PARAGUAY, BOLIVIA TO HALT HOSTILITIES

To Quit Fighting Until Midnight Dec. 31—League of Nations Believes Peace Is Near at Hand.

Montevideo, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Paraguay and Bolivia agreed today to halt their bloody war in the Chaco Boreal until at least the end of the Christmas season.

Both nations told the Pan-American conference in session here, and its host, the Uruguayan government, that they were willing to stop their hostilities until midnight, Dec. 31.

President Gabriel Terra of Uruguay, who also is head of the Pan-American conference, in session here, announced last night Bolivia had accepted a Paraguayan proposal for a temporary cessation of hostilities.

During the period of quiet in the triangular wilderness in dispute half a century, conference leaders hoped to see a permanent peace effected.

President Terra has proposed delegates from the two countries meet in Montevideo with members of the League of Nations peace commission.

Pope Pius succeeded in arranging a Christmas truce last year. This, however, marked the only recognized break in hostilities of the last year and a half.

LEAGUE RECEIVE NEWS Geneva, Dec. 19.—(AP)—The League of Nations was informed officially today that Paraguay and Bolivia had accepted terms for an armistice to begin at midnight.

The League was informed representatives of the two countries engaged in the long Chaco war were to meet soon at Montevideo to negotiate conditions of peace and security.

The information was contained in a cablegram from Juan Antonio Guerrero, general secretary of the League of Nations peace commission now at La Paz, Bolivia.

The message follows: "The President of Paraguay sent to the Chaco (League) commission a telegram proposing first, a general armistice which would begin Dec. 19 at midnight and which would last until Dec. 30 at midnight, and second, an invitation for the commission to convene immediately a meeting of the belligerents with the object of negotiations on conditions of peace and security.

"Bolivia has accepted. The commission is convoking the belligerents in a meeting at Montevideo."

Cheering News The news of the armistice cheered leaders of the League of Nations more than anything else since the League was formed. They regarded the news as a proof of the usefulness of the League which was the more striking at this moment when the League is being most fiercely attacked.

Castillo Mejera, the Mexican minister to Paris and chairman of the League Council telephoned the Associated Press: "This is most wonderful news. It demonstrates the genuine work of the League of Nations as an international body."

Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 19.—(AP)—Captain George R. Pond, who planned to fly across the Atlantic with Cesare Sabelli, is missing. Pond and Sabelli had been waiting more than two months for favorable weather to start their proposed flight to Rome. Sabelli told police Pond called him Saturday morning, asked him to get their plane ready, and told him he would get a final weather report that night. Sabelli said that was the last he heard from Pond.

Miss Lillian Edgerton, Pond's secretary, said she saw the flier Saturday afternoon at Pennsylvania station just before she took a train for Trenton.

She and Sabelli said they believed Pond met with foul play or was a victim of amnesia.

THINK MISSING MAN SUFFERS FROM AMNESIA

All Other Theories As To Cause of Disappearance of E. V. Gilbert Discarded By His Wife Today.

Belief that her missing husband is alive but suffering from a lapse of memory, was expressed today by the wife of Ervin V. Gilbert, of 6 Avon street, who disappeared from his home last Thursday night and has not been seen since.

Interviewed by an Evening Herald reporter at her home today, Mrs. Gilbert discarded without hesitation every theory as to the reason for her husband's strange disappearance except that he might be a victim of amnesia.

"I am sure he is alive right now, perhaps wandering around unable to recall his identity, but alive just the same," Mrs. Gilbert said.

Mrs. Gilbert said she learned that her husband, on the night that he dropped out of sight, visited Burack Brothers' market at 470 Hartford road and purchased two small boxes containing aspirin tablets. He asked for a larger box, but when told only the small sized boxes were carried in stock, bought two of the latter. Observed going in the direction of his home after leaving the store, Mr. Gilbert did not return home and no one knows whether he went after that.

For three weeks Mr. Gilbert has been suffering from intestinal trouble, but was able to continue his work as metallurgist at the Colt's Patent Firearms Company until a week prior to the day of his disappearance.

Last Wednesday night Mr. Gilbert had a dream, which was more in nature of a premonition.

STATE DAIRYMEN ELECT MITCHELL

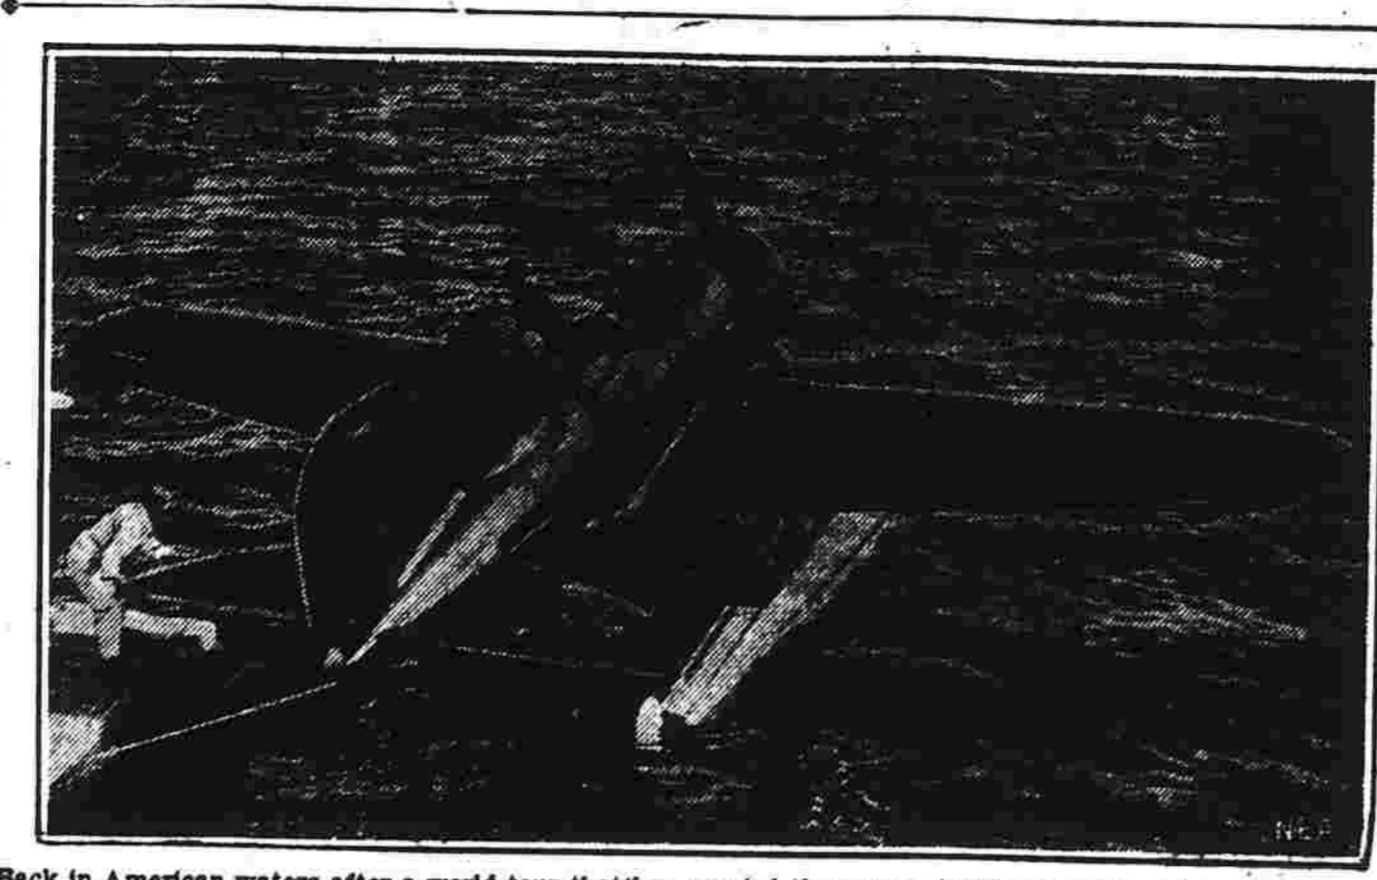

Picked as Director of Milk Producers Association— Gives Out Statement.

Hartford, Dec. 19.—(AP)—New strength and co-operation in the Connecticut Milk Producers Association were seen today in the results of the district elections, through which the "loyal members" retained control of the board of directors.

President Robert C. Mitchell of Southbury, who was re-elected director of the organization which markets about half Connecticut's milk supply, said:

"I appreciate the support and confidence in the Association shown by the results in these 18 district elections. They show a realization on the part of members in the necessity of co-operation. The vote should be a decided answer to some of the criticisms of the C. M. P. A. in looking over the list of those elected it is evident that responsible, conservative dairymen have been selected by the members to represent them.

NATIONAL LABOR BOARD GETS EXECUTIVE ORDERS

President Authorizes It to Settle Conflicts Threatening the Industrial Peace of the Country.

Washington, Dec. 19.—(AP)—President Roosevelt has issued an executive order defining and establishing the authority of the National Labor Board to strengthen its hand in settling labor disputes. Preparations were being made today for its publication.

The presidential order authorizes the board to compose all conflicts threatening the industrial peace of the country. Apparently designed as a safeguard to insure the authority of the board, which is now at odds with the Weirton Steel Company, it says:

"All action heretofore taken by this board in the discharge of its functions is hereby approved and ratified."

The order defines the powers of the board, giving it authority to settle by mediation, conciliation or arbitration all controversies between employers and employees.

The text follows: "By virtue of the authority vested in me under Title One of the National Industrial Recovery Act approved June 16, 1933, and in order to effectuate purposes of said act it is hereby ordered as follows:

(1)—The National Labor Board created on August 5, 1933, to pass promptly on any case of hardship or dispute that may arise from interpretation or application of the President's re-employment agreement, shall continue to adjust all industrial disputes whether arising out of the interpretation and operation of the President's re-employment agreement or any duty imposed in connection therewith.

Havana, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Seven bombs exploded in Havana during the night and early today—no injuries reported—soldiers and sailors patrolled the streets in efforts to throttle a new wave of violence and bloodshed.

The motives in the bombings were not known, but all were believed to have been connected with the recent labor furore precipitated by the decree requiring that fifty per cent of all employees be natives.

Havana's big Spanish population has vigorously opposed the law. There have been violent demonstrations both for and against it. Hundreds have been arrested.

New Strike Called A strike called by the syndicate of commercial employes went into effect today.

