

DOUG FAIRBANKS CO-RESPONDENT IN DIVORCE SUIT

American Film Star Named in Action Started by Lord Ashley in London—Actor Remains Silent.

London, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., American film star, was served notice today that he has been named as co-respondent in a divorce action instituted by young Lord Ashley against Lady Ashley.

Douglas Fairbanks

and Company announced the service of the notice and immediately Lady Ashley, who once played the heroine's role in the play "The Whole Town's Talking" had all London town talking again.

She herself, however, separated from her husband and residing in the Mayfair district, declined to make any comment on the case.

Fairbanks maintained a "dignified silence"—even as he did during his marital troubles with Mary Pickford, his equally famous wife whose divorce action still is pending in California.

He was secluded today in a state country home near London. His London representative declined to reveal the whereabouts of film land's most famous actor of swash-buckling roles saying such revelation would be "unfair to the friends he is visiting."

To Accept Papers He said that, nevertheless, the matter of service, the notice on Fairbanks constituted no difficulty for "Doug is too much of a gentleman even to think of dodging the service of papers."

The representative added that the movie actor would leave England at the end of the week with Alexander Korda, film director, to look over the location for a film which Fairbanks plans to start making in Spain in about three weeks.

Despite the assurances that Fairbanks was in seclusion, it was reported that he had been seen in London.

CHINA EXPECTING JAP-RUSSIAN WAR

Chinese Leader Tells Reporters There Is Much Friction Between Nations Now.

San Francisco, Feb. 6.—(AP)—A Japanese-Russian war soon would not surprise Dr. Fong Foo-Sec of Shanghai, one-time Sacramento, Calif., laborer who rose to leadership in his country's educational affairs and who today completes a good-will visit to the United States.

Dr. Fong, member of the board of Rotary International, attended its meeting in Chicago this month, then visited Rotary clubs in Illinois and Ohio.

"There has been so much friction between Japan and Russia I would not be surprised to pick up a newspaper almost any day and learn they have gone to war," commented the 65-year-old retired editor—who appears 40 or younger—in an interview.

China Neutral Such a war, he said he believed, would find China officially neutral, but with pro-Russian sympathies, due to the Japanese occupation of Manchuria and the shelling early in 1922, of a Chinese quarter of Shanghai. These actions started the anti-Japanese boycott which Dr. Fong said is still in operation.

TO CALL ADAMS AND HIS AIDES IN NAVY PROBE

House Committee Wants to Know How 50 Per Cent Profits Were Made on Plane Contracts.

Washington, Feb. 6.—(AP)—A House naval affairs subcommittee decided today to call Charles Francis Adams, former Secretary of the Navy, and two of his assistants to find out what they know about airplane contracts on which it has been told profits of as much as 50 per cent were made.

The assistants are David S. Ingalls, assistant secretary for aeronautics from 1926 to 1932, and Edward F. Warner, who held the same post from 1926 until 1929.

The decision was reached after Chairman Delaney, of the group investigating Navy airplane and engine contracts, concluded that present officials of the Navy had no direct knowledge of contracts awarded before last March.

Little Information Even Rear Admiral Ernest J. King, now chief of the Navy's Aeronautic Bureau, could not furnish the desired information because he did not take his present post until Rear Admiral William A. Moffett died when the ship Akron dropped into the Atlantic in April, 1933.

"I think that to clear up the question of why the Navy continued to grant contracts after audits showed such big profits, we should summon these three men," Delaney said.

Other committee members agreed. Delaney immediately arranged to send letters to the three former officials.

The committee has no authority to compel them to appear, but Delaney told newspapermen he felt "sure they will accept."

Also by unanimous action, the committee decided to invite more than a score of airplane and engine builders who have had contracts with the Navy.

Garment Makers QUIT COURT MOVE

State Manufacturers Withdraw Application to Restrict NRA Officials.

New Britain, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Five suit and cloak manufacturers in Connecticut today withdrew an application to the United States District Court in Hartford for an injunction restraining NRA code authorities from enforcing the provisions of the code.

The garment manufacturers and the Independent Cloak Company, Philip Scapallati and Sokol Brothers of this city and the Parisian Garment Company and the Bill-Rite Garment Company of Bridgeport.

Judge Edwin S. Thomas in District Court recently granted a temporary injunction against enforcement of the code provisions.

A statement issued by Attorneys Albert S. Albrecht of Hartford and David P. Sigel of New York concerning the withdrawal of the suit was as follows:

"Following the suggestion made by counsel representing the NRA authority in the recent injunction before Federal Judge Edwin S. Thomas, wherein it was stated that relief could be had through conferences with the administrative officials, and despite the fact that an injunction was granted, the plaintiffs, in a spirit of patriotic cooperation, have decided to withdraw their court proceedings in the belief and hope that the NRA administrative authorities will give them relief sought."

CALLS SMALL DEALERS REAL 'FORGOTTEN MEN'

Senator Capper Asserts Some NRA Codes Were Written Against the Interest of Little Business.

Washington, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Senator Capper (R., Kas.), declared today in an address he felt the small industries and small business men were "the forgotten people of the New Deal" and asserted that some NRA codes appeared to be written in the interest of big business and against the interest of the little business.

"If the abrogation of the anti-trust laws for those who have signed the codes," he said, "means that big business is going to grow still bigger; that ownership and control, instead of being more scattered over the country, is going to be centralized still more—then either Congress made a terrible mistake in repealing the anti-trust laws for that purpose, or some one is making a mistake that amounts to an economic crime in administering the codes."

Extended Credit Capper said he understood plans were practically completed to extend some credit, through the RFC and mortgage companies, organized for that purpose, to the small industries of the country.

"But I want to say right now," he added, "that unless the little industry, the little business man, is also given protection against big business and monopoly, the extension of credit will do him more harm than good."

Scores Steel Code Capper singled out the steel code for criticism, declaring: "In the first place, we thought that the steel trust completely dominated the steel industry long before the New Deal and the NRA were born. But it seems that under the codes written by the steel trust heads, and to all intents and purposes which are being enforced by the United States government itself, that domination has simply been extended and made secure."

With the jury absent, Dr. Henry Kennedy, brother of the dead surgeon, testified late yesterday that Preston Kennedy had charged on his death bed that he had been poisoned by Dr. Dean by means of a whiskey high-ball. Over defense objections, Judge Davis ruled the evidence admissible and ordered Dr. Henry Kennedy to repeat his story to the jury this morning.

Defense Argument Chief Defense Attorney A. F. Gardner presented new motions today, day alleging that Preston Kennedy's declaration was not competent because it had not been shown that he had "abandoned all hope of life" and that his alleged words with reference to poisoning constituted "an opinion and not a fact."

Under Mississippi law, dying declarations are competent for repetition by a second party only when it has been proved that the maker of the declaration has "abandoned all hope of life, however remote."

Gardner cited "the recent case of Major Charles A. Sheppard of Fort Riley, Kansas, charged with poison murder of his wife."

"The wife's accusation that 'Major Sheppard has poisoned me' was held incompetent," said Gardner. Judge Davis overruled the defense objections for a second time and ordered the jury brought in to hear Henry Kennedy's testimony.

DALADIER WINS VOTE OF FAITH AMID RIOTING

French Premier, Backed by Nearby Guns, Gets Support of Majority in Scene of Wild Excitement.

Paris, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Firing began at 7:55 p. m. tonight in the Place De La Concorde. One woman was probably fatally wounded with the first shots.

The woman was a servant. She apparently was in midst of the mob battling with police. Soldiers had been called to assist the police.

A man was killed in the fighting.

Paris Feb. 6.—(AP)—Deputies, rioting among themselves, broke up a session of the chamber today when Premier Edouard Daladier, a vote of confidence behind him, refused to answer questions from the floor.

Daladier won his fight for political life when the chamber of deputies, after a riotous demonstration, gave him his vote of confidence with the halting 306 to 217.

For the first time in the memory of deputies a premier had been interrupted during a declaration of policy as angry deputies came to blows.

Daladier had pleaded for support from the Radical Socialist party "to prevent a civil war."

Backed by Guns While the former schoolteacher spoke, machine guns were held in readiness in a nearby police barracks. Thousands of troops and police were on duty as world war veterans and royalists threatened demonstrations.

The vote of confidence brought Daladier through a severe test of his week-old cabinet and gave him assurance of chamber support of his drastic government shake-up, following the Stavisky scandal.

A free for all fight with socialists and communists on one side and members of the right on the other, amid cries of "premier resign!" had interrupted the session in his appeal for the life of his cabinet and the session of the chamber of deputies was suspended.

The aggressive premier had pleaded with his radical Socialist Party to support him "lest the republic will be forced to abdicate."

PRESIDENT'S COLD KEEPS HIM IDLE

Stays Away from His Desk and Sees But a Few Callers Today.

Washington, Feb. 6.—(AP)—President Roosevelt remained away from his desk again today to devote himself to his personal business and give his cold a complete opportunity for recovery.

The cold was described as virtually gone, but lacking urgent business, Mr. Roosevelt decided to stay in the executive mansion proper for the day.

The few callers included William C. Bullitt, ambassador to Russia, who is departing for Moscow next week. He was a luncheon guest. The president was preparing a statement of his sugar control policy to be forthcoming in a day or so.

EXPECT EARLY MOVE TO BREAK DEADLOCK ON CONN. PATRONAGE

Secretary Dern Orders Investigation of All Rumors Concerning Lobbyists.

Washington, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Secretary Dern said today he had asked the Department of Justice to investigate thoroughly all rumors concerning lobbyists with alleged influence in War Department sales, purchases, or other activities, and lobbying on War Department matters before Congress.

He made this statement to newspapermen as the District of Columbia Grand Jury began an investigation of an alleged conspiracy to defraud the government of more than $2,000,000 in connection with the purchase with public works funds of 4,000 motor trucks.

The chief witness questioned by the Grand Jury was Harry H. Woodring, assistant secretary of war, who last night issued an order barring Joseph Silverman, a Washington and New York dealer in Army supplies, from the War Department.

All information gathered by the War Department during an investigation covering several weeks has (Continued on Page Two.)

TAX DISCUSSIONS URGED BY HUBBARD

Head of State Manufacturers Says Aid Should Be Offered to Commission.

Hartford, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Sponsorship of meetings in various parts of the state "to crystallize sentiment of manufacturers on taxation matters," by the Manufacturers Association of Connecticut, is proposed by E. Kent Hubbard, its president, in Connecticut industry, publication of the body.

The meetings would be held, he offered said, "to the further end that every possible help will be extended to the state tax commission, the members of which are giving unstintingly of their time and energy, to the solution of this most difficult problem."

Unusual Opportunity President Hubbard in suggesting the aid of the manufacturers' association, said citizens have an unusual opportunity to straighten out the jagged line which has from the beginning represented the inequalities in tax burdens among the groups of taxpayers, and among individual taxpayers.

He pointed out the "unusual type of men" who are members of the commission and added: "For some years past, there has been a general clamor for relief of the tax burden on real estate. In this the manufacturer had a vital interest, but he must also recognize the fact that unless he individually and as a group makes definite recommendations, others, who would shift the tax burden to him, will provide the layout for him."

PALLOTTI TRIAL POSTPONED TODAY

One of Defendants Reported Ill—Hearing to Be Resumed Tomorrow.

Hartford, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Trial of Rocco D. Pallotti, Salvatore Malone, Edward Orsini and John Patrizio, charged with conspiracy to interfere with the orderly process of the recent city election, intimidation of voters, assault and breach of peace, was interrupted in Superior Court today by the report of counsel to Judge Edwin C. Dickenson that Malone is sick at his home in Middletown.

Attorney W. Alfred Lundborg, counsel for Pallotti, told the court as spokesman for the defendants that he had been informed that Malone is very ill, and that the physician attending him said he might be required to stay from court several days.

States Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn said that it would seem proper that an examination of Malone should be made immediately, and that a physician representing the state should be present at the examination.

Dr. Henry N. Costello, medical examiner, examine Malone. Dr. Costello reported Malone ought to be able to be in court tomorrow. He had the group. Court was adjourned until 10 a. m. Wednesday.

Over 1,000 File Claims Against Soviet Russia

Names of all claimants and the amount of individual claims are held strictly confidential information by the State Department and no official estimate of the total has been made.

In addition to three issues of Russian government securities totaling $28,000,000 known to be outstanding in this country, however, it is estimated that additional claims will increase the grand total for Russian securities alone to over $100,000,000.

The United States government, in addition, has an official claim for $337,223,283 for loans made to the country before the United States entered the World War.

TELEPHONE COMPANY NOTES IMPROVEMENT

President Reports That Last Six Months Business Was Better—Details of Statement.

New Haven, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Definite improvement in the business of the Southern New England Telephone Company, during the last six months in 1933 and the first weeks of 1934, was reported today at the annual stockholders' meeting by President Harry C. Knight.

As a whole, however, the business of 1933, Knight said, was less satisfactory than that of 1932. Income after fixed charges was $6.01 a share, barely equalling the annual dividend rate of $6 a share, which was reduced from $8 at the beginning of 1933.

Gross operating revenues totaled $14,978,846.28 and net operating revenues amounted to $4,471,721.57. Net income totaled $2,404,406.13 against dividend appropriations of $2,400,000.

Knight reported a net loss of 9,480 telephones for 1933 compared to a loss of 30,750 in 1932 and a small gain in 1931. Toll revenue dropped $276,758 or 7.3 per cent from 1932 and net earnings on investment in plant dropped from 4.93 per cent in 1932 to 4.48 per cent in 1933.

It is understood the entire matter will be taken before the Grand Jury for possible indictments.

able to complete his declaration after a quarter-hour of history making stormy interruption. There was continuous booing from the opposition.

Five thousand troops were massed in Paris as the government prepared to use stern measures to put down any possible rioting.

Police were on duty throughout the city. Royalists and war veterans by the thousands planned demonstrations in protest of the Stavisky scandal and the dismissal of Jean Chippaux as prefect of Paris police.

When Daladier spoke the Communists yelled "long live the Soviets," while joining they left in a rush against the speaker of the right. Eugene Prot, minister of the interior tried to calm members and directed the efforts of a score of others to separate the striking and clanging deputies.

As Daladier refused to reply to questionings the legislators went wild. Some shouted "Fascism!" others sang the Communist hymn "The Internationale."

