ROOSEVELT IN MESSAGE HITS FINANCE CRIMES

White House Secret Service was in charge.

Custom called for President Roosevelt to enter the south door to the Capitol, there to be met by Sergeant at Arms Kenneth Romney...

Entrance into the House had to wait until the Senators were seated. Vice-President Garner, who as Speaker in the last Congress presided over the House...

Hours before time for the President to arrive from the White House, hundreds of people had gathered in the lower corridors and outside the House side of the Capitol.

Barricades were placed in the corridors leading to the galleries. Only those having reserved seats were allowed to pass the barriers.

Speaker Rainey called the House to order promptly at 12 o'clock with a rap of his gavel.

A half hour before time for the assembly, House members gathered on the floor of the chamber, a "ok hands, and back slapped each other. They created a regular din.

The ramp from the well of the House to the rostrum was covered with a dark purple cloth.

Representative Mary T. Norton (D., N. Y.) wearing a black suit, and on her left shoulder a star with Mrs. Isabella Greenway (D., Ariz.), present to take her oath of office.

A special row of chairs was placed in the well for the Cabinet and Supreme Court members.

Senate Called to Order At the other end of the Capitol, Vice President Garner called the Senate to order at the same time the House convened.

The galleries were nearly filled, despite most of the opening day crowds concentrated on the House side for the joint session.

Before the gavel fell, Democrats and Republicans greeted each other after the long recess.

Form: Senator Brookhart of Iowa was among the non-members on the floor.

Senator Thomas (D., Okla.), an inflation leader, appeared in morning dress, setting off strikingly his wavy white hair.

Senators Fletcher (D., Fla.), next to the oldest in point of service, Carey (R., Wyo.) and McGill (D., Kans.), also wore morning dress.

Ferdinand Pecora, banking committee investigator, occupied a seat in the members' gallery.

The Rev. Z. Barney A. Phillips, Senate chaplain, offered prayer, asking that the President and the Congress "be graced with the wisdom of God and directed through the tangled maze of time."

The Rev. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain, delivered the opening prayer on the House side while the members stood as well as the spectators in the galleries.

Every seat in the galleries was taken, while scores of people sat on the steps.

Man: of the members wore formal morning clothes.

Democrat, elected in the fall to the unexpired term of former Senator Swanson.

The House appointed a special committee to notify the President that it was in session, but a telephone did the work.

Instead of traveling the mile to the White House, the committee had a clerk telephone its message that the House was in session and ready for business.

The Speaker went on the floor and shook hands with many of the members.

Present Credentials Senator Cutting presented the credentials of Senator-Designate Carl A. Hatch, Democrat, to succeed Bratton; Senator Austin presented those of Senator-Designate Ernest W. Gibson, Republican, to succeed the late Senator Dale; and Senator Carey offered certification of appointment of Joseph C. O'Mahoney, Democrat, to succeed the late Senator Kendrick.

Accompanied by their colleagues, Byrd, Hatch, Gibson and O'Mahoney took the oath.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, offered a resolution for appointment of a committee to notify the President that the Senate had obtained a quorum.

Robinson and Senator McNary, of Oregon, minority chief, were appointed.

Other routine resolutions notified the House the Senate was in session and fixed the hour of noon for daily meetings.

The Senate recessed at 12:19 p. m. to await the notification of the President.

Walking with his son, James, the President proceeded to the Speaker's office just off the House floor.

The presidential party was transported to the Capitol in half a dozen cars.

Those in Party In the group were Mrs. Roosevelt, in the group were Mrs. Roosevelt, the President's daughter, Mrs. Anna Curtis Dall, and her two little children, "Bettie" and "Bussie," dressed in blue hats and coats; John, the youngest son of the President; Judge and Mrs. Dowd of Salamanca, N. Y., and their family; Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Reserve Administrator; and Mr. Roosevelt's secretaries, Marvin H. McIntyre and Stephen T. Early.

A motorcycle escort guided the presidential party briskly along Pennsylvania avenue and all along the way there was applause from the bystanders.

In Speaker Rainey's room the President was joined by his Cabinet.

Mrs. Roosevelt and her party arrived in the Chief Executive's gallery at 1:30 p. m. She was applauded by the members.

Meanwhile the Senate convened in its own chamber and formed a double line for the march to the House.

Chesley W. Jurney, sergeant-at-arms, and Edwin A. Halsey, secretary, headed the procession, followed by the President and two party leaders, Robinson and McNary.

The march was through what Capitol guides call the "longest corridor in the world."

After the Senate arrived and the members took their seats, Vice President Garner sat beside Speaker Rainey, who resided.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, took a Republican seat, and Senator McNary of Oregon, Republican leader, sat on the Democratic side.

The House applauded as Garner took his position beside Speaker Rainey.

CONGRESSIONAL CHUCKLES. Washington, Jan. 3.—(AP)—Late arriving Republican house members dashed today like tardy school boys for the office of their leader, Representative Small of New York, and for a reason.

They heard he was carefully checking the names on a list of the 113 house Republicans as the members walked in to report for the start of a new congress and none wanted to take a chance on being the last listed.

Senator Huey P. Long, sartorially elegant and with a sally for virtually every one who accosted him, was addressed by a newspaperman as he paraded down a corridor, with a young man following three strides behind.

"What were you doing in Senator Carey's office," was the first question. "Oh, he asked me to give this Yale student some advice. He sent him to the right man, didn't he?"

Senator Borah (R., Idaho) wants a horse. Newspapers told the nation. Readers were willing to assist.

When newspapermen found the Idahoan the first question was: "Have you got a horse yet?" "No," was the reply, "but you fellows certainly have caused me a lot of trouble. I've had applications from everywhere offering thoroughbreds as cheap as $1,000."

AMID COURT DECISIONS Washington, Jan. 3.—(AP)—Amid the Congress-opening activity which prevailed on both sides of the Capitol today, a little group of men sat in their offices between the Senate and House quietly making decisions which may become historic.

They were the members of the Supreme Court, which meets next Monday to hand down decisions after the Christmas recess.

At that time, it is expected to say what it thinks of emergency legislation aimed to save homes sold under mortgages by extending the time in which owners may recover title to them.

It also may decide whether the Federal government and many states are within the constitution in fixing minimum prices to consumers of milk to aid the dairy industry.

The new Supreme Court building near the Capitol is expected to be completed before the next regular session of Congress.

TICKETS VERY SCARCE Washington, Jan. 3.—(AP)—Tickets to the opening session of Congress became so scarce that even Alice Roosevelt Longworth, the veteran gallery fan, had to scurry around at the last minute for a card.

She was finally admitted through Mrs. Henry T. Rainey, the Speaker's wife, who said she could think of nothing more appropriate than to let the Speaker's wife share her TRADITION BROKEN Washington, Jan. 3.—(AP)—President Roosevelt summoned his official family today for company on his visit to the Capitol.

Then he arranged to break another tradition of long standing. Dispensing with the customary formal notification by a Congressional committee that Congress has convened, a telephone call to the White House was all deemed necessary to advise Mr. Roosevelt and his assembled Cabinet that the Senate and House awaited his message.

An hour after they had pulled away the big vessel burst into flames. The fuel tanks exploded and the Catherine burned to the water's edge. Today she had slipped beneath the surface.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Unintentional Remarks Leave Impress on Child's Memory. "The whole trouble with Sam's mother," said Mrs. Smith, "is that she couldn't trust her boy. He'd be a far better son to her if he felt she trusted him more."

"Do you trust me?" asked Bert suddenly. "Of course I do and you know it. Don't be silly, Bert. I'd trust you anywhere in the world. Why do you ask such a question?"

"Because once—" Bert marked his book with a finger and gazed out at the snow. "Oh, just because."

"Don't go imagining things now. You've always told me the truth and you always will. It never occurs to me to doubt what you tell me."

Bert said, "Not any more, I guess."

A Misunderstanding "What's gotten into you? You make me feel as though—why honey dear, there isn't a thing I've ever done or said, is there, that made you feel I wasn't sure about you?"

"That time I went out with Timmy on his bob-sled and we all went over to Miggs' Hill after you'd told me not to do either—do you remember that time?"

"When was that? Last winter? Funny, I don't remember a thing about it."

Bert looked at his mother with astonished disbelief. "It was when I was in 6A at school. Now don't you remember? I went anyway and you nearly had a fit. You said one thing was certain, you'd never trust me again a single day as long as I lived."

"Oh, Bert, it isn't true. I never said that. You're getting it all mixed, surely. I don't remember any Timmy or his bob-sled or any Miggs' Hill when you were in 6A. And I certainly don't remember saying I'd never trust my son again. I don't think I did. I never did. Let's see—that was three or four years ago."

Children Remember "It's just like I said. I felt bad. Ever since that time, mom, I've kinda felt maybe you couldn't be just sure when I promised anything. I always felt you were thinking of that day. Tell me, mom, did you really forget?"

"Forget? Why, silly, I probably forgot it next day. I don't believe it happened at all. When was that?"

KEEP YOUR SHOP FREE FROM FLYING DUST

Inhaling Fine Particles of Stone or Other Materials Causes Serious Lung Disease That May Lead to Tuberculosis.

By DR. MORRIS FISHER, Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

If you happen to be working in a shop where a great deal of dust is in the air, you should see that all possible precautions are taken to keep from inhaling that dust.

Doctors have known, for centuries, that dust is one of the primary causes of lung disease—particularly tuberculosis.

One of the worst types of dust diseases, that leads to tuberculosis, is silicosis, caused by breathing in silica dust. There also is asbestosis, from breathing in asbestos dust; anthracosis, from breathing in coal dust; and siderosis, from inhaling iron dust.

Silicosis is known, popularly, as miner's consumption, or potter's asthma, or stone mason's phthisis, according to whether it is found among workers in mines, in potteries, or in stone.

Silica is used in all sorts of scouring and polishing, and in sandpaper grinding. It is found in the development of fertilizer and insecticides, as a filler in rubber, in manufacture of glass, in manufacture of various insulating materials, and in grinding of lenses.

