STATE THEATER TO BE SETTING OF BUSY WEEK

Herald Cooking School to Hold Forth Four Mornings Beginning Tuesday—Free to All Women.

Not rows of little laboratory tables and small gas burners, not a teacher and little girls learning their first lessons in Home Economics—but a model kitchen on the stage, an experienced lecturer and demonstrator, and the hundreds of seats filled with the women of Manchester and vicinity—that is the Cooking School which will hold forth next week, free to all of you.

But like the little girls learning their first lessons in their school cooking classes, the women who attend the big Cooking School at the State theater next week will see and hear many interesting things for the first time.

Revelations through publication deepened pessimism here over prospects of disarmament and concerning the political situation in Europe. France retorted to Germany that the Reich had already begun to rearm, in defiance of treaties.

Declaring her readiness to disarm "down to the last gun," Germany maintains disarmament of other European countries hinges on the reduction of armaments in every country of the world, but "nobody believes any longer in the possibility of a general international disarmament."

The United States, as the surest means of keeping Americans out of a European war, has made considerable contributions to international security, but can make no additional commitments, was the impression in authoritative quarters here.

The documents show that in a memorandum of Dec. 18, 1933, Germany warned France that as heavily armed countries had no intention of disarming or did not feel in a position to do so, Germany "is entitled to obtain in one way or another"

Has Extensive Training Mrs. Crabtree has traveled widely in this country studying in the laboratories where automatic machine equipment is designed and created; she has used many new appliances in her own home kitchen long before they were on the market.

She is enthusiastic about the development of homemaking equipment in this country, especially that which is available everywhere at modest prices today.

"If women had been responsible for these new devices," said Mrs. Crabtree, "it would be surprising enough. The housekeeper has been only indirectly responsible. But she has demanded more simple house-keeping tools, easier ways to care for her family's food, hence the improved, automatic refrigerators of today. She has demanded easier cooking, hence the fine automatic controlled range and the modern kitchen cabinet. She has asked for safe food, and the result has been not only legislation at Washington to protect the consumer in all she buys, but the manufacturers have forced to employ the chemist and specialist, to produce better foods, to package them for cleanliness, and they have had to devise delivery systems which guarantee fresh foods on every grocery shelf."

Republican Raps Roosevelt Action Says Returning Airmail to Private Carriers Will Not Help the Situation.

Washington, March 8.—(AP)—The administration's new measure for returning the airmail to private carriers was termed today by Representative Bacon (R., N. Y.), "the executioner of carriers who have been judged guilty without trial."

In the first Republican thrust at the airmail cancellations since Majority Leader Byrnes of Tennessee last Wednesday defended it against earlier charges of "legalized murder," Bacon declared that "under the circumstances the hasty move which paralyzed commercial aviation will not be undone by the belated action to apply a restorative."

Process of Haste "In a matter which brought such tragic consequences," he said in a statement, "this process of haste and belatedness should have been reversed. It is questionable how much of a restorative this belated move will prove to be to an industry so suddenly stricken down by the hasty and inconsiderate action of cancellation."

"The administration's move to restore air mail carrying to commercial companies does not remove the stigma of fraud. It does not bring back gallant Army aviators who died performing a new and unaccustomed duty."

Bacon contended few of the old lines would be able to re-build for mail carrying over routes they pioneered and that there was a question as to how many can survive.

GERMANY PLANS TO REARM, SHE TELLS LEAGUE

Says Disarmament Is an Illusion as All Other Nations Are Speeding Up on War Programs.

Geneva, March 9.—(AP)—Disarmament is an illusion, says Germany, hence she is going to rearm. But in a document published today for the first time, she promised to be moderate.

With disarmament reaching a crisis, the League of Nations issued simultaneously in Geneva, London, Berlin and Paris a collection of all disarmament documents exchanged by those governments.

Revelations through publication deepened pessimism here over prospects of disarmament and concerning the political situation in Europe.

France retorted to Germany that the Reich had already begun to rearm, in defiance of treaties. First Lady On Cuban Soil After Hop From Miami

An interval in Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's air voyage to Puerto Rico is recorded here as the First Lady chatted with officials after arriving in Nuevitas, Cuba, first stop after taking off at Miami, Fla. At left is Rexford Tugwell, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, who also was bound to Puerto Rico to study economic conditions.