The clam broke loose when Andre Tardieu, former premier and one of the leaders of the opposition to Daladier, mounted the rostrum to speak.

The deputies slammed the tops of their desks, pounded with books and flats, and roared epithets at one another.

The deputies of the left accused members of the Rightist parties of obstructionist tactics. Rightists charged the government with dictatorial methods.

Therapist Daladier agreed to discuss four interpellations from the floor. When the turmoil arose, however, he shouted above the bedlam: "Because of the blocking maneuvers of the opposition I refuse to discuss any interpellation."

ADM. BYRD'S FLAGSHIP TO SAIL NORTHWARD

Aboard Admiral Byrd's Flagship, Antarctic, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Via Mackay Radio, the admiral's flagship, Byrd Antarctic Expedition will sail from the Bay of Whales tomorrow to be laid up in New Zealand for a year.

Following discharge of all stores for the winter party, the vessel will be put in either at Port Chalmers or Dunedin, N. Z., until next winter.

In December or January she will return to pick up the winter party. A number of the ship's crew will remain on the ice until the Bear of Oakland, supply ship, starts north. They will aid in emptying caches of stores between the ships and little parties and moving them to the permanent camp.

Since Friday, the flagship has been engaged in transferring 260 tons of coal to the bunkers of the Bear, and today had nearly completed the job.

Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd is anxious to get the supplies moved as soon as possible, asserting "this ice may go out at any time."

"We're not out of the woods, not by a long shot," he said. "We won't be until we get this stuff into the main base."

DE MOLAY HERE THRICE HONORED

Two Members Get Legion of Honor Degree; Dad Walsh Gets Cross of Honor.

Two members of John Mather Chapter, Order of DeMolay, were thrice honored last night when they were given the degree of Legion of Honor. The occasion was an outstanding one for the local chapter for it was the first such investiture since DeMolay was instituted in Manchester.

The investiture was a public ceremony and about 350 were in attendance. The officers for the evening were: Commander in the East, "Dad" Frederick L. Palmer, of New Haven; grand marshal, Judson Hyde, of New Haven; grand chaplain, James Logan, of Hartford.

The rest of the officers were filled by Past Master Councilors of John Mather chapter as follows: Commander in the South, Sherwood House, Commander in the West, George Nelson, seven Preceptors in the following order: Carl C. Catterly, Austin Krause, George Putterly, Arthur Davis, Albert Tuttle, William Davis, and James McCaw.

Among the Legionnaires present were Wendell Miller, of Hartford, vice-commander of the Charles M. Gerdenier Preceptory, Legion of Honor, of Connecticut; and Robert Kessel of Hartford and Lane Johnson, also of Hartford.

"Dad" Walsh Honored Following the investiture several of the honored guests were called upon for brief talks.

Palmer of New Haven was speaking he took occasion to mention the fine work "Dad" Walsh has done in Manchester. Thus referring to "Dad" Walsh he called him to the floor and presented him with the Cross of Honor, the highest honor that DeMolay can confer upon a chapter advisor.

Mr. Walsh was nearly overwhelmed at the presentation but manager to thank "Dad" Palmer and the DeMolay leaders who had adjudged him worthy of the honor.

The DeMolay boys themselves were even more elated at the honor won by Mr. Walsh when they were at the honor given two of their fellow members.

400-500 SILK WORKERS QUIT IN MIDDLETOWN

Day and Night Shifts Go On Strike When a Foreman Is Replaced.

Middletown, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Between 400 and 500 employees of the Middletown Silk Company, constituting both day and night shifts, went on strike last night and today when they learned that a foreman was to be replaced by another who would be familiar with the manufacture of rayon, an artificial silk, which the company is going to make.

Word of the replacement reached the night shift forces first, last night and they left their work immediately. The day shift personnel acted in sympathy today.

A conference of labor union representatives heads of the silk company and representatives of the American Federation of Labor was held today in an effort to iron out the trouble.

No picketing was carried on at the plant. Labor leaders here said a question of wages also was involved as one of the conference topics.

SAYS COUGHLIN TALKS MAY START BANK RUNS

Washington, Feb. 6.—(AP)—A memorandum from Donald N. Sweeney, a Detroit banker, saying radio addresses by Father Charles E. Coughlin were "sufficient to incite a bank run" was read to the Senate bank investigating committee today by Ferdinand Pecora, its counsel.

The memorandum, sent to Pecora in January, 1933, added that Coughlin's discourses showed a "growing tendency to radicalism."

It also said the priest was speaking before audiences "incapable of drawing differentiations" and said this was particularly true in not distinguishing between "bankers" and "international bankers."

The memorandum said the discourses might not seem harmful in reading them but "when quoted" by Father Coughlin were "sufficient to incite a bank run."

Weddings

McNamara-Schildge Miss Marjorie Ernestine Schildge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Schildge, 113 Park street, was married this morning at 10 o'clock to Lawrence Michael McNamara, son of Thomas McNamara of 610 North Main street.

Y. M. C. A. Notes

The state convention of Y. M. C. A. employees will be held Thursday at the New Haven Y. M. C. A.

The volley ball team that will be the official team to represent the Manchester Y. M. C. A. will practice tonight at 8:15. They are to play the Hartford Y. M. C. A. team at the Manchester "Y" on February 17.

Letters received from E. J. Simons, former director at the Manchester Y. M. C. A., now located at Albuquerque, N. M., brings the information that he is enjoying his work there. His work, he writes, is mostly with the boys of that place, which includes a large percentage of Mexican boys. It is a work that he has done before and which he enjoys, he writes.

The monthly meeting of the local directors will be held Wednesday of next week.

I. O. O. F. TO CELEBRATE DOUBLE ANNIVERSARY

Will Observe Birthday of Order's Founder and Start of Local Lodge Saturday.

On Saturday evening, Shepherd Encampment, King David Lodge and Sunset Rebekah Lodge, will observe the birthday of Thomas Wildey, founder of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows. There will be a roast beef supper at 8:30. The regular Friday evening meeting will be shifted to Saturday and there will be presentation of thirty-five year emblems to six members of King David Lodge. Dancing will follow.

The anniversary of the founding of King David Lodge will also be observed.

It is expected that Grand Master Edmund Pitzer of Bridgeport and District Deputy Grand Master Robert Hall of East Hartford and staff will be among the guests. The affair will be in charge of Thomas Brown and Walter Fox, assisted by a large committee from King David Lodge and a dinner committee from Sunset Rebekah Lodge, headed by Mrs. Grace Lathrop.

It is expected that more than 200 persons will be present at the affair. It has been the custom of King David Lodge for the past ten years to present 35-year emblems to members attaining that record.

HOSPITAL NOTES

Mrs. Mary Tivnan of 36 Porter street, and Fred Kraus, of 669 Toland Turnpike were admitted and Otto Vial of 38 Coburn Road, Miss Rose Perrin of the Johnson block, Mrs. Mae Wilkie of 16 Walker street, Mrs. William Christensen and infant son of Coventry and Miss Mildred Champ of 68 Harwich street, Hartford, were discharged yesterday.

Roseanne Humphrey of 14 Eldridge street was admitted and George Nichols of 127 Porter street and Mrs. Mary Phaneuf of 329 Center street were discharged today.

NEW STATE GRANT

Hartford, Feb. 6.—(AP)—A grant of $215,867 from the Federal emergency relief commission has been allotted to Connecticut, Miss Eleanor H. Little, state administrator, said today. The grant is for reimbursement to towns for one third the expenditures for unemployment relief during the last quarter of 1933.

FREE BED FUND DRIVE PLANNED

Firm of Cheney Brothers to Match Donations of Mill Employees.

The annual meeting of the Tuberculosis and Cancer Free Bed Fund Association of Cheney Brothers was held in the lodge room of Cheney Hall after the close of the mill work day yesterday. Officers were elected for the year and plans were laid for a campaign for much needed funds. The drive will be conducted among the employees and the firm of Cheney Brothers will match each donation up to the total of $1,000.

If the employees contribute a total of $1,000 the firm will add another $1,000 to it so that the treasury will have $2,000 for its work.

Does Fine Work The association does a considerable amount of work for which the officers and executives get little real credit. Many cases are found among employees that need immediate medical attention and where personal funds for such care are not available. The officers of this association take a hand and with no disclosure of the names of the patients see that the necessary attention is given. Many a victim of either disease in its early stages might have become a hopeless case were it not for the accomplishments of this association.

At yesterday's meeting Arthur Bendall was named to preside over the election and the following were named officers for the year: Arthur Bromie, president; Miss Emily Klamman, vice-president; Willis W. Callis, treasurer; Robert Fryer, secretary.

TO REDUCE FINES

Hartford, Feb. 6.—(AP)—It was reported this afternoon that officers of the police department and the police court are in agreement on a plan to reduce the fines on parking tags from $2 to $1.

There have been conferences between the judges of the Police Court and the committees of the Board of Police Commissioners as the scheme is said to have already been worked out. Arrangements will be made for the printing of special tickets, to be numbered. Only a given number will be distributed daily to police officers, who will not be permitted to take back any tags as has been the practice on some occasions in the past.

Far West Not Affected By Dollar Devaluation

San Francisco, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The survey of 60 per cent of the state's factory workers indicated average December wages of $21.75 per week. This was up 19 per cent from the $18.26 average of June.

In San Francisco, the only large item in family budgets to rise with approximately the speed of wages was clothing. That gains 15.9 per cent from June to December. In Los Angeles the gain was 12.8 per cent.

Other increases in living costs were: Food—5.8 per cent in San Francisco and 11.5 per cent in Los Angeles; and household furnishings—2.7 per cent in San Francisco and 14.4 per cent in Los Angeles. Rent declined in both cities—3.3 per cent in San Francisco and 5.2 per cent in Los Angeles. Fuel and lighting costs gained 5 per cent in San Francisco but dropped 3 per cent in Los Angeles.

The gains of 4.9 per cent in general living costs here and in Los Angeles, 2 per cent in Seattle and 3.7 per cent in Portland were all short of the national average increase of 5.2 per cent.

H O L C TO ASSIST HOUSE BUILDING

Senator Lonergan Also Predicts House Repairs Will Be Included.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—Enactment during the present month of provisions authorizing the Home Owners' Loan Corporation to extend loans for new housing construction, and for repairs and remodeling of existing homes, was predicted today by Senator Lonergan, (D) of Connecticut, following a conference with officials of the organization.

The Senator said that such a provision is being drafted in connection with legislation to guarantee the corporation's bonds offered in exchange for mortgages. He expressed the belief that both plans would obtain administration support and would be promptly passed.

Previously, the Senator had conferred with Jesse Jones, Director of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, regarding employment loans to small wage earners of good character, and for industrial and business loans to establishments now unable to obtain credit. He announced that Mr. Jones was favorable to granting further relief to business and industry but believes direct loans present serious problems of administration. He found the director willing to broaden the scope of the mortgage loan provisions by which local mortgage loan associations can borrow from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and lend to private industry. The Senator said that Mr. Jones is also interested in a housing construction plan by which local mortgage loan companies would advance to the prospective home owner sufficient money to permit the construction of a home, and in turn the Reconstruction Finance Corporation would lend to the mortgage company 80 per cent of the home loan.

"The Home Owners Loan plan for housing construction would likely be more effective," the Senator said, "since it depends less on local initiative in organizing mortgage associations and would permit the loans to be made direct from branches of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation."

GOLD RUSHED BY AIR TO BANKS IN LONDON

London, Feb. 6.—(AP)—A big Dutch airliner arrived at Croydon Airfield from Rotterdam today initiating the gold rush, from the continent to London by air.

The Dutch plane brought 34 boxes of gold consigned to a London bank. A fleet of other planes from Paris was awaited at the airport.

Croydon was notified that eight machines had been chartered in Paris to carry gold cargoes here. Three of these are imperial Airways planes placed on the route specifically for gold delivery and the remainder were chartered from other companies.

While the total weight of the gold was not stated, flying officials said, however, that the consignments to create a record for gold carried by air in one day.

The German steamship Adler unloaded 2,500,000 worth of gold bullion which it had carried from Bremen consigned to the Bank of England on the London docks.

WILLIAMSON FUNERAL
Bridgeport, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Funeral services for A. Joseph Williamson, chief fish and game warden of the state, who died in Wethersfield Sunday, were held here today, and were largely attended by state officials, sportsmen and members of the Fish and Game Department. The services which began at 1:30 p. m., were conducted by the Rev. Dr. J. Newton Lockley of the Central Baptist church, Hartford.

The active pall bearers were the county game wardens. They were: Charles Allspouse, Hartford county; Philip W. Deibert, New Haven; W. E. Watson, New London; Charles R. Dibrow, Fairfield; Thomas G. Daniels, Windham; Beth J. Monroe, Litchfield; Ray M. Buntingham, Middlesex and Edward G. Wright, Tolland. There was also a uniformed delegation of deputy game wardens present, officially representing the state. St. John's Lodge, No. 3, A. F. and A. M., of Bridgeport conducted the services.

MACDONALD ASKS A FAIRER DIVISION OF HIGHWAY FUND

Commissioner Says Bulk of Money Goes to Sparsely Settled States; Method of Apportionment Unjust.

Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald today inaugurated by letters to Connecticut's Congressional delegation and to the highway officials of other states, what will undoubtedly be an intensive fight by the state to secure a revision of the Federal Aid Highway Act in such a manner that Connecticut and other heavily populated states will receive a more equitable share of the funds.

One Third Method
For years the method of apportionment of Federal highway funds has been based on what is known as the 1-3-1-3-1-3 method, that is, they have been divided among the states one-third by the ratio which the area of the individual state bears to the total area of the United States, one-third by the ratio which the population bears to the total population, and one-third by the ratio which the mileage of rural delivery routes and star routes bears to the total mileage of those routes throughout the country.

The "joker" in the method is the last one-third, Commissioner Macdonald points out, for the states with the largest area naturally have the greatest mileage of rural and star routes, so that the whole basis of apportionment might just as well be one-third by population and two-thirds by area. With this method in use, the bulk of the Federal Aid money flows mostly to the western, mid-western and southern states while the more populous eastern states are the losers.

When the NIRA was before Congress in last year's special session, the House, in which representatives of the eastern states are in the majority, forced the first change that has ever been made in the method of distribution, although it was a minor one. For the distribution of the NIRA highway fund the change was made from one-third by population and two-thirds by area to one-third by population and two-thirds by the old 1-3-1-3-1-3 method.

