

BIG SEARCH IS ON FOR PAYROLL THUGS

Made Clean Escape With Over $6,000 From a Bridgeport Factory.

Bridgeport, Oct. 31. (AP)—Search for the bandits who yesterday kidnaped two officials of the H. O. Canfield Company and robbed them of $6,675.25, led to New York City today.

H. Archibald Mayne, of Southport, vice president and treasurer of the company and Stephen R. Tomlinson, assistant treasurer, who were abducted and robbed by the bandits, today went to New York, accompanied by Detective Sergeant William Buckley. There they will spend hours scanning the files of criminal photographs in the police headquarters building attempting to find the pictures of the two bandits who kidnaped them.

Bold Mobbey

The audacity of the kidnaping and robbery and the manner in which the robbery was carried through, along with the fact that the bandit driver of the automobile in which the Canfield officials were abducted seemed unfamiliar with local roads, have convinced the police that the thugs were out of town professionals.

An alarm to all places concerned in an alarm to today for the diamond ring, valued at $180 and the gold watch valued at $75 which the bandits took from Tomlinson before leaving him and Mayne tied and gagged in Mayne's automobile in Trumbull.

KIDNAPING TRIAL ON

Kansas City, Oct. 31.—(AP)—George McGee went to trial today on kidnaping charges arising out of the abduction for ransom last spring of Miss Mary McElroy, daughter of City Manager Henry F. McElroy.

M. W. O'Hara, assistant prosecutor, announced that the death penalty will be asked. Walter McGee, older brother of George, is under death sentence in connection with the kidnaping.

EARL JOHNSON DIES WHEN CAR CRASHES

three years he has been employed as a counterman, at 6 o'clock this morning. Apparently he was alone in the machine at the time, for State Policeman Buckley said it would have been impossible for another passenger to have survived after the crash. Johnson was pitched out of the automobile and his body was found about 60 feet away from the car in the direction of Manchester.

Hunters Find Body

The youth must have been dead only ten or fifteen minutes before his body was found by Hugo Pagan, of 123 Eldridge street, and Leo and Joseph Paulin, of 343 School street, Manchester, who were taking the Bolton Center road to go hunting in Hebron.

Pagan and the Paulin brothers came upon the body in a sand bank on the south side of the Bolton Center road, perhaps half a mile from the point where this road joins the state highway, better known as Nigger Hill, and not far from the spot where Dominick Aquarino, spot checker at Manchester High school and Manchester High school athlete met his death in an automobile accident, May 15, 1932.

Near Sand Bank

Johnson's head was lying nearest the road and his feet were at the edge of a sand bank at the side of the thoroughfare. The badly damaged automobile apparently had turned around and was facing Bolton Center, where the three indicated that the machine had left the road 398 feet from where it struck the pile of trap rock and then had turned over three times at least, traveling a further distance of 110 feet before coming to a stop. The body of Johnson, according to State Policeman Buckley and Coroner John Yeomans, of Tolland County, was 60 feet from the car.

Hits Trap Rock Pile

It is believed that in coming around the curve of the road that leads to Bolton Center, the death car had gone from the east corner against a pile of trap rock on the west shoulder of the road. From there the automobile shot down a hill, out of the driver's control, moving over three and continued moving 110 feet before coming to a stop.

The total distance that the car traveled from the time it first went out of control to where it was found smashed was 308 feet and about 385 feet from the spot where the Manchester hunters discovered the body.

Cassels on Scene

When Pagan and the Paulin brothers came upon the scene of the tragedy they communicated with the Manchester police. Policeman Walter Cassels was assigned to the scene and to render whatever help was found to be necessary. Later a call was put in for Coroner Yeomans, who arrived within half an hour and gave permission for the removal of the body in the Quish ambulance to the Quish undertaking parlors here. Dr. Ferguson, the medical examiner, subsequently examined the body and determined the cause of death. The left arm also was broken, but the multiple skull fractures were the direct cause of Johnson's death.

Dead Youth Popular

Johnson was popular among his associates here. All of whom were shocked to learn of his death. He was born in Manchester and lived here all his life. He was graduated from Manchester High school in 1930 and since then has been employed as a counterman at the Silk City Diner. He was a well liked member of Emanuel Lutheran church. The dead youth is survived by his parents: three sisters, the Misses Anna, Edith and Ruth Johnson and two brothers, Herman and John Johnson.

Funeral Arrangements

Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

Left Home Last Night

Johnson left his home at 7 o'clock last night, according to his father. Apparently he spent the night out of town with friends and was returning to work this morning when yesterday to the metropolitan district.

Silk Was Insured

It was reported by officials of the Perrett & Glenney company this morning that the shipment of silk was insured. The hi-jacked truck will be driven to Manchester either this afternoon or tomorrow morning by Mack, Perrett & Glenney officials said today.

Madden Murder Recalled

The local silk firm figured in a sensational attempted holdup on the night of Jan. 30, 1918, when Captain William F. Madden was killed on Pine street in an attempted holdup of the Cheney storehouse. At 11.32 on the night of Jan. 30, 1918, Captain Madden, on duty around the Cheney plant, came upon a car turning down Elm Terrace. The police officer jumped on the running board of the New Jersey car and was ordered off by one of the bandits. Two shots were then fired at Madden, one striking the leg on the back door, the other entering Madden in the spinal column, severing the vertebrae.

Shoots At Bandits

As Madden fell into the gutter from the car he emptied his automatic at the fleeing machine which swung around into Hartford road from Pine street disappearing in the direction of Hartford. Klein, one of the bandits, was captured in a sensational chase on the Berlin Turnpike in Hartford within an hour after the attempted holdup. Four other members of the gang were captured within a week. The five members of the gang received life sentences. Klein died three years after being sentenced to Westoverfield. Four other members are still serving sentences in State's Prison.

Young Looking Man Scared Away From Porch As Group Comes Home.

A curly haired young man, said to be about 20 years of age, wearing a blue suit, no overcoat, medium height and weighing about 150 pounds threw a scare into a group of young people returning to their home on Benton street last Sunday night.

When the group arrived at the home of one of the members of the party, the young man slipped off the closed-in porch, sauntered down the street and made his way back to the center by one of the side streets leading west from Benton street.

No one in the house reported having seen the man on the porch, but sounds as if some one was walking about on the outside were heard. A member of the family went to the door several times after hearing the sounds of some one walking about but in the darkness no one could be discerned.

ROOSEVELT ACT IS TARGET FOR G. O. P. ATTACKS

has not been given general distribution as yet, does not carry the name of any author. It was obtained by reporters from Earl Venable, executive secretary of the Republican Congressional committee.

Sanders, Director

The National committee organization which issued it is under the direction of Everett Sanders, National chairman for Herbert Hoover.

He has carried on in office since the 1932 election, with a skeleton staff. He was personally picked for the post at the outset of the last National campaign by Mr. Hoover.

There has been talk of a drive by the anti-Hoover faction to reorganize the National committee.

"Let's Look at the Record" is the title of the Pamphlet, which hits particularly at Roosevelt monetary actions since March and contends that the administration has set up a system of "tricky (Treasury) book-keeping."

"Despite all this studied deception and manipulation in handling the fiscal affairs of the Nation the budget is not balanced," it says.

'Sound Currency'

Quoting the Democratic platform assertion that "A sound currency is to be preserved at all hazards," the pamphlet contends the President had broken this pledge in signing the inflation bill and in recent moves toward managed currency.

Recalling the platform promise for an international monetary conference, it says Mr. Roosevelt did not respect this plank in declining to subscribe to currency stabilization moves initiated at the London conference.

The position is taken that the promise of a 25 per cent reduction in expenses of Federal government likewise has been violated.

Quoting a Democratic statement that 1,000,000 should be employed on public works projects, the document places the number of men thus put to work to date at less than one-tenth of that figure.

Reducing Tariff

As to Roosevelt's statements on reducing the tariff, it is said arrangements are being made for increases rather than decreases. It is stated also that Mr. Roosevelt denounced the republican acreage reduction plans, but has adopted such a procedure, and that he spoke against taxing foodstuffs and now has allowed such a procedure in the agriculture recovery program.

The Republican organization holds the President responsible for delay in public works, saying $150,000,000 was available for allocation when he took office, but the "come to the rescue" program of Mr. Roosevelt was to stop all work on that program, in order that he might use the money for his pet project of establishing camps for his Civilian Conservation Corps.

POLICE WILL POUND UPON HALLOWEEN VANDALISM

Revelry and Hurlous Pranks To Be Tolerated But Property Destruction Means Prosecution.

Tonight is Halloween, a time for childish pranks and revelry, and also a time for strict vigilance by the local police force, which is planning to keep the occasion as safe and sane as the Fourth of July. It will probably be all right to run a tight-knit on windows and ring door bells, but any damage to property will be frowned upon.

Police announce that all cases of vandalism will be prosecuted and the culprits dealt with severely. For several nights past, vandals, believed to be young men, have been raising a rumpus in the East cemetery, dimmed with the turning over of a monument. The police warn against such actions, threatening arrest of all persons caught destroying property in the guise of Halloween fun.

FORD CO. TO SUBMIT FIGURES TO A. C. OF C.

Will Have Report on Wages And Hours Ready Before November 6.

Washington, Oct. 31.—(AP)—The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce today was notified the Ford Motor company would submit the wage and hours report required by the automobile code on November 6 or 7.

The announcement was made by Hugh S. Johnson after he had obtained from Alfred Reeves, vice-president and general manager of the NACC, a report on the intentions of all manufacturers in regard to submission of figures.

