N. Y. STOCK MARKET SUED FOR $250,000

New Jersey Corporation Claims Damages Because Exchange Was Not Moved.

New York, Jan. 30.—(AP)—The receiver of the City Center Corporation of Newark, N. J., brought a $250,000 damage suit against the New York Stock Exchange and other defendants today as an aftermath of last year's proposal to move the exchange across the river to New Jersey.

The projected move was abandoned last fall when New York City's attempt to levy a tax on stock transfers came to naught.

The proposed tax was one of several plans under former Mayor John P. O'Brien's administration in an effort to help the city's financial situation. It brought widespread protests from brokers and others, and culminated in the threat to move the exchange to New Jersey.

Herbert J. Hannoch, as receiver for the City Center Corporation, brought the suit.

Operated Market Center Corporation operated the Center Market in Newark, which was tentatively selected by the Exchange as the site of its New Jersey operations. The building, papers on file said, was greatly altered by builders and architects before the O'Brien administration rescinded its tax plans, thereby keeping the Exchange in New York.

The defendants named in the suit are, besides the Exchange: Richard Whitney, its president; New York Stock Exchange Building Company; Arthur Harry Froelich, one of the building company's executives; New York Quotation Company and its

GIRL CAUSES CAPTURE OF ESCAPED CONVICT

Amarillo, Tex., Jan. 30.—(AP)—A girl hitchhiker caused the capture today of W. H. Bybee, former convict from Abilene and El Paso, who escaped from the Eastham State prison farm two weeks ago when Clyde Barrow, Texas outlaw, freed a group of convicts.

Bybee was arrested on a highway while pursuing a Kansas City woman, 22, who was driving a Buick while driving away with his car when he stopped at a filling station west of Amarillo.

The car containing a sub-machine gun, a rifle and other weapons, was turned over to Amarillo police.

Bybee had caught a truck and was following the girl when he ran into a police cordon. He was armed with a revolver but surrendered without resistance.

Miss Clark said she was returning to Los Angeles from Kansas City where she thumbed a ride out of Vinita, Okla., yesterday. After she saw the fireman in the car Bybee told her he was an escaped convict and bank robber, who "didn't want to be taken."

"He pleaded with me to be a 'pal' to him and drive while he got some sleep," she related. Her first opportunity to escape came today, she said, when Bybee entered the filling station and left the keys in the car.

"I was scared to death, but stepped on the gas and started away," she told the police.

BOWERS BLOCK IS SOLD TODAY

Morris L. Diamond Takes Over Property from Mutual Realty Co.

Morris L. Diamond, owner of the Diamond Shoe Store, today purchased the property on Main street known as the Bowers block. Mr. Diamond purchased the block, a three-story stone and brick structure, from the Mutual Realty Company on a bond for a deed.

After the present bank building was erected the building housed the South Manchester Post Office and later the Park Hill Flower Shop. For the past year the main floor has been unoccupied. Mr. Diamond's plans are indefinite but he does plan to remodel the building. No purchase price was disclosed.

The building, one of the most imposing in the local business section, was built 80 years ago by the late Arthur E. Bowers and for a number of years was the home of the Manchester Trust Company and the Savings Bank of Manchester. The late Judge H. O. Bowers formerly conducted his law practice in the offices on the second floor now occupied by Senator Robert J. Smith.

NOTED ARTIST, KNOWN HERE, PASSES AWAY

Older Manchester people will recall N. R. Mitchell, a noted artist, whose specialty was marine painting, whose funeral was held in New Haven this afternoon. He was a resident of Washington, (Conn.) until five years ago when he moved to New Haven and where he died Sunday.

DEVESON WILL FILED

Greenwich, Jan. 30.—(AP)—William Deveson, who at one time conducted riding stables in White Plains, N. Y., and who was widely known to followers of the Grand Circuit of horse racing as the sponsor of fast horses, left $5,000 in real estate and in excess of $2,000 in personal property under the terms of his will admitted to probate here today before Probate Judge Harold L. Knapp.

The widow, Emma Keller Deveson, and their adopted son, William Deveson, and also known as William Deveson, and a grandson, share in the estate.

To his widow, Deveson left an undivided one-half interest in their house in Old Greenwich and of the remainder of the estate he put one-half in trust for Gergette Deveson Burke, a daughter, of White Plains, the principal going to her children in event of her death and the other half of the residue he left to the widow.

Mrs. C. B. Whitehead of Fort Worth is believed the first woman to be awarded a Texas highway contract.

Receiving a Heritage of Honor

Roger Peck, 15-year-old Minneapolis high school boy, has a medal instead of a father. While his father, William R. Peck, was on a transport bound for France, Roger was born to Peck's wife. Snelling, bestowing Peck's distinguished service cross on the son he never saw, while the mother, now Mrs. V. B. Ryberg, looks on proudly.

INDIANS TACKLE JOBLESS PROBLEM

The Poor Indian, Poorer Then Ever, Yearns for the Days of Plenty.

Muskogee, Okla., Jan. 30.—Lo, the poor Indian we have been hearing so much about, is poorer than ever these days as a result of the Great Famine visited upon the white man when the bottom fell out of the wampum market.

But now it appears that Lo and thousands of his indigent brethren hereabout are at least going to be able to eat. And that is a great blessing indeed at a time when there is no maize in the skin-sacks and no venison hanging from the lodge poles.

Of course it is no novelty for many of the Original Americans to be unemployed. More winters ago than you can count on the leaves of a venerable tree they discovered that there is no virtue in toil, as such. Even in the days when Federal troops were required to keep braves on their reservations to teach them civilized vocations. And as the plains country was built up schools were established and Indian Agency representatives were stationed through the territories to aid in education.

Waterfowl waiting Some Indians wait to school and some didn't. The one who did learned one of the white man's trades, and how to sing the Star Spangled Banner and how to play football. Diplomats in hand, many of them went back to the reservation, put on a blanket, and sat down with staid and patient patience to wait for the next oil royalty check. Some of those who were not blessed with oil lands sat down and just waited.

The oil business is not what it used to be, although Indians themselves haven't changed much. Government officials have come to the conclusion that although some Indians are not fitted by training or ability for vocational work, all of them make fairly good farmers when they're provided with tools and instruction. The plan devised by officials of the Five Civilized Tribes (Cherokee, Creek, Seminole, Choctaw and Chickasaw) is called "subsistence farming," the idea being that they at least can grow enough to eat.

"We were not sure that such a program would work when we started it back in 1930," A. M. Landman, superintendent of the Five Tribes explained. "Had the plan failed we would have dropped the matter as we have discarded many others, and tried something else."

Back To The Soil W. C. Smith, field representative for the Five Tribes in charge of farm promotion, was sent to every settlement in the 32 counties of eastern Oklahoma to determine what action these tribesmen would take toward the plan. When it was found that they expressed a willingness to farm, other field representatives were added and hundreds of Indians, grouped in colonies, now meet each week to learn the white man's art of agriculture.

Colony farms for these indigents are now in operation in every section of the Five Tribes area. Indians living in northeastern Oklahoma attend the farm instruction unit in Delaware county. Other Indians living in the Cherokee and Creek districts receive their instruction from the headquarters located at Cowe, Okla., while the Indians of the southern part of the state gather at the subsistence unit located near the Jones Academy.

Walter V. Wohelke, field representative under John Collier, commissioner of Indian affairs at Washington, estimates that this program will save the government thousands of dollars a year.

