PLOT DISCOVERED AGAINST ALLENBY

British Field Marshal Cancels Trip Through Java as Result of Report.

Singapore, Straits Settlements, Jan. 27.—(AP)—The semi-official news agency, Aneta, reported today that Field Marshal Lord Allenby, who was expected to come here from the Dutch East Indies, had cancelled his schedule because of a plot against his life.

The agency said he had started home to London after operations of the "International Intelligence Department of Washington" warned him of the plot.

Officials in Washington professed ignorance of the existence of such an organization as the "International Intelligence Department."

The police in Java were notified of the plot when Allenby was there, according to Aneta, which said the Dutch authorities took immediate measures for the British field marshal's protection.

Allenby was represented as determined to ignore the warning but as objecting to traveling with the armed escort which the Dutch government insisted accompany him. It was said he returned to Sumatra and sailed for home Jan. 18.

The field marshal and Mrs. Allenby left England in December on a pleasure trip to the East Indies.

Miss Ruth S. Cloyes Entertains Cosmopolitans With Illustrated Lecture.

Miss Ruth S. Cloyes of East Hartford entertained the members of the Cosmopolitan club at their regular meeting yesterday at the Y. M. C. A. with an illustrated lecture on the Virgin Islands, where she spent her vacation last summer.

Leaving Brooklyn by steamer she arrived in St. Thomas in five days. The islands are U. S. possessions, purchased from Denmark during the World War.

She is surrounded by ten magnificent palm trees, each of which is erect, the top-heavy plumes swaying in the wind and withstanding the severe storms which seem to break off the tops of tropical palms elsewhere.

Miss Cloyes also showed views of the great salmon trees, supposed to be the largest in the world. She said her thoughts reverted to the famous Wethersfield elm, and when informed that the spread of these trees was frequently an acre or more, she was willing to acknowledge defeat.

The leaves of the sugar cane fields, life in the city streets and the beautiful sunsets. The speaker also brought with her an interesting exhibit of dolls, dressed in the native costumes, which she passed to the Cosmopolitans for closer inspection.

The natives are black and the faces of the dolls corresponded, heads being made of wood or cashew nuts. She also displayed a most interesting collection of hand-made baskets, gourds, stained and etched to use as ash trays, beads and other trinkets, made to sell to tourists, all of which added to the interest of the program.

Mrs. Raymond Burnham presided at the business meeting and Mrs. O. F. Toop was hostess for the afternoon. The meeting was served by the hospitality committee.

The meeting Friday afternoon, February 9, will be held at the home of Mrs. C. Elmore Watkins.

GANGSTERS SEEK LEGAL HELP NOW

Midwestern Desperadoes Are Held in $100,000 Bonds; Lawyers Get Busy.

Tucson, Ariz., Jan. 27.—(AP)—Legal technicalities have replaced guns in the fight for freedom of John Dillinger, midwestern desperado, and three captured henchmen.

They have shot their way out of more formidable prisons, but they relied today on the strategy of Attorney John L. Van Buskirk to get them out of the county jail where they have been under heavy guard since their unexpected capture Thursday.

Bonds at $100,000. Buskirk planned to seek writs of habeas corpus when bonds were fixed at $100,000 or more for each of the quartet. He laid further plans to resist extradition proceedings to Indiana, and Ohio, where the mobsters are wanted for murder prosecutions, and possibly other midwestern states which they terrorized.

Bail for Dillinger and Charles Manley, known as the "hardest guy" of the gang, was fixed at $100,000 each as fugitives from justice. Harry Pierpont, soft-spoken "trigger man" who scoffed at the small town cops who trapped him, and Rudy Clark, also a convict with resisting officers. They are held in lieu of $100,000 bail each.

Wanted in Ohio. Governor George White of Ohio asked Indiana authorities to agree to the return of Manley, Pierpont and Clark to the former state where they are accused of murdering Sheriff Jess Barber at Lima. The four also face charges of murder at East Chicago, Indiana, and are accused of a string of bank robberies in the two states in which an estimated $250,000 was taken.

GANGSTERS' CAREERS. Chicago, Jan. 27.—(AP)—A crime wave that left death, a long string of bank robberies, and the looting of two police stations of firearms in its wake has piled up against John Dillinger, notorious Indiana desperado, and three of his aides under arrest at Tucson, Ariz., today.

Here are three peace officers whose deaths have been laid to Dillinger's gang.

Sheriff Jess Barber of Lima, O., shot to death last October 21 by three men who delivered Dillinger from the county jail.

Police Sergeant William T. Shanley of Chicago, last December 14. (John Hamilton, a member of the gang still at large, was identified by police as Shanley's killer).

Policeman Patrick O'Malley of East Chicago, Ind., last January 15 during $20,000 holdup of the First National bank of East Chicago.

The list of bank robberies Dillinger and his confederates are either suspected or charged with committing, reads like a bank directory. It dates back to last summer while most members of the gang were still in prison and only Dillinger was at large. These include the following:

New Carlisle, O. bank $35,000; Bluffton, O. bank $2,800; Franklin, Pa. bank, $24,000; Daleville, Ind. bank, $5,500; Montpelier, Ind. bank, $12,000; and Massachusetts Avenue bank, Indianapolis, $21,000.

Other Bank Robberies. Since the escape of 10 convicts from the Indiana Penitentiary at Michigan City last September 29, in which Harry Pierpont, Russell Clark and Charles Manley, now under arrest with Dillinger, participated, the following bank robberies have been associated with the gang:

Oct. 23, $75,000 holdup of the Central National Bank and Trust Company of Greencastle, Ind.; October 24, robberies at Fillmore and Modoc, Ind.; Nov. 20, $27,000 robbery of American Bank and Trust Company of Racine, Wis., and temporary abduction of several officials, and the East Chicago holdup and killing this month.

During the month that elapsed from the prison break until Dillinger was released from the jail at Lima, October 21, a bank at St. Mary's, O., was robbed of $12,000 on October 4, and two days later a Gas City, Ind., bank messenger was held up, both crimes being attributed to the desperadoes that later formed under the leadership of Dillinger.

And on October 14 police of Auburn, Ind., were surprised and robbed of firearms in their station by men they said they believed were members of the gang. The same thing occurred a week later at the Peru, Ind., police station.

It was the night of the day Dillinger was delivered from the Lima jail.

JAPS MIFFED OVER WORDS OF IL DUCE

Ambassador Asks Mussolini to Explain "Yellow Peril" Reference.

Rome, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Japanese Ambassador Hajime Matsuhima, acting on instructions from Tokyo, called on Premier Mussolini last night and asked for an explanation of a recent article by Il Duce on the Far East, it was learned today.

Japanese resentment was aroused by the article, called "The Far East," in which Mussolini made several pointed references to Japan.

The visit could not be called a formal protest, it was said at the Japanese Embassy, but the ambassador was instructed to say that the article had created a "painful impression" with the Japanese government.

It was regretted particularly because the author is both the premier and foreign minister of Italy, and some phrases were considered extremely strong, Embassy attaches explained.

However, the ambassador stated that Mussolini had explained to the former's satisfaction that he had not intended directing the article against Japan.

At the Embassy it was said the ambassador concentrated on Mussolini's article and did not protest against a speech recently delivered in the Chamber of Deputies by Marquis Giacomo Medici del Vascello.

Neither was any protest voiced against the anti-Japanese campaign being carried on in the Italian press.

Both the premier and the marquis had referred to the "yellow peril."

charge of the kitchen in an effort to restore routine. Waitresses who had been working in one of the smaller dining rooms were drafted for service in the main dining room.

Despite the walk-out, the hotel had no trouble in serving the dinner of the New York Police Department American Legion, with 1,800 guests. Other dinners, with smaller attendance, also were served with the usual dispatch.

Many Quit At Savoy Plaza. While a entire restaurant force walked out at the Savoy Plaza, service in the dining rooms was resumed within thirty minutes, according to the management, but the walk-out apparently disrupted for that period the regular dinner program.

At the Plaza thirty-five cooks joined the strike, but the waiters all remained at their posts. According to the management, many of the cooks had admitted that they did not want to strike, but said they feared bodily injury if they failed to walk out.

The Sherry Netherland said it had lost only seven kitchen employees as the result of the strike. Two of them came back almost immediately. Union pickets outside the hotel asserted, however, that the entire kitchen and restaurant force had quit.

At 7 p. m. sixteen cooks walked out of the Hotel Roosevelt. Paul, the maitre d'hotel, immediately replaced them with twenty men he had held in readiness for such a move. Paul himself then stripped off his frock coat, put on an apron and took charge of the kitchen. No waiters left the hotel.

At the Brevoort more than thirty waiters, bus boys and cooks walked out, but Jean Barrere, the manager, had extra men and women to take their places immediately. Mr. Barrere said the walk-out had no effect on the restaurant service.

The number of hotels affected by the strike was large but in all of them business proceeded on a basis not far from normal.

Standards Of The Kingdom

Text: Matt. 5:1-48 The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for January 28

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D. Editor of the Congregationalist

The Kingdom of Heaven begins in blessedness, and blessings are the portion of all who enter into it and who continue in it.

Jesus never promised to his followers, and to those who would establish the truth in their hearts and lives, an easy way.

The poor in spirit—that is, the ingenuous, honest, simple, earnest souls, who are not concerned about worldly gain, or power, or anything that enables them to dominate over their fellow-men—have the blessing of the Kingdom of Heaven.

Perhaps the strangest of all the blessings is the pronouncement of the inheritance of the earth for the meek. It seems to contradict almost all the experiences of human life, where it is apparently the aggressive, and the selfish, and the exacting, who win the greatest rewards.

Does not experience, when we search into its meaning, reveal something of the truth that Jesus emphasized? The blessings upon the merciful, and the pure in heart, and the peacemakers, speak for themselves.

The framers of this lesson have shown insight and good judgment in attaching to the Beatitudes the closing verses of the fifth chapter of Matthew, which lay stress upon the good human life as like the life of God in the boundfulness of its love and magnanimity.

This triumphant description of the good life is closely related to the way of blessing. It is a life in which man is lifted into a different atmosphere from that of interest. It is a life in which even toward one's enemies reconstructive powers begin to operate when one meets enmity not with enmity, but with love.

Selfishness never can conquer selfishness, hate never can conquer hate, but when one meets selfishness with unselfishness a foundation is laid for something new. There is a revelation of spiritual value.

And when one meets hate with love, he has met something that is strong and deep with something that is even stronger and deeper. But there is no blessedness apart from the commitment of life to truth and righteousness and love.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Standards Of The Kingdom

SEEING GOD

By GEORGE HENRY DOLE

International Sunday School Lesson Text, Jan 28: Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God.—Matt. 5:8.

If, at a given place, God were to be seen as one man sees another, no other event would call together such vast multitudes of people from every clime.

Our lesson begins in what have been called the Beatitudes—that is, the roll of blessings. It is instructive to study the blessings that are promised and those to whom they are offered. They offer to the persecuted and the harassed inner peace and satisfaction, but beyond this they express also great spiritual laws or compensations that are operative in life.