Naturally, the amount of dust developed and inhaled depends on the nature of the industry concerned, and the various measures taken to prevent inhaling of dust by the worker.

When dust containing silica is inhaled it produces fibrous changes in the lung. As these fibrous changes occur, resistance of the lung breaks down in some manner, so that the lung with silicosis is more likely to become tuberculous than the normal.

In an earlier day it was necessary to depend wholly on the physical examination and on the history of the case to determine presence of this disease; but with development of the X-ray, it is possible to make a positive diagnosis without difficulty.

The patient with silicosis who develops tuberculosis has a much more difficult time in recovering than one who has not silicosis, and in many instances this form of tuberculosis is fatal.

A person working in an industry where silica is involved should have protection against its dangers. Dust-producing operations should be housed in special departments, and in these departments, wherever possible, effective exhaust ventilation should be used, to remove as much dust as possible.

Water used in the places where the dust develops is, of course, helpful in keeping dust down. In some types of work, it may be possible to substitute other materials for silica.

For individuals, various types of air masks and respirators have been developed, to filter the dust. Use of silica now is so widespread in industry that it demands special consideration to protect health of workers.

AS TO STABILIZATION Washington, Jan. 3.—(AP)—President Roosevelt told Congress today internal conditions in other countries made it impossible for international currency stabilization "based on permanent and worldwide objectives" at this time. Long Way Off It was amplified to reporters at the White House before he went to the Capitol that Mr. Roosevelt regards permanent currency stabilization as a long way off. Mr. Roosevelt described his managed currency program as aimed at strengthening the financial structure and bringing about eventually "a medium of exchange which will have over the years less variable purchasing and debt paying power for our people." Meanwhile, it was asserted Mr. Roosevelt feels that there are a good many nations whose entire financial set-up are so weak and their budgets so unbalanced that it is impossible for those nations to do anything in the way of worldwide currency stabilization. The gold purchase program continued as stocks of the metal piled up to the RFC's account. Today's price was $84.00 an ounce, the sixteenth successive time this offer has been made for newly-mined domestic metal and the peak reached after a gradual increase since October 26 from the first figure of $81.50. CHURCH TO STAGE
BIBLICAL DRAMA

"The Challenge of the Cross" to Be Presented in North Methodist.

The Cecilia club will present the Biblical drama, "The Challenge of the Cross," Sunday evening at 7 o'clock at the North Methodist church, and at the close of the play the tableau, "The Old Rugged Cross," will be given. The program will be identical with that given Sunday evening, August 20 last, at the Willimantic campground. Thomas Maxwell and Sidney Strickland constructed and painted the scenery which represents Jerusalem with the hills of Judea in the background. Swinging gates at the ancient city walls and unusual lighting effects make the scene realistic and impressive. The colorful, flowing robes worn by the principals in the drama will be of the period A. D. 35.

The presentation at the campground was accorded the highest praise by all who witnessed it. The club recently gave a Christmas drama, "The Birth of Christ" at the South Methodist church, and has had much experience in dramatic as well as choral programs, both in this town and elsewhere.

The service Sunday evening will be open to all.

SOVIET BUYING TO QUIET CLAIMS
OF U. S. FIRMS

By STANLEY P. RICHARDSON

Moscow, Jan. 8.—(AP)—American industrial firms which suffered confiscation of their Russian properties after the bolshevik revolution, may be offered as recompense substantial soviet orders, if they are prepared to furnish long term credits, in the opinion of authoritative private circles here.

Official sources refuse to discuss the subject but it is understood that, if these private claims reach the negotiation stage, the soviet government will seek to avoid cash settlements and will favor instead an agreement like the one it reached with the General Electric Company in 1929.

Soviet Russia bought $25,000,000 worth of goods or services from the company over a period of six years, General Electric would consider satisfied its approximately $2,000,000 claim against Moscow for property seized in the nationalization process here.

In return, the soviet government obligated itself to pay a higher than normal interest rate on credits extended by the company. Long term financing was arranged for approximately $4,000,000 yearly for the duration of the agreement.

Up to now, soviet purchasing organizations have not availed themselves of the maximum credit to which the agreement entitled them, total purchases with the agreement only a little more than a year to run having amounted roughly to $11,000,000. This leaves some doubt as to whether Moscow will take advantage of the opportunity to wipe out that particular claim.

Huge Total at Stake
Regardless, however, of whether it buys up the full amount within the specified time, well informed circles here believe that Soviet Russia will attempt to have the General Electric agreement made the pattern for any settlement at which it may arrive with other American companies.

The total amount of private American claims are believed to be in the neighborhood of $300,000,000, with international Harvester and the Singer Sewing Machine Company among the chief claimants.

Preliminary discussions are expected to begin soon after the establishment of the new embassies in Washington and Moscow.

FEAR MAN KILLED SELF

New Britain, Jan. 3.—(AP)—New Haven police were asked today by Mrs. Henry T. Fowler, who lives in the Midvale section of Southington, to watch for her husband who left home this morning after writing a note that he intended to commit suicide. She is said to have given the New Haven police three addresses where he might be found.

Mrs. Fowler could give no reason why her husband should end his life. Fowler was formerly employed at the Meriden School for Boys and more recently had worked for a Hartford company.

RASCOE DISCUSSES LITERATURE AGAIN

Successor to "Titans" Lacks Earlier Book's Solidity

The many readers who enjoyed Burton Rascoe's "Titans of Literature" are apt to be more or less disappointed by his new book, "Prometheans."

Here we have a new series of commentaries on some of the great figures of the world's literature, but the commentaries seem thin, for the most part, and the book lacks the solidity of its predecessor. It looks, in fact, remarkably like a pot-boiler.

This is not to say that it is uninteresting. Mr. Rascoe's writing always is lively. He is very skillful at conveying the notion that literature is one of the most exciting and rewarding fields open to human study.

authors that Mr. Rascoe discusses—St. Mark, Petrarch, Ariosto, Lucian, Dreiser, Cabell, and others. To this reviewer's notion his chapter on Dreiser is the best thing in the book.

He makes the point, for instance, that it was not Dreiser's outspokenness on sexual matters that brought him public disapproval, so much as it was his blunt refusal to swallow the myth that equality of opportunity and complete individual freedom still exist in industrial America.

And in discussing Dreiser's much talked-of literary style, he points out that practically everything that has been said about it also has been said about the literary style of Balzac.

"Prometheans" is published by Putnam for $2.75.

FEAR GIRL SLAIN

New York, Jan. 3.—(AP)—Warnings to police and her mother that she was "on the spot" resulted in a frantic search today for Marie Lambert, 18-year-old taxi dancer, who left her home last Saturday afternoon and has not been heard from since. The girl is free on bond on a charge of aiding the escape of Gerard Simonson from Tombs prison.
The warnings to both the mother, Mrs. Anna Lambert, and police were telephoned. The speaker said the girl "knew too much" and had talked to police too much.

VITAL STATISTICS GIVE ROCKVILLE THE FAVOR

During 1933 Birth Outnumber Deaths—Marriages Show a Big Increase.

The stork flew high, wide and handsome in Rockville during 1933, while a comparison of the number of deaths last year with those of 1933 showed the city seemed to be getting healthier.
According to the year's record of vital statistics, there were 132 births, 102 marriages and 106 deaths. This compared with the 1932 record of 114 births, 72 marriages and 124 deaths. It will be seen that in 1933 births and marriages increased, while this was true only of deaths in 1932.

FURNITURE, RUG SALE AT WISE, SMITH STORE

Wise, Smith & Co. of Hartford are having a stock reduction sale of furniture and rugs Thursday, Friday and Saturday, January 4, 5 and 6th of this week. For the convenience of their patrons the Furniture Department will be open until nine o'clock these evenings. Furniture and rugs have been reduced to most attractive figures and many people will find really worth-while bargains. Furniture and rugs will wear and become shabby but the average householder hesitates about discarding these articles until absolutely necessary. A sale of the proportion and value which Wise, Smith and Co. are sponsoring will, however, tempt the canny buyer, for it offers a remarkable chance to buy something of real and lasting value for a figure as low as possible consistent with their policy of giving the public merchandise that has real merit.

TRIAL BY JURY

---YOU TO BE BOTH JUDGE AND JURY

The belief that the cost of Electric Cooking is high keeps many families from enjoying Electric Cooking.

Electric Cooking is not expensive when you consider what you get. To PROVE it to your own satisfaction, we are offering our trial plan. We want you to use an electric range in your own kitchen... to actually cook on it for a period of time and learn how satisfactory it is.

During the trial period, you pay for the service as registered by your meter plus a monthly rental charge of $1.30 for the Electric Range and a small installation charge.

Electric cooking is NOT expensive. WE WANT YOU TO SEE JUST HOW MUCH IT REALLY COSTS. We want you to try the range for yourself, to enjoy its advantages in your own kitchen. Once you have known the delicious flavor it imparts to foods, its cleanliness, its coolness and its convenience, we are sure that you will want to continue its use.

Enjoy these Advantages of Electric Cooking!

- CLEAN. Electric heat is as clean as sunlight. Imagine a stove that supplies only PURE heat from a glowing wire. There is no smoke or soot to blacken utensils or soil kitchen walls and curtains.
- WATERLESS COOKING. With your electric range you use no water for roasts and only half a cup for vegetables.
- MODERN. Unusually attractive in design, these modern electric ranges do much to brighten and add a feeling of newness to your entire kitchen. They are finished in smooth, lustrous porcelain and sparkling metal features of special importance to the woman who likes to keep things clean.
- HEALTHFUL. Electric cooking seals-in nourishing juices and natural elements in meats and vegetables. Important minerals are retained, instead of being lost in steam. Half-a-cup of water is ample to cook vegetables, and there is no flavor-laden residue of water to be poured down the sink when the cooking is finished.
- FULL FLAVORED. Electric cooking has a deliciously different flavor—a natural flavor in foods. Meats and vegetables cook to melting tenderness in their own juices—and cakes are light and fine-grained, with a uniform, even texture. You must TASTE the golden, fluffy biscuits and flaky pastries that one can bake in an electric oven!

