modern man has won the world at the price of his immortal soul; has gained power, but he has lost the spirit of beauty.

The architect learns that an industrial concern has bought an island in the Aegean Sea and is going to tear down an ancient temple to Apollo in order to erect some sort of modern improvement. It seems to him supremely important to prevent this from happening. He gives himself up to a quixotic effort to save the old temple and, finally, loses his life in the attempt.

The thread of action gets spun pretty thin. Now and then it vanishes altogether. But even so, "The Snows of Helicon" is abundantly worth reading. Mr. Tomlinson has something to say, and he says it beautifully.

Published by Harpers, this book sells for $3.50.

The Duke of Wellington is credited with first use of the phrase "circumstances over which I have no control," in reference to his military complications with which his son was involved in 1809 or 1810.

Luxurious easy chairs and fine reading lamps are, of course, necessary and important, but you'll lose the point of your domestic happiness plot if you don't include a table in each furniture group.

No easy chair can fulfill its purpose unless there is a little table along side of it to hold a lamp for reading, supply you with smokes or be handy for your spectacles and book.

Sometimes a table can be placed between two chairs and furnish two reading nooks in one furniture group.

Enables a thoroughly modern invention, are utility persons. Every member of your family and each guest who sinks into one of your club chairs looks around for and expects to find an end table or one side of the chair.

Even a divan that is backed up by a long library table calls for little end tables. It's entirely too uncomfortable to have to turn all the way around to flick ashes from a cigarette.

Three-Way Table Smart
 There is a new three-way table that is invaluable to the hostess who serves informal buffet suppers. Raised to its full height, it suits anyone who sits on the divan or in a chair. Lowered to its second level, it will please the person who addresses sitting on a low hassock. Besides these features, it can be completely folded up to make an adequate serving tray.

The coffee table was invented originally for the hostess who served afternoon tea or after dinner coffee in her living room. But the coffee table of today stays up all the time and has come to be known equally well as a table for cigarette boxes and matches.

New lacquered coffee tables with collapsible legs can be folded up to rest in the closet until you need them again. These are splendid for the housewife who lives in a small apartment and who still likes the gesture of five o'clock tea or after dinner coffee when friends drop in.

Nests of coffee tables are new too. Heretofore, only high tables were made in nests. These little things come with three or four to a set and can be pulled apart to give several, buffet supper or tea guests a place to set cups and saucers.

Some of the coffee table nests have a dropped panel on one side and, completely conceals the fact that there is more than one table. Others have a tiny drawer in which you can have your spoons or other silver ready for tea.

Square tea tables, to go in front of the divan, have dropped edges—one on each side—so you can make the table larger if you have nights when youngsters and oldersters go in for monkey shins and parade the streets. We owe it to ourselves to forget who we are and what we are and spin in circles, yelling "Ki-yi!" if we want to. The madder and merrier we are, the more bottled-up blues will spill on the street for the winds to blow away.

Destruction of Property
 Liberty, however, does not mean license, and deliberate annoyance and destruction is another story. Stealing gates and garbage cans, ruining parked cars, hanging chairs on telegraph poles isn't real fun.

All responsible parents know this. There is little use enlarging on the subject, except as a reminder to talk turkey to the kids before they go out.

Today I have another subject in mind that I think needs attention. After wandering through the stores to see what's what in the latest for Halloween, I came away with one impression. Our costume makers have gone in for horrors. Instead of accenting the joyous, the jolly and the silly, they have devised more vicious visions than ever Dante saw in hell.

In one window of a hundred false faces, the evil eye looked out of every one of them. I turned away shuddering and wondered what a baby would do if any one of these faces were to be put on to him in his crib.

Avoid Frightening Babies
 Now I think that most older children have stomachs that will stand even a Dracula mask. But they have to be old enough to know that it is only a piece of saw-foam smelling cardboard after all and not a vampire that lusts for blood. But tiny children are different. They get frightened so easily.