Last week the NRA executive had said in reply to newspapermen's questions that if Ford failed to submit the data required by the code, he would turn the case over to the attorney general.

Today's announcement did not single out the Ford Company from the rest of the industry, merely giving the list of the firms which already have submitted figures with a second list, containing half the firms, giving the date on which they had informed Reeves the requested data would be provided.

The other manufacturer Hupmobile, reported expectation that the figures would be turned in between November 6 and 10.

The Chevrolet firm set November 7. All the others expected to have their reports in before that time.

Today's evidence of compliance on the part of Ford with one requirement of the code did not settle the manufacturer's status in regard to government bids, since Johnson has indicated the question of his willingness to deal collectively with his employees.

If the administration view of the question stands Ford will have to show evidence that he will comply with this major labor provision of the code before the government purchasing agent can consider his bids.

Definite evidence of compliance or non-compliance in this respect is looked for soon in connection with Edgewater, New Jersey, Ford strike.

EXPECT MRS. COOLIDGE TO VISIT GRANDCHILD

New Haven, Oct. 31.—(AP)—The first visit of Mrs. Calvin Coolidge to her first grandchild, Cynthia Coolidge was expected today. Friends of John and Florence Trumbull Coolidge, to whom the baby was born last Saturday in a New Haven hospital said they expected the grandmother to arrive momentarily.

The baby, was named Cynthia after an aunt of Mrs. Coolidge and to perpetuate the initials "C. C." of her husband, the late President Calvin Coolidge.

Former Governor and Mrs. John Trumbull of Plainville, the maternal grandparents, have already come to New Haven several times to see the baby.

Although both mother and daughter, were reported "doing nicely" the attending physician advised against their going to their home in Chesire "for four or five days."

There is 13 miles from the city where John Coolidge works in the offices of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, friends said the young couple urge to bring their baby up to be "a good, healthy, normal child."

FORECLOSURE SUIT ON

Norwich, Oct. 31.—(AP)—A foreclosure action against the Hotel Griswold property on Eastern Point was begun in New London County Superior Court today by William E. Benjamin of Arley-on-Fudson, Westchester county, New York, the defendants being the G. H. Corporation of Hartford, and others.

Benjamin claims to hold a mortgage of $50,000 on the property which he asserts is due for payment. Albertina S. Cleary of White Plains, N. Y., also claims to hold a $100,000 mortgage on the hotel, and she is among the defendants.

The action asks that a receiver of rents be appointed by the court. The action was brought by W. H. Conley of Bridgeport, for Benjamin.

STUDENTS' ULTIMATUM

Havana, Oct. 31.—(AP)—The long threatened split between President Grau and the Student Directory, one of his strongest arms of support, was believed definitely nearer today.

In an ultimatum announced at an uproarious meeting of Havana University students last night, the government was given until November 4, to "rectify its present course."

Just what was implied in the move was not made clear, since details of the ultimatum were not revealed.

MILK CONTROL BOARD TO ANNOUNCE QUOTAS

Hartford, Oct. 31.—(AP)— Tomorrow for the first time in the history of the state the Milk Control Board will announce a producers' quota, under the new marketing regulations designed to "promote a more equitable distribution of the burden of the surplus," while the board is making the last minute computations, the possibility for a battle against the plan by the violently opposed Milk Producers' Dealers Association of Connecticut looms.

The November 1 announcement by the board will establish the farmers' price of Class 1 fluid milk and mean for that month, which will be an equal price per quart all over Connecticut. On the basis of statewide surveys the board will announce at the same time an estimate of the percentage of the state's total milk production that which represents the amount of Class 1, fluid milk to be consumed during November.

Milk in excess of this percentage is classed as excess or surplus milk and the price for excess milk will be determined at the end of the month. As soon after the end of the month as reasonably accurate statistics are available, the actual percentage of milk consumed as Class 1 during the month will be determined and adjustments made if this percentage is more or less than that estimated in advance.

IN LOWEST BIDDER

Hartford, Oct. 31.—(AP)—The Lane Construction Company, of Meriden, Conn., was the lowest bidder today for the reconstruction of 15,825 feet of state road in Templeton. The bid was $88,265, with R. H. Verwell, of Uxbridge, second with $88,238.50.

The contract will be awarded later.

COMMUNITIES ARE ASKED TO DO OWN FINANCING

Hot Springs, Va., Oct. 31.—(AP)—The Public Works Administration was advised today by the Investment Brokers Association's convention in session here to require communities to borrow money in the open market to do so rather than to take public funds.

E. F. Dunstan, chairman of the municipal securities committee, said such action would increase funds available for communities not able to borrow in the open market and would increase the total funds spent for public works.

He said there were many number of communities able to follow such a policy and that they should not be enabled to take funds which less solvent communities might use.

Stagnation of the municipal bond market, Dunstan explained, is a consequence of unwillingness of communities to undertake more taxation which would be required to pay new bonds and to fund the public works administration is encouraging communities to apply for its funds.

He said he doubted the advisability of trying to force out loans, but praised the Public Works Administration for its insistence that the project be able to earn carrying charges.

STILL IN CRITICAL STATE

New London, Oct. 31.—(AP)— Charles Foster of Greenport, L. I., wounded by the Coast Guard gunfire which wrecked the speedboat Frances of Newport, R. I., attempting to escape, was reported at a local hospital today as "still in a critical condition, but holding his own."

Foster was a member of the crew of the Frances which doubling back in her wake, roared out of a smoke screen she had laid down and crashed into the Coast Guard patrol boat CG-404, in Long Island Sound off Blackpoint, as the climax to a chase yesterday morning. The Frances which the Coast Guard said was laden with liquor sank and the CG-404 had to be beached to save it from a like fate.

Morrill was succeeded by Robert W. Coyne, formerly chief of the intelligence division of the New England division of the prohibition service.

Morrill, himself, only took over command of the area a few months ago upon the transfer of the Rev. Jonathan Lewis, former prohibition officer in Cincinnati, to New York. Morrill came here from Hartford, Conn.

FRANCE FORTIFIES EASTERN BORDER

Arrest of "La Belle Sophie" Drost Leads Wary French to "Put on the Shield."

By MORRIS GILBERT NFA Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris.—The arrest of "La Belle Sophie" Drost—cross-roads Mata Hari who tried to sneak a new-type French machine-ride into Germany in a taxicab—unveils a widespread net of espionage whose nucleus is the Sarre.

The net is a complex system of espionage, with headquarters at the "La Belle Sophie" in the Sarre. The system is that region. In all, it is estimated that there have been 400 arrests on accusations involving espionage.

The territory is ripe for spying. All along the eastern border of the Lorraine is completing a massive line of fortifications. This gives emphasis to hundreds of laborers and scores of minor executives, divisions, engineers, supply clerks, electricians, section bosses, all whom know more or less about the "secrets" of their own sections. Dotted throughout the terrain are barracks, munition stores, warehouses, troops galore.

Just over the border lies the Sarre Basin—the still debatable land. Nobody yet knows where the Sarre belongs to. The French get the coal from its mines, to be sure, but that may stop next year when the Sarre is to vote (if the League of Nations program goes through) whether to be French or German or to continue to be governed by a commission of the League.

Start Cafe Near Barracks. Start Drost was no sleek panther. She had a certain lady of mystery. She and her husband "Jupp" arrived in St. Avold in 1928. There's a big "casernes" or barracks there, hence the bar which they acquired in the customer's was a likely place for business. The "casernes" prospered. It prospered too much. A year ago, "Jupp" was invited to leave France. St. Avold couldn't shut its eyes to the behavior of the establishment's pretty barmaid. It was bad for the morals of the soldiers.

But Sophie stayed on, shrewd and competent behind her counter, slinking up her clients skillfully, waiting for her moment and her man. Presently he turned up, young work-hoss of Bloec No. 1 in the fortifications being built at Coume.

Alphonse did two little jobs with Sophie. Both involved plans of the fort where he was working. In each case he won the princely sum of 10,000 francs—$400 at par. That was all very well, but Sophie needed a machine-ride, one of the new type, numbered 24. And that was a hard job for a civilian.

Hence, Enter Rene Piestan, young cavalryman. It was Piestan who left his dormitory on the night of Oct. 6 to go A. W. O. L. for the evening, as he told his mates. Somehow he got hold of a machine-ride, hid it under his overcoat and slipped it through the bars of the fence which surrounds the barracks.

Then he jumped the wall himself, met Sophie, changed into civilian. Together they piled the gun into a taxicab and headed for Barrebruck.

French Track Plotters. The French counter-spy service functioned smoothly. They let the plotters slip through to Barrebruck and reach the house of Jupp. Next day, they arrested Piestan, and later Sophie. Meanwhile, in some way yet unexplained, they got the ride back from the Sarre, bringing evidence against Jupp and another man. Confessions by Choppe and Piestan completed the job.

of War Magnoli, is a combination of both ideas.

A Complex System. They are six important permanent works in the region of Metz, which the French believe to be so heavily armor-plated as to be impenetrable. This organization of big forts is dotted with roofed machine-gun posts, cleverly camouflaged, and with emplacements for fixed guns bigger than field artillery but not on a scale of real "heavy" artillery. The work permits the whole terrain in front to be sprinkled thick with fire.

Johnson and was assessed an additional penalty of $15 for driving without a license, having pleaded guilty to the latter charge. On the other charge he took an appeal to the Superior Court, which may be vacated.