The promise that the pure in heart shall see God is not reserved for the spiritual world. There is a way to see Him here, none of us have seen Him. Yet from their words and words we see what they were. From God's words and works through Jesus Christ, we can see what God is like, what He is in this world, God is seen by the things that are from Him. Nature is an image of the spiritual. The glory of the heavenly canopy pictures to the eyes of the body, the glory of God.

One who sees the glory of the Lord in proportion to his knowledge and love of Him, but everyone will see Him as a man, the Divine, Infinite Man.

CHINESE REPORTS TELL OF HUGE FLOOD TRAGEDY

Shanghai, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Seasonal Chinese reports claiming 10,000 men, women and children have been drowned, frozen to death or are missing in Hopei and Honan provinces along the rising Yellow River, appeared in vernacular newspapers today.

The dispatches, which relief organizations and other sources here considered exaggerated, said additional thousands were homeless in the inundated districts with freezing weather adding to their suffering.

The reports portrayed a vivid picture of the asserted conditions in the flood area. It was said that ice cakes were swirling in the raging currents endangering rescuers and hampering relief work.

Several boats carrying clothing, medicine and supplies have been smashed by the ice, it was added.

THE LYING DOLLAR

Carter Glass keeps on shrieking that the gold devaluation bill makes the promise on our paper currency, that it will be redeemed in gold, a lie. When was it anything else?

For years and years we conducted business on a currency "redeemable in gold" while there never was a minute when there was gold enough to redeem the paper money outstanding. If there had never been, in this country, any more paper currency than there was gold for its redemption, after we went on the gold standard, we would have been on a plane where a dollar would have been big pay for a day's wages, eight or nine cents a pound a high price for a prime steak and where seven or eight dollars a month would have paid the rent of a pretty good house. But there was more paper money than there was gold—a great deal more. When Uncle Sam put out currency redeemable in gold he did it with his tongue in his cheek and the mental reservation—"If you get to the Treasury before it is all gone."

Mr. Glass, of course, knows that this stuff he is talking is twaddle—that if we were to have a really honest redemption currency we might just as well not have any currency at all, getting along instead with the few handfuls of gold coin that would constitute the money available for each community. It isn't anxiety over the "lie" on the face of a Federal Reserve note that is worrying Mr. Glass. It's the fear, not that this gold devaluation measure will clip the wings of his friends of the money-trust, but that it will provide an excellent operating table on which that process can be carried on a little later when Congress and the President find out that we have got to clip.

MILK CONTROL

The money problem, which the average American frankly regards as "beyond" him is an A B C proposition compared to the intricate maze which the Connecticut Milk Control Board has succeeded in creating. By the time the Superior Court gets through delving into the mysteries of the net work of operations set up by the Board, in its hearing on the injunction granted against the "equalization" fund, it is probable that the public will know more about the raw facts of milk control in this state than it has ever been able to find out.

So far, the impression created by the mysterious performance that has been conducted is that the equalization fund system is a smart device by means of which that very large class of milk producers who raise their own milk and sell it to the consumer and those smaller dealers who buy from the farmers and sell directly to the householder are required to contribute a substantial part of their intake to compensate the milk grower for the shockingly low price he receives for "surplus" milk from the very few very large dealers who convert a great deal of the state's milk into ice cream, butter and merchantable cream through the separator. Apparently two cents a quart is the base price for this surplus milk. Anything above that which he receives apparently come, not from the big wholesalers who get the bargain but from the equalization fund, which is raised by taxing producer-dealers and retail dealers. It is such a system that the Superior Court has temporarily enjoined and which it will soon investigate. Meantime, while the growers receive 7 3/4 cents for some of their milk and 2 cents for some of it, the mothers of Connecticut must pay 18 cents at the store or 14 cents at the door for their milk—and anyone who sells it for less is liable to lose his license and to arrest if he boot-legs it. We shall be pretty stupid people if we don't know what to do about this milk control thing next fall when we are picking our Legislators.

LOOK BEFORE SAWING

When you start to rebuild an economic system that has been in use a long time, and at the same time keep on using it, it is one of the easiest things in the world to saw away an important member—perhaps a vital one—under the impression that you are doing a smart thing by replacing a badly placed auxiliary support. You're likely to do that thing unless you look over the ground carefully, figure out the probable consequences—and then, when you are all ready to begin sawing, take another and a longer look.

In the District of Columbia quite recently some large oil companies were requested by the new government authorities to fix a price for their gasoline half a cent a gallon higher than the price charged by some of the smaller companies. On what ground, do you suppose? The companies customarily advertised their product on a large scale and that their advertising gave them an undue advantage over the smaller competitors who do not advertise provided the prices of the advertisers and non-advertisers were the same. In other words the government authority thought the advertiser ought to give the non-advertiser a handicap.

Well, that's getting things down to a pretty sporting basis, to be sure. But how about the long range effect if it should be adopted as a general principle? The scheme might operate to the very slight advantage of a few minor oil concerns—but what would it do to a business which, on the whole, is a good deal bigger and employs a lot more people than the dinky little oil concerns that keep out of the advertising fields? The newspapers, the magazines, the printers, the artists, the advertising specialists of the whole country.

Naturally the advertising oil companies, if they are to be penalized and prevented from meeting the prices of the non-advertisers, would be very liable to conclude that they had better cut out advertising altogether. And if this principle were to be applied in the oil trade, why not in all trades? If the department store that advertised was compelled to charge $22 for a garment that a non-advertiser was selling for $20 how long could that store compete with its non-advertising neighbor? Then why advertise?

It looks very much as though the government authority were trying to saw one of the members that holds up the bridge of general business under the impression that it is cutting away a dangerous encumbrance.

WELFARE ISLAND

It is probably true that the spectacular developments concerning the gangster control of the New York City penitentiary on Welfare Island have done more to bring realization of the enormity of the political rottenness of Tammany Hall than all the other revelations that have been made put together. The average person has little trouble in understanding the ordinary varieties of graft—overstuffed city contracts put through by officials who get their bit out of them; police protection of speakeasies and gambling places enforced by political influence; needless creation of places on the payroll for henchmen of party leaders, and so on. But the kind of condition under which gang heads can take charge of a great jail and run it, from the inside, for their own profit, terrorizing every jail official down to the newest keeper, is not only a cut above the understanding of the ordinary American but outside the realms of his credibility—or was, until Commissioner McCormick's astonishing raid of Wednesday.

Of course no such condition as that at Welfare Island or anything approaching it could exist except through connivance of the authorities to whom the prison officials owed their jobs. There is, in this almost unbelievable state of affairs, the most convincing evidence ever offered that there are simply no depths of debasement and criminalism with which the Tammany type of politician will not ally itself, no limits to the sordidness to which it will not descend—if there is something in it. Jimmy Walker was dressed up Tammanyism. Here we have Tammanyism without its tailoring and its perfume—the beast in the raw. JOB FOR A LADY Where the trial of persons accused of election day disturbances in Hartford may lead eventually is something to be guessed at, but some of the evidence given on the first day was of a character to contribute to the gaiety of nations. It was such as to give to outsiders a most illuminating view of the plans on which politics in the Capitol City is, in some parts of the town at least, conducted.

Alexander Lauretti, a fruit peddler, testified that he was Democratic chairman of the Second Ward. "Before election," inquired State Attorney Alcorn, "did you do anything about checking the list of voters in the Second Ward for illegal voters?" "Positively not," replied Mr. Lauretti.

"Why not?" "Because I don't understand it. I don't know anything about that." "Didn't you have any of your workers canvass the list or check the list to find out who were voters and who were not?"

"Yes, check it, canvass, yes." "Did you raise any question about illegal voters?" "What illegal voters?" "Do you know what a legal voter is?"

"I don't quite get you." Probably there is nothing particularly original about the idea that has occurred to us—it must have come to a great many others who have read the testimony in that trial—that if the Hartford Depo-crats want a really smart chairman in the Second Ward they would do well to import Gracie Allen.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

Huey Long Will Resign—on a Big If . . . Courage Costly . . . She-Stuff in Peril.

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Herald Washington Correspondent Washington, Jan. 27 — Senator Huey Long will resign—on one condition. He promises your correspondent that if Congress will pass his redistribution-of-wealth bill he will quit and resume law practice. There's not much chance.

Huey figures he can make about $250,000 a year at law. His bill would limit the amount anyone could earn to $1,000,000 a year, inheritances to $5,000,000, and fortunes to $50,000,000. Every needy person over 60 would receive an old age pension of $30 a month.

"Why retire after that?" he was asked. "I don't like it here," replied hurly-burly Huey. "I love peace and quiet and a chance to be with my family."

He will support every Roosevelt measure "that doesn't conflict with my bill." Meanwhile, attempts to oust him from office don't bother him. "In 16 years of public office," he boasts, "there hasn't been a time when there weren't motions to kick me out."

"She-Stuff" in Peril The flower of chivalry droops in the dust at the Department of Agriculture. There, Secretary Wallace talks of "getting rid of the she-stuff"—a new term to urbanites.

"She-stuff" is a reference to female livestock. Prolific propensities of "she-stuff" thwart AAA plans for production control of hogs, beef cattle, and dairy cows. Sows were chief victims in the pig massacre. Now there's a proposal to perform operations on cows to end their milk-giving days. And heifers will get in the neck when the beef program gets going.

Courage Is Costly Bravery of a "little cabinet" member has landed him in the soup. Assistant Secretary of the Interior Theodore A. Walters is on the bad books of Secretary Ickes. One of these days you'll probably hear that Walters has taken another government job.

Nearly all the important duties ordinarily handled by a first assistant have been taken away from him. Supervision of a reclamation has been technically left with his office, but Ickes insists on handling that himself.

Walters, backed for his post by Senator Pope of Idaho, courted his downfall when he squawked at the activities of Administrative Assistant Ebert K. Burliew, a Hoover administration holdover. Walters said he didn't see why he should take Burliew's orders.

Many other Ickes subordinates, including the liberals with whom higher interior liberals with whom higher interior posts are stacked, also resented Burliew's power. But whereas they talked cautiously, Walters let a newspaper story leak out that he might resign if Burliew weren't curbed.

Ickes, who doesn't like to see anybody's name in newspapers except his own then heaped added favors on Burliew and began to give Walters the works. Milk Curb Threatened A concealed threat of rigid federal dictatorialship for the milk corporations is contained in the new AAA milk policy. Officials admit they set to license distributors who won't agree to pay farmers milk prices as established. Heretofore, distributors have insisted on minimum retail price-setting which guaranteed their profits. Now the emphasis is on free competition at the retail end, cheaper milk, and greater consumption. Texas has 18,868 miles of highway, more than any other state in the Union.

PAINS FROM REFLEX CAUSES

It is often difficult to know what is causing pain in any one particular part of the body, for the cause is often very far removed from that location. For instance, the first pain usually felt in approaching appendicitis is in the epigastric region, or pit of the stomach. It can be truly said that most of the pains occurring in the upper part of the body are caused by irritations or pressure below the diaphragm. Indeed, the abdomen, with those organs contained in what can be called the abdomen, is the principal source of the pains felt in any part of the body.