"Heretofore the government has borne the brunt of expense of feeding and clothing these indigent Indians," Wohelke said here after a tour of the Five Tribes area. "The Indians of eastern Oklahoma will sit back and starve rather than ask for help. Their tradition inherited from their forefathers have made them a race of people whose pride keeps them from asking for help they really need. The government feels that if these Indians could be placed in colonies where an instructor could supervise their gardens, that they could be taught to raise their own food."

"The tribesmen who lived in the Indian Territory 30 years ago were a smart race of people. The leaders spent thousands of dollars a year on educational facilities and at one time had a much better teaching system than the early pioneers of this district."

"The coming of the Red man, however, crowded these whitesmen for their reservations until today they own less than 1,500,000 acres of land as compared with 15 million acres 30 years ago. This invasion has done more than everything else combined to break down the morale of the Indians."

This program for the Indians is proving with such success that a group of Muskogee real estate men headed by Paul Philipin are working on a similar program for thrifty Oklahomaans who have been victims of the depression.

Philipin recently returned from a trip to the East which took him both to New York and Washington, where he conferred with agricultural leaders of the nation, and as a result plans have been outlined whereby funds can be secured for the movement.

DEATH OF WATCHMAN REMAINS A MYSTERY

New Haven, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Whether Leo J. Rheasume, 22-year-old night watchman at an Orange Inn, committed suicide or was slain remained unanswered today after a three days' investigation.

The youth, a bullet wound in his head, was found dead at the Inn Saturday morning by the driver of a laundry truck. Officials at the outset expressed the opinion he had taken his life, but their failure to find a motive for the act caused them to investigate a homicide theory.

Coroner James J. Corrigan has ordered Dr. V. A. Kowalewski, West Haven medical examiner, not to release the body for burial.

Officials disclosed today they were studying finger prints found on the revolver from which the fatal bullet was fired.

BOLTON PEACH GROWERS TO STUDY CROP OUTLOOK

Bolton peach growers are to meet tomorrow at the Villa Louise, in Birch Mountain as guests of John Albasai when the Tolland County Farm Bureau representative and a representative of Connecticut College will be present. The gathering tomorrow will be convened at 2 o'clock and will include all of the peach growers in Bolton. The college representative will explain what has been found in orchards already inspected and there will be a discussion on the best methods to follow in an effort to save trees for future crops, if such is possible.

Mr. Albasai said this afternoon that the indications for a good peach crop in Bolton was not at all promising for 1934.

100,000 GREETINGS FOR MR. ROOSEVELT

Cards and Telegrams in Basket Loads Are Delivered at the White House.

Washington, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Even as other happy boys and men, President Roosevelt indulged today in a birthday party—but one that swelled into such national proportions as have few similar occasions.

More than 75,000 birthday greeting cards descended upon the White House. With mail and telegrams arriving by the basket load, Presidential aides estimated the number would total 100,000.

Mr. Roosevelt had arranged for his own party. It will be usual, he with his "buddies" of the 1920 vice-presidential campaign and members of his personal staff.

For days "the gang" of 1920, has been planning for the yearly party, but Mr. Roosevelt was informed by the torrent of greetings that the rest of the country was participating too, and he arranged to send a word of personal thanks over the air tonight at 11:20 p. m., eastern standard time.

Birthday Cake Ready

In the intimacy of the White House family quarters, Mrs. Roosevelt and the family set-up, today the big white cake with its 52 candles for the same old party the President has had for the last 13 years.

The men he knew as "Louie," "Mac" and "Steve" who were with him in the campaign of 1920, and who are now his secretaries—Louis M. Howe, Marvin H. McIntyre and Stephen Early—had plenty of plans of their own for the family party.

They were joined by those men who knew and covered the former Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Vice-Presidential nominee—Kirk E. Simpson of Washington, Charles McCahey of Albany, Thomas M. Lynch of New York and James Sullivan of Boston.

WALL ST. BRIEFS

New York, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Lumber orders received at mills in the week ended January 20 were 26 per cent larger than in the previous week, while production and shipment figures were above those of the preceding three weeks, according to reports to the National Lumber Manufacturers Association.

January, on the whole, was an encouraging month for the machinery trade, says "American Machinist." Inquiries were "universally stronger and in some districts orders were good." Several machine tool builders report more business in January than in any month of 1933.

E. W. Dyer & Company estimates sugar exports in the United States last year at 5,665,524 long tons, a decrease of 36,127 tons from 1932.

The New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange is advised that raw sugar exports to the United States from the Philippines from Nov. 1 last to Jan. 15 of this year totaled 246,881 long tons compared with 236,225 tons in the corresponding period of 1932-33, an increase of 4.5 per cent. Refined shipments were 1,185 tons, a decrease of 18.8 per cent. Philippines exports to the United States during 1933 amounted to 1,062,576 tons compared with 1,000,250 in 1932.

OVER 400 DELEGATES AT EASTERN STAR MEET

Grand Chapter of Connecticut Holds Its Sixtieth Annual Session in Hartford Today.

Hartford, Jan. 30.—(AP)—The Grand Chapter of Connecticut, Order of the Eastern Star, convened today at Foot Guard hall for its 60th annual session.

More than 400 members of the order were present as voting members and there was a large attendance in the galleries, of other members not entitled to vote.

The Grand Chapter was called to order, in open session, by Mrs. Ida B. Nixon of Middletown, worthy Grand matron in 1932.

Worthy Grand Matron, Mrs. Carolyn L. Kane of Deep river; Worthy Grand Patron, Ernest C. Bixby of Monroe; and their associate grand officers were received in form.

An address and civic welcome were given by the Rev. Dr. Rockwell Harmon Potter, president of the Hartford Theological Seminary.

The session this afternoon was occupied by the presentation of addresses and reports of officers and reports of committees.

Grand Secretary Mrs. Harriet I. Burwell of Winsted reported the membership of 99 chapters, 27,430 as of January 1, 1934.

The two largest chapters are Naomi, No. 2 of Waterbury, with 994 members and Orient chapter No. 1 of Bridgeport with 991.

The annual banquet and entertainment will be held in the Hotel Bond ball room this evening at 7 o'clock.

Complaints and pleas are nothing unusual to Representative McReynolds of Tennessee, but the oddest in his experience is this letter:

"I have a cow that her milk has got so it won't churn, that is the butter won't gather and milk after it stands to churn has a bad odor. The butter won't gather and tastes bitter."

"The cow seems to be in good health. It will be 4½ months till calving time."

Representative Virginia E. Jenckes of Indiana, despite a bitter cold wave, decided to go to Indianapolis by plane to make an address tonight.

"Call up the airways office and tell 'em to order warm weather," she snapped to a secretary.

Representative Gray of Indiana wouldn't yield to Representative Fish of New York for a question on gold devaluation. Instead to the amusement of House members and gallery occupants, he suggested:

"If the gentleman will be patient until he can get the drift of my remarks maybe he can ask his question more intelligently."

MUST NAME WINNER Chicago, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Regardless of whether there is a fall when Jim Landon and Joe Savoldi, the former Notre Dame football full-back, meet for one of the world heavyweight wrestling championships at the Chicago stadium tomorrow night, there will be a winner.

The Illinois state athletic commission has decreed that in the event there is no fall, the referee shall award a decision.

REVIVAL SERVICES IN SECOND WEEK

Col. Winchell Talks on "Sanctification" at Salvation Army Citadel.

Colonel Wallace Winchell entered his second week of revival services at the Salvation Army with a Bible discussion on "Sanctification", which took place in the Citadel last evening. During his remarks he stated: "It seems strange to me that men and women expect perfection from any article that is produced by human agency, whether it be in the manufacture of silk or the building of a house, and yet at the same time, limit the power of God. Jesus Christ came into the world to destroy sin and we have faith to believe He has done and can do a perfect work in the human heart. This is called sanctification."