He is comptroller-general and his office is a ponderous one. He is who passes on the disputed validity of any government contract. He is answerable to nobody. His tenure of office is long and presumably he cannot be deposed by the President, scarcely by Congress; though it is practically inconceivable that ways could not be found of removing him at a pinch.

A BAD STEP

A step was taken by a trade union yesterday, in connection with the NRA movement, which should be promptly and effectually disavowed by the administration. It is a proceeding that puts reverse English on the wretched government-by-injunction abuse of former years.

There is some friction between the New York Edison Company and the Brotherhood of Edison Employees of America, said to number 33,000 workers.

It is inconceivable, of course, that such stunts can long stop a Niagara. But so long as there are people who still hope that the current can be dammed the reconstruction movement will be held up by this sort of sabotage.

STEEL RAILS

It is possible that in the settlement of the steel rail controversy between the manufacturers and the government by the formal adoption of the price of $36.875 per ton the manufacturers did not get all they wanted but it is probable that they got a higher price than they should receive.

The steel rail industry has always had an insatiable appetite. Its magazines may even now be looking with regret at the $40 a ton price which they have been compelled to forego in order to make effective the government's big loan to the railroads for purchase of equipment.

SHOWDOWN

Evidently the adherents of the good old ways of the 20's are screwing up their courage for one grand last stand against the aggressions of the system of government supervision of industry.

FISHERY RIOT

There is something fishy about that rioting in Detroit. It is inconceivable that a group of tool and die makers, so matter how angry they might be at their employers, to punch noses or break heads, would for a moment entertain a thought of burning the blue-prints from which they work. The series of raids against Detroit tool and die factories was marked by just that proceeding—practically the last thing that skilled workers would do or permit being done if they could prevent it.

It does not turn out that those riots were inspired by business rivals of the concern attacked and that the rioters were hoodlums acting under direction with the definite purpose of putting those concerns out of business for a considerable period we are very much mistaken.

BOYS' NIGHT

This is Halloween. Tonight is a sort of "Boys' night." A night for capers and dildoes. Just a word to the boys: Have your fun—but don't be mean about it.

A square shooter doesn't take an occasional day off from square shooting. He shoots square all the time—April Fool's day and Halloween's just as much as any other day.

Put on your funny clothes and parade around. Flash your pumpkin-moons. Make as much noise as the law allows. But don't do mean things or cruel things.

HALLOWEEN

At one time among the Druids, October thirty-first was celebrated as New Year's Eve, and November first as New Year's Day. Because October thirty-first was the last night in the old year, these people believed that the Lord of Death would be out hunting for the souls of humans who would be locked up in animal bodies for the next twelve months.

We get our idea of ghosts directly from them, as they feared that during this one evening many ghosts and invisible beings would haunt the face of the earth.

The chief deity of the Druids was the Sun God and on the night of Halloween they built huge bonfires on the hilltops that these fires might attract his attention and incline him to guard the crops.

On November first the Druids held a festival in the Sun God's honor. They used apples and nuts as symbols of the harvest season and our Halloween pranks such as dicking for apples come straight down to us from the old customs of these people, customs so ancient that they were known before the birth of Christ.

One of the methods used by girls to tell fortunes was to pare an apple, being careful to keep the apple all in one piece, which was hung over the shoulder—any initial formed was supposed to give the initial of the future husband.

Many other Halloween legends have come down to us, as, for example, that if you hear the wind whistling around the chimney this means that witches are gossipping outside the house.

The Jack O'Lantern custom arises from an old Irish tale that a man named Jack was shut out of Heaven or Hades and sent wandering about the face of the earth with a lantern. Children of today put lighted candles in pumpkins to represent the lantern and to make the faces of the Jack O'Lanterns weird and spooky, they cut them out in grotesque ways to suggest goblins.

The first name of the holiday was Samhain or Saman, and some believe this refers to the Lord of Death, named Saman and others believe it refers to the word which means summer's end.

IN NEW YORK

By PAUL HARRISON

New York, Oct. 31—This is the time of year when people driving into New York are likely to remark that autumn doesn't seem as far advanced in the city as it is in the suburbs.

Of course there are many others, among them the Elsie Dinsmore books. To this day good little Elsie is outgunning a lot of fairly popular modern novels, say her publishers. You may remember that there were twenty-eight volumes of the Elsie books in all.

Public health officials deplore it, of course, but it is a lot of other people. Meteorologists tested the air the other day and found it contained much more soot than any time since the early winter of 1928.

Recognizing the Classics. Speaking of publishers, it seems that a cruel trick was played recently upon one of the pulp-paper magazines. Some literary people at a luncheon had gotten to arguing about the relative popular appeal of this and that author, and one man offered to bet that he could submit De Maupassant's "The Piece of String" to a magazine and that it not only would be unrecognized, but rejected.

Old Standbys Popular. With printing presses going full blast on the eve of the day of the many book publishers, it seems that Americans never could find time, even by the grace of the Blue Eagle, to wade through all the new fiction. They'll not only wade through it, however, but they'll also buy an equally large number of the old standbys which have come to represent the real backbone of the publishing game.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Nephritis)

Question: E. V. V. writes: "I recently started on your orange juice fast for Bright's Disease. Just before I started on the fast, I had a urinalysis which showed albumin and hyaline casts. I also had a high blood pressure of 190. After five days of the orange juice diet, the blood pressure is now 165, and the dropsical condition is better. There is little albumin but no hyaline casts. Is this a good indication, and what are these casts made of?"

Answer: You seem to have had quite an improvement in so short a time, and, if you have broken the fast, it would probably be a good plan for you to repeat short fasts at intervals of about a month apart.

The hyaline casts are composed of protein substances which seep through the small tubules of the kidney and take their form. They indicate that the kidneys are not functioning properly, and usually indicate Bright's Disease. I feel sure that you will notice a still greater improvement if you will adhere to the instructions.

(Acid Taste in Mouth)

Question: Martin J. F. writes: "I often have an unpleasant acid taste in my mouth after belching, just like lemon juice. I have tried various remedies which only relieve it for a time."

Answer: I consider the most pronounced cause of extreme stomach acidity is through the use of improper food combinations. Closely follow by weakly menus, and I am sure you will be able to avoid the acid taste and also overcome your tendency to belch.

(Rheumatic Heart)

Question: Mrs. Preston E. writes: "I have a boy twelve years old who has rheumatism and complains of pains in his legs and walks stiffly. Now he has heart trouble. The doctor says that he has a rheumatic heart. How could this be if he never has had rheumatism?"

Answer: Pains in the bones and legs of children are often an indication of the existence of rheumatic trouble for some time. Send me your full name and address and a stamped envelope and I will be pleased to send you my article on rheumatism which should be helpful in arranging the home treatment for your little boy.

(Obtain Chop Suey Recipe)

Question: Barbara K. writes: "I am very fond of Chinese chop suey, and was wondering if it is healthful. Will you please let me know if it is all right for me to eat it?"

Answer: Chop suey, while not particularly healthful, may be used occasionally for the sake of variety by those who are in good health. I would suggest that you send me your full name and address on a stamped envelope so that I may send you a copy of my article on this subject which contains a splendid recipe for making chop suey at home.

YOUNG ROCKEFELLER FINED

Darien, Conn., Oct. 31—(AP)—The next time Winthrop Rockefeller, son of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., hustles a friend to New York, he should expect to be fined.

That's what he promised the judge. Rockefeller paid $27—a $10 fine and costs—in Town Court last night after he pleaded guilty to driving 64 miles an hour, over the Boston Post road No. 29, while driving a friend from New Haven to New York, to take a boat.

And when Judge William M. Kelly reproached him and asked if he realized the danger he was causing himself and others, Rockefeller answered: "Yes, I realize that. And I won't do it again."

Behind the Scenes in WASHINGTON

Khaki Shirt Invasion Is Tragically Burlesque. Stuns Pass Out of Picture in Washington. Whoops! One Commission Dies at Last. A New Beauty Glows in Capital.

By WILLIS THORNTON. The Evening Herald Washington Correspondent. Washington—All's quiet along the Potomac, and the government at Washington still lives.

It still lives despite the Khaki Shirts. The urge to write something funny about the invasion of the Khaki Shirts is almost irresistible. But to think back to the 44 confused, bewildered, imposed-upon young men who were halted at the District line by nearly twice their number of police and more than half their number of reporters, gives one a sense of melancholy. They didn't have even khaki shirts, most of them.

"The Boys" Are Detained. "Can we do anything for you boys?" asked urbane Inspector Burke. "Well—ab—we was expecting to meet a lot of the boys here..." began "Gen." George Charles Zirkler. Inspector Burke patiently explained that the Philadelphia boys wouldn't be there, for reasons best known to the Philadelphia police.

"Now I think you boys had better turn around. If you come on into Washington there might be a little trouble," Burke went on, patiently. "Well—a course we don't aim to have any trouble," stammered "General" Zirkler, and five minutes later the three touring cars of the "revolutionists" had been turned around and were on the road back to Baltimore.

But not before the final insult had been added. One of the trucks crashed a traffic light and the boys had to dig up a $4 fine. Really, you could not laugh, burlesque though the whole performance was. It was all a little pathetic.

Stuns Pass Out. No, the government at Washington still stands, despite the Khaki Shirts, the Communists, the arms and the oligies, and the major operation of the New Deal.

The change in physical Washington symbolizes the changes in the government. Rows and blocks of the old red-brick 18th century and early 19th century houses are going down under the steam shovel and the crowbar.

They were picturesque and lovely in their day, but lovers of the picturesque must not forget that most of them had become slums, dirty, unsanitary, and squalid.