EIGHTH ARMY FLIER KILLED; CARRIED MAIL

Bewildered by Heavy Snow Squall His Plane Crashes in Ohio—Ten Bags of Mail Saved.

BULLETTIN! Dayton, March 9.—(AP)—Private Ernest B. Bell was killed instantly near here today in the crash of an Army bomber mail plane within a few minutes after it had taken off from the local airport headed south.

Lieut. W. M. Reid, pilot, Floyd Marshall, a private, were injured. The motors failed and the plane fell in a heavily wooded section two miles south of this city.

Chardon, O., March 9.—(AP)—Army mail Pilot Otto Wiencke, flying from Newark, N. J., to Cleveland with the mail, crashed to his death in the midst of a heavy snow squall this morning on a farm northwest of Burton, near here.

Chardon is about 20 miles directly east of Cleveland.

The plane was destroyed, but ten bags of mail were salvaged and brought to the postoffice here.

John Hess, a farmer in whose pasture the plane crashed, said he and several neighbors heard the plane's motor about 5 a. m. a. t. It apparently was sputtering, and Hess rushed out in time to see the crash.

The crash was reported to Army mail headquarters in Cleveland, but officers there were unable to further identify the pilot.

Cornet Philip Pease reported looking at the ship's altimeter and finding a reading of 600 feet.

Still in Plane Hess said Wiencke apparently had no opportunity to save himself. His safety belt was still hooked when the farmer reached his side.

M. G. Gorman, a neighbor, also reported hearing the plane. He helped Hess call Sheriff Harry O. Hill, who took charge of the body.

Hess declared the snow was coming down in a heavy swirl at the time of the accident.

Sixth Army Killed Since the army took over the mail flights, six other Army pilots have been killed, either while flying mail, making unofficial flights, or reporting to Army posts.

On Feb. 12, Lieutenants Jean D. Greener of Fort Crockett, Tex., and Edwin D. White of March Field, Calif., lost their lives in Weber Canyon, Utah, during a blinding snow storm. They were en route to posts for air mail duty.

On the same day Lieut. James Y. Eastham of March Field, preparing to carry the mail, crashed during a practice flight at Jerome, Idaho, and was burned to death.

KAMINSKI GUILTY, TO DIE IN CHAIR; WARGO GETS LIFE

Alexander's Companion, Paul Wargo Convicted of Murder in Second Degree — They Killed Jail Guard.

Springfield, Mass., March 9.—(AP)—Alexander Kaminski of New Britain, Conn., and Paul Wargo of Wallingford, Conn., were found guilty today in the killing of Merritt W. Hayden, Springfield jail guard.

A Hampden county jury returned guilty verdicts against the men at 1:45 this morning after deliberating nine hours.

Kaminski was convicted of first degree murder and Wargo of murder in the second degree. The former carries a mandatory sentence of death and the latter a maximum sentence of life imprisonment.

Sentence on Wargo will be passed later today. Under Massachusetts law, however, the death sentence cannot be passed on Kaminski until 15 days have elapsed.

Kaminski received the verdict calmly and Wargo wore a broad grin as the jury read out the decision. Both waived counsel to court attendants and newspapermen as they were led out of the court room to be taken back to jail.

Hayden was fatally beaten October 22, when Kaminski and Wargo escaped from Springfield jail.

Killing Described District Attorney Thomas F. Moriarty described the killing of the guard as a "cold-blooded murder" and charged Kaminski with the actual beating of Hayden with a club. Moriarty sought first degree murder verdicts against both.

Defense counsel argued there was lack of premeditation and the guard's fall wound might have been suffered in a fall while struggling with a club. Moriarty sought first degree murder verdicts against both.

OPPOSE ELECTRIC UTILITY LOANING

State Chamber Objects to Financing of Municipal Plants by P. W. A.