A skull takes on uncanny life when a voice speaks through it and real eyes leer through the sockets. A mask off and a mask on are two entirely different things.

So I beg mothers not to allow the older children to frighten the little ones. You may think that such a scare will pass off when it is over and the baby sees that the big bad wolf is "only our Harry." A real shock does not pass off so easily and may shadow his life. If you come home and found your house on fire the shock would not pass in a day. It is the same thing, only the baby's nerve fibre is more impressionable than yours.

He can be spared it and should be.

YOU'LL LOOK WELL, FEEL WELL IF YOU STAND AND SIT RIGHT

Children's Comfort and Appearance Depend on Proper Sitting and Frequent Changes in Posture

By DR. MORRIS FISHERMAN
 Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Again and again I have emphasized the importance of proper sitting and standing for comfort and good appearance.

In the first place, every desk and every chair should be designed to fit the persons who use them. If the seat you occupy is too low, your shoulders will become rounded and your head will droop.

Every seat in school should be made so that the child's elbows may lean on the desk without making him lean over or stretch.

Many schools have uniform seats for the children in each grade, while the children may vary considerably in height and size. It would be better if every schoolroom had a few desks of odd sizes to accommodate the children who have to sit at them.

Dr. R. Tait McKenzie, famous Philadelphia sculptor and specialist on physical education, emphasizes the importance of change of posture at various intervals, to rest the tissues. The child becomes weary unless allowed to exercise and change position occasionally.

If a boy sits too long in one place, the upper part of his body will lean forward and press against his desk, constricting his circulation and disturbing his blood supply. This relieves the strain of this posture, the boy is likely to slump back in the seat, resting on his shoulder blades and the lower end of his spine.

Then the back is not supported properly, that it sags down and the muscles and ligaments of the backbone so that the back becomes rounded and the chin is shoved forward.

In correct sitting posture, you should be erect. Your head should be poised to bring the center of gravity in the line joining the seat bones. This posture makes a seat demand on energy and tends to good posture when standing.

You should also see that your child sits properly when reading or writing at a desk.

Children in the higher grades in school should have at least two five-minute periods during their hours of study when they may stand and stretch and perhaps take a few corrective exercises. These should be in addition to the games played during recess.

Purposes of the exercises are to encourage deep breathing and to aid circulation of the blood, to counteract the stagnation associated with sitting long in one position.

Quotations--
 I hate biographies and will write no more of them. Biography writing has become an industry.
 —Emil Ludwig, biographer and historian.

Think of something new. The public has seen my legs.
 —Marlene Dietrich, to persistent photographers.

This is the third anniversary of my marriage to George Kelly—and what an anniversary!
 —Katherine Kelly, wife of "Machine Gun" Kelly.

Europe is not afraid of the inflationary acts of this government. What it fears is that President Roosevelt will reduce the gold content of the dollar by half.
 —Senator Key Pittman, Nevada.

If beer of higher alcoholic content than 3.2 per cent is authorized by law, it should be sold only in bottles and in connection with hard liquor.
 —William L. Goetz, president American Brewers' Association.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL
 And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Barin' to Go

If you feel low and your head aches, don't waste your money on calomel. Calomel is a poison and it will do you more harm than good. It will irritate your bowels and make you feel worse. You should use a safe and effective laxative like TUMS. TUMS is a natural, vegetable-based laxative that works gently and effectively. It won't irritate your bowels or make you feel worse. It will help you feel better and wake up in the morning barin' to go.

CAMPAIGN IN N. Y. IS GROWING BITTER

time of the charges that the candidacy of McKee, Recovery Party aspirant, is linked with Washington, Tammany raised the question of reprisal against its anti-Roosevelt stand in the Chicago Democratic convention of 1932.

