Coast Guard yesterday and the boat and men were saved. While a heavy snow fall limited vision the L-50's engine suddenly stopped yesterday morning while the vessel was between Forts Mitchell and Fort Terry, two of the now little used harbor defense posts of Long Island Sound.

An hour was put over board as men worked to repair the damage, but as the day progressed the mechanical defect could not be found. The wind increased to gale force as the afternoon hours advanced, and suddenly the anchor lines parted and the L-50, driven by the wind went rolling and plunging through storm-tossed seas, headed for destruction.

Had No Radio

The L-50, generally used as a light mine planter, has Fort H. G. Wright at Fisher's Island, N. Y., as its base, and when the sixty foot vessel did not return to the fort in the evening, with a work detail from Fort Michie, concern was felt. The L-50 was not equipped with radio and therefore could not communicate the news of its plight.

But the commander of the boat, knowing that Coast Guard patrol boats must be abroad as the evening gray afternoon gave way to darker evening caused distress signals to be flashed, and the Coast Guard patrol boat CG-171 from Section Base 4, here, answered and took the L-50 in tow. The latter was headed direct for Gardiners Island and would surely have crashed on the rocky shore within 20 minutes.

Deciding to bring the L-50 to this port the commander of the Coast Guard boat set out with her in tow, but in the race of Long Island Sound the tow line broke, and the larger vessel, General Absalom Baird, an Army mine-planter, arriving at the scene took charge of the towing and brought the L-50 and the men aboard her to this port. The boat was undamaged other than the mechanical trouble and none was hurt.

The engine trouble occurred after the boat had landed a work detail at Fort Michie, and these men were required to remain at the fort all night because of the accident.

New Haven, Dec. 12.—(AP)—The thermometer recorded a low of 12 degrees at 7:45 a. m. today in the U. S. Weather Bureau.

This was one degree colder than yesterday's low, but two degrees warmer than that reached Sunday, the first day of the cold siege. A woman was injured as her car skidded on the frozen snow and was in head-on collision with a trolley car. Another woman suffered a broken leg as she slipped and fell on an icy pavement.

U. S. MAY CHANGE PLATT AMENDMENT

State Department Considers Move to Help Smooth Unrest in Cuba.

Washington, Dec. 12.—(AP)—A plan under which the United States might offer to abrogate the Platt amendment in order to help smooth unrest in Cuba was reported authoritatively today at the State Department to have been discussed.

Whether a definite suggestion would be made was not disclosed. It was reported unofficially Ambassador Welles already had made some overtures toward abrogating the amendment, which authorizes American intervention in Cuba under certain circumstances.

Welles conversation was said to have taken place in connection with conferences designed to bring opposing factions in the island together, which were reported to have broken down last night.

Acting Secretary of State Phillips declined to comment, saying any statement involving the Platt amendment would have to come from Secretary Hull, who is attending the Pan-American conference at Montevideo.

In the official quarters, however, it was stated today that the State Department probably would not object to proposals to modify the Platt amendment if it would serve to provide the basis for a new deal in Cuba.

Unless Cuban groups get together in their conciliatory efforts, however, it was intimated that the present would be an inauspicious time to initiate any treaty revision.

President Roosevelt, on November 24 at Warm Springs, Ga., issued a statement in which he expressed a desire to modify the treaty of 1901, which includes the intervention stipulation. At that time he said: "We have been keenly desirous during all this period of showing by deed our intention of playing the part of a good neighbor to the Cuban people."

Stable Government. "On the economic side, we have been hopeful of entering upon a discussion of such measures as might be undertaken by common consent between the two governments which would respond to the benefit of both the American and Cuban people."

The Platt Amendment provides: "That the government of Cuba consents that the United States may exercise the right to intervene for the preservation of Cuban independence, the maintenance of a government adequate for the protection of life, property, and individual liberty, and for discharging the obligations with respect to Cuba, imposed by the treaty of Paris on the United States, now to be assumed and undertaken by the government of Cuba."

LOW BOOZE PRICES ARE NOW PROPOSED BY FEDERAL BOARD

(Continued from Page One) committee had started out with the objective of finding a tax rate that would not permit bootleggers to complete with legal whiskey.

The best evidence the committee could obtain, he testified was that legal liquor could be placed in the hands of retailers for $1.20 a gallon, but that illegal spirits cost $4.20 a gallon in the retailers hands because of "protection, bribery, gunman and everything down the line."

Lowry explained the $4.20 figure was based on large scale operations but that it probably would be impossible for legal liquor to compete with the small bootlegger "with a couple of bottles in his satchel."

He explained that for the latter the only cost of distribution was "his shoe leather."

Representative Crowther (R., N. Y.) suggested that $170,000,000 estimated to result from a $2 tax would not make up for the revenues automatically lost when prohibition was repealed.

Lowry said in addition to an excise tax of $170,000,000 the Treasury estimated 20,000,000 gallons of imports would pay a tariff of $120,000,000 and wine revenues would amount to $30,000,000.

Chairman Harrison of the Senate finance committee recalled testimony yesterday estimating consumption at 140,000,000 gallons a year.

He said if 100,000,000 of this was domestically produced a tax of $2.20 would raise $220,000,000 and the tariff on the balance would bring in $280,000,000 more or a total of $500,000,000.

Lowry agreed there were many "complications" in carrying out his committee's recommendation for dividing revenues with states that refrained from levying a gallonage tax.

Representative Evans (R., Calif.) suggested the plan was "impractical," but Lowry dissented.

WOMAN IS BADLY HURT AS AUTO HITS TROLLEY

New Haven, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Miss Helen M. Medley, 24, a stenographer, of Woodbridge, was injured seriously today when her car skidded and crashed into a trolley car at Whalley avenue and West Prospect street, as she drove to her place of work in New Haven.

She was taken to Grace hospital with cuts on the head, face and legs and a possible fracture of the skull.

Police said Miss Medley was attempting to pass another car when her car skidded on the hard packed snow and collided head on with the trolley. She was thrown through the windshield.

There were no passengers on the street car and the operator of the car, James Lynch of New Haven, was not injured.

Mrs. Emil Peters of Georgetown, Ky., is the first woman to be elected trustee of Georgetown college, there.

SAYS MAN KILLED BY KHAKI SHIRTS

Witness Declares Young Anti-Fascist Did Not Commit Murder.

New York, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Samuel Z. Wein, who called himself former "quartermaster general" of the Khaki Shirts of America, testified today that a member of the Khaki Shirts actually committed the slaying for which Alton S. Saxe, anti-Fascist, is on trial for murder.

Wein was the first witness called by the defense since the state rested this morning. He said he first met Smith in Hollywood, where Wein kept a boarding house for bonus marchers.

Describing the riot of July 14, he said it began when Smith, whose organization has fascist leanings, descended from the rostrum and knocked out a reporter for La Stampa Libera, anti-Fascist newspaper.

The fighting became widespread, Wein said, and he heard Smith say: "Let him have it."

"Then," Wein testified, "I took my place behind Smith and handled my man. The fighting was hard and I was a little dazed. Then I saw Frank Moffer standing on a bench. Fiero was down there fighting and Frank Moffer shot him."

The next day at a hotel, he testified, Smith came in dressed in full uniform and remarked: "This is what we have to do to get publicity for the Khaki Shirts. One week we'll kill a Republican; one week we'll kill a Democrat; and another week we'll kill a Communist."

The witness said "next" after the killing Moffer was taken to Philadelphia, promoted from a private to a captain in Smith's bodyguard and told to raise a moustache so nobody would recognize him.

"Smith told me to testify that Terzani killed Fiero," Wein said. "I told him I'd do my best."

"What did he say he'd do if you didn't testify as he told you?" Defense Counsel Harry Sacher asked. "He said he would drive on and kill all the Jews in the United States."

Tells of Beer Joins. Wein, forgetting his formal military manner, spoke once of beer joints. He also raised a laugh by a colloquy between him and Judge Thomas Downs.

Wein had said he rode to the Queens meeting with Smith and a "Prof. McGregor."

"Professor of what?" asked the judge. "Economics."

"Where'd he get his degree?" "From Art J. Smith," Wein said. "Later he referred to McGregor as 'General'."

"Both professor and general—by Art J. Smith?" queried the judge. "Yes, sir," the witness said.

The trial has caused a stir in many Liberal and Left Wing circles, which have called the accusation against Terzani a "frame-up."

Norman Thomas was in court today as head of the Terzani defense committee.

litical threats; which is inarticulate and long suffering and is being, in this jungle over profits from milk, utterly outraged. That element is the consumer element. It outnumbered all the other elements a hundred to one. Its interest in the problem of milk prices is infinitely the greatest. But it is the only element that has not, in one way or other, gotten into the squabble over milk control.

All it knows is that the people of Connecticut are required to pay more for the milk their children need—and in countless thousands of cases cannot have in sufficient quantities—the highest price exacted anywhere on the face of the earth, in a period of depression when their earning power is terribly reduced. And that this price is a price fixed by an organism set up under a law adopted by the last Legislature.

The people of this state, as a whole, do not care a hoot in the dark whether this or that association of individuals connected with the milk trade likes the law or detests it, or why. They only know that they are being bilked in the price of milk and that not the milkman but the Board of Milk Control and the Connecticut General Assembly are responsible.