Authorities continued their investigation of the slaying of Josefino Franco de Gomez, daughter of Porfirio Franco, one of Cuba's five governing commissioners after the overthrow of former President Dr. Céspedes.

Fords Loaned Millions To Banks in Detroit

Washington, Dec. 19.—(AP)—amounting to $3,595,000 in the Detroit operations of the Guardian Detroit Union Group, Inc., Robert O. Lord, former president, told Senate investigators today of loans to the group by Edsel Ford and the Ford Motor Company aggregating $12,000,000.

Lord read to the investigators a prepared statement blaming collapse of the huge bank holding company on the depression and outlining efforts of the large stockholders to save it.

He said late in 1930, Edsel Ford loaned the Guardian Detroit Company a subsidiary, $1,000,000 in cash and $5,000,000 in securities. A year later, in December, 1931, he said, Ford loaned his credit to the group company on a loan of $2,500,000 with the Continental Bank in Chicago.

A year afterwards, in December, 1932, the witness added, the Ford Motor Company loaned the group company $3,500,000 which was used to "lift out of the Union Guardian Trust Company $3,500,000 of criticized assets."

Lord said large stockholders had contributed nearly $27,000,000 "in order to strengthen and stabilize the entire situation in the protection of the depositors."

Among the actions he described were: Making good of defaultations amounting to $3,595,000 in the Union Industrial Bank of Flint, by C. S. Mott from his own resources. A loan by Mott of his credit to buy a $2,500,000 loan.

Loan of credit to the extent of $1,600,000 by directors of the Guardian Detroit group, of which Lord said $1,100,000 was used. Purchase from the Guardian Detroit company by a small group of stockholders of 18,800 group shares at $180 a share or a total of $3,384,000.

Subscription by certain stockholders to 83,000 shares of Group stock at a cost of more than $4,000,000. Advance of $400,000 in cash by certain stockholders to purchase certain of the inventory of the Guardian Detroit Company, to provide funds for reduction of that company's loans.

"Admittedly, the institutions in the Guardian Detroit Union group made many mistakes," Lord said, "but to the best of my personal knowledge they were mistakes of judgment."

"Broadly speaking, the greatest mistake of the group was that it was organized at the peak of the Nation's prosperity—that we along with others were unable to foresee the conditions which were to follow that long period of prosperity and expansion of business."

Chicago, Dec. 19.—(AP)—The slaying in a suburban Lyons beer tavern today of a young married woman was followed several hours later by the suicide of the man police identified as her killer.

The principals in the double tragedy were Mrs. Irene Hard, 24, of Lyons, and Wilfred Belanger, 31, identified by the former's husband, George Hard, as "my best friend."

Joseph Talatous, proprietor of the Camp Grill Tavern, after the couple returned to the place after taking Hard home and that as they sat drinking they began to quarrel.

Going to the booth he said he saw Belanger draw a revolver at which the tavern keeper rushed to a telephone to call police. While he was putting a call through he said a shot was fired and he found Mrs. Hard lying dead on the floor and her companion gone.

Police went to the Hard home nearby and aroused the husband who had retired and from him learned the identity of his wife's companion, and then hurried to his apartment in Chicago to arrest him.

But they were too late as when they arrived they found Belanger slumped over the wheel of his automobile in the garage. He had shot himself after an apparent futile effort to end his life by inhaling carbon monoxide gas.

The tavern operator said he believed the quarrel started when Belanger began forcing his attentions upon Mrs. Hard and urged her to desert her husband and go away with him.

THE TAKEDOFF Charleston, S. C., Dec. 19.—(AP)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh took off northward in their plane at 8:11 a. m. today after spending last night with Rear Admiral James J. Raby of the Charleston Navy Yard.

The couple apparently intended to land at Newark or Long Island airport as indicated last night, but gave out no formal word on their plans.

Today's flight was expected to bring to a close an aerial survey journey which took them across two portions of the Atlantic ocean and carried them almost around the Western Hemisphere.

Only Admiral Raby and a selected list of Coast Guardsmen accompanied the couple to the docks, where they boarded a Coast Guard boat for the ride to the river buoy where the famous plane had been moored since their unexpected arrival here yesterday afternoon.

Couple Refreshed Both the colonel and his wife looked refreshed after what would have been a most tiring voyage with Admiral Raby. They were both known for several years.

Lindbergh and Anne were expected to watch on the dock about 9:30 a. m. and a few minutes later.

CROSS TO CONFER WITH HOTEL MEN

Reports Circulated in State That the Liquor Control Act Is Not Constitutional.

Hartford, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Governor Cross will give the Connecticut Hotel Association a hearing next week on its petition for a special session of the General Assembly to change the liquor control act so that hotels may sell strong liquors.

Meanwhile, reports were prevalent about the state that tavern keepers and hotel men were considering the constitutionality of the law. Some taverns were said to have turned in their permits with the intention of selling liquor without a permit on the ground that prosecutions could not be sustained against non-permittees.

Contains Plans Wilford B. Rogers, chairman of the legislative committee of the hotel association, said today that his committee has studied all aspects of the state law and has come to the conclusion that it contains flaws which make the law unconstitutional.

The hotel men, Mr. Rogers indicated were united in this stand and would protest against the law as it stands on the ground that it creates an emergency in that it virtually throws the door open to bootleggers. He maintains that Section 68 of the act referring to persons who sell liquor without a permit "contrary to the provisions of this act," and Section 71, which establishes the penalties for violation are not operative against non-permittees because the act itself makes no provision for non-permittees.

Buckley's Answer Major John Buckley, a member of the liquor control commission, disagreed with this viewpoint. He said that a reading of 69 and 71 indicates clearly that nobody can sell liquor without a permit. At the state liquor commission, it was said that tavern owners are giving up their permits at the rate of one or two a day, but there was no indication that they were taking this action for the purpose of selling liquor without a permit.

The college opened this year with ten members added to the faculty and with an increase in courses for independent study.

ENTER POLITICS WOMEN ARE TOLD

Students at Connecticut College Urged to Take Up Courses in Government.

New London, Dec. 19.—(AP)—The issuance of training college students to public service to meet intelligently the problems arising from the present emergency was stressed today by President Kathryn Blunt of Connecticut college.

In her annual report, the President of the women's college said: "We must make a particular effort to remind the students that politics and public life in general are fields for women."

Courses in political science based on history and theories of governments and contact with every day practical politics were named by Dr. Blunt as essentials in preparing for public service.

Back to Farm MOVEMENT GROWS Government Aiding Urban Families to Make Living from the Soil.

Washington, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Scant prospects for unemployed workers to regain their old jobs were seen in Secretary Ickes annual report today to President Roosevelt.

But a pronounced movement back to the farm, where food can be obtained, at least in part, from the soil, was said to be taking care of some workers. The government, the report recalled, is aiding urban families to become self-sustaining on homesteads in small rural communities.

Noted Author Walks Out At Banquet in His Honor

New York, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Sinclair Lewis, the former Sauk Center, Minn., red head, who made good in virtually every language, including the Scandinavian vernacular, to know "why the hell I should have to stand up and be photographed."

The ex-Minnesotan who exposed "Main street" and won a Nobel prize in literature raised the question last night at a banquet honoring the memory of Alfred Bernhard Nobel, founder of the fund from which the Nobel prizes are awarded.

To emphasize his distaste for the cinematic arts, Lewis walked out on the banquet, leaving behind a distinguished company including three other Nobel prize winners—Dr. Albert Einstein, Dr. Irving Langmuir and Lewis' fellow Minnesotan, Frank B. Kellogg.

Twenty minutes later, he walked back in. All he missed were the cock-fat (fruit) and the soup (tomato). He picked up with gusto at the entrance and went right on through to the demitasse and finger bowl without further untoward event.

The repast proceeded to a tranquil conclusion, with a principal address by Mr. Kellogg and a shorter one by Dr. Einstein.

Afterward Lewis, who was on the receiving end of a slap from a fellow novelist, Theodore Dreiser at a gathering in 1931, explained his viewpoint.

"I didn't mind the boys taking ed my dinner, and no one likes to have his picture taken while eating. The pictures always come out like this," and he screwed his face in illustration.

W. A. inspectors. "I have tried my best to make a go of it but I can't go on," admitted Simler as he awaited the arrival of the doctor.

Kensington Man Arrested for Attempt to Shop-Lift at Hultman Store.

A bold attempt at shop lifting at the men's clothing store of Arthur L. Hultman at 917 Main street shortly after 1 o'clock this afternoon was halted almost before it got started and led to the swift arrest of one of the two men involved, due to the alert action of Frank D'Amico, who chased the would-be thief the length of Main street and caught him.

Kensington Man The man detained at the police station gave his name as Peter Sadey and his address as 206 New Britain road, Kensington, Conn. He said he was a Syrian by birth and was 20 years of age. Questioned at length as to the identity of his companion, who escaped while Sadey was wrestling about the store with Earl Clifford, a clerk, Sadey said that he was known to him under the name of "James Duffy" and that the latter was a resident of Manchester, whom he had met in Hartford.

Clifford was alone in the store during the luncheon hour, when the two young men entered. "Duffy" asked about the price of an overcoat. While Clifford was showing him the garments in stock, Sadey picked up a pair of shoes from a nearby bench and tucked them under his arm. Clifford noticed the action and in a brief scuffle, wrestled

DICKINSON SCORES TAXING PROGRAM

Acting Secretary of Commerce Joins With I. C. of C. in Opposing Measure.

Washington, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Two proposals by which the House ways and means committee hopes to raise $80,000,000 annually in income taxes were vigorously criticized today by representatives of the Roosevelt administration and American business enterprises. Assistant Secretary of Commerce John Dickinson joined with the International Chamber of Commerce in opposing the proposal, whereby American concerns operating in foreign countries should not be allowed credit for tax payments abroad against income levies here. The committee estimates it would increase Federal revenue $10,000,000 annually by banning such tax credits.

Domestic concerns were placed on record against the proposed abolition of consolidated income tax returns by which the committee hopes to raise $30,000,000 additional taxes a year. Citing the statement of the acting Secretary of the Treasury, Henry Morgenthau, Jr., made to the committee in opposition to foreign tax credit elimination, Dickinson and Mitchell B. Carroll, of New York, representing the American section of the international chamber of commerce, predicted the American export trade would be injured.