The standard dictionary defines sanctification: "To make holy, cleanse from sin." Specifically in theology, "the gracious work of the Holy Spirit whereby the believer is freed from sin." There are various theories, first, justification and sanctification occurs immediately, but every command, exhortation and promise of sanctification in the Bible is for Christians, never for sinners; Second, sanctification is attained by growth in grace; we can never grow impurity out of the heart; Third, sanctification takes place at death, that no one can be sanctified in life. Our advance was variously attributed to final Presidential action on the President's gold bill, with its inflationary implications on the one hand and orderly stabilization authorization on the other. Increased demand for favorite issues put the ticker tape seven minutes behind floor transactions at one time and trading in the first two hours exceeded 2,000,000 shares.

Grains, cotton and other commodities did not take part in the demonstration, although most were fairly steady. The dollar held to a narrow groove in foreign exchange dealings. Bonds were mildly improved.

Shares of Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and a number of other carriers were up 1 to around 2 points. American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, United Aircraft, Douglas Aircraft, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Chrysler, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Case, Allied Chemical, Auburn and Public Service of New Jersey also recorded gains of 1 to more than 2. The metals were hesitant.

Most of the aircraft stocks were especially active following approval by the House naval affairs committee of the recommendation to purchase 1,184 naval planes over a five-year period at a cost of some $95,000,000. One block of 30,000 shares of Curtiss Wright changed hands at a fractional gain.

An expansion of public participation in equity trading was reported by several commission firms while, at the same time, several professional operators were said to have lightened their commitments on the theory that some of the more active issues have advanced too rapidly.

Although there has been considerable buying by foreign traders and investors, the expected heavy repatriation of American capital was understood to have thus far not developed. Banking quarters pointed out that with the new $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund in operation, those who shipped their funds to Europe to escape inflation and dollar depreciation are virtually assured of getting their money back into this country on a dollar value of between 50 and 60 per cent of former parity. Most of the capital flight, it was said, took place at a much higher value.

Is 109 Years Old Today Never Heard of President

New York, Jan. 30.—(AP)—The birthday candles burned today, too, for other Americans as well as for their President.

They burned for Moses Mendel Penn, who was 57 years old on the day Franklin Delano Roosevelt was born.

Penn, recovering at a hospital from a paralytic stroke, celebrated his 109th birthday anniversary today with a modest party "and an extra cigar or two."

Friends yesterday recalled to him that today was his birthday and Penn expressed surprise. "It seems such a short time since the last one," he said.

It was pointed out that his birthday falls on the first anniversary of Adolf Hitler's rise to power in Germany. To this, Penn remarked: "Hitler is a curse sent by God as a punishment for the sins of the Jews."

His friends told the centenarian-plus that not only was the day an anniversary for Hitler but that, much more significant to Americans,

It was the birthday anniversary of President Roosevelt.

Moses Mendel Penn expressed no interest in that.

He had never heard of Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

Today is the birthday, too, of Dr. Walter Damrosch, who is 72 years old. He had something to say, among other things, about crooners.

"Crooners," he stated, "ought to be boiled in oil."

The eminent musician and conductor described a crooner as "a man who thinks he sings—but whose tones are more like those of a love-sick cat than anything else I can think of."

Philadelphia—Franklin Delano Roosevelt Linstar was born today. He is the third child of the John Linstars.

"If the baby's born Tuesday," said Mrs. Linstar yesterday, "we'll name him after the President."

Franklin Delano Roosevelt Linstar was born at 12:01 a. m. today.

NEGRO IS LYNCHED BY FLORIDA MOB

Taken from Constable's Car and Shot Down—Had Attacked White Woman.

Tampa, Fla., Jan. 30.—(AP)—A band of men early today lynched Robert Johnson, negro, held for investigation for an alleged attack on a white woman.

Deputy Constable T. M. Graves reported he was kidnaped, beaten and then freed when the negro, whom he was transferring from the City Jail in charge of state authorities, was shot down.

The shooting took place in an isolated section 15 miles from Tampa at 3:15 a. m., a short time later after Graves took the negro from the jail.

Police reported they released Johnson to Graves at 2:30 a. m., when the deputy constable appeared with warrants charging Johnson with petty larceny.

Graves said his automobile was stopped and he was overpowered and tossed into the rear seat. Graves said a dozen cars followed the party to the scene of the lynching.

Police arrested Johnson Sunday and reported he was partially identified as the negro who attacked a woman.

are debts, but human life is human life—and that is the view that the courts usually take.

HITLER VS. LUTHER

The action of Reich Bishop Ludwig Mueller in causing the arrest of Rev. Martin Niemöller, leader of the Pastors Emergency League and the suspension of a hundred more members of the Pastors League throughout Prussia is a further indication of the serious mess into which the Hitler government of Germany has gotten itself by attempting to bully the people with relation to their religious beliefs as it has bullied them in all other things.

Fearful of the consequences if it undertook to exercise throughout all Germany the religious control it has arrogated to itself, the Hitler government has obviously adopted the strategy of beating the pastoral opposition in detail, if possible, and with that end in view has centered its attack on the largest and possibly the least godly of the German states.

Of all countries, it would seem as though Germany—or whoever happens to be in control there—would be about the last to attempt to renew the political oppression of its clergy. The lesson of Martin Luther is naturally better remembered there than elsewhere. And Luther was a political assailant, not a political defender as these German pastors now are. He carried war to the doors of the great Church of Rome—and won it. His war was not upon Catholicism but upon politics in the church. And now in a land where Martin Luther is canonized in the hearts of the people Hitler and his satellites have the temerity to start a political war on the kind of people who saw Luther through and produced the Reformation.

That they are already frightened at what they have started is evidenced by the extreme measures to which they have adverted.

We still believe that Hitlerism began to go down hill the day it resolved to bring the nation's religion under the Nazi leash—and that its final destruction will be easily traceable straight to the pulpits of the Fatherland.

sense or nonsense in a statement we remember having seen somewhere long ago, to the effect that what makes hard cider such a peculiarly devilish thing is the circumstance that, besides its alcoholic content there exists in the fermented—and perhaps in the unfermented—juice of the apple a form of ether not encountered elsewhere in nature.

Whether the person who made this statement was taking rather long liberties with the word "ether" or not is something on which we are not qualified to form an opinion. But we do believe, and we fancy the editor of the Courant also believes, that there is some subtle demon lurking in hard cider to associate with whom old King Alky himself must be ashamed.

It was one of the worst spiritual weaknesses of prohibition that it did not have the courage to include hard cider under its taboo. Of course it pretended to, but the pretense was so thin you could read a fine print copy of the Volstead act through it. Everybody knew that the hard cider drinker in the rural districts would not be interfered with in the least by the adoption of federal prohibition. All he had to do was to put in his barrel or half dozen barrels of sweet cider in the fall and let nature take its course.

But that is apart from the subject. The Courant is curious, and we are curious as to why the excessive use of hard cider should so often convert the hard headed, unemotional, cautious and self controlled New Englander into a red handed slayer of some human being against whom, in most cases, he has either no grievance at all or a very slight one.

Also one might inquire further. Why do people guzzle hard cider when, apparently, it never elevates them by a hairsbreadth, even temporarily, but on the contrary brings on a variety of ouse fifty times more morose, unhappy and at odds with the world than the most painful sobriety from which any New England woodchopper or farm hand ever suffered in his life.

Perhaps someone can tell the Courant and this newspaper just what is the demon in the machine of the hard cider jug. It certainly isn't mere alcohol. Alcohol was never like that.