Is it to be assumed that the people will stand this thing forever? We do not believe so.

HELPING THOMAS

Attention of those who fear that efforts to relieve the conditions of deflation by recourse to compensatory inflation savor of radicalism is especially called to the fact that Norman Thomas, last year's candidate for the Presidency on the Socialist ticket, is opposed to inflation.

Mr. Thomas' reasons for disapproving of currency expansion is not that it would not do the depressed classes any good but that he fears that, in the long run, their lot would not be materially improved.

To get down under the skin of Mr. Thomas' argument he opposes inflation because it would, in all probability, bring some measure of contentment to the large body of the people, thereby insuring a continuance of the capitalistic system. Mr. Thomas, as is well known, is quite without hope of any great improvement in the lot of the masses so long as capitalism remains as an economic system. What he is after is the establishment of a socialistic state.

We are not of that cock-sure school which brusquely asserts that there can never be such a thing as a socialistic state in America; "never" is a long while, and times and conditions change. We do not, however, believe that this country will be adjustable to any such system as that of the Socialist party while any of us now in it are still alive—but do believe, on the contrary, that it is a desirable thing to end this depression for the benefit of people now living instead of deliberately letting it become so unbearable that eventually, after a long time, another generation will tear capitalism to pieces and substitute state socialism for it.

It will probably surprise some of the advocates of continued deflation to find themselves in the same economic boat with Mr. Thomas. If they are wise they will begin to figure out whether he is helping them or whether they are helping him.

TAX EXEMPTION

Why should the safest and best investment securities be tax-exempt?

Why should issues of federal, state and municipal bonds, to the extent of $40,000,000,000, be freed from the tax burden imposed upon other forms of income-producing property?

These are questions to which it is extremely difficult to find any satisfactory answer.

One needs but a short memory to recall the many times that there has been advanced against any proposal to increase income taxes in the higher brackets the warning: "If you do that you'll drive capital out of industry and into tax exempt securities."

That was a fallacious argument, of course, because there were only as many tax-exempt securities as there were, anyhow, and somebody or other owned all of them. But it served pretty well, nevertheless, because unthinking people went no further than the realization that such things as tax-exempt securities did exist.

It is probably impossible to present any sound argument in favor of the extremely bad principle of tax-exempt securities. The one usually employed—that it is the tax-exempt quality that makes such bonds attractive to the investor and so enables nation, state or city to float bond issues that would otherwise be unmarketable—will not hold water. If the bonds were not a good investment anyhow people would certainly not risk their money in them just to dodge the tax collector—they would rather have stocks or corporation bonds that were good, even if they had to pay taxes on them. It is possible, of course, that the premium that the investor is willing to pay for a public bond, when it is tax-exempt—or the price for which it sells when it does not command a premium—would be a little lower if it were subject to taxation. But it is wholly improbable that any such bond issue was ever marketed, because of its tax-freedom, that could not have been marketed without that unreasonable privilege. And in the end, nation, state and municipality lose, in taxes, always more than they gain in the added price they get for the securities.

Last session of Congress there was much muttering against the tax-exemption of incomes derived from this class of investments. The murmurers were of both parties. The defenders of tax-exemption were of both parties.

Now there is a growing feeling that the time has come for doing away with this unjustifiable trick by means of which a good many persons, their fortunes discreetly and carefully invested, are enabled to dodge practically every cent of tax burden while their neighbors, often infinitely less well off, are having their backs broken with taxation. In the forthcoming session it is quite certain that a resolute effort will be made to do away with the exemption.

For years this injustice has been entrenched behind the idea that it would be unconstitutional to tax securities which had been issued as tax exempt. The idea is now gaining strength that it would be well to go ahead and pass the necessary legislation and let the Supreme Court attend to the constitutionality and of the business—because if it is being more and more shrewdly suspected that tax-exemption is in itself unconstitutional.

IN NEW YORK

By PAUL HARRISON

New York, Dec. 12.—Sixty bicycle racers live longer than you'd think. Longer than you'd guess, at least, while watching one of them head into a nose-dive and then go head-over-handlebars into the splinters of the spinning sprockets of the other riders. They can take it, though; the track physician scratches them up and they go on. By the end of the long to nowhere most of the wounds are healed and some of the contestants have gained a few pounds in weight.

Take Reggie McNamara, who at the age of 46 is spryly riding his 98th grind in Madison Square Garden. The "Iron Man" has been injured more than any other athlete in the world; he has had a fractured skull, a broken nose, a broken leg, ribs three times, his jaw once, and carries the scars of thousands of lacerations. While collecting these trophies of the perilous sport, he has won 16 six-day races and finished in the money in 83 others. Says it's a great life, and that he hasn't begun to weaken.

Even the racers make much money, for although the fans' favorites are paid up to $500 a day they have to hire their own trainers and mechanics and buy their own bicycle and tires. McNamara's last six-day race cleared about $10,000 annually. Lesser athletes try to make extra money from the special sprint prizes offered by wealthy people who wander in late for a bit of excitement.

A series of sprints are held from 8 to 6 o'clock every morning, that being the best time to catch the clubboys and girls from the night clubs.

He Rules the Riders

Two former riders who make real money are John M. Chapman, promoter of absolute ease of the bike grind, and Frank L. Kramer, who referees all the races. Chapman quit riding in the 'nineties to promote races in Salt Lake City. In those days a man rode until he fell and went on when he was unable. Now, of course, two-man teams are entered, and individuals sometimes get as much as two and a half hours sleep at a stretch.

Chapman is so secure in his dictatorship that he even has admitted that the six-day races are spectacles rather than contests. The reason for this is that he arbitrarily pairs the riders, strong with weak, to prevent some powerful combination from smothering all the honors. He also can disqualify a contestant with a wave of his arm. And there is no recourse.

Then Kramer, referee, was an amateur rider for four years and a professional for 23. Beginning in 1910, he won the sprint championship eighteen times. Retiring under the name of Frank L. Kramer, he became chairman of the committee on rules, and to this day there are few people who even pretend to understand the scoring system; nor do they know who keeps count, if any, of the mad gyrations of the riders around the spur.

Sports experts have estimated that at least a dozen assistant referees would be required to keep an accurate check. Such a scepticism doesn't bother Messrs. Chapman and Kramer a bit.

MILK

So many groups are mixed up in this perennial milk controversy that there would seem to be no room for any more. Yet there is one element which never holds meetings, with the Milk Control Board or without it; which has no organization; which is wholly unrepresented in any of the endless conferences; which never talks about appealing to the courts, which holds up no po-wise be unmarketable—will not hold water. If the bonds were not a good investment anyhow people would certainly not risk their money in them just to dodge the tax collector—they would rather have stocks or corporation bonds that were good, even if they had to pay taxes on them. It is possible, of course, that the premium that the investor is willing to pay for a public bond, when it is tax-exempt—or the price for which it sells when it does not command a premium—would be a little lower if it were subject to taxation. But it is wholly improbable that any such bond issue was ever marketed, because of its tax-freedom, that could not have been marketed without that unreasonable privilege. And in the end, nation, state and municipality lose, in taxes, always more than they gain in the added price they get for the securities.

Last session of Congress there was much muttering against the tax-exemption of incomes derived from this class of investments. The murmurers were of both parties. The defenders of tax-exemption were of both parties.

Now there is a growing feeling that the time has come for doing away with this unjustifiable trick by means of which a good many persons, their fortunes discreetly and carefully invested, are enabled to dodge practically every cent of tax burden while their neighbors, often infinitely less well off, are having their backs broken with taxation. In the forthcoming session it is quite certain that a resolute effort will be made to do away with the exemption.

For years this injustice has been entrenched behind the idea that it would be unconstitutional to tax securities which had been issued as tax exempt. The idea is now gaining strength that it would be well to go ahead and pass the necessary legislation and let the Supreme Court attend to the constitutionality and of the business—because if it is being more and more shrewdly suspected that tax-exemption is in itself unconstitutional.

FOUND DEAD IN WELL

William Linton, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Miss Linton, 33, was found dead today in a well at the rear of her home on North Farm Road.

Dr. John H. Butrum, medical examiner said death was due to a fractured skull, received as the woman plunged into the well. The body was laid in night clothes.

Members of the family said Miss Linton was a sleep walker and that she may have stumbled into the well while walking in her sleep. She leaves her parents, two sisters and a brother.

Behind the Scenes in WASHINGTON

By HODNEY DUTCHER
 The Herald Washington Correspondent.

Washington, Dec. 12.—Pumpkin pie probably will enter the Russian diet as soon as Maxim Litvinoff gets home.

It was the one new dish in America which most tickled the czar's palate. Generally, he found food much the same as in European capitals.

"Many pumpkins we have in Russia," he said, "but no pumpkin pie."

What impressed the plump little statesman most? The astonishing number of automobiles speeding about.

"More even than in France!" he exclaimed.

In non-conference moments, Litvinoff was interested principally in discussing American industry. He was surprised at the number of factories and other plants he saw from the train enroute to Washington and took special interest in the Pennsylvania railroad program for electrification, insisting on learning all about it.