ELECTRIC COOKING COSTS LESS THAN ONE CENT PER MEAL PER PERSON

TAX COMMISSION TO HOLD HEARING

General Subject of Taxation of Mercantile and Manufacturing Firms Topic.

The first public hearing to be conducted by the Special Tax Commission examining the Connecticut tax structure will be held Thursday afternoon, January 18, at 2 o'clock in the old Senate Chamber at the State Capitol, it was announced today by the Commission.

The general subject of the taxation of mercantile and manufacturing concerns will be the topic of discussion. Notices of the hearing are going forward to manufacturers and merchants' associations throughout Connecticut, as well as to other groups believed to be interested in this special phase of existing tax conditions in this state.

The following topics will be open for consideration before a subcommittee of the state commission:

1. Net income tax on miscellaneous corporations.
2. Unincorporated business tax.
3. Local taxation of inventories and machinery under the general property tax.

Criticism Sought
It is the hope of the special investigating commission that this hearing will bring forth for discussion any criticism of existing laws which the manufacturing and mercantile taxpayers will care to present, together with suggestions for possible substitutes which might serve to improve the present statutes.

The Commission wishes to emphasize the fact that any individual or group having an interest in the subject scheduled for hearing will be welcome to attend. While notices are being sent only to groups believed to be directly concerned, the Commission feels that there may be others, not on its tentative mailing list, who would like to be present. It will be a public hearing and any organizations or individuals who would like to submit written arguments to supplement their oral presentations, or as a means of placing before the Commission their viewpoints when personal attendance is impossible, are requested to communicate with the Commission at the State Capitol. It will be helpful, the Commission feels, if such briefs reach it a week prior to the hearing.

Other Sessions Coming
In order to avoid confusion, representatives of organizations will be called in the order of priority of receipt at the office of the Special Tax Commission, Room 78 of the Capitol Building, of their requests to be heard.

The subcommittee having this special phase of the study under advisement consists of George T. Kimball, President of the American Hardware Corporation of New Britain, and State Senator A. D. Barney of Farmington.

This hearing will be followed by similar sessions dealing with other special elements of the Connecticut tax picture at dates to be announced.

Queer Twists In Day's News

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Seeking a divorce, W. D. Carnahan said he had "turned the other cheek" to his wife Isabella for 30 years. He asserted she broke his shoulder with a potato masher, hit him in the face with a telephone directory and told malicious stories which helped defeat him in a school board election.

The last straw, however, was when she called in a woman friend to help beat him up, he testified.

Chicago—He seemed like a gentleman, so the night clerk at the Ottawa hotel was more than willing to be accommodating.

The stranger registered and said he expected two friends to call in the morning. They arrived promptly in the morning and the guest was awakened to join them. Then, the three drew revolvers and helped themselves to $2,000 in the office safe.

Galesburg, Ill.—George Hedrick, 40, a butcher, suffered a fractured leg when he caught his foot in the brass rail of a bar in a club.

Chicago—The Town Hall police are wondering if maybe the thieves who visited the home of 88 year old John Cohert are thinking of building a house.

The only thing they took was Cohert's backdoor including the hinges.

Dallas, Tex.—John Amato, 69, suffered a broken leg when a passenger train hit a cow and tossed the animal on him as he stood beside a grade crossing. The cow was killed.

Denver—Police Magistrate Albin H. Pickens is old fashioned—he admits it. So when he was faced by a row of New Year's celebrators who pleaded guilty to drunkenness—he prescribed what he said was an old fashioned cure for drunkenness—an overdose dose of castor oil.

"You can either do that or pay a $10 fine", he said.

old Helena boy is willing to whip the whole police department. Fists clenched and tears streaming down his face, the boy offered to do as much when he was brought before Police Chief Joe Spurzner after the dog was taken to the city pound. The police chief, who did not disclose the identity of the lad, turned the dog loose.

On every fine tobacco plant there are only a few leaves that we buy for Lucky Strike. Not the top leaves—because they are under-developed. Not the bottom leaves—because those are inferior in quality. We select only the center leaves—because the center leaves are the mildest and fully ripe for perfect smoking. Only the center leaves are used in making Luckies—so round, so firm, so fully packed—free from loose ends that spill out, that cling to lips. Is it any wonder Luckies are mild and smooth? And remember, "It's toasted"—for throat protection—for finer taste.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 3.

CONGRESS

Today Congress is in session for the first time under the provision of the Twentieth amendment to the Constitution which provides that "the Congress shall assemble at least once in each year, and such meeting shall begin at noon on the third day of January, unless they shall by law appoint a different day."

The full effect of this amendment will be felt a year hence. At that time the Congress to be elected next November will convene on the prescribed date less than two months after the election, instead of almost thirteen months subsequently while, as in the past, members failing of re-election continued to participate in Legislation. We have, therefore, seen the last of our "lame duck" Congresses. Which, it is generally agreed, is a good thing.

Forecasters who affect to have some idea of what will transpire in the forthcoming session have, when they go into details, more courage than discretion. The only thing that can be assumed, with any sort of justification, is that in this regular term of the Seventy-third Congress what is commonly known as "conservatism" is going to have a pretty poor show. Whatever the direction, it is safe to predict that Congress will "go places."

That these places will all be picked out for it in advance by President Roosevelt is not altogether certain. There are many members of both House and Senate who, while they are in agreement in principle with the purposes of the administration, are somewhat less than satisfied with the immediate effectiveness of Mr. Roosevelt's monetary policy and it is far from a sure thing that, with relation to the currency and the banks, they may not gather strength enough to substitute mandate for authorization.

Of course before this is read the President's message to Congress will have made it possible to make a much better guess as to how far the administration and the national legislature are likely to go along together. But from the very outset it is apparent that the country and its Congress are attuned to the idea of "marching along" and if Mr. Roosevelt is to retain in all its great power the leadership he has so far exercised he will have to step out in front—and in the general direction of uncompromising progressivism.

Some day the pendulum may swing again to conservatism. But not during this Congressional session of 1934. It isn't on the cards.

POLITICS

There is a word in our language which, it now seems possible, may take on a somewhat different meaning in the immediate future from that which has attached to it for some time past. The word is "politics."

Webster's New International Dictionary defines politics as follows:

- The science and art of government; the science dealing with the organization, regulation and administration of a state, in both its internal and external affairs; political science and also, formerly, that branch of ethics dealing with the ethical relations and duties of states or social organizations.
- The theory of practice of managing or directing the affairs of public policy or of political parties; hence political affairs, convictions, opinions, sympathies or the like; in a bad sense artful and dishonest management to secure the success of political candidates or parties.

To how many people in this country has the word "politics," for a long time past, suggested any of the ideas presented by the first of the above definitions? Not very many, we may be sure. We get much closer to our habitual conceptions in the second definition and would get still closer if we were to slide a few words and make the definition read merely, "the practice of managing the affairs of political parties"—particularly if we then proceed straight to the "bad sense" and make it, "artful or dishonest management to secure the success of political candidates or parties."

In our national affairs it is certainly true that at this time the management of political parties, instead of being the major note in politics, has become a very secondary consideration; the contending forces are no longer solidified masses of partisan minded Republicans and Democrats but actually bona fide schools of political, social and economic thought; while in the most conspicuous center of what has hitherto been the most malign and demoralizing politics in the country, New York City, there has suddenly appeared in command of the situation a man who shows that he is actually intensely interested in the science of municipal government.

Truly the word "politics" is taking on a new and better meaning. It is beginning to stand for something besides narrow self interest and opportunity for the advancement of special privilege whether behind a counting house table or behind a machine gun. It is borne in on the ordinary citizen that politicians may perhaps, after all, be something that concerns him in some potential capacity other than that of victim.

With members of opposite political parties joining hands in the major political activity of hauling the United States out of the depression and Mayor LaGuardia shattering old political traditions to shreds in a determination to redeem his city from the shame of graft and crime, "politics" bids fair to become an activity in which people may become interested without feeling they are being played for suckers and in which they may directly engage without a sense of shame—even in the nation's capital or in the nation's metropolis.

BIG BELL IN HISTORY

Plenty of people in the rest of the world never knew that the ship's bell of the German cruiser Emden had been stolen from the War Museum in Sydney, Australia; and if they had known it there probably are among them a good many who wouldn't have let the fact keep them awake nights. But if there are unappreciative souls elsewhere who didn't care much about the theft of the Emden's bell last April, the people of Sydney and of all Australia did care—a great deal. That was no ordinary war trophy. So the hunt for the Emden's bell went on all over Australia—all over the world. Ships were searched from stem to stern and the loading of every vessel in any Australian port was closely watched for a long time. Extensive searches were made of ships and waterfront areas in seaports all the way from Tokyo to Capetown and to New York; fruitlessly.

Now the Emden bell has been recovered—buried in park lands in Melbourne—by whom the dispatches fall to disclose as yet, but it's a good bet that the miscreants will be caught sooner or later.

Because that bell was a precious physical to Australia. It was the physical evidence of a sensational victory won by an Australian ship in the first sea fight in the history of Australia's navy.

Australia—the Commonwealth of Australia—was just a lusty youngster 14 years old when the World War started. Yet she had a navy consisting of a battle cruiser, three light cruisers, six destroyers and three submarines. The Emden had been raising Cain in the Indian Ocean, sinking merchant ships right and left and outfooting or outmaneuvering the several British warships sent to hunt her out. One of the Australian light cruisers, the Sydney, found her at Cocos Island in November, 1914, beat her to pieces and drove her ashore in flames. It was the Commonwealth's very first naval war experience.

No wonder the Australians made a fuss over that bell. No wonder they are tickled pink to recover it.

COMPLICATED

This civilization of ours is certainly complicated. We put a tariff on raw sugar to make it possible for our best growers to make a living and now the sugar refiners are uttering despairing wails because the raw sugar tariff has fostered refining in Cuba and the sugar comes in finished. Who would have expected that?