Another Commission Dies. The most graphic description of the NRA experiment is that of Donald R. Richberg, its general counsel, when he called it "the largest group insurance policy ever written—one to cover the inhabitants of the United States." John Van Antwerp MacMurray, now minister to Riga, Latvia, in town, bruning up at the State Department before going to his post. This heighens rumors that he will be the first ambassador to Soviet Russia, as MacMurray is a career diplomat of wide experience who would need little departmental coaching for the unimportant Riga job itself. When a commission is abolished in Washington these days—the news. The National Screw Thread Commission just is winding up its last affairs after 15 years of work in standardizing the threads on bolts and nuts. President Roosevelt knocked it in the head—The American Forestry Association is recommending study of a plan to replace the Civilian Conservation Corps a permanent affair. Summer tourists at the Capitol this fall number for years. Guides blame the Chicago fair.

The Sun Shines Brighter. Washington today is an exhilarating spectacle. As a new marble and limestone city replaces the red brick and sandstone of earlier buildings, so, in a furious hurry, a new government and social order is being built. And the blueprints are clearer for the former than for the latter.

But no one can go among the New Deal officials for even a short few weeks without being impressed by the earnestness with which a vast amount of intelligence, of conscience, of ability are being applied to the nation's problems. They may fail to get all the right answers, but nobody can say they weren't there trying.

And, somehow, as you pass the beautiful white mansion that stands among the elms at 1600 Pennsylvania avenue, the lamp that hangs behind the graceful columns of the portico seems to shine with a new beauty, to give forth a cleaner, brighter light.

Queer Twists In Day's News

Allerton, Ill.—John Hayes found the remnants of a 1915 automobile abandoned for years in the family barn.

He turned the crank to see if the car would still work and was amazed when it gave one snort and a kick and sent him sprawling.

Other than a broken arm and a dislocated shoulder, John's all right.

FEDERAL AID LOAN DELAYS PROJECTS

Outright Grant Without Necessity Of Borrowing Is Preferred Type.

(This is the fourth in a series of short statements by the Connecticut State Advisory Board-NRA, setting forth some of the pertinent facts and regulations governing the making of loans and grants for public improvements that will result in practical unemployment relief.)

Connecticut cities that have part of the funds needed for a public improvement but which still seek Federal assistance under the terms of the National Recovery Act would do well to apply for an outright grant with no request for a loan.

Outright Grant Favored An application for an outright grant of thirty per cent of the cost of construction, it will be comparatively simple to obtain an outright grant of thirty per cent of the cost of labor and materials from the Federal Public Works Administration.

Loans Take Longer In all cases where the merits of projects are equal, applications for grants will receive priority over applications that ask for both loans and grants. When a loan is sought, technical and legal problems are involved. Applications for loans must, of necessity, require more intensive study and consideration before action can be taken.

ROCKVILLE

ADVANCE GEO. SCHEETS FOR ROCKVILLE MAYOR

Overseer At Hockanum Mills Will Run Only If Employers Consent, However.

Hope of having the Republican party name George Scheets as their candidate for Mayor of the city of Rockville arose last evening.

Mr. Sobets, who is now an alderman in the Common Council, stated on several occasions that he would not seek to be a candidate for mayor, but that should it be offered to him he would accept the nomination.

When questioned last evening, Mr. Scheets stated that he would only accept the nomination on one condition, inasmuch as he is an overseer at the Hockanum Mills.

Asked what condition he had in mind, he said the nomination would have to be satisfactory to his employers.

It has been authentically reported that officials of the Hockanum Mills Company, which concern is headed by Col. Francis J. Maxwell, would consent to the nomination of Mr. Scheets. A formal statement is now awaited by leaders of the Republican ranks in hope that it will be forthcoming within a week or ten days.

Few prospects have been suggested for the position as Mayor of Rockville, which position will be vacated by Mayor Albert E. Watten on January 1. The nominations will be held early in December. Other prospects are William A. Kuhny, A. L. Martin, Sherwood C. Cummings, and Francis J. Cratty.

Final Assessment Day The final day for filing the tax assessment lists of the residents and property owners of the town of Vernon is tomorrow, November 1. The Board of Assessors, James A. Elliott, William V. Sadlak and John L. Brown, will be in session at the town clerk's office, Memorial Building on Wednesday, for the reception of tax assessment lists.

The board will be in session from 9 to 12 o'clock in the morning; from 2 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon and from 7 to 8 o'clock in the evening.

All property which is not entered on the assessment list will be assessed an additional ten per cent as a penalty.

Within a few days the Board of Assessors will visit the new property and also the improved property to make a final assessment on it for the first time.

Final Report Awaited Final reports are expected this week from the NRA Celebration and Parade Committee which had charge of the big celebration last week. The committee members are now at work preparing a list of the persons making donations to the NRA celebration and a list of all parties endeavoring to comply with the NRA plan.

Details will be announced within a few days as a permanent committee, consisting principally of the NRA celebration and parade committee, is to take a hand toward making the work a success.

Former Mayor Frederick G. Hartenstein is chairman of the NRA committee on permanent organization.

Investigate Depredation Captain Richard E. Shea of the Rockville Police Department is making every effort to solve the mystery of who killed the score or more rabbits at the home of Ferdinand Gregel, of 43 Vernon avenue, over the week-end.

Indications are that the damage was done by a ferocious dog although none of the neighbors is able to tell of any such dog being in the community.

An effort is being made by Gregel to find out definitely if the rabbits numbering 22, were killed by a dog and if they were he will be entitled to compensation from the State of Connecticut.

Church Fair Wednesday A "Main Street Fair" will be presented at the Union Congregational Church on Wednesday at the church social rooms under the sponsorship of the Friendly Class of the church. The event will open at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and continue until late in the evening.

Plans are underway for the serving of a church supper to the guests at 5 o'clock. A social hour will also be held during the evening.

Briefs Halloween parties were held by the score last evening and many more are planned for this evening.

Republican and Democratic leaders have been communicating with Washington, D. C., during the past 24 hours in an effort to secure information on the Rockville postmaster's office which has been hanging fire for nearly a year.

A card party will be on Thursday night by the Men's Guild, of St. John's Episcopal Church, at the church parish rooms. Refreshments will be served after the party.

Repairs were made on the railroad crossing at the foot of Market street yesterday by the public works department under the personal supervision of Supt. George B. Milne. The newly laid crushed stone crossing was raised in several places because of the fanges on the railroad cars passing over.

The Ladies Aid Society, of St. John's Episcopal Church, will hold a meeting at the church rectory Wednesday afternoon at 8 o'clock. All members are urged to attend.

The Liedertafel Singing Society held a Halloween Social and old-fashioned dance last evening at the Liedertafel Grove. Music was furnished by Bentley's Baritoneans, a newly formed orchestra of young musicians.

ANDOVER

NOT ONE UNEMPLOYED IN THIS PENNSY TOWN

Rockwood, Pa., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Everybody works in Rockwood as orders for beer kegs roll in and, in the natural sequence of things, many of those same kegs roll out—filled with three-point-two.

For the opening of a stove factory and a brewery has combined with mining's upturn to give a job to every one of Rockwood's 800-odd breadwinners out of a population of 1,100.

Orders for barrels and kegs are pouring in from many sections of the country, keeping carpenters and artisans and lumberjacks and planning mill workers busy on full time.

The brewery's resumption has provided employment for other workers and the call for Somerset county bituminous coal has put the miners back in the pits.

So great has been the demand for workers that last week when a call went out for 60 carpenters and 40 laborers at a nearby Civilian Conservation camp, not one man in Rockwood was available and several had to be "imported" from other sections.

Two students who slipped away from the exclusive Hotchkiss school for a fling at adventure will have to content themselves with such thrills as their homelife might provide.

Headmaster George Von Santvoord said today the boys, Phelps Newberry, Jr., 15, son of a Detroit banker, and Henry Wetter, 15, whose father, head of a Birmingham, Alabama, stove manufacturing company, will not return to school. Instead, he said, their parents have decided to take them back home.

The boys, missing since Friday, were found last night in a West 43rd street hotel in New York City and later sent to friends of the Newberry family at Englewood, N. J. They told police they had tired of school and wanted to work on some vessel bound for foreign ports.

Van Santvoord terms the escapade "a whim to play hooky." He expressed doubt that the boys' parents would permit them to return to Hotchkiss during the present term.

The Detroit banker, the headmaster said, planned to fly from Detroit today to get his son.

FIRST LADY VISITS FAIR AT CHICAGO

Chicago, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Today was Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's day at the World's Fair and it promised to be a busy one. Mrs. Roosevelt succeeded in doing all the things planned for her besides those she suggested.

But those who followed the footsteps of the First Lady yesterday discovered she can do what is required of her and then find time for a bit more, for as instance her half hour's unannounced visit to the exposition grounds in the evening to see the illumination.

A military guard was assigned to meet her this morning at her arrival at the gates and to escort her to Camp Whistler for inspection of the troops, after which a round of events concluding with an address in the Court of the Hall of States was on the program.

Her topic she said would be on the mobilization of women for war work during the coming year. It was that that principally brought her to Chicago and she spoke several times yesterday at meetings in connection with the 1933 mobilization for human needs conference.

"When we have enough people who want decent living conditions for everybody, we will have a real civilization," she said.

REAL ESTATE PURCHASE NOW IS ADVANTAGEOUS

Samuel Nelson, Local Agent, Says Values Are At Their Lowest Ebb Now.