Too Thrilled To Think

"Ge!" I was too excited over meeting the President," exclaimed Democratic Mayor-elect William W. McNair of Pittsburgh as he emerged from the executive office with National Committeeman Joe Guiffey and was asked what Roosevelt had said.

Liquor, Legs and Morals

Smack on top of news that AAA and NRA codes would be used for liquor regulation in the immediate post-reef period, both recovery outfits found themselves tangled up in the field of morals.

On a chorus girl stay virtuoso on $7.50 or $30 a week? That's one for NRA to answer. Not on less than $50, argued President of the F.B.P. of the Burlesque Artists' Association, fighting the proposed minimum in the burlesque industry's code.

WAPPING

Mrs. Messenger and son, Percy Messenger of Hartford were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Felt last Sunday.

The Men's Bible Class of Wapping will have an oyster supper on Tuesday evening, December 12, at the new Community Church House. All the men of the town are invited.

There were nine teams sent out by the Federated Church on a drive for funds for the ensuing year, last Sunday afternoon. They had a busy afternoon with encouraging reports.

The Uncas played their first league game against the Manchester Crescents at the Wapping Community Church House, last Saturday evening, December 9, and won by three points, the score was 21-18. So the Uncas has made a good start in the league. The Manchester Crescents were formerly known as "The Manchester Y." The Uncas is scheduled to play in Hasardville some night this week. This is another league game. All fans interested should attend this game and help support the team. A notice will be put in the paper as soon as Manager Leslie Collins hears from them. Wednesday night December 13 the Uncas will meet the Rockville Foresters in Rockville at 8:30 p. m. All players going should be at Snow's store not later than 6 p. m.

QUEBEC JUDGE DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Quebec, Que., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Judge Pierre D'Auteuil, 76, judge of the Superior Court here and a member of one of Quebec's oldest and best known families, died today after an illness of three months.

Born in Riviere Ouelle, Kamouraska County, Que., in 1857, Pierre D'Auteuil was educated at Quebec University and studied law at McGill University, after which he became a member of the Quebec bar in 1881. He was a descendant of Denis Joseph Ruette D'Auteuil of Monacauc, procurator of the Sovereign Council, 1674-1679 in the French regime. The family has been represented at the bar almost without interruption since that time.

He was elected as a Conservative to the Quebec Legislature in 1912, and two years later was appointed to the bench.

Judge D'Auteuil's wife, Adeline Forget, widow of Philippe Lafontaine, and a sister of the late Sir Rodolphe Forget, died several years ago. He is survived by one son, Henri D'Auteuil, advocate of Murray Bay, Que., and two daughters, Mrs. A. H. Prout and Miss Therese D'Auteuil, of this city.

NEW NRA DIRECTOR

New York, Dec. 12.—(AP)—James F. Hodgson, regional compliance director of the NRA for eastern New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, announced today that August Brauer, a member of his staff, has been transferred to Hartford, Conn. Brauer opened headquarters there today and will be in charge of the compliance office.

The regional compliance board is preparing to take over on Jan. 1 much of the enforcement work that has been transferred to Hartford under the President's reorganization agreement.

The present NRA local setup will go out of existence Dec. 31, when it is expected the majority of codes will be in effect.

HEALTH-DIET ADVICE

BY DR. FRANK MCCOY

Questions in regard to Health and Diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, for reply.

CURE OF RHEUMATISM IS NO MIDDLE

When the toxemia responsible for rheumatism is already present, the patient is in a condition favorable to the development of pus pockets at the roots of the teeth, or in the tonsils or sinuses. I always advise that proper attention be given to the clearing up of any pus pocket which may be present in the patient with rheumatism, as I have found such a procedure helpful; but merely removing pus pockets will not remove all of the rheumatic poison from the body. Therefore, these measures are not sufficient to completely cure rheumatism. It has been my experience in hundreds of cases of rheumatism that the disease will only be cured when the general poisoning of the system is overcome.

One whose body is clogged with the impurities which cause rheumatism will find that certain conditions which do not harm other people, will in his case, serve as exciting causes to precipitate an attack. For example, exposure to cold, sitting in a draught of chilly air, working in wet clothing, or even unaccustomed exercise will be enough to bring on the soreness of rheumatism. This is partly due to the fact that the cold slows up the circulation of blood, causing a congestion of wastes in certain parts of the body, and rheumatic tissues in which they are deposited.

Treatment of Rheumatism

As long as the systemic poisons which cause rheumatism are ignored, the cure of rheumatism remains a riddle, but when these poisons are moving in the system, the treatment is simple and sure. In the treatment of any form of rheumatism, the use of the fasting cure will be found the means of getting the best results possible, owing to the fact that the bloodstream during the fasting period is able to cleanse itself of the poisons which are circulating in the muscles, joints of nerve trunks.

Recovery from muscular rheumatism is quite rapid and usually the muscular soreness will leave in two or three days after the beginning of the fast. In extremely chronic cases of rheumatism, the cure may be slower, but if the patient will persist in the cleansing treatment, it is often possible to bring about considerable improvement and many times the deformity of the joints is reduced to a truly surprising degree. From that relief seem, slow you may rest assured that you will receive some good from the treatment.

In the treatment of muscular rheumatism, the use of heat over the affected parts is of great value in securing relief. From that relief seem, slow you may rest assured that you will receive some good from the treatment.

With any type of rheumatism, in-

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Meaning of "Neurobroma")
 Question: Madison D. L. wants to know: "What does the word 'Neurobroma' mean?"
 Answer: Neurobroma refers to a tumor on a nerve. Several may form at one time and may produce pain. The tumors sometimes occur as the result of an injury or accident after an amputation and occasionally they develop spontaneously. The symptoms most likely to be present are those resembling neuritis such as pain, tenderness, and perhaps weakness of the muscles which are supplied by the affected nerves.

(Use of Dried Fruits)
 Question: J. D. writes: "I receive a great deal of help through your daily writings, and am wondering if you would be advising dried fruits, prunes, and fruit of that kind without being dried?"
 Answer: The dried fruits you mention can be used without cooking and are even more wholesome perhaps when eaten in this manner. Some of the favor of the fruit when they are soaked over night in a small amount of water, and then eaten without being cooked.

(Best Way to Develop Bust)
 Question: Miss Y. writes: "I have heard there is something that develops the bust, acting directly on the mammary glands. Will you kindly tell me what will develop my bust (except exercise) the quickest?"
 Answer: I do not recommend medicinal remedies, nor do I know of any which will develop the bust without danger of injury to your heart. Exercising the chest muscles is the only safe way to develop the chest, and this will have some influence on stimulating the mammary glands to develop to their normal size.

STOCK TRANSFER IN BANK DEAL

Ratio of Exchange Is 3 1-2 to 1 in Absorption of Rockville Bank.

Rockville, Dec. 12.—In the absorption by the Hartford-Connecticut Trust Company of five banks, namely, Rockville National, Stafford Springs National, Meriden National, Middletown National and Wabersfield Trust Company, the ratio of exchange of stock has been decided as three and one-third to one.

This means that for each share of the Hartford-Connecticut Trust Company received, three and one-third shares of the Hartford-Connecticut Company, which corporation owns the five banks, will have to be offered. This latter stock has been selling for $11 per share.

Gain in Extra Dividends
Another benefit of the transfer to the new stockholders of the Hartford-Connecticut Trust Company will be the gain of about thirty-four cents per year in extra dividends.

The Hartford-Connecticut Trust Company has been paying an annual dividend of $3.00 in quarterly payments, while the Hartford-Connecticut Company has been paying only 80 cents per share or a total of $2.66 on the three and one-third shares which must be offered for the share of the trust company.

The actual transfer will take place on or about December 27, at which time the Hartford-Connecticut Company will go out of existence.

A meeting of the stockholders of the Rockville National bank was held this morning at 11 o'clock.

What the ratio of exchange would be is of interest to local financiers, as rumors reached the ears of stockholders of the Hartford-Connecticut Company in this community that the ratio would be as low as three to one while others reported that the ratio would be three and one-half to one.

Much Stock in Rockville
Considerable stock of the Hartford-Connecticut Company is owned in Rockville. Before joining this latter corporation, the Rockville National Bank had assets of more than $1,500,000.

With the increased capitalization of $1,000,000 in the Hartford-Connecticut Trust Company, it is believed certain that a good portion is owned in Tolland county, which has two of the five banks in the combine.

The meeting at which the ratio was settled was held yesterday afternoon by the stockholders of the Hartford-Connecticut Trust Company at 2 o'clock in Hartford. This meeting lasted nearly two hours.

Expect Changes
Following this meeting Lester Shippee, president of the Hartford-Connecticut Company and also vice-president of the Hartford-Connecticut Trust Company, when questioned, gave the ratio of exchange. He also admitted the date of the absorption as the "latter part of the month, probably December 27."

As to the question of management and organization, Mr. Shippee stated that absolutely nothing had been done as yet relative to the management. It has been reported that several important changes would be made soon relative to economy in management, but Mr. Shippee would not confirm this statement, saying that would come up at a later date.

CHILDREN FORM FIRST LITHUANIAN CLASS HERE

36 Appear at Initial Session
But Miss Adella Karputska, Teacher, Was Ill.

Thirty-six children were present at Liberty Hall last night for the opening of the evening school to be conducted through the winter, at which the youngsters will be taught to write and read the Lithuanian language and also study the history of that country.

