

“MYSTERY AUTO”

AT CHENEY MILLS

Strange Actions Of Men Arouse Watchman's Suspicion; Police Notified.

Appearance of a "mystery car" around Cheney Brothers' mills at midnight last night aroused the suspicions of one of the watchmen and resulted in the local police being notified.

Policeman Joseph Prentice was sent to investigate after a call had been received from Edward Vickersman, head night watchman, to the effect that an automobile had been circling around the mills by one of the watchmen and had been there for some time.

DISTRICT COURTS

During the last session of the Connecticut Legislature and the session before that, there was a deal of agitation for the elimination of the town, city and justice courts and the substituting therefor of a system of district courts.

The district court system of Massachusetts was frequently held up as a model which should be followed in this state and which provided a perfect example of efficiency, economy and freedom from political influence.

If the Massachusetts system, upon which it was proposed to base a new Connecticut minor court structure, works as well as we in this state have been told that it does, it is a bit puzzling why there should be, in the Bay State, a widespread demand for its reconstruction.

There is such a demand would seem to be indicated not only by the fact that the legislature has a special commission at work for some time on the framing of a new court system but by the criticisms of the commission itself, which has now reported.

The public, it appears from the report, has lost public confidence in the district courts; their judges are so mixed up with politics that the commission proposes measures to bar them from political activities; the existing system does not operate to keep the superior court calendar from being overwhelmed with business. The system, in a word, is so bad that it becomes necessary in the opinion of the commission, to adopt "sweeping changes in the conduct of the courts and their judges."

Yet even in the proposed reforms there is to be detected much the same animus as under the present system in this state to adopt the district court system. The way the commission proposes to deal with the problem of 72 minor courts unable to relieve the superior courts of their overburden is to reduce the number of the minor or district courts to 54; the idea, of course, being to provide better and bigger and higher salaried jobs for the remaining judges.

Massachusetts' court problem is its own and Connecticut's only interest in the matter is the evidence that the model which in this state has been asked to adopt in this state has, apparently, blown up.

Of course, everybody who has observed the workings of the Massachusetts district court system knows that it is, compared with our own old system of municipal and justice courts, cumbersome and wasteful of the time of police, witnesses and lawyers, inordinately expensive to the citizen unlucky enough to have business in court.

For the fact that it is in a court situation of political entanglements not at all and that it fails completely to take over any considerable part of the surplusage of superior court business, the report of the Bay State commission is the authority.

Connecticut advocates of district courts will not be likely to abandon their agitation; but it is highly probable that, when next they resume their campaign, they will cite the beauties of that system as demonstrated in some state other than Massachusetts.

30,000 GRANGERS

While the 1934 annual convention of the National Grange has a good while in the future the fact that it is to be held in Connecticut lends to it an interest that is bound to grow from month to month as the seasons pass.

State Grange officers expect that not fewer than 30,000 Grange members from all parts of the United States will be the guests of Connecticut during the rather extended period of the gathering, for these Grange conventions are no parlor-festive two or three day affairs. The one next fall will probably last for about ten days.

So far as we can recall, this state has never held within its borders for any such period of time a gathering of all comparable to this one—tens of thousands of people, almost all of them farmers, assembled from every part of the country—"grain belt," sugar beet growers, California fruit specialists, hog men and cattle men, Midwestern, Southern, "money crop" farmers, dairymen, self contained Pennsylvania, New York state and New England poultrymen—representative of the vast and widely varying agriculture of the nation, foregathered in this busy little industrial hive of Connecticut for the first time.

This occasion is fascinating in its possibilities. What the people of the Midwest, West and South can learn about the people and the conditions of the industrial East and what the people of the industrial East can learn about the people of those far flung regions, a contact, a week or two of such large-scale contact, are almost unlimited.

There appears to be considerable uncertainty as to the convention city—whether the gathering will be in Hartford or Bridgeport. In this connection perhaps the State Grange will reflect well before deciding in favor of the Park City location. The reasons would be about keeping thirty thousand people, the majority of whom perhaps are coming so far east for only once in a lifetime, on the job of Grange business, the arrangements of New York less than sixty miles away?