Bill Up Now
Now that the subject of apportioning Federal highway funds is again before Congress (Bill S-2102 "to amend the Act entitled 'An Act to provide that the United States shall aid the states in the construction of rural post roads, and for other purposes'"), it is again proposed to utilize the old split-by-thirds method, so that the wide open spaces beyond the Mississippi will once more receive the cream.

The bill appropriates the sum of $125,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1935, and $125,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1936, together with smaller sums for forest highways, national parks, Indian reservations and sundry other work, in which Connecticut does not participate. If distribution of the money is made by the old 1-3-1-3-1-3 method, Connecticut will receive $792,349; if distribution is made on the basis of population, Connecticut will receive $1,596,562.

Going to the other extreme, he cites Nevada to show the inequities of the split-by-thirds method. Under the latter system, Nevada, with a population density of one inhabitant per square mile as compared with Connecticut's population density of 324 per square mile, will receive $1,598,967 or nearly double Connecticut's share. If the apportionment were to be made in accordance with population, Nevada would get $90,187 or an amount which Mr. Macdonald believes is far more proportionate to Nevada's requirements for highways than the first named amount.

Repayment "oker"
Another "joker" in the bill Commissioner Macdonald says exists in Section 7 which nullifies the provision made in previous emergency Federal Aid Acts for repayment of appropriated money by the states over a period of years. Under the act approved December 20, 1930, $50,000,000 was appropriated with the provision that the sum so advanced be reimbursed to the Federal government over a period of five years commencing with the fiscal year 1933. Twenty percent of each state's share was to be repaid from its own funds.

Mrs. E. W. Stephan of 31 Kennerly Road, Dorchester, Mass., writes:—"It was recommended to me by a relative who had used it for years, and I in turn most sincerely recommend it, most of all for children, but also as a laxative for adults."

POCKETBOOK AS CLUE TO MISSING WOMAN

Medford, Mass., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Search for Miss Alice T. Quinn, missing since Sunday night, was intensified today after the discovery of her pocketbook in the boiler room of a Soererville garage.

The pocketbook, its contents rifled, was found early yesterday by a night watchman as he made his round of the boiler room to throw coal on the fires. He told police he visited the boiler room every two hours throughout the night.

Authorities said the pocketbook probably was thrown into the room by someone who pushed open a large door, the lock of which had been broken for two years.

Miss Quinn, a former Medford school teacher resigned to engage in clerical work, left Lassalle Seminary in Newton, where she had been visiting a student, at 8:30 Sunday night. She has not been seen since.

Mrs. Mary Trotter, 60, Miss Quinn's housekeeper, told police the missing woman never staged away overnight without notifying her. She said Miss Quinn was in the habit of carrying considerable sums in her pocketbook.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 6.

AFTERMATH

The frightening wave of bank and payroll holdups and bloody battles between benefactors and police officers...

Long before the repeal of the Eighteenth amendment this newspaper, in the midst of its advocacy of that repeal, attempted to direct its readers' thoughts to the inevitable increase in crimes of violence...

Unfortunately nothing of any consequence was done to prepare the nation against the lawlessness of many thousands of jobbreakers who had been getting an easy and frequently a luxurious living in the booze racket...

It took us thirteen years to develop the machine gun army of Crookland and the machine gun complex of the gangster to its present point—thirteen years of the Eighteenth amendment. It is not to be expected that we shall be able to undo all this damage in thirteen days or thirteen months.

It was certain to come, and the indications are that it has come. It took us thirteen years to develop the machine gun army of Crookland and the machine gun complex of the gangster to its present point—thirteen years of the Eighteenth amendment.

KOPPLEMANN'S BILL

Having at one time and another affronted a few of our Democratic friends by grinning at the oratorical ambitions of Herman P. Koppelman, Congressional representative from the First Connecticut District...

Mr. Koppelman's bill, to be sure, fiddles around with the existing banking system—which can generally be depended on to do its best to take the bloom off any really constructive movement in which it is employed—and is tinged with a certain degree of timidity; but at least it makes an effort to recognize the need and the right of the small industries, which have apparently been expected to finance their NRA costs as well as their normal obligations...

Mr. Koppelman's bill, to be sure, fiddles around with the existing banking system—which can generally be depended on to do its best to take the bloom off any really constructive movement in which it is employed—and is tinged with a certain degree of timidity; but at least it makes an effort to recognize the need and the right of the small industries, which have apparently been expected to finance their NRA costs as well as their normal obligations...

In effect the bill proposes that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation advance to any member bank $0 per cent of any loan to an industrial concern provided the loan does not exceed 80 per cent of the concern's property and 75 per cent of its outstanding accounts; one third of a total of a billion in such loans to be within the $25,000 to $100,000 zone, one sixth in the zone from $100,000 upward and the remaining half to be loans of not more than $25,000 each.

It is conceivable that such a program of industrial financing might prove something less than entirely adequate and there will be plenty who would prefer to see very different machinery provided. Nevertheless it is only fair to recognize the fact that this is the first proposition introduced into Congress which takes into consideration one of the most vital elements in this whole recovery undertaking—the struggling, ably managed, patriotic but almost forgotten smaller industries that constitute so tremendous a proportion of the support of the eastern state's population.

We wish Mr. Koppelman every success with his bill. And we are so sincere in this that we will even refrain from suggesting that when she does—the measure comes up for debate he refrain from making a speech; merely hinting in a whisper that he make it short, and not too fancy.

UNIONIZING CWA

The New York Herald Tribune this morning carried a spot photograph of a group of demonstrators who were participating in a "CWA Jobs or Adequate Cash Relief" protest march. They carried well made, apparently professionally printed standards demanding "CWA Jobs or Adequate Cash Relief," and expressing similar sentiments.

Most conspicuous in the lot is "We Want CWA Jobs at Union Wages." Aside from the fact that the man carrying these standards could have merely put away their signs and posed quite successfully for a photograph purporting to be that of a group of manufacturing executives, so far as their clothes and their general grooming were concerned— from shoes to carefully dentured hats practically all of them would have passed muster in the lobby of any fine hotel—the most interesting feature of the photograph is this demand for "CWA jobs at union wages."

These New York demonstrators weren't responsible for that maggot in their brains. It was put there when the CWA set up its injurious and idiotic discrimination between "skilled" and "unskilled" labor prices, paying one man 50 cents and another a dollar-twenty an hour for "made" work. It was as plain as a pikestaff that that CWA provision was going to make trouble; and in the "CWA jobs at union wages" demand we can now see the result.

The New York paraders were merely carrying to its logical conclusion a blunder that the CWA set on foot when it permitted leaders of organized labor to dictate its policy and make flesh of one citizen and fish of another.

LEWIS AND BABBITRY

Now some of the literary critics are calling Sinclair Lewis a Babbity because he has written a book in which they say he reverses himself in his well known attitude of cynicism and contempt for the American business man as a type. The book makes a hot man who loves to keep a hotel a better man than a playwright who writes for fame and money and not because he loves to write plays.

Some other critics, on the other hand, declare that there is no inconsistency in Lewis' appearance as a defender of a business man as contrasted to a devotee of an art, since the novelist's targets have never been personalities so much as states of mind and Lewis remains in character when he assails a Babbity artist and lauds an artistic business man.

We don't care much about this controversy, but we do feel a mild interest in the assumption by some of those who are roasting Lewis' new and surprising book that he has descended to mere pot boiling and has written a self-contradictory novel merely in order to sell it and make some money—which is where they say his own Babbity comes in.

It seems to us that perhaps all these folks are overlooking the fact that business and the business man are not by any means what they were in the days when Lewis was jabbing them so ruthlessly. They were sufficiently cocksure, in those times, and sufficiently contemptuous of everything but soaring fortunes and smart profits to make anybody like Lewis mad clear to his toes.

But business and the business man are tremendously chastened now. Babbity has been defeated. It no longer challenges the stiles and stones of the Lewises. It is a serious, suffering, abashed entity, trying like blazes merely to get along.

Why on earth shouldn't a critic like Lewis, who perhaps did as much as anybody to show it the error of its ways, let up on the reformed and better Babbity and give them an encouraging pat on the back? Why, it's merely white to shove hands with your enemy after you've licked him.

THEIR EYE ON THE BALL

Wall Street and its sorely thinned flock of followers are immensely excited by the belief that the dollar and the pound sterling are about to be mutually pegged and over the probability that tact joint action between the American and British treasuries will drive France off the gold standard. An interesting angle of this—to dollar swappers and exchange speculators—immensely important preoccupation is that, outside of banking and money juggling circles, nobody in France appears to be paying the slightest attention to what the United States is doing about its monetary unit, or cares a hoot.

The French people are tremendously excited about something which to them appears to be of vastly more account—the question whether their country is being run by a lot of rogues or not. They have upset one government and thrown out of his job one very powerful prefect of Paris police, and indicate that they are willing to throw out dozens of governments, if necessary, and dozens of successive police prefects if they must, in order to find out the who, how, why and wherefore of the Bayonne pawnshop scandal.

The French may be erratic, they may be excitable, they may be of the most uncertain political temper, but there is one thing that can be said for them—they are willing, any time, to get out and kick up the most ungodly row, even to the length of grabbing a gun or a pipe and running to get into a barricade melee, if they can't make their government function to please them in any other way. You don't laugh of a thing like the Bayonne scandal in Johnny Crapaud's country, even if you can in America.

Things were looking pretty amok in Paris yesterday, but none of the rumpus was over the gold standard. We're not sure but that the French sense of proportion is at least as good as our own.

Health and Diet Advice

By Dr. Frank McCoy

SOME SYMPTOMS OF GALL BLADDER TROUBLE: In yesterday's article I told you that wrong habits of living will produce a "stuck" gall bladder. One of the wrong habits is eating too much food, or eating too many of the following foods: rich deserts, starches, gravies, jams and candies.

Another bad habit which may lead to gall bladder disorders is lack of exercise. Athletes who seem plenty of energy seldom develop any gall bladder trouble as active exercise seems in some way to help the organ to drain better and thus avoid blocking due to stagnant bile.

Unusual symptoms of gall bladder trouble are such that the patient usually believes there is something wrong with the stomach. The stomach symptoms which are often present with "stuck" gall bladder are: sense of distress and fullness which comes on soon after eating, a feeling of heaviness or weight in the stomach, and excessive gas which may cause belching.

Usually the patient will say that his stomach just doesn't ever feel right. At times the distress after meals is relieved a little, but it is present more or less all of the time, and may remain for months or years. At some period there appears a dragging ache over the gall bladder on the upper part of the right side near the ribs. The ache is dull and nagging and may be accompanied by a heavy feeling in the back and seems to be located under the right shoulder blade. If you feel sure that you have stomach trouble, I advise that you find out through first-class examination whether you have a stomach disorder or whether you really have something wrong with your gall bladder.

In giving you this examination the doctor will use the fluoroscope which is a special type of x-ray machine. In addition he may use the new test for gall bladder trouble called the Graham dye test. By means of this test dye is given to the patient, which reaches the gall bladder and through careful study of the organ while it is taking the dye the doctor is able to learn a great deal about how the gall bladder fills and empties and does its work. I feel sure that a standard examination such as I have just described is, in the long run, really both the cheapest and the most satisfactory one you could possibly have.

There is reason to believe that a chronic inflammation of the gall bladder may make worse any tendency to arthritis, and I therefore, strongly urge, that if you have arthritis, you pay particular attention to the state of your gall bladder.

Most patients with "stuck" gall bladder want to know if it is a dangerous disease. While the trouble is not one of the killing diseases, it is a very disagreeable disorder and the patient is better off in every way after he has overcome it. Tomorrow's article: "Treatment of 'Stuck' Gall Bladder."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS: Wholesome Canned Foods: Question: From Bangor, Me., comes this question: "Will you please tell me the names of some of the best canned foods for me to use?" Answer: There are any number of wholesome canned foods now on the market. I feel sure that you will find any of the following both wholesome and appetizing: apricots, string beans, corn, peas, olives, tomato juice, carrots and peas, spinach and baby lima beans; and there are also many others which you will find on the market.

Behind the Scenes in WASHINGTON

By RODNEY DUTCHER: Herald Washington Correspondent: Washington, Feb. 6.—Roosevelt wants a moratorium on open squabbles in the family—at least as long as Congress is in session.

Certain prominent members of his administration have been told to keep their dirty linen out of the public's sight. The president doesn't mind if the boys fight it out behind closed doors, but he doesn't want Congress of the country to get a distorted picture of a New Deal hampered by strife.

Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins still rates ace-high at the White House. "But his recent tag told to pipe down." That was after his crack to General Johnson about the latter's "lousy codes" had been published widely.

Hopkins also had been exchanging public rumpuses with Governor Bryan has descended on Father Charles E. Coughlin. The Detroit priest's appearance before the House coinage committee drew an enthusiastic turnout of gray-headed worshippers of the first great silver champion.

The scrubwomen of the House of office building came running, too, and hundreds of other folks from all walks of life who made an even larger crowd than flocked to see J. P. Morgan at his appearance before a Senate committee last summer.

The youthful, chubby, self-confident priest presented a strong contrast with white-haired monetary authorities who preceded him. Prof. O. M. W. Sprague and Frank Vanderlip.

He wears gold spectacles and has a high forehead, behind which an unruly middle-lock of hair sticks straight out in the manner and garb was relieved by a white handkerchief peeking from a breast pocket.

He gestures easily and profusely, with his face in a constant, confident smile. His manner and voice modulations reminded one of a sternly of clergyman, lawyer, and school teacher. Congressmen were extremely deferential.

Coughlin didn't hesitate to warn them of individual political consequences if they failed to follow Roosevelt. After making a long uninterrupted statement, he seemed less at ease when questions began, but settled back and enjoyed himself as soon as he realized that the committee knew much less about the subject than he did.

Often he agreed immediately with a questioner, only to qualify his answer by successive steps until he had stated the reverse.

Wise Wife Gives Her Husband The Lead in the Domestic Play

By HELEN WELSHIMER: She will understand that hurting his heart may be forgiven, but wounding his pride is an unpardonable sin.

Let's call her Sally Jones because that isn't her name at all. She has fluffy golden hair that resembles a Madonna's halo and she can bake biscuits that melt in the mouth of a man. And she has a brain! A clever brain that is bringing her larger and larger checks in her chosen field.