Headaches are very seldom caused by any trouble in the head, itself, the so-called eyestrain and other aches in the eye region (even when the condition exists in the eye itself) being generally caused by irritation or inflammation of the stomach. Aches back of the eyebrows, and anywhere along a band three-quarters of an inch wide, extending from the extreme end of one eyebrow to that of the other, originate from irritations and inflammations of the stomach also. Temple headaches, that is, those occurring at the side of the head in front of the ears, also originate in irritation.

When there is much colitis present in the transverse colon, that is, irritation of the transverse colon, it will sometimes cause a reflex ache or pain in the shoulder top. The right part of the transverse colon will make the right shoulder ache, and the left transverse colon will make a pain in the left shoulder.

Backaches often do not come from the back itself, but from some of the abdominal organs, such as the bladder, ovaries, or prostate, and the ache comes in the back just as if there were a bell ringing there by a button being pressed in some place in the abdominal cavity. If you have been having trouble from "some pain" or ache in your body, be sure to see that you remove all of the irritations from the stomach, intestines and other organs. Fasting for a few days will free the alimentary canal of any kind of poison, and it will then have a chance to regain its normal tone. No matter where the pain is located in your body, be sure and use plenty of enemas as long as the pain exists, as this is a sure method for removing irritations of any kind applied to the abdomen will often bring about a satisfactory relief from a headache or pain in other parts of the body.

In health you should not be conscious of any organ of your body. You can rest assured, if you have pain any place it is because there is some definite irritation, and you must not be satisfied until you have found out where the real cause lies so you can then study a method for removing the cause at its place of origin.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS (Temperature Always Subnormal) Question: "Coldy Cat" of McRae, Georgia, writes: "You have never mentioned the subject of subnormal temperature. My temperature is too low, and I am subject to colds, bronchitis and have periods of extreme exhaustion." Answer: A temperature below normal may be found when the vitality of the body is lowered. Judging from the symptoms which you give on your postal card, I believe that, if you will build up your strength and will overcome the tendency to bronchitis and colds, you will find that your temperature has reached normal. Yours is rather an unusual question as most people are interested in a temperature that is

IN NEW YORK

By PAUL HARRISON

New York, Jan. 27. — You'd be surprised to know how many people envy millionaire playboys, such as Tommy Manville, Jr., the asbestos heir, who gets into the news frequently through the medium of a new marriage, divorce, reconciliation, kidnap threat or something. Actually, though, he doesn't have much fun. Says so himself.

For one thing, there's the matter of marriage. Florence Fubert, Lois McCain, Avonnie Taylor and Marcella Edwards have been successively his "dream girl." Following the patching-up of their recent quarrel, Marcella still is his "dream girl." If she remains so, it will be in spite of the trouble-making efforts of other women who are always figuring that it would be nice to be the wife of a millionaire playboy.

As for his daily life, Mr. Manville has less personal freedom than the average $20-a-week clerk. He must have bodyguards, for instance—two of them, who go everywhere with him. Nice enough fellows in their way, but entirely too ubiquitous. A person likes to be alone once in awhile.

Then there's his business. Mr. Manville has a business, and a very demanding one. He has to take care of all the money he has inherited. Every gift promoter and salesman has a try at him, and some of them are able to bring an amazing amount of influence to bear on their propositions.

A Man of Letters There are letters too. Mr. Manville's Park avenue office is listed in the telephone directory, so it's easy enough to write to him. Each mail brings a few wild love letters proposing marriage. There are bills, some of them for things he never has bought, or even heard about. Requests for gifts and for loans come from all over the country. Tommy has a hard time turning down some of the pathetic requests. . . . And then there are threats—crank letters promising every variety of unpleasant death, and kidnap threats suggesting that he'd better leave $100,000 under the fifth culvert of the Boston Post Road next Friday night. Evenings Manville likes to go to a show or a party or a night club. He can't go wandering around alone, though, like an ordinary citizen can do anything on the spur of the moment, or even scrape up an impromptu friendship at a gay spot. . . . Those are reasons why he's inclined to envy the people who are inclined to envy him.

Hotel Service Plus New York hotels, vying with each other in providing special little services, have established Hospitality Desks which will undertake almost anything from selecting a gift for one's aunt Minnie to working out itineraries for sightseeing tours.

Man in town on business usually asks that something be chosen for their wives. If the latter like their remembrances, the husbands get the credit; if they don't, the hospitality desks get the blame. . . . Most frequent question used to be, "What can I get a good drink?" Now it's, "What's the best show or night club?"

Strangers request the Hotel New Yorker ever had was when a guest phoned down to have a shopper hurry over and buy him two glass eyes. Black ones, a right and a left, but the size didn't matter. An official who couldn't contain his curiosity discovered the man wanted to put them in a stuffed fish he had caught in Florida and was sending to a friend in Chicago.

Turning the Tables Walter Chrysler, Jr. who goes bounding around from book publishing to building management to orchestra sponsoring, now has bought a restaurant—the Highburg. Give a big party there the opening night. When the men went to get their hats the checkroom girl made each of them a little speech. She said: "It's been a pleasure to hold your hat this evening. Thanks very much." And with that she'd pass over the hat and coat and would press a dime into the man's hand.

During the Pullman strike in Chicago, in 1934, President Cleveland was forced to send federal troops to that city.

NEEDLEWORK GUILD EMERGENCY WORKER

Local Group Receives 150 Contributed Garments at Thursday's Meeting.

An interesting meeting of the Needlework Guild of Manchester was held Thursday afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. Raymond Walsh of Prospect street. The local organization became a branch of the Hartford Needlework Guild, directed by Miss Mary Taylor of Hartford, last winter. Much interest was taken in the project and a number of women agreed to become directors and in turn interest ten others. The membership requiring the gift of two or more new garments each winter imposes no pressure on anyone. Several of last year's directors have left town or for some other reason are unable to serve. If there are any willing to volunteer for this work, they may confer with the president, the secretary, Mrs. H. B. Learned, or any of the present directors. This year an effort is made through the assistance of the public health and social service nurses, to send garments to cases where there is need of certain articles. Miss Dorothy Buttle of the Public Health Nursing Association submitted a list of garments urgently needed; Mrs. Hannah Quinn, nurse in the public schools, and Miss Jessie Reynolds, social service worker for the town, checked up on their lists, and found they were able to go considerably beyond town charity and Red Cross gifts, with the warm, comfortable wearables brought to the meeting Thursday, such as sweaters, caps and mittens, underwear, hosiery and footwear for children and grown-ups. Principal Elizabeth Bennett of the Barnard school, one of last year's directors, is having girl students at the school work on children's bloomers and dresses and other garments during the sewing classes. Last week a sewing group was formed among the women of Bolton under the direction of Mrs. A. N. Skinner, and they are engaged in making a variety of useful things. The supply of prints and outing flannels furnished to the town charity department by the American Red Cross has been entirely exhausted and no more is in prospect. The Guild has received $10 in currency, and this will be expended, together with any additional sums which may come in, to the best possible advantage. A total of 160 garments was contributed Thursday by the following local people: Mrs. Howard Dowd, Mrs. James McCaw, Mrs. Ray Roberts, Mrs. Harry Straw, Mrs. Jennie Cook, Mrs. J. Frank Bowen, Mrs. G. E. Wallace, Mrs. John Hayden, Mrs. Elwood Walker, Mrs. John Sullivan, Mrs. Arthur Woodbridge, Mrs. Jay Rand, Mrs. E. EX-SENATOR BROOKHART

MANUFACTURERS' GUEST

Ex-Senator Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa, now Foreign Trade adviser to the Agricultural Adjustment Administration in Washington, has just accepted an invitation to address a meeting of Connecticut manufacturers to be held under the auspices of the Foreign Trade Committee of the Manufacturers Association of Connecticut, at the University Club, Bridgeport, 6:30 p. m., Wednesday, January 31. Mr. Brookhart, a fluent speaker, who has never before addressed a Connecticut audience, will talk on the subject of Russia, laying particular stress on the possibilities of future trade with the Soviet. Because the meeting is being held for the benefit of all Connecticut manufacturers interested in the development of U. S.-Russian trade, Association officials felt confident today that Senator Brookhart's message would draw a capacity audience of 200 industrialists and export men.

L. R. Hough, expert manager, the Collins Company, Collinsville, is the only representative of Hartford County on the Foreign Trade Committee.

Queer Twists
In Day's News

Pittsburgh—John Lucot sued the city for injuries received by Mrs. Lucot in a fall on what Lucot contended was a defective sidewalk. The city made the property owners, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Haller, co-defendants and the Hallers in turn made Lucot a co-defendant in his own suit. The court declared a non-suit, which means Lucot lost the suit against himself. Akron, Ohio—A pair of suspects accused of burglary in eight Ohio towns, were arrested here and in the home of one police found an assortment of goods ranging from light bulbs to jewelry, basketballs, and road lanterns. Detective Denny Murray says he became exasperated at the answers of one of the men and slapped him. The man coughed and a diamond ring was added to the collection of goods now held by police. Columbus, Ohio—Federal authorities who would like to get their hands on Frank Braga, 34, accused counterfeit, have received a pleasant letter from him, mailed in Italy. It expressed regret, Federal officers said, that he had to jump $2,000 bond in order to satisfy a "sudden urge to see his wife and two kids," and promised he would return "soon." They will send for him "sooner." Appleton, Wis.—District Attorney F. F. Wheeler, who is a fisherman of repute and veracity, had a bite the other day that gave him his biggest thrill. He said he was fishing through the ice when a large pickerel came to the surface and bit his finger. London—Composers of the 15th Century, including King Henry VI, knew just as much about "Jazz" music as the present generation does, in the opinion of Dom Anselm Hughes of Nashdon Abbey, Burnham, a leading authority on medieval music. Discussing the revival of interest in 500-year-old music, he said it is a little-known fact that Henry VI, was a first class composer, just as years later Henry VIII, was. Seattle—Gordon Phillips was on trial for theft of a motor car. The prosecutor had sought, without success to introduce as evidence burglar tools and weapons allegedly found in possession of Phillips on his arrest. The court had ruled they had no bearing on the case. Then Phillips' attorney asked him: "If acquitted of this charge, are you going straight?" The prisoner replied: "I've been going straight ever since I left the penitentiary at Salem, Oregon." The prosecutor was enabled to introduce the burglar tools as an attack on the prisoner's credibility and obtained a conviction.

PRINCIPALS MEET SCHOOL COMMITTEES

Problem of Towns Without High Schools Being Considered.

The problem of the small towns which must send their boys and girls out of town for high school education was discussed at Wapping on Wednesday by a meeting of the school committees of South Windsor, Ellington and Somers called by Mr. Dunfield, State Supervisor of those towns.

The point of view of the high schools to which their students are sent was presented by Principal Billing and Vice-Principal Bailey of Manchester, Principal Howe of Rockville, and Principal Witt of Stafford. Chairmen of school committees presented their points of view.

The State Department of Education was represented by Commissioner Butterfield, Mr. Collier, and Mr. Dakin.

About The Building

Beware, girls! If you see a very dapper young man coming toward you with a determined expression on his face, make yourself as scarce as possible, for "who is you?" if he gets started as follows:

"Light of my life, apple of my eye, my precious dumpling and sugar plum, I grovel in the dirt at your blessed feet. Life is worthless without your shining nose, or pardon me, I mean face—to spur me on to higher ideals. The thought of what I am about to ask you makes my heart bounce against my tonsils, but I cannot go on any longer in this suspense. Oh gee, will you, or well, would you—could you—say, d'ya want to buy a duck?"