WOULD LYNCH HUEY

Whether there is an election in the Sixth Congressional District of Louisiana tomorrow would appear to be a good deal of an uncertainty. If the people of the district have their way about it there will not be. If Senator Huey Long has his way it will be.

Bolivar E. Kemp, representative from that district, did the laws of Louisiana provide for primary nominations of Congressmen. Senator Long knew that no candidate of his could be nominated in this district. So there was no primary. Instead, the district executive committee of the Democratic party held a secret meeting, from which the anti-Long Democrats were excluded by the simple process of not letting them know about it, and Kemp's widow was named. An election had been called on eight days' notice by Long's stooge governor, Allen, after long delay.

Citizens of some of the twelve other counties comprising the district undertook to obtain an injunction restraining the secretary of state from placing Mrs. Kemp's name on the ballot, but the suit disclosed the fact that the ballots had already been printed. In fact they were printed three weeks before the election was called.

Eight of the twelve parishes refused to participate in paying for the election. One parish carried its ballot boxes to the newspaper office "back" there to the editor. In West Feliciana the townspeople held the ballots and burned them. Later they stopped Highway Commission employees who had been charged with the job of distributing thousands of pamphlets favoring Mrs. Kemp and burned the booklets. At a mass meeting of several thousand citizens of the district the people passed resolutions taking to themselves the power of the state officials and calling for a district election to be held December 27 instead of December 10.

Most significant of all, during the meeting there were many cries of "lynch him!"—referring to Huey Long—and speakers advised their hearers to "get down your shot-guns and rifles and remember your forefathers who fought for liberty!" It is conceivable that there are a good many very respectable people in this country, who have been emphatically condemning Governor Rolfe and demanding that lynching be stopped, who might be induced, without too much argument, to suspend the anti-lynching campaign long enough, at least, to give the Louisianans a chance to hang Huey Long from a sour apple tree.

PEDDLERS' LICENSES

An organized effort by house-to-house peddlers to force a reduction of license fees established by city ordinances and town bylaws, which have been enacted in this state, is not, we heard the belief, likely to be attended any early change in the attitude of the municipalities toward itinerant salesmen.

non-resident peddlers. It is intended to be administered, in fact, to make the peddling of commodities, other than those specifically favored by the state law, so unprofitable as to be practically prohibitive. For this action the town needs to offer no apology.

The town imposes and collects heavy taxes from its resident retailers both directly and indirectly in the form of rentals. It would be serving its own interests and those of its people but poorly if it did not protect them from the competition of house-to-house selling by people who pay no taxes, have no interest in the community except as to what they can get out of it.

There is also another angle of this business which is deserving of consideration—the serious nuisance of constant doorbell ringing by swarms of out-of-town peddlers who constantly intrude themselves on the attention of householders, and particularly of the women home makers, in communities that do not take steps to keep them away.

Many of these people are chameleon-like persistent and not all of them, by any means, are above suspicion as to their real purpose.

We have little fear that any successful attack will be made on the legality of our peddlers' license system. It is based on sound principles.

WHICH CURRENCY?

Theodore Roosevelt, political odd-job man who has lived precariously all his life upon the whim of being the son of an illustrious father, has a new position. He is no longer a politician but an economist and has taken the stump for the little group of deflationary dynamiters. They are turning out standard economists one night, nowadays, and Theodore is one of the quick products.

It is to be suspected that he prepared for the job by reading the campaign book of the Palmer and Buckner Democrats, gotten out in 1896, for his arguments against inflation are profoundly reminiscent of the stuff of those far off days from that source.

"There is no sure road to ruin," says "Young Freddy," when tampering with the currency!

Which currency? The original gold and silver currency with which this nation was developed, with which its great wars were fought, and which most of its railroads were built and with which American ships traded in every port of the world? Or the currency which tamperers managed, by a trick of legislation, to impose on the country while Congress was looking out the window, sixty years ago.

Theodore is not very profound. Even the biggest of the deflationary newspapers put his latest outpouring on inside pages. He may be willing, but he will never be the gold standarder's ace—he makes too many bad breaks.