So—now he is turning to his stenographer for sympathy. His stenographer respects his earning power. She says "Oh" and "How wonderful" exactly when she should turn to him on the pedestal and if the only times that she endeavors to climb to the same heights are when he draws her up on his lap.

It isn't his wife's fault that she makes him to grow weary of his fault that he can't compete successfully. They used to love each other tremendously. They don't any more. For Sally looks at her husband a little plyingly and he looks at his wife resentfully.

For say what you please, women want to be able to look up to their husbands. They want to turn to them for their problems. They want them to be as brave and all-wise as the princes in the fairy tales who rode forth to conquests, slew dragons and climbed glass hills to prove their worth.

When women know every weak place in the steel-blue armor, because they have mended it so often, the knight who wears it loses a little glamor. And the man himself, knowing that his wife is aware that the mail needs polishing twice a week, can't resist clanking around in it for the benefit of somebody who doesn't know that the sparkle is wearing dim.

A wise woman will keep her husband thinking that it is because of his advice that she is going ahead. She will make him believe that she is indebted to him.

Then, for contrast, there's Leonora Sand. You may not recall her name, because it was 50 years ago and more that she was a great ballerina. . . . When she was a child prodigy at the age of 5, she sat in the lap of the King of Bavaria.

When she was older she appeared with such celebrities as Adelina Patti, Christine Nilsson and Theodor Wachtel. As the premiere ballerina of the Cuban Opera Company, her carriage was pulled through the streets of Havana by cheering fans.

She died at the age of 77, now, gray and bent and with hands shaking by scrubbing floors. She lives in a damp garreted basement room on St. Mark's Place with some cats, which she has difficulty feeding. She also has trouble feeding herself, because she is too old even to scrub floors.

Do you remember Phyllis Haver, the glamorous girl who rose from bathing suit bits in MacKinnon comedies to become a leading lady at a salary then considered fabulous? Well, Miss Haver didn't outgrow stardom. She tossed it all to marry William Seaman, wholesale grocer and man-about-town.

They live in a costly duplex apartment near Central Park, give lots of parties, and tell people they're very, very happy.

IN NEW YORK

SOME OF OUR FALLEN STARS STILL FLICKER, OTHERS FADE

By PAUL HARRISON: New York, Feb. 6.—It isn't always a misfortune to be a fallen star. What makes the difference is where you light.

There's Pearl White, for example. About a dozen years ago the "Peris of Pauline" girl dramatically announced at a fur-wed party here that she never again would appear in the movies, and that she was sailing to enter a convent in the Alps.

En route, though she changed her mind, dropped off at Biarritz, she opened her own casino in what used to be the chateau of the Empress Eugenie. . . . She did very well, and according to a recent report of her folks, she's still prospering. She moves about in the company of counts and maharajahs and princesses, is able to maintain a small racing stable, and spends a lot of her time in Paris.

Then, for contrast, there's Leonora Sand. You may not recall her name, because it was 50 years ago and more that she was a great ballerina. . . . When she was a child prodigy at the age of 5, she sat in the lap of the King of Bavaria.

When she was older she appeared with such celebrities as Adelina Patti, Christine Nilsson and Theodor Wachtel. As the premiere ballerina of the Cuban Opera Company, her carriage was pulled through the streets of Havana by cheering fans.

She died at the age of 77, now, gray and bent and with hands shaking by scrubbing floors. She lives in a damp garreted basement room on St. Mark's Place with some cats, which she has difficulty feeding. She also has trouble feeding herself, because she is too old even to scrub floors.

They live in a costly duplex apartment near Central Park, give lots of parties, and tell people they're very, very happy.

Mme. Emma Eames is here for the first time in several years, but finds there still are many who remember her as a great star of the opera. For twenty years New York, London and Paris hailed her beauty and her talent, and were ago about her two divorces. But in 1909, when she was 43, she quit. She still loved the opera and its people, but she retired—because, she says, she didn't want to wear out her welcome, or to have to beg for what was once thrown at her feet.

UNSCALED PEAK IN INDIA GOAL OF NAZI PARTY

Munich.—(AP)—Nazi authorities have extended formal patronage and given their blessing, to another Himalayan expedition scheduled to sail from Genoa in February.

Once more the aim is to scale Mount Nanga Parbat, 26,629 feet, virgin peak of the western Himalayas.

The first attempt to conquer Nanga Parbat was made 39 years ago by A. Mummery, an Englishman, who paid for his effort with his life, after reaching an altitude of 23,000 feet.

Then came an Austro-German expedition of 1932, including two Americans, Elbridge Rand Herron of New York and Miss Elizabeth Knowlton of Boston. With victory almost in their grasp, they were forced to turn back owing to mountain sickness among the native bearers, and loss of equipment.

No Americans are in this year's party which will be headed up by Willy Merkl, leader of the 1932 expedition.

Others are Peter Aschenbrenner and Fritz Berchtold, his old companions; Erwin Schneider and Ulrich Wieland, both of the Dyrenfurth expedition of 1922; Dr. W. W. Kenyon, Dr. Raechl, Dr. Bernard, a physician; Dr. Finkwalder, cartographer, and two others.

The expedition will sail from Genoa for Bombay about the end of February. This is two months earlier than the last departure, and thereby the leaders hope to avoid the snow storms that set in about mid-July in the Himalayan region.

PROFESSIONAL GAP FOUND IN DUCE'S CORPORATIVE STATE

Rome.—(AP)—The difficulties of either forming or foreseeing any such thing as syndicates of clients to act under Mussolini's newly overhauled corporative state is preoccupying some of Italy's outstanding professional men and artists.

These men have been formed in a syndicate along with all other blackshirt representatives of the nation's economic life. Like all others, this syndicate is granted the right to suggest legislation governing its own problems and necessities.

Senator Voloes Woess. All this suggested legislation will be passed on by the council of corporations, with Il Duce as final judge.

The syndicate of professionals and artists has about 100,000 members, Senator Cogliolo described their plight in regard to a public which has yet to show any syndicated purchasing trend, as "unhappy."

"Sad are their actual conditions," he mourned in the senate. "While the labor syndicates have their corresponding employer syndicates to confront with their problems, the professionals only have their clients—persons not easily united."

Silver Lining in Clouds: However, Senator Cogliolo described the professional syndicate as a good thing.

He said it has done something to extend the activities of many professional men who could not get a foothold previously.

CHUCKLES

Washington, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Representative Kieberg, Texas Democrat, has decided on another of these investigations.

One "Helme," inmate of the Texas state jail down in the Lone Star state, protests that he has no smoking tobacco.

Kieberg is sending his incarcerated constituent a dollar—and a promise to have a friend inquire into his lack of "making."

Speaker Rainey has predicted at various times this session of Congress would adjourn anywhere from within three weeks to May 1, but now he seems a foreman by which he is willing to stand.

Adjustment, he says, will come "in charge" of the House. "I don't know what it is, but I'm sure it will be a good thing."

Discoveries of archeologists show that primitive man carried on extensive trade operations.

SAFETY ENGINEER TO STUDY TRAFFIC

Police Board Accepts Offer of W. L. Cross, Jr. — Business Is Routine.

Only routine business was before the police commissioners last night. The question of traffic lights to be installed in town, with particular attention being given at the Center, was discussed, but aside from voting to accept the offer of Wilbur L. Cross, Jr., safety engineer for the state, to come to Manchester and go into the investigation of the need of such signals and a possible cost estimate, no final action was taken. The meeting was attended by all three commissioners, Col. H. B. Bissell, C. E. Burr and John H. Hackett. The new teletype machine was inspected. It has not as yet been cut in on the main line. It is not considered that a recommendation for traffic lights will be made by the commissioners for several weeks, if at all.

MURPHY TEST CASE HAS ITS DATE SET

Arguments on Liquor Law Will Be Heard in Hartford on Thursday Morning.

Hartford, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The Joseph Faro liquor appeal, to test the application of the state liquor control law to holders and non-holders of permits for sale of alcoholic beverages will not be argued before the Supreme Court of Errors until the March term. The appeal had been scheduled for a hearing tomorrow but this morning on opening the February term, because both States Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn representing the control commission and Attorney Edward J. Daly, counsel for Faro, are engaged in the Hartford election trial in Superior Court. In behalf of Faro, Attorney Daly is seeking a rule on whether the law requires liquor sellers to obtain permits and whether it also applies to non-permittees. Another test case involving the same law is set for Thursday morning when arguments will be heard in the appeal of Edward J. Murphy, Manchester druggist, against the commission. It is based on the discretionary powers of the commission to refuse to permit druggists to sell liquor by package after 6 p. m., and to test the constitutionality of druggists permits to dispense liquor.

GOLD BUYING CHECKS DROP IN FRENCH FRANC

By Associated Press
The heading drop in the French franc was checked today, and bonds of the gold bloc countries rallied in principal securities markets. The active American gold buying in London appeared to be taking effect, and the dollar came down nearer its new gold parity. American securities markets turned somewhat irregular, but heavy buying of corporate bonds continued. In stocks, a number of leading rails and industrials declined $1 a share or so. Several utilities and silver issues however, recorded gains of like amount. New York cotton was firm, rising about 50 cents a bale, but wheat at Chicago lost more than 1/2 cent a bushel. The dollar closed in London at 4.96 1/2 to the pound, as American gold buying continued, and the pound was later quoted close to $4.97 in New York, up nearly 4 cents. Dollars reacted against the French franc in Paris, and later in New York, the franc was quoted as high as 6.32 cents, having recovered 15 of a cent from yesterday's close. At this rate, the franc was still at a discount of about 4 per cent. The franc met strong support in London, leading to the suggestion in Wall street that the Bank of France may have arranged with the British equalization fund to buy francs and earmark gold in Paris. New York banking quarters remained a little uncertain over the franc, since the Bank of France has required 48 hours notice to pay out gold bullion in redemption of paper francs.

50 BELOW RECORDED AT OWLS' HEAD, N. Y.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 6.—(AP)—New York State temperatures, already sent nose diving to abnormal figures by several frigid blasts, struck new lows for the season in many sections today as most of the state was in the grip of another sub-zero wave. It was so bitter in the Adirondacks that even Owl's Head, the northern "cold capital" of the north, recorded a season's record of 50 below. To the south it was 44 below at Sabatis and Mountain View and 35 below at Loon Lake and Tupper Lake. Glens Falls, in the foothills of the Adirondacks, recorded 14 below at 7 a. m., while temperatures ranged from 12 to 20 below throughout Saratoga, Fulton and Montgomery counties. Albany's minimum was 5 below, at 8 a. m., while Kingston reported the same reading. Central New York points reported temperatures ranging from zero to 15 below. Western New York appeared to have escaped the brunt of the cold wave. Another drop in temperatures tonight was predicted.

ROCKVILLE

REFUSE TO BEAR ARMS, DENIED NATURALIZATION

Papers Withheld from Two in Tolland County Superior Court Yesterday.

Final naturalization papers were withheld from two applicants at the naturalization session of the Tolland County Superior Court on Monday morning by Judge Frank P. McEvoy of Waterbury, because applicants refused to agree to bear arms in defense of the United States in time of war. This action was taken upon recommendation of Federal Examiner Shelby Ogden, of Hartford, who suggested that the cases of Arnold Hany, and Ernest Welti, both Swiss residents of Rockville, be indefinitely continued. These cases had previously been before the court and had been continued for a similar reason. They absolutely refused to change their beliefs about fighting for the United States and Judge McEvoy refused to concede that they would be acceptable citizens. A third applicant of the Swiss blood, namely Werner Kunzil was admitted to citizenship when he stated he would fight in time of war. His papers had previously been withheld because he refused to fight for the United States in time of war.

GOODLY NUMBER OF PEOPLE WERE ON HAND FOR THE SPRING NATURALIZATION SESSION OF THE TOLLAND COUNTY SUPERIOR COURT ON MONDAY WHICH WAS OF VERY SHORT DURATION.

Of the five cases on the continued list, George H. Bradley, who is now traveling in Europe, failed to appear and his case was continued to September. Two cases were continued for failure to bear arms in time of war and the remaining two cases were admitted, Charles Kadada, of Hartford, a native of Lithuania and Werner Kunzil, a Swiss, who resides in Bolton. All of the six applicants on the list of new cases appeared when their names were called and their petitions were granted after a short examination by Federal Examiner Shelby Ogden. Three of the six applicants were of Italian blood, namely Angelo DeCarli, Francisco Mantelli, and Giuseppe Dallavalle; two of the others were of Polish blood, Antoni Ostrowski and Ignace Wana while the remaining applicant, Alfred Ernest Schimmel was of German blood.

After the examinations had been completed by Mr. Ogden, Frank P. McEvoy addressed the group on the "Meaning of the American Citizenship." He explained in very plain terms the privileges which were being bestowed upon them and warned them of their duties and responsibilities to the American Government. He delivered a very interesting talk for about fifteen minutes after which the applicants were asked to sign the different forms by Willis H. Reed, clerk of the court which completed the work. The final certificates were delivered in the afternoon to each applicant. Judge McEvoy declared a definite recess after the completion of the Naturalization Session. Court will again convene on February 19th for a short calendar sitting.

Firemen's Fair To Open
Everything is nearing completion for the opening of the 38th annual fair of the Rockville Fire Department which will open in the town hall on Thursday evening and continue until Saturday evening. This is one of the big social events of the fall season and visiting firemen are expected from all parts of Connecticut.

The work of repainting the interior of the dance hall will not be started this week because of the fair but the hall is being handsomely decorated for this occasion. An interesting entertainment program is to be presented each evening by Clements Entertainment Bureau of Hartford, after which dancing will be enjoyed.

A varied musical program is being arranged for the occasion with the music on the opening night furnished by Max Kabrick's Orchestra. On Friday evening the music will be furnished by Carlton Buckminster's Orchestra and on the final evening the music will be furnished by Arthur Stein's Big City Orchestra. Both modern and old fashioned dances will be enjoyed each evening.

The different committees from the several fire companies have been making plans for this big event for several months and indications are that it will surpass anything in the history of the community. CWA Men Unable to Work
For a second time within the present "fiscal week," the CWA road gang from Rockville were unable to go to work on Monday morning because of the severe cold temperature.

A majority of the men were at the town hall at 7 o'clock yesterday morning but were ordered to return to their homes because of the cold. The temperature was close to zero at that time and during Sunday night had been as low as ten degrees below zero.