Hartford, March 9.—The Connecticut Chamber of Commerce has transmitted to the Connecticut Congressional delegation the following resolution:

"WHEREAS, the duty of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce makes it mandatory that it take cognizance of all things which affect the interests of the citizens of Connecticut;

"WHEREAS, in times of emergency resources is had remedial measures which because of the very haste attendant upon their adoption, result in injustice even while achieving their constructive ends;

"WHEREAS, the expressed purpose of the National Industrial Recovery Act is to eliminate unfair trade practices and to promote the fullest possible use of present productive capacity of industries;

"WHEREAS, the Public Works Administration, contrary to the expressed purposes of the National Industrial Recovery Act, is inviting municipalities to install municipal electric systems and offering to loan the necessary funds for that purpose, 30 percent of which is an outright gift, thus unnecessarily duplicating existing and adequate facilities;

"Whereas, because of the aforementioned 30 percent gift municipalities which are content to be stepped by privately owned and operated utilities and therefore see no necessity for installing a publicly owned system, are nevertheless called upon through Federal Taxation to defray a part of the cost of such systems to municipalities which may elect to install them, which, if it constitutes a discriminatory and unfair taxation policy;

"WHEREAS, in the public interest, privately owned utilities are not generally permitted by regulatory authority to compete by supplying service in the same area; and

"WHEREAS, it is quite as unaccountable and in the public interest to permit a publicly owned utility to compete with a privately owned one as to permit two privately owned utilities to compete with each other since such competition results in higher rates to the public, waste of capital and consequent unnecessary losses to investors;

"Now, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that we respectfully urge that the Federal Administration of Public Works discontinue the loaning of funds to, and in any way assisting, municipalities in installing electric utility systems which will compete with existing adequate facilities and good service rendered at reasonable rates."

THE CONNECTICUT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE, Inc. President Henry Trumbull in transmitting this resolution to our Senators and Congressmen said that to create new electric utility plants in regions already well served not only threatens existing privately owned corporations of great economic value as employing enterprises, but likewise most unwarrantably imperils utility security values in the portfolios of Connecticut's large insurance and banking institutions."

The final figures show Labor, 69; Municipal Reform, 65.

The previous composition of the Council was Labor, 35; Municipal Reform, 33; Liberal, 6. The former Liberal representation was completely wiped out.

Among members unseated were the Earl of Haddo, who inherits the title and seats of the late Marquess of Aberdeen and Temair, one-time Governor-general of Canada, and Sir Cyril Cobb, chairman of the public assistance committee, both beaten in West Fulham.

Chairman E. A. Dence of the Council was defeated in Greenwich. J. H. Webbe, leader-designate of the Municipal Reformers, went down in Northeast Camberwell; Captain Bertram Mills, chairman of the Council entertainment committee, and Dame Beatrice Lyall, vice-chairman of the Council of 1933, lost their seats in East Fulham where Labor's victory in the Parliamentary election of last October 23, was confirmed.

Sixteen Communists who attempted to gain seats were at the bottom of the roll in each case.

SEES LIQUOR RULING AS HELP TO PUBLIC

Druggist Edward J. Murphy Says Victory Is People's —What It Means.

The right of the drug stores in this state to retail liquors is a victory for the trading public, as well as the druggists, in the belief of Edward J. Murphy, chairman of the Connecticut Pharmaceutical Association...

Mr. Murphy said that liquors will not be available in drug stores before Monday or Tuesday. Only stock meeting United States Pharmacopoeia requirements...

The Pharmacy Board is intent on keeping the liquor business as far as druggists are concerned ethical. They will take every means to police the industry and keep it clean.

LOCKED GUARD IN CELL WHEN DILLINGER FLED

Chicago, March 9.—The uproar over slippery John Dillinger's walkaway reached a new high today with a charge that a fingerprint expert locked a special guard in a cell a few minutes before the outlaw escaped the Crown Point Indiana jail.

Attorney General Philip Lutz, Jr., of Indiana said at Indianapolis that Matt Brown, 34, was the guard locked in. He said that the aged man testified to Assistant Attorney General Edward Barco that Ernest Blunk, fingerprint expert at the jail, locked a door on him "before I realized I had been decoyed into the cell."

Shortly afterward the guard was caught as saying, Dillinger appeared in the jail corridor, armed with a machine gun. Blunk is free on bond on a charge of manslaughter.

SAVES DROWING DOG AT RISK OF HIS LIFE

Portsmouth, N. H., March 9.—(AP)—Theodore Pope, middle-aged railroad section hand, today was revealed as a hero who braved the combined terrors of darkness, thin ice, black, freezing water and possible lonely death, to save a drowning dog.