NITRATES

The revelation that at least a dozen recently idle cargo ships have been brought under charter to transport nitrates from Western South America to various unknown destinations is not the best possible news to a world that continues to hope that its present distress will not be increased, perhaps multiplied, by a major war. Naturally the guessers conclude that these cargoes must be destined for Japan or Russia or both, since those sources of information whose business it is to keep informed on such subjects are unable to explain such wholesale movements of nitrates on any other hypothesis than that somebody is going in for the manufacture of military ammunition on a huge scale; and it seems hardly possible that any nation other than these two could possibly be so preparing for war.

Which brings up the thought that we have never heard that Japan has undertaken the fixation of nitrogen in any such quantities as would suffice for her munition needs in an extended war. Yet one or several nitrogen plants would seem to be, in these days of modernized warfare, a most essential factor in the set-up of a nation which obviously intends to make its living on its muscle.

Whether Russia is prepared to supply herself with the basic element of her explosives from her own fixation plants is something we may guess at. At all events she has developed some pretty big water powers and she may have provided herself with a nitrogen source adequate to any war. She would not be likely to let anybody know about it if she had.

Perhaps we shall learn that all this commerce in nitrates from Chile and Peru is based on agricultural needs. It is, however, and unhappily, easier to believe that preparations are being made to kill man by the million than that care is being taken to feed them better by the million.

DEMOCRACIES' COLLAPSE

Discussing the fall of the Chamberlain cabinet in France and taking a somewhat pessimistic view of the prospects of the republic, the New York Tribune says: "It is clear that in another western democratic state there have appeared some, at least, of the signs which elsewhere have proved the forerunners of a collapse of democratic government."

Democratic governments never collapse. No democratic government ever collapsed yet. Governments that once were democratic have collapsed but not until they had altogether ceased being democratic and had become something else.

Collapse is a condition that comes suddenly. Democratic governments sometimes gradually lose their democratic character, lose it completely, while outwardly continuing the democratic form. Then, when all the blood and sap of democracy has run out of them and they have become empty shells covering government by corruption and ambition and greed, they can and do collapse with relative frequency. But that is not the collapse of democratic government—it is the collapse of whatever thing it is that crawled into the dried skin.

When democracies die they die by inches, slowly. It is years after their vitality has departed and they have become things of yesterday that there come the sudden disillusionment, the riots, the revolt, the setting up of junta or dictator or committee of safety or whatever.

There are no visible "forerunners of the collapse of democratic government." There are sometimes signs that intelligent people can read of the slow poison that leads to the gradual abandonment of democratic principles, but these are not the symptoms that precede the final blow-up. Those do not come till special privilege and special interests and evil ambitions have long been at work—and there are no such forces at work in any true democracy.

WATER AND DEBTS

The sympathies of a large majority of the people of the area will probably be on the side of Joseph H. Lawlor, counsel for the Hartford Branch of the Home Owners Loan Corporation, in his legal effort to prevent the Metropolitan District Water Bureau from shutting off the water in the premises of a distressed mortgagor whose mortgage has been foreclosed but is still the subject of negotiation between the foreclosing bank the HOLC.

An injunction has been granted to Mr. Lawlor restraining the Water Bureau from depriving the occupants of the premises of their vitally necessary water supply.

It is a little difficult to understand how authorities like the Water Bureau of the Hartford Metropolitan District can justify even to themselves the taking of such extreme measures for the collection of water rates in times like these. They would certainly be justified in taking judgment against the debtor in order to protect their department's interests, but to resort to the physical penalty of deprivation of water approaches the inhuman.

Incidentally it is a course which the courts seldom if ever support. There are plenty of decisions to be found in which the shutting off of water supply of families has been denied as a means of forcing payment of rates. There was one fine row of this kind in Worcester, Mass., some years ago, with the Health Department aligned on one side and the Water Department on the other when the water was being shut off from tenement houses whose owners were in arrears. The Health Department won. Debts

HARD CIDER

Our neighbor the Hartford Courant has been doing some speculating upon the murder inciting qualities of hard cider as suggested by the homicide record of rural New England where that insidious beverage has been a staple intoxicant for generations. The Courant seems inclined to the belief that there is something about hard cider which creates or releases more original sin than whiskey or the same cider worked over into applejack by distillation.

IN NEW YORK

By PAUL HARRISON

New York, Jan. 31.—The reason Mr. Eugene O'Neill writes these tensely emotional, introspective dramas about the struggles of subconscious minds is because America's first playwright has an almost unconscious "subconscious" mind himself, and knows what it's like to be bossed by one.

To be sure, his characters usually are revealed as warring with inner devils which are tempting them to abandon their faith, their loves or any other high principles which happen to be at hand... while O'Neill's inner devils areimps of industry. They hand him ideas and then prod him on to work them into plays.

There's the story of how his two last plays were written: More than a year ago O'Neill finished the first draft of the "modern miracle play," called "Days Without End," and decided to take a vacation. He was living at the time at his home in Sea Point, Ga. He thought that after a few undisturbed weeks of swimming and fishing he would take up the play again and polish it into final form. "Days Without End" had proven a troublesome piece of business anyway.

A Playwright At Work

Well, he went to bed that night making plans for fishing trips and beach parties and such. Next morning, as he was stirring uneasily in that luxurious, half-dreamy state, dat ol' devil Subconscious went into action. A new play began marching across his weary mind—the plot, the characters, the sequences of scenes, even the final curtain. Strangely enough, it was a comedy.

When he roused himself, O'Neill laid aside his fishing tackle and his bathing suit and grimly went back to his typewriter. He stayed there for five weeks. "Everything came smoothly, and the result was the first draft of "Ah, Wilderness!" He laid that aside and began the tedious job of rewriting "Days Without End" which he still considered his big play of the year. It was six months before he was ready to bring the manuscript to New York. He brought along the draft of "Ah, Wilderness!" too, and on re-reading it was surprised to find that it was ready for production. The Theater Guild bought both plays on the spot, and "Ah, Wilderness!" turned out to be the better of the pair.

Most of O'Neill's stuff comes to him slowly. "Mourning Becomes Electra" floated elusive through his mind for three years, and it took two years more to get the script on paper. . . . The plot for "Desire Under the Elms" arrived through his subconscious, but it required several months for polishing.

"The Emperor Jones" was the only one which practically wrote itself. That was finished in ten days.

This Theater's Free

Not one New Yorker in a thousand knows that there's a free theater in town, and the rest wouldn't believe it anyway if they were told. It's true, though. The Davenport Theater, on East Twenty-seventh Street, has charged no admission during its eleven years of life. It is managed and directed by Mr. But-

DOING WHAT YOU LIKE TO DO

The newspapers and magazines are now full of plans telling you what you are to do with your leisure. You may already have started to think about what you would really like to do with this spare time which is yours each day. Many of you spend the day at tasks which really interest you very little and it becomes necessary for you to figure out something to do in your extra time which will yield you the satisfaction gained by carrying out something that you would really like to do.

I believe that you will get more out of life if some part of the day is devoted to doing what you yourself really enjoy. In other words, it is good for you to take a little time now and then and spend it in a way that is pleasing to you. You may think such time is wasted, but can assure you that, if it is spent in a way that is definitely interesting to you, it is not wasted but will yield great benefit.

A human being with no definite interest in life often lapses into a dull frame of mind and takes no interest in going on living; however, as soon as he wakes up and finds something that he likes to do, he becomes a different person. His eyes light up, his step becomes more brisk, the tone of his voice changes, and he looks forward to some part of the day in eager anticipation. You have all seen people suddenly transformed by finding something in which they can become deeply interested. I believe that you can do this. You can do it by finding something which they really like to do. We call these outside interests "hobbies."