Then, on Monday, in order to get the slush cleared out of the streets before the anticipated second snow wave arrived—surely a commendable purpose—New York City officials had seven hundred gangs flushing the pavements with hose. And then what happens? Why the extensive flushing causes such rapid fluctuations in water pressure that hundreds of water pipes in buildings burst and the fire department is driven distracted answering alarms where the same cause has started sprinkler systems a-flowing. Lots of damage was done.

There you are! You save the life of a dog that's been run over by an automobile—and he goes and bites your neighbor's child on the nose and the neighbor sues you and takes your shirt.

One good turn deserves another, of course. But it does seem as though the other one acquired reverse english in a terribly large number of instances.

IN NEW YORK

By JULIA BLANSHARD

Washington, Jan. 3.—Probably no one thing could be so reassuring to folks who might be worrying about America as a close-at-hand view of the President himself.

Seated behind his desk in his circular conference room in the Executive Office of the White House, with 150 newspaper men and a few others facing him in a half circle, Mr. Roosevelt's pleasant ease, his buoyancy, his straight-forwardness in answering ticklish questions or laughingly refusing to be caught, tend to send visitors out breathing more easily, if not actually smiling confidently. You positively can see their brows clear.

We are all so used to the smiling front views of this President of ours that when only the profile is presented, it comes as a shock to see what a jutting, determined chin the man has. Probably his greatest asset is his ability always to give the impression of that smile. You have to get an unusual angle to discover that chin.

He looks fine, almost ruddily healthy after his Warm Springs vacation. But the hair right over his ears is positively white now. He sits there as if he enjoyed it when questions were popped at him. When a hard one comes, he throws his head back abruptly, squints at the ceiling through his pince-nez for a second or two then looks directly at the questioner and answers just as directly. He has the habit of passing his left hand across his forehead from time to time, not jerkily but as if he were unconsciously smoothing out any frowns or lines that might have gathered. . . .

There are a few new knickknacks in the President's office. Behind him on a table in the bay window stands a ship made of woven shiny cellophane, all done up in cellophane too. The boys dubbed it "the phantom ship." A new black donkey, a little fellow, stands on the mantel over the fireplace opposite the President's desk, flanked by two new tiny models of ships under glass. Over the mantel is a huge, mounted fish and a few new ship pictures have been added to those already adorning the wall.

His desk no longer has that cleared-footed look. It is piled high with papers and documents, but all in neat piles. By his left hand stands a little silver dish, with a big bunch of red grapes and the daily flowers in the tall silver vase are red carnations.

Jo Davidson, noted sculptor for whom kings and potentates have sat, came out of the Executive offices for the President with a typical reaction to contact with the President.

"He's a great fellow," Davidson's hearty laugh boomed out. "What a gift he has for knowing how to relax, laugh and be human. . . ."

Heywood Brown, gracing the press conference with his presence, never took his eyes off President Roosevelt during the whole half hour. Brown looked positively well-groomed for the occasion with a hair-cut of sorts, a spiffy white shirt and his suit pressed to perfection with handsome creases in the trousers. . . .

That particular day 1,500 fan letters poured into the Executive Offices for the President. "That is not the maximum for a single day but is only somewhere near the average. . . . The other day someone questioned Louis McHenry Howe on the actual possibility of Roosevelt's being so well-informed on so many subjects. "Well," said Howe, "you and the rest of us waste so much time and energy running around, we can't possibly know what can be accomplished by just sitting still, reading and thinking. You see Roosevelt doesn't waste an ounce of strength or energy. It just shows what efficiency and concentration will do."

ASTHMA CAN BE CURED

One of the mysteries of medicine is why most attacks of bronchial asthma come on at night. I have observed, and my observations are supported by those of many other doctors, that it is the rule for the patient to have his attacks at night and seldom in the daytime. The strange part of it is, that if the patient becomes a night watchman and works at night, the attacks then switch over and occur during the day.

The name asthma means "panting" and was applied because the patient who is undergoing an attack literally pants for air as he suffers from extreme shortness of breath. In spite of the utter misery which prevails during the many attacks of asthma, the patient lives through them and death from asthma is so rare as to be almost unknown. In the majority of cases, mild asthma will actually seem to lengthen life and the asthmatic often lives a little longer than the average person, providing he uses reasonable care in his way of living.

The number of cases with asthma who report to a hospital is very low and most cases are seen by the family doctor who is called to the home during the height of the attack. It has been estimated that twelve million cases are lost from work in America each year, due to attacks of asthma, but I would question these figures as it has been my experience that most of the attacks occur at night, the patient feels comfortable as soon as they are over, and he would be able to work next day.

About half a million persons in America are said to have bronchial asthma; however, I would like to have you forget all about this large number and I am going to pick out one man or one woman having an average attack of asthma and talk to you about that person. It would be an advantage if you would concentrate on thinking about that one case with me, or you could take your own case and keep that uppermost in your mind.

Suppose you were sitting beside my desk and you were telling me about your last attack of asthma. Probably you would want to tell me of the remedies you have tried; you would also tell me about how long you have been having asthma, and I would listen. You would then ask, "Can asthma be cured?" for after all, with your own case in mind, this is the one thing you want to know. The answer to this is that I have found asthma a 100 per cent curable disease. That is, if you used the night treatment, it would be my opinion that your chances of becoming cured are 100 per cent good. Advance cases seem to improve just as readily as those just beginning. I do not know of a single case coming under my observation and direct control where the cure was not complete and permanent if the patient followed instructions carefully and for a sufficient length of time. The cure may be made more rapid if special physio-therapy treatments are used in addition to the dietetic treatment.

I have seen case after case where the patient had become unable to sleep through the night on account of the distressing attacks of asthma, only to find that on the night following the first day's treatment he was able to sleep soundly. The cure for asthma depends upon the removal of the three main causes of the disease. These are: 1—excessive gas pressure against the diaphragm; 2—a tendency toward a weak diaphragm as the action of this large muscle used in breathing is usually poor in those who develop asthma; 3—an excessive formation of mucus in the bronchial tubes, together with swelling of the mucous membrane lining the tubes which result in making them narrower.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Toasted Nuts
 Question: Miss Loretta asks: "What happens when nuts are toasted?"
 Answer: When nuts are toasted, the toasting dextrinizes the starch in them. It could be compared to toasting bread.

Excessive Nose Bleeding
 Question: Subscriber asks: "What causes excessive nose bleeding in a boy nine years old? Has continued since he was three years old. Never a day goes by without at least one."
 Answer: Your child probably has especially sensitive nasal membranes and treatment may be necessary to bring about a firmer tone to these structures. Go to a doctor who uses the localized ultra-violet light treatment. This treatment consists in raying the inside of the nose with actinic light. It is just the same as using concentrated sunlight. If you cannot afford a doctor who has this equipment, go to a nose specialist who can give you some remedy you can apply several times daily to toughen the sensitive membranes.

Lazy Liver
 Question: Mrs. J. S. asks: "My husband has brown patches on his chest on the right side. Some tell me he has a lazy liver. Has he liver trouble? Some days he is terribly yellow."
 Answer: A skin that is intermittently yellow is an indication of some liver derangement. The brown spots on his chest, although not definitely diagnostic of liver disorders, nevertheless are seldom found with those in good health, and it seems that those having these spots are always toxic and consequently have overworked livers.

(Working and Fasting)
 Question: Mabel E. wishes to know: "Is it all right for me to continue with light housework while taking a short fast?"
 Answer: I have seen hundreds of patients who were able to continue with their regular duties while following the fast of four to five days.

There's too many folks singing "Nonvord Christian Soldiers" who never expect to get in the parade.

ROCKVILLE BOLTON CHICKEN THIEF GETS SUSPENDED TERM

Several Criminal Cases Heard in Tolland County Superior Court Session.

Albert Calve, 20, of Bolton, was given a thirty day suspended jail sentence and placed on probation by Judge Frank P. McEvoy when he was presented on the charge of theft of poultry, to which charge he pleaded guilty at the Tolland County Superior Court winter term yesterday.

State's Attorney O'Connell showed that October 28, 1933, Calve went to the home of Winifred White in Bolton with two bottles of wine and remained for the night as the guest of Mr. White. After Mr. White had left for his work at Manchester on the morning of October 29, 1933, Calve took the housekeeper at the White home to Manchester to do some shopping. He then returned to the White home where he stole ten chickens and returned to Manchester to sell them. He gave an assumed name at the time and said he would have more at a later date. He was also shown to have been convicted of the theft of gasoline. He was given a suspended sentence of thirty days when it was shown that he was now on friendly terms with Mr. White and had made restitution. He was ordered to report weekly to the probation officer during his six months probation.

Stole To Get Married
In an effort to raise funds that he might get married Albert Stone, 22, of Stafford Springs, entered the Colonial Restaurant in Stafford Springs on the night of November 16 last, and as a result was presented before Judge McEvoy charged with breaking and entering with intent to steal.

State's Attorney O'Connell explained the case by telling how Stone entered by the rear window of the store to get money to get married. He is employed in the OCC camp and appeared in court in uniform.

On the night in question he had been calling on his girl friend and planned to elope that night if he could raise the money to get married, but was arrested in the store. Public Defender Robert H. Flisk asked that a suspended jail sentence be imposed rather than a fine as he had no funds. A six month sentence was imposed but suspended.

Given 15 Days
Fred L. Lee, 34, of Bolton, was the only party taken to the Tolland County jail yesterday as the result of the court session. He received a jail sentence of 15 days.

Lee was charged with the operation of a motor vehicle, while his license was suspended, December 8 last in Bolton. It was shown by State's Attorney O'Connell that Lee had been convicted October 7, 1929 in the Manchester court for operating an automobile while under suspension. He was also convicted October 17, 1933 and fined $150 and suspended for 15 days. On December 8 he was again convicted for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor and while his license was suspended. He appealed the $100 fine which was imposed in the Bolton Justice Court yesterday.

Following a severe reprimand, Judge McEvoy imposed the sentence of 15 days in jail.

The case of State vs. Paul Rodvan, charged with violation of the liquor law was continued until today by request of counsel.