Samuel Nelson, who has charge of the real estate transactions of the Holden-Nelson Company, stated today that real estate values in Manchester are decidedly at their lowest ebb, and that the purchase of real property at the present prices "is the most advantageous and secure form of investment. Mr. Nelson has handled real estate in Manchester in its various forms for a period of ten years. In 1923 he was elected to the board of assessors of the Town of Manchester and served on that board for eight years. Mr. Nelson believes that the basic health of any community or individual, with regard to tangible property, can be computed in terms of the amount of its estate owned since during times of depression some value can always be attached to land, whereas as oftentimes the value of personal property of any form is depleted to a negligible quantity or lost in its entirety.

In further stated, people may be "land poor" and their property in an unliquidated condition for a period of years during fluctuations in real estate values, but with the return of prosperity, their wealth again becomes their real estate. Mr. Nelson quotes Babson and Fisher, who seem to share the same view and agree that now is the time to invest in real estate. Mr. Nelson pointed out that he would be pleased to advise anyone contemplating the purchasing of real estate in Manchester.

COUNTY POULTRYMEN MEET NOVEMBER 8

All Day Session To Be Held At Charter Oak Park. Next Week Wednesday.

A country-wide poultry meeting will be held at the Auction Building, Charter Oak Park, Wednesday, Nov. 8, at 8 o'clock in the morning and continuing throughout the day, according to the announcement made by the poultry committee of the Hartford County Farm Bureau.

A cutting exhibit will be explained throughout the morning by Roy E. Jones, State Poultry Specialist. Lunch can be secured on the grounds or poultrymen can bring their own. In the afternoon, a discussion of bronchitis control, will be led by experts from the State College. The slack-road method of dressing poultry will be demonstrated, and Mr. Jones will discuss methods of controlling hen mortality. It is not the number of birds that are housed in the fall that determine the profits for the year, according to Farm Bureau officials, but the number of birds that can be carried through the winter in laying condition. Every effort should be made to keep the birds in better condition to lay through the winter and the hen mortality and bronchitis control discussions are designed to help along this line. If, however, birds refuse to lay they must be disposed of under the present feed and egg ratio, according to Farm Bureau officials. That is, the relative price of feed compared to eggs is so high at the present time that poultrymen cannot afford to feed unproductive birds. In the past it has been necessary for poultrymen to wait until they have enough chicks to justify a buyer driving his truck to the farm before the producer could get a price. With the Auction Market available to everyone it is now possible for poultrymen to sell and still their birds as fast as they show indication of permanently stopping production. All the poultrymen in the area around Hartford are cordially invited to attend any part or all of this meeting.

PROVIDE POULTRYMEN WITH PASSES FOR COUNTRY

Farm Bureau Devise Plan To Free Owners From Suspensions As Chicksen Thawed. Some 500 poultry producers throughout Hartford County have been placed under suspension because by the poultry they law passed by the last legislature, according to an announcement by the Hartford County Farm Bureau. There is no criticism of the law on the part of poultrymen. In fact, they congratulate those who were responsible for getting the law passed, and the State police for their vigilance in seeing that it is being lived up to, but it is sometimes hard for a man to establish right of that he is a bona fide producer when a State police officer stops him. State Commissioner of Agriculture Olooff F. King has made available through the Farm Bureau officials a poultryman's identification card which will be issued on application to the Farm Bureau office, and upon establishing in the office that the applicant is a bona fide producer, this card will serve as evidence that the holder is a producer and when he is stopped, by a State police officer, for an investigation under the new law.

All persons liable to give in lists of Taxable Property are urged to appear before the Assessors before November 1st. Forgotten Sweetheart

By MARY RAYMOND
BEGIN HERE TODAY

JOAN WARING, pretty Memphis girl, and BOB WESTON, son of a millionaire, meet in Memphis and fall in love. They become estranged through the scheming of BARBARA COURTNEY, who is trying to win Bob for herself.

PAT WABING, Joan's younger sister, is in an automobile accident in which JERRY FORRESTER, her escort, is killed. Heart-sick, Pat runs away to New York. Joan follows and begins a search for Pat and a search for a job for herself.

Joan is engaged as a masked singer in a night club. Her owner, BARNEY BLAKE, the owner, proves a steadfast friend.

Joan finds Pat, very ill. During Pat's convalescence, Joan and Barney are drawn closer together. Joan, believing Bob is lost to her promises to marry Barney.

Pat becomes Barney's secretary and soon he realizes that it is Pat whom he loves instead of Joan. But Pat insists that Joan must not be hurt and so the wedding plans go on. Joan, seeing Barney's unhappiness, thinks her interference in his life is a mistake. She suggests an early marriage.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIX

Barney was standing by the mantel one arm resting against it. When Joan spoke he looked up, his eyes meeting hers, unsmiling.

"You mean you really want the wedding soon?"

"I really do," she told him, "without any fuss though, Barney. Couldn't we just go to the Little Church Around the Corner and be married?"

"Lots of people do," said Barney. "Some of them get it over with even less fuss by marrying in the clerk's office."

He had said "get it over with." Then he must suspect how she was feeling. Barney, who gave so generously and received so little in return.

"It'll make it up to him," Joan thought. "I'll never let him suspect. And some day I will have forgotten that I ever knew Bob. There'll be just Barney in my heart. Just Barney!" She was trying desperately to make herself believe all this was true.

They were sitting on one of the divans, Barney's arm around Joan, her head against his shoulder.

"We could be married some afternoon—"

"Tomorrow?"

"No. I'm singing tomorrow night at that charity entertainment. Let's make it Friday afternoon."

"Friday's bad luck," said Barney. "I'm not afraid of bad luck. Nothing except good luck could come to me with you," Joan answered.

Barney's voice was husky with emotion. "Don't be too sure, dear. I hope I'll never disappoint you."

Thus, with plans for the two events—Joan's boy to New York's debut at the Junior League affair and the quiet wedding to follow next day—the household was plunged into a beehive of activity.

Boxes continued to arrive at the Park avenue apartment. Barney, ruminating down to the steamship office, secured the most desirable suite even at such a late hour. Somehow Barney always seemed to get his way with every one.

Pat, doing belated shopping, arrived at the apartment, looking like a little white ghost. Barney told her hotly, "Let the frills go! No use making yourself sick again. Joan can shop after she gets home."

Joan joined in the protest. "You mustn't Pat," she said. "I have everything I could possibly need anyhow."

Barney was looking haggard and worn. Joan saw. Undoubtedly he had been working too hard lately. Joan forced herself to be very gay, refusing to listen to the doubts which were all too ready to spring up, unbidden, and plunge her into miserable uncertainty.

Barney, restless, had decided to supervise the section of the special setting in which Joan would appear at the charity entertainment. For her opening number there was to be an elaborate set with special lighting to be installed.

Her costume was fashioned of green metallic cloth, molded to her slim form, with a band of the same material for her hair. The song

HERE'S THE LINEUP ON WINTER FURS!

Coats of All Nations Meet Needs of Every Type of Woman

Furs of all nations are made into such varied types of coats that during National Fur Week you will find a style to fit every kind of woman. Left to right: For the dignified "success", a modified suave swaggar coat is made of Alaska seal. For the "elegant", a fitted caracul, with fox collar. For the "elite", a long evening coat of ermine, with sable yoke and collar. For the "conservative", a classic mink. For the smart, snappy woman, a real swaggar, in Hudson seal. For the school girl, business woman or suburbanite, a gray kidskin, with styled wide shoulders and high collar. These models were to be shown at "The International Court of Furs", a tableau to be given in New York in celebration of National Fur Week.

used to live in and finds her aunt dead on the floor. Auntie really tripped over a rug, whacked her head on a door stopper and died of natural causes; but Jenny gets panicky, does one or two things she shouldn't have, and creates a swell murder mystery. Unless Mr. Milne's brand of whiney infuriates you, you might like it very much.

"The Destroying Angel," by Norman Klein (Farrar and Rinehart, $2), introduces a detective, one Kennedy Jones, who seems to have been modeled on Senator Huey Long, except that he doesn't get soaked in gents' washrooms. He goes to look into a murder on a Hudson River estate, finds a bed of poison mushrooms, gives and receives a lot of insults and finally solves the crime, tardily but effectively. . . . It's run-of-mine stuff, not very good, not very bad.

If you like 'em wild and woolly you might enjoy "The Sulu Sea Murders," by Van Wyck Mason (Crime Club, $2). There's a series of murders at an army outpost in the Philippines, solved by an army intelligence officer. You get secret passageways, shrieks at midnight, stolen pearls and all that. It doesn't make much sense, but you can't have everything.

An average talker speaks at the rate of about 90 words a minute; a fast talker will often hit a pace of 180 words a minute.

Joan turned, her hand unconsciously clutching at the mask. Barbara Courtney's amazed eyes met Joan's. "What are you doing here?" came Barbara's harsh query. And then, as her glance fell upon the mask in Joan's hand, she said, "So you are the Jigsaw's Masked Singer!"

"Yes."

"The blood surged to Joan's face. "Whose home?" she asked. "Don't tell me you didn't know!" The astonishment in Joan's eyes was so convincing that any words Barbara saw that the other girl had come here by chance. Bob didn't know Joan was here. There was no reason for him to know. Barbara opened the door carefully, saying, "Glad I saw you, Joan." Then she closed the door behind her.

Outside Barbara lit a cigaret with nervous fingers. The mask was a saving factor—something to thank lucky stars for. Barbara had heard Joan sing at the Jigsaw and never suspected that she had seen her before. There was no reason to feel alarmed now. Bob would never dream that the spectacular singer was Joan, the girl he had known in Memphis.