Let me assure you that you will gain only benefit from spending some space and time which is your own to do with as you like. If you do not know of anything which you can do which you like, the best plan is to start looking for some form of wholesome pleasure. The world is literally full of thousands of things which you would like to do, and, if you do not begin to enjoy some of them, you are really cheating yourself.

In trying to find out what you really like to do, each day will give you plenty of material for experiment. Remember the thing for you to do is not what you pretend to like to do or what your family would like to have you do, but what deep down in you own heart you really do like. As an easy example for you to follow, when you wake up in the morning, ask yourself if you really want to get up. Do you like to get up or would you prefer to stay in bed? When you eat your breakfast, ask yourself if this is the

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Pigeon Breeds Due to Rickets

Question: Mrs. B. from Pine Prairie, La., writes: "I have a five year old child who is developing what is called a 'chicken-bone breast'. I would you please instruct me as to what I should do to help her?"

Answer: The condition which you describe is usually called "pigeon breast" and is very often found in rickets. I believe that you can do a great deal to help your daughter if you will undertake the correct treatment for rickets. It is essential that she secure an abundance of the foods containing calcium and phosphorus. In addition she should take Vitamin D which may be obtained either through the foods used or through sunbaths or treatments with the sun lamp. If you will gain only benefit from spending some space and time which is your own to do with as you like. If you do not know of anything which you can do which you like, the best plan is to start looking for some form of wholesome pleasure. The world is literally full of thousands of things which you would like to do, and, if you do not begin to enjoy some of them, you are really cheating yourself.

Use Canned Vegetables

Question: From Dastrop, La.: "I find it rather hard to get the spinach and string beans which you recommend during the winter. Could I use home canned vegetables instead, such as string beans, small peas, tomatoes and carrots? These have been canned with very little seasoning."

Answer: It is all right to use the home canned vegetables which you list as long as you have them on hand, as I consider them wholesome. You will find that you are able to secure both carrots and string beans, and I would suggest that you use these foods in the commercially canned form.

Keenan Starts Something

The idea of co-ordinating all the law enforcement agencies of the land under the Federal government is now under the hands of the racketeer is gaining ground. Assistant Attorney General Joseph H. Keenan is plugging the movement.

Even some motion picture officials have been found to look with favor on Keenan's plan to boycott cinema houses that persist in showing gangster pictures and other films "subversive of the morals of youth."

Tugwell At Tugwell

Foes of Raxford G. Tugwell—and they are many, among certain types of industrialists and politicians—now will burnish their armor for a new attack on the handsome "brain trust." He is slated for the new post of undersecretary of agriculture, at a salary of $10,000 a year, if Congress approves the appointment.

Tugwell's enemies haven't any particular reason to oppose this, they'll probably do so on "general principles," just because they dislike Tugwell.

But They Have Votes

One Congressman has been found who'll admit that bootleggers are valuable in one way at least. They have votes.

"I've seen lots of bootleggers," says Representative Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois. "And a lot of them are my friends. I'm not hypocritical or ashamed of this—because they vote, just like anyone else."

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

THE NEW DEAL IN WASHINGTON

Gore Ready To Base Out of Puerto Rico . . . Keenan Gang Cleanup Proposed . . . Keenan's Plan to Boycott New Attack May Hit Tugwell . . . Bootleggers' Votes Count.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
 The Herald's Washington Correspondent.

Washington, Jan. 30.—The days of Robert H. Gore as governor of Puerto Rico are numbered.

And again it will be proved that faithful political service is a poor qualification on which to base important party appointments.

One of the "original Roosevelt men", Gore, a newspaper publisher, was rewarded with the difficult Puerto Rican post entirely for his service to the Democratic Party, despite grave doubt of his fitness.

Almost from the day he took office, storms have raged around Gore's San Juan palace. His "diplomacy" has been so wide of the mark that rage of the islanders increased to the point where bombs were planted at the palace and his summer home.

The Roosevelt administration has hesitated to remove officials while under fire, preferring to ease them out and save face, as witness the case of Ambassador Wells. In Cuba, in Gore's case, there will be some justification, of course, as his health has broken under the strain and his wife is ill in Chicago.

"It brings to mind the comment of a hurried party leader: 'A lot of these fellows who think that they should be rewarded with jobs really don't want them after they get them, but they're so persistent that we have to do something to get rid of them. And a job is the answer. Any job.'

"I could mention one appointment to a Central American post of a man who heeded us so persistently that we were glad to give him a plum. Now that he has it, the chances are he wishes he were rid of it."

ENGINEER SEEKS UNDERGROUND CITY

Digging Shaft in the Heart of Los Angeles—Is Now 250 Feet Deep.

Los Angeles, Jan. 30.—(AP)—A group of men are digging in the heart of Los Angeles for a lost underground city of the "Lizard People."

The shaft, now down 250 feet, the explorers believe, will lead to the "key room" of the city of catcombs in which were stored the city records which legend says were written on tablets of gold.

G. Warren Shufelt, geophysical mining engineer and designer of an "X-ray" which, together with Indian legend, spurred the diggers on, not long ago was engaged in a search for Spanish gold in this same area. With other associates he dug 50 feet on county property but was denied permission to penetrate further.

But Shufelt continued explorations with his device which led him hither and yon over an area from the public library to the Southwest Museum.

Tunnels Located

"I knew I was over a pattern of tunnels," he declares, "and had mapped out their course, the position of large rooms and the location of deposits of gold, but I couldn't understand the meaning of it."

He was taken to Little Chief Greenleaf, an educated Hopi Indian from Arizona who sometimes lectures under the English name of L. Macklin.

Shufelt said Macklin told him he apparently had located one of three lost cities on the Pacific coast dug by the Lizard people about 5,000 years ago after a great tongue of fire had "come out of the southwest destroying all life in its path."

"Description First"

They dug the labyrinthine to escape future fires and one of the cities lay within a chain of hills forming "the frog of a horse's hoof." The description fits, said Shufelt, and he interested other persons in financing the shaft, which is being dug on North Hill street within a few blocks of the City Hall.

The legend, as told by Macklin, said the lost city was dug with powerful chemicals. The tunnels began at the ocean. The shaft, passing daily in and out of the lower portals, forced air into the upper tunnels providing ventilation.

Large rooms in the domes of hills housed hundreds of families who stored imperishable her as a food supply against the coming of another fire. The Lizard people, who were reputed to be highly intellectual and to have developed a cement better than any now in use, regarded the lizard as the symbol of long life. They laid their city out in the shape of one, its tail to the southwest.

"The legendary story must remain speculative," said Shufelt, "until proved by excavation. But we are prepared to go down 1,000 feet before we will abandon our operations."

MILLS SCORES PRESIDENTIAL DICTATORSHIP

ROBINSON ANSWERS

Washington, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, said in a formal statement today the Topeka address of Ogden Mills, Hoover secretary of the Treasury, was "notable in that it indicates his candidacy for the presidential nomination on the Republican ticket and the platform upon which he expects to run."

This unusually direct assertion featured a day of Capitol cloak-room discussion of the Mills speech and its political significance.

Representative Byrns of Tennessee, House Democratic leader, said: "It is rather pleasing that Mr. Mills now concurs with the policy of the Democratic Party as far as developing foreign markets for our surplus products is concerned."

"While Mr. Mills was a member of the House, and a leader in the last Republican administration as Cabinet member, he took the contrary view.