Many of the men were eager to start some kind of work as their week started, or was supposed to start on last Friday morning at which time they were sent home because of the cold. In order to get the 24 hours which comprises the week the men will have to work three days steady, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, whereas ordinarily they work on Friday, Monday and Tuesday and lay off the remainder of the week.

Attend Stafford Meeting
Rockville Democrats were well represented at the meeting of the Tolland County Democratic Association which was held last evening at the Warren Memorial Hall in Stafford Springs. The speaker was Miss Helen Wood of the Connecticut Department of Labor who delivered an interesting address on the topic "Labor" and told of the workings of the Department of Labor. John N. Kenney of Rockville, president of the Tolland County Democratic Association, presided at the meeting.

Lions Club Ladies Night
The Rockville Lions Club will observe "Ladies Night" on Wednesday evening at which time a luncheon will be served the members of the club and their wives and lady friends at the Rockville House. The speaker on this occasion will be Superintendent Roy L. McLaughlin of the Connecticut State School for Boys at Meriden. He will deliver an interesting talk on the working of the school.

The speaker on this occasion will be Superintendent Roy L. McLaughlin of the Connecticut State School for Boys at Meriden. He will deliver an interesting talk on the working of the school.

Superintendent McLaughlin will visit the Tolland County Temporary Home for Children at Vernon Center early Wednesday afternoon. He will be escorted by a committee comprising County Commissioner Harry Conklin Smith and Superintendent Albert S. McClain. They will make a complete tour of the school after which they will join the Lions Club party at the Rockville House at 6:15 o'clock.

Parent-Teachers Meeting
The Longview Parent-Teachers Association held an important meeting at the Longview Schoolhouse on Monday evening at which President Benjamin Postman presided. An interesting program was presented under the direction of the faculty and was presented by a group of twelve children from the different classes.

An interesting part of the program was the "Travelogue" delivered by Judge Ernest S. Fuller of Somers who showed motion pictures of his recent trip through Central Europe which he described in a very interesting manner.

Funeral of George Barraclough
The funeral of George Barraclough, aged 65 years formerly of Rockville, died at his home at Oakland, Maine, on Saturday after a long illness, was held at his late home on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Several Rockville friends attended the funeral. Burial was in Oakland.

He was born on November 5, 1868, in Alva, Scotland, and graduated from the Huddersfield, England, Technical School in the division of cloth manufacturing and designing. He came to the United States in 1908 after spending two years in Canada to which he came in 1906 as a designer in a woolen mill near Montreal.

He remained with the Hockanum Mills Company in Rockville for 11 years as designer and superintendent of the Minterburn Mill. About eight years ago he left for Oakland, Maine, where he entered the employ of the Cascade Woolen Mill.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Jeanie (Graham) Barraclough; a daughter, Miss May H. Barraclough of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., and a son, William A. Barraclough of Oakland, Me., and a brother, Alfred Barraclough of Collinsville, Conn., and two sisters, Miss Almema Barraclough of West Haven.

clough and Mrs. Harold Earnshaw, both residing in England. Mr. Barraclough was a member of Messalonske Lodge of Masons and was president of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce in 1933 and at the time of his death was president of the Tam O'Shanter Club of Maine.

Rockville Briefs
A public card party for the benefit of St. Bernard's Catholic Church will be held at the Hills Home, corner of Ellington avenue and Prospect street this evening under the sponsorship of the Children of Mary Sodality of the church. Both bridge and whist will be played.

The Board of Selectmen will hold an important meeting this evening in their newly redecorated chambers in the Memorial Building. First Selectman Francis J. Prichard will preside.

Tankersoon Tribe, No. 51, Improved Order of Red Men and Kiowa Council, Degree of Pochontas, held their final card party in their present series last evening in Red Men's Hall. Following the awarding of prizes a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

A delegation from Rising Star Lodge, Improved Order of Odd Fellows, will go to Stafford Springs this evening where they will be the guests of the Stafford Lodge. An interesting program is being arranged for the occasion. The local group will leave Odd Fellows Hall at 7 o'clock.

Mrs. Frank Little, of Grove street, entertained the Allen Bible Class at her home last evening. A social hour followed the business meeting.

The annual banquet of the Men's Guild of St. John's Episcopal Church will be held this evening in the parish rooms.

Attorney Bernard J. Ackerman, acting prosecuting attorney in the absence of John B. Thomas, spent yesterday in New Britain.

DEATHS ACCIDENTAL

Bridgeport, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Two findings of accidental death were returned today by Coroner J. J. Phelan. In the case of Carl E. Jaderlunds, 55, of Weston, the coroner absolves Rev. O. O. Eckardt of Georgetown from criminal responsibility. Jaderlunds was killed last Thursday by a car operated by Rev. Mr. Eckardt. In the second finding the coroner also holds as an accident the death on January 27, of George Warner, 67, of New Milford, who was killed on the Bridgeport-Newtown road when his car crashed into another operated by John Quigley of West Haven.

MICKEY CARR'S BAND AT REC ON THURSDAY

Return Engagement of Canadian Capers— Same Orchestra Made Hit Previouslv.

This week's Recreation Center dance will feature a return engagement of Mickey Carr and his Canadian Capers who appeared here early in January. In their last appearance here they impressed considerably and Director Frank Busch has been waiting for this opportunity to engage them again as this has been the first opening that the orchestra has had since their previous visit in Manchester. Mickey Carr and his talented musicians are rapidly gaining recognition in and around New York City through their radio work on the WMCA station. Dancing will be from 8 o'clock until midnight, on Thursday.

FIRE IN PORTCHESTER CAUSES $250,000 LOSS

Portchester, N. Y., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Four buildings were destroyed at a loss of more than $250,000 in a fire in the heart of the business section here today.

The blaze started in a department store owned by Harry Levine and spread to an office building owned by...

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

Does a pimply face embarrass you? Get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights, if you are like thousands of others.

Help cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

Thousands who take Olive Tablets are never cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition, pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound; known by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 50c, 60c.

by August Muiwitz and two furniture warehouses owned by Muiwitz. Nine persons who lived over one of the stores escaped by climbing to the roof and bringing a four-foot gap to another building with a door.

Firemen estimated that the blaze had been burning an hour before the first alarm was turned in at 3 a. m. Telephone calls brought apparatus from Esat Portchester, Greenwich and Glenville, Conn., and White Plains and Rye, N. Y. The near-zero weather hampered the fire fighters and three were injured and required hospital treatment.

One of the establishments destroyed owned by Isaac Weis, whose large furniture store and warehouse were destroyed in a $250,000 fire two months ago.

In today's fire the law offices of Peck and Schmidt, including records of fifty years of law practice, were destroyed. One of the partners, Fred G. Schmidt, is president of the Westchester County Board of Supervisors.

ZOO'S SEA LION IS DEAD
New York, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Mae West, as graceful and streamlined a sea lion as ever gulped down a mackerel, is dead—a victim of man's perfidy.

She trusted her admirers too much (most of them were sailors), and they did her wrong. Officials of Bronx Zoo announced today that the reason Mae is no longer swimming about her tank is that she was wont to accept everything folks tossed to her. A post-mortem examination disclosed that she had eaten several pounds of stones and brass buttons—sailors' buttons.

Zoo officials attributed her death to indigestion, but consoled themselves with the thought she would have drowned anyway if a few more buttons and stones had come her way.

WHITON LIBRARY OPEN SATURDAYS

Extend Hours So That Patrons May Use Facilities in Afternoon.

The Whiton Memorial Library which was dedicated on May 10, 1932, and formally turned over to the Town of Manchester, and since that time has only been open to the public Tuesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons, and Monday Wednesday and Friday evenings, will be open hereafter from 1 to 4 p. m. on Saturdays. The directors have felt for some time that patrons of the library would appreciate this privilege, and accordingly voted to open the library as above on Saturdays until further notice.

TO OPEN MEMORIAL

Hartford, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Hartford's new $600,000 Avery Memorial will be opened officially tonight at 8:30 to members of the Wadsworth Athenaeum and their guests, at 9:30 the dedication address will be made from one of the bronze balconies that overlooks the interior court which makes the museum, in the eyes of connoisseurs, one of the most beautiful as well as one of the most efficient in the world. The annual reception by the trustees of the Athenaeum, usually given earlier in the season, was postponed until the opening of the new building in the Athenaeum group and becomes the first feature of the opening week.

Dead Doctor Heals Stomach Ailments

A weird story is told of a well-known specialist reaching from the grave to curb stomach suffering. Years ago this doctor crossed a prescription for stomach ulcers, acid stomach, gas pains, heartburn, indigestion, bloating, belching, and other symptoms when caused by excess acid. Then the good doctor died. But his name brought faith after death as one user told another of his wonderful prescription. In the past six years, 54,100 grateful persons have written letters telling of their recoveries. This prescription is now known to hundreds of thousands as the Udda Treatment. All stomach sufferers may have a free sample by writing to Udda, Suite B, Foot-Schultz Bldg., St. Paul, Minn. The seven-day trial box of Udda Tablets is sold under a money-back guarantee of satisfaction by Arthur Drug Store, E. J. Murphy, and other good druggists.

POLICE BENEFIT HERE ON SUNDAY

Fund to Be Secured from Show at State to Aid III Policemen.

There has been a good advance sale of tickets for the police benefit performance to be held in the State Theater on Sunday afternoon, February 11. The money that is raised from this entertainment, which promises to be of a high class is to add to the fund for the payment of local police in case of sickness or accident. The fund is administered by officers of the local police department. The local policemen are not in a class where it would be possible to purchase an accident or health insurance policy at a premium for which many others can purchase it.

with the Navy since the Wilson administration. Delancy said to newspapermen: "The committee has no power to subpoena, or to compel the presence of anyone. But it seems to me that if the persons invited are loyal, patriotic Americans, they will be anxious to appear."

The Navy's special audit showed airplane and engine makers made bigger profits on commercial than on Army and Navy business. From 1927 through 1933, King testified, Pratt-Whitney's profit on navy engines averaged 36 per cent while its commercial profit was 71.

King explained the Navy had allowed Pratt-Whitney to make 50 per cent on a $10,000,000 engine order so as to keep Wright "in business." On Hornet engines The Pratt-Whitney profit was on an order for "Hornet" engines. Wright makes a competing engine known as the "Cyclone."

BUTCHERS BEAT GROCERS AT HOOPING BASKETS

Self Serve Employees Go Down Before Health Market Crew at Rec Last Night. As far as basketball ability is concerned, the Health Market of the J. W. Hale Company has it all over the Self Serve Department and the fact was ably demonstrated last night when the meat cutters shelved the grocers to the tune of 64 to 23 at the School Street Rec. The game was witnessed by a good-sized crowd.

TO PROBE PAYROLLS

Hartford, Feb. 6 (AP)—The Hartford C. W. A. payroll were to be scrutinized closely today to determine whether charges of political favoritism and unfair discrimination in the placement of workers are based on fact. The investigation, initiated by Labor Commissioner Joseph M. Tose, was to be confined to this city where numerous complaints of illegality have arisen.

"Have a Cigar, George, And It Isn't a Rope"

But George Has Tried And Found Plenty Of Rope—Now He Has Marble Centered Candy Ready.

It isn't every day that a salesman calls "a spade a spade." The other day a cigar salesman who dropped in at the Princess Candy Shop, Main street, was of that type. "Try one of these, George," said the dapper salesman. "Pretty good rope—ha, ha. You'll like 'em . . . good filler wrapper and all that stuff. Give 'em a try, George. George did—and is still trying to smoke that cigar. He tried to bite off the end but the tip was not willing to come off.

DOUG FAIRBANKS CO-RESPONDENT IN DIVORCE SUIT

(Continued from Page One) reported that he had been seen emerging from a garage next to his house on Aldford street at noon to be whisked away in an automobile. This report was denied by Tom Gheraty, his press representative, who said: "I probably am closer than anybody to Doug and I know he is not in town. The two men emerging from the garage were probably two other fellows. They probably were his business manager and his secretary who have offices there."

FINAL COMMISSION REPORT ON BRIDGE

Shows Town Spent $432.29 in 1932 Towards Upkeep—Expense Is Eliminated.

The last report of the Connecticut River Bridge and Highway District Commission, showing that Manchester paid $432.29 in 1932 towards repairs and keeping up the bridge across the Connecticut at East Hartford, is being distributed. The interest in this statement will be lost in Manchester in the future as in 1933 no money was paid by Manchester or any of the other five towns, which included Manchester, East Hartford, Hartford, Glastonbury, and South Windsor.

STATE'S HEALTH

Hartford, Feb. 6—(AP)—The number of diphtheria cases for last month was far below the average number for the years from 1929 to and including 1933 with 20 for January as compared with the average 73 for the latter period. The number last month was the lowest for any of the preceding five Januarys, the highest number being recorded in 1929, with 144 cases, according to compilations made by the state department of health. Typhoid fever was also low with but one case for January, one below the average of two for the same month in five years preceding.

Married Flirts

MABEL McELLIOTT

GYPSY MORELL and TOM WEAVER are married on the same day as LILA HOTALING and DEREK BLISS, but Lila's wedding is a society event while Gypsy's is very simple.

While Lila lives in luxury, Gypsy has to struggle to keep expenses within Tom's income. She keeps her job teaching until she learns she is to have a baby. After DAVID's birth she is extremely busy, caring for him and for her home.

Tom is frequently away in the evening and Gypsy suspects he is interested in VERA GRAY, who works in the same office. Lila confesses to Gypsy that she intends to divorce Derek and marry MARKO BROUGHTON, richer and older. Lila persuades Gypsy to call Marko and give him a message. Tom overhears and misunderstands. He and Gypsy quarrel but are reconciled.

CHAPTER XXIX. It would be fun, Gypsy said to herself on the Tuesday following their reconciliation, to go down and surprise Tom at lunch-time. Somehow she never seemed to have time or spirit for these small honeymoon gayeties any more. She dressed in her best—the new gray suit, the postage stamp hat perched on her shining crop of curls.