Barbara's lips set angrily. After all these months of combating the memory of Joan—which Barbara had long ago realized was the one thing between her and happiness—to find the girl in Bob's home was almost too much! She would have liked to humble Joan if she had dared. But the girl had spirit. Barbara was glad she had not revealed her feelings.

It was just at that moment that the maid brought word to Joan that Mr. Blake was waiting for her.

VAN DINE'S LATEST RINGS IN A DRAGON

New Philo Vance Tale Isn't Quite Up to Standard

By BRUCE CATTON

Mr. S. S. Van Dine is in again showing Philo Vance along on a novel entitled "The Dragon Murder Case" (Scribner, $2). And it must be reported, unfortunately, that this book is just another one of those things.

There's a rich man who throws a house party on his estate at the edge of New York. The lady and the ladies, all somewhat merry-eyed, go swimming in a private pool one night, and one of them falls to come up; and when the pool is drained his body has vanished. A couple of days later it is found in a sort of cave a mile or so away, nicely battered and mangled.

An Indian dragon is supposed to live in the pool, and Philo Vance gets a chance to display his erudition about dragons, tropical fish, and the likes of that. All in all, the story comes close to collapsing of its own weight. It is far, far below Mr. Van Dine's earlier books.

You might get more entertainment out of "Four Days Wonder," by A. A. Milne (Dutton, $2). Mr. Milne seems to be poking fun at the orthodox mystery story, and he has written a whimsically amusing book.

AVOID WEARING TIGHT GARTERS, IF VEINS ARE SWOLLEN

Stoutness and Overuse of Feet Are Most Frequent Causes of Varicose, or Enlarged, Blood Vessels.

By DR. MORRIS FISHER, Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine.

Tight garters may be the only means of supporting your hose, but don't wear them if you're subject to varicose veins. Use a garter belt or attach your hose to your undies, instead.

The reason for this warning is that the garters choke off what little blood flow there is through the already swollen veins and so make the condition more serious.

Varicose veins result when you have to stand long on your feet, or when other weaknesses arise in the tissues. Stout persons particularly are subject to this trouble.

And if one who is overweight has a job that requires him to stay mostly on his feet, he either should try to get some other kind of work or at least arrange to sit down for certain periods during the day.

The cause of varicose veins is inefficient action of their valves, and this comes about from the pressure of the blood, enhanced by long standing on the feet or other weaknesses.

Sometimes varicose veins are the result of pressure within the abdomen, due to overweight or the accumulation of fat. Or the swelling veins may be associated with the growth of tumors in the abdomen and sometimes with childbirth.

Frequently lack of exercise will have much to do with this condition. There is a generally lowered tone of the muscular system and the entire blood vessel system.

Therefore, to relieve varicose veins, you should get out into the open air. Take mild exercises occasionally and do everything else that is necessary to prevent stagnation and accumulation of fluid in the tissues.

There is much less chance for varicose veins in those who are thin than in stout persons.

When the valves of the veins are destroyed, there is a tendency for fluid to accumulate in the tissues. If the varicose veins have lasted a long time, this fluid tends to thicken the tissues, and the removal of the affected vessels will not relieve the condition.

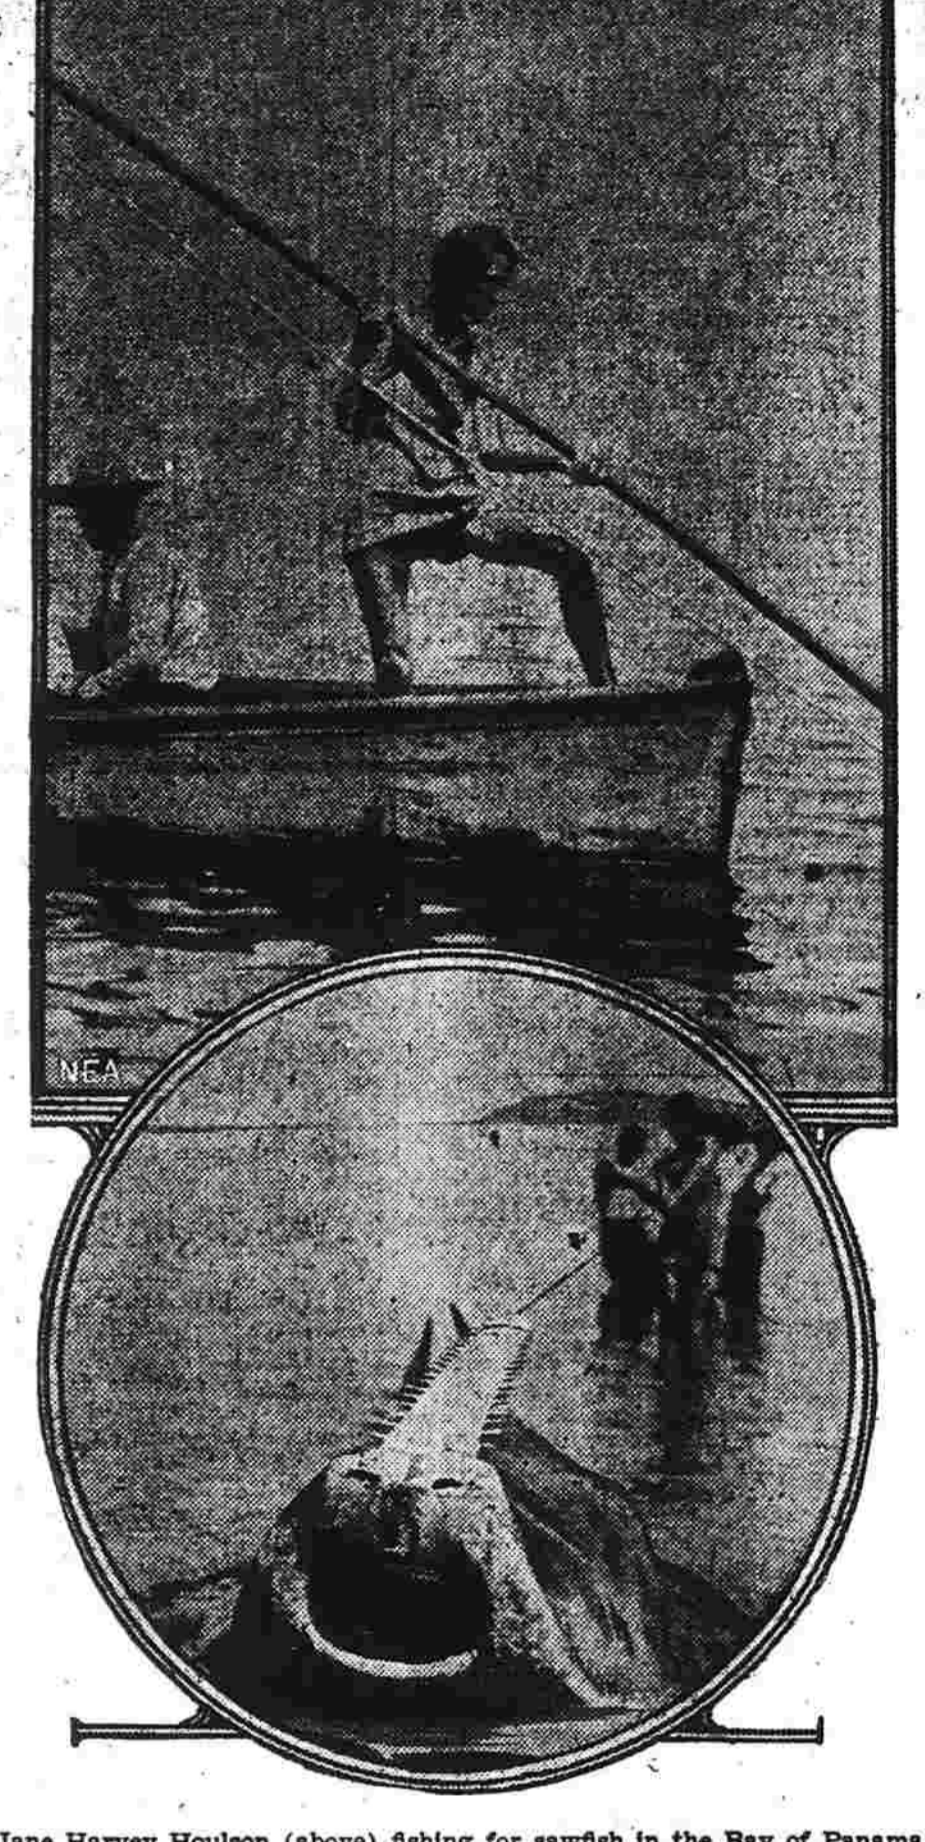

Specialists, therefore, recommend the wearing of supports in the form of light elastic bandages which now are easily available through various drug stores and supply houses.

It is not difficult to wear such a bandage all the time, and in the course of several weeks most of the thickening of the tissues will disappear.

There are treatments for varicose veins by the injection of certain substances that destroy the lining of the blood vessels and cause them to disappear. These have relieved the condition in many cases.

But you should realize that this method simply removes the dilated vessel and does not cure the condition which caused the varicose veins.

SHE CLAIMS THE WORLD'S MOST FASCINATING SECRETARIAL JOB

Jane Harvey Houlson (above) fishing for sawfish in the Bay of Panama, and (below) a 27-foot-long specimen she landed herself.