THE BATTERED FUBRAG UTILITIES (From The Hartford Courant)

The other day one of our correspondents, who signed himself "100 Per Cent Roosevelt," quoted with approval an article by Professor Albert Levitt in the New York Times, in which the Professor undertook to make a comparison of the rates charged for electricity by Connecticut companies with those announced by the Tennessee Valley Authority, which is developing the Muscle Shoals project. The Professor's calculations made it appear that residential consumers in the State were paying $38 a year on the average against the $7.80 that consumers within reach of Muscle Shoals will pay. If Professor Levitt will take the trouble to look into the matter further he will find that his estimate of the $7.80 average for the Tennessee Valley is only 145 per cent out of the way. He should have contrasted $18 there with the $12 here.

Now even that might appear to be a convincing argument that Connecticut companies are charging consumers altogether too much if it were not for the fact that it is not the Tennessee Valley Authority frankly admit that the $18 charge will produce a deficit which it purports to make up by means of a surcharge on industrial consumers in the form of a surcharge. Professor Levitt probably is aware that the contract between the Tennessee Valley Authority and the towns and cities which it supplies contains a clause not to depart from the resale rates without first securing the approval of the Authority, provided, however, that it is to maintain their revenues "in the developmental period in which the increased demand for power may be met by the greatly reduced rates" they may impose a surcharge "upon those classes of consumers subject to a surcharge under the provisions of the schedule."

Professor Levitt has been a barker of public utilities and naturally he is not to be trusted. He has immediately appeals to him. In his enthusiasm for the lower rates obtaining here he does not include the expense properly chargeable to the rate payer. If he had included light and power plants, gas plants, and street railways were compelled to pay taxes and to meet the other expenses that are added upon privately-owned utilities that charges would actually be higher because of the waste and inefficiency so commonly exemplified in most public utilities.

All the expenses that have to be borne by privately-owned and operated utilities are under public ownership, assessed upon the taxpayers in some roundabout way. It is these expenses which are not reckoned into the charges that make the rates under public ownership seem low. In the case, the whole body of the public takes up deficits through concealed tax levies; in the other, they who actually use and are benefited by the service rendered pay for what they get. It has been demonstrated over and over again that publicly-owned light and power plants are not able to produce electricity any cheaper than privately-owned plants. In fact, it generally costs more, but by conveniently setting up a fictitious system of bookkeeping they are able to make a balance sheet calculated to deceive the gullible.

There is, however, an entirely different matter, Professor Levitt has in our Forum today a letter relative to the rate case he was instrumental in bringing against the Manchester Electric Company. After attentive hearings and examination of all the evidence, the Public Utilities Commission found that the rates charged were not unreasonable. The petitioners withdrew their appeal to the Superior Court chiefly for the reason, Professor Levitt says, that there was no money with which to carry on the case. He contrasts the $700 which the people of Manchester raised with the $50,000 that the company expended, but he neglects to state that the larger part of the company's expenses was occasioned by the detailed inventory made by outside engineers of every item of the company's property. This information was necessary for both rates to be assessed, and for the Public Utilities Commission as well. It was furnished to the petitioners without charge, although the cost was paid for entirely by the company.

No agreement was reached by opposing counsel which would effect an ultimate lowering of rates, but the Public Utilities Commission suggests that inasmuch as the "prolonged and continued controversy" has had a tendency to destroy the good relations existing between the company and its customers, it might be well for the company, even though its rates have been adjudged reasonable, to make some concessions in the interest of good will around the company. It has expressed its willingness to do everything within its power, without regard to its legal rights, to restore the entire cordial, and the petitioners now appear to be in a like frame of mind. So on December 17 there is to be such a get-together as might have been had in the first instance had not resort to legal proceedings been taken.

There is a lesson in all this for other communities that may, with or without real reason, feel aggrieved. To be fair, just and reasonable is a policy that has been generally adopted by the public utilities of this state and it is a policy that has largely contributed to their success. A little attitude on the part of the public will produce amicable understandings that cannot possibly be reached by going on a rampage. (Note: A duplicate of the Forum letter referred to in the above editorial appears in today's Open Forum column of The Herald.)