As Pope trudged along the Boston and Maine railroad tracks last night, just after dark, he heard the cries of a dog a hundred feet off shore in what is known as the North Mill pond. The ice was dangerously thin, due to a current in the water.

Pope reached the dog just in time, for it was too weak to stand when he dragged it from the hole in the ice, where it had broken through. Edging his way back across the ice with ladder and dog, Pope regained the shore, took the dog to the outhouse where the nearly dead animal was revived with warmth and blankets.

GYPSY MOTH EGGS FROZEN BY COLD

Department of Agriculture Believes Plague Will Be Lessened This Year.

The gypsy moth plague is likely to be greatly lessened in this territory next year as a result of the cold weather. The department of agriculture has had men working in New England burning the nests of these pests, but a bulletin recently issued stated that tests made at 33 degrees below zero proved that egg clusters of the gypsy moth have been so affected that the life of the egg has been killed and will not hatch in the spring.

THE BARGAIN HOUND

Gurgles of joy will come forth when you see the dresses at Sage Allen's Alhain Shop on the second floor. I just had to leave this place. There are prints, all kinds of them, sheers, rough and ribbed crepes, moss crepe, plain colored dresses with smart little jackets, dresses gaily touched with a dash of plaid or femininely adorned with lovely ruching. And then there is a plaid taffeta that's perfectly darling. It will break your heart if you don't take it on the spot. The size ranges are 12-20, 24-44 and 48-1 2 24-1 2. All the dresses are $10.98.

Encouragement to you dieters—The amazing drop of 32 pounds in her weight, from 127 to 95 pounds, in six months, has Joan Marsh of Hollywood to become a much sought after girl. She gets dozens of telephone calls a day from her friends asking for her secret. It is not a secret, according to Joan, and everyone who wants to try it can do so. A fresh vegetable diet for three months turned the scales around. Now she eats everything, and her weight stays at 95, which is about five pounds underweight. She hopes to add the five pounds by drinking a quart of milk daily.

Mrs. Homewood is having an Easter sale of her exquisitely made flowers at Kemp's. You'll love her jonquils, tulips and daffodils.

Here's the way ham steak is prepared at the Martinique, New York: Cut steaks one-half inch thick from the center of the ham. Allow one to every two persons. Fry slowly in the ham's own grease and when done, remove from the skillet, add half a teaspoonful each of sweet paprika and orange juice to the natural sauce in the pan.

Strain the sauce, keep it hot and pour over the ham steaks when they are ready to be taken to the table. Sprinkle with chopped parsley, put a few chopped tomatoes and several tiny boiled carrots around the steaks and serve the remainder of the vegetables in separate dishes.

Plain dresses topped by jackets make interesting spring ensembles. One of the smartest is a brown, lightweight woolen dress which is worn with a coat of tan, yellow, orange and brown plaid.

Have you tried the new Vita-B Cereal? It's appetizing and rich in vitamin value—and also, it makes delicious muffins and cookies. Get it at Hale's Self Serve.

Fresh pineapple is a special at Garrone's this week-end and it is "special" too. It offers you a delectable change for your Sunday menu. They are 25 cents each.

One of the most popular outfits of the south this winter is a trim white pique skirt topped by a mannish blouse of navy blue or brown linen. Often a contrasting handkerchief is knotted about the neck of the blouse.

Iceberg—the kind that melt in your mouth—is the candy offering for 50 cents a pound, regularly 80 cents, at the Center Pharmacy this week-end.

Using lime jello as a base you can make several different salads appropriate for your St. Patrick's party. One of the simplest is using grapefruit sections, free from membranes, three or four sections to a serving and garnished with mayonnaise. Diced cucumber and sour pickles may be added to the lime jello, still another combination to carry out the green color scheme is strips of green pepper, celery finely cut and stuffed olives sliced crosswise. With lemon jello, finely shredded cabbage, apples finely cut and stuffed olives are good.

Talk about bargains—this is a gift! Helena Rubenstein is offering you a $1.00 rouge compact with every $1.00 box of her face powder that you purchase at Hale's drug counter. With such an offer I don't imagine the stock will hold out indefinitely so if I were you I'd drop quietly in and get mine rather soon.

Large stuffed olives wrapped in thin slices of bacon placed on with a toothpick and fastened under the broiler flame just long enough to cook the bacon make excellent appetizers.