By MARIAN YOUNG

New York.—Surrounded by thousands of dollars worth of pearls, a saw for a 27-foot sawfish which she landed herself, and various human heads gleaned from a Head Hunter's hut, Jane Harvey Houlson is sure that she has the most fascinating and glamorous secretarial job in the world.

The want ad which she answered, years ago, in a London paper, got her not only a position but plenty of romantic adventure.

The man whose ad she answered was Mitchell Hedges, the adventurer and famed archeologist, who has made contributions of note to both the Museum for the American Indian in New York and the British Museum in London.

Take Notes On Discoveries

Most of his specimens have been dug up on small islands (many of them never before set foot on by white men) down off the coast of Central America. And for the past fourteen years Miss Houlson has accompanied him on all the expeditions. Her job is to make careful note of each thing they see and find. And she does it superbly because she has real interest in the work.

To her, the job is much more than a living. She loves it and looks forward eagerly to the time when they will leave New York and go back in search of more museum trophies.

Sealed in a New York apartment overlooking Central Park, the 28-year-old girl, in a striking contrast to the one she must have been when she asked Mitchell Hedges for a job as his secretary.

That she was shy and uncertain of herself, Mr. Hedges hired her with no small feeling of trepidation. She had come from a long line of conservative people—teachers on one side and clergymen on the other—and had been brought up in a sheltered, almost rigid disciplinary manner. It was difficult indeed to see her as an associate of an archeologist who might go anywhere at a moment's notice to stay for, perhaps, years.

But today she can top any tale of adventure with a thrilling story of her own. She has been the only white woman on an island for months. She has seen revolutions smolder and then break and her big game fishing stories challenge any man's. The president of Panama congratulated her success in capturing an enormous hammerhead shark—the greatest fighter of them all once he is struck with a harpoon.

Asked about the person hardships which a career such as hers must necessitate, she brightened. "For three months I wasn't allowed to wash my face. There's always a great shortage of fresh water, and for shampooing my hair—well, sometimes they'd give me a quart of gasoline."

But she takes no cleansing creams with her. "Once very little for cosmetics and wears only a bit of powder and a touch of lipstick even when she's in New York."

Woman-like, her first thought when she gets back from an expedition is of clothes. But only because she doesn't want to look out of place and not because she likes to shop.

"I don't stand city noises," she said, "nothing too shapely hands to her eyes in that town out. She has lovely hands, in spite of the fact that every bit of skin on her palms has been rubbed again and again twenty times a day."

Let's on your back on the floor with your elbows bent so that your fingers touch your shoulders. Keep the angles of your wrists flat on the floor. Raise your arms high over your head and then bring them back to the "rest" position. Repeat at least twenty times a day.

DO YOU KNOW THAT CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Brown

The World's Fair draws to a close. No longer will the million lights set going by Apollon glow upon pink and purple towers and unbelievable bluffs. No longer will night rockets dye the heavens with rainbow balls that draw involuntary "Ohs" from the crowds.

The stinging fountain and the musical "bird cages" will be silent. The world's greatest spectacle will be at an end.

Chicago talks about opening it next year. I hope it can be done and that the colorful buildings Urban did not live to see may be within the means of thousands of people who could not see it this time.

It takes time and perspective to prove the salient points of anything so colossal. What have we learned? What things have interested people most? What good has it done?

Opinions on Exhibits

Probably there are as many opinions as there are people. Each post-views his impressions in his own terms. The investor thinks in terms of bonds, profit or loss. The engineer accents the General Industries Building or the Hall of Science. The electrician, the Communication Hall, perhaps, and the economist, the Hall of States. The churchman remembers the Hall of Religion and especially the "Antioch Chalice," said to be the real Holy Grail.

The thrill hunter thinks back to the concessions, the incomparable "Wings of Progress." The good fellow to Old Heidelberg, the movie-minded, to Hollywood in the Making.

A true department store for everybody, and lucky was he who could spend a week or two on the grounds.

As for me, I hurried straight to the Lagoon side to see the "Enchanted Island," built especially for children. There was nothing wanting. I am safe in saying it was the greatest playground ever conceived. A magic castle reached by a drawbridge over a real moat. Boats, ponies, miniature railways, and two dozen varieties of merry-go-rounds. Whatever else you may guess, be sure it was there. It covered acres and acres of ground.

Very well. I wanted to hear the children's own reaction to it all. We were there on a record day, but there were comparatively few children, too. I had expected to see more young vacationists.

But the truth is that when money is tight mother and dad can sometimes squeeze in a little trip, but the children stay at home with auntie. It hasn't been so easy as you might think to get the reaction I wanted from children over the land.

But a strange thing has happened. Asked what they liked best at the fair, almost to a man such children as I know enthuse about real things rather than play. The making of a car, the workings of a diamond mine, the way oil-wells are drilled, airplanes, transparent elevators carrying automobiles up and down again, the sky ride.

I really believe that our children are finding more romance in machines than we imagine, boys particularly. Certainly a boy could almost pick up an education at the Fair.

If it opens in 1934 it is none too soon to think about planning and about taking the children if possible. What they see they remember and a world of magic that eclipses fables and genii awaits them there.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

FACIAL CREAMS

The outstanding beauties in America grow older every year, of course. But their complexions do not. Which proves that it is possible for a middle-aged woman to have skin as soft and lovely as that of a 19-year-old college girl.

There is no use in saying that it is inevitable that your skin will become dry and rough and wrinkled once you have passed the forty mark. Your skin at that age can be smooth and beautiful if you will just take the time to give it a little deserved attention.

The time to begin is when you're young. Get into the habit of a daily beauty routine and the chances are that you'll have no cause for worry later on. However, if you have neglected your skin, there still is time to do something about it.

Every woman over thirty needs a nourishing cream. Call it tissue cream or anything else that you wish but be sure that it is composed of oils and not of animal fats. When your face has been given its nightly cleansing, smooth on a little nourishing cream and leave it on all night. It puts back the oils which the years tend to take out of your complexion.

A foundation cream is another necessity. There are great liquid ones, also cream varieties, if you prefer. But do get one and put it on before you touch your face with either powder or rouge. It keeps the skin moist and soft and protects it from wind and dust.

The underweight girl should select her exercises with an eye to gaining weight in just the right spots.

The trick of exercise for too thin people about the hips and certainly about the waist, has been given its ounce beneath her chin.

The trick of exercise for too thin people lies, of course, in concentrating on the spots of your body which are skinniest instead of slender.

Massaging with a thick nourishing cream often helps to round out a scrawny neck. Cleanse your neck thoroughly and then put on the nourishing cream. Lift skin on your neck upward and outward, beginning at the base of your throat and finishing at the chin. Never pull or stretch the skin. Merely lift it and mold it as your hands move upward.

Just as thin arms are improved by a simple exercise, swimming, thin legs are helped by another just as simple—walking. Try to walk at least a mile every day. That really will do wonders for your figure.

Here's the way to do an exercise which will help to correct a hollow chest:

Lie on your back on the floor with your elbows bent so that your fingers touch your shoulders. Keep the angles of your wrists flat on the floor. Raise your arms high over your head and then bring them back to the "rest" position. Repeat at least twenty times a day.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing, vegetable laxative safe and pleasant to take.

No griping in the stomach, no little sugar-coated, nauseating tablets. They act naturally, bowels and liver, in accordance with their never-fail, natural, normal action.

If you have a "stomach" feeling—bad breath, or tired feeling, or headache, or any of these things, they will help you. They are the only laxative that does not irritate the stomach.

Thousands are turning to Olive Tablets for relief from constipation. They are the only laxative that does not irritate the stomach.

Young Vanderbilt Placing Fortune In Racing Stable

New York, Oct. 31.—(AP)—With $40,000.000 to satisfy his whims, Alfred Gwynn Vanderbilt, only a few weeks past his twenty-first birthday, is setting about to make the Sagamore Stable even more powerful than when some of the country's best horses raced for his mother, Mrs. Charles Amory.

ALFRED G. VANDERBILT.

Young Vanderbilt, only three years old when his father was drowned in the Lusitania disaster, inherited the fortune when he became of age in September. In addition, his mother handed over the entire racing stable and a large breeding farm.

Paid High For Yearlings Anticipating the day when his silver car and white diamonds would be flaunted to the breeze, Vanderbilt stepped into the Saratoga stables ring last August and paid some of the highest prices for promising yearlings. At the time he said he was laying the foundation for one of the largest and most powerful stables in the country.

Bud Stotler, his trainer, has resigned as conditioner of W. R. Coe's horses and will devote all his time next year to getting the youthful owner's charges ready for the races. There are only three or four good horses in the stable, of which the two-year-old Red Wagon is the best, but in the past such great thoroughbreds as Balko have raced under the Sagamore silks.

Not A "Gentleman Rider" Although never prominent as a sportsman and loath to talk about his money and plans, young Vanderbilt has been connected with horses almost since he was able to toddle about his mother's estate. Mrs. Amory, recognized as a leading authority on thoroughbreds, established the Sagamore stable about 15 years ago.

Unless many of the young owners, Alfred has never ridden in any races, either on the flat or steeplechase, but he is known among his friends as a good horseman.

GRID EXPERTS PUZZLED OVER NOTRE DAME'S GAME

Cause Of Poor Playing Cannot Be Analyzed; Many Believe Team Can Weather The Storm Successfully
By ALAN GOULD
(A. P. Sports Editor)

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 31.—(AP)—The causes of the present football depression at Notre Dame are many and cumulative. The effects are widespread. The cure is not yet manifest, despite the volunteer efforts of gridiron quacks.