The case of State vs. Earl Mrazovich, 32, of Union and John Ethridge, 32, of Woodstock, both of whom entered pleas of not guilty to the charge of killing and the possession of wild deer, was continued until the next term at the request of counsel. The offenses were committed November 22, 1933, in the town of Union.

The case of State vs. Fred Bonardi, charged with violation 12 of the motor vehicle law, which was an appeal from the Justice Court, was dismissed as the appeal was vacated.

The three remaining cases were nolle by the state, being as follows: Orry Rogers and Emma L. Beiden, charged with unlawful solicitation of money for religious purposes and Reginald Von De Vere, charged with theft.

Short Calendar Session
Four foreclosures were granted at the short calendar session of the Tolland County Superior Court held Tuesday by Judge McEvoy.

Judgment was granted by agreement in the case of Louis Blum vs. Nicholas C. Johnson, in a defaulted action for the amount of $261.64.

A default judgment for the amount of $1,309 was granted in the action of Mary Mykolew against Charles Rosenberg. In this case it was shown that Mary Mykolew sold a farm in Hebron to Charles Rosenberg for $1,200, was paid nothing down at the time. Attorney E. L. Dennis for the defense asked a law day of one year, stating that he had hopes of securing a loan from the government to cover the amount due. Judge McEvoy granted the judgment but did not fix a law day as he suggested that the defense pay the back interest of $109 and then agree on a law day on the principal.

Judgment in the amount of $7,026.75 was granted in the case of John Lentz vs. Mina Flower and others, in a foreclosure action on the Flower property located in Coventry.

Louis A. Kingsbury, chairman of the Board of Assessors in Coventry, appraised the property at $5,000. In this case the judgment was granted but no law day fixed in hope of a government loan. This case was started in 1926, according to Atorney W. S. Hyde who appeared for the plaintiff. Judgment was granted in the amount of $1,450 in the foreclosure action of Charles Kiker vs. John Kowalski with a law day fixed as April 16, 1934. The property is located in the town of Columbia. Fitch N. Jones of Hebron appraised the Kowalski farm in Hebron for $5,500.

Court Assignments Made
Numerous assignments were made yesterday by Judge McEvoy for the trial of civil cases by both court and jury. Indications are that it will take about two weeks to complete the civil business.

The assignments were made as follows:
January 3, first case, Edith Ruby, a minor, by and through Frank Ruby, her parent, guardian and next best friend, vs. James Josephac.
January 8, second case, Ernest Herber vs. Charles V. Varr and wife.
January 4, first case, (special assignment) Frank D. Collins vs. Reuben Blomstein, and others.
January 4, second case, Joseph Matava vs. Frank Modarsky and Sophie Modarsky.
First case following jury trials, George Gakeler, Jr., vs. Thaddeus Wegnar.
Second case following jury trials, Anan Anonson vs. Theodore E. Vanasse.

The two cases of Robert F. Sargent vs. American Telephone Company and Sargent vs. American Telephone and Telegraph Company are seeking special assignments early next week.

The jury trials will commence Tuesday, January 9, and five cases are listed for trial: Lewis H. Chapman vs. Harold R. Schiebel; Henry George vs. Earl Belcher and others; James Ward vs. Ernest W. Lutz and others; and Charles Louis Franke vs. John Adamacek. A fifth case will be added, according to the court.

Eighteen Jurymen Drawn
Eighteen talesmen were drawn following the court sitting for jury duty and have been called for Tuesday, January 9. The panel is as follows:

Andrew, Edward Keefe; Bolton, Paul E. Clement; Columbia, E. Eugene Winter; Coventry, Charles Krombie; Ellington, Frank E. Mangie and E. Allen Sikes; Hebron, Louis Ellenberg; Mansfield, Otis C. Burnham and Claude Costello; Somers, Howard Merriman; Stafford, E. K. Tatt and Charles H. Meyers; Tolland, Lathrop O. West and Jesse Dearden; Union, Albert Heck; Vernon, John C. Forster and Robert Johnson; Willington, Henry Doust.

Rev. George T. Sinnott, pastor of St. Bernard's Catholic church, offered prayer at the opening of the court session. He is a personal friend of Judge McEvoy. The court adjourned at noon until this morning at 10 o'clock.

Police Court
The first case to be prosecuted by Acting Prosecuting Attorney Bernard Ackerman, who is acting in the absence of Prosecutor John E. Thomas, was presented yesterday morning before Judge John E. Flisk in the Rockville City Court.

John Kalina was in court charged with non-support of his wife.

This case has been hanging fire for several months and a personal investigation was made by Anthony Sadiak, who was specially appointed by the court to investigate the family trouble.

In this case Kalina's wife left October 24, 1933 and refused to live with him.

Both husband and wife were previously married and both have grown children who don't get along together.

Inasmuch as Kalina did not put his wife out of his home and was willing to provide a home for her, the case was continued for another week in the hope of bringing the family together.

WORK ON STATE RIVERS AND HARBORS DESCRIBED

The chief of engineers has recommended modification of the existing project to provide for a 15 foot channel, 300 feet wide, from the mouth to the Lyme railroad bridge and then 150 feet wide to Hartford.

The four best recommended maintenance projects already under contract which it was estimated at the time the report was drafted would be completed in August and September, 1933. Additional recommendations called for maintenance dredging on river bars of 20,000 cubic yards in May and June, 1934, and of 60,000 cubic yards from July to September, 1934 and June, 1935.

With the two-fold purpose of strengthening the whole financial structure and of arriving eventually at a medium of exchange which will be toward completion of the present or recommended existing projects was recommended.

The jetties, and reverts are, in fair condition, the report said, although the east jetty at Saybrook needs extensive repairs and minor work is needed to the west jetty. The channel dimensions had been rendered on June 30 to about sixteen feet across the bar at the mouth and then about ten feet to Hartford.

The existing project in New Haven harbor, providing for a channel 20 feet deep, was completed in 1931, although during the last year a modification of the existing project, providing for deepening of the channel to 25 feet was approved under the public works program. The public works administration allotted $222,000 under which, the report said, 2,721,000 cubic yards of material will be removed before September, 1934.

Maintenance Dredging
During the fiscal year, maintenance dredging was carried on in Mill river channel, under which 91,551 cubic yards of mud was removed. There were no funds available at the close of the year from War Department appropriations for further operations.

Although the existing project on the Housatonic river is only twenty nine per cent completed the report said only maintenance dredging was conducted during the fiscal year, the channels through the river bars were dredged to project depth by the removal of 28,895 cubic yards of sand. As no funds are available and as the report said, the bar channels are believed to be in condition to meet the requirements of commerce for two years, no further operations were recommended in the report.

The existing project calls for an eighteen foot channel 200 feet wide from the mouth to the lower end of Culvers Bar, and then seven feet deep and 100 yards wide to Derby and Shelton.

Under the authority of this Congress, we have brought the component parts of each industry together under a common table, just as we have brought problems affecting labor to a common meeting ground.

Through the machinery, hurriedly devised, may need readjustment from time to time, nevertheless, I think you will agree with me that we have created a permanent feature of our modernized industrial structure and that it will continue under the supervision but not the arbitrary dictation of government itself.

You recognized last spring that the most serious part of the debt burden affected those who stood in danger of losing their farms and their homes. I am glad to tell you that the machinery of the program is proceeding with good success and in all probability within the financial limits set by the Congress.

But agriculture had suffered from more than its debts. Actual experience with the operation of agricultural adjustment leads to my belief that the experiment of seeking a balance between production and consumption is succeeding and has made progress entirely in line with reasonable expectations towards the restoration of farm prices to parity.

our social and economic arrangements. Must Go Ahead
Civilization can't go back; civilization must not stand still. We have undertaken new methods. It is our task to perfect, to improve, to alter when necessary, but in all cases to go forward. To consolidate what we are doing, to make our economic and social structure capable of dealing with modern life is the joint task of the legislature, the judicial, and the executive branches of the national government.

Without regard to party, the overwhelming majority of our people seek a greater opportunity for humanity to prosper and find happiness. They recognize that human welfare has not increased and does not increase through mere materialism and luxury, but that it does increase through the virtues of selflessness, responsibility and justice.

In the past few months, as a result of our action, we have demanded of many citizens that they surrender certain licenses to do as they pleased in their business relationships, but we have not asked for the protection which the state can give against exploitation by their fellow men or by combinations of their fellow men.

I congratulate this Congress upon the courage and earnestness and the efficiency with which you met the crisis at the special session. It was your fine understanding of the National problem that furnished the example which the country has so splendidly followed. I venture to say that the task confronting the First Congress of 1789 was no greater than your own.

I shall not attempt to set forth either the many phases of the crisis which we experienced last March, nor the many measures which you and I undertook during the special session that we might initiate recovery and reform.

Tells of Results
It is sufficient that I should speak in broad terms of the results of our common counsel:

The credit of the government has been fortified by drastic reduction in the cost of its permanent agencies through the Economy Act.

With the two-fold purpose of strengthening the whole financial structure and of arriving eventually at a medium of exchange which will be toward completion of the present or recommended existing projects was recommended.

Careful investigation and constant study program that in the matter of the exchange rates certain of our sister nations find themselves handicapped by internal and other conditions that they feel unable at this time to enter into stabilization discussions based on permanent and world wide objectives.

The overwhelming majority of our banks, both National and State, which reopened last spring, are in sound condition and have been brought within the protection of Federal insurance. In the case of those banks which were not permitted to reopen, new money has been loaned to the depositors through the assistance of the National government.

We have made great strides towards the objectives of the National Industrial Recovery Act, for not only have several millions of unemployed been restored to work, but industry is organized itself with a greater understanding that reasonable profits can be earned while at the same time protection can be assured to guarantee to labor adequate pay and proper conditions of work.

Child labor is abolished. Uniform standard of hours and wages apply today to 95 per cent of industrial employment within the field of the National Industrial Recovery Act.

We seek the definite end of preventing combinations in furtherance of monopoly and in restraint of trade, while at the same time we intend to prevent ruinous rivalry within industrial groups which in many cases resemble the gang wars of the underworld and in which the real victim in every case is the public itself.