Chipped beef, cut fine with scissors, and mixed with mayonnaise and seasoned with a dash of cayenne may be piled on crisp crackers.

Thin slices of ham or the various ready to serve sausages cut in fancy shapes may be served as hors d'Oeuvres.

In the spring fashion shows in Paris, velvet was shown more than in any previous collection. In addition to the long evening wraps of velvet, a completely new type of coat attracted much attention. It fastens in the back, one side folds over the other, then ties in the front, making it easy to open. It wraps when one sits. These wraps are cut with a low cowl front and back, have long loose sleeves, making them cool and yet a protection for the light summer dresses which are organdie and muslin. Many small velvet caps, in black and colors were also shown; by many of the houses. As to color there is no question about the importance of blue for the spring season. Parrot blue is really a divine color, in London they are using a very lovely marine blue.

DAMS TO REVIVE VAST ARID AREA

Public Works Project in Wyoming, Other States to Cost $22,700,000.

Casper, Wyo.—High in importance on the list of projects made possible by the government's public works funds, of immense potentiality to Wyoming and neighboring states stands the $22,700,000 Casper-Alcova power and irrigation undertaking.

Agricultural, mining and industrial development on a huge scale is envisioned by Wyoming, scenes of the gigantic project, with benefits extending far beyond the boundaries of that state.

Two mammoth dams will impound the waters of the North Platte River in reservoirs of vast extent. A power plant will distribute cheap current to proposed industries miles from the center of the project; great mineral resources, yet untouched, can be developed; thousands of acres of lands can grow crops where now there are only barren wastes, new large Wyoming leaders who have fought for the project.

The millions needed to finance the great work will come from the public works fund of the federal government.

A region sorely stricken by depletion of its oil reserves and cancellation of leases following the Teapot Dome expose dreams of a new era of prosperity, with several thousand men to be given employment and business certain to revive and expand.

The Seminoe dam will be built at a cost estimated at $6,160,000. It will be of concrete, gravity type, in the Granite canyon of the river, 15 miles south of Casper. Its power plant will provide an annual output of 150,000,000 kilowatt-hours for distribution in central and southern Wyoming through transmission lines in three areas.

Cost at Alcova is estimated at $3,339,000. This dam will be a diversion barrier of earth and rock across a narrow gorge in the Platte, 30 miles southwest of Casper.

The irrigation system, on which approximately $13,000,000 will be expended, will include a 106-mile canal, which will terminate six miles north of Casper.

The United States Reclamation Bureau is in charge of the construction project and all work to be done under contract, with local labor as far as possible. Plans and specifications now are being drawn for the major units and work on all of them is expected to be under way by spring.

One of the great items in the plan is the reclamation of 66,000 acres of land in Natrona county, in which Casper is located. An irrigation district now is in process of organization there.

Pay on 40-Year Plan
First to receive attention there will be production of feed for livestock, badly needed on the range in drought years. Sugar beet raising and dairying also are expected to be among major activities in this area.

Settlers in this district will make repayment to the government on the 40-year plan. Aiding, too, in discharging the debt will be oil royalties accruing to the reclamation fund from Natrona county. A vast wealth of minerals will be made available by cheap power, declare competent technologists. The North Platte valley they have found valuable deposits of iron, chromium, potash, and asbestos.

In addition, they assert that there is an almost inexhaustible supply of sodium sulphate and other chemicals needed for electro-metallurgical processes.

Bore At Seminoe Site
Borings now are being made at the Seminoe dam site, to determine definitely the type of dam best suited to that location. The dam here, it is calculated, will lift the stream 185 feet, to impound 910,000 acre feet of water. It will be built where the river cuts beneath the Seminoe range and Bennett mountain.

The Alcova dam will push waters of the river back into a great natural basin, the "Flery Narrows," so named by Washington Irving because of the vivid rock formations found there. The level of the river here will be lifted about 169 feet.

When the Seminoe and Alcova dams are completed, a chain of three reservoirs will be created. The Pathfinder dam, built 28 years ago, to impound water for the North Platte project in western Nebraska and southeastern Wyoming, lies between the two new sites.

Dam Is Profitable

Further down the river, at Guernsey in eastern Wyoming, is another power dam which the government more than $200,000 a year, with the aid of the smaller Lange plant of the Fort Laramie canal.