Dickinson said that the committee proposed to reverse the policy of the government against double taxation adopted in 1918. "It is hardly a favorable time to impose an additional tax burden on our foreign trade," said Dickinson, who was subjected to a cross-fire of questions by committee members as to his knowledge of the foreign tax credit statutes and their results.

Pressed by Representative Vinson (D., Ky.), Dickinson conceded he was an expert on taxes and that he was not familiar with the statutes on the question, but added: "I favor the principle."

The committee proposes that instead of American concerns getting a flat credit against their income tax for the amounts paid foreign governments they would be allowed to deduct the foreign payments from their gross income. Carroll said that the double taxation committee of the International Chamber of Commerce "and one of Morgenthau's stand for continuation of the foreign tax credits. He declared that "ten per cent" of the American population was dependent directly or indirectly on foreign trade and that if the committee's recommendation were adopted American concerns would be unable to compete in foreign countries.

Connally Opposed Meanwhile, Senator Connally (D., Tex.), said today he would "strongly" resist the Treasury Department's proposal for abolition of separate community income tax returns. The Treasury's recommendation would require husband and wife to file a joint return and pay income taxes on the basis of a single estate. "As a member of the finance committee of the Senate I shall strongly resist changing the law as it now exists and has existed for many years," Connally said. "There are slight community property states and this would be most unjust to them to change the basis of taxation."

George P. Bonnell, of Pitts- burgh, tax consultant for the Armstrong Cork Corporation of Pennsylvania, predicted that if the consolidated returns for corporations are abolished, the Treasury would not receive the $20,000,000 estimated by the committee but that it would actually lose money.

HARTFORD WOMAN DESCRIBES HITLER

Says He Hates Women and Has Magnetism; Germans Like Leader.

Mrs. Lewis Rose of Hartford gave a good sized audience a vivid word picture of the Germany of today, in the second lecture in the series at the Y. M. C. A. last evening. She had visited Germany several times and was there in late September. One of her purposes was to have an interview with Hitler, but friends there assured her she would not be successful. The man of the hour in Germany while he is said to love children, hates women. She also was looked upon as an American Jewess, they called her. The name Lewis had probably been changed from Rosenthal, Rosenberg or some other typical Jewish surname, according to reasoning of the German minds.

The speaker found a considerable improvement in the Germany of today from a few years ago. Although Germany has 88 per cent of its workers still idle, fewer unemployed men were on the streets of Berlin and other cities. Many of the younger men are in labor camps which correspond to our C. C. forestry projects or in farm settlements. She told of visiting one camp and being privileged to dine on the soup or stew from the army kitchen. She pronounced it excellent much to the disdain of her companions. In contrast was a luncheon at the Villa near Berlin of Baroness Von Noeltig, niece of President Von Hindenburg, at which she was a guest with one of the consultants staff.

While many people in Germany do not agree with the Nationalist-Socialist program, fully 95 per cent are in favor of it, and you will find a young man who does not admire Hitler. The Germans like to follow a leader. Mrs. Rose heard him talk to 10,000 people. While not intellectual he possesses a magnetic quality that carries his ideas to the hearts of the masses. He is a German patriot. Born in Austria, his German parents, his father was a minor customs official. He died when Adolf was 12 and at 17 Hitler had to leave school and go to work. When the World War broke out he enlisted in the German army.

The Lindberghs made Charleston the half-way stopping point of the flight from Miami to New York without having previously advised their plans. When they left Miami yesterday morning it was generally understood they perhaps would fly non-stop home. A slight mist hung over the harbor as the seaplane rose this morning, but it was not sufficiently dense to hamper visibility.

NOTED INVENTOR DIES Philadelphia, Dec. 19.—(AP)— Herbert Thacker Herr, vice president of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, Pittsburgh, died today. Herr, who was 57, died in his suite at a Philadelphia apartment hotel.

He was born in Denver, Col., where he married Miss Irene Viancourt in 1896. He is survived by his widow, two children, Herbert Jr., of Pittsburgh and Mrs. Muriel V. H. Brown, of Hartford, Conn.; a brother and a sister. Herr was the inventor of locomotive air brake equipment; improvements in turbines, oil and gas engines, and remote control for steam turbines such as are used in electrically propelled battleships.

CUTTING EXPENSES New York, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Major Florio H. LaGuardia, swinging the axe even before taking over the mayor's job, announced today policy of making one office grow where two grew before.

He said John P. McMillin, chosen for his commissioner, would name Francis X. Glaccone, lawyer, as deputy commissioner to replace Thomas J. Cullen and Edward J. Kenny, who got $7,250 a year each. LaGuardia said that in many departments this policy would probably be followed.

Tonight the men on duty will wear the white coats with the regular uniform. The coats are of light rubber composition that will protect the wearer from rain or snow in unpleasant weather, and will also stand out in the dark. The policeman will be more conspicuous than he would be if attired in the blue uniform. It was expected that the coats would arrive last week but there was a delay. Their arrival today and will be of special value during this week when traffic is extra heavy.

ANOTHER STRIKE LOOMS Detroit, Dec. 19.—(AP)—The Detroit News today says another strike of tool and die makers is threatened in Detroit, and that a vote is being taken among the 15,000 members of the Mechanics' Educational Society of America. The paper says officials of the society would neither confirm nor deny that a strike vote, with Sunday work and overtime as the question in dispute, has been taken.

APPLICATION IS DENIED New York, Dec. 19.—(AP)—The application of the Hotel Piccadilly for a liquor license was turned down today by the City Alcoholic Beverage Control Board. James Quinn, chairman, said the denial was based on the recently disclosed connection between Waxey Gordon, beer racketeer, and the Paramount Hotel Corporation, listed as the owner of the hotel. At a recent income tax trial, which resulted in a ten-year sentence for Gordon, the government charged he was directly interested in the hotel, which is in the theatrical district. Gordon denied it. For the first time in their 42 years of annual football engagements, Furman and South Carolina battled to a scoreless tie this season.

INNOCENT, SERVES 7 YEARS IN JAIL

New York Man Gets Pardon - When Another Confesses to the Murder.

Danemora, N. Y., Dec. 19.—(AP)—Edward Larikman was on his way home today after seven years in prison for a murder to which another prisoner confessed.

Armed with the full pardon of Governor Lehman, Larikman left Clinton prison here with two friends who met him in an automobile. He was smiling and happy as he said good-bye to the men who had become his friends during the long years of confinement. He wore a new suit, supplied by the state, and was given $20 in cash, also a presentation of the state.

"It's going to be great to be out on my own again," Larikman told Warden Thomas H. Murphy and Chief Clerk P. Murphy. He indicated that he and his friends would drive straight through to Buffalo, where relatives await him. At Albany, Dr. Joseph W. Moore, chairman of the parole board, said that the board would "be very glad to help Larikman if he wants or needs any help." He said the Larikman case was the first instance in three years the board has functioned of a full pardon being granted, and hence no policy has been established in regard to assistance for pardoned men. He was inclined to believe that any direct offer of assistance might be waived. "Heretofore, we have had commutations of sentence," he said, "but never a case of this kind."

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Initial steps have been taken toward the re-organization of the Globe and Rutgers Fire Insurance Company, coincident with the granting of a $3,500,000 loan by the R. F. C. It was announced today. It is planned to amend the company's charter to permit the issuance of preferred stock which will be pledged as collateral for the Federal loan. Additional new capital to the amount of $500,000 will be supplied by owners of the company through subscription to the common stock. L. A. Young, president of L. A. Young Spring and Wire Corp., says the company will resume dividends in the first quarter of 1934. The last payment was 25 cents in January this year. The company's 1934 policy, he asserts, will be to pay out in dividends virtually all earnings, since surplus is adequate.

House No. 1 of the South Manchester Fire department was called out at 8 o'clock last night on a still alarm for a fire that had started in a chimney at the home of John Straugh of 6 Spencer street. Upon the arrival of the company it was found that the chimney apparatus and small hose lines were needed as the fire was rapidly gaining progress and was causing more damage each minute.

Chief Albert Foy called out No. 2's truck which carried large tank of chemicals and additional hose lines of a smaller size that can be used in fighting fires where there is no hydrant. A bucket brigade drew water from a well and carried it to the house. The fire was confined to the lower part of the house where some furniture and the side-walls were damaged.

Joan Crawford and Clark Gable are paired again as lovers in "Dancing Lady," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new musical production which starts Sunday as the next attraction at the State Theater. UNIQUE ARMISTICE

There may have been, somewhere in the history of wars, a parallel for the situation now existing in the Bolivia-Paraguay conflict, but it would probably take some searching to find it and it certainly did not occur in very modern times.
 Very recently the Paraguayan army inflicted on its enemy one of the most complete and devastating defeats in the records of battles. Apparently there was nothing, aside from the natural difficulties of the country and the hardship and expense of maintaining troops in the Grand Chaco country, to prevent the Paraguayans from driving the remnants of the Bolivian forces out of the Chaco altogether and taking complete possession of all the disputed territory and as much more of Bolivia as they desired.
 Instead of this Paraguay has made a heroic gesture. "Now," she has said to Bolivia, "now will you arbitrate?" And Bolivia, chastened and dazed at her foe's generosity, is accepting.
 By this unique proceeding Paraguay has put herself in the eyes of the world, in the strongest possible position. It must be difficult for even the sourest skeptic to doubt her good faith, and disinterested onlookers must surely be convinced now of the validity of Paraguay's consistent assertions that she was fighting this war not to gain territory or commercial advantage but solely in defense of her national integrity and in resistance to invasion.
 This is the second time that Paraguay has demonstrated that the only way her people can be defeated is by destroying them. The first time they were indeed destroyed, all but part of the women and a few little boys and very old men. This time they have escaped both defeat and destruction.
 But the very needless and utter tragedy of the Chaco war is brought into tremendous emphasis by the fact that the war has altered nothing but the Bolivian spirit of conquest and left the dispute to be settled, after all the bloodshed and loss, by the means that should have been employed in the beginning. What a lesson to the world!