We are all glad to see Claire Stephens back again, almost as well as ever—and we're sorry to see Earl Stevenson not as spry as usual, with his wrist, which he broke skating, all done up.

By the way, at last we've found out why the Arctic nights are so long. The word for "I love you" in the Eskimo language is "Univge-saeruttipititunjuariguetak." Whistle that off on your flute.

No doubt many people were wondering why so many students were rubbing their noses against Watkins window and gazing at the fine display of parlor furniture there, during the past week. However, all this gazing was caused by Mr. Wright, the advertising teacher. Part of the term test he gave his advertising class included judging the display in one of Watkins show windows.

Tables and typewriters have been set up in the new typewriting room and will be ready for occupancy Monday morning. Miss Davis will be in charge of the new room, which will be for advance students only.

Mr. Wright will not teach Business Arithmetic for the second half of this term as was expected. Mr. Millbury, one of our new teachers, will teach this subject. Mr. Wright is going to conduct two bookkeeping and two commercial law classes.

Miss Estes English classes are finding that authors do not get their stories served to them on a silver platter. Each student is trying to discover a plot for a short story, which will soon be due.

"BOOKS"

Many high school pupils in other schools have to pay for their books, but in our school it is different. We are given books, with the intention that we keep them in a good condition. Why do the students write over their books? They are supplied with paper.

Is it just because Johnnie or Jackie has written over theirs and they wish to be like the others? If Jack or John jumped in a lake would you do it because you wanted to be like them? No! don't be like that, have a mind of your own. Let's co-operate, students of Manchester High, and keep our books clean and new. The incoming classes may use them also.

—Alice Madden, '37.

JUST A SUGGESTION

Ada Webb, Margaret Haugh and Kathryn Madden are the other three students of Manchester High who have enough school spirit in them to get out and lead cheers for their school.

These girls have made an impression upon us, and when you think of it, what are those girls getting for cheering? I make a suggestion that these girls be awarded a red letter M.

They are yelling for our school, M. H. S., and we should show our thanks by giving them that which they well deserve—appreciation.

—Alice Madden, '37.

ENJOY THE LUNCH HOUR

I am quite sure that the students of Manchester High should be very grateful and appreciate all that Miss McGuire has done to give them an enjoyable lunch hour. But—what about those unfortunate students who have to go home to lunch and get back just a little after 12:30? They have to stand outside the doors and look longingly in. Why don't they get a "break"? Why can't they go in for a dance or two so that their lunches can be digested also?

AMBITIOUS PLANS FOR GLEE CONTEST

Committee Trying to Get Damrosch for Conductor at Bushnell.

The required selections for the Glee Club contest, to be held May 16, have been chosen, and work on the selections has already begun. The two required numbers are "As Torrents in Summer" for the girls' voices and "Lusban Folk Song" which should be followed by every-one who wishes to make a success of his life.

Mr. Bailey, who will probably have a great deal to do with these graduates during their first year in high school, presented two problems which will meet every student: First, which opportunity to seize, and second, when to seize it. He also welcomed the graduates to Manchester High school.

Mr. Illing, who will be their guide through the three last years in high school, gave some advice. He warned that every student must put as much into his work as he expects to get out of it.

Mr. Verplanck, handicapped by the partial loss of his voice, stressed one point, that no student at a school in Manchester receives a diploma without having earned it, and anyone who receives a diploma should get a great satisfaction in knowing that he has earned it.

At the presentation of diplomas, Mr. Verplanck, the student body sang "A Song of Praise."

MISS GERTRUDE GERARD IS DANCING IN TEXAS

Leads Famous Dancers in Trip West—To Tour Through the Middle West.

Why join the Navy to see the world? Just follow the dancing footsteps of Gertrude Gerard, M. H. S. Almost before the echo of her words in the graduation pageant had died away, Gertrude was a professional dancer—one of the exclusive Albertina Rasch girls. As one of this group she appeared in New York, Chicago, and lesser cities with Queenie Smith in "The Little Racketeer" and with Ed Wynne in his "Laugh Parade."

At present, Gertrude is doing solo dancing with the equally-famous Chester Hale girls in San Antonio, Texas, with plans for touring the middle west. Of Texas, Gertrude writes, "It's marvelous here—very different—I love it. Real cowboys and Mexicans. More fun!"

H. S. ORCHESTRA ENSEMBLE TO PLAY FOR "PENROD"

The High School Orchestra Ensemble, which is under the direction of Harold Turkington, will play before the curtain rises and between the acts of the Booth Tarkington play, "Penrod", to be presented by the Community Players on two evenings, February 6 and 7, at the Whiton Memorial hall. This will be the second play for which the orchestra ensemble has played; the first being "Peg O' My Heart," which was presented by the Community Players at the new Community House in Wapping.

MID-YEAR CLASS LEAVES GRADES

Grammar School Graduation Exercises Held Thursday Afternoon.

The upper division of the eighth grade of Barnard school, which will constitute the lower Freshman Class of Manchester High school, held its graduation exercises in the auditorium of the Nathan Hale school at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon. The speakers were Mr. Verplanck, Mr. Illing, Mr. Bailey, and Mr. Echmuller. The class will become Freshmen Monday.

The graduating class, numbering around 100 students, filed in and took their places to the music of the Barnard school orchestra, which is under the direction of Miss Catherine Shea. While they marched in, the audience stood, in respect to the graduates.

First were two numbers sung by the entire chorus: "Singing" and "The Hike."

Following this was presented a sketch in which four pilgrims meet the Spirit of Education and are admonished to persevere, to use leisure time to the best advantage, to discover all the loveliness which can be found in life, and to make the most of every occasion which presents itself.

Barbara Lundberg took the part of the Spirit of Education and the four pilgrims were: Sherwood Badington, Blanche Gatt, Kenneth Morrison and Louise Burr.

To illustrate the different pastimes which can occupy one's leisure time, several students displayed their talents in interesting manner. Blanche Gatt recited an original poem entitled "Leisure Time" which showed marked maturity. Betty Woodruff played a cello solo entitled "Contentia". Gladys Addy and Jeanette Paton sang a vocal duet, "Alice in Wonderland". Robert Pratt played "Silver Threads Among the Gold" as a violin solo, and Blanche Gatt sang "Little Sing-A-Lee."

Turning from the individual features, the Barnard School Glee club, under the direction of Miss Mary Sweeney and Miss Mabel Keith, rendered three numbers. The Boys' Club sang "Blue Bells of Scotland" and the girls' club sang "Opposite Winds", and then combined to sing "Brahm's Lullaby."

The first guest speaker was Mr. John Echmuller, Director of the Manchester State Trade school. He spoke of the ideals of men: gratitude, loyalty, and truthfulness, which should be followed by everyone who wishes to make a success of his life.

Mr. Bailey, who will probably have a great deal to do with these graduates during their first year in high school, presented two problems which will meet every student: First, which opportunity to seize, and second, when to seize it. He also welcomed the graduates to Manchester High school.

Mr. Illing, who will be their guide through the three last years in high school, gave some advice. He warned that every student must put as much into his work as he expects to get out of it.

GETTING UP

You may wonder what I mean by this title. I don't mean getting up a tree or in an airplane, nothing as exciting as that. I mean just getting up in the morning.

When I first started school, I was always an excellent student. I'm afraid it always will be. I have enough will power to go to the dentist, to walk up to a teacher and say, "I didn't do my homework," but I haven't the will power and courage to get up in the morning without being called at least six times. It doesn't make any difference whether it is six o'clock or twelve, my mother has to call me anyhow.

When I first started school, my mother had to lift me bodily from bed and stand me on my feet. It has become mechanical now for me to get up when she has called the fifth time, and grant, "I'm up."

I didn't hear the sixth. I got dressed, eat, and went to school, about ten o'clock I am finally awakened by pangs of hunger.

I've read books on will power, how to get what you want and control of your senses. I've memorized their rules. One of them, "remember," says "Keep repeating a desire and you will obtain it." So obediently I went to bed repeating, "I'm going to get up at six forty-five." "I'm going to get up at six forty-five." "I'm going to get up at six forty-five."

When that plan failed, I thought I'd try the good old fashioned alarm clock method. I set the clock for forty and went to sleep contentedly. I awoke at ten forty-five. It was Saturday so it was all right. The alarm clock apparently had rung but I didn't hear it.

The only reliable thing to get me up is my mother's voice. When she calls the sixth time, "I'm up."

—Doris Tomm, '34.

PIPE DREAMS

Maybe this depression will stop me from actually boarding the "Bremen," but it can't last till 1946 and it can't stop me from being the toast of Paris, the girl who rode a clock want to hear the story? It happened when Maurice Schnozlebrain, one of the beauty hunters from Paramount, arrived unexpectedly in Manchester on January 1. After seeing me in school, he quickly snatched me, boarded an airplane and flew to that gay place known as Hollywood, and all in a shake of a lamb's tail, I find myself being starred in "Night Life Rhaphody."

Well, wishes are very cheap, and I guess imagination is not much an expense either—"Yes, Miss Wilcox; pugno, pugnare, pugnatus." (Guess I'm good for a B this marking period.)

—Marian Behrend, '37B.

A GRANDFATHER CLOCK

My aunt has a "grandfather" clock which stands by the chair near the door.

It does not go "tick-tock, tick-tock." They are not made that way any more.

"It's an electric clock, with a radio below."

Below seems to mock the long ago; But, really, I pine For a real old sign Of the days I never will know.

—Frances Miner, '37B.

TAME SQUIRRELS

Although squirrels are very timid it is not impossible to tame them. One day as I was walking through a park, I saw many tame squirrels running around. As I was watching feeding the squirrels some nuts. While the man was doing this, the squirrels noticed that the nuts were in his pocket. So when the man became tired of feeding the squirrels they jumped up to where he was sitting and ate the rest of the nuts out of his pocket.

ALUMNUS TEACHING COMIC CARTOONING

Ray Pratt Has 10 Students in Studio at High School Wednesdays.

For the past two weeks an art class which is specializing in comic cartooning has been in progress at the local high school. This class is being supervised by the artist Raymond "Ambrose" Pratt, '32, a former football tackle for the Red and White, who is widely known in high school circles.

The group which has its session every Wednesday afternoon in Miss Condon's art studio has already an enrollment of approximately ten enthusiastic cartoonists.

Through proper training and adequate experience Ray is well qualified to act in this capacity. Instructions will continue until the end of the present school term.

"I hope that sometime in the near future some of my pupils will be able to submit cartoons for the High School World," remarked Mr. Pratt.

—Thomas J. Chara.

SWIM AT BROOKTON

The Manchester High swimming team traveled to Brookton, Mass., today to meet the Brookton Y. M. C. A. tankers. Brookton is Coach Johnson's home town and the M. H. S. squad will extend themselves to turn in a victory. This is the first meet of the season, the team having lost to Conn. State Jayvees and winning over Meriden.