DEAD P. O. LETTER OFFICE HERE NOW All Undeliverable Mail Other Than Packages Will Be Opened Here.

For the first time in the history of the local postoffice, dead letters will be opened and disposed of here instead of being forwarded to Boston as the case has been in the past.

Under a new Government policy, which became effective December 1, all first-class postoffices are to have their own dead letter office. Manchester comes under this new rule.

Not Many Here Postmaster Frank B. Crocker said today that there are not enough dead letters received here to warrant establishing a special office to handle them, or to assign a man to have charge of such an office.

It becomes no longer necessary to maintain huge personnel merely to open, read and dispose of dead letters in the central stations. Boston was the central station for New England.

AMUSEMENTS "BUDDY" ROGERS GETS BIG HAND AT STUDIO

Deigned With Gretings As He Returned To Play Part In "Take A Chance."

When Charles "Buddy" Rogers came back to the studio in the island, studio to take a leading role in Paramount's "Take A Chance," he found himself deluged with greetings from friends who remembered the days when he was just breaking into the entertainment world.

"It's as if I'd only been away for a month or so," he grinned as his fingers rattled over the keys of the piano in the "Camaramen, sound technicians, property men, carpenters, grip-all are the same fellows I knew when I attended Paramount School for Actors seven years ago. It's well to be welcomed home."

Buddy continued between Chicago and New York in order to appear in "Take A Chance." He used the new four-hour picture script every week and the picture was lauded for $200,000 in case he crashed. You see, his orchestra is playing at the Coliseum in Chicago and he had to return every weekend to direct it.

Rogers is still fascinated by motion pictures, he says, but intends to make only three or four more in a year in order that he may vary his characterization and avoid being "typed" as he has been in the past when devoting his time exclusively to the screen. Moreover, he doesn't want to give up his music.

"Building up an orchestra is a tremendous job," he declared, "and nobody appreciates the labor involved because, after weeks of rehearsal and training, my men sit on a platform and work like a perfect piece of machinery. Besides, it's a lot of fun and I wouldn't give up my orchestra for any film contract."

"Take A Chance," which comes Wednesday to the State theater, features Rogers, James Dunn, Cliff Edwards, June Knight, Lillian Roth, Lilian Bond, Dorothy Lee and Lona Andre. It tells the story of a quartette of side-show entertainers who come to New York and win fame and fortune on Broadway after a series of hair-raising adventures which takes them from a gambling den to the homes of the society folk of Long Island.

ROCKVILLE SECRETARY OF STATE GIVES MEMORIAL TALK

John S. Danaher Addressed Rockville Lodge of Elks On Subject Appropriate For Occasion.

The Origin of Fidelity, Charity, Justice and Brotherly Love, was the topic John S. Danaher, Secretary of State for Connecticut, at the annual Memorial Service, Rockville Lodge, No. 1326, B. F. O. Elks, at the Elks Home, Sunday afternoon at 8 o'clock.

More than 100 guests were in hand here Secretary Danaher, who dwelt on the four principles of Elksdom and urged all present to stand by these principles.

The impressive service opened with the playing of the national anthem, which was most enthusiastically rendered by the Elks orchestra. Exalted Ruler William H. Chapman, assisted by Esquire Willis H. Chapman, conducted the opening ceremonies, which were most impressive.

It became no longer necessary to maintain huge personnel merely to open, read and dispose of dead letters in the central stations. Boston was the central station for New England.

AMUSEMENTS "BUDDY" ROGERS GETS BIG HAND AT STUDIO

When Charles "Buddy" Rogers came back to the studio in the island, studio to take a leading role in Paramount's "Take A Chance," he found himself deluged with greetings from friends who remembered the days when he was just breaking into the entertainment world.

"It's as if I'd only been away for a month or so," he grinned as his fingers rattled over the keys of the piano in the "Camaramen, sound technicians, property men, carpenters, grip-all are the same fellows I knew when I attended Paramount School for Actors seven years ago. It's well to be welcomed home."