"NUMBERS," REPUTATIONS

Very few people are likely to be become greatly excited over the revelation that, in a community containing a large number of Negroes, Negro "tin-horns" have been conducting a "policy" game and absorbing a considerable portion of the income of the colored population, as seems to have been the case in Hartford. There is something about the optimistic African temperament which, in conjunction with the Negro's tragic lack of opportunity to accumulate considerable sums by thrift, makes lottery gambling peculiarly attractive to the race. And wherever there are numbers of willing customers there are always to be found men, sometimes white and sometimes Negroes, who will take chances with the law for the sake of the easy and large profits to be reaped from any sort of "numbers" game.
 But when there are indications of collusion between the lottery operators and the police; when evidence begins to point to accord between Negro "tin-horns" and municipal authority; when there appear grounds for suspicion that people charged with the administration of the law are deliberately and purposefully co-operating with the gamblers, not only to the extent of ignoring their operations but to that of insuring a lottery monopoly by driving out opposition operators as fast as they appear, then the community faces an entirely different sort of problem.
 It will be extremely interesting to see what developments shall transpire in this Hartford lottery campaign. State Attorney Aloom's office has a way of doing things. It may be that in this matter it may do things that will astonish the natives in the revelations it brings out. There would seem to be a possibility that some very considerable reputations may crash if this Hartford policy lottery investigation is pushed all the way through.

REALLY, WHY NOT?

There is very serious difference of opinion between Governor Cross and some of his most ardent supporters in the Democratic party over the necessity of a special session in order to insure PWA aid for the immediate building of the Merritt Highway. There is very serious difference between the Governor and the hotel men—and for that matter between the governor and every citizen who sees grave trouble ahead through the failure of the Liquor Control Act—as to the need of a special session in order to give the state a good liquor law. There is grave difference between the Governor and all those thinking people who are beginning to realize that the state of Connecticut has completely welched on its duty to help carry the burden of depression and who believe that 1935 is too far off a time for the assumption by the commonwealth of part of that burden.
 But the holding of a special session at which such large problems would have to be attacked in earnest looms, apparently, as a nightmare spectre before the eyes of our dilatory Governor, who hugely enjoys his title but is extremely reluctant to spit on his hands and tackle a job of work.
 There is a way out. Dr. Cross has had all the honor he can possibly hope to extract from the governorship by merely hanging on to it. If he has heached that time of life or that stage of arteries where all but the regalia of his office has become a bugbear, what better time than the present for him to lay down his responsibilities—resign his office and let the much younger and immeasurably more alert Lieutenant-Governor pick up the burden.
 True, the Lieutenant-Governor is a Republican and Dr. Cross is a Democrat. But it is doubtful if, even among the Democrats, there would be much grief over the loss of this particular governorship.

ON THE OTHER FOOT

To those commentators, particularly the cartoonists of the Saturday Evening Post, who have never been able to find quite hard enough things to say or draw about the European war debtors of the United States is commended as a fresh subject the suit of the Principality of Monaco against the state of Mississippi to recover principal and interest on $100,000 in bonds defaulted more than ninety years ago.
 This batch of bonds forms part of an issue of $7,000,000 put out by a state-chartered bank and to the payment of which the full credit of the state of Mississippi was pledged. The Monaco suit, it is to be anticipated, is a test case.
 There are held in Europe some $74,000,000 of American state bonds issued either long before or subsequent to the Civil War period, which have never been paid. Securities gambled in by Europeans during the existence of the Confederate government are never calculated with these defaults, since the people who bought those war time securities did so knowingly at their own risk; they gambled and lost. Eight Southern states, however, sold bonds for purposes having nothing to do with war—and then welched.
 Some of the bitterest arraignments of our European debtors that have been uttered in Congress have come from the lips of members whose own states defaulted and sometimes formally repudiated the debts they owned to investors across the seas.
 For a great many years there has been in Great Britain an organization of owners of these and similar defaulted securities known as the British Corporation of Foreign Bondholders. The Monaco effort to collect through action in the United States Supreme Court is said to be, however, the first attempt of the kind.
 Just how the funny men and the bitter critics of defaulting European nations can deal with this new subject, in which the shoe is on the other foot, it is a little difficult to see. Probably, however, they will merely ignore it. Which is very convenient sometimes.

REMORESELESS

Times, conditions not only change but the process is remorseless.
 For a great many years George M. Eames, a Bridgeport manufacturer, has been president of the city's Park Board, an important and responsible position of public service without the remotest connection with practical politics. Nobody down there has ever thought of having anybody else as head of the Park Board as long as Mr. Eames was able and willing to continue.

 But the city charter provides that the membership of the Park Board "shall at all times be equally divided between the two political parties having the largest representation in the Board of Aldermen." And suddenly it is realized that this lets Mr. Eames out, since he is a Republican and the dominant parties in the Board of Aldermen are the Democrats and Socialists.
 When that charter was drawn it probably never dawned on anyone concerned that the leading parties would not always be Republican and Democratic. Anyhow the seemingly inevitable effect of change, in this case, is to deprive the community of the services of an official whom everybody wants to keep in his job, who would like to continue but who is trampled under the feet of changed conditions.

SCENTS THE BATTLE

Tom Heflin, who during his long membership in Congress consumed more space in the Congressional Record than any two other Senators or Representatives put together, is going to try to get back into the national legislature as representative from an Alabama district. He says he is needed there because the Democratic party in the House lacks in debating ability.
 Imagine the forthcoming session of Congress as it is sure to be—and then with the Ossa of Tom Heflin piled on the Pelion of a House wrangle over the most effective way to bring about speedy inflation. Really, Tom's going to have a hard time convincing people that he is badly needed in Washington.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

The new deal in Washington
 By RODNEY DUTCHER
 Herald Washington Correspondent
 Washington, Dec. 19 — Fighting profiteering in the face of an official policy of price-raising is a tough job.
 The hamstring staff of the NRA Consumers Advisory Board is discouraged. It has wacked some monopolistic proposals in NRA codes, but failed to stop many others.
 Some members think the staff should walk out in a body—in protest on behalf of the consumers, similar to that of Dr. Bill Ogburn and his associates weeks ago.
 Another plan secretly discussed would defy the official censorship imposed on the CAB by permitting nationally known figures to affiliate themselves and then express their sentiments with loud roars.
 A mingled consolation and discouragement is the antagonistic attitude of most NRA administrators and deputy administrators toward the CAB. The staff at least knows it has a nuisance value, even though its demands are unheeded.
 Chairman Mary Rumsey and Prof. Paul Douglas are working on a plan to establish advisory councils over the country to protect consumer interests locally. Mrs. Roosevelt was sounded and approved the general idea.
 Inherent difficulties remain. One bad feature of the secret plans involves a tieup with leading Democrats in the separate communities.
 Better Luck for AAA
 Dr. Fred Howe's Consumers' Counsel staff of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration is having better luck, thanks to sympathy from Secretary Wallace and Assistant Secretary Fugwell. Manufacturers denigrate NRA, but AAA.
 Howe's office has the support of other factions in a joint effort to aid farmers and protect consumers while restraining middlemen. Countrywide demand for copies of its consumers' guide have exceeded the Department of Agriculture's capacity to produce them.
 Hates Dictatorships
 Friends of Ambassador Sumner Welles say his dislike for the Grau government in Cuba isn't due to failure of his hand-picked De Céspedes setup to stay on top.
 Welles, they insist, has an inherent hatred of dictatorships and doesn't believe this government should support the present one in Havana after its disapproval of the Machado dictatorship.
 Practical politics, however, will lead us to support the Grau regime if it lasts.
 An Old Settler
 Clerks checking the 125,000 job applications filed with the Tennessee Valley Authority get an occasional laugh. For instance, an answer to the question, "Length of residence?" was, "Twenty-nine feet 11 inches."
 "Hush" Expert Found
 Quiet snooping reveals Stephen M. DeBrul as responsible for NRA's failure to require full, frank statistics from codified industries. Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins and government statisticians have been waging undercover battle on this issue.
 DeBrul, former sales manager for General Motors, replaced Dr. Alexander Sachs, a real economist,

Another Reforestation Army Takes The Field

as chief of NRA's division of planning and research.

Sachs and the Central Statistical Board had agreed on a full, searching questionnaire form for industries to collect economic data.
 But Debrul came in and it was ruled out. He objected to "meddling in business."
 Garner's Smart
 "I stay out in the woods most of the time and therefore see very few papers and get very little news," Vice President Jack Garner writes from Texas.
 But perhaps Jack's guess as to what's going on here is as good as anybody's.

A BOOK A DAY

HOW AMERICA LIVED IN THE WAR YEARS
 New Volume of "Our Times" Is Record of Tense Era
 The World War fills the stage and overflows into the aisles in "Over Here," the fifth volume of Mark Sullivan's "Our Times."
 And because the war dominates the book—which covers the years 1914 to 1918—this book is somewhat unlike the predecessors.
 In the earlier volumes Mr. Sullivan, in the ordinary sense of the word, he sought to evoke a bygone mood, to give us the emotional experience of returning again to the past; and he did it chiefly by picking up, with an unimportant industry and skill, the threads of the surface of the life we used to live.
 He reminded us of the songs we sang and the games we played, the books we read and the slogans we chanted, of the cartoons we looked at and the newspaper celebrities who got in the spotlight; and he proved extraordinarily successful in bringing back the feeling of a past generation.
 In "Over Here" he is writing history too recent and too vivid to permit this. His book is a picture of America during the war years, and it takes on the tenseness and the seriousness of those times.
 It is a study of America's attitude toward the war, a description of the way the nation slowly changed from disinterested spectator to chief participant.
 The pleasant and intelligent sentimentality that pervaded the earlier books is thus of necessity lacking. Yet that is not said in criticism. The five volumes of "Our Times" make an invaluable record of the nation's development, and "Over Here" is up to the high standard of its predecessors. It is simply pitched in a little different key.
 Published by Scribner's, "Over Here" sells for $3.75.

HEALTH--DIET ADVICE

BY DR. FRANK MCCOY
 Questions in regard to Health and Diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper. Enclosure stamped, self-addressed envelope, for reply.