FIND MANY VALUES IN CIVICS CLASS

Students Cite Varied Points in Favor of the Present Course.

Information, ideals of behavior, practical application of ideals, and even a premonition of the "cold and cruel" aspects of the world have resulted from the Freshman Civics course.

In answer to the examination question, "Discuss one thing you have learned in this course," one Freshman writes, "I am able to discuss inflation and deflation whereas previous to this course I had a hard time to do this. We have just been through the depression, and I have learned that the prices were low. President Roosevelt hopes to bring around inflation. The price of goods will be high and there will be more money in circulation."

The psychology of a situation is not lost on the Freshman who says, "In this course I have learned that cooperation is one of the necessities of life; that is, inside and outside of school. If there is no cooperation one cannot possibly accomplish anything. Cooperation is not to be understood as a giving in to others' suggestions. But to agree or disagree in the right manner."

The rocky road to learning may be taken at an accelerated pace by the student who knows: "The easy learner is the good listener. This quotation was not in our text book but has helped me in many ways to get better marks in other subjects, and I'm sure it would help anyone who takes stock in what it says and means."

"Do noble deeds not dream them all day long" is doubtless the motto of the practical young person who wrote: "One thing I have learned in this course is that you must be independent. Before I came into this class I looked forward to a weekly allowance from my parents and when I got it I spent it right away. After we studied about being dependent on yourself, I thought it would be a good idea to save my allowance and now I have enough saved to buy myself a whole new outfit instead of depending on my mother."

Hard reality will be no surprise to him who has learned: "I learned in this course that there were many different things in life and you must have a future or you may be giving a hard luck story all of the time. I also learned the steps of the government which I never could understand. The teacher discussed the work thoroughly and I now know that one's life is not an easy one."

PUBLISHED POEM WINS FRIENDSHIP

Freshman Author Hears from Girl in Small Indiana High School.

When Felicia Pietrowski, also known as "Jeane" wrote a poem which was published in the Child Life Magazine about two years ago, she was a student in a small Indiana high school. The poem was written and sent to Felicia. Felicia answered her letter and found out many interesting facts about rural Indiana life. The girl has a typical farm name—Mary Ellen Turnipseed.

Felicia, receiving a letter a few days ago, was excited to read it in the English class. Among the interesting things we heard were that Mary Ellen Turnipseed attended a school in which one hundred and fifty pupils were enrolled. This school included grammar grades, junior high school and senior high school. Mary stated that her father, times went hunting with her sometimes, but spent most of her time aiming at tin cans.

This is the third "pen pal" Felicia has made through her poem in the Child Life Magazine. The other two were from Arizona and Texas, respectively.

HISTORY STUDDED WITH GOLD TALES

Since Dawn of Civilization Yellow Metal Has Figured in Stirring Stories.

New York, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Since civilization's dawn days, gold has caused men to do deeds heroic and morose.

But always, whatever they did, gold was in the background.

It shaped the course of events, it built and destroyed nations, it built and destroyed friendships.

Gold was one of the prime subjects of Grecian mythology. Jason led a filibustering expedition in his good ship Argonaut and brought back the golden fleece. Gold proved a boomerang to King Midas.

Three golden apples gave swift-footed Atalanta an alibi for losing a race to Hippomenes. One by one, Hippomenes tossed the apples at the feet of Atalanta; she stopped to pick them up. Hippomenes married Atalanta.

When First Used

History shows that gold was first used by man about 20 centuries before Christ. That was during the bronze age, when the art of smelting became known.

Its course was westward. From the east, India probably, the Phoenicians carried it to Egypt. The early use of gold was ornamental. Ancient tombs bear treasures of gold; archeologists find golden trinkets apparently used as offerings for gods.

Claudius Celsus sold his country for gold to Caesar the Dictator. Polymnestor, King of Thrace, killed his brother-in-law to get his gold.

Spanish Conquerors

The Spaniards conquered and settled the new world of Eldorado. Cortes destroyed the Aztecs of Mexico in his quest for riches. Pizarro did the same thing to the Incas of Peru and for the same reason.

Through the Middle Ages, the alchemists worked to transmute base metals to gold. They never succeeded, but their experiments led to many and important chemical discoveries.

There is no record of the miles walked by children to find the pot of gold that lies at the end of the rainbow.

The search for Eldorado never has ceased. Back in 1848, in California, a "pretty stone" was found. The big rush was on. Hence the annual Rose Bowl football games, and a new era in Chamber of Commerce activities.

Gold in Alaska

Almost a half century later, "gold in Alaska" was the call to pick up shovels. Thousands invaded the Klondike, froze to death, starved, shot each other and found wealth.

Whatever happens, men don't relax in their efforts to get gold. The U. S. Bureau of Mines has estimated that from 1493 to 1932 the total world gold production has been 1,080,000,000 ounces. Annual production has not varied greatly in recent years.

Of this amount, a comparatively small portion has been used for monetary purposes. Most of it is used by the art and industries—to gild cathedral domes and cure bad teeth.

The monetary gold stocks of the world have shifted like a medicine ball among the leading nations recently.

Yesterday's statements showed that the Bank of England has $722,000,000 of the bank of France, 77,160,000,000 francs, the United States $3,559,968,000.

IN MORE than 5,000 cities in the United States there is to be held on Tuesday, January 30th, a Birthday Ball in honor of President Roosevelt, the day of his 52nd birthday.

It is a graceful and gratifying compliment to the President that his birthday be dedicated to such a worthy cause. There will be no general solicitation to the fund authorized nor will contributions be accepted in any form other than from the sale of tickets for The Birthday Party from which source a major portion will be transmitted to the Infantile Paralysis Foundation.

Pequot War Saved Early Connecticut From Destruction

Strategy of Colony's First Military Hero, Capt. John Mason, Successful; Tribe Fiercest to Conquer in the East.

There might never have existed a State of Connecticut or at least its development would probably have been seriously delayed if it had not been for a decision made by the General Court on May 1, 1637, to prosecute an offensive war against the fiercest of all the Indian tribes in this section of the country, the Pequots, whose intensions were to wipe out all white settlers from the Connecticut River valley.

Moreover, the war against these blood-thirsty natives in a wild land which they knew perfectly and of which the English knew little was probably not to have been successful if it had not been for Connecticut's first military hero, the courageous and strategically skillful, Captain John Mason. Mason out-fought the fierce and wily Pequots in their own country, annihilated practically the whole tribe and put an everlasting fear of white men in their Indian heart.

Why this war was waged; how John Mason beguiled the redskins into a false sense of security only to attack them with a surprise raid which resulted victoriously; how the English were aided by their chaplain Rev. Samuel Stone—and, in fact, all of the exciting details of Connecticut's first war—are told in a brief but gripping narrative by Howard Bradstreet, published in pamphlet form by the Committee on Historical Publications of the Connecticut Tercentenary Commission.

Mr. Bradstreet's story bears the title, "The Story of the War with the Pequots, 1637." It is one of the pamphlets published by the Tercentenary Commission to furnish a comprehensive picture of the life, struggles and customs of Connecticut, so that the people of the State will understand the full significance of the three hundredth anniversary of the founding of the State, which will be celebrated in 1935. Any or all of the pamphlets may be obtained for a nominal cost by addressing the Yale University Press, New Haven.

According to Mr. Bradstreet's story, the causes of the War with the Pequots, which was declared only a year after the arrival in Connecticut of Rev. Thomas Hooker and his flock, were a series of murders of white settlers by the Indians and reprisals by the Dutch at New York and the English from Massachusetts Bay. After each reprisal by the Indians, the English invariably wrecked their vengeance on the members of the little Connecticut Valley.

To have a clear picture of the courage of the Connecticut settlers in waging this war, it must be remembered that the colony at the time consisted of only three tiny settlements, Windsor, Hartford and Wethersfield, and the fort which had been erected at the mouth of the Connecticut River at Saybrook. Man power was very limited and none of the soldiers had had experience against Indian methods of fighting. True, the white man had his crude firearms of the day, but this served only to offset somewhat the superiority of the red man. The strategy of the English was to bring about the happy result.

Lon Gardiner in charge of the Saybrook fort had tried to dissuade the expedition from taking vengeance on the Pequots for the murders of Captain Stone and other Englishmen, saying: "You have come to raise a nest of hornets about our ears, and none of you flee away," but his words were unheeded. The expedition destroyed the Pequot village on Block Island and then wiped out another village on the mainland, the Indians escaping in two canoes.

Infuriated, the red men began a series of depredations upon the Connecticut settlements, culminating in April, 1637, with a surprise attack on Wethersfield where they killed or captured six children, destroyed cattle and took with them two girls. Flying the shirts and smocks of their victims on poles, they paddled defiantly past the Saybrook fort and returned to their home land between the Thames and Mystic rivers.

war, particularly those emanating from the Massachusetts Colony, there was some attempt to distract from the deeds of Mason and his men and to give the glory to the soldiers from the Bay settlements who had been associated with him. This developed some dispute, but in his own memoirs, Mason modestly desired that some small glimmering may be left to Posterity what Difficulties and Obstructions their forefathers met with in their first settling these desert parts of America. I desire my name may be sparingly mentioned; my principal aim is that God may have his due praise.

asked permission to make their way by land to the fort. Mason granted this and Uncas arrived at the fort first. Gardiner, too, was suspicious of the Mohegan alliance. As a test, he asked Uncas to pursue and kill or capture six Pequots who had been seen paddling up a nearby stream. The Mohegans quickly accomplished this, killing five of the Pequots and bringing back one alive.

Meanwhile, Mason's men expecting an attack by the Mohegans had almost every bend in the river had neared the fort. Gardiner sent Captain John Underhill up the river to meet them with the news of Uncas' proof of allegiance. Uncas' boats on the three boats as the men were kneeling on the deck praying with Chaplain Stone that God would give a sign. Thus, the glad tidings arrived that the psychological momentum to give them new courage and faith.

The party was reorganized at Daybrook and during the delay the two girls captured at Wethersfield were returned by Dutch traders who had ransomed them from the Pequots. They gave Mason much valuable information concerning the tribe and his tribe, most important of which was that the Pequots were on the watch for the English attack. This proved to Mason that to attempt a landing directly into the Pequot country would be disastrous and the General Court ordered this method of procedure. To follow orders would mean calamity, but to disobey them was unthinkable for a trained soldier.

The expedition sailed from Saybrook on a Friday morning. It sailed slowly eastward until it reached the entrance of the Pequot (New London) harbor. Here the English could see the Indians gathering on the shore and hear their shouts of defiance. The Indian plan had been to surround the English vessels in their canoes as they neared the shore, to shoot clouds of arrows among them and to destroy them in the resultant confusion. When the white men opened fire, the Indians were afraid of the Pequots. The Indians shouted and danced in triumph. They felt that they were well attended meetings last Tuesday. Pennsylvania Soldiers Bonus Legislation has been introduced in the Pennsylvania Legislature which calls for payment of a bonus to certain veterans and their dependents. Just as soon as the Legislature is enacted into law, full and detailed information will be available at V. F. W. National headquarters.