Among the able, sincere leaders and graduates of the University, who have carried on since the death of Knute K. Kneese, there is not only the hope, but conviction that they can ride out the storm successfully. They believe the football foundations are still intact.

Notre Dame's last National championship team was Rockne's last, the polished scoring machine of 1930 that topped off two unbeaten seasons for the Fighting Irish. The turning point did not develop however, until late in 1931. It came swiftly. Notre Dame went into the last quarter leading Southern California 14-0. The final tally was 15 to 14, in favor of the Trojans. A week later the Army took the shell-shocked Irish into camp.

First of Serious Blows This marked the first but also the greatest of a series of blows to Notre Dame's gridiron prestige. No such debacle ever occurred under Rockne. The team's followers were in a daze. The combination which had succeeded Rock, with Hearty (Hunk) Anderson as senior coach, and Jack Chevigny as junior coach, was broken up.

ST. MARY'S GAELS BAR PATH OF FORDHAM RAMS

Coast Eleven Boasts Line That Averages Almost 215 Pounds, With a Backfield To Match; Game Tops Eastern Slate.
New York, Oct. 31.—(AP)—There may be better football teams than St. Mary's Gaels of California, there even may be bigger ones, but "Sleepy Jim" Crowley declines to admit either possibility as Fordham's undefeated Rams prepare for their second big intercollegiate test against the Moraga Marauders.

The Rams record was in jeopardy last week before Alabama succumbed 3-0. It is threatened even more seriously now by Slip Madigan's husky Gaels. Boasting a line that averages almost 215 pounds and a backfield to match, the Gaels, physically at least, outclass every major rival in the country but so far they've had to take a 14-13 beating from California and a 14-7 reverse from Southern California.

Whatever the result, Fordham is assured of a capacity crowd of 50,000 or more for the second week in succession. Incidentally the Fordham-St. Mary's tussle tops what will be the east's finest intercollegiate program of the season. While Ram and Gael hold forth at the Polo Grounds, Columbia and Tulane will be playing at the Yankee Stadium, Notre Dame and Navy at Baltimore and George Washington and Tennessee at Washington, D. C.

Mention of George Washington recalls the time, only a couple of weeks ago, when the Colonials were playing a small college schedule and not doing very well at it. After the 1932 team had gone through the campaign without winning a game, things perked up a bit but it was not until last year, the Colgate and Tulane game, that the team attracted any particular attention.

Now they definitely rate as a major eastern power despite the fact that their schedules does not include a single opponent from the east. Illinois this week, it will be strictly up to Minnesota to stop the Wolverines' rush and the principal beneficiary perhaps would be Purdue. With Illinois and Michigan both removed from the list of contenders, Purdue with three conference games behind it and Iowa and Indiana ahead, probably would finish the conference season undefeated and tied for one.

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Cooney Weiland, ex-Boston Bruins, still is a holdout but at least he is coming around to the training camp to watch his new club, the Ottawa Senators, go through their trials. Coach George Savelle thinks he soon will be able to adjust salary differences with Weiland who declined to take a $600 cut.

Montreal—The New York Rangers will shift their training activities to Kingston, Ont., next week, the Montreal Canadiens will be returning from Kingston this week-end and the Rangers will move in to replace them until the regular season opens.

Montreal—Leo Dandurand of the Canadiens plans to offer Jack Portland and Don Heath, promising Stratford, Ont., amateurs, professional contracts. If they accept they'll be sent to a Canadian farm for more seasoning.

Schoolboys Turn to Rodeo; Less Dangerous Than Grid

Colorado Springs, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Football has been displaced by rodeo sports at the Cheyenne public school, because "riding bucking horses and bulldozing yearling steers is less dangerous," said school officials "want something different."

Study Wild Life "Of course the boys may get scratched up a bit," admits Dr. Lloyd Shaw, superintendent of the school and originator of the idea, "but there won't be any overstrained hearts."

Training For Future "Every college and high school in the country has a football team. We want something out of the ordinary, something closer to nature and that will be of some use to the youngster when they grow up."

Dr. Shaw conceded it "took nerve" to ride a pitchin' horse, but contended that "contrary to popular belief, rodeo sports may be enjoyed without unduly to animals."

"We've made too much of artificial sports," the superintendent believes. "The boy is forgotten when he goes in for football."

Things are done differently at Cheyenne school, which has an enrollment of 400, from kindergarten through high school. All pupils try to sit, even if they have to use barrel staves. Everybody hikes.

London, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Another chapter is scheduled to be written next week in the history of English sportsman to continue Lipton's Attempts To Lift Famous Yacht Trophy, Failed 15 Times.

Spurred by the success of "Vehseda," which established the British yacht, a challenger for "the America's cup" has been sent to the United States by the International Yacht Racing Union.

The "challenge" was issued, however, not on behalf of "Vehseda" but her owner, W. L. Stephenson, and on behalf of a new craft, "Endeavor," to be built along "Vehseda's" lines for T. O. M. Sopwith, aviation pioneer and sportsman.

"Endeavor" is to be built at Gosport on the design of Charles H. Nicholson, designer of "Shamrock IV," "Shamrock V" and "Vehseda."

"All being well," Nicholson says, "we hope that the race may be sailed next summer. Mr. Sopwith has proved himself a born helmsman and always alights by his own boats, so that he will most likely do so in this race."

While it is expected that various refinements of design will be incorporated in the new yacht will follow the lines of "Vehseda" which launched last April, came through the 1933 season with 30 first places out of a total of 44 races.

"Vehseda's" 35-foot boom is very narrow and is made weak enough to bend readily to leeward so as to give free play to the lower part of the mainsail. The curvature or deflection is controlled by wire stays from end to end of the boom to which a curved hinged strut.

The curvature is regulated by the amount of tension created by the wires to the windward in light airs and by the wires to the leeward in fresh airs. This principle is expected to find a place in the new "Endeavor." Like "Vehseda," "Endeavor" will be an all-steel cutter.

Six variety football players at Auburn are also stars on the track team. They are Sterling Dupree, Tiny Holmes, Allen Rogers, Elmer Kelley, Bill Anderson and James Eason.

SENSE and NONSENSE

There are a lot of folks who try to disguise themselves as cheese sandwiches at Halloween time. You've seen 'em.

Husband (during quarrel)—Now, I know why women are called birds. His Wife—Oh, and why is that? Husband—Because you are always chirping. His Wife—I understood it was on account of the worms we pick up.

HALLOWE'EN

I hope I never get too old to light a pumpkin lantern, on an Autumn night. Too wise to search a mirror's silver sheen. For your face, smiling back, on Halloween. I'll delve and toil, cloud fancy with steam truth. But this one day I'll keep from my lost youth.

Elderly Golfer Novice—How do you think I'm shaping, caddy? Caddy—Well, you're hitting the ball all right, sir; but you don't seem to get the direction of the hole. Elderly Golfer Novice—Hole? What hole?

A woman inquired of a Negro porter the time of the train to Chicago. She then went to a white man and asked him the same question. The porter went to the white man and said, with a smile, "Perhaps she will believe it now, since she's got it in black and white."

A father asked his son what made him lie in bed so long. "I am kept busy," said the son. "in hearing counsel every morning. Industry advises me to get up; Sloth to lie still. And they give 30 reasons for and against. It is my part to hear what is said on both sides, and by the time the case is over, dinner is ready."

Father—You have been calling on my daughter for nearly a year, young man. What are your intentions?

Young Man—I hope to become an addition to your family.

Father—Oh, no! You'll have to subtract, not add, young fellow.

There May Be More Divorces Now, But There Are Fewer Worn-Out Wives Who Wonder if It Would Be a Sin to Mix Rat Poison with the Biscuit.

First Sailor—Had your baby christened yet, chum? Second Sailor—No fear; nobody's going to crack my kid on the head with a bottle.

A sympathetic lady was delighted and thrilled by a sailor's narrative of how he was washed overboard during a gale and was rescued only after he had sunk for the third time. Sympathetic Lady—Of course, after you sank for the third time your whole life passed before your eyes? Sailor—I presume it would have done so, but as I had my eyes closed tight, I missed it.

We seriously Doubt if Many Women Will Ever Become So Proficient at Talking Politics As They Have Been at Talking About Their Neighbors.

Father—What happens to little boys that tell stories? Junior—They're kept in late after school. Father—And what happens when they grow up? Junior—They're kept in late at the office.

Gene—Bertie seems to have the air of a man about town. Lena—Perhaps so, but he's got the bank account of a man about town.

This is not the time to take that trip abroad. The dollar is worth only 68 cents outside this country and it is going lower according to predictions.

Brown—Yes, I have discovered that Helen Ferguson has a glass eye. Smith—Really how? Brown—Well, I chatted with her yesterday, and it came out during the conversation.

GIVE BIRTHDAY PARTY FOR HARRY ARMSTRONG

Event is Combined With Hallowe'en Celebration At East Center Street Home.

Mrs. Harry Armstrong, of East Center street, entertained with a supper-bridge last evening in honor of her husband's birthday which occurred yesterday. When Mr.
Armstrong came in after his day's work he was completely surprised to find his friends in a neighborhood bridge club had been invited to join in the festivities. The table decorations and favors were in keeping with Hallowe'en. Candles, flowers and the beautifully decorated birthday cake were in yellow, and everybody was in good spirits throughout the evening.

At bridge the highest honors went to Mrs. William Crawford and Howard Cheney, who Mr. Crawford and Mrs. Cheney had to be content with the consolation trophies. Mr. Armstrong declared it was his first birthday surprise party, but a most enjoyable one, and expressed his appreciation of the remembrance.