HOW TO REDUCE SAFELY AND SURELY

In today's article I am going to tell you a way to reduce which is safe and sure. This method of reducing is the best I have found and brings about a gradual, steady loss of weight which is beneficial in every way. I have seen it used by thousands of friendly fat folks all over North America and have yet to find a single record of anyone being injured in the slightest degree from following these instructions. On the other hand, everyone who has carefully followed my directions has been able to lose weight and also noted an increase in general health. When the right reducing regimen is used, the patient gains only good.
 My method takes the guess-work out of reducing and makes it entirely safe for you to lose weight. After normal weight has been regained it is possible for you to continue to weigh what you want to weigh, if you will follow the directions about diet which I will give you.
 HERE'S HOW TO REDUCE
 You should know that you want to reduce but now you want to find out how. The two causes of overweight are eating too much of certain foods which in your case are "fattening" and too little exercise. You may gradually reduce your weight by living on a careful diet but to secure the quickest and best result in weight reduction you will find it helpful to use a short fruit fast at the beginning of the reducing treatment. During the five days of the fast you will eliminate large quantities of toxic material and this will make you feel better. Your body will feel lighter, your mind will become clearer and in addition you will lose several pounds during the fast and each time that you weigh yourself you will be encouraged just that much more. It is usual to lose a pound a day while fasting.
 During the fast you are to take a daily enema and are to practice deep breathing but no strenuous physical culture exercises are to be taken. About the second or third day of the fast you will lose your appetite and your tongue will probably become coated. If you had your blood examined you would find that it is already beginning to improve. That the number of red blood cells has increased and there is an improvement in the red coloring matter. You are really on a fruit diet rather than a strict fast, as you are getting a large amount of food material from the orange juice or tomato juice which you eat. Elements which you need to make your body more alkaline and will at the same time allow you to lose weight; and eliminate poisons.
 After five days of the fast, it is advisable for you to begin on a good reducing diet which contains the following foods: a moderate amount of meat each day, one egg and an abundance of cooked and raw non-starchy vegetables, together with fruit or fruit juice, if desired. You will find that this diet contains all the food elements you most need to remain well but will bring about a gradual loss of weight which is extremely gratifying. It is a good plan at this way you will best appreciate the delicate flavor of the vegetables, but if you wish to use a dressing, I would suggest you make it of mineral oil. This reducing diet furnishes you with protein for repairing muscular tissue, with the food minerals and vitamins, and left out are the only foods which are left out are those which add weight. You will find that you will enjoy your meals at the same time you are reducing and will secure a slow, steady loss of weight which is preferable to a too rapid loss of weight.
 The food which you are to avoid are the starches, sugars and 'ats, which may be classed as "fattening." You are to begin to take physical mineral oil. This reducing diet furnishes you with protein for repairing culture exercises with long exercise, massage is often helpful. Those who are overweight make good swimmers and if you are able to swim regularly, it would undoubtedly be beneficial.

 I am sure that if you will reduce through right diet and exercise you will find this is actually a health-building regimen which will make you feel better, look better—and live longer.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
 (Baby Cries Over-Much)
 Question: Mother writes: "I have a baby boy who has been a cry-baby and fussy ever since he was born. He passes much gas and is very constipated. I nurse him and I am sure he gets plenty. He is seven weeks old and weighs ten pounds. Will you please advise me about this?"
 Answer: Your baby may be getting plenty of milk, but it is possible it is not nourishing. Send for my article called "Diet for Nursing Mothers" and after following instructions for a reasonable length of time, if the baby continues to cry and remains constipated, it would be a good plan to wean him and put him on the milk and orange juice schedule I advise, instructions for which I will also send upon receipt of a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Removing a Verruca)
 Question: F. S. writes: "I have what the doctor calls a verruca on my hand. Would a lack of salt in my diet cause this, and how can I remove it?"
 Answer: A verruca is a wart and there are many different types. It is possible that a fasting and dieting regimen followed by a local caustic would overcome it. A lack of salt in the diet would not cause this, but general acidosis might be responsible.
 ("Miryachit" a Nervous Disorder)
 Question: Greta asks: "A friend of mine insists there is a nervous disease which is known to cause things affected by it to imitate the things other people around them do and say. I don't believe this is true, as whenever I have seen one person imitate another it was done on purpose and I don't see how a disease could cause a person to mimic another."
 Answer: Your friend is right and is referring to a disease known among the Orientals. The name of this unusual nervous disorder is "Miryachit" and it is said to cause the patient to imitate what other say and do, whether the affected one wishes to or not.

(Should One Go Hatless?)
 Question: J. H. writes: "I recently read an article which condemned the almost universal habit some men have of not wearing hats. This article contended that habit made these men susceptible to various illnesses, especially ear troubles, and that the practice was as a whole detrimental to health. I myself have not worn a hat for years, and notice no ill effects. And I know young men who have played football every year for three years in slush, mud and rain, and none of them have had any illnesses. What is your opinion about this?"
 Answer: It should not be necessary for a man to wear a hat except in bad weather, and if the scalp becomes used to the climate the man is living in, there is no reason for using a hat except to conform to conventional standards so as not to appear queer.

IN NEW YORK

—AND MANHATTAN, TOO, "RECOGNIZES" RUSSIA
 By PAUL HARRISON

New York, Dec. 19.—Mr. Litvinoff, homeward bound with U. S. recognition in his pocket, hadn't passed the Statue of Liberty before a boom got under way in Russian blues, curios, samovars, balalaikas, kneedancers and bassos. Theatrical and night club booking agents have sent out a general call for practically everyone who can thump a tambourine, pluck at one of those massive triangular bullfiddles, or sing the Volga boat song.
 Several of the little basement restaurants which haven't had a customer since the bank holiday are being swept out and refurnished in red and gold, with murals of shaw-headed peasants and fur-hatted gents driving sleighs. Chefs are looking up recipes for borsch and shashlik. Orchestras, many of which are composed of ex-royalists to whom the idea would have been abhorrent only a short time ago, are practicing the Internationale. Costume houses are laying in large supplies of shiny Russian boots and gaudy peasant dresses—and are wondering whether they'll be any demand for colorful uniforms reminiscent of the Czarist era.
 News of Import
 Amtorg, the Russian import corporation, is preparing for boom business, and little retail shops are springing up here and there full of Russian needlework, painted wooden gadgets, and candies.
 Manhattan's Russian quarter, down on the east side, isn't particularly excited, though. Many of its people are erstwhile dukes and countesses and such, who figure that their titles now are worth less than ever before. Lots of these folk also like to attend the Cathedral of St. Nicholas, up on Ninety-seventh street, where many a peasant of gratitude has been raised to the memory of the ill-fated Czar who used to send the church a large contribution each year.
 David Samuels, the Broadwayman who books most of the Russian hands and acts, is considering a revival of the disbanded Royal Balalaika Symphony. Only it won't be called "royal" next time... One of the Moscow ballets already has been engaged for an American appearance while our theatrical ambassador, Harpo Marx, is soot to do his appropriate red wig and lay the Soviet customers in the aisles over there.
 Make Hey-Hey While The Sun Shines
 There are many who believe that hey-hey won't be long in heyday after repeal. But Broadway and its people are expecting to profit to the tune of some 10,000 jobs in the entertainment world alone, Lou Erwin, an artist representative who now books about half the eye-and-ear diversions for all the supper clubs and cabarets in America, is naturally jubilant. For weeks now he has been putting hoofers and singers and fan dancers on trains for Miami, New Orleans, St. Louis, San Francisco and way points.
 Being the foremost entrepreneur of the profession, Mr. Erwin likes to think that the newcomers he's helping to develop now will be America's future stars. "At one time," he recalled, "some famous artists came from burlesque. Look at Jack Pearl, Sophie Tucker, Belle Baker, Weber and Fields, Fannie Brice, and Clark and McCullough. . . Then there were a lot from the stage, such as Mari Miller, Al Jolson, Eddie Cantor, W. C. Fields, Mae West, Mary Pickford and Irene Bordoin."
 "But nowadays they're almost all getting their start in the night clubs. George Raft did; so did Maurice Chevalier, and Paul Whiteman and Rudy Vallee. And plenty of others—Ethel Merman, Helen Morgan, Morton Downey, Will Osborne. Where would they have been, I ask you, if they hadn't had a chance to show their talent first in little places that couldn't afford big names?"

The South Dakota high school athletic association this winter will re-instate the 10-second rule in basketball, a rule which the prep did not enforce in the 1932-33 season.

LEGION TO FURNISH HOT SOUP ON JOBS

Different "Project" Gangs to Get Broth or Coffee On the Coldest Days.

Dilworth-Cornell Post, the American Legion, last night through its executive committee, voted to give the men employed on various CWA projects in town a "treat" on cold days, as often as it is feasible for the committee to do so. The "treat" will be a cup of hot coffee, or hot broth, with the noon-day lunch. Details of the manner in which the hot drinks will be prepared and delivered to the spots where the men are at work were left to a group of individuals on the committee.

Cold Sandwiches.
Last week when the temperature was flirting with the zero mark and the damp air was cutting through those who, through circumstance, were forced to remain out of doors, the men employed on the various jobs under the CWA had to be content with sandwiches that had become ice cold during the morning. A cup of hot coffee or hot broth would have been just the thing to warm them up on such days.

It is not the purpose of the Legion committee to serve the hot liquids every severely cold day to all the CWA groups, but the committee members will exercise their best judgment on what days the food will be prepared and to which group it will be sent.

Community Service.
One of the principles of the American Legion is Community Service, and although many veterans who comprise the Legion membership are in need of financial aid, the executive committee felt that it would do its best to make the work of those employed on CWA projects as pleasant as possible under the circumstances and that this would be a valuable service to the community.

SEES RESTRICTION OF ALCOHOL SALE

Local Package Store Man Says Government Is Curbing Use in "Blending."

Restriction of legal grain alcohol sales in an effort to prevent "blending" of beer or the use of the raw alcohol in blending whiskeys has already been ordered by the Federal government, according to William Knofia of the Midland Package Store. Mr. Knofia predicted that the price of alcohol in gallon lots would reach $15 within a week or ten days. This, he believes, will do much to stabilize the market in the hard liquors.

Protect Names
Mr. Knofia believes that between now and the first of the year the product of reputable distilleries will be scarce. He said that his wholesalers have informed him that the makers of the better known brands of liquors are doing everything possible to protect their names and put only the best type of article on the market. They are striving to curb the dilution of their goods between the distillery and the consumer. All such liquors are being carefully tested before they leave the distilleries, he said.

Inspection Delays
It was also pointed out at the Midland store that it is difficult just now to purchase the better liquors in large lots. Federal inspectors are busy tracing the sources of the poorer grades that have crept into the stock offered for sale and this inspection is delaying deliveries. Mr. Knofia believes, however, that shortly after the first of the year government regulation will be in full force and the quality of the liquors will go up and the price down.

STOCK MARKET TERMS EXPLAINED TO CLUB

Aaron Cook, Selectman and Local Broker, Addresses St. Mary's Young Men.

The system by which stocks are bought and sold on large metropolitan exchanges and curb markets was interestingly described to the members of St. Mary's Young Men's Club at the parish house last night by Aaron Cook, Chairman of the Board of Selectmen. Selectman Cook explained the many puzzling terms used in stock trading operations and described just what took place in the exchanges when stocks were offered for sale and bought in the open market.