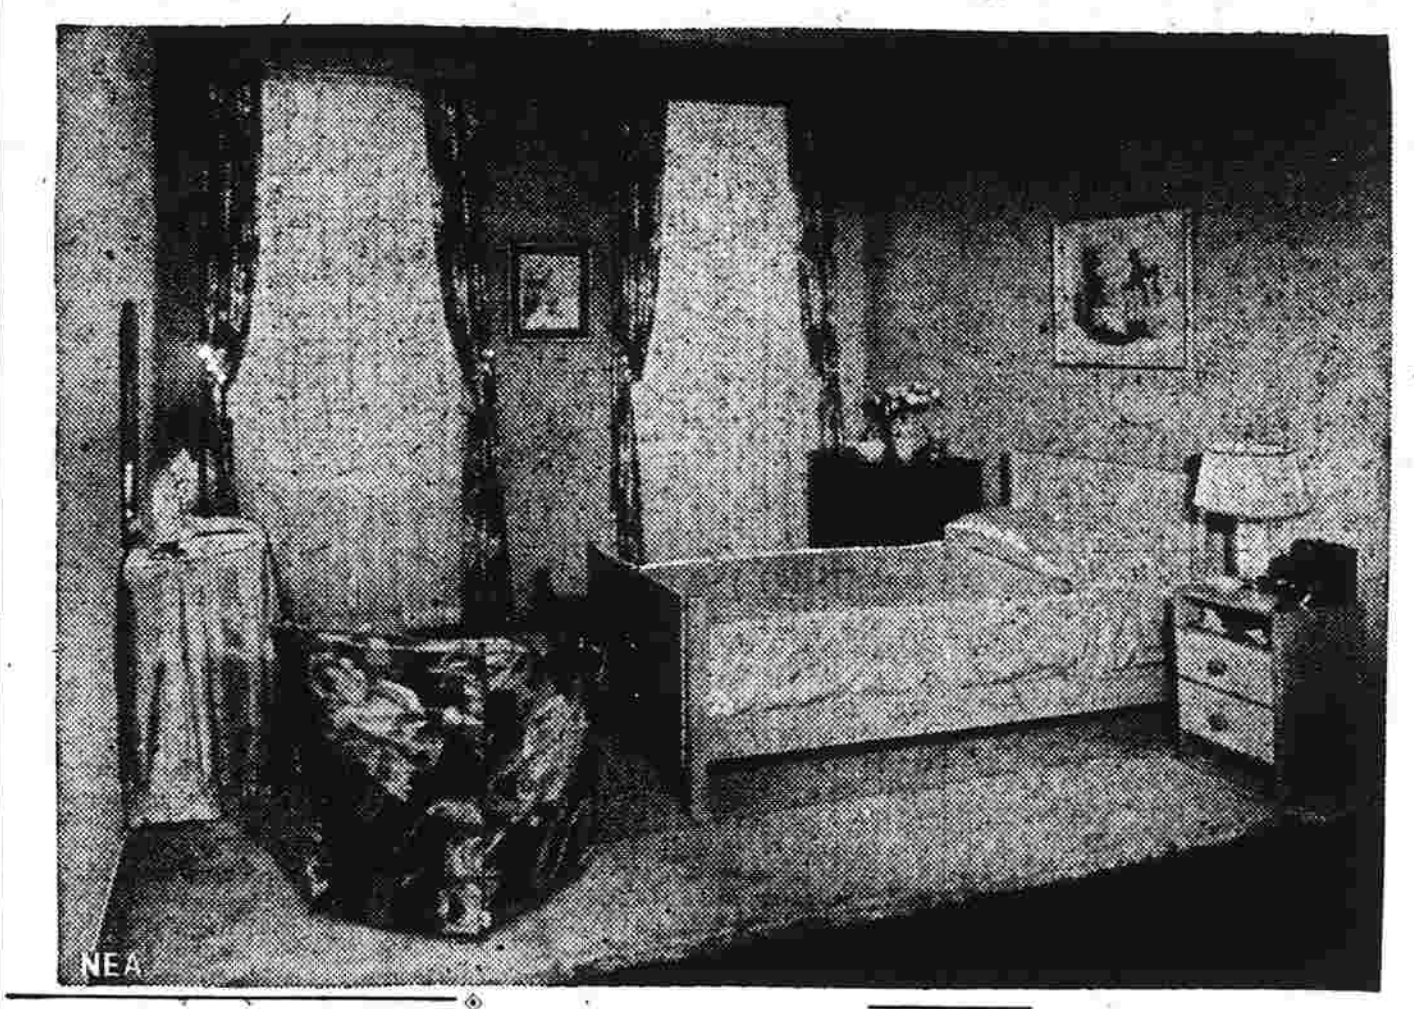

The spring wind blew chaff and papers in the streets. The sun sent slanting bright shafts of sunlight into the gray canyons. It was a perfect day for an adventure. She went up in the bronze elevator, smiling secretly at her own daring. The girl at the information desk was new and did not recognize her. She didn't give her name. Was Mr. Weaver in? The girl, who had the head and shoulders of a wax mannequin, spoke softly into a telephone and informed her that Mr. Weaver was just on his way out to lunch.

"I'll wait here," Gypsy sat in the deep divan which swallowed up her smallest feet. A tall, thin, dark-haired girl with a white dress and a white apron came and spoke to her earnestly. They seemed utterly absorbed. They did not see her as they stood waiting for the down elevator.

Gypsy's heart felt as though an icy hand were squeezing it. She sat perfectly still as the elevator door clanged open and shut and Tom's laugh rang out as the car shot downward. A moment later a clerk glanced up curiously as she rose to go.

"Why, Mr. Weaver left just now. Didn't you see him?" "No—no," she floundered. "I'll be back later." "Anything I can do?" The wax mannequin was helpful. Gypsy's eyes wandered past her. Anything she could do? No, there was nothing anyone could do for her today. She had trusted him so completely, so utterly, and yet she must believe the evidence of her eyes. How absorbed he had been! She had been right—she had been right all the while.

Wake Up to 1934 Furniture Style In a Modernized Bedroom

And that was a bit of luck. Gypsy was permitted to start dinner without a single interruption. "I don't need any help," she had told Tom with cool finality when he followed her into the kitchen. "Listen, darling, don't be mad. Honestly, I'm terribly sorry," Tom was frankly puzzled. She had been her old, laughing, delightful self these past few days. Now she had disappeared into her shell again; was cool, distant, removed from him. "It's quite all right." Her politeness was the variety reserved for the perfect stranger.

By MARIAN YOUNG. Thinking about redecorating your home? Or maybe of getting a new piece of furniture for this corner or that? Now is the time to do it. February is the month when furniture departments make an effort to get their stock moving. So prices are lower.

Modernizing a room doesn't necessarily mean that you have to replace every old piece of furniture with a new one. Often the addition of one or two new items, careful rearrangement of groupings and an entirely new line of thought will do the trick.

First of all, view the room of which you have grown a trifle tired with the critical eye of an interior decorator. It's quite possible that you will have a sentimental attachment for several pieces. All very well—but don't give too fondly upon every single thing. If you're decided to modernize a room, something old must go to make room for the new.

Bedrooms often are allowed to go along in the same old rut long after the living room, dining alcove and other places have been taken in hand. Maybe we'd better start on a bedroom this winter.

In the bedroom illustrated the four-poster bed and its candlewick spread were replaced by new and more modern ones. The chintz draperies came within an inch of touching the floor and Ninon, a new and inexpensive material was used for the class curtains.

Daily Health Service

YOUR DISTRICT'S HEALTH MUST BE SAFEGUARDED

Therefore, Do Not Permit Too Much Economizing in This Department at Cost of Increased Disease Hazards.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN, Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Whether you live in a rural community or in a large city, the health of your family and those about you depends upon the effective control of disease and epidemics by your local health department.

In larger cities, in fact, it is only the work of their modern health organizations that makes it possible to live there.

Control of epidemics, or diseases carried by contaminated foods, milk, and water, proper disposal of sewage, adequate ventilation and the smoke nuisance, all are problems which come under the scope of the health department.

When each of these measures of sanitation was installed, it was reflected very promptly by a definite lowering in disease and death rates. With these gradual improvements in hygiene and sanitation, life expectancy at birth has risen by more than a score of years.

If continued progress is to be made, there must be continued expenditures as new causes of death and diseases are determined. Now it has become possible for health departments to state very definitely that certain minimum standards must be observed or the health department of the community is a failure.

A low infant mortality rate, a low death rate from typhoid fever, scarlet fever, and diphtheria, and prevention of epidemics and plagues are matters which can be controlled scientifically. Every woman wants to know the extent to which health departments are functioning adequately.

In these times taxpayers are subject to great burdens. Nevertheless, the taxpayer should realize that the money spent for prevention of disease probably brings a greater return for each dollar than money spent in any other way.

Because of the stringent economic conditions, the budgets of health departments have suffered along with the others. However, they suffer far more than do other departments of the government, simply because it has been exceedingly difficult in the past to get sufficient money to permit any health department to perform, to the fullest extent, what it might accomplish.

It has been said repeatedly that public health is a purchasable commodity. The amount of money spent for health purposes is reflected very promptly in the death rates in the community.

In times of economic depression, dangers from poverty, worry, and malnutrition are increased. Therefore, in those times public health departments have to be organized and operated much more efficiently than at any other period.

In fact, a dollar saved to the city budget at such a time may mean many dollars lost through failure to prevent disease conditions that might have been controlled.

The British royal air force flew more than 40,000,000 miles in 1933. There were 39 fatal accidents.

Dr. O'Neil made another provocative remark. He wonders if a girl's ability to dance well isn't of greater value in getting her a husband than her ability to write well. Of course it is! Unless, of course, the man is a traveling salesman.

The rhythm of a dance gets into a man and a maid. If they take their steps together fairly well they may suggest that they are a pair. If they don't, well, unless she has given heed to the cosmetic aids he may try a fox trot with somebody else.

Education, thank fortune, is facing life as it is lived. It is beginning to understand that a normal girl is much more interested in getting a husband than proving that the radius of a circle always equals half of the diameter.

February is a month of holidays. And it's amusing to celebrate them with masquerade parties. If you plan to attend a party in fancy dress costume, by all means give a little careful thought to your make-up and style of hair-dress.

Colonial costumes are, as always, modish for parties on Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays. So, if you aren't going to rent a wig for the occasion, better plan to powder your hair.

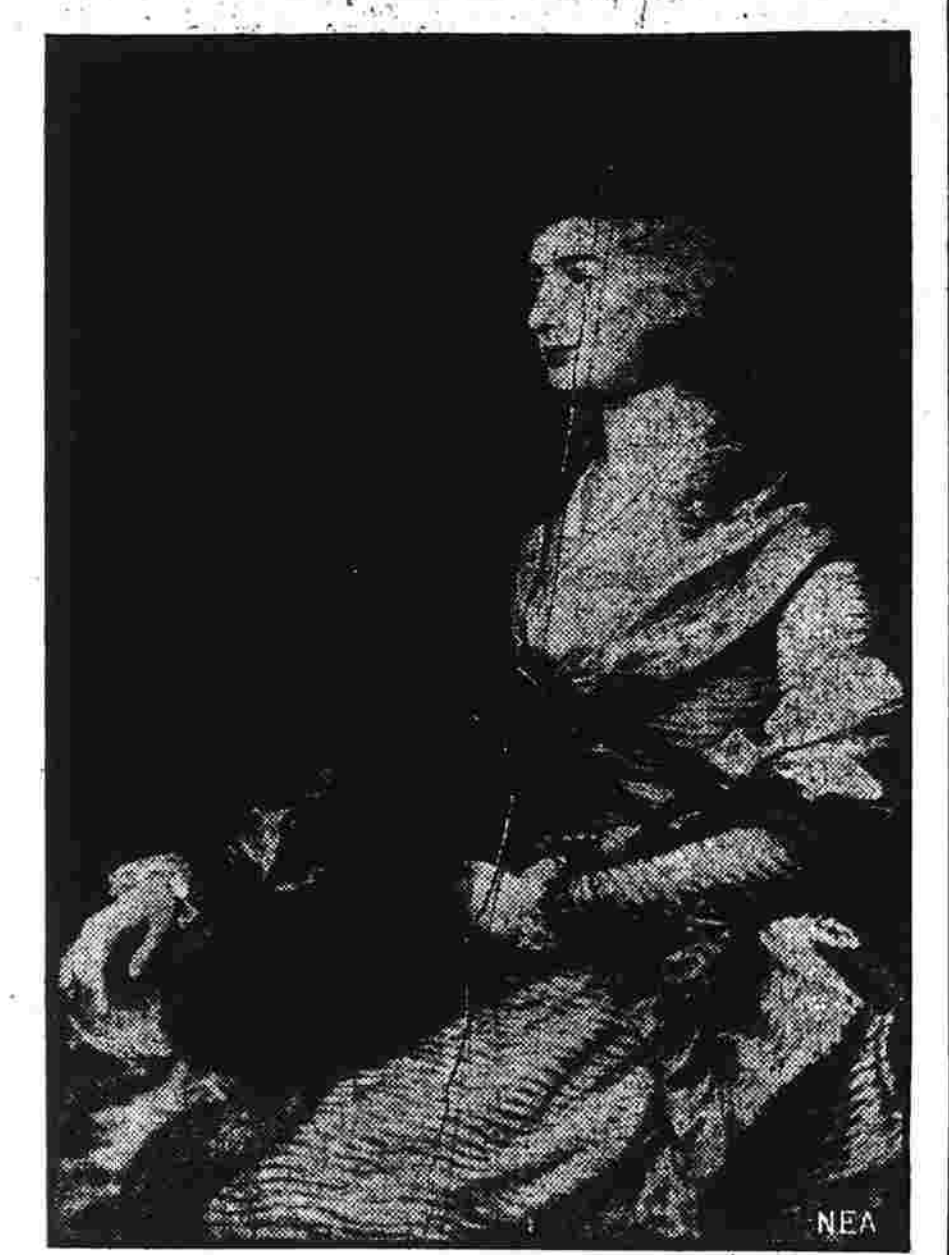

Get a shampoo and a nice finger wave or marcel the day before the party. That will avoid a last minute appointment with the hairdresser and confusion a few hours before the party.

If you wish to emulate the coiffure which Martha Washington wore, shake talcum or baby powder through your hair, draw your softly waved locks straight back from your forehead and pin them at the nape of your neck. Then make three or four curls to hang down your back.

If you don't fancy curls, pile your hair on top of your head and pin it in place. It's the type of coiffure that was popular in Colonial days.