A letter has been received from Major Bannigan, manager Newington Veterans hospital, thanking Anderson-Shea Post for contributions of reading material for the hospital patients. Pension Claims. It has come to the attention of the National headquarters that many veterans are being solicited by attorneys who represent themselves as pension specialists in pension claims. The average pension or compensation claim does not require the services of an attorney, and only in very rare cases does a widow's claim require such service. The Veterans of Foreign Wars, through its Washington office, is fully qualified to advise members of the V. F. W. on this matter with Post Liaison Officer, or the Post Commander if you have any questions on your right for compensation or pension.

Conrade Joseph Barr who has been in the past three weeks removed to the Memorial hospital last Sunday. Since then he has shown improvement. Conrade Harry Stevenson is also confined at his home through illness. A visit to his comrades would be appreciated. The Edith Cavell Command of Hartford have moved from their club rooms on Heath street and are now located in the former V. F. W. building at the corner of State and Market streets.

In a broadcast address, in London on Armistice Day, Mayor-General Sir Fabian Ware, vice chairman of the Imperial War Graves Commission, said that 200,000 of the million dead of the Empire were stragglers to arms when the war cloud burst but yet as soldiers they died, and as soldiers they had been saluted. "In one column, four abreast," he said, "they would march past the Cenotaph."

The Welfare Sewing Circle of the Auxiliary met at the home of Mrs. James Thompson last Tuesday and a very pleasant time was enjoyed by all present. Another meeting will be held Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Duke on Pearl street. We extend our sympathy to Mrs. Joseph Blawie who is confined at the Manchester Memorial hospital through illness. We also sympathize with Mrs. Harry Stevenson whose husband is confined with illness at his home on Walnut street. Mrs. Florence Thompson who has been suffering with a cold, is recovering rapidly.

The Auxiliary is making plans for a series of card parties which will commence in the very near future. Mr. and Mrs. George Hardie, who sold their farm here last spring and went to live with their daughter in Baltimore, Md., are spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Hart E. Buell. Their daughter died and they expect to remain in Connecticut. They haven't decided where but are looking for a small farm. Mrs. Floyd Fogli has been teaching this week in the Primary room at the Hebron Center school as she was ill in the teacher's family.

County Y fosters civics study here. Authorities on Various Subjects Volunteer to Teach Post-High School Youth.

The local committee which under the sponsorship of the County Y. M. C. A. is arranging for the course of study in problems in municipal government, with special reference to Manchester, today announced their progress in its plans. It is planned that similar courses shall be given throughout the County but the Manchester project is first. The course is designed especially for young men just over high school age, who in better times might have had opportunity of continuing their studies in college. It is so outlined that at the end of the student should have an understanding of how the local government is run, how it compares with the governments of municipalities of comparable size in the state, what are the peculiar problems of local government and what are the relations between the local government and the state government.

This is not to be a lecture course, but will be conducted as a round-table seminar in which the students will exchange views and have the opportunity of discussing a particular subject of study with some authority in that field. Fifteen detailed subjects have been outlined, including population, homes, industries, cost of living, general government, political organization, reaction, education, protective agencies, community organizations and leaders, political organizations and leaders, the individual in relation to the town.

The current subject will be announced each week in advance and a committee named to prepare and report on the research material. This committee with an "out" speaker or "consultant" who is an authority on that particular subject will lead the discussion. Charles Oliver of Manchester, a graduate of Connecticut State College, will be the leader of the course. He will assist in the preparation of the material and conduct of the meetings. Mr. Oliver and the men who have been assisting him have already arranged for an excellent visiting "faculty" for the course. Those who have already promised their co-operation and who will be present to aid in the study of the subjects of which they are special authorities include: Howard Bradstreet, director of adult education for the city of Hartford, who will assist in the study of the topic "Population"; William Blawie, former commissioner for the state of Connecticut and now a practicing attorney in Hartford specializing in tax problems, who will discuss "Cost of Government and Taxation"; Victor R. G. C. Y. Moore, chairman of the Manchester Board of Health, who will assist in the work on "Health Protection"; George Waddell, clerk of the Board of Selectmen, who will aid in the discussion of "General Government Organization"; Fire Chief Albert B. G. C. Y. Moore, who will assist in the study of "Protective Agencies"; Dr. Edward G. DeLan, Collector of Internal Revenue for the state of Connecticut and prominent Democrat, who will sit in with the group in the study of political organizations and leaders; and present and future members of the Democratic Party compared with those of the Republican Party, which will be represented by some leader of that party not yet selected; Rev. J. M. C. Y. Moore, secretary of the Hartford County Y. M. C. A., who will assist in the study of "Recreational Opportunities."

The committee is now in communication with several other prominent men and with several professors at Connecticut State College and hopes soon to be able to announce the full list of the "faculty" for the course. As previously announced, the enrollment in the course will be limited in order that it may be conducted along the course should see seminar or round-table discussion in which each member will participate. Since the first announcement of the course last week several men have enrolled but there is still an opportunity to register before the organization meeting of the course, which will be on Thursday night, February 1, at 7:30. Through the courtesy of the Center church the meeting will be held in the Center church parish house and at that meeting final organization plans will be completed and a permanent meeting night selected. As the "faculty" members are making no charge for their services there will be no tuition charge for the course.

Local young men who would like to register in the course should see Charles Oliver, 22 Greenhill street, (telephone 3728), or Charles S. House, 50 Center street (telephone 4455), or at his office in the House and Hale Building (telephone 4089).

Married. MABEL McELLIOTT. GYPSY MORELL and TOM WEAVER are married on the same day as LILA HOTALING and DEREK BLISS, but Lila expects to live in luxury, while Gypsy keeps her job teaching in a settlement school.

Gypsy has to struggle to keep expenses within Tom's income. Another problem is Tom's jealousy of wealthy MARIO BROUGHTON who once asked Gypsy to marry him and whom they meet at the Blisses' home. When the doctor tells Gypsy she is to have a baby she gives up her job. Summer comes on and is intensely hot. Gypsy and Tom move to cottage on Long Island owned by a friend.

Lila makes an unexpected call at the cottage. She seems restless and discontented and for the first time Gypsy is sorry for her instead of envying her. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY. CHAPTER XXI. The summer waned all too swiftly. Blue days, golden days there were in August, when Gypsy found her arms afloat for sheer joy in living; when there was not a cloud in the sky; when the borders blazed with phlox and larkspur and zinnias; when the nights were drenched with dew and you awakened to cool, scented breezy mornings.

There never was such a summer. The Morells came over from Blue Hills in the shabby car and there were picnics on the grass under the laden apple trees. Steaks were broiled over the crude outdoor oven. Tom rushed home early, exulting in the luxury of his own vine and fig tree, and there were two wonderful weeks when he was home altogether. "Of course, it isn't a real vacation," Gypsy sighed, "but it's more fun for him than for herself. But it's fun anyway."

The corn ripened under the sun along the highways. The fruit hung heavy on the trees. Hay was stacked in golden tents in the fields. And on one gorgeous day in late September Gypsy's child was born. She had been rushed to the city hospital the night before. For 10 long hours she had writhed in pain, digging her nails into her flesh, trying to stifle the cries that wrung from her throat. At 8 o'clock the baby's wail sounded and the watchful young husband, pacing the corridor outside, sagged against the dented walls in an agony of relief.

"It's over, it's over," he whispered. When they allowed him to see her an hour later she was lying white and seemingly broken in the narrow bed. Only her eyes were alive, moving alertly in her tanned young face. "Tommy... oh, darling!" Tears of weakness ran down her cheeks and his own eyes watered in sympathy. "Was it so terrible, dearest?" He had her hands in his. His eyes were roving anxiously over her dear, familiar features. "She shut her eyes, on a long sigh. 'Let me see the baby?'"

"Not yet, honey. The nurse said..." A figure in striped and crackling fabric glistened in "Time's up, Mr. Weaver. This young lady must get some sleep." And he had to go, after a kiss and a whispered admonition. "She's all right. She's perfectly fine," the doctor told him. "She looks marvelous splendidly." But Tom was not convinced. His office mates called him robustly on his grimaces. "As if they knew what it was all about," the poor fellow thought wretchedly, wincing to the cry of the long night and Gypsy's smothered cries. But afterward, when they brought the child to him that evening, and he gazed upon him—his own son—his spirits mounted. It was going to be all right—it was going to be all right! And Gypsy and the little fellow! Why, that was an unbestable combination.

"Isn't he the darlingest...?" It was a week later and the baby, a bundle of pink blanket and muslin, with only the top of a rosy head showing, lay on Gypsy's arm. Her curls were freshly brushed, her eyes had the peculiar deep, lambent glow that comes to young mothers just out of the shadowy valley. Tom had eyes only for her. "Isn't he the sweetest, most adorable little fellow?" Tom Weaver, not paying attention to your son! You're not listening to a word I say."

He grinned at her. "He's a wonder. But honestly, Gypsy, do you think he's much to look at, right now? I was admiring you. Do you mind?" "Silly!" She pretended to be annoyed, ignoring the flattery. "He's the most beautiful thing God ever made! Aren't you, precious? Aren't you the most beautiful thing God ever made? Look at his little hands, Tommy. Marvelous!" "Your mother says he's like the Glynns," said Tom slyly. "But I say he's the living image of my great Uncle Tobias!" Gypsy looked up quickly, to say with pride. "Why, Tommy, he looks like no one else in the world but you. How could anyone say he looks like Uncle Tobias? Dreadful old man!" Tom roared, delighted at the way she had risen to the bait. Of course David Morell Weaver was the very image of his father! Of course he was handsome! And of course one day, in the march of time, he'd be president.

"You're the most extraordinary girl," Tom murmured. "Last year you were just a kid, dancing, playing a full-fledged parent, bristling and everything." "You stop teasing me," Gypsy told him with dignity. "I am now a full-time mother, with no sense of humor where my child is concerned." The McKinnons had returned from

500 REPORTERS NEEDED TO COVER WASHINGTON

Over 50,000 Words Daily Are Sent Out by Associated Press Alone; How the Big News Is Gathered.

Washington, Jan. 27.—(AP)—The 500 reporters, editors, correspondents and columnists who cover "the world's biggest news front" are turning out bulletins, dispatches, stories and feature articles at a rate which indicates the National capital's 1934 output of news may outstrip that of record-breaking 1933. From Washington this country there goes daily a tremendous volume of news recounting the myriad activities of the President, Congress and the "New Deal's" far-flung battery of governmental agencies. Foreign correspondents, too, are sending the press of other lands extraordinarily large reports on the unprecedented American political and economic experiment.

Dispatches that a few years ago would have been accorded front page position in the newspapers are crowded inside these days by "hotter" and more significant developments in the colossal recovery program and its ramifications. After a year of almost daily "smash" developments, readers and gatherers of news now look at many big stories as commonplace.

On an ordinarily busy day with Congress in session, the Washington bureau of the Associated Press, alone, sends about 50,000 words by telegraph and 6,000 words by mail. Some 460 press association and newspaper men and women in Washington are entitled to admission to press galleries of the Senate and the House while between 150 and 200 usually attend a conference of President Roosevelt with the press. Ten years ago the number accredited to the press galleries of Congress was 270.