The children were not graded for their work due to the inability of Miss Adella Karputska, who was to teach the children, to be present. She was suffering with a cold and was not able to attend the meeting last night.

The children present ranged from fourth grade to high school pupils. Some had no knowledge of the language and an effort was made to test their ability before the school gets underway. There have been seats and books provided and also a blackboard.

Considering the unfavorable weather conditions, the committee behind the movement was satisfied that there will be enough children to get the school started with a large attendance.

Recreation Center
Items of Interest

The women's swimming classes will meet as usual: beginners class, 7 to 7:45; intermediate class, 7:45 to 8:30.

The men's volleyball period will be from 5 to 8:15. The Phantoms will practice basketball from 8:15 to 7. In the senior basketball league the Celtics will play the Jaffe Jewels at 7:45. Following this game the Herald Newboys will play An-saldi's Macons. Dancing will follow the game. Money night, December 18, there will be a women's party at the School Street Rec. This is open to all women members, but you must get in touch with Miss Gertrude Fenerty immediately if you are going to attend. One restriction is that all girls must come dressed backward.

ROCKVILLE

TOLD WIFE "TO GET OUT",
MAN IS DENIED DIVORCE

Gordon Busher Fails to Win
Decree When Judge Says
Nothing Indicated Desertion.

Because Gordon Busher, 25, of Vernon, told his wife she could get out, Judge Patrick B. O'Sullivan in the Tolland County Superior Court yesterday denied him a divorce on grounds of desertion.

Busher testified he was married April 27, 1930 in Rockville, and June 26, 1930, his wife, Bernice Busher, left him. Busher said his wife loved another man and he also admitted telling her she could get out. Judge O'Sullivan denied the divorce, stating that it could not be shown there was desertion. Counsel for Busher, Ackerman and Peizer, asked a continuance when Judge O'Sullivan denied the divorce. Attorney Bernard Ackerman stating that he hoped to find other testimony, Judge O'Sullivan said he disliked continuing cases on divorce when his judgment was apparent and when to have the continuance heard before another judge who had a more liberal idea on divorce. However, he permitted a temporary continuance.

Gets Custody of Child
Betty Benson secured a divorce from Wesley H. Benson and the custody of her child, because of misconduct on the part of the husband.

Mrs. Benson testified she was married in Manchester June 4, 1927 and she and her husband lived in Rockville. After a week her sister and her husband went out together and lived in a boarding house. She testified she found the pair in a bedroom together in their night clothes.

Margaret Stanford, a policeman in Hartford, testified that March 9, 1933, Mrs. Benson claimed her sister and husband were going together. She investigated and the sister admitted having relations with the husband who made a similar admission.

Harriet T. Johnson, of Hartford, secretary of the Gray Lodge of Hartford testified she knew Mrs. Benson's sister, saying that December 4, 1932, the sister came to Gray Lodge to stay. She said she was engaged to Wesley H. Benson, who was going to get a divorce and marry her.

Mrs. Benson, when recalled to the stand and examined by Judge O'Sullivan, stated her husband said he "would rather go to jail than live with her."

The divorce was granted and also the custody of the child, with a fee of $5 per week for the support of the child.

Judgment of $1,305
Judgment of $1,305 was granted S. Arnold Peckham vs. Dorothea C. Sherman in a foreclosure action and the law day was fixed as the first Monday of May, 1934.

H. C. Sherman, husband of the defendant in this action testified for the plaintiff, stating that he and his wife jointly owned the property in question, located in Mansfield, and that it was subject to a mortgage held by S. Arnold Peckham. Mrs. Sherman now lives in Brooklyn, N. Y., and actual notice of the lawsuit was found, although she was not represented in court.

Sherman, who is working in Manchester, stated that they bought the property in Mansfield about three years ago for $1,500 and paid down $300. They made improvements costing $500 since that date.

Charles W. Tryon of Willimantic appraised the property at worth $1,500. Judgment was for $1,200 with interest of $105.

Foreclosure Action
Judge O'Sullivan denied an eleventh hour plea in the case of Eva Beasley vs. Sam Kortolefsky through Attorney Lawler of Hartford, made by the defendant to stop the carrying out of a court judgment granted November 20 last.

On November 20, judgment was entered in a foreclosure action for $8,113.05 and the law day set as December 11.

Application was made yesterday by Attorney Lawler to re-open the case and continue it until the next short calendar, as he hoped to secure Home Loan mortgages to cover the judgment and redeem the property.

Attorney John B. Thomas, who secured the judgment originally, before the motion was made for the opening, stated that if the case was re-opened the cost should be placed on the defense, to which the court agreed.

After hearing both sides Judge O'Sullivan denied the motion to re-open the case on the day of judgment.

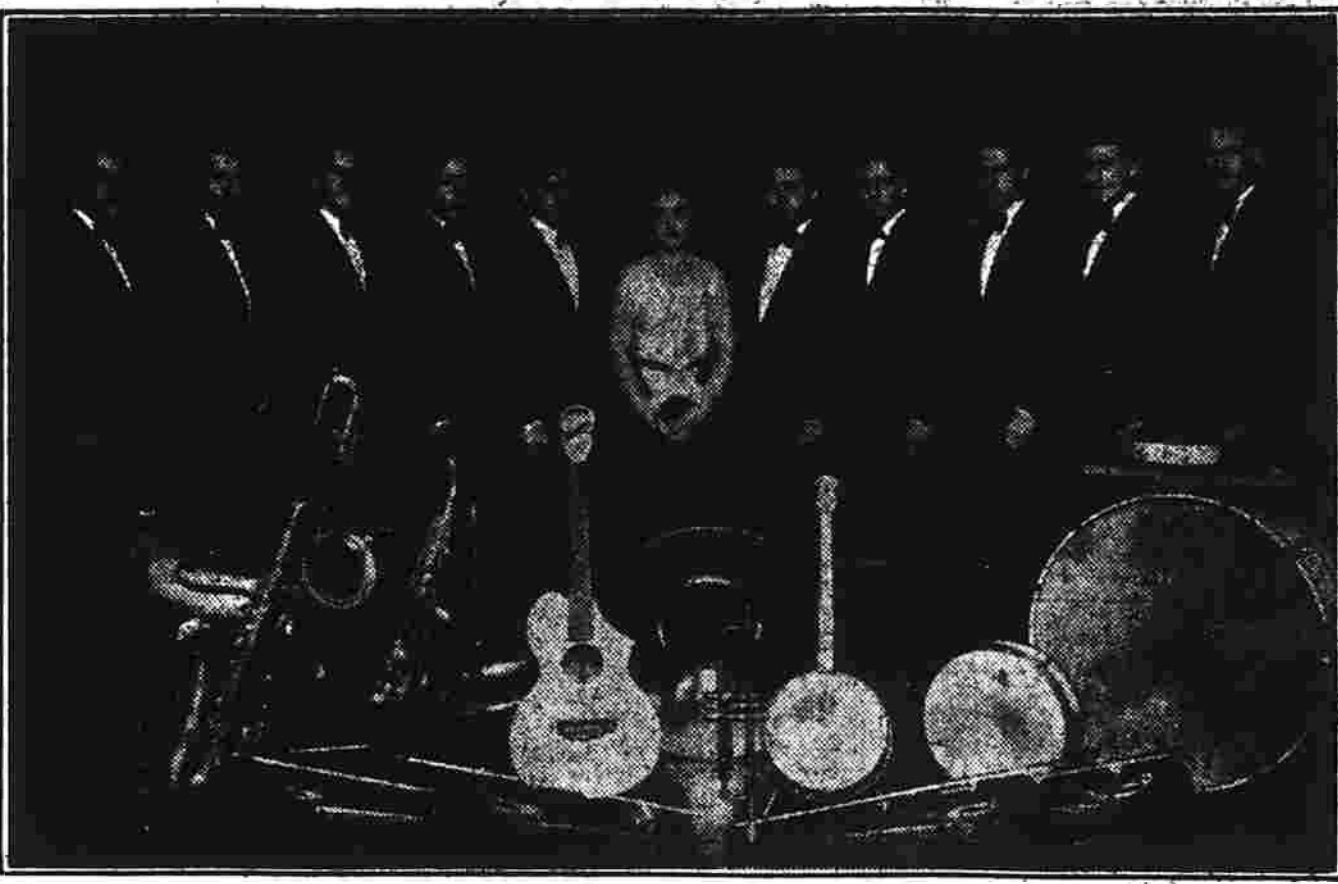

Judgment for Back Taxes
The town of Mansfield secured judgment against George J. Kirby, in what was called a "summary judgment" for the sum of $6,124.59, for back taxes. Four counts were claimed in this summary judgment as follows, count one, $2,529.30; count two, $2,280.54; count three, $975.72; count four, $679.99.

In the case of Sam Yasmer vs. Sadie Flavinick Yasmer, a motion to appoint guardian ad litem was granted and H. R. Jones was appointed. A second motion to appoint an alienist was granted by the court and Dr. Roy L. Leak, of the Connecticut State Hospital at Middletown, was appointed at the request of H. R. Jones, assistant attorney general for the state of Connecticut.