Buddy continued between Chicago and New York in order to appear in "Take A Chance." He used the new four-hour picture script every week and the picture was lauded for $200,000 in case he crashed. You see, his orchestra is playing at the Coliseum in Chicago and he had to return every weekend to direct it.

After crossing the railroad tracks at the intersection of Brooklyn and Main streets, the horse took to the sidewalk and tried to go between the electric light pole and the building where O'Connell's Package Store is located. The package store is so narrow and the curbs come to a sudden end that the horse knocked the electric light pole and the building horse uncommodious and the wrecked electric light pole and the building recovered within a few minutes, brought to its feet and found unharmed. The wagon was wrecked. No one was held to blame for the accident, which was the first of its kind in many years.

MASSENA, N. Y., HOTEL DESTROYED BY BLAZE

Massena, N. Y., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Forty-two occupants of a winter hotel escaped through flames and a smoke-filled hallway this morning as a fire of undetermined origin destroyed the main three-story brick structure and five ground floor business establishments. The damage was estimated by proprietors of the hotel and the stores at a total of $125,000.

For a time the fire threatened the entire business district. The flames spread so rapidly that the occupants nearly had time to escape. Firemen arrived many of them guests, down ladders from the windows to safety. The doors of nearby homes were thrown open to the rescued.

A sewer section of the hotel was destroyed by the flames. The regular meeting of the Board of Selectmen will be held Tuesday evening with First Selectman Francis J. Pritchard presiding. Considerable routine business remains to be acted upon.

ORGANIZER WARNS AGAINST STRIKES

200 Rockville Textile Workers Hear Speakers At Union Mass Meeting.

Rockville, Dec. 4.—"We don't want any strike and we are going to avoid one," declared Joseph Sylvia, Pawtucket, R. I., International Brotherhood Organizer of the United Textile Workers of America, while speaking at the meeting of Rockville Textile workers Sunday afternoon, when the Rockville branch of the Textile union was started.

More than 200 textile workers were present at the meeting which was held in Pulaski hall on Village street at 8 o'clock and which lasted nearly two hours.

Eighty-three of those present joined the proposed Rockville branch and deposited $1.00 as their initial membership dues. Temporary officers were elected and a committee appointed to solicit members.

The meeting was opened by several textile workers from Stafford who are members of the International Textile Workers of America. In a powerful voice, Joseph Sylvia, the International organizer, discussed the wages of the weavers and said wages can be brought up to the proper level without strikes, which are the last resort.

He stated that the textile workers should have no fear for the NRA, which gives everyone a right to organize. He discussed the possibility of a strike and said he wanted to take drastic action.

The speaker referred to a "more open" time when you refused to take the advice of the United Textile Workers but took the advice of some one who had no connection, and as a result you are working for the miserable wage of $12.00 by operating three looms for the pay of two.

Mr. Sylvia strongly advised against the organization of a local factory union, and referred to Broad Brook where weavers have pleaded for two years to be taken into the United Textile Workers.

A speaker there today, "At this point Mr. Sylvia said 'we don't want any strike and we are going to avoid one here,' and referred to the successful Textile union in Stafford.

In speaking of the number of working hours he said, "we are going to get 30 hours instead of 40 hours as at present."

This completed Mr. Sylvia's talk, and he answered a question as to whether the single men would receive the same consideration as the married men, replying they were on the same basis and equal.

Mr. Sylvia invited the textile workers present to sign applications for membership, which required the payment of $1.00 which included the first month's dues and the per capita tax of 35 cents.

While the members were signing applications a speaker from Pawtucket, R. I., who was on his way to Hartford, dropped in and was asked to speak.

William L. Connolly, a member of the Pawtucket, R. I. NRA Board, was the speaker and he delivered a formal address which brought forth much applause.

Calls Manufacturers Fair Mr. Connolly said: "I say 30 per cent of the manufacturers are fair and want to be fair and the other 20 per cent are chislers of the lowest type, and it is these 20 per cent which have led the hands of those who are fair."

"I can't see why the working man don't fall in with men like President Roosevelt, for he is helping us to organize," said Mr. Connolly, "and for the first time in history the Congress of the United States has backed you in regard to the right to organize and has placed a law on the books."