Citing figures secured from recognized authoritative sources, Mr. Cook showed the tremendous wealth and power amassed by the United States during the past 50 years in all branches of finance and business. The over-subscription of a recent issue of government bonds, he stated, attests to the stability of this country.

Following the discourse a round table discussion of municipal problems was held, the speaker answering questions of members pertaining to local affairs. Refreshments

JUDGE FITZSIMMONS DEAD
Providence, R. I., Dec. 19.—(AP)—Judge Frank E. Fitzsimmons,

BOTH LEGS CUT OFF BY WHEELS OF TRAIN

Norwalk, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Emergency treatment by an unknown physician who was a passenger last night on the train which struck Harry Lawler, 57, of Norwalk may be responsible for saving the man's life. The doctor rushed from the train and applied tourniquets to both of Lawler's legs. The lower part of the limbs had been severed by the train.

Lawler's condition was still critical at the Norwalk hospital this morning, but physicians entertain some hope for his recovery. At the hospital both legs were amputated above the knees.

Lawler, according to the police, was walking the tracks as a short cut to his home when he was struck by train 356, northbound on the Danbury division of the New Haven road. Engineer Fred Lawrence of Danbury brought the slow moving train to a quick stop and Lawler's body was found under the last truck of the first coach.

Lawler is an unmarried laborer employed at the Evergreen nurseries in Wilton.

DR. JOSEPH E. ROOT OF HARTFORD, DEAD

Hartford, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Dr. Joseph E. Root, a prominent physician and surgeon in this city, more than 50 years, noted orthopedist, big game hunter in Alaska, died at his home on Farmington avenue last night.

In August, he ate a toad-stool thinking it was a mushroom and had been confined to his home since that time.

He was born in Greenwich, Massachusetts, March 4, 1854, and came from colonial ancestry. An ancestor, John Haynes was one of the first settlers of Hartford.

He leaves his wife, a daughter and two brothers. The funeral will be held at the Immanuel Congregational church Thursday at 2:30 p. m.

SUICIDE ON STEAMER; NEWS IS KEPT SECRET

New York, Dec. 18.—(AP)—The steamer American Farmer docked today with the body of Peter Rogers, former bronze manufacturer, who was found dead in his state-room last Wednesday with a revolver near his hand and a wound in his head.

Capt. William B. Oakley and Purser Charles H. Rauth, who had held an inquest aboard ship, recorded the death as suicide.

Rogers was about 58 years old and lived in New York City. His widow is said to be in Paris with a four-year-old daughter and is expected to return to New York next week.

Rogers left no notes to give a clue to his death. Apparently no one heard the shot.

The death was kept secret from the other passengers and they did not learn of it until the vessel docked.

Edward F. Kenney a brother of William F. Kenney, backer of Alfred E. Smith in the 1928 presidential campaign, was a member of a group which met the body at the pier.

Although most of the work done thus far has been on the salt marshes of Long Island Sound, R. C. Botsford, deputy of the station in charge of mosquito elimination, said 10 inland towns have signified their interest in carrying on such work.

ORIGINAL CHRISTMAS DRAMA ON SUNDAY

Second Congregational Church School Head Writes Play for Program.

An entirely original Christmas drama will be presented at the Second Congregational church, Sunday evening, December 24, at 7 o'clock.

It is entitled, "The Christmas Story" and was written for the coming Christmas Sunday by John C. Owers, superintendent of the church school.

A feature of the program will be the original carols and music to accompany them by Mrs. Ruth D. Allen, wife of the pastor, and the church organist, F. A. Wilbur.

Wesleyan. These carols are to be sung by the augmented vestry choir. Their titles are: "Christmas Day is Here," "From Out of the East There Shone a Star," "Listen, Children, to the Story," and a chant, "Glory to God in the Highest."

Allen has also composed a lullaby, "Cradle Song," which will be sung by the choir during the scene depicting the Child Jesus in the manger.

Mrs. George F. Borst is designing the costumes for the play.

him until instructions were received from London.

The 74-year-old fugitive has been remaining in bed most of the time since he was informed he would have to leave Greece.

Originally, he was told his departure would be expected when his permit would regularly have expired, Dec. 31. On his formal application, an extension was granted to January 31.

Stopped Extradition Greek courts refused to permit the former Chicagoan's extradition to the United States to face embezzlement charges based on the collapse of his far-flung utilities empire.

At the time he was granted an extension, Insull was told his passport would be vised to any country he chose to visit upon leaving Greece. His passport, however, has been revoked by the United States, and it was pointed out he would have to travel on temporary papers.

Nevertheless, Insull was understood to be negotiating in regard to his passport.

(At London, a Reuters (British) News Agency dispatch from Athens said the United States minister to Athens already had received instructions to reinstate Insull's passport if the Greek government requested it.)

State Department officials in Washington indicated no further attempts to obtain Insull's extradition would be made until he leaves Greece.

ST. MARY'S GIRLS HOLD THEIR CHRISTMAS PARTY

Follows Regular Business Meeting—Short Pageant Presented During Night.

Members of the Girls' Friendly Society of St. Mary's church held their annual Christmas party last evening in connection with the regular weekly meeting, at the parish house. The usual devotional service was held in the church at 7:30 with a short Christmas address by Rector Neill. Following the devotional service the members adjourned to the Sunday school room downstairs where a number of lively games were played under the direction of Edith Thrasher, newly elected Branch chairman.

At 8:30 a short Christmas pageant entitled "One Holy Night," was presented by a group of young members, under the direction of Worship Advisor Margaret Stratton. The pageant was in four scenes depicting the shepherds asleep on the hillside; the angel appearing to the shepherds; the manger scene; and the Virgin Mary watching over the Holy Child; and the Wise Men bringing their gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh. The characters were portrayed as follows:

Reader, Marion Hooks; Shepherds, Teresa Britton, Margaret Smith, Ruth Britton, Guard, Nora Scott; Angel, Valette Turner; Virgin Mary, Mary McCaughy; Wise Men, Ruth Britton, Teresa Britton, Peggy Smith.

During the entire pageant Christmas hymns and carols were sung by Mary Law and Evelyn Carlson, accompanied by Violet Madden.

The members were invited downstairs where the Christmas tree, consisting of candle salad and rolls, tea, pop-corn balls, and a large Christmas fruit cake, were served by the committee. Gifts were then distributed to the members from their "mystery friend," with Jean McBride and Dorothy Russell taking the place of Santa Claus. A box of gifts was also prepared to be sent to Celia Nelson who is working in the mission field.

The party was in charge of Association Florence Madden, assisted by Gertrude Lidon and Helen Crawford. All present agreed that it was one of the most enjoyable evenings of the year. Rev. and Mrs. J. Stuart Neill were the guests of the evening.

Monday is Christmas Day there will be no meeting of the society. The next meeting will take place on Monday evening, January 1, 1934.

national institution for world-wide peace. I have to pay tribute to all America which went on record as supporting the League of Nations in its efforts to settle the Chaco conflict.

Other leaders dealt upon the significance of the Chaco armistice as a consolidation of world peace. They spoke particularly of the usefulness of the anti-war pact advanced by Argentina and Paraguay and of the great co-operative support of the United States.

The opinion was expressed that Latin America had shown Europe that the method of consolidation against war can be followed and that this path might be applied to the problem of disarmament.

RELIGIOUS LEADER DIES

Lhasa, Tibet, Dec. 18.—(AP)—The Dalai Lama, or supreme religious ruler of Tibet, died Sunday at the age of 60, it was announced today.

He wielded supreme civil and religious power in the country, and thus it was to him that three Englishmen had to apply for permission to fly over Mt. Everest, "Home of the Gods," last spring.

It was only after the fliers, the Marquis of Clydesdale, Col. V. Stewart Blacker and Flight Lieutenant D. F. McIntyre, had assured the Dalai Lama that they would rise high enough over Everest not to disturb the gods in their dwelling place that His Holiness gave permission.

CHRISTMAS CAROLS FOR SHUT-INS AGAIN

Emanuel Lutheran Choirs to Visit Homes of Sick During Yuletide.

Following a custom of several years standing, the choir of the Emanuel Lutheran church will sing Christmas carols at the hospital and almshouse and at the homes of shut-ins. In spite of the home music that is brought over the air by radio at Christmas, it is refreshing to hear of choruses and choirs willing to give of their time to bring a personal greeting to those who do not have the opportunity to attend service at church, and who appreciate this friendly visit of the choir at Yuletide.

The choir of Emanuel will appreciate the names of those who would enjoy having the carolers visit their homes and these names should be turned over to Miss Eva M. Johnson at the hospital this week.

DEPOSITORS SAY SETUP AGAINST THEM IN SUIT

Bridgeport, Dec. 19.—(AP)—John T. McNamara, member of the depositors committee of the Commercial Bank and Trust Company, charged today that a "set up" existed which made it the duty of the $20,000 fee of Attorney George N. Foster, received for the closed Commercial and American Bank and Trust Company, to sue the depositors.

"The legal profession preaches its inability to serve the depositors militantly and aggressively as counsel at the hearing on Foster's $20,000 fee in view of this fact."

Representatives of the depositors' committee of the two closed banks, headed by Mr. McNamara, Henry T. McCathorn and James J. Leon, conferred with Attorney Foster yesterday afternoon in an effort to determine the basis upon which the receiver based his fee. Foster refused to recede from his stand and pointed out to the committee that the $20,000 he is demanding is but a "preliminary fee."

ADDISON

A gray squirrel helped out on the tobacco stripping this fall by starting work about October 1, according to the evidence in a tobacco shed yesterday, when a workman removed a lot of tobacco next to the eaves of the southwest corner of a shed on Hebron avenue. A large squirrel nest made entirely of tobacco leaves tumbled to the ground. They were not chewed up, but the whole leaves were cleverly used in making a comfortable bed.

The UNKNOWN BLOND

By Louis L. BROOKMAN
Copyright 1933 by Louis L. Brookman

BEGIN HERE TODAY
DAVID BANNISTER undertakes to find out who killed TRACY KING, orchestra leader. Bannister is an author and former newspaper man. He works on the murder case with GAINNEY, star reporter on the Post.

Among those suspected are JULIET FRANCE, blond, pretty and known to have visited King shortly before his death; HERMAN SCURLACH who wrote King a threatening letter; and JOE PARROTT, down-and-out vaudeville actor. It is also known that MELVINA HOLLISTER, middle-aged spinster had quarreled with King recently. AL DRUGAN, friend of King's, is found dead in a wrecked automobile.