On Common Ground
Under the authority of this Congress, we have brought the component parts of each industry together under a common table, just as we have brought problems affecting labor to a common meeting ground.

Through the machinery, hurriedly devised, may need readjustment from time to time, nevertheless, I think you will agree with me that we have created a permanent feature of our modernized industrial structure and that it will continue under the supervision but not the arbitrary dictation of government itself.

You recognized last spring that the most serious part of the debt burden affected those who stood in danger of losing their farms and their homes. I am glad to tell you that the machinery of the program is proceeding with good success and in all probability within the financial limits set by the Congress.

But agriculture had suffered from more than its debts. Actual experience with the operation of agricultural adjustment leads to my belief that the experiment of seeking a balance between production and consumption is succeeding and has made progress entirely in line with reasonable expectations towards the restoration of farm prices to parity.

It is my conviction that industrial progress and prosperity can only be attained by bringing the purchasing power of that portion of our population which in one form or another is dependent upon agriculture to a level which will restore a proper balance between supply and tion of the country and every form of work. In this field, through carefully planned food control, power development and land use policies, in the Tennessee valley and in our great watersheds, we are seeking the elimination of waste, the removal of poor lands from agriculture and the reorganization of small farms into districts, thus furthering this principle of a better balanced National life.

We recognize the great ultimate cost of the application of this rounded policy to every part of the Union.

Heavy Obligation
Today, we are creating heavy obligations to start to work and because of the great unemployment needs of the moment, I look forward, however, to the time in the not distant future, when annual appropriations, wholly covered by current revenues, will afford the work to proceed with National plan.

Such a National plan will, in a generation or two, return many times the money spent on it; more important, it will eliminate the use of inefficient tools, conserve and improve a world basis looking to waste, and enable millions of our people to take better advantage of the opportunities which God has given our country.

I cannot, unfortunately, present to you a picture of complete optimism regarding world affairs. The situation represented in the United States has worked in close cooperation with the other American republics assembled at Montevideo to make that conference an outstanding success.

We have, I hope, made it clear to our fellow world leaders that our future avoidance of territorial expansion and of interference by one nation in the internal affairs of another.

Furthermore, all of us are seeking the restoration of commerce in ways which will preclude the building of a world basis looking to imbalances by any one nation at the expense of trade debts on the part of other nations.

In other parts of the world, however, fear of immediate or future aggression and with this the spending of vast sums on armament, and the consequent building up of defensive trade barriers, prevent any great progress in peace or trade agreements.

I have made it clear that the United States cannot take part in political arrangements in Europe but that we stand ready to cooperate at any time in practicable measures or a world basis looking to immediate reduction of armaments and the lowering of the barriers against commerce.

I expect to report to you later in regard to debts owed the government and people of this country by the governments and peoples of other countries. Several nations have failed to pay. One nation—Finland—has paid the installments due this country in full.

Home Problems
Returning to home problems, we have been shocked by many notorious examples of injuries done our citizens by an aggressive group who have been living off their neighbors by the use of methods either unethical or criminal.

In the first category—a field which does not involve violations of the letter of our laws—money has been hoarded by individuals who have shocked those who believed that we were in the past generation raising the ethical standards of business.

They call for stringent preventive or regulatory measures. I am speaking of individuals who have hoarded the spirit and purpose of our tax laws, of those high officials of banks or corporations who have grown rich at the expense of their stockholders or the public, of those reckless speculators with their eyes on the quick return whose operations have injured the values of the farmers' crops and the savings of the poor.

In the other category, crimes of organized banditry, cold-blooded shooting, lynching and kidnaping have threatened our security.

These violations of ethics and these violations of law call on the strong arm of government for their immediate suppression; they call also on the country for an aroused public opinion.

21st Amendment
The adoption of the 21st Amendment should give material aid to the elimination of those new forms of crime which came from illegal traffic in liquor.

I shall continue to regard it as my duty to use whatever means may be necessary to supplement state, local and private agencies for the relief of suffering caused by unemployment.

With respect to this question, I have recognized the dangers inherent in the direct giving of relief and have sought the means to provide not mere relief, but the opportunity for useful and remunerative work.

We shall, in the process of recovery, seek to move as rapidly as possible from direct relief to publicly supported work and from that to the rapid restoration of private employment.

It is to the eternal credit of the American people that this tremendous readjustment of our National life is being accomplished peacefully, without serious dislocation, with only a minimum of injustice and with a great, willing spirit of co-operation throughout the country.

An American Program
Disorder is not an American habit. Self help and self control are the essence of the American tradition—not of necessity the form of that tradition, but its spirit. The program itself comes from the American people.

It is an integrated program, National in scope. Viewed in the large, it is designed to save from destruction and to keep for the future the genuinely important values created by modern society.

The vicious and wasteful parts of that society we could not save if we wished; they have chosen the way of self-destruction.

We would save useful mechanical invention, machine production, industrial efficiency, modern means of communication, broad education. We would save and encourage the slowly growing impulses among consumers to enter the industrial market place equipped with sufficient organization to insist upon fair prices and honest sales.

The unnecessary expansion of industrial plants, the waste of natural resources, the exploitation of the consumer by natural monopolies, the accumulation of stagnant surpluses, child labor, and the ruthless exploitation of all labor, the encouragement of speculation with other people's money, these were consumed in the fires that they themselves kindled; we must make sure that as we reconstruct our life there be no soil in which such weeds can grow again.

Seeds Are Planted
We have ploughed the furrow and planted the good seed; the hard work of the year will be to reap the full harvest. If we would reap the soil where this good seed is sprouting and the plant is reaching up to mature growth.

A final personal word. I know that each of you will appreciate that I am speaking no more of politics when I assure you how much I value the fine relationship that we have shared during these months of hard and incessant work.

Out of these friendly contacts we are, fortunately, building a strong and permanent relationship between the legislative and executive branches of the government.

The letter of the Constitution wisely declared a separation, but the impulse of common purpose declares a union. In this spirit we join once more in serving the American people.

RAILWAY CLERKS
RE-ELECT BROOKS

Heads Hartford Lodge for Third Time—W. R. Campbell Also Honored.

Convincing proof of the popularity of Henry J. Brooks, of 112 Woodland street, cashier at the local freight station of the New Haven railroad, among his fellow employees, was attested to in his election last night as President of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, Hartford Lodge No. 136, for the third consecutive time.

The jurisdiction of the lodge of which Mr. Brooks is the official head embraces Hartford, Manchester, New Britain, Meriden and other nearby communities.

Mr. Brooks and the other newly elected officers of the Brotherhood will be installed tomorrow night in Silverman Hall on Ann street, Hartford.

W. R. THE BARGAIN HOUND

If you are in great need of new sheets and have been waiting for a sale so you could do something about it, the time has come. Hale's January Sale includes Cannon fine muslin sheets in just about any size you'll ask for at $1.15.

This is the time of year to plant dower bulbs which will bloom on the gray days about the middle of February. Select a few bowls and dower pots, or tin cans enameled in bright colors. Be sure that each pot and can is scrubbed clean with soap and water and rinsed well before you put in the dirt.

Narcissus bulbs will flower in about six weeks and they add a note of cheer to any room. Hyacinths can be coaxed to flower in the house too.

Don't wall "What for supper?" when you can easily drop in at the Davis Home Bakery on your way home. You'll find their English and Scotch baked goods delicious.

There are many interesting stories about the foods that appear almost daily on our tables if we will take the time to look them up. The commercial orange marmalade of today, which is such a breakfast favorite not only with British people but all over the globe, had its origin in the thirteenth century, centuries ago. The low prices on the handsome clocks I saw at Potterton and Kraus are almost unbelievable. Be alert. Colonial, boudoir, all sorts of clocks.

The shoulders of evening dresses are covered by their trimmings. They are different styles and in the manner of ruffles are used to give the desired effect. No matter how pretty your throat may be, it's stylish to cover it up in front, but when it comes to the back, that is an entirely different matter—be as daring as you please. White with gold or silver touches, and the pastel shades, particularly pale blue, are the favorite color choices for evening wear.

Modern furniture is designed to give maximum service and at the same time to occupy a minimum amount of space. Apartment dwellers have neither the room nor the desire for numerous pieces of furniture. With them in mind, furniture designers have made handsome pieces which serve a dual purpose. Women with larger homes like the new ideas, too. For instance, there is a cupboard which, with a simple pull, can be made into a dining table. This is a particularly good piece for anyone living in a one-room apartment which is to be turned from living room into dining room. The cupboard has four shelves and the idea is to have all your necessary serving dishes and silver stacked in neat array on them. If you don't want to cover the shelves with ordinary eating dishes, remember that your handsome bowls, vases and the like need just such a place. When you

Lenore Kight & Co. Make The Fish Cry

Pittsburgh, Jan. 3.—Five years ago a smiling little lady of 15 splashed into the water during the National A. U. swimming championships and started a career that was climaxed in Miami, Fla., recently—a career that led her to the throne of Helene Madison, former champion of the country.

No one gave the little girl—Lenore Kight of Homestead, Pa.—a tumble during that first meet, nor did she get much attention when she finished second to Helene in the 220 and 500-yard races of the indoor time meet in 1931.

Undaunted in the face of her defeats by the greatest woman swimmer in a decade, Lenore grimly stuck to her instructions under Jack Scarry, coach of the Carnegie Library Club.

Again she met the Seattle girl who in her career, held every important swimming record. This time it was during the Olympic try-outs at Jones Beach. She lost only by the length of her fingers in the 400-meter event. Then in the finals at Los Angeles, Miss Kight forced Helen to a new world's record to beat her.

Since Helene's retirement from amateurism to enter the movies and a professional career, Lenore

STAR HARRIER HAS TAKEN EVERY RACE IN CROSS COUNTRY

Steve Szumachowski Has Set Records in 15 of 18 Events Captured During Two Years of Competition

Schenectady, N. Y., Jan. 3.—(AP)—Steve Szumachowski, America's foremost schoolboy cross-country runner, is an advocate of any early training to bed, early to rise training routine.