Other Cases
The following cases were declared off the list: Ruth L. French vs. Olin M. French, motion that defendant be adjudged in contempt; Charles L. Tranka vs. John Adama, default for failure to plea, which was filed; Arthur Bergerson, minor, vs. Hattie E. Strickland, bond for prosecution, which was filed; Achille G. DeMarco vs. Paul Mickewicz, default for failure to plea; Progressive Finance and Realty Company, Inc., vs. Alfred Rosenberg, motion for deficiency judgment.

The case of Louise Blume vs. Nicholas C. Johnson, default, disclosure of defense and judgment,

Marge Hull and Her Playboys Here Thursday Night

Marge Hull and Her Playboys, radio and college dance orchestra, will be at the School Street Recreation Center Thursday night of this week for the regular weekly dance period. The night has been changed from Friday for this week because of conflicting dates. Marge Hull's orchestra has been a popular band at Notre Dame University, at South Bend, Indiana, and one of Miss Hull's most valued possessions is a photograph autographed by every member of last year's Notre Dame football squad. Miss Hull is a real orchestra leader in every sense of the word. She makes her own arrangements, orchestrates the newest songs and originates band features that make her aggregation one of the most novel touring this section this year. There will be no increase of the usual small admission price and the checking privilege will be extended free as usual.

SKATING SEASON ABOUT TO BEGIN

Near Zero Weather Forms Thick Coating of Ice on Ponds.

Prospects of skating seem bright with about two inches of ice already formed on the surface of Center Springs pond, the municipal skating rink. Each year it takes at least three nights of near-zero temperature to form sufficient ice for safe skating. Caretaker Francis Walllett stated this morning that, in his opinion, one more night of temperature comparable to Monday and today will do the trick.

Parents of children are warned, however, to inquire of the municipal caretaker before allowing children to skate on any local pond. The best course of safety is to prevent children from skating on any pond or lake in Manchester or vicinity which is without a regular attendant.

Due to the large number of persons who await the skating period each year, the Center Springs area must necessarily be of sufficient thickness to support a large number. The rink is connected by telephone and on good skating days the "skating" flag is flown from the staff on the north side of the pond near the shelter house.

Hartford, Dec. 12.—Governor Willbur L. Cross today enthusiastically endorsed the twenty-seventh annual sale of Christmas seals which is now being conducted by some 85 local tuberculosis and health associations in Connecticut, under the leadership of the State Tuberculosis Commission. A copy of the Governor's statement follows:

"Comfort and happiness have come into thousands of homes because the State is enrolled in humanity's fight against tuberculosis. It seems particularly fitting that the twenty-seventh annual sale of Christmas seals in Connecticut is in charge of the State Tuberculosis Commission.

"Personally, and as Governor, I am happy to endorse this campaign of effort to defeat everywhere in the campaign against a common enemy. Every stamp that is bought sends a message of personal greeting and cheer to a friend. The penny that is spent joins millions of others in the fund that cares for those who are afflicted and safeguards those who might be threatened.

"In the spirit of Christmas the appeal is made to the generous hearts of people everywhere."

The UNKNOWN BLOND

By LARA LAY BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY
DAVID BANNISTER undertakes to find out who killed TRACY KING, orchestra leader found dead in his hotel apartment. Bannister, an author and former newspaper man, works on the murder case with GAINES, star reporter for the Post.

Among those suspected of the crime are JULIET FRANCE, blond and pretty, known to have visited King shortly before his death; HERMAN SOURLACH who wrote King a threatening letter; and JOE PARROTT, down-and-out vaudeville actor. It is also known that MELVINA HOLLISTER, middle-aged spinster, had quarreled with King recently.

King was engaged to wealthy DENISE LANG. MATTHEW HOLLISTER, Melvina's brother, tells Bannister he believes his sister knows something she is keeping from the police.

AL DRUGAN, friend of King's, is found dead in a wrecked automobile.

Bannister convinces POLICE CHIEF HENLEY that the best way to get information about Juliet France is to release her and then watch her closely. He takes her to his sun's home, ostensibly as a guest. Later he learns that Joe Parrott has been found.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIX

The news of Joe Parrott's arrest had reached the Evening Post office by telegraph. Parrott had been picked up by St. Louis police and was being held there. Already Saptain McNeal had announced he would send a man to bring Parrott back to Tremont. The detective was leaving on a night train. Parrott was wanted, McNeal said, for questioning concerning the Tracy King murder and "another serious offense."

Bannister talked it over with Austin, the assistant city editor. The report had come on the teletype machine. Bannister more than a few lines saying Parrott was being held until instructions were received from officials in Tremont.

"So he went back to his old stamping ground," Bannister exclaimed. "McNeal's novel is a mix-up in some kind of a mix-up in St. Louis last winter. Arden. I believe it had something to do with dope."

"I'll have Gaines check up on that," Austin said quickly. Austin had read the novel and admired it. He couldn't quite bring himself to assign chores to this celebrated writer as he would have to a reporter. After all, Austin was only an assistant city editor, and a newspaper man.

"What's McNeal mean by this other 'serious offense'?" he asked. "The boys couldn't get him to say anything more about it."

Bannister shook his head. "Don't know," he said. "McNeal's got something up his sleeve. I've been sure of that for a long while. But he won't show his hand. You know McNeal wasn't sure Al Drugan's death was just an accident. He told me so. Maybe he thinks Parrott had something to do with it."

"They talked for half an hour longer, mulling over the case. Then Bannister left the office, took a street car and rode home.

As he stood before the mirror in his bedroom, tying his necktie and then rettying it, Bannister reflected this was the first evening in many that he had bothered to dress for dinner. It was, as a matter of fact, the first evening in the week he had spent at home. Days and evenings, too, had become very much alike. He spent them at the newspaper office, at police headquarters, now and then launching out on some wild and fruitless expedition. He had eaten his meals in cheap restaurants with his pals, and in the dining room of the hotel where he was staying. He was concerned there was nothing whatever in life except the Tracy King murder case—and all the time he had spent trying to solve it had gone for nothing.

Bannister studied himself in the mirror, frowned and grasped the ends of the offending necktie. He pulled them loose and for the third time knotted them again. That was better. Get that way to do.

He turned away from the mirror, walked to the window. It was dark outside. Time to go down stairs. Still Bannister lingered.

He picked up a paper knife, toyed with it and put it aside. He sat down on the edge of the desk. It wasn't, he assured himself once more, that he had intended doing Juliet France a favor by bringing her to his aunt's home. It was pleasant for her here, of course, but that wasn't why he had done it. She was here because Bannister believed Captain Henley was right. The girl was the key to the mystery of the murder. She knew more than she had admitted and finding out how secret was the task Bannister had set for himself. Living here, unaware that anyone was watching her, she could be sure to give herself away.

Bannister was pleased with the way he had handled matters. The girl evidently had accepted his story. Aunt Kate, likewise had shown no signs of doubt. He had told her that Miss France was an old friend, a girl he had known in New York. He had happened to meet her, had discovered that she was remaining in Tremont for a few days until she had news about a job she had applied for, and felt it was no more than courteous to ask her to stay with them. To all this Aunt Kate had agreed.

The rest of the task was going to be more difficult. Bannister straightened his shoulders, stood up. He'd better go down and have a talk with Miss Juliet France. And he was aware of all her trickery now. She wouldn't fool him as she had before.

But there was no time then to talk. Bannister went down stairs and Mrs. Henley was in the hallway. "Oh, there you are, David!" she exclaimed. "I was just going to call you. Everything's ready to put on the table."

"Has Miss France come down?" "Yes, she's in the living room. You go tell her that dinner's ready."

"The girl looked up from the magazine in her lap and smiled. "Good evening," she said.

Bannister didn't speak for an instant. He stood looking at this strangely transformed Juliet France. She had put on a blouse of shimmering ivory silk, low at the throat. Always before he had seen her in green. He hadn't imagined her wearing anything else. The glow of the lamp light fell on her hair and he saw that it was really golden. She was still pale, but she seemed refreshed and rested.

"Good evening," he said. "My aunt sent me to tell you that dinner is ready."

A few minutes later the

at the table. Kate Hewlett had, as usual, when it came to cooking, done herself proud. The roast was beautifully browned, juicy and tender. The vegetables were well seasoned, the salad crisp and delicious.

But it was the dessert that was the masterpiece. "A pudding so light and delicately flavored that Bannister had no idea of what it was made. There were tiny cakes that Kate had herself baked to go with the pudding."

Juliet France murmured, "I don't know when I've seen such good food! And every mouthful is just as good as it looks, too."

"Let me get you another helping," Mrs. Hewlett urged. "If it does you good to eat."

"Oh, no!" the girl protested. "I couldn't eat another bite. Really I couldn't."

They had their coffee and then Kate Hewlett sent the young people back to the living room.

"But I want to help with the dishes," Juliet said.

"Frederick will do them," Bannister spoke up. "He's the house man."

Kate Hewlett's tone flared. "Frederick will do nothing of the sort!" she said. "Do you think I'd trust my china to his clumsy fingers? 'I'll do them myself!'"

"But please!" the girl urged. "Let me help."

"The older woman was firm. "Some other time," she said "but not tonight. You and David go as by the fire. I'll come as soon as I've finished in the kitchen. It won't take me any time at all."