The A. P. Bureau, largest press association staff in the world, has 86 editors and reporters as compared with a personnel of 20 ten years ago. Six seasoned men of the general news staff cover Congress regularly—teletype machines, horse telegraph and a telephone dictation system speeding the news to the bureau for relay over leased wires to all parts of the country. Twenty-six regional reporters also cover Congressional activities for the Associated Press as well as other capacity news of particular interest to the sections they represent.

Some Big Stories. Big stories out of Washington early in the New Year have included: President Roosevelt's announcement to Congress that the "New Deal" was here to stay. The President's budget message calling for the tremendous expenditure of $10,500,000,000 this year and predicting a public debt of $31,834,000,000 by June 30, 1935. Announcement of the 60-50 cent dollar revaluation program and the proposed seizure by the Federal Treasury of all monetary gold in the country.

The Supreme Court's decision upholding emergency power of the state in a mortgage and the mortgage moratorium of some as the first test of the constitutionality of "New Deal" measures. The shake-up in the Democratic National committee following the President's statement that he disapproved the lawyers lobbying activities of members of the committee. Testimony of postal clerk that official files of Walter F. Brown were drafted while the latter was postmaster general.

Congress's extension of the life of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation until Feb. 1, 1935, and its grant to R. F. C. of an additional $50,000,000. The executive order liberalizing veterans' compensation and providing $21,000,000 additional for war veterans. The enactment of the liquor "tax bill." The report of Joseph B. Eastman, transportation coordinator, urging eventual acquisition of railroads by the Federal government.

Recognition by the United States of the Cuban government of President Carlos Mendianta. Administrator Hopkins' order for drastic reduction in the force of Civil Works employes. The resignation of Secretary Woodin and the appointment of Henry Morgenthau Jr. as head of the Treasury Department.

Overnight A. P. News. Boston—Strike of Boston laborers in effect three weeks, and a trawler and dragger crews vote to accept proposals of vessel owners; the laborers claim a victory. Boston—Harry C. Palm Beach, Fla.—Mrs. Flora Arbella Fuller, 74, mother of former Governor Alvan T. Fuller of Massachusetts dies.

Minnesota during the early part of Gypsy's hospital sojourn, so it was to the apartment instead of to the little house that the young Weavers brought David Morell. They arrived there one brisk October morning, squired by a slow plump, talkative individual who had been recommended by Doctor McGuire as a practical nurse. And immediately the tempo of life changed. The hospital had been quiet. Gypsy had looked forward to coming home—but at least the routine had been precise and ordered. The baby had gone back to his nursery after every feeding and the young mother had known nothing of the routine of baths, diapers and airings.

Now everything was different. Mrs. Burby was inefficient though amiable. Gypsy's own room was a welter of powder cans, safety pins, folded small garments and a basketette which seemed to overshadow everything else. The kitchen was a boiling cauldron of heat. There were potatoes, half of them spoiled in the sink. There were rags, towels, soiled dishes everywhere.

At the end of the second week of this Gypsy's patience broke. She said desperately: "I can't stand it any longer, Tom. You'll have to go down into an agency and get a maid. I'm strong enough to bath baby myself now. We'll let her go in the morning." But she looked about her in despair the morning of Mrs. Burby's departure.

"I don't know where to begin," she said wearily. The living room was dusty, the chairs were all in the wrong places, pictures were everywhere. There were half dead flowers in the blue vase. The kitchen was piled high with soiled clothes, week-old newspapers. There were crumbs on stove and sink. The coffee pot with a scrub of grounds on spout and lid, stood on the window sill.

It was the first morning Gypsy had got out of bed before breakfast, under doctor's orders. Young Mrs. Burby had been so kind as to do her old summer prints and, having assured herself that the baby was warm and wasn't in a draft, she attacked the kitchen. "Wasn't Tom coming back? Would he have to stifle the cries that wrung from her throat. At 8 o'clock the baby's wail sounded and the watchful young husband, pacing the corridor outside, sagged against the dented walls in an agony of relief.

"It's over, it's over," he whispered. When they allowed him to see her an hour later she was lying white and seemingly broken in the narrow bed. ## MID WEST FANS HAIL KRAUSE AS BEST CAGER

Notre Dame Athlete Has Been Chosen for All-Inter-collegiate Teams for the Last Two Years.

South Bend, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Midwest fans are proclaiming Big Ed (Moose) Krause, center and captain of the Notre Dame basketball team, the greatest college player in the country this year.

For the past two seasons he has been an all-American selection, and this year—his last—he is better than ever. For all at six feet six, three inches and 212 pounds, he is fast and light on his feet and a sharp-shooter.

He is the big reason why Notre Dame has performed so sensationally on the hardwood this winter. No team has been able to stop his pet point maker—a one-handed hook shot. In ten games he scored 99 points. Last year he made 213 points.

Football and Track Star Not only does Krause star in basketball, but he was an all-American football tackle in 1932. He also throws the javelin, shot and discus for the track and field team.

Fine basketball teams from Northwestern, Kalamazoo College, Purdue, University of Arizona, Michigan State and Marquette have tried to stop Krause, and players in all those quintets will attest to Krause's skill.

Krause is a genius at making opposing teams fou him. Playing Butler, Missouri Valley Conference champions last season, Notre Dame's victory was aided by Krause's pet Krause used all his tricks to put out two opposing centers on personal fouls. The third Butler center that night was well on his way out, too, when the game ended, having three personal fouls against him.

His one-handed hook shot is no wild effort to ring the ball. He does it too frequently, being aided by exceptionally large hands. He is known as a smart, heady player who has mastered all of the tricks. Under his hand he has a ball, and it was his own individual work that defeated Michigan State after three overtime periods, 34 to 33. With Notre Dame trailing by one point and 15 seconds to go, he got the ball and sent it spinning through the hoop for a victory. He counted 11 points in an overtime period yesterday.

Krause is a Lithuanian. His home is in Chicago, where he played with De LaSalle's National Catholic champions, winning all-tournament honors. He is 20 years old.

ARROWS OUTLAST WEST SIDE ORIOLES

Win in Overtime Tilt 23 to 22 With Bycholski Starring.

The Arrows of the North End outlasted the Orioles of the West Side 23-22 in an overtime period yesterday. Bycholski of the Arrows was the star of the game, scoring the winning basket that gave the Arrows the game.

The timely baskets of Grimason, F. Blanchard and Pongratz kept the Orioles in the running. Kerr and Vitner's floorwork was an important factor throughout the game.

This win gives the Arrows the best two out of three games. The box score:

WRESTLING IN N. Y. NOW UNDER A CODE

Scratching, Gouging, Striking and Even Joe Savoldi's Kick Is Out.

New York, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Wrestling will operate under a new code in New York state henceforth under a brand new set of regulations designed to eliminate some of the admitted evils of the grunt and groin industry.

Chief items in the new code: As before, wrestling matches still are regarded as exhibitions, but any bout may be labeled a "contest" if the New York Athletic Commission gives special permission.

All wrestlers must be paid by check, with a minimum of $10 per match.

Promoters must keep books, open to commission scrutiny at all times. All wrestlers must wear shoes.

Drop Kick Out Scratching, striking, gouging, butting, strangling, Joe Savoldi's special, the "drop-kick" and the deliberate tossing of an opponent out of the ring, all are fouls and wrestlers who commit them may have their licenses revoked.

Promoters or match-makers are forbidden to act as managers. Promoters are forbidden to discriminate against any grappler.

Bouts may be extended beyond the 11 p. m. time limit, if the inspector assigned to all shows gives permission.

Object of Code In a general way the code seeks to break up wrestling troupes, syndicated match making, and payment of salaries to wrestlers, instead of purses.

"We have to take this matter of wrestling very seriously," said General John J. Phelan, commission chairman, in promulgating the new rules. "Because the state law governing both boxing and wrestling lays down definite regulations. We have the power to classify wrestling as an exhibition. We thus avoid the impossible task of trying to determine how much of it is genuine and how much otherwise. But we cannot avoid responsibility of regulation put up on us by the state."

Since wrestling here is on an exhibition basis, the commission pointed out the question of honesty of effort was not an issue.

Cheerio! British Find Vertical Ring Champ!

London, Jan. 27.—British boxing fans are happy—they have found a pug who does not qualify for the horizontal championship.

The man is Len Harvey, a Cornishman, born in Callington, and only a few miles away at Helston, there was born that redoubtable Cornishman, the sandy-haired Bob Fitzsimmons.

British sports writers, going into Fleming's arena, are saying that Len is like Bob. Len, at 168 pounds, won the British heavy-weight title. Fitz also always gave weight to his opponents.

The new British heavyweight champ, recent conqueror of Jack Peterson for the title, differs from his predecessors who started in life as policemen, draymen, clerks, soldiers or sailors. He never has done anything else in his life but fight and he hasn't a cauliflower ear, a flattened nose or a broken tooth.

Len quit school at 13 to start scrapping professionally and at his present age of 25 has had more than 300 purse fights.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF REC SENIOR LEAGUE

Operation of the Various Clubs and Prospects for the Remainder of the Season Outlined.

With Ansdald Masons established in first place in the Rec senior league for the first round, the second half of the schedule will get underway tonight at the school street gym, the other five teams will set about raising a defense that will stop the winners of the first round from repeating.

Operating the final round with six teams and with the roster of every club greatly strengthened with new material it is expected that there will be many upsets. It is expected that the dropping of the National Guard and Knoll team will balance the league, many of the players on the dropped teams have been transferred to other teams.

Inability of many players not being able to report, has caused a number of working nights seriously handicapped its own team and the success of the league as well. With the exception of the Ansdald and Jaffe teams every other club presented some problems.

Which accounted a number of times for the inferior showing of teams which did not fare well.

However, it is expected with the addition of new talent to replace players who did not appear in the games, that every team will have its regular lineup for every game which will unquestionably find some very close and spirited games played for the final round.

The Ansdald team are favorites to repeat in the final half in view of its showing in the first half. This team was consistent throughout, boasted of a strong defense which other teams had trouble getting through. Headed by "Doc" Campbell leading scorer, along with "Bevo" Hurley and Britt of Hartford, Strugan, Quish and others the Ansdald team have a well balanced group of players.

Much added interest in the signing of Givatus of Hartford who will play center for the Ansdald team.

Second Place Team The Jaffe contingent, sole occupants of the five above mentioned by the mere margin of one point at the hands of the Ansdald team in its only defeat in league competition have added "Whitey" Bycholski to its ranks, and will rely on its regular lineup to carry the team through in the coming round. The Jaffe team have high scoring power and lead the teams in high scoring for the first round.

The mediocre showing of the Dugout team can be attributed to the failure of the five above mentioned players failing to report for scheduled games. Their showing and spirit for the first half drew a considerable bit of criticism from other teams in the league.

Manager "Bill" Courtney of the Phenoms is most anxious to cop honors for the next round, and to bring about his desire he has added the Simmonds brothers, formerly of the National Guards and "Roy" Fraser of the Knoll team. These men are most capable ball players and will give the needed power to the Phenoms. With these new additions the Phenoms have such prospects.

TEAMS ARE ON EVEN TERMS UNTIL LAST FOUR MINUTES

Smith Taken from the Floor with Sprained Ankle; Bristol Forced to Take Repeated Time Outs When Going Gets Fast; O'Leary, Smith and Garrone Star for Manchester, Maro and Utke for Bristol.