To this, followed faithfully, he attributes his two successive national championships and his all-winning two year record, never before equalled by any schoolboy.

Six days a week in spring and fall the 18-year-old Mont Pleasant high school student has begun his day at sunup by walking two miles before classes, worked out two hours at the close of school and raced another two miles before retiring—at 9 o'clock. On Sunday he rested.

Not for two seasons has Steve Szumachowski, national interscholastic cross-country champion of Schenectady, N. Y., tasted defeat. In 15 of 18 events he has won in that time he established records.

Doublets On Cinder Path "There were times," Steve admits, "when it was mighty hard to keep to that schedule. But it was worth it."

Cross-country, the sport which brought the Polish lad fame throughout the country, occupied his attention in the fall, while in the spring he was busy on the cinder path, specializing in the half-mile and mile runs. His scholastic cross-country competition is ended, but he plans to take part next spring in track before his graduation.

"Steve is one of the few boys who can take part in both track and cross-country," says his coach, Norman Kitching. "It is seldom that a cross-country runner has the speed necessary for the cinder path."

Szumachowski hopes to carry on next fall at either Princeton or the University of Pennsylvania. A studious child, he plans to be a lawyer.

GOLF PROSPECTS LOOM AS COLORFUL, EXCITING

Surprises and Upsets of Past Year Will Influence Coming Competitive Season; Amateurs, Pros to Battle on Links.

(This is another of stories on 1934 sports prospects, written especially for the A. P. by outstanding leaders.)

By HERBER H. JAQUES, (President, U. S. Golf Association)

Boston, Jan. 3.—(AP)—The golf year of 1933 brought its full share of surprises and upsets, many of which will influence the competitive season of 1934.

A Battle Royal

For example, take the open championship. Johnny Goodman, who won the title so brilliantly, is an amateur. He defeated a great field of seasoned players and his closest rival, Ralph Guldahl, was a young professional little known nationally at that time. What a battle royal the open will be next summer! The veterans will be out for revenge, the younger stars will be optimistic of their chances, and the leading amateurs, including Goodman, will be out to repeat Johnny's great triumph.

West Side Recs to Play 2 Hard Games This Week

The West Side Recs will resume their busy schedule tomorrow night when they meet the Glastonbury Town team at the West Side Rec at 8:30 p. m. and Friday night they will attack up against Frankie Strong's Royal Typewriter five of Hartford. This game will also be played at the West Side hall and the management of the local team issues a cordial invitation to all West Side fans to attend the game, there will be no admission charged.

The West Siders played the Glastonbury outfit in an early season game in Glastonbury and managed to squeak out a victory by one point, and tomorrow night the local boys will try to win by a more convincing score. The Glastonbury team holds two victories over the Manchester Y. M. C. A. team and the West Siders are out to reverse the decision.

Friday night the local team will play against the strongest team they have met this year with the exception of Kevin Barry, when they meet the Royal Typewriter. The "Typers" are made up of men who form the nucleus of the Kevin Barry team, namely Carukin and Mallin. Mallin needs no introduction to Manchester basketball fans and "Shrimp" Carukin is to Hartford fans what "Ty" Holland is to Manchester basketball followers. So all in all it looks as though the West Siders are in for a couple of tough nights with the outcome none to bright. The West Side Buddies will play the preliminary to the Glastonbury game and will also play the first encounter Friday night.

The West Side Recs will hold a very important signal drill tonight at seven o'clock and all members are asked to report.

DUGOUTS GAIN 3RD PLACE BY ROUTING NEWSIES, 51 TO 22

Both the Jaffe Jewels and the Dugout Five won their games handily in the Rec Senior League last night at the School Street gymnasium. The Knoll team just couldn't get started which cost them a surprise Knoll team, 42-23, while the center aggregation had little opposition in downing the Herald newsboys by the score of 51-22.

The first encounter found the Jaffe team having things much their own way throughout the first two periods leading by the score of 23-9, with play by both teams being very ragged. The third quarter found the Knoll team putting on a spirited rally to come within striking distance of the Jewels, only to have the winners put on a rally in the latter part of the fourth period to put the game on ice. The Knoll team put on a reversal of form in its game last night with the Jewels as in comparison to the game with the Dugout Five when they soundly trounced the Center aggregation. The Knoll team just couldn't get started when tempers are displayed against opposition more than team play on the basketball court.

With "Jim" Neill, manager of the local Guard team and "Cap" Bissell, former outstanding player, playing the leading roles the Dugout Five completely outplayed the newsboys and at no time were they in the running. The Center team's continual bombardment at the basket netted basket after basket and the Herald team seemed to have lost heart, yet it fought hard to the final whistle but to no avail. "Cap" Bissell, playing only a part of the game, scored a total of twenty points and in view of the mediocre opposition put on a display of field shooting that was pleasing to watch. Though "Cap" Bissell comes in for the lion's share of praise, the play of "Jim" Neill was very noticeable scoring fourteen points along with playing a strong game on the defense.

Could Do Better While the Dugout team had things much its own way the Herald team is more capable of playing a better game. The fault in the disastrous downfall of the Herald team can be contributed to several reasons, such as lacking of a capable floor leader, along with unnecessary dribbling as well as no form of a defense. It is an asset to be ironed out with practice sessions and surely the Herald team can give a better account of itself than it has in its last two games. In defeat the play of Swanson was best. Infield Problems Cause Boston Pilots to Worry

Red Sox and Braves are Strong in Every Other Department After Recent Trading Deals But Managers Lose Plenty of Sleep.

Boston, Jan. 3.—(AP)—Optimists who are tempted to make their 1934 world series reservations early at one or the other of the Boston major league club offices are advised to hold off until Labor Day, at least.

Ever since the Red Sox obtained the services of Lefty Grove in the outstanding baseball trade of the year, the experts have been pointing to the crack pitching staffs each Boston club has assembled for the 1934 campaign.

Infielders a Problem. Pitching is said to be more than half of the baseball battle, but Eddie Collins of the Red Sox and Manager Bill McKeechie of the Braves are losing plenty of sleep as they battle with their individual infield problems.

Besides having strong pitching staffs, both Boston clubs have great outfielders and much better than average catching. But the infielders present a problem.

For the Red Sox, Max Bishop, the finished workman obtained from the Athletics will start the season at second base. Eddie Morgan is the first baseman, a big improvement over anything the Sox have had in many years, but still an uncertainty.

Bill Cassel, prospective Red Sox short stop, may find himself in Boston but many smart baseball men predict Bill Werber will be given the call for the regular position. Bucky Walters is far from being a star third baseman and his batting average only .258.

Are Weak at Bat. The Braves infield defensively is sound, but woefully weak at bat. Baxter Jordan was its heaviest slugger with a .332 batting average of 286. Bill Urbanski hit for .251, a point more than Pinkey Whitney, the third baseman, and wise old Rabbit Maranville finished up with a puny .218.

Local Sport Chatter

If Manchester High can retain the fighting spirit and confidence which the local hoopsters came into possession of against Bristol New Year's night, this department is not at all hesitant in saying that the rest of the Red and White season will be unusually successful.

It becomes exceedingly difficult to understand how Bristol High turns in such decisive victories over their rivals, especially during the present season. The Bell City five is a good basketball team but certainly is far from exceptional. It would seem that the caliber of basketball in these parts is just a little above mediocre.

When Bristol and Manchester battle here in the return game Friday, January 26, it should be a bonny of a struggle and this department is banking on Manchester to humble the proud men of Monahan. Manchester knows now that Bristol can be beaten and they'll be out to be the ones to turn the trick.

Bristol's "Zoop" Zebrowski, lowering six foot, five and one-half inches into the ozone, got the tap practically every time from the hard working Sheldon but it was very noticeable in the first half that the Bristol forwards seldom got the ball, so swiftly did Manchester leap into action.

Coach Tommy Monahan told Coach Wilfred Clarke that Manchester's attack against the Bristol one defense was the best he has encountered this year. Had Bristol con-

Started By Brother An older brother, Joe, first interested the little, lanky Steve in cross-country running. He went at it seriously from the start and stressed it as his sole athletic interest while in junior high school.

In his first year of high school competition three years ago, he was second in six meets to Ed Wellie of Newforn, L. I. high school.

"Second fiddle" business fled him with the determination to be out in front thereafter, and from then on he was never defeated. He virtually romped through nine of the runs he took part in last year and repeated in each again this season. The only one he has ever before accomplished. In 15 of the 18 events over rolling hills, roads and bridge paths he established records.

NORTH ENDS WIN

In a hard fought battle at the "Y" last night, the North Ends eked out a 17-13 victory over the Merz Fillers quintet. Incidentally this game broke up the five way tie in the "Y" Senior League, eliminating the Fillers from any chance of gaining first round honors.

The game was marked by sturdy defensive play, featured by that of the winning team which held the Fillers to three points in the last half. Of the both teams, "Smith" Sumislaski, North End forward, was outstanding with Opalack playing a good game for Merz. The score:

Babe Ruth Bids Annual Goodbye to Avoirdupois

New York, Jan. 3.—(AP)—Once I didn't think it would be good I'd quit right now.

Only five weeks away from his 40th birthday, Ruth cheerfully faces another long siege of indoor workouts before he sets his course for the South and the spring training camp.

There has been no inking from Yankee headquarters so far as to what salary the Babe will be offered for next season, but it probably won't be much more than his $92,000 he received in 1933.

Last year when Ruth pitched the closing game of the season against the Red Sox at Boston, more people turned out than had seen a three game series involving the pennant-winning Washington Senators the three previous days.

GRID TROPHY GOES TO CHAPMAN TECH

New London School Finished Football Season Unbeaten and Untied.

New Haven, Jan. 3.—(AP)—Chapman Technical School of New London, state high school football champions of 1933 will be given the S. Polk Washkowitz memorial trophy in recognition of its season's play, at a student assembly in the school at one p. m., Wednesday, Jan. 10.