The flames in the fireplace had died away and there was little more than an edge of crimson on the charred wood. Bannister bustled himself at the hearth for several minutes.

When he turned he saw that the girl was standing beside the piano, glancing at some music.

"Do you play?" he asked.

"I'd like very much to hear you."

Her eyes raised to his but he could not read their glance. Then, without replying, she sat down, touched the keyboard. "I'm rather out of practice," she said.

The notes were vaguely familiar. Bannister had heard them before some where, probably at a concert, but he had never heard them like this—leaning back in a comfortable chair before a fire place. The girl played sweetly, sweetly. Bannister, listening, thought of the moonlit lapping of ocean waves against a sandy beach. The music was like that, with the melody coming in clear and strong above the waves. No—not waves, of course! But it sounded the way waves do.

How pleasant all this was—a warm, attractive room, the firelight and the music. Bannister drew on his cigar, deeply and let the twisted wreath of smoke escape from his lips. Pleasant indeed! He had forgotten how agreeable an evening such as this could be.

The music came to an end then. Bannister arose and moved to the piano. "This is a real treat," he said. "Please don't stop yet!"

The girl looked up, smiled. There was a mischievous light in her eyes as she said, "I think, Mr. Bannister, I should tell you that you aren't deceiving me for a moment!"

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Go down street and make an inspection tour of the shops. You are going to be surprised at the number of things children can make for Christmas gifts.

Get materials in as soon as you can because the days are flying and little fingers do not work any too fast.

From ten cents up there are simple embroidery pieces to be done, either in gray colors or white. Ask the authority in charge of the fancy-work department to show you the lacy-dalay stitch. A whole flower can be worked in two or three minutes because a petal consists of nothing but a caught loop. The thread used is a triple strand, or even more, of a fine mercerized cotton. Children get tired of long jobs and the "lacy-dalay" is the answer to their impatience to get things over and done with.

Just Right for Aunt Martha
Two tiny squares of white linen, one embroidered on top, sewed together sides and an end like a tiny pillow slip, hemmed on its open ends, make a hot-dipped pad. A square of padding is slipped between. No fastening necessary. The padding can be taken out and the slip washed.

Two of these for Aunt Martha will be an excellent present.

Or instead of flowers, buy a couple of initials already printed on a sort of mosquito netting. Show Lois how to baste each to the material, go over and over the initial with her colored or white thread, then remove bastings and pull out the "netting threads" one by one until practically there is a symmetrical and high toned initial worked right on the cloth. Easy? Very.

If Aunt Martha has her dishes served and not put on the table she won't use hot pads. Let us see them. She'll probably like a "best linen" bag for soiled table mats and best napkins that cannot be profaned in the soiled-linen drawer. Plain green or blue P. K. makes smart bags, or any rough washed cotton. A big initial on its side gives value.

Ideal for Little Girls
In the handicraft shops perhaps you can find a "bead rack," a little gadget on which several strands of special string are stretched a la violin and by up-and-down weaving with needle, thread and bright beads, gar bracelets or chains can be made. These make very nice gifts for little girl friends. The racks are about fifty or seventy-five cents, but once bought the entire expense of the beads is negligible and each gift costs little in the long run. Patterns are simple and easy to follow.

And in the same shops you can find innumerable tricky wooden things just waiting for a coat of pink or blue paint. There's the paint, too, the kind that dries in fifteen minutes. Also little gar stencils or transfer pictures to be put on extra and make the little box or corner bracket look like a real hand-painted job. Get the boys at these points. There's the paint, too, the kind that dries in fifteen minutes. Can your girl crochet or knit? Do it for her sometime. She will be thankful all her life. Ten, even eight-year-olds will amaze you with their prowess with the crochet hook or knitting needle.

University of Chicago's football song, "Wave the Flag for Old Chicago," contains the line, "with the grand old man to lead them," alluding to A. A. Slogg, now coaching in California. The words of this song were omitted from the football program for the Maroon-Indiana game.

Weeding the Callers
There's no use in trying to get past the pleasant young sentry at the telephone desk. As a shock absorber for her boss she has to answer his phone, find out who is calling and what is wanted, and then either put her chief on the line, arrange a later appointment, or tactfully get rid of the unwanted person.

There's a fine point in telephone etiquette on which many executives, even, are not clear. When Mr. Smith calls, "Get Mr. Brown, of the Such and Such Company, for me," what happens?

The girl rings Mr. Brown's office, gets his secretary ad says, "Mr. Brown, please. Mr. Smith of the Thus and So Company calling." Since this is evidently business, Mr. Brown is put on the phone at once. But instead of being greeted by Mr. Smith, a feminine voice says, "Just a minute, please." And Brown, who has hoped important matters to answer the phone, is forced to hang on to the receiver while Smith is being located. Often after waiting some time, he is told, "Mr. Smith must have stepped out. He was here just a minute ago. He'll call you later."

When this happens five or six times a day it becomes a serious waste of executive time and temper, and there is some justification in Mr. Brown's raging to himself, "Who the heck does this fellow think he is, anyway? Isn't my time as valuable as his?"

Here's the rule. When the man being called is equal or lower position than the one calling, the secretary should get him on the line before she calls her employer. But if she is calling someone whose position in the business world is above that of the man she works for, she must be careful to have her employer on the line when the Upper Dog barks his "Hello."

A Gay Season

You will be sure of a gay season if you have a hook velvet dress like this one in your wardrobe. It is most suitable for dinner or informal evening affairs— easy to make—

STRIKINGLY attractive is this velvet dress for afternoon or evening wear. It is designed in five sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 38 requires 5-5 1/2 yards of 39 inch material in monotone, or 3-5 1/2 yards for the dress and 2 yards for the sleeves and skirt trimmings in contrast. The pattern includes a piece for a high back for those desiring to make up the model as an afternoon frock.

To secure a pattern and simple sewing chart of this model, tear out this sketch and mail it to Julia Boyd, 103 Park Avenue, New York, N. Y., together with 15 cents in coin. Be sure to enclose, on a separate sheet of paper, your name, full address, your size, the number of this pattern (No. 118), and mention the name of this newspaper.

Address your envelope to Julia Boyd, Manchester Herald Fashion Bureau, 108 Park Avenue, New York, N. Y.

Switchboard Work Grooms Girl for Secretary.

By ELIZABETH GREGG MacGIBBON

Recently an employment agency head told me she thought the telephone desk an excellent place for budding secretaries to train. She went even further and predicted a combination job of the future—that of a "secretary-telephonist." Her reason was that a girl who has the tact to handle things and persons properly over the telephone has the chief qualifications for success in business.

If this is true, instead of turning up their pert little noses at switchboard relief or service, budding secretaries with ambition should be fighting for a chance to "plug 'em in."

For without doubt the private secretary gets the meaneast part of the telephone detail. As shock absorber for her boss she has to answer his phone, find out who is calling and what is wanted, and then either put her chief on the line, arrange a later appointment, or tactfully get rid of the unwanted person.

There's a fine point in telephone etiquette on which many executives, even, are not clear. When Mr. Smith calls, "Get Mr. Brown, of the Such and Such Company, for me," what happens?

The girl rings Mr. Brown's office, gets his secretary ad says, "Mr. Brown, please. Mr. Smith of the Thus and So Company calling." Since this is evidently business, Mr. Brown is put on the phone at once. But instead of being greeted by Mr. Smith, a feminine voice says, "Just a minute, please." And Brown, who has hoped important matters to answer the phone, is forced to hang on to the receiver while Smith is being located. Often after waiting some time, he is told, "Mr. Smith must have stepped out. He was here just a minute ago. He'll call you later."

When this happens five or six times a day it becomes a serious waste of executive time and temper, and there is some justification in Mr. Brown's raging to himself, "Who the heck does this fellow think he is, anyway? Isn't my time as valuable as his?"

Here's the rule. When the man being called is equal or lower position than the one calling, the secretary should get him on the line before she calls her employer. But if she is calling someone whose position in the business world is above that of the man she works for, she must be careful to have her employer on the line when the Upper Dog barks his "Hello."

NEVER you'll see his crimson cloak As red as a candy cane; Never you'll hear his ruddy boots Rattle the wind-pane. But when did you see the Man in the Moon, Or when did you see the King of the Far North come!

THE only things that are real and true Are fantasy, faith, romance, And the magic by which we sing Where the folk of the pixies dance. Always there's been a Santa Claus Since that day in an English lane— When the angels sang to a new-born babe— Child, do you understand?

SANTA CLAUS
By Helen Washburn

YOU wonder if there is a Santa Claus, Child, he's been in my mind for two thousand years and a day. Haven't you found his spinning tops, His dolls and his round red drum?

NEVER you'll see his crimson cloak As red as a candy cane; Never you'll hear his ruddy boots Rattle the wind-pane. But when did you see the Man in the Moon, Or when did you see the King of the Far North come!

THE only things that are real and true Are fantasy, faith, romance, And the magic by which we sing Where the folk of the pixies dance. Always there's been a Santa Claus Since that day in an English lane— When the angels sang to a new-born babe— Child, do you understand?

Daily Health Service

IF YOU'RE SENSITIVE TO COLD, BEWARE OF EXPOSURE

By DR. MORRIS FISHER, Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Every season of the year brings with it new enjoyments and with them new hazards to health and life. When cold weather comes, you spend more time indoors and are exposed to the special hazards that exist even about the home.