American Federation of Labor, Mr. Connolly said. "I admit there are racketeers in the American Federation of Labor but I do say that we do all we can to get them out, and we will have a better chance if more honest men come in."

When a formal motion was made to join the United Textile Workers of America, approximately 50 raised their hands to vote in favor of it and no one voted against it.

The meeting behind closed doors then elected a set of temporary officers and arranged at a meeting to be held Sunday afternoon, December 10, possibly in the Town Hall at 2 o'clock.

The police force of Newcastle-on-Tyne, England, claims to be the first in the British Isles to inaugurate a permanent radio-telephone system for communicating with mobile police. No controls, which include motorcycles, are included.

Field of the advantages of a union, saying that an individual would have a hard time getting a complaint to the proper officials, but an organization would be readily heard.

Another statement which brought applause was that "if President Roosevelt and Congress recognize that we must organize, where is the individual who can give one good reason for not organizing?"

"I'll bet you never invested a dollar to better advantage or which will bring you better returns" said the speaker in urging more to sign application cards.

President Roosevelt Lauded President Roosevelt was praised by Mr. Connolly who said in part, "President Roosevelt has done two-thirds of the labor when he has encouraged you to organize."

"No dirt or slander was thrown at the Rockville manufacturers who were referred to only as folks by Mr. Connolly."

"I don't know you Rockville manufacturers but if they are fair he will encourage your organization, but if he is a chisler he will form a company union, which will be to his own advantage."

Questioned as to racketeers in the BROTHERHOOD... less insurance attention... and less savings on fuel bills. These are some of the reasons why millions have voted to 'blue coal' in the last two years.

In any other city the story is the same. One delivered near tells another... and soon whole neighborhoods are voting to 'blue coal'—even at the touch of a lamp, give nice, steady heat all day, and burn perfectly at night.

Thousands of home owners who had experimented with the new 'blue coal' fuel, and been disappointed are among the most enthusiastic boosters of 'blue coal.' Just read what Mrs. Mrs. J. Grant, Trainee Nurse of Johns Hopkins, Md., writes:

"I read of the varying results with other fuels, I was delighted with the results of using 'blue coal.' Besides giving steady, more beautiful heat it is also a money saver. And with the blue color you've heard you're getting good coal."

IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES TO BE THE CHAMPION TRAP SHOOTER. Steady Smokers turn to Camels. WALTER BRAYER, holder of the coveted Grand American Trap-shooting championship is partly a matter of luck, partly the result of practice and partly of healthy nerves. It's a steady smoker. People like me about it at the tournaments. They say I never have a cigarette out of my mouth. During all those years I've been smoking Camels, not only because I like their taste and their mildness, but also because they never jangle my nerves. It's no fun to feel that your nerves are ragged—and to wonder why. Check up on your rating... your sleep your cigar... that's a fresh slant on your smoking. You'll find them tobacco, better tasting, and they never get on your nerves.

New York, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Football uniforms were packed away for the season. The Herald team took the lead at the outset of the game. The Guard team minus Sandow and Douglas were never in the running and their aggressive type of game did not appeal to the fans. The Herald team was a rough and tumble affair and had the crowd on edge throughout the entire game. Team work and accurate shooting were the two major factors in the victory of the Herald team. "Johnny" Haddock played an outstanding game scoring seven goals from the floor all being of exceptional type. His advance work was a born in the Guard's defense.

Gould Finds Fans At Odds With The All-America Team

Here's One Critic Blasting Away at Minnesota and Pug Lund; And Here's the Answer to His Attack.

"Writing in his popular 'Sport Slants' column, Alan Gould, Associated Press Sports Editor, has this to say about the annual All-American selections announced last Saturday: 'It would be nice and cozy to report that everyone is happy in this year's All-America family. But the fact is that a number of disappointed fans are being heard from. The undercurrent of the year is a widespread feeling of being let down. The undercurrent of the year is a widespread feeling of being let down. The undercurrent of the year is a widespread feeling of being let down.'