Bannister persuades the police chief to let Juliet come to his aunt's home, ostensibly as a guest, on the theory that if the girl believes herself free they can learn more about her.

Parrott is located in St. Louis and a detective sent to bring him back.

DAISY CONNOR, maid in the Coleman home, tells Gainney she knows something about the murder. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXV
Apparently Daisy Connor was unconscious of the dramatic effect of her words.

"I remember," she said, "because Mrs. Coleman and I were the only ones in the house. Mr. Coleman had driven off in his car right after dinner. Mrs. Coleman was in her bedroom. I was sitting on the telephone rang about eight o'clock I answered it."

"It was a woman's voice on the phone. She wanted to know if Parker Coleman was there and I said no, he wasn't. Then she said, 'If he comes, in soon will you tell him Denise Lang called?'"

"I said, yes, I'd tell him. I went back to my room and looked at that picture of Tracy King. I've got it in a silver frame I bought at Herbst's. Somehow I couldn't see how a girl who was going to marry Tracy King could be wasting time on the telephone. Not, of course, that Mr. Coleman isn't nice enough—only he's nothing like Tracy King!"

"After a while I picked up the book I'd been reading and went on with it. It must have been close to nine o'clock when the telephone rang again and I went down and answered it. It was Denise Lang again—I've heard her voice often enough to know! Is Parker Coleman there?" she asked and I said no, he wasn't. Then she said, 'If he comes, in soon will you tell him Denise Lang called?'"

"Well, next morning when I saw the papers and read what had happened to poor Mr. King I nearly cried my eyes out. I couldn't think of anything except that I'd never seen him again or hear him sing those beautiful songs. For almost a year I haven't missed a Friday day afternoon at the State—except once last winter when I had the flu."

Bannister was growing restless. "But what has all this to do—?" he began.

Daisy Connor checked him. "Don't you see?" she asked. "I've told you Denise Lang telephoned to Parker Coleman twice that evening. Between eight and nine o'clock. Why did she want to say next day he was in Tremont? That's what she said when she was in the paper myself. She turned to Gainney. "You wrote it, didn't you?"

"Yes," Gainney admitted, "I did. Don't you remember, Bannister? You were there. She told us Parker Coleman came to see her. Said he was an old friend and that he'd been out of town."

"That part of it was right," the maid told them. "It was late in the afternoon when he got home. He came in a taxi and had his traveling bag with him. He'd been away three or four days—some kind of a business trip, his mother said."

"You're positive it was Miss Lang who called the second time?" Bannister asked.

Daisy Connor nodded her head emphatically. "I couldn't have been mistaken about it," she said. "It was the same voice I heard before. And I've heard it plenty of other times. It was Denise Lang all right."

Gainney drew a small square on a sheet of copy paper and filled it with black marks. Then he turned at Bannister and said, "Well—?"

The other shook his head. "I can't make it out. Coleman certainly wasn't at her home if Miss Lang telephoned to him. But why would she want to tell us a thing like that? I can't see any reason for it."

Daisy Connor said, "Humph!" in a tone filled with disgust.

"What do you think about it, Miss Connor?" Gainney asked quickly.

"I'm not saying what I think," the maid said. "I've told you what happened. You can't see any reason for it. It was the same voice I heard before. And I've heard it plenty of other times. It was Denise Lang all right."

"—DESS A LITTLE DOLLY, SANTA!"

Jovial old Santa has an attentive ear for every youngster's wishes, but he'll never get around unless he's given a lot of help. Your thoughtfulness will brighten Christmas for some boy or girl who might otherwise be overlooked.

haven't any way to know for sure," she admitted, "but I think it was about an hour later. I didn't look at the clock, so of course I couldn't absolutely swear to it—"

It was as near an explicit answer as they could get. Gainney asked several other questions. Then suddenly Daisy Connor got to her feet.

"My land!" she exclaimed. "Look at what time it's getting to be! I'd no idea it was so late! I've got to hurry!"

She stood, nervously fastening the buttons of her coat. Gainney was on his feet, too. "I'm glad you came in, Miss Connor," he said. "This may mean a lot. There's no knowing how much, of course, but it's bound to help. We've got to find out everything we can. The police are doing their part—"

The maid's sharp exclamation stopped him. "Oh!" she said, "you aren't going to tell the police what I've told you, are you?"

"I should think they should know it!" Miss Connor shook her head wildly. "You mustn't tell them," she said. "If you do I'll lose my job. I just know it will! Mrs. Coleman will find out about it and she'll fire me! Oh, please don't say anything to the police!"

"Well, all right," Gainney agreed, "if that's the way you feel about it, although I don't see what harm it could do. But suppose I want to get in touch with you some time. How can I reach you?"

She gave him a telephone number and told him when to call. Then with a last glance at the clock, she hurried away.

Gainney leaned back in his chair and looked at Bannister. "And that's that!" he said. "What do you think of it?"

"Interesting," Bannister told him. "There are thousands of 'em! But what of that? I was just thinking about it."

"Oh, nothing. I was just thinking about it."

Gainney sat up straighter. "Look here," he said. "I think she was telling the truth. You should have seen her. I had to keep at her for 10 minutes before I could get her to say anything! Now if it is the truth what's the rest of it?"

"I should say," Bannister told him, "it means the rich and beautiful Denise Lang was going to some pains to plant an alibi."

"Exactly! But why? She didn't need an alibi."

"Maybe it wasn't for herself." Gainney's look was uncomprehending. "Then he said slowly, 'You mean—Coleman?'"

Bannister nodded. "Could be, couldn't it?"

"Coleman!" Gainney repeated. "Say, what are you getting at? You don't think—?"

"I didn't say I think Coleman shot Tracy King," Bannister went on quickly. "I only said that if Denise Lang was trying to plant an alibi it must have been for Coleman or herself. I don't see why either of them has to need an alibi. Neither one has been accused of anything. But she told us Coleman was at her home between eight and nine o'clock. If it's true she tried to reach him by telephone at that time of course he wasn't there. Just another little tangle in a mix-up that doesn't seem to have any beginning or ending."

"It's too much for me," Gainney said heavily. "Come on—let's get out of here."

At 2:30 that afternoon Bannister slipped his key into the front door of his aunt's white cottage and turned the latch. He had no excuse for going home so early except that he was simply out of sorts. He couldn't see any sense in hanging around the office or chinning with McNeal or the other detectives. He was getting anything done. His mind was a hodge-podge of

Organizing Ability of Women Assures United Front in Combatting Crime—Their Vote Carries Power

By Helen Welshimer.

Men are supposed to kill dragons and fight giants. That has been the rule ever since David slew Goliath. Women are supposed to tell them how brave they are so they will feel exhilarated and go out and kill more giants so they will get more praise.

We have missed up somewhere. Maybe we didn't hand out enough sweet adjectives. Anyway, men have fallen down on their job. Gangsters are as numerous as bookkeepers today and there are almost as many cases of kidnaping as there are of appendicitis.

Miss Lena Madeline Phillips, speaking for the National Council of Women, of which she is president, suggests that women organize in order to combat crime. It is Ladies' Choice now.

It isn't at all a bad idea. Women love clubs. They have banded themselves together to play bridge from two to five every other Tuesday afternoon, to quit all day Thursday, to read papers devoted to such subjects as whether or not the farmers should lobby or picket and why Tompkins conceived a suppressed desire to be a necktie on his lady's bosom in his love lyrics.

Women braved the prairie wilderness with their husbands when they trekked toward a new world. It is just as important that we fight our way to a new peace today.

It is true, of course, that feminine hands have patched men's armor always as they prepared for conflict. They know all the weak places in their lords' suits of mail. They understand why their husbands, at times, enter this way or that way. But an army of women, with new enthusiasm, protected by that slight sense of chivalry that even a gangster feels toward women, and further aided by the surprise of those law-breakers who never thought a woman could or would combat them, could make them come to terms.

We have asked for the right to vote, to hold offices, to earn our own living. It is high time that we step into the ranks and do our share of the fighting against the evils of organized gangland. It might be fun.

ideas and notions that refused to jibe. Bannister knew that when such a mood came on there was nothing to do but wait for it to pass.

The hallway seemed dark as he stepped inside. Then, becoming accustomed to the light, he saw that the afternoon mail was laid out on the table. There was a letter addressed to him and Bannister picked it up.

4 SHOPPING DAYS TO CHRISTMAS

FOR YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Berton
STYLING BY BEA SERVICE, INC.

A good many of us have the unpleasant habit of saving up the needs of the family until Christmas tide.

Bob needs underwear, Susan a coat, Aunt Mary a carpet sweeper and Dad a pair of galoshes. We ourselves have been wanting new shades for the bedroom and have hinted darkly for a month that if anybody buys them to be sure they match the rest of the house.

Far be it from me to scorn these necessities. It is a grand and glorious feeling to know that each member of the family just what WE think he needs.

Days for Practical Giving But why not set aside some other day for the drab goodness of replacement? Why not the Fourth of July or Labor Day? Why pick on Christmas, the love-liest day in the year, to express ourselves in egg beaters and chest warmers?

Of course it does so happen that older people often choose the more practical gift. Therefore as everybody must be happy on Christmas Day it doesn't really matter, I suppose, whether the messengers of the magic of good will and love is prosaic or poetical. That each one is pleased and happy is the big thing.

But children don't feel this way. They are not practical. They want their gifts to carry of magic of fairyland, of the too-good-to-be-true variety.

Being what they are I don't think any mother needs to feel at all guilty in spending money on the whimsical. Order the underwear or whatever you feel you must get out of your own system, but present it on the 24th or 26th of December and keep a little out for the 28th to be foolish with. It isn't the value of gifts that counts with children so much as the unusual. The present that can be had most any work day is not the thrillier that a gay token or toy is.

Usual Gifts Have Place It is hard to describe the spirit of Christmas, so many things conspire together to make it a season Birthday in the world to begin with. From this many other things emanate, hope first of all, the temporary suspensions of gloom and worry, a warm feeling of love and good will to everybody, gratitude for life and a symbolic looking forward to a newer and better life.

It is often required of an applicant for a position that she be "able to meet the public." This means she must possess the tact and the patience to deal with all sorts of persons at their worst, and not lose business for her employers. It is a tough assignment.