Before a crowd of some 2200 wildly excited basketball fans courageous little band of red shirted warriors from Manchester High school fought Tommy Monahan's sensational Bristol High school basketball team on practically even terms for thirty-six minutes of a forty-minute basketball game last night at the State Armory and were forced to accept defeat in the last four minutes of play, when Zebrowski and the irrepressible Maro tossed in twin pointers to put the game in the well known satchel and carry it off for Bristol's eleventh consecutive victory. Score 32-22.

From the minute "Wally" Utke raced under Manchester's basket on a well executed "take out" play to drop in a sucker shot, Bristol was never headed, although "Uncle Tom" Monahan certainly had some exciting moments in the closing minutes of the game when "Barge" O'Leary and Leo Johnson tossed in double deekers in succession to cut down the Bristol lead to five points, 21-26. But Manchester's rally was short lived as the diminutive "Chuckie" Smith who last night proved to be the backbone of the local team was forced to leave the game when he suffered a sprained ankle in a rough skirmish under his own basket.

Smith's play last night was outstanding. He started the offense, snared passes and broke up Bristol play time and again and when he was carried from the floor by Coach Clarke in the closing minutes of the game he received a great hand from the crowd. It was widely after this that Zebrowski and Maro put on their little act to sew up the game.

Bristol Starts Scoring In the opening period after Utke broke the ice for Bristol and Maro followed suit to give his team a four point lead, the game started off rather slow. "Red" Sheldon dropped one in from the fifteen foot mark to get Manchester started.

Giovanni made a free try and O'Leary split the cord with a beautiful side court shot. Utke let another fly and his pal, Maro duplicated. Zebrowski chipped in a foul shot and "Chuckie" Smith watched it give Bristol a 12-5 lead at the quarter.

Manchester Speeds Up Coming back in the second quarter Manchester led offensively by O'Leary, the Red and White had the visitors on the run and forced Bristol to call for time twice and the half ended 18-13 Bristol. In the third period both teams threw up such a strong defense that neither was able to score in the first eight minutes of play and it was O'Leary who broke the anti-scoring spree with a foul shot to bring the count up to 18-14.

Give and Take Maro flipped in another but Judd retaliated and the score card showed 20-15. Bristol fans went wild with excitement. The visitors called time and again and received instruction from "Uncle Tom" to stage a strong offensive attack. When play resumed the whistle had hardly sounded when Utke slipped around Judd for two more points. Smith counted with a foul shot. Smith was forced from the game and the huge throng cheered lustily for Manchester to come through.

Grandstand Finish Five points behind, Dame Fortuna did not choose to smile on the Red and White. Zebrowski dropped one in from the foul line, the elusive Maro again got under for a sucker shot. But Manchester refused to give up. Leo Johnson brought the local fans to their feet adding two points. O'Leary popped in another to add to the excitement, score 26-21, Bristol. Four precious minutes left to play. Zebrowski tapped one in from under the basket and the ever alert Maro raced under the basket on two beautiful plays to count again for Bristol and continue on their undefeated path to the league championship.

A Game Battle. The entire Manchester team from the captain down to the last lowly sub played gamely but in vain, each playing his heart out for a victory over Bristol but it wasn't in the books. The work of O'Leary, Smith and Garrone stood out in defeat while Maro and Utke shone brightly on the Bristol team.

In a game that kept the local fans on their feet for three periods the second team went down to defeat 32-22 in a hard fought battle. With Koleczanski doing most of the heavy work for Bristol and the curly haired "Buck" Bycholski tossing them in for Manchester the first half ended 17-16.

Coming back to the scene where he began his rise to court fame, Vines drove his way to a five set victory over Tilden turned an antic early in the fourth set of their match here last night. The scores were 6-4, 2-6, 6-4.

fresh men ran the tired Manchester high boys ragged to lead them out by five baskets. Most of Bristol's regulars contributed to the scoring column with Koleczanski and Palas standing out as the back bone of the team. For the local seconds, Bycholski and McCurry played exceptionally well on the offensive while the blond haired Gavell excelled defensively.

TRADERS CONTINUE IN BIG SLUMP

Lose to Hartford Trade Yesterday Afternoon, 30-16; Locals Get 2 Field Goals.

The Manchester Trade School failed to get back in the winning column after several defeats, Hartford Trade winning yesterday afternoon with ease, 30-16. Too many persons spilled runs for the local trade boys.

Ragusius, right guard of the local team scored the only points from the floor, tossing in the only baskets. Twelve points were added from the foul line.

Famous "Old Gray Mare" Case Ended in Tolland County Court—Defendants Get Costs.

The so-called "Old Gray Mare" case, a $5,000 slander suit which attracted so much attention when tried before Judge Frank P. McEvoy of Waterbury, in the winter term of Tolland County Superior Court, has been decided in favor of the defendant in a verdict handed down this morning by Judge McEvoy. Not alone is the verdict for the defense but the defendant is also awarded costs in the case.

More than a dozen workmen are now at work on this project which is being conducted under the CWA.

Y. M. C. A. Meeting

The annual meeting of the Tolland County Young Men's Christian Association was held last evening at the Tolland Federated church with Prof. Philip H. Howe, Tolland County, as the presiding officer. Rev. William F. Tyler, Tolland County Y. M. C. A. secretary presented a very interesting report for the past year.

Beautiful motion picture chorines have been insured for their faces, hands, feet and their limbs and hair, but those who appear in RKO-Radio's musical extravaganza, "Flying Down to Rio," which will be at the State Theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, set a new precedent by having to be insured for their lives!

The production, which for the first time in talking picture history unites air thrills and musical comedy-drama, is climaxed by the complete staging of a fire, show in mid-air, the performers enacting their roles and their dances on the wings of planes soaring aloft over Rio de Janeiro.

MELODY EXTRAVAGANZA IS FULL OF AIR THRILLS

Beautiful motion picture chorines have been insured for their faces, hands, feet and their limbs and hair, but those who appear in RKO-Radio's musical extravaganza, "Flying Down to Rio," which will be at the State Theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, set a new precedent by having to be insured for their lives!

through his triumphant march to the throne from which the axe of the headman divorced his father to make way for Oliver Cromwell and into that mad, merry era of extravagance through which Nell Gwyn maintained a firm hold on his sickle heart to the very moment of his death. The rivalry between the two great rivals naturally furnishes drama, color and spice to an absorbingly interesting story.

"The Wives of Henry VIII," an absorbing tale of the days of the Tudors, presents fascinating portraits of the six women who flattered or angered or deceived bluff King Hal, or suffered his displeasure. All the wives are shown—Catherine of Aragon, Anne Boleyn (mother of Queen Bess), Jane Seymour, Anne of Cleves, Kathryn Howard and Katherine Parr.

THE TINYMITES

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

The captain of the little ship said, "Course I don't know where this trip is going to end. The turtle that has lifted us seems scared."

"You'd think his monstrous shell would crack, with all of us upon his back. So far we have been lucky, jads. Just think how well we've fared."

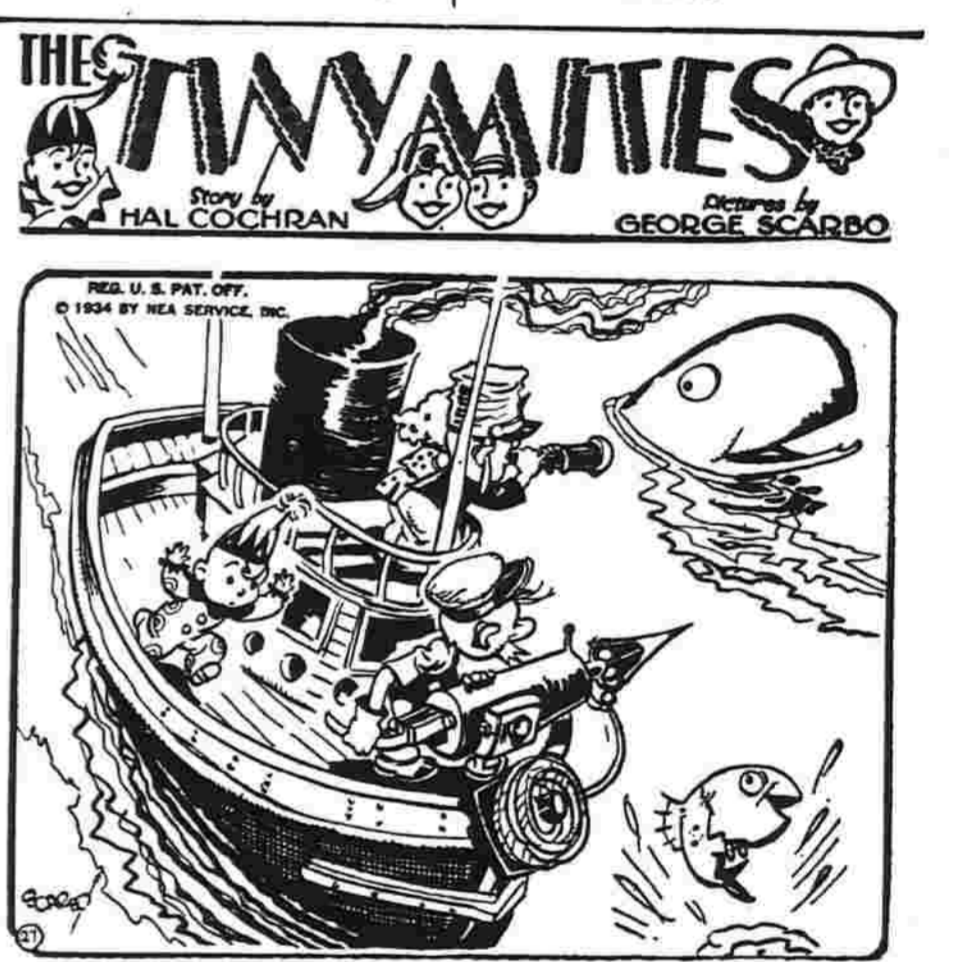

"Well, as for me, I do not like a ride like this. I'd rather hike, and know that I am safe and sound," said Dotty, with a frown.

"Our boat is tipping quite a bit. It's hard to stand, and hard to sit. I wish that we could make the crazy turtle let us down."

"Oh, wait a while," we Scouty said. "Right now we're moving straight ahead. If we keep going, we will leave the cold north far behind."

"I think that it will help a lot, if we reach some place where it's hot. As long as our boat doesn't tip right over, I don't mind."

The Tinymites soon grew tired out and Goidy said, "It is about time next story."

Quebec is moving billboards far back from highways and they will not be permitted to spoil the view of any beauty spots—surely a forward move, worthy of emulation in the United States.

Officer—He stole a car, which overturned and pinned him to the ground.
Chief—In other words, officer, you caught him with the goods on him?

Undoubtedly lights on the highways would prevent many accidents; but the cost usually has been considered too great. But General Motors has made a survey and figures that $1,000 a mile would be enough adequately to light the roads after dark. Most of us know of public money spent much more foolishly. Lighting the highways will be considered as part of the present tremendous federal relief program.