HOUSEWIFE WHO BECAME ENGLAND'S QUEEN OF TRAGEDY

Mrs. Siddons Worked for Children in Climbing To Dramatic Heights

Mrs. Sarah Siddons: A reproduction of the painting by Thomas Gainsborough.

People fought for seats to see her... mobs fell back in awe when she addressed them on the stage. But for all of Mrs. Siddons' greatness, her heart was with her children and her home. The fascinating story of the celebrated actress' life comprises the third of Alice Robe's series on The Woman in the Painting.

By ALICE ROBE. One July morning in the year 1758 a little band of strolling players stopped anxiously at The Shoulder of Mutton. The reason was important as well as urgent, for in that provincial English inn "The Tragic Muse" was born.

The troupe of barnstormers of which the scholarly and stately Roger Kemble was manager and leading actor was a more dignified aggregation than modern barnstormers. They presented only Shakespeare and the classics.

The baby Sarah was brought up severely. When little more than an infant she knew the Bible by heart. It was the family determination that she should be NOT an actress but a lady. The little girl evidently knew that it was possible to be both.

As a child she felt keenly the slurs cast upon her family profession, for her grandparents as well as her parents were actors. She had an innate tendency for respectability and exclusiveness. Even at a tender age when playing small parts like Ariel, she would find her, between acts, buried in such light literature as Paradise Lost.

When she was sixteen the handsome son of a country gentleman named Siddons joined the company as a juvenile. The result was an elopement and Roger Kemble's ironic blessing: "I had forbidden you to marry an actor. You are not disobeying me, for you are marrying a man whom the devil himself could not turn into an actor."

Then began that dual life which is too often the lot of gifted women. Within a year she was on the way to public fame, but in private life she was cooking, laundering clothes for her husband and the children she bore him. Often after a performance she would return home to finish the laundry she had begun between studying a role, nursing a baby and preparing a meal. The combination of domestic virtue and artistic talent, however, made a great appeal to the people of the English provinces.

Siddons gave up acting and settled down to "raising" the children. Later he became, nominally, her secretary manager.

Idol of London Mrs. Siddons' first appearance at Drury Lane was not a success, although David Garrick encouraged her by telling her the roles assigned her were not suitable. Her second engagement in 1782, with Sheridan in charge of Drury Lane Theatre, was an overwhelming success. The audience was literally swept off its feet. Few artists have enjoyed such complete triumph as was hers when the curtain fell upon the last act of "The Fatal Wedding." She became instantly the talk of London. People fought for seats.

Mrs. Siddons' most famous role was Lady Macbeth, in which critics said she combined rage, desperation and agonized remorse in a manner never surpassed. Sir Joshua Reynolds designed her costume for the sleep-walking scene. It was Sir Joshua who painted her as The Tragic Muse. Her line was tragedy, not comedy. All artists sought to paint her. Thomas Lawrence began drawing her and painting her when he was a boy. Though he broke his engagement to her daughter, artist and actress were always friends.

Gainsborough's portrait is the finest likeness of all. Although Thomas Gainsborough's artist's love was for landscapes, his popular fame came from his portraits. His painting of Mrs. Siddons brings out the delicate power of that aloof beauty. Gainsborough never resorted to trumped-up prettiness. He was a realist and his portraits were real portraits imbued with the charm of his own personality. He painted what he saw and he saw the character as well as the features of the sitter.

The story is told that he had some trouble with Mrs. Siddons' pose. "Damn your nose, madame," he muttered, "there is no end to it." Worked For Children Mrs. Siddons had beautiful legs, but when playing boys in her early days she always covered them with a cape. She was always majestic, self-possessed. A real tragedy queen or and off the stage. Her "Good people, let me pass. I am Mrs. Siddons," was enough to make a mob fall back in awe.

They say that once she questioned a constable about a parcel that "Will it wash?" she demanded in such tragic tones that the man collapsed.

All of Mrs. Siddons' toil was for her children. Although tired she felt that she must go on working to "secure the few comforts that I have been able to attain for myself and family." Her farwalla were as numerous as Patti's.

She died in 1831, a lady of the theater who wanted to be a lady of the home. Sheridan, when accused of being in love with her, cried: "I'd soon make love to the Archbishop of Canterbury as Mrs. Siddons."

CWA workers in a quarry near Bethany, Mo., killed 28 men in a day, including two workmates, each more than five feet long.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

PLACE MORE FAITH IN YOUR DOCTOR

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON. Talking to a doctor I found him "impatient" with a "patient" who refused to obey orders.

And by the way, why are they called "patients." Interesting, no doubt, if one could find the answer. Probably because people have to be patient when they are sick.

The little girl had had tonsils. Her parents would not consent to an operation. "Yet they bring her in and ask me to give her medicine for headaches, rheumatism and loss of appetite. They're always asking me for some 'tonic' to build her up."

The Place of "Tonics" And then he went on to say that these parents represent a large class of people who pin their faith on a miracle—namely a "tonic" as they call it, "and they get very peevish when I can't produce it. The word means just what it says. There are excellent tonics but they are meant only to do what they say—to tone up a run-down system. Often they contain cod-liver oil or other tissue building elements for which a body is starving and I recommend them a great deal to my tired and worn-out patients.

But to many people don't realize that this very word condition has causes other than over-work or worry or a run-down body. In this child's case she is absorbing poison from her throat every minute. Her body is worn out fighting it. And although a tonic might build her up temporarily she will go on getting worse and then they'll try another doctor and plead for the miracle I am unable to work."

Then I asked him, "Aren't there some specialists who won't take out children's tonsils? It seems to me I've heard something to that effect."

"Not exactly that," he explained, "but all throat doctors now are careful about jumping to conclusions. If they think tonsils are better left in and can be cured by treating the child they way do it in some cases. Where there is real infection, and there is just one answer to that if the child is ever to be normal and well, they usually get them out of the way. I didn't ask these people to take my word for it but urged them to go to one of the best throat doctors in town. I knew he would verify my opinion."

Stupidly Unwarranted "Do you know, it's funny," he went on. "A number of people think when I send them to a specialist that I'm in league with him to drum up business. That's ridiculous. I'm not a doctor, I'm a writer. I know, and I know hundreds, lean over backwards to avoid earning that stigma. If business men were as conscientious as doctors, the whole country wouldn't be needing any NRA or CWA either. We want patients to get well, we don't want them to stay sick, and we don't have any reason to be so critical of even smells of graft. Remember it's a big responsibility having human life on your hands. We're here to save, not to run a racket."

Yet there is probably no other profession as much criticized as ours, or under so much suspicion. This is true. I need add nothing to his very reasonable indignation. This little monologue speaks for itself.

A BOOK A DAY

BY BRUCE CATTON

THE GIRL WHO WAS CROWNED AS A KING

"Christina of Sweden" Tells Of a Strange Career.

One of the interesting minor characters of history gets a moment in the limelight in "Christina of Sweden," a new biography by Margaret Goldsmith. The fact that Greta Garbo is appearing currently in a movie built around this lady's life may give it added interest to you.

Christina was the daughter of that doughy fighting man, Gustavus Adolphus. Being his daughter was no fun apparently; he wanted a son and he persisted in rearing his daughter as if she were a boy, so that she could succeed him on the throne of Sweden and carry on the multitudinous wars which he had embroiled his country.

So Christina had a miserably unhappy childhood—she used to have to spend six solid hours every morning at her studies—and when she came to the throne, somewhat before the middle of the 17th century, she was crowned king, and not queen.

Apparently the girl had the mental and emotional force to have made herself another Queen Elizabeth. But being king brought her nothing but grief. Her nation insisted that she marry, for dynastic reasons; she objected violently—she seems, in fact, to have been a lesbian—and finally she abdicated and gave up her Lutheran faith for Catholicism, and took to wandering about Europe.

Having given up power, she felt lost without it. She made abortive efforts to become ruler of Naples, later tried to get the crown of Poland, and drifted aimlessly from Rome to Paris to Amsterdam, a bizarre and enigmatic figure, harassed by money problems, living out a thwarted and empty life.

The book is published by Doubleday, Doran and Co., Inc., 250 Park Ave., New York, N. Y.

TEACHING ART OF MAKE-UP IN SCHOOLS WOULD BE A SENSIBLE STEP, SAYS HELEN WELSHIMER

By HELEN WELSHIMER

It is the surface view that attracts a man's eye. Beauty may be only skin deep... but the gentleman, less than, are a near-sighted race. If you want a return glance, you must prepare for it.

It is the duty of the high schools and colleges to teach girls how to use make-up correctly, according to Dr. Alexander J. O'Neill, assistant professor of education in Brooklyn College. He has openly condemned the school system that schools taught girls how to make themselves attractive.

Cheer leaders should give three hurrahs for Dr. O'Neill. He is out to glorify the classroom. For who wouldn't prefer to be beautiful and passably bright, to being brilliant and passably fair?

For too long girls have washed their faces before they entered the classroom and re-decorated when they came out. If they understand that cosmetics are something that are used, sparingly, to assist them where nature failed, they wouldn't have cheeks as red as barber shop poles, mouths like mutilated firecrackers, and eyes-lashes as gimmy as those that are stuck on futuristic dolls.

Schools teach us how to locate Calcutta, Madrid and Peking. They teach us that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points. But they quite forget to add that a man prefers a nice complexion to a geometric mind.

The well-scrubbed look is nice when one is seven. But at 17 a slight dusting of powder adds out of it. She was dashing out to Queens to see this chap. The Nudnik people...

"It looked like business," Gypsy supplied bitterly. "You had her pencil as if she owned you. You both walked right past me—'Where? How? When?'"

But she was silent. What use to her, over the old ground? He had broken his word. That was all she needed to know. (To Be Continued)

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

The correct use of the eyebrow pencil is probably the most important step in effecting an authentic Oriental makeup. Regardless of the color of your eyes and hair, use a black eyebrow pencil and black mascara.

Begin with the eyebrows. Underneath almost at the inside corner of an eye, make a thin line. Repeating the line on the lower lid and above the lashes on the upper lid. Use a small hand mirror and watch carefully to see that you are touching your lids above the little line. The pencil should be held in such a way as to be almost in contact with the roots of the lashes while you are outlining them. Extend the lines beyond the outer corner and turn them, not too abruptly, upward as you finish and join them together.

If you have made the lines turn upward at just the right angle, your eyes will have that fascinating Oriental upward slant. Then take the eyebrow pencil and line your eyebrows. If your brows are unusually heavy, draw a line only through the centers of them.

SEES BIRTHDAY OF WASHINGTON AS AN OMEN OF VICTORY

Date of Battle Also His Birthday, Believes It Will Bring Him to Goal of 15 Years in Ring Wars.

By EDWARD J. NEILL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Tommy Loughran, boxing's fencing master, has a tremendous hunch that February 22, birthday of George Washington, will bring him to the goal of his 15 years in the ring wars.

He fights Primo Carnera, heavyweight champion for 15 rounds for the title that night in Madison Square Garden's bowl in Miami, and the historical aspects of the situation have impressed him as greatly as his own conviction that the bigger his opponents come, the easier they are for him.

Links With Washington
Loughran was born in Philadelphia, the "Cradle of Liberty," in 1902 and he knows by heart such dates as 1774, when Washington came to Philadelphia as a delegate from Virginia to the first Continental Congress, and 1775 when the Second Congress in session in Philadelphia made Washington Commander-in-Chief of the Continental army.

Every Philadelphia schoolboy can visit the scenes of Washington's crossing of the Delaware to strike his surprise blow at the Hessians in Trenton; Valley Forge and a bitter winter of 1777, the residence where Washington lived in the winter of 1781-1782, as well as at times during his eight years as the first president of the United States.

So Loughran, brighter than most prize fighters and a studious chap, looks upon Washington as his good omen, his birthday as the perfect occasion for winning the heavyweight championship.

Although Tommy has reached the middle-age of 32, the usual retiring point for ring warriors, his record and recent performances indicate that he has a considerable chance to stage the first major ring upset of the year without the help of history.

In a class with Gene Tunney as a boxer, though lacking the former heavyweight king's hitting powers, Loughran has made a specialty of whipping big men.

Beating Bing Giants
He never fought Tunney, but the only other two heavyweights he ever had trouble with were Jack Sharkey and Steve Hamas. When he gave up his light-heavyweight championship in 1929, Sharkey belted him over in three rounds. Later Hamas knocked him out in two. But his revenge has been ample.

Last summer he whipped Sharkey in 15 rounds, flooring him once. He has twice outpointed Hamas. But his most impressive work was done on the real giants of the ring.

He gave Max Baer a one-sided licking in 1931, and boxed rings around Ernie Schauf, Victor Campuzolo, Johnny Rieko and Paulino Uzcudun. His most recent victory was the most impressive of all. After suffering a badly cut lip that almost caused the fight to be stopped in the sixth round, he came on to befuddle Ray Impellitteri, a huge fellow of Carnera's size, in 10 rounds several weeks ago.

BOYS' CLUB WINS

The West Side Boys Club defeated the leaders of the Hartford Junior Church league by a margin of sixteen points Saturday night at the West Side Rec. 43-27.

The local quintet led all through the game and as a team featured in all departments of the game. Led by the sensational shooting of Bantley and Anderson who tallied five times for double ciphers. When under fire, the locals showed a fine easy method of basketball although somewhat hampered by the extreme height of the opposition.

The Hartford team managed to hold the locals to five points in the first quarter but from then on it was an exhibition of shooting with the locals taking the honors. Bantley, Smith and Heron did best for Hartford, while the Boys Club worked more as a unit, feeding the right man at the right time. Bantley, Anderson and Heaf, carried the bulk of the scoring.

Fencing Master Of Ring Faces Rubicon—Or Delaware

Tommy Loughran hopes to take Primo Carnera in their battle this month for the heavyweight championship as Washington took the Hessians. It's a hunch with him because the date of the fight is February 22, and because he was born in Philadelphia, site of many of Washington's activities as a soldier and President. Here he is at Washington's Crossing, N. J., where the Continental troops landed after fording the Delaware.

Charter Oak Girls 3rd In State Duckpin Loop

Local Bowling Team Has Won 25, Lost 11 Games for Average of .694; Jennie Schubert 7th in Individual Standing With Average of 104.8.

According to the official standing of the Girls' State Duck Pin League as of February 1, the Charter Oak Girls of Manchester are third in the standing with 25 victories and 11 defeats for an average of .694. The local team has played three more games than the first place West Ends of Bridgeport and the second place Holland Girls of Bridgeport, but still have one more match in the first round, the scheduled match with Rogers Sherman Girls of New Haven last week-end having been postponed.