Daniel F. Cohan, a member of the Tammany war board, remarked that McKee's principal backers were "all hard boiled practical politicians, with no record in any case of undue devotion to ideas or ideals," and asked categorically:

"Is Edward J. Flynn (Bronx Democratic leader and close friend of Post-Master General James A. Farley), only inspired by ambition to be through Mr. McKee—the boss of the city of New York, or is it that Mr. McKee is taking his orders from some bigger bosses in the background who want to work out revenge for the past or ambition for the future by overthrowing the present Democratic leadership?"

Offers No Apology
Samuel Seabury, Fusion Captain, offered no apology for the Fusion candidate—LaGuardia—on LaGuardia's recent accusation that Flynn and McKee were morally responsible for the suicide of Louis H. Willard, a witness before the Hofstadter graft committee.

"So far as I know," Seabury said in a campaign speech, "Edward J. Flynn or Mr. McKee had no direct relation of any kind or description to the Willard case. As I understand it, Major LaGuardia's explanation is that it was his eighth or ninth speech he made that day."

His inference, it was pointed out, was that LaGuardia was fatigued from an arduous day and had confused the issue.

The incident grew out of LaGuardia's declaration that the Bronx Democratic leader had control over the political forces which Willard blamed for his wife's suicide, and which his friends later blamed for his own death.

McKee charged that LaGuardia is a worker in a "plot to put us under the politics and philosophy of Moscow."

HEFLIN MAY RUN

Washington, Oct. 26.—(AP)—J. Thomas Hefflin, Alabama's former Senator, said in a statement today he was giving "serious consideration" to entering the race next year for election as Representative to Congress from the Fifth Alabama District.

Hefflin was retired to private life after he bolted the Democratic Party when Al Smith was the standard bearer in 1928.

If Hefflin enters the campaign for the post now held by Miles Allgood, he will take up where he began as a young man. He first was sent to Congress from the Fifth District in 1904.

McADOO APPROVES MOVE TO RECOGNIZE RUSSIA

McAdoo, in a statement today, said that he was "much impressed by the progress and activity that I saw. There were no loafers around and I was assured there was no unemployment in Russia."

"Of course it is true that because the government runs everything a place to work is found for everybody. And I am informed that if you do not work when the opportunity is presented you cannot get tickets to buy at the government store."

"The people of the street were well dressed, well fed, and they seemed to be happy and contented,"

SENSE and NONSENSE

WINTER FANTS: Some people can see the funny side of every situation except their own. . . . Right-seeing is all right but it can be overdone. . . . Few of us are able to keep within hailing distance of our good intentions. . . . A careful man is one who meets his enemies phone to phone. . . . Modesty and politeness often pay much better than high ability. . . . Anyone can and a beginning, but too many of us find the ending in the middle. . . . Optimism is more likely to run amuck than pessimism. . . . We lay our misfortunes to the Lord and our successes to our own foresight and ability. . . . Modern bathing suits for women should be either reformed or abolished. . . . About the worst way for a country to go to the dogs is for it to go to the war dogs. . . . "To err is human." But few are human enough to admit the error. . . . Modern life consists mostly of keeping up appearances and living down experiences. . . . Most of what goes into the files might better go into the wastebasket. . . . The one trouble with our "influential friends" is that most of them lack influence. . . . Don't criticize folks for what they do. Maybe it's because they ain't got the money. . . . We learn to assume responsibility by being made to suffer the consequences of our acts.

Aren't the girl babies named Nira getting a start over the boys named Newdeal?

The foreman was going from one man to another with a sheet of paper in his hand. When he came to Sandy McTavish he said: Foreman—Sandy, this is a subscription to get some flowers for Jim Lomond who died yesterday. All your work-mates have given 50 cents towards it. Sandy—Ooh, mon, that'll make me an' Jim square the noo. He owed me 50 cents, anyway.

Many a girl who thought she had a boy "in the bag," found herself "holding the sack."