Actually more people are injured at home than anywhere else place, probably because more time is spent there than elsewhere.

The first hazard for which you should prepare, with the coming of winter, is the possibility of freezing to death from exposure to cold. From 200 to 400 persons freeze to death each year in the United States.

You may be able to withstand extreme degrees of cold under some circumstances. Under other circumstances, you might succumb rapidly to exposure.

A man who had been drinking heavily, and had lain in the street all night with the temperature about 20 degrees, was found in the morning with the body temperature below 80, and yet he recovered. For this reason persons who seem to be dead from freezing should not be permitted to pass away without any attempt being made to revive them.

In cases of gas poisoning, sunstroke, and other conditions of the blood and breathing, it is necessary to restore breathing and circulation by artificial respiration. This also must be tried in connection with freezing.

Warm baths or packs gradually increased in temperature will do much to help. Drinking of warm fluids also aids resuscitation, once the unconsciousness has been overcome.

One of the recent discoveries of medical science is the fact that some people are especially sensitive to cold. When exposed to cold they develop redness, itching, swelling, and sometimes eruption on the skin.

In other cases they develop asthmatic symptoms. Obviously such people must be particularly careful about exposure to cold, because sudden submersion in an extremely cold bath may be fatal.

A German physician reports that he had been sensitive to cold since childhood. Whenever he put his foot out of a warm bed, he experienced aching and running of the nose. When he put his hands in cold water, they would swell and itch. Several times when swimming he suddenly would become weak and develop blisters around his joints.

Persons sensitive to cold, with symptoms of this character, risk their lives when bathing in cold water. Certainly they should avoid sudden submersion in cold water, such as occurs in skating with breaking of the ice.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Much of your beauty depends on the amount and kind of sleep you get each night.

The art of complete relaxation is by no means an unimportant one. And you can't relax if you take the problems and worries of the day to bed with you. Forget your troubles and try to think of something pleasant when you are trying to go to sleep.

Sleeping flat on your back is considered the beneficial than curling up in a knot or sleeping on either side. If you possibly can sleep without a pillow, do so. Your neck will be more rested if it has been flat on the bed in line with your spine. And your arms are less apt to get that little lump on the back of your neck. But, if you must use one, have it as small as possible.

A good mattress is one of the chief requisites of healthful restful sleep. It should be neither too hard nor too soft and must not be bumpy or sagging in spots.

Clean bedding and sheets that are tucked under tightly enough to obliterate wrinkles are more conducive to rest than wrinkled sheets and blankets that are simply thrown on the bed in hit or miss fashion.

Always sleep with at least one window open. The draft never should be directly on the bed, but the room should be filled with clean, cool air.

Becomes All-America Although A Cripple

EDITOR'S NOTE: In this, the second of a series of three articles on the football career of Claude E. Thornhill, the playing day of Stanford's coach are recounted.

By HILL BRAUCHER
NEA Service Sports Editor

When youthful "Tiny" Thornhill went from his home at Beaver, Pa., to enter the University of Pittsburgh, football was forbidden by his parents.

They had seen him overcome the effects of paralysis in his boyhood had helped him fight his way back to healthful vigor and did not want to see him suffer serious injury on the gridiron.

But that objection was finally overcome by family pride. A friend sent Mr. and Mrs. Thornhill tickets to one of the games in which "Tiny" was to play. Both became ardent football fans. It wasn't long before Papa Thornhill was helping the high school coach back at Beaver to drill the team.

"Tiny" played at Pitt four seasons, from 1913 through 1916, and some of his mates on the mighty Panther teams of those days were Jack Sutherland, now coach at Pitt; Pat Herron, Bob Peck, George Mac Laren and other famous players. His first coach was Joe Duff, the noted "Blind Tiger of Princeton."

In 1915 Pop Warner became coach at Pitt. In 1916 Pop Warner became coach at Pitt. In 1917 Pop Warner became coach at Pitt. In 1918 Pop Warner became coach at Pitt.

and returned to his alma mater the following year to help Pop with the coaching.

Opportunity called "Tiny" to Massillon, O., where some of the greatest professional teams in history originated. After playing a short time at Massillon he transferred to Cleveland where he coached and played on the team that won two league championships. Thornhill played several times against Knute Rockne, who was an end at Detroit.

During the war Thornhill enlisted in the marines, was sent to Quantico where he suffered a broken foot in a service game. He was discharged after a month in the corps. After the war he went to Cleveland to coach Jim Dunn's Indians, then one of the best football teams in the country.

"Tiny" had busy seasons in 1920 and '21, alternating his Cleveland job with coaching the famous Centre College teams of Danville, Ky. It was at Centre that he devised the Sing shift for the Praying Colonels, a lockstep parade that suddenly ended with the ball being passed. With that shift Centre amazed the football world and upset a fine Harvard team, 6 to 0.

The call of pro football took "Tiny" to Dallas, and from there to the Pacific coast where he mixed his football with playing heavy villain in the movies in 1921 and 1922. In Pasadena he was married to Miss Evelyn Keomig who was then on the way to stardom in the movies as understudy to Charlotte Greenwood in "So Long Letty."

When Pop Warner was lured away from Pitt in 1922, he sent Thornhill and Andy Kerr to set up his system at Stanford, because his contract at Pitt held him there until 1924. When Pop reported, Kerr went to Washington and Jefferson and later to Colgate. Thornhill stayed on with Warner as line coach.

Thornhill, along with Peck and Herron, was named on Walter Camp's All-America team in 1916.

Seek Changes In Eastern Grid Setup

CARDS FEAR COLUMBIA--HONEST, REALLY, TRULY!

Gorgeous Blocking Is Stanford's Main Forte; Nevers Warns Them About Get-Fat-Headed Over Rose Bowl Grid Classic.

By W. A. WELLS

Palo Alto, Calif., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Those who believe Stanford picked a weak opponent when Columbia was chosen to represent the east in the New Year's Day game at Pasadena can tell it to the world if they wish, but not to the seven scrappy sophomores and their teammates who toppled Southern California from the coast football throne.

Coaches Tiny Thornhill and Ernie Nevers won't let them. "We're not fooled by the talk about Columbia's lack of strength," said a spokesman for the university. "It would be a great thing for eastern prospects if that idea could be gotten across to our team, which got its right to represent the west by sheer fight and the will to win."

"It would be great psychology and it probably would defeat Stanford, but we're not going to forget a minute that before the selection of the eastern team was announced we got nothing but glowing reports on the prowess of Coach Lou Little's aggregation."

Captain Bill Corbus, Assistant Coach Nevers and several of the first string men were present. "The boys know they've got a battle on their hands," said Nevers. "They know Columbia is not weak but I wish the season one of the strongest teams in the country."

They would be fat headed to think a team which can snap out of 30 to 0 kicking by Princeton and then win five games in a row is a weak team.

"Take your own case. Northwestern checkedmate three or more of our scoring chances and held us to a tie in the early season, but week by week we improved until at the end of the season we licked Southern California and California after spotting both teams what looked like a last lead."

Head Coach Thornhill, who in his first year in the position vacated by Glenn S. "Pop" Warner brought his charges through a tough schedule with only one defeat to win a tie for the conference championship, has modified the style of play that Warner instituted in 1924.

It remains fundamentally the "Warner system," but it has been simplified. Where Warner went on the theory sufficient manpower was available to cope with Southern California's superabundant material and that deception must be the basic strategy, Thornhill took a contrary view.

Good blocking was his cardinal principle. He discarded many of the intricate reverses and simplified other plays which had required delicate timing. Formations remained virtually the same, with a double wing back line predominating.

Thornhill's forte is the line and he has centered his efforts on it. To Nevers and Jimmy Lawson he entrusted most of the backfield coaching and pass defense.

Cards Are Versatile
On offense Stanford cannot be classified as either a ground or aerial team, for it has appeared equally strong in either department. Against Southern California it was Bill Corbus' kicking and effective passing which won. Against California it was the ability to break a set of speedy backs into the open.

West Side Recs Oppose Kevin Barry In Prelim To Guards-Legion Tilt

The West Side Rec basketball team will open its home season tomorrow night when they take on the strong Kevin Barry team of Hartford. The local team met the visitors in their own back yard last Thanksgiving night and the Hartford "Irish" pined a 47-26 defeat on them, but that was on their floor and the West Siders have hopes of turning the tables with the help of the spacious Army court.

Beat the Phantoms.
Since turning back the West Siders the "Irish" also defeated the New Britain Phantoms and that's something to boast about as it was these same Phantoms that defeated the Guards twice last season. However the local team sports a victory over the Glastonbury town team and has been practicing diligently this past week to iron out the rough spots and are very optimistic about the outcome of tomorrow night's game.

It is hoped that Sherwood "Cap" Bissell of the local team will find it convenient to be in uniform for the opening whistle, but Bissell has a referee's assignment in Wethersfield which might interfere with his playing with the local "Rec."

"Cap" plays an important part in the local offense. The visitors are a fast passing aggregation and play at a breakneck pace throughout the entire game. In Colerick and Kinney the "Irish" have two valuable assets.