Senator John B. Kendrick is given credit for winning government approval of the gigantic project. A movement has been started to name the Seminoe dam for him.

Wyoming looks forward to benefits comparable to those which the southwest will receive from Boulder dam, when the Casper-Alcova project becomes reality.

INVESTIGATION BOARD TO ADJUST PAY RATES

Brief Strike of Local CWA Skilled Workers Leads to Wage Schedule Decision.

Local CWA skilled tradesmen, principally painters, employed on several Civil Works projects, objected yesterday through a representative master tradesman to the local CWA board at its weekly meeting Wednesday. The appeal was made to George H. Waddell, certifying officer of the local CWA. An increase of 30 cents an hour was asked, making the maximum hourly wage of skilled workers $1.00 in conformity with the scale set by CWA boards in several surrounding towns. The board said it was asked to consider the receipt of a letter from their representative, James Forde, master painter.

Mr. Waddell called H. Perry Close, supervising engineer for this state, and after an investigation of the rates of pay of the several surrounding towns, gave permission for the increase of 25 cents an hour to skilled workers for this week, pending the establishment of a board of investigation, in an effort to find further complaints in this connection.

The board, when organized probably next week, will consist of three members, one member representing the workers, one the contractors and one from the CWA board. This board will pass upon all future wage schedules.

The original maximum rate of pay for skilled workers, as set by the Civil Works Administration, was $1.20 an hour. All CWA boards throughout the state were ordered to bring maximum pay schedules into conformity with local wage scales in their respective towns.

LATEST STOCKS

New York, March 9.—(AP)—Stocks were fairly active on the uptick for a short time after the opening, but profit taking soon appeared and many gains were either pared or transformed into losses. Strength was displayed by a few specialties, however, including some Canadian issues.

Grains, silver and rubber were steady, but cotton eased. Bonds were narrow, as were international dollar rates.

Shares of Canadian Pacific drew a sizeable following with a gain of more than a point. Dominion stores got up 2 and International Nickel was quite lively but virtually unchanged. U. S. Smelting, Patino mines and McIntyre advanced about a point each while Homestake was up 4 on a few sales. Dresser Manufacturing and Hayes Body were given a run for gains of a point or more. Liggett & Myers B and U. S. Industrial Alcohol advanced a point. The oils improved, but the rails, utilities, motors and steels eased. United Aircraft dropped nearly 2 points as the other aviation issues were soft.

Carloadings for the week ended March 8, were up 306,766 over the previous week, but this was much less than the seasonal gain owing to the abnormal weather conditions during the period.

While the financial district appeared to be somewhat reassured by developments at Washington which indicated that the bill for regulation of securities markets would be substantially amended, and that the NRA shorter hours, higher wages program would not be forced on those who could not afford it, opinion was mixed as to near-future price trends.

Some market commentators continued to point out that various "blue chip" stocks may have already discounted much of the bright economic news that is now appearing and that quotations, in several instances, seem to be out of line with earnings, both present and potential.

Participation in stocks and bonds from abroad was reported to have depreciated considerably in the past week or so, although sizeable balances were being maintained here by leading European traders. There was said to be a change in the short account from its status a month ago. At the same time, a few brokers found that buying recently has been a little better than the selling.

NUMEROUS CHARGES AGAINST THIS BOY

Theft, Breaking and Entering, Arson and in Addition Forgery.

Hartford, March 9.—(AP)—Charges of breaking, entering and theft last December, followed by setting fires in his neighborhood, after which he took a two months vacation in Florida on forged checks of his employer, Herbert Wagner, a playwright, landed Robert L. Smith of Norwalk in jail yesterday, according to the state police. He is being held without bond for his appearance in court tomorrow.

Smith, who is 17 years old, according to the state police entered the store of Myer Friedman and also the Winthrop Club in Norwalk making a haul of liquor and cigarettes.

Thirty more arrests for motor vehicle violations, most for not having operators' licenses were made by the state police yesterday.

Fideliu Banos and Tony Mende of South Norwalk were arrested by the state police for having in their possession policy slips. They will be sentenced in court there March 12.