Walter—Well, Judge, what'll you have for breakfast; have you ever tried any ob ouah hard boiled eggs, sir? Judge—Yes, and I found them guilty.

"Speaking of distant relatives," says a local man, "the relationship between butterfat and butter is the most distant."

Brown—How's Jones getting on lately? I've not seen him for some time.

Smith—Oh, he's not feeling well; had to keep to a strict diet.

Brown—What's wrong with him? Indigestion?

Smith—No. In jail.

THE MORE TIME YOU HAVE TO SPEND IN OTHER PEOPLE'S BUSINESS, THE LESS YOU'RE SPENDING ON YOUR OWN.

Whether a man is running a hotel, a bank, or a railroad he must follow identical principles, and one of these is to treat every customer as though the success of the enterprise depended on that individual's trade.

A busy city man entered a telephone booth and asked for: "Double-two, double-two." "Two, two, two, two!" replied the operator, reproachfully. "All right," sighed the city man, "but get my number first, and we'll play trains afterwards."

MAN-MAKING
We are blind until we see that in the human plan Nothing is worth the making if it does not make the man.

Why build these cities glorious if man unbuilds goes? In vain we build the world unless The builder also grows.
—Edward Markham.

Church Member—Brother, do you ever find it hard to remain a Christian? Head Deacon—I should say I do, especially when I listen to some of the fellows talk after I have helped elect them to office. There should be days of grace on which a Christian is allowed to use a machine gun without penalty.

DID WORK OF MEN TO CARRY GOSPEL

Rev. Stella Crooks Tells of Her Ventures As An Evangelist.

Baring her twenty years of adventure as a woman "preacher," Rev. Stella B. Crooks of Chicago at the Nazarene church, held her audience tense last night as she unraveled the story of how she filled in where only men had ventured before. Blistering her hands driving stakes of her camp meeting tent in hill villages, living in her little tent on vacant lots and riding the rocking stages over the high Sierras to mountain settlements, was her lot for six years.

For two hours, Mrs. Crooks, short, dynamic and beaming with humor, told her interesting story of a life lived under conditions that might well make any male quit in disgust. But not Manchester's guest-Evangelist. Her pathway along the line of duty had been cut as clear as the orbit of the stars and equally as immovable. Starting out along the road of Evangelism, battling first of all, a strong aversion on the part of both men and women to harbor a woman in the capacity of preacher, she first won the esteem of those hardy pioneers, and then for a period of six years visited nearly every hamlet and lumber camp, rangeland depot, and mountain village in the land first crossed by the intrepid Lewis and Clark.

The story of her early life was in effect the recital of a direct call to serve; the laying of the foundation of a life devoted to Christianity, buffeted by a strong disregard for allowing a woman in the pulpit, either in established churches or along the highways and by-ways of early Evangelism. That she fought courageously, whipping her adversaries wherever met; building a permanent reputation during the succeeding years after her first call to preach in a church in Everett, Washington in 1913.

Born in Ohio, Stella B. Blankenburg was born a twin in a small village in Ohio, of a devoted, Christian mother and a hard-working father. She took the opposite path of her twin sister, going to dances, shows, card parties, and the like, much to the sorrow of her mother and sister. Her mother continued to pray; her sister to point by example, yet to no effect. She continued to indulge in the joys of living as she then knew it. Then the scene changed and with dramatic suddenness. She was struck with power on the dance hall floor. She left her partner in the midst of a heavy waltz and successively quit cards, shows, and even her lover, which she admitted was one of the hardest things she had to bear through the transformation period. And then in due time came the irrefragable call to preach and the long struggle against convention.

From the little Ohio town, the little Ohio girl's pathway led westward; first to Chicago, then across the bleak northern prairies to the state of Washington where she met her husband-to-be, Rev. Crooks, Methodist Evangelist. They were later married and with her husband she toured the outlying settlements and hill towns in the northwest for two years. Returning from British Columbia, and while crossing a ferry from Vancouver, her husband fell dead at her feet. It was the turning point in her life. To go back on the call for service or to continue on alone, was the question facing Stella Crooks after the body of her husband had been taken off the ferry and hurried to a doctor's office and then to the undertakers.