Colerick is the tall chap from New Britain whose ability to handle the ball in the pivot position has been previously described in these columns, and it's Kinney around whom "Shorty" Mallin has built the team and brought them up from a junior organization and put them on a pedestal where the best teams in the state are required to give them attention. Jensen, Carukin and Brink form the rest of the team and are capable of giving a good account of themselves.

Just who the locals will trot out as the starting five is at present undecided. "Bingo" Sturgeon will fill in at one forward with either Maloney or Mahoney as his running mate. "Mitt" Nelson will undoubtedly do the jumping with Earl Bissell and his brother "Cap" taking care of the backcourt. Eddie Foley, "Butch" Neil, Freddy Bissell and the irrepressible "Cap" Campbell will undoubtedly see service before the final gun goes off. A large crowd of West Side rooters is expected to be on hand to lend their moral support in helping their team to victory.

Joseph Trueman of the West Side Dairy has donated jackets to the West Side team, and they wish to take this opportunity to publicly thank him for his generous act. It is hoped that the jackets will arrive in time for the game Wednesday.

EAST HARTFORD OPENS M. H. S. LEAGUE SLATE

Both Teams Impressive in Opener Last Week; Locals Drill on Passing Attack; Game Friday Night Here Should Be Close.

Manchester High opens its Central Connecticut Interscholastic League basketball season Friday night at the Army against East Hartford High in what has prospects of being one of the closest of the local high school games. The Red and White slate, Manchester will be seeking revenge for two defeats inflicted by East Hartford last year.

Both Impressive
The local victory scored an impressive win over Rockville High in its opener last Friday night, 43 to 28 and East Hartford was equally impressive in downing Middletown High in a League tilt, 39 to 29. On paper the teams seem evenly matched and the game should prove interesting and exciting.

Coach Wilfred J. Clarke is drilling his charges on passing at this week's practice sessions, smoothing out the weaknesses that cropped out against Rockville. Several times he had his players pass down the floor that were easily intercepted and Coach Clarke is determined to rid his charges of forward passing tactics that give opponents easy chances to score.

Visitors Lineup
East Hartford has a pair of sharpshooters forwards at Bernard and Foran, who scored 19 and nine points respectively against Middletown. Bullard at center is a fine defensive player and Spachuleon and Chopus capably fill the guard berths. Reserves include Sullivan and Chergo.

TRADERS SEEK A'S BEST BALL TALENT

Reports Say Cochrane Already Sold to Detroit; Other Deals on the Fire.

Chicago, Dec. 12.—(AP)—A large number of traders in baseball flesh lined up this morning to await the arrival of Connie Mack to complete deals for a considerable amount of his star talent.

Other American league trades and sales were in the making, but Mack and his Philadelphia Athletics stars held the spotlight. It was said last night that the Tigers had agreed to buy about, that Mickey Cochrane, the A's catcher, already had been sold or traded to Detroit and that the announcement would be made not later than tonight. Cochrane, according to the gossip was all set to assume the Tiger managerial duties.

The Chicago White Sox expected to announce that George Barnshaw had been purchased from the Athletics and the Boston Red Sox hoped to say they had acquired Little Grove or Rube Walberg, Max Bishop, one of Mack's infielders also figured in the record crop of rumors.

THUNDERBOLTS SMEAR TROJANS BY 12 TO 0

The Thunderbolts, one of the best juvenile football teams ever produced in the south and defeated the East Side Trojans 12-0 in a fast and exciting game Saturday morning.

Once again "Ernie" Squatrito, that curly haired fullback, starred. He scored once in the first quarter on a plunge through center from the one yard line, and again in the second quarter when he ran 80 yards for a touchdown. The Trojans only threat was in the third quarter when Smith threw a long pass to Hall and Hall ran 35 yards to the "Thunderbolt" 30 yard line before he was downed by Greene, Thunderbolt's left end.

Lineups:
Thunderbolts: Greese, Greese, Greese, Greese, Greese, Greese, Greese, Greese, Greese, Greese.
Trojans: Hall, Turkinton, Clark, Custer, Puter, Callis, McCann, Healey, Cotter, French, Threako.

THREE TEAMS TO RISK CLEAN SLATES TONIGHT

Jewels Meet Celtics, Masons Tackle Newsies in Battle for First Place in Rec Senior League; First Game Starts 7.45.

Two interesting games are on tap tonight in the Rec Senior Basketball League at the School street gym, when the Celtics and Jewels meet in the first game at 7:45 while Ansaldi's Masons stack up against the strong Herald team in the second game at 8:45. "Shorty" Malin will be the eleventh man on the floor and dancing will follow immediately after the second game, music furnished by Art McKays' band.

The Celtics will endeavor to make it two straight over the undefeated Jaffe team. The West Side team in its unexpected victory over the Knoll team looked very impressive with its clash and fight. Looming as one of the best in the league, the Jaffe team expects little difficulty in its game with the Celtics and are out to make it three straight. Both teams will be using their strongest lineups in an effort to win.

After their impressive victory over the strong Dugout Five last Saturday night, the Ansaldi team expects to resume their outstanding play against the Herald team tonight. Both teams have not as yet tasted defeat and a win for either team will at least assure them of a tie for first place. It is expected that Johnson of the Herald whose outstanding play in the second half against the Phantoms led his team to victory will be in the starting lineup.

The Herald team considered one of the weaker teams at the outset of the league has surprised the many critics and with Snow and Hedlund in the Herald lineup the Ansaldi team will have to expect to be at their best. The Ansaldi aggregation, has such players as Hurley, Britt, Sturgeon, Dowd and Campbell in its lineup and the Herald team will have mapped out for them an evening's job.

EAST SIDES LOSE TO INTERMEDIATES

Y Quintet Returns to Form to Gain 27-8 Victory; Buddies Are Next Foe.

The Intermediates, after being defeated by the Wapping Uncas last week, came back into form last night and drubbed the East Side A. C. by a score of 27 to 8 at the "Y."

The East Sides simply couldn't break through the strong Intermediates defense which was a cause for the small score of the East Sides. The Intermediates started off like a streak of lightning and ended the half 12 points up on the East Sides. Coach Spillane then sent in different combinations of players and each click worked as well as the other until the Y Intermediates was starting to lose.

The Intermediates will practice tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the Y. M. C. A. in preparation for the West Side Buddies game Friday night at 7 o'clock at the "Y."

THUNDERBOLTS SMEAR TROJANS BY 12 TO 0

The Thunderbolts, one of the best juvenile football teams ever produced in the south and defeated the East Side Trojans 12-0 in a fast and exciting game Saturday morning.

Once again "Ernie" Squatrito, that curly haired fullback, starred. He scored once in the first quarter on a plunge through center from the one yard line, and again in the second quarter when he ran 80 yards for a touchdown. The Trojans only threat was in the third quarter when Smith threw a long pass to Hall and Hall ran 35 yards to the "Thunderbolt" 30 yard line before he was downed by Greene, Thunderbolt's left end.

Lineups:
Thunderbolts: Greese, Greese, Greese, Greese, Greese, Greese, Greese, Greese, Greese, Greese.
Trojans: Hall, Turkinton, Clark, Custer, Puter, Callis, McCann, Healey, Cotter, French, Threako.

Substitutions: Turner for Giovanni, Franek for Squatrito, Robbins for Turner, B. Squatrito for Dupont.
Referee, "Rus" Johnson.
Time, 12 minute quarters.

A fellow doesn't realize how old he is getting until he finds that one deep breath won't blow out the candles on his birthday cake.

A Few Of Our Relatives: The father of Success is Work. The Mother of Success is Ambition. The oldest son is Common Sense. Some of the other boys are Perseverance, Honesty, Thoroughness, Foresight, Enthusiasm, and Co-operation. The oldest daughter is Character. Some of her sisters are Cheerfulness, Loyalty, Courtesy, Care, Economy, Sincerity and Harmony.

The baby is Opportunity. Get acquainted with the old man, and you will be able to get along pretty well with the rest of the family.

Mr. Junewed—Is the steak ready now, dear?

Mrs. Junewed—I'm sorry I'm so long, dear, but it looked hopeless grilled and it doesn't look much better fried, but if you'll be patient a little longer, I'll see what boiling does to it.

The difference between a tennis racket and the public is that the tennis racket won't stand restringing all the time.

The junior partner of a certain firm was interviewing a pretty girl who had applied for a position. The senior partner came in, and after inspecting the vision, called the other member of the firm aside and whispered:

Senior Partner—I'd hire her.

Junior Partner—I have.

Senior Partner—Can she take dictation?

Junior Partner—We'll find that out later. I didn't want any obstacles to crop up.

A friend of a certain speaker at one of the luncheon clubs told the speaker that really he must not yawn in the middle of his own speeches. The speaker replied: "But, my dear friend, you have no idea how dull they are."

It is harder to forget the sting of the bee than to remember the sweetness of the honey.

The following was overheard recently in a movie house:

Youth (to fair companion)—Have you ever tried listening to a play with your eyes shut?

Voice (from row behind)—Have you ever tried listening to one with your mouth shut?

Wouldn't it be a great idea if we could all adopt an old Chinese custom? Good Chinese go around before the end of the year and pay off all their debts so that they can start the new year free of debt. One can imagine the general revival of business and joy if such a custom were followed in this country.