BOOTLEGGERS BUSY SINCE LAW CHANGE

Assistant Attorney General John S. Hurley. The committee had before it a letter from him calling for legislation to permit seizure and immediate destruction of stills and the confiscation of automobiles, boats and airplanes bringing illegal liquor into outlets for the tax-paid product.

He asked more machinery also to protect dry states under the Twenty-First Constitutional Amendment.

The country, Hurley asserted, "is flooded with imitations of various domestic blended and rectified spirits, all non-tax paid, while an even more serious situation exists in the sale of bootleg liquor under imitation and spurious foreign labels."

Counterfeit Stamps. Some bootleggers are using counterfeit revenue scrip stamps, Hurley said, thus sending illegal liquor into state stores and county dispensaries.

He said it was "absolutely necessary" to place a special tax stamp on imported liquor to label it as tax-paid.

"It might be necessary," Hurley asserted to go so far as to make it a prima-facie violation of legislation enacted under the Twenty-first Amendment "to possess, transport, sell or deliver in dry states tax paid liquor bearing the label of the distillery located in a wet state."

CALLS HITLERISM COMMUNISM'S FOE

realizations that might give humanity a new wellbeing."

His declaration was made in a speech to the Reichstag which assembled in the Kroll Opera House shortly after Hitler had gathered his entire Cabinet around him.

The chancellor started his speech at 3:45 p. m. (8:45 a. m., e. s. t.) Hitler praised his regime as having removed, in one year, a world of conceptions and institutions and put others in their places.

Misery in The Past. He said there had been misery in Germany before his assumption of power but that now humanity seeks timely ideas for a new wellbeing.

This process, he said, was hastened by the World War which, so far as Germany was concerned, undermined the stability of authority of leaders of the then Reich and, by the dictate of Versailles, destroyed the independence and freedom of the Reich.

The speaker then bitterly berated the party bickerings following the establishment of the German Reich, saying: "The Bourgeois Democracy allied itself with Marxian Internationalism and brought forth a series of Cabinets which squandered the nation's economic and political capital."

"Everything was turned topsy turvy. What was bad became good and vice versa.

"Heroes were despised; cowards extolled. Honest men were punished; lazy ones rewarded.

"The political and cultural life became atomized. The authority of leaders became undermined.

"It is the unique merit of Nazism to have prevented a total collapse."

Hitler paid tribute to the heroism of his co-workers for their sacrifices to "liberate the German people from the madness which would have delivered 30,000,000 to starvation."

Then he launched into the customary Nazi argument against the Versailles Treaty saying that Communism has cleverly seized upon the situation developing in Germany as a result of the peace treaty, in order to prepare for a Communist world revolution.

"This," he said, "the Nazi movement deserves not only praise by the German people but by the entire world for stopping a development which would have given a death blow to all hopes for betterment."

been employed in clerical positions Connecticut, particularly in Hartford, has a large number of clerical workers now out of employ at due to the depression in all lines of activity. Some 8,000 of these war veterans and in addition there are 400 disabled veterans who are unable to do work other than of a clerical nature. It was therefore decided to endeavor to get Federal approval of a plan to allocate funds for the employment of these men.

Commissioner Connor of the state motor vehicle department today expressed his readiness to co-operate with the plan, and asserted "ere is plenty of work which could be assigned to a large group of men.

Jack Walton Visions Comeback

A 13-year-old fight to win back the place he lost when he was impeached and ousted as governor of Oklahoma may succeed for "Iron Jack" Walton, shown in this new picture at his desk as state corporation commissioner. Walton is a prominent candidate for governor in the 1934 race and started "beating back" when he was elected commissioner.

But that was all in the future, how distant only time can tell. Today the congressman by and large welcomed the chance to record themselves for the Vinson Treaty Navy bill, some presumably glad to have it passed early so they could get ready for the Roosevelt birthday ball in the evening.

CONACHER STILL LEADS HOCKEY LOOP SCORERS

Is Far Ahead of All Rivals in Race for National League Honors With 23 Goals and 12 Assists; Red Horn Leading "Bad Man."

Montreal, Jan. 30.—(AP)—After a week of accurate stick-work had sent Charley Conacher, big wing of the Toronto Maple Leafs, far ahead of all rivals in the race for National Hockey League scoring honors.

CLEVER HOOPSTERS HAVE HARD TIMES

Pitt's Star Working Their Way, Are Known as "The Hallroom Boys."

Pittsburgh, Jan. 30.—(AP)—They call them the "Hallroom Boys," these three lads who cheerfully are undergoing chilling hardships to work their way through the University of Pittsburgh and at the same time provide their winning punch for Pitt's basketball team.

Unable to afford living in an apartment or fraternity house, the boys have assumed "squatters' rights" in one corner of the brick structure high up on one of Pittsburgh's "seventy hills" at the edge of the university campus.

MICKY COCHRANE MAKES QUICK HIT WITH TIGER FANS

New Manager of Detroit Scores as After-Dinner Speaker; Is Much Liked for His Great Enthusiasm.

Detroit, Jan. 27.—(AP)—If Mickey Cochrane is half as successful on the baseball field next summer as he is now in his rigorous "buns and butter campaign," baseball fans here are confident they will see the busiest, most hustling manager the Detroit Tigers have had since the days of dynamic Hughie Jennings.

All of which is to say that Cochrane is a successful after-luncheon speaker, with a date book filled from now until the latter part of February, when he will take his ball club to Lakeland, Fla.

Enthusiasm About It Mickey appears to have "hit his stride." After dabbling in saxophone warbling, song writing and radio broadcasting, Cochrane's batting average with Detroit fans is growing as he appears daily at club luncheons, church breakfasts and meetings of youngsters who have ambitions to some day become big-league ball players.

Benson-Fraser Win Pool Title At West Side Rec

In a 150-point pool match with balls when the game was half over. As the game neared the finish the Rec at stake, Hugo Benson and Bing Fraser paired up to defeat Dave McConkey and Stewart Vennert by 10 balls in the finals of the doubles tournament last Saturday afternoon. The finals were played in two games, the first game being played a week ago Saturday, an account of which appeared in these columns, Benson and Fraser holding a 75 to 68 point advantage.

SKI THRILLS DRAW RECORD CROWDS TO SEE DARING STARS

Huge Throng at National Meet Brings New Significance to This Swiftly Growing Winter Sport.

New York, Jan. 27.—When Casper Oimen hurled his body 175 feet from a snowclad slide at Cary, Ill., the other day to win his fourth national ski-jumping title, a crowd of 25,000 brought a new significance to a swiftly growing sport.

Two years ago at Davos, Switzerland, Sigmund Ruud established a world record with a leap of 268.7 feet. Last year Alt Engen, Dakota daredevil, took up Ruud's challenge and soared for a distance of 281 feet down a slide in Utah's Wasatch mountains.

WESTERN CHAMPION INVADES NEW YORK

Walter Marty Thinks He Can Outjump the King of the East.

New York, Jan. 30.—(AP)—A tall lean westerner has come to town to discover whether or not George Spitz really is the king of high jumpers indoors.

Marty shattered Harold Osborn's nine year old outdoor record last year, clearing six feet, 8.5 inches, but he has never jumped indoors. "I have never jumped indoors," he said, "and I don't know just what to expect. I do know, though, that I'm in good shape. I cleared six feet, 8.5 inches, outdoors from a board take-off before left Fresno and Spitz. Spencer cleared five feet, six inches indoors last year." The withdrawal of Howard Spencer, famous Geneva college negro star, should leave the high jump event strictly a duel between Marty and Spitz. Spencer suffered a torn cartilage in his knee during practice and probably will be out of action during the entire indoor season.