In the individual standing of players with an average of 100 or better, Jennie Schubert of the Charter Oaks is listed seventh with an average of 104.8 for 36 games, while Flora Nelson is thirteenth with 102.18 for 34 games. Gertrude Nelson is 15th with 101.33 and Clara Jackmore is 21st with 100.32, both for 36 games.

EAST SIDES WIN, LOSE
The East Sides lost to South Windsor by a close score, 27-20.

Mike (Wesell) Brown was the hero at So. Windsor scoring nine points while T. Dwyer and T. Nickolson played best for S. Windsor. The East Sides traveled to Hartford to meet the Mitchell House Jrs. The East sides being the victors 28-16. East Sides led at half, 13-8. Pat (Wop) Dearyo was the star for the East Sides.

REDS CLOSE DEAL WITH MAPLE LEAFS To Have Preference in Purchase of Toronto Players, It Is Announced.

McCLUSKEY NAMED STEEPLCHASE ACE

Is Selected on All-America Track and Field Team by Daniel J. Ferris.

New York, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The new owners of the Cincinnati Reds energetically seeking baseball strength wherever it may lie hidden, announced completion today of negotiations with the Toronto Maple Leafs of the International league for a working agreement between the two clubs. The agreement gives the Reds the preference in the purchase of Toronto players.

The negro flier, national sprint champion, was given the 100 and 200 meters berths while Emmett Toppino of New Orleans was placed at 60 meters. Despite the fact that Metcalfe beat his southern rival for the national championship at that distance and in every meeting except one.

Another selection likely to arouse some comment placed Walter Marty of the Olympic Club, San Francisco, in the high jump post. Marty set a new world's outdoor record of six feet 8 1/2 inches, was selected for the all-ages team. He and Marty tied in their only meeting in 1930.

Metcalfe with two positions on the All-America team and two more, 100 and 220 yards, on the all-league array was the outstanding figure in the selections, made for the athletic almanac. Jesse Owens, Cleveland schoolboy, was a close second, being selected for the broad jump on the All-America squad and for the 100 and 220-yard sprints of the All-Scholastic team.

Cunningham Is Impatient To Oppose Bill Bonthron

Newark, N. J., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Glen Cunningham, smoothworking piece of running machinery from the University of Kansas, is impatient for his long-awaited meeting with Bill Bonthron, Princeton's holder of the American mile record. The sensational mid-wester discussed the anticipated dash last night after he had shown some 5,000 New Jerseyans what a near-perfect foot racer he is.

Meet February 17
He said he had expected to face the Princeton captain over the mile distance in Boston next Saturday but he now understood Bonthron had decided to switch to the 1,000-yard event. So he's counting on the New York A. C. games February 17 as the first chance he'll get to come face to face with the Princeton ace. And if there's any switch in plans then, he'll be about ready to think Bonthron is side-stepping the opportunity.

THREE FAST GAMES ON SLATE TONIGHT

Rec Senior League Teams Swing Into Action at Rec at 7.15 O'Clock.

STANDING—SECOND ROUND	REC SENIOR LEAGUE	Won	Lost
Celtics	0	1	0
Phantoms	0	1	0
Herald	0	1	0

The Rec Senior League games at the School street Gym tonight will be played in the following order:
7:15—Herald vs. Dugout.
8:15—Celtics vs. Jaffie's.
9:15—Ansaldo's vs. Phantoms.
Referee—Boggin.

The above games bring together well balanced teams and some close and interesting games are looked for, especially the Ansaldo-Phantom game. The initial games of the second round introduced many new faces on all teams which greatly strengthened their rosters, the result being that the opening games gave every indication that some of the stellar games are in order for the fans. Much more added interest is being shown in the final round, due possibly to the outstanding players pasting in the league.

Every team in the league has two or more outstanding court performers and the play in this league by these players is drawing the interest and patronage of the fans. The class of basketball as exhibited by teams in the Rec Senior League is on a par with such leagues as the Industrial and Catholic Leagues of Hartford. These games carry a small admission price and a larger turnout of fans is hoped for in the future games.

Wrestling

Concerned Over Hack
Chicago, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Chicago Cub officials are not nearly so concerned over why Bate Herman hasn't signed his 1934 contract, as they are over Stan Hack, their young third base candidate.

They have had no contact troubles with Hack, who represents an investment of $40,000, but Manager Charlie Grimm and the official branch of the club wonder if his right wrist, fractured by one of Le Roy Parmelee's fast ones last September, has healed completely. The injury did not knit properly after it was set the first time and the bone had to be rebroken and reset.

Whether the wrist will function satisfactorily again will not be known until Hack has given it a lot of work.

Rangers Out to Tighten Grip on Ice Loop Lead

New York, Feb. 6.—(AP)—While their nearest rivals, the Detroit Red Wings and Chicago Blackhawks are tied, the blizzard Rangers of New York will seek to strengthen their hold on first place in the National Hockey League's American section tonight.

Now leading the Red Wings by one point and Chicago by two, the Rangers will tangle with the speedy Canadians in Madison Square Garden in the feature game of a three-contest program. In the others, the Montreal Maroons will remain at home to meet Ottawa while the New York Americans travel to Boston to play the recovering Bruins.

The Canadians trimmed the Americans on Sunday night and will attempt to make it two in a row over New York rivals in their clash with the Rangers. The visitors, holding second place in the Canadian section, two points in front of the Maroons, need to win to even the season's series with the Blue Shirts. In four games between the two clubs, the Rangers have won two decisions, lost one and tied one.

The Maroons, who have beaten Ottawa twice in three meetings, will be heavily favored over the cellar-dwelling Senators who have dropped five decisions in a row. The Americans may end Boston plenty tough with Eddie Shore back in old form. Since Shore's return to the lineup, the Bruins have lost one game, won two and tied one. Their season's series with the Americans shows an even tally in four games.

Champ Rallies in Last Round to Retain Crown In Fiercely Fought Go

Local Sport Chatter

It was an interesting letter that "A Mason" wrote to the Sports Forum last night and it is our intention to take up his various arguments herewith.

First of all, a town title cage series is not to be desired, both by the National Guards and local fans. Therefore an opponent is necessary. Actually, no local team, aside from the Guards, has played against teams of high calibre that are considered the equal of leading semi-pro teams in this vicinity. This makes it necessary to consider the best teams available and on paper the Masons, the West Sides and the Y are just that. Not one of this Y are just that. Not one of this Y are just that. Not one of this Y are just that.

Frankly, we fall to see the point in the argument that the Masons have played against teams that have members of the West Sides and the Y fives in their lineup. On these two teams have been discussed by this department and nothing else has any bearing on the matter. If the Masons are not prepared to play either team, then the Masons must be eliminated from consideration. The Masons have also played against members of the Guards in the Rec League. Why not claim the title outright on that basis?

As for the Masons playing the Rangers, we feel the suggestion to be almost ridiculous. The Rangers, coached by Hugh Greer, have enjoyed remarkable success since their organization and are a fine team, but only in their class. The teams which they have met have been second rate to say the least. If the Rangers quiet remain intact for another two years we have no doubt they will be a dangerous threat but we believe the team lacks the experience necessary to step out against superior competition. The Guards, despite their poor record, are still about the fastest team in these parts.

As for comparing records, well, records don't mean a thing as far as this series is concerned, as the four teams under discussion have not, save in rare instances, played the same opposition. Even so, the Rangers have a discouraging habit of proving entirely unreliable time and again, of which there are too many examples to mention.

Manchester High's splendid showing against New Britain High Saturday night proved undeniably that the Red and White team possesses above the ordinary basketball ability and also proved that friction has been the cause of this season's poor record. Individually, as we have stated before, every member of the team is highly capable of fine play. Collectively, due to personal differences, they're far below average.

"What have you done to your team?" Coach Chick Shea of New Britain asked Coach W. J. Clarke, amusement plainly evident in his tone. "It was tough fighting with Joe's thumb in my eye every round."

The challenger carried the fight to the champion for the first two rounds, but toward the middle of the scrap, Rosenbloom settled down to give Knight a first class lesson in the gentle art of outting and jabbing, some of it at lightning speed. Knight took everything he had, and seldom retreated from the withering blows.

Coach Shea was in a frenzy of excitement as he saw his team outplayed by the locals and his sigh of relief could have been heard all over the Armory when the final bell blew. New Britain figured the locals as a snap, after the 48 to 20 victory gained in the Hardware City.

Several times it looked as though, during the heat of battle, fistc out-breaks would occur. This feeling was intensified by the fact that four technical fouls were called during the game. An unusual happening in scholastic circles. Leo Johnson talked back to the referee at one stage of the game and Arlton Todd, not Salmonds as previously reported, left the floor during an argument over the four time outs charged against New Britain, which resulted in a technical on the visitors. The fourth technical was called when a New Britain youth brought towels to the team and talked to the players.

If any team fully deserved victory that team was Manchester High Saturday night. It was a heart breaker to lose and the players sobbed in disappointment as they left the floor on the short end of the 27-20 score. What little consolation there was was gained from the fact that it was a moral victory for the Red and White.

It is said that the current football controversy at Manchester High, which has quieted down on the surface but is still strong underneath, is one of the causes for friction on the basketball team, which includes several members of the football squad.

The National Guards are not planning to return to their home floor of the Armory before they have completed their season's work.

Slugging Southerner Rushes Harlem Playboy About Canvas With Surprising Speed and Punch; Maxie Praises Joe After Fight.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Slapsie Maxie Rosenbloom still ruled the light heavyweight stool today, but minus a handful of tail feathers, plucked out by the up and coming Joe Knight, of Cairo, Ga., in a scarcely fought 15-round title bout here that ended in a draw.

In his first crack at a world's championship during his colorful career, the slugging southerner rushed the Harlem playboy about the canvas with surprising speed and punch and only missed gaining possession of the crown by virtue of a last minute rally by the title holder.

Maxie Praises Foe
The fight, held in the Madison Square Garden arena, was the first championship bout staged in Florida in 40 years, and was watched by approximately 23,000 spectators. Garden officials said the gate receipts were approximately $35,000.

"Joe is the best kid in the country for this title," said Maxie afterward. "It was tough fighting with Joe's thumb in my eye every round."

"It was hard for me to fight, with Rosenbloom flapping lefts in my face," was all Knight had to say. Neither was badly bruised in the encounter.

The challenger carried the fight to the champion for the first two rounds, but toward the middle of the scrap, Rosenbloom settled down to give Knight a first class lesson in the gentle art of outting and jabbing, some of it at lightning speed. Knight took everything he had, and seldom retreated from the withering blows.

STATE BOARD REVOKES

THREE LIQUOR PERMITS Hartford, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The Liquor Control Commission revoked three permits today. They are: John E. Sweeney of 35 Bishop street, Waterbury, lost his restaurant permit for non-appearance and because his place of business was not a restaurant within the meaning of the act. He asked for a reopening of the case because of claimed failure to receive notice of the hearing, which was given last week, and the commission has now reaffirmed its former action.

SENSE and NONSENSE

Wife—See the jury acquitted the girl in Peoria, Illinois, who killed her employer, on the ground of insanity.

Her Husband—Yes, and quite right, too. Anybody who kills an employer these days is certainly crazy.

What does a man love more than life, Hate more than death or mortal strife; That which contented men desire, That poor men have and rich require.

A miser spends, the spendthrift saves, And all men carry to their graves; —NOTHING!

Love is like a diamond you have to be an expert before you can tell the imitation from the real thing.

First Student—I see you're getting better grades lately. How's that?
Second Student—My dad's on a trip so I do all my home work myself.

Three-cent postage has slowed up mail delivery in small towns. The postmaster has so many postcards to read.

Mrs. Nagge—Statistics prove that marriage is a preventative of suicide.
Mr. Nagge—Yes, and statistics also prove that suicide is a preventative of marriage.

We fall of course because we have arrayed against us forces greater than we can overcome. But in many cases it doesn't take much to overcome us.

Patient—You say the doctor is out? When will he be in?
New Office Girl—I don't know how long he'll be gone. You see he's out on an eternity case.

Business is like baseball—the hits you made yesterday will not win the game today.

Man—Do you know any reliable rule for estimating the cost of living?
Neighbor—Yes. Take your income—whatever that may be—and add 10 per cent.

Women make this distinction between men and fish—They like the fish when they are fresh.

During the rush at a certain soda fountain, yesterday the girl came to the fellow who had been waiting for some time, and asked:
Girl—Did you order this sundae?
Fellow—No, I ordered it today.

Heck, he has no buttons at all! A bachelor is a man whose buttons never match.—Reidsville, N. C., Review.

Individual intelligence is always a good deal higher on an average than mass intelligence. This is the chief reason why we are not better and more wisely governed.

The following church notice is taken from a Vermont paper: "At Church last Sunday, Mr. B., the choir leader, sang: 'I May Not Pass This Way Again,' to the delight of the congregation."

In order to lay up something for a rainy day, some people will go out and borrow an umbrella.

A man went to see his physician for advice as to how to be cured of the habit of snoring.

Physician—Does your snoring disturb your wife?
Patient—Does it disturb my wife? Why it disturbs the whole congregation.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

An electric current is always passing through the atmosphere into the earth below.

Heat of a candle 100 miles away could be detected by an instrument used by astronomers to study the stars.

Heat of stars is measured by a device weighing only one one-thousandth as much as a drop of water.

Adjusting automobile radio sets to receive aviation weather reports as an aid to driving is suggested by a government official.

Workers on a paving crew near Auburn, Cal., unearthed a small vein of gold and by erecting sluice boxes obtained as much as $40 each during the short period the highway stretch was available for mining.

Refusal of a 60-year-old resident of San Bernardino, Cal., to pay one cent in sales tax on a 25-cent meal led to his arrest on a charge of defrauding an innkeeper.

Winston O'Keefe, Panhandle, Tex., youth, pays his way through Northwestern university by giving lectures and readings about cowboy and western life.

A rare collection of Chinese books has been given the Duke University library by James A. Thomas of White Plains, N. Y.

Although introduced only last summer, prune bread baking has grown in California to an output of 200,000 loaves weekly, utilizing four ounces of prunes a loaf.

Only 13 words were used by the late Webster Wood of Oakland, Cal., to will his estate of $10,000 to his wife.