Her First Call While making the decision, a call came from the church in Everett, Washington. "Come at once," was the import of the message from the pastor of the church. She did, packing her trunk on the spur of the moment, her first attempt to preach, were two Doctors of Divinity, one from far-away New York. Critical and pessimistic as they might have been on this, her first venture into the ministry, she was strengthened in her faith as she watched the pastor's mate in the front row, nodding and giving her inspiration as she spoke extemporaneously, without text, telling the simple story of a call to preach that would not be downed. The effect was electrical. She had won her first victory with honors, on sheer nerve alone.

The story of Stella Crooks' life down through the years is too long to give here. It runs the gamut of paths, romance, hardship, privation, starvation and labor, not only of the physical kind, but verbal battles with busy lumberjacks and hideout individuals and factions—even to the reformation and transformation of the members of churches and pastors of the denominations.

Covered the Country And so her life was "pent, up and down the rangelands, across the mountains, riding in springless stages, preaching to congregations of cowboys and woodsmen with few other women in attendance. She won her way to the top after six years and received calls for her services throughout the entire length and breadth of the country. She has preached the Word in more states, probably than any other woman preacher and served for two years as Secretary of the General Board of Missions of the Nazarene church during which time it was her duty to travel from coast to coast visiting home missions.

From "Ballroom to Pulpit" was the transition of just another country girl called to greater service, the simple story of a purposeful life, backed up by a true conversion. The largest attendance in the history of the Church of the Nazarene listened for two hours to the interesting recital last night.

Professor J. Bryon Crouse, Gospel singer, accompanied by Mrs. Crouse rendered several Evangelistic numbers. The revival series will conclude Sunday evening.

INVITES BOY SCOUTS TO FOOTBALL GAME
 To Be Guests at Storrs on Saturday for Connecticut State-Trinity Clash

An invitation to all Boy Scouts in Manchester to attend the Connecticut State-Trinity gridiron clash at Storrs Saturday afternoon has been extended by Coach Sumner A. Dole of the State team, it was announced today by David McComb, an official of the local Scoutmaster's Association.

This game is one of the outstanding contests of the season for Connecticut State and the battles between the two schools have always been close and hard fought from start to finish. The game will be played at Gardner Dow field, located near the school buildings. It will start at 2 o'clock.

All Scouts must be in uniform and accompanied by Scout leaders. Each troop in Manchester will furnish its own transportation to the game. A special meeting of the Scoutmaster's Association will be held at 8 o'clock tonight.

NOTICE!
 The Water will be shut off tonight at 11 o'clock in all streets north of the railroad tracks including Buckland. This will not affect the water service in Oakland and Oakland street. We expect the water will be turned on for morning use.

MERCURY DROPS TO SEASON'S LOW

Reported Down to 22 Degrees This Morning — Rain Due Tonight.

Manchester residents shivered and went forth clad in heavy wraps yesterday afternoon and today as a biting wind from the northwest sent thermometers tumbling to 22 degrees at 8 o'clock last night and caused them to register 26 degrees this morning at 9 o'clock. A thermometer outside the Evening Herald building, which was in line with the sun's rays at 9 o'clock today registered 26 degrees. The lowest reported here this morning was 22 degrees.

A thin coating of ice covered the drinking fountain in Center Park and the water trough at the Center opposite the postoffice. Difficulty was experienced by some motorists in starting the chilled motors in their cars. The expected heavy white frost did not materialize except where the ground was low.
 Rain tonight and possibly tomorrow is the forecast and "his, it is believed, will take the sharpness out of the air. Coal and wood dealers reported today a brisker demand for fuel on account of the sudden change to colder weather.