Following an investigation into an automobile crash on North Main street in Killington between cars owned by J. C. Warren and Harold H. Alvord, the latter of Danville, Alvord was arrested charged with driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He is held in bonds of $200 for his appearance in the Killington town court today.

HOLD HARTFORD NEGRO FOR GEORGIA MURDER

Hartford, March 9.—(AP)—James Terry, 30 years old, Hartford negro was arrested early today for police of Ellaville, Ga., on a warrant charging him with a slaying in that city May 10, 1928.

The arrest resulted from a family quarrel last January when in the presence of Policeman Daniel McCarthy, Terry's wife mentioned "being wanted" and "Ellaville."

Thursday a bench warrant charging murder was received together with a letter from Ellaville. The warrant was issued nearly eight years ago in Macon county.

Police here were not informed as to who was slain or the details of the crime.

A BOOK A DAY BY BRUCE CATTON

SWEET 16, AND SHE LIKED TO BE KISSED
Heroine of This Novel Runs Into an Odd Tangle

A smooth and ingratiating romance that unintentionally skids into a telephone pole in the final chapters—that's Coningsby Dawson's new novel, "The Moon Through Glass."

It tells about a London girl, daughter of a clergyman, who develops a weakness for being kissed. That, of course, is a common human frailty; what complicates matters is the fact that her parents go on holiday in Belgium just as the war breaks out, get tangled up with the German invasion, and vanish from the face of the earth.

This leaves sweet sixteen alone in London—a London full of romantic notions and romantic-looking young officers—and she has no mother to guide her. And that frailty of hers grows by what it feeds on. So, as you can imagine, things begin to happen to her.

She winds up by marrying Sir Peter Stryer, young nobleman who is serving with the Canadians. He goes to France and she discovers that he previously had married a Canadian nurse.

Then he is reported killed in action, and the nurse stands right where an airplane bomb lands, so sweet sixteen's path is cleared.

She becomes a musical comedy star, by some process never quite clear, survives the war, and marries an idealistic young novelist. And then who pops up but Sir Peter!

At this point the story performs the above-mentioned skid, and everybody involved acts with such a complete lack of common sense that it all gets rather trying.

Outside of that, however, it's a rather pleasant little story.

Published by Knopf, it sells for $2.50.

A new department store in Johannesburg, South Africa, is air-conditioned and houses 11 sections, including meat, fresh fish and dairy departments.

ROCKVILLE

FISH AND GAME CLUB GIVES TURKEY DINNER

Splendid Entertainment Provided and Motion Pictures of Sports Shown at Annual Affairs.

Notwithstanding the snowstorm, a total of 104 attended the tenth annual banquet of the Rockville Fish and Game Club Thursday evening at the Rockville House.

The dining room at the Rockville House presented an inviting appearance as the group entered at 7:30 o'clock to enjoy the turkey dinner prepared by Chef Arthur Busch and served under the personal direction of Mrs. Ellen Chaplaina.

Shortly after 8:30 o'clock the post prandial exercises took place at which time Henry Weber, as president, presented David L. Honday as the guestmaster of the evening.

No introduction was necessary as Mr. Honday, as publisher of the "Rockville Journal," is widely known as a sportsman.

Official greetings of the city of Rockville were presented by Alderman Kerwin Little, president of the Board of Common Council.

A short entertainment followed by artists from the Beverly Joyce Studio of Wethersfield and included the popular George Gillette, Rose Bell, Ernest Schieldege and Martin Belfrage, while Beverly Joyce directed the entertainment.

Lieutenant Governor Roy Wilcox, who is widely known as a sportsman throughout Connecticut, was unable to attend. He was to deliver a discourse on the duties as an executive and impress upon his listeners about his interest in sports, particularly in fishing.

Lieutenant Governor Wilcox is in Washington. Arthur L. Clark, superintendent of the Connecticut State Board of Fisheries and Game, delivered a practical talk on the work of his department in providing fish in the streams patronized by the sportsmen of the state.

The real entertainer of the evening was to be Ozark Ripley, noted as a writer. Mr. Ripley was to entertain with numerous stories of hunting and fishing which are of unusual interest. He was held up at Troy, N. Y., because of high water and floods.

One of the feature events of the evening was the "motion picture show" which was presented in the main dining room. A large curtain was placed upon the west wall of the dining room and a motion picture outfit was set up in the center of the room.