In some businesses a "receptionist" is kept busy all day in the outer office, routing callers to the right persons, arranging appointments and discouraging those whose reasons for "crashing the gate" seem insufficient. The other day for half an hour I watched one of these girls in action. She had her "line" down in great shape. And used her head every minute. At least thirty-five men and women came to her desk "while I was there, yet she told me it was nothing to the previous day's rush.

Regular callers on any of the officials of her firm she greeted at once pleasantly, by name. She kept track of a dozen men waiting in the reception room, knew for whom each had asked, and as fast as a caller came out from the inner regions, she sent in the one next in line for that particular executive. Almost invariably the man thanked her as they went past her desk, showing that they appreciated her intelligent assistance.

Putting Questions to the Caller When a new face appeared before her, this competent young receptionist put it down through his eyes. "Your name, please? Whom do you wish to see? What company do you represent? About what do you wish to see Mr. —?" When the answers to these questions failed to convince her that the man's business warranted his admittance, she had a clever way of getting rid of him. She would go through the motions of telephoning the person for whom the visitor asked, telling him who was outside and something of what he wanted. Then, after a moment's wait, she would turn to the caller and say, "Mr. Blank would like you to write him a letter telling him about your proposition." It was done so amiably, no one could resent the turn-down. Women who "meet the public" as office nurses for doctors and dentists, or as counter attendants in public utility companies, have slightly different problems, but they need the same qualities of disposition as the out-and-out receptionist. In doctor's offices the ability to call patients by name after the first visit and to appear more to little favors for them, such as getting them into the private office promptly when they are in a hurry, creates a feeling of "good will."

Dealing With Public in Department Store There's no meager job on earth than being on the exchange desk of a department store, for there one sees the unreasonable, and often the dishonest, side of the shopping public. The saving grace, however, is that, since the stores have almost unanimously adopted the policy that "the customer is always right," the employee does not have to investigate Mrs. Jones' statement that she did not wear the somewhat soiled gown she is returning. One eastern store is said to have in charge of this desk a stone-deaf woman, who nods and smiles at each receipt of dissatisfaction, and agrees to make everything right.

Saleswomen in department stores are so constantly "meeting the public" that some of them seem rather "fed up" with it, and prefer concentrating on their own affairs and interests. In too many stores customers are kept waiting while a conversation about what "he said" and "I said to him" is carried on by two or more salesgirls. Eventually such a customer either asks for someone to wait on her, or walks out. In either case she thinks less of that store thereafter because of the girl's inattention, and it may be a long time before she returns.

Tact, Courtesy, Patience, Memory, Cheerfulness—these good qualities should be present at the christening of every girl whose destiny it will be to "meet the public."

"In a dozen ways those boys sorted for virtue. It was proof they were taking my talks seriously. They were judging the movies like censors, and not myself by the movies."

In this narrative I think that any mothers and teachers will find encouragement. Example and precept do untold good. And I believe that movie producers know this too, that good influence at home and school is the decidedly essential thing and that movies are not the prime factors in daily conduct we make them out to be.

CHRISTMAS TREES SCARCE IN THE MIDDLE WEST
Cincinnati, Dec. 18.—(AP)—Unless a lot more Christmas trees can be shipped here in a hurry, it's going to cost dad plenty to give the kids a tree.

Ordinarily it takes 30 carloads of the green decorations for the yuletide festivities of Cincinnati. Jobbers hesitated to order this year because their orders were slow, and only five carloads have been received. Then the local orders speeded up.

Now prices are ranging from 75 cents for the flower pot kind and $10 to $15 for sizes up to 12 feet to as high as $50 for the 25-foot kind. Dealers, who declare wholesale prices have gone up 25 per cent, sent rush calls to Detroit, Pittsburgh, Toledo and Cleveland, but have little hope of catching up with demand.

DESPONDENT KILLS SELF
New London, Dec. 18.—(AP)—Roger W. Jukes, 55, committed suicide this morning at his home, 115 Hoard street, by inhaling illuminating gas. He placed the tube from a gas jet in his mouth, stretched out on the floor with a blanket over his head and was dead when found by his wife. Besides his widow Jukes is survived by a son, Albert. His inability to find employment had caused Jukes to become depressed, according to statements given to the police by Mrs. Jukes.

Secretary Must Be Tactful And Patient With Callers

MOST BALDNESS IS DUE TO HEREDITARY FAULT

If Lack of Hair on Head is in the Family, say Authorities, There's No "Restorer That Will Bring It Back."

By DR. MORRIS FISHER, Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

The hair on your head, or the lack of it, is subject more to hereditary factors than to any other cause, medical examiners are convinced. If there has been a tendency to baldness in your family, it's almost a certainty you won't escape being bald.

For the same reason, some persons develop patches of gray hair, which come in all members of the same family in certain spots on the head. And some get gray earlier than others.

If you tend to become bald, therefore, and your father and grandfathers were bald, think of this before trying to regain your hair with some so-called "hair restorer." It just can't be done.

Hair does not tend to fall out of the head of a woman, whereas in men hereditary baldness is exceedingly common. Men are, therefore, particularly easy victims for all sorts of lotions, pastes, salves, lights, washes, and wricks claimed to be valuable in returning hair to its growth, but later, because of hereditary influence, deficient.

So far as is known today there is no preparation of any kind that is of special virtue in restoring the hair, when hereditary factors have caused its disappearance.

Two Pittsburgh physicians recently made a study of a family in which the father had a streak of gray hair at one spot on the back of skin over pigmentation. There were two daughters in the family, one aged five and the other four. At this very early age each of the children developed a spot of gray in the hair of the head and had developed patches of skin without pigment.

For years it has been thought that a sudden fright might produce grayness of the hair. It has been well recognized that nervous manifestations of one type or another also might be associated with falling of the hair from the head.

Usual length of time from the shock to the loss of hair may be anywhere from a few days to a few weeks.

Another physician recently reported a case in which a woman, 46 years old, had a serious fall during an epileptic fit. Four months after this fall the hair suddenly began to come out of her head, beginning at the top and around the temples, and within a few days her head was completely bald.

Fortunately, this type of baldness usually is not permanent. As the patient recovers his equilibrium, particularly if he is put to bed and permitted to lie quietly and is well fed, and if he is freed from any surrounding circumstances which might increase his nervousness, the hair returns rapidly.

This relationship of the nervous system to the hair's growth, quality, and distribution is one of the reasons for the difficulty of evaluating satisfactorily any form of treatment applied to the hair.

It seems to be well established that the glands of the body are associated definitely in their functions with growth of hair. Nevertheless, these relationships have not been defined exactly.

It becomes necessary, therefore, to discount the possibility of glandular changes and the possibility of nervous influence in testing any remedy as to its effects on the growth of the hair.

SENSE and NONSENSE

CHRISTMAS!!!
 Christmas ain't a season,
 Christmas ain't a day,
 Christmas ain't a reason
 For giving things away;
 Christmas ain't a buying
 Or selling in the mart,
 Christmas is a happiness—
 And YOU'RE the biggest part!

A little, weak-looking man had applied to the foreman of a stevedore gang for a job. He was insistent, so finally the foreman put him to work leading 300-pound saws in the hold of the ship. All went well for awhile, but suddenly a splash was heard and somebody cried for help. Running to the gangplank the foreman looked over the side and saw the little man he had hired bobbing up and down in the water. Foreman (shouting to the little man)—What's the matter, shorty, can't you swim?
 Little Man—Sure, I can swim all right but if you don't throw me a rope, I'll have to drop this anvil.

We have heard that a certain fireman always shaves just before he goes to bed for fear there may be a fire in the fashionable section of town.
 Boss—What is this item of $3 you have put down for overhead expenses?
 Salesman—Oh, that was an umbrella I bought one day when it was raining.

Small town movies have one advantage. The knees rubber won't risk it where everybody knows him.

Stenographer—Wonder why the boss keeps that secretary; she can't spell.
 Bookkeeper—No; casting a spell is her strong point.

Some office seekers are satisfied to stand on their record while others prefer jumping on the other fellow's.

Judge—You say the officer arrested you while you were quietly minding your own business?
 Prisoner—Yes, your Honor.

Judge—You were quietly attending to your own business, making no noise or disturbance of any kind?
 Prisoner—None whatever, your Honor.

Judge—What is your business?
 Prisoner—I'm a burglar.

Occasionally, every business man finds himself in situations from which only good luck can extricate him.

We'd never want to go back to tallow candles, whiskers, petticoats and mud roads. But we certainly could use a little old-fashioned honesty if we had it today.

Explorer—Now, don't be frightened. Just smile a little at the little black box. It's only a camera, it won't hurt you.
 Ducky Belle—Don't worry, Boss. I've played the lead in two films in the last six months.

JUST BITS—Any woman that is worse than she is painted is hardy worth saving. . . . The hand that rocks the cradle is just as liable to rock the country. . . . These are great days for judges to show what they are made of. . . . Bank robbers seem to get off twice as easy as fellows who marry for money. . . . Why does a prescription always cost at least 75 cents regardless of what is in it? . . . It takes a mighty smart fellow to succeed with a good education. . . . It's a wonder honesty don't pay better considering all the competition it's up against. . . . Most so-called contentment is due to general worthlessness. . . . Next to battleships nothing gets out of date as quick as bridegrooms. . . . Every dog has its day, and some of them have their limousines and chauffeurs. . . . One touch of scandal makes the whole world chin. . . . The school of experience is highly co-educational. . . . Kisses are generally appraised at their face value. . . . More-wild cats are seen in automobiles than on the ground.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

Iner C. Nelson, Seattle engineer who laid out the city's airport won his pilot's license five years later.
 Edmond Gedehaux has completed 33 years' service as San Francisco's recorder.
 Included in gifts granted to Stanford university was one of 60 pounds of pure su, as Mrs. Bertha M. Gray claims she has never missed voting in 40 years. The ballot box has been installed in her front room in Salt Lake City, Utah, at every election during the past two decades.
 A total of 311 eggs in 50 weeks is the record of a New Hampshire red pullet owned by E. N. Larrabee of Peterborough, N. H.
 A sail for hatching should be 9 to 12 months old and weigh from 500 to 800 pounds, Texas A. and M. College advises.

Feeding tobacco to chickens to control internal parasites has proved successful at Pennsylvania State college.
 Ranchers controlling more than half of Nevada's wheat acreage have signed federal production limitation contracts.
 Only sixty per cent of the students at the University of Miami are residents of Florida.