Bruins May Be Shut Out Of Ice League Playoffs

New York, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Unlucky Bruins may be shut out of the National Hockey League playoffs this season for only the second time in eight years. They are lodged deeply in the American division, 11 points away from third place, the last playoff berth.

Other games tonight will send Chicago against the Senators at Ottawa and the Montreal Maroons against the Americans at New York. The Maroons can move into second place in the Canadian division, a point ahead of the Montreal Canadiens, by winning tonight.

Local Sport Chatter

The 1933-34 basketball season seems destined to go down into sports annals as the worst in Manchester's history, what with the National Guards getting nothing better than an even break to date, the High school and the trade school both playing dolefully, the Y and the West Sides, in their first campaigns, showing promise and little else—ah, "this is the winter of our discontent."

One touch of color appears in this otherwise exceedingly drab picture, namely, the "mole experiment" of the Rec Senior League, by Ben Clume, which seems due to complete a successful season. The basketball in the league competition is of a high calibre and the best players in this vicinity are seen in action for a very small admission. It's a fine idea, and should be backed by cage fans.

We have it on good authority that Raymond "Cop" Campbell, who has been burning up the chalked surface this season for Ansel's Masons, will transfer his services to the YMCA quintet, leaving the Masons in a very bad hole, despite the addition of Walter "Ty" Holland.

By the way, 'tis reported that Holland was kept on the bench so much this season as a member of the Guards due to his own request and he has also vetoed the attempts of Coach W. J. Clarke to put him in the starting lineup on several occasions. We think that a change of scenery to Holland plenty of good and we're looking forward to seeing him return to his old form as an eagle-eyed sharpshooter.

With Wardy Waterman and Campbell in the lineup, the Y quintet seems decidedly difficult to stop, very over Col's of Hartford last week. The Y team wants a shot at the town title this season and we'd suggest that arrangements be made for a playoff between the West Sides, Ansel's Masons and the Y for the right to meet the Guards for the championship.

We quote from Chuck McCarthy's interesting column in the Bristol Press: "A chat with one of the players on the Manchester Guards basketball team last night revealed that Manchester High has not been getting the publicity that they should be. This he based on the poor crowd at last night's game in comparison to what the crowd should be with Monahan's charges in town. He stated that a vast amount of publicity had been given to the skating carnival held there last night."

The foregoing statement is almost too silly to warrant refutation but we are willing to wager that the local high school team gets as much publicity as any other scholastic team in the C. C. I. L. Bristol excluded. Bristol gets teams of publicity and deserves every cent of it. What with the consistent winners of the old Tommy Monahan. It's the old story of "To the victor belongs the spoils" and that includes publicity.

Loss Of Smith A Severe Blow To M. H. S. Quintet

The loss of Charles "Chucky" Smith for the remainder of the basketball season, due to the ankle injury he suffered in the Bristol clash last Friday, is a severe blow to Manchester High's chances of finishing the season with a fairly respectable record. To date the Red and White has won only three games and has lost eight, having eight more games to play.

A coming game of importance is the scheduled game between the Celtics and Burnside Advos—this coming Saturday night at 8:30 with the East Side Rec being the scene of the battle. Cathedral high of Indianapolis, 1933 national Catholic prep basketball champion, this year has two O'Connors and two Connors on its roster as court mavericks. The diminutive Smith, a three sport ace, has been the spark plug of the team and Coach Clarke is not at all certain who will be used to fill the vacancy left by his loss.

The world of sport has few records of team or individual endurance to compare with that of the New York Rangers, world champion professional hockey team, five stars of which have now played together ever since the club entered the National League in 1926-27 and one of whom, John Murray Murdoch, has broken all hockey records by playing more than 400 consecutive games.

The New York Yankees were champions of the American League the same year the Rangers were organized, but no more than four of the regulars are still on the roster and two of these, Babe Ruth and Earl Combs, have nearly played out the string. The others who were freshman stars with the Yankees in 1926, are Lou Gehrig and Tony Lazerri. Not a single survivor of the 1926 pitching staff is now with the Yankees and only two, Sam Jones and Herb Pennock, are still in the major leagues.

Contrast with this fact that the famous Cook brothers and Frank Boucher of the Rangers are now in their eighth consecutive seasons as the first forward line, with Ching Johnson, the old warhorse, still leading them up. Murdoch's record for consecutive games does not compare with Gehrig's mark of 1347 consecutive baseball games, but the hazards in hockey are far greater.

Hitting Over 400—The scoring exploits of the Cook boys, Bun and Bill, in company with Frank Boucher, leave them in a class by themselves. Hockey records, of course, do not impress the average U. S. sports observer as do baseball figures, although the reverse is true in Canada.

However, it may be said broadly that averaging between 30 and 40 points during a hockey season of 44 games is equivalent to a baseball batting average of .300 to .350. Bill Cook, in 11 consecutive seasons, still leading hockey, has collected 443 points, including playoffs, for an average of 40 per season. The Ranger captain topped the National League scorers in 1927 and 1933. His high mark for one year—the equivalent of batting over 400 in baseball—was 59 goals in 1929-30.

That same year Boucher notched 62 points and Cooney Weiland of the Boston club set an all-time record with 73 points, which represent the combined total of goals and assists.

CHICAGO INDUSTRY REVIVED UNDER NRA

Wholesale Lines Boom; Price Wars End Under the New Deal.

Chicago—This great brawling, hustling beehive in which swarm 3 per cent of all the American people—greatest railroad, grain and livestock center in the country—has managed to raise itself to a level of something very like prosperity. How? Fifty per cent World's Fair and 50 per cent NRA, is the way a big downtown store executive explains it. Chicago's grim slogan of "I Will" is no pipe dream. She has.

There isn't any question about the improvement it shows in every field, beginning in midsummer.

Chicago is the supply center of all the central and western states. So when in August Chicago held its "ball market opening" it held its breath as well.

Chicago is the supply center of all the central and western states. So when in August Chicago held its "ball market opening" it held its breath as well.

But 25,000 merchants came swarming down on Chicago—more than ever before in history. They bought something between 25 and 30 million dollars' worth of goods from the big wholesalers.

An ordinary year brings 10,000 buyers and orders of around 15 millions. One wholesale house, selling apparel and household goods, reported orders from Texas from dealers who had not placed an order in years.

The mail-order business, which centers here, reports a minor boom. Several textile wholesalers report that they actually are short of stock.

Chicago, too, has had labor troubles. Two disastrous strikes in the millinery and dress lines came at the height of the season, and the milliners lost the whole season's business. Both strikes resulted in recognition of the unions, but six millinery and three dress firms moved out of town.

The greatest cleanup was in the laundries, of which Chicago has 1400. They were in the midst of a vicious price war when NRA came along, and then 11 laundries which refused to fly the Blue Eagle threatened to ruin the industry.

Price leaders reached a point where some laundries were giving away three shirts with every 10 pounds of laundry.

Within 48 hours the whole vicious war was halted, and leaders told the NRA compliance board here that it had done in 48 hours what they had been unable to do in 25 years.

Agreements had been made before, but always broken. This one is being made to stick.

Paul Kunning, secretary of the Association of Commerce and a leader in compliance work, tells of visible progress in cleaning up the cleaning and dyeing, beauty parlor, and garage and parking businesses, all of which had been more or less infested with racketeers.

Racketeers are routed. "There are a dozen places in town where rackets will be broken up," says Kunning. "It is being done simply by allowing responsible people to reassume command."

The Chicago compliance board has 17 members, serving as volunteers. They have had 3488 complaints, all but 41 of which were settled by conciliators without formal board hearings.

K. P. O'Gallagher, executive secretary of the board, tells us, "In addition to settling these thousands of complaints, we have secured payment of $40,000 to employes which we found due them under NRA."