Unbeaten and Untied. A committee from the newspaper sports writers group which passed on the merits of high schools in their football games, consisting of Dr. David Washkowitz of New Britain, Arthur McGinley of Hartford, Gerald P. Crean of New Britain and W. E. L. Lush of New Haven, the last named secretary of the committee, will attend the assembly. The Chapman Technical school went through the season unbeaten and untied, scoring 201 points against seven by opponents.

The trophy will go permanently to the school which takes five legs in it. It was given in memory of S. P. Washkowitz, an attorney and sports fan, of New Britain, who died last year. It is one of the largest pieces of emblematic sporting silver in the state. It stands about three feet in height. On it are a football player in running pose, a large football, and a pair of goal posts, all of silver.

Receive Certificate. The twenty-nine letter men of the Chapman team will receive a certificate worded as follows:

"1933 state champions, Chapman Technical School. (Name) is awarded this certificate as a member of the team voted by a committee of seven Connecticut sports writers as high school champions of the state and as deserving of the award of the S. Polk Washkowitz memorial trophy for the year 1933."

To Play Abroad. On the golf calendar of 1934, we have many events replete with interest. Our amateurs will go abroad to meet a team in Great Britain that is determined to win its first Walker cup and bolster the morale of British amateur golf. Late in the fall the British and American women's teams will play for the Curtis Cup in this country. The strong British team will be out to avenge its 1932 defeat and will later play in our women's national championship.

These events added to the national championships and the entry of Bobby Jones in the Augusta open in March will make 1934 one of the most colorful and exciting competitive seasons we have ever had. I am strongly of the opinion, that in the next ten years, we shall see a marked improvement in the play of our women golfers.

To the golfers of America I send my cordial best wishes for a happy and successful new year. May the spirit of true sportsmanship bring them its full reward of satisfaction.

RANGERS MOVE UP

New York, Jan. 3.—(AP)—After wallowing around at the bottom of the National Hockey league's American division for nearly half the season, the New York Rangers have advanced to a position more in keeping with their role as champions.

They defeated the Montreal Canadiens 3 to 2, last night, and charged past the Detroit Red Wings and Boston Bruins into second place. The Bruins into a 1-3 decision to the Montreal Maroons, and lost their chance to stay ahead of the champions. Detroit was idle.

SENSE and NONSENSE

HAPPY NEW YEAR
Happy New Year—this we wish to one and all of you. That you may prosper and succeed in everything you do. Happy New Year and many more be granted to you all. And may you not the victim be of sorrow's lonely call. Cheer 'up, be glad be bright and gay and do not shed a tear; But start right in and laugh your way all through this great New Year.

If you cheered when the new deal was first proclaimed and you balk at going on a little spending bender now, what role are you rehearsing for, patriot or hitbiter?

Man—I think that women are the very salt of the earth.
Neighbor—It is very gallant indeed of you to say that, unless you mean that they drive men to drink.

We know we're getting old because most of these modern movie vampirs and hot mammas give us a pain in the necking.

A gentleman pretty well pickled picked up the telephone. "Hello! Hello!"
"Hello!" returned the operator.
"Hello!"
"Hello!"
"My Gosh!" said the gentleman. "How this thing echoes!"

It's contrary to public decency to describe a grave until the occupant has been dead a few centuries.

Man (to small son away from school)—So you're feeling sick, eh? Mere bluff, I suppose.
Son—No, Dad, meerschaum.

"Do we respect old age?" a syndicate writer inquires. Personally, we always raise our hat to a restaurant egg.

Girl—Every time I look at you I think of a great man.
Her Boy Friend—You flatter me. Who is it?
Girl—Darwin.

Mamma (to visitor)—Nancy loves her toy telephone! Just listen to her with it—so sweet.
Nancy—Hello, hullo, hullo! I'm Daddy speaking—why the hell don't you answer me?

HASH—Bad health seems to be more enjoyed by some women than good health. It gives them something to talk about. . . . To have good neighbors you'll have to be one. . . . You can't measure a man's life by the height of his tombstone. . . . The fellow who abides by the instructions is the weak link in the chain letter. . . .

Junior—Why hasn't Daddy got much hair?
Mother—Because he thinks a lot, dear.
Junior—Then why have you got so much, Mother?
Mother (pause)—Go on with your breakfast.

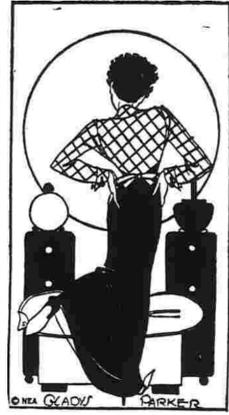

Virtue is its own reward. The government gives no bonus for plowing under wild oats.

Irate Husband—But, good heavens, Alice, what's the use of keeping charge a-counis with four grocers?
Wife—Well, you see, dear, it makes the bills so much smaller.

The rolling stones gather at the foot of the hill. . . . When love dies, the fire that burns in a woman's eye is a cinder. . . . A homely girl begins to enjoy life about the time a pretty girl is tired of it. . . . Well, anyway folks who like to whittle have got lots of time for it. . . . Every time a fellow reads a relative's will he can't help but think how much better he could have made it sound. . . . Pap sleeps in his underwear so when company comes his pajamas will be fresh and nice. . . .

BUY NOW! That hat looks phony anyhow and if your suit gets any higher collar on it you can use it for a shaving mirror.

ABOUT TOWN

Miss Eleanor Robertson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Robertson of Henry street, this town has returned to Colby Junior College in New London, New Hampshire, after spending the Christmas vacation at home.

PAINT FIREHOUSES AS A CWA PROJECT

Local Committee Endorses Plan - Three Company Quarters Included.

One project submitted by the South Manchester Fire District calling for 1,600 hours of labor painting hose companies No. 2, 3 and 4 fire quarters was approved by the Manchester CWA committee at the weekly meeting this noon. The project will be submitted to the state CWA supervising engineer for final approval.

The work to be done on the three fire houses is as follows: No. 2, 160 hours of labor; No. 3, 880 hours of labor; and No. 4, 560 hours of labor. The South Manchester Fire District has agreed to furnish all materials and equipment. The total cost of labor is $1,920.

Due to the inclement weather of last week, by reason of which employed men lost 12 hours' labor, a common understanding is being sought by the local committee regarding making up the lost time expected during the next two or three months.

The committee is in receipt of information from the state office to the effect that the supervising engineer may employ the CWA workers not more than a total of 130 hours in any calendar month. As there are five working weeks in the current month, calling for a total of 160 hours of labor per man employed, it was thought best by the committee not to make up any of the time lost last week.

It was reported at the meeting that George Finley of Hawley street, employed last week during the cold weather, was so severely frostbitten on his hands that it may be necessary to amputate several fingers. The committee will recommend the appointment of a safety inspector for the Manchester jobs, the appointment to be made by the Hartford office of the CWA.

It was also reported by Hayden Griswold, supervising engineer, that work has commenced on the Princeton street extension, and the Harrison street storm drain. It was also emphasized at the meeting that prompt action was necessary to begin as soon as possible constructing the Manchester Green sewer.

Several minor highway projects will be referred to the highway committee of the Board of Selectmen for their approval. A major project suggested was the widening and straightening of Parker street from East Center street north to Oakland street. This would provide a cross-town outlet to the Tolland highway from the east part of Manchester.

The men now working have received $15,628 of federal funds, it was reported to the committee by Engineer Griswold. The Brookfield street extension job will be completed within a week it was reported and several other local highway jobs will run but a few weeks. The committee has sufficient projects approved for the next 10 days, however.

PAY BOOST PROPOSAL REJECTED BY VOTERS

Glastonbury Town Meeting Also Again Rejects Hebron Avenue Extension Plan.

A proposal to build the Addison state aid road out to the Hebron town line was defeated again last night at a lively and interesting town meeting in Glastonbury. A total of 231 votes were cast and the project was rejected by a margin of five votes, 118 being against and 113 for.

The voters also rejected a petition asking that the salaries of town officials be increased. Town officials are at present receiving four dollars a day. The petition for an increase was signed by many of the persons holding office, but was defeated by a large majority.

THREE MONTHS JAIL FOR RAZOR ATTACK

Birch Street Man Gets 90 Days for Slashing "King" Macri.

Sebastian Arigno, of Birch street, found guilty of assault with a dangerous weapon on Benjamin Macri, of Purnell Place, was sentenced to jail for 90 days by Judge Raymond Johnson in Town Court this morning.

Intoxicated Testimony brought out in court showed conclusively that Arigno was intoxicated when he slashed Macri in the back, creating a six inch gash, following a Christmas Eve party in Macri's home at which wine was consumed. Macri's sweater and overcoat, revealing the cut caused by the razor wielded by Arigno, were displayed.

Attorney George Lesmer, counsel for the defendant, after the testimony had all been given, asked that the case be put over until tomorrow to permit George England, proprietor of George's Tavern, to testify. Judge Johnson replied that he understood the facts in the case and denied the motion.

Despite Being "King" Flaring up in an outburst of temper when Lesmer inquired if he did not boast to Arigno that he was "King" of Manchester's Italian colony, Macri vehemently denied the allegation. Arigno said Macri gave him the razor used in the slashing, but Macri and a daughter-in-law said this was not so. Mrs. James Macri, the daughter-in-law said Arigno went to sleep in Macri's house and was advised to go out and get the air. Macri accompanied him outside, and it was in the former's backyard that the cutting affair took place a few minutes later.

Arigno maintained that Macri attacked him with a club and that was the reason he struck him with the razor. Judge Johnson said he did not doubt but that the veracity of Macri's testimony could be questioned. He mentioned having seen Macri on the witness stand before, and was fully cognizant of the complainant's court record. However, he added, the nature of the crime could not be overlooked and with him it was a matter of penalty. Prosecuting Attorney William J. Eben said that it might be well for the court to take jurisdiction, a course which he recommended. Judge Johnson then imposed the jail sentence.

Other Cases Joseph Loney, an old offender, was given thirty days in jail after being found guilty of intoxication. Officer Rudolph Wirtalla found Loney dead drunk in Center Springs park at 1:30 yesterday afternoon.