"Labor and employer members have worked together with little friction, and you can see by the fact that in no case has any minority opinion been submitted by any board member."

Only three eagles were recommended for removal, and of 425 petitions for exceptions, 130 were approved.

The Chicago Federation of Labor, strongest central body in the country, reflects the benefits of NRA to labor.

"We expect to have 400,000 members soon after the first of the year," says E. M. Nockles, secretary. "That's an increase of some 50,000 since last March."

"Our federation is behind President Roosevelt boots and breeches. He's the first president for many years who really wants to serve all the people."

Nockles doesn't agree on compliance. He thinks of employers that "every one of them has been cheating like a horsethief, hoping the NRA will break down."

Goes After "Chiselers" The federation's radio station, WCFL, asked for examples of chiseling and received 25,000 replies, all of which were bundled up and sent to A. F. L. headquarters in Washington without local investigation. No one knows, of course, what they revealed.

Go directly from Nockles' office to that of La Salle street business man more than ordinarily wide contacts, and he will tell you that permanent benefits to business men have come from elimination of price-cutting and unfair trade practices.

But he deprecates that business men fear a topheavy bureaucracy and "too much dictation" from labor.

Business opinion is widely enough divided on NRA that a committee of the Association of Commerce, organized to frame a statement of its attitude, was unable to come to any agreement.

Nor was this association able to follow the U. S. Chamber of Commerce on the government's money policy. After long and careful consideration by a committee of Chicago's really big men they asked only a prompt return to a gold standard such as should be determined by the president.

Johnson Arouses Ire General Johnson made a definitely bad impression on business men here on his speaking tour. They bitterly resented his invective.

"We'll listen to reason," one of them told me, "but we can do that without calling names."

Others, including reporters for papers opposing the NRA, told me they thought Johnson was "swell" and "went over big."

Some idea of what NRA means to the huge packing industry here may be gained from the fact that the first year under the code is expected to cost Swift & Co. a million and a half in increased wages, and Armour about the same.

Yet they seem able to carry this burden. Armour, Cudahy, Swift, and Wilson each finished the year with profits of more than a million, and all made better showings than last year, despite increased costs.

The whole trick here, as with automobiles, lies in whether sales volume increases in 1934. There is some hope of export of lard to Russia, for there are enormous stocks means? Why, Maxie will enter the ring all tired out. After a couple of rounds he is pretty sure to be in bad shape, for even a Rosenbloom cannot stand all that distasteful exercise and still keep in the pink. Furthermore, it is learned upon reliable authority, that the champion has been going to bed before daylight. Certain sources high in the council of the champion's coterie confirm the rumor that he has been indulging in three nights of best-kept week since starting the training grind. He will come to the fight heavy with sleep.

It has been only a matter of two scan't years since Rosenbloom lost a 10-round fight, to this same Joe Knight, a Cairo, Ga., boy, at Daytona Beach. Maxie applied his usual light touch to the training routine for that one, and it was a good thing his title was not at stake because he took a plentiful pasting.

Since then the 25-year-old boy from the canebrake country has been coming right along. Last year he kayoed his ancient enemy, Bob Godwin and beat Lou Scozza, Battling Bozo, George Nichols and Biggie Joe Banovic. Certain sources high in the council of the champion's coterie confirm the rumor that he has been indulging in three nights of best-kept week since starting the training grind. He will come to the fight heavy with sleep.

It is a time-honored custom of Rosenbloom, when beginning to train for an important fight, to look up the most convenient night club accommodations, find out which has the best band, test the dance floor, ask about the cover charge and look over the wine list.

The next part of the conditioning routine sees Maxie enter the club between 11 p. m. and midnight to start his workouts. These often last until 6 or 7 a. m. When Rosenbloom emerges he feels all rested up and ready to box.

Therefore the reports that Maxie is doing roadwork in preparation for his bout with Knight are bad news. The roadwork would be bad enough, if Maxie would just jog a block for a street car every day or so and let it go at that.

But I am told that he also has been going in for gymnastics, callisthenics, boxing and punching the bag. And do you know what that

ROSENBLOOM MAY LOSE HIS TITLE THURSDAY

New York, Jan. 30.—Disturbing advice comes from Miami, Fla., where Maxie Rosenbloom is to meet Joe Knight Feb. 1 for the light heavyweight championship of the world.

Amazed correspondents report the sight of the champion running like a horse down the road in such small hours of the morning as 10 a. m.

If this is true—and it has been substantiated by several tourists who had to get up that early to catch trains—it can mean only one thing: Maxie Rosenbloom is about to lose his championship.

It is a time-honored custom of Rosenbloom, when beginning to train for an important fight, to look up the most convenient night club accommodations, find out which has the best band, test the dance floor, ask about the cover charge and look over the wine list.

SENSE and NONSENSE

They put fools in the world for the same reason they put the black keys on the piano — to vary the monotony.

Minister—And what parable do you like best, my friend?
Man—The one about the multitude that loads and fishes.

Are you the letter or the carbon copy?
Are you the voice or the echo?
Are you the original or just an imitation?
Dare to do it differently.

Man—It must be a terrible mental strain for a woman to read a continued story.
Neighbor—Why so?
Man—There is no way for her to find out in advance how it ends.

Let them steal your thunder—Lightning is what makes the hit!

"Animally" speaking, do not ape the foolish fellow who Monkey with his home town loyalty and can hardly Bear up when he finds out too late how Deer it was. It is but Horse play to Dog the footsteps of such a Mullah fellow, for he was only Lion to himself.

Occasionally a girl insists on a church wedding because she realizes it may be her last chance to show off in good clothes.

Consider the dog. When he has fleas, he doesn't start drawing up an indictment against the universe. No, sir; he just starts scratching.

Minister—Your husband does not knock you about now as he used to?
Woman Addressed—No, sir.
Minister—I am delighted to hear it. After all, his heart is in the right place.
Woman Addressed—Oh, yes, sir—it's with the rest of his body—in prison.

Mamie—What shall I do? I'm engaged to a man who simply cannot bear children.
Ethel—Say, say, where do you get that stuff, you are expecting too much from a man, dearie.

The life of a dollar bill may be only seven or eight months, but we never yet have had one die on our hands.

Daughter—Should I marry a man who lies to me, mother?
Mother—Daughter dear, do you want to be an old maid?

Customer—I want my money back on this book. Isn't it your aim to please customers?
Clerk—Yes, ma'am. Is the book imperfect?
Customer—It certainly is. I don't like the way it ends.

A wife is constantly remarking that her husband is the only man who has ever kissed her. Her friends have never been able to determine whether she is bragging or complaining.

Friend—Which of your works of fiction do you consider your best?
Author—My last income tax return.

Just about the time we begin to enjoy Sunday, it is Monday again. Tired Man (as he sat down by the roadside)—Ho hum, I've walked a mile and only moved a couple of feet.

Ah, what a great thing it would be for the country if, at the same time they are getting rid of our surplus pigs, they could get rid of our surplus baloney, too.

Carpenter—You hammer nails like lightning.
Apprentice—Thanks—You mean I'm fast?
Carpenter—I mean you seldom strike twice in the same place.

Youth—Why do you call your sweetie "Tomtitus"?
His Chum—Because she's beginning to give me a pain in the neck.

The birth control investigation held by a Congressional committee shouldn't bother the Congressmen, since they have been born already. A French audience pulled bricks from a theater wall to throw at the actors when the actors themselves failed to bring down the house.

English walnuts first came to America from Persia, but they came through England, so loyal colonists called them "English walnuts."