The four reels of sports pictures, taken by Mr. Ripley were shown. The pictures were sent ahead to Hartford and the committee secured them in the afternoon.

The tenth annual banquet of the Rockville Fish and Game Club proved to be one of the big events in the history of the club and indications are that had the weather been pleasant the dining room would have been taxed to its utmost capacity. Red carnations were presented to the party, including the entertainers and waitresses by Staudt the florist.

Town Finances Studied
With the report that an increase of at least one mill in taxation this year would be necessary to pay the appropriations of the fiscal year of 1933-34 and also the deficit of the past year, a careful study of the finances of the town of Vernon are being made by a group of local property owners.

Some additional facts were disclosed yesterday which are of unusual interest to all taxpayers. Whereas the unpaid notes are listed as $15,000 and the cash on hand as $2,794.95, giving the impression that the net deficit would amount to but $12,205.05, additional figures show the deficit to be much larger.

This figure of $2,794.95, listed as "cash on hand," is all but eliminated by another figure in the expense column, that of "unpaid orders, past year." The unpaid town orders for the past year amount to $2,087.20 and the unpaid school orders for the past year amount to $320.83, totaling $3,408.03.

Deducted from the "cash on hand" item of 2,794.95, a balance of $386.92 is all that remains for "cash on hand."

When this figure of $386.92 is deducted from the "current notes unpaid" of $15,000, the net deficit is $14,613.08.

Reports have been received from an authentic source that the "corporation tax" which was estimated at $12,000 for the fiscal year, will total $14,000. This is an additional $2,000 which must be shared with the city of Rockville.

The amount allotted to budget is $3,500. It is considered possible that this figure will be raised about $1,000 if the full $14,000 is received.

Entertain District Deputy District Deputy Charles N. Carroll of Meriden, made his official visitation for the current year, 1933-34 to Rockville Lodge, No. 1859, B. O. P. Elks, Wednesday evening.

Notwithstanding the numerous other events on hand last evening, a large number were present to greet District Deputy Carroll.

Exalted Ruler Lewis H. Chapman presided and following the usual reception a business meeting was held.

After the business meeting a class initiation was held at which time four prominent citizens of Rockville were initiated. A social and smoker followed the meeting and initiation.

Cash Store Shoplifters
Two more cases of "shoplifting" were discovered late Wednesday afternoon in "The Royal" store on Park street by Harry Flamm, proprietor. The offenders were found to be boys under 16 years of age

TEACHING STAFF CHANGES MADE

Transfers Necessary Owing to Resignation of Henry L. Farr Tendered Recently

The resignation of Henry L. Farr as teacher of ancient history at Manchester High school has brought several changes in the staff of the local public schools, it was announced following a meeting of the town Board of Education last night.

Mr. Farr has been appointed to the educational staff of the Civilian Conservation Corps and assumes his post with the 174th Company at Union new Monday.

Miss Catherine M. Divisey, a teacher at the Bernard School since 1929, will be transferred to the High school to fill the vacancy left by Mr. Farr's resignation.

Miss Divisey is a graduate of William Hall Normal school, class of 1926, and the Columbia University Teachers' college.

Her place as teacher of eighth grade boys in the Bernard school will be taken by Miss Jennie Carroll of Bethel, a graduate of Danbury Normal school, who has taught for many years in Stamford.

Miss Carroll has also been teaching here during the past year as substitute for Miss Esther Granstrom, who was given a leave of absence from September to February to study at Columbia.

AMUSEMENTS GABLE-COLBERT TEAM UP FOR FIRST TIME

Stars in "It Happened One Night" at State Sunday Night Play Well Together.

Claudette Colbert and Clark Gable, two of Hollywood's most popular stars, are teamed together for the first time in the Columbia production, "It Happened One Night," which is coming to the State Theater Sunday.

Gable sky-rocketed to fame a couple of years ago following his appearance with Norma Shearer in "A Free Soul," and overnight became the most popular male star on the screen. Thousands upon thousands of fan letters poured into the studios, and as a result, he was given roles with many of the most famous female stars on the screen.

He appeared with Shearer again in "Strange Interlude," and with Joan Crawford in "Dance Floor Daze," "Possessed," and most recently in "Dancing Lady." He was co-starred with Jean Harlow in "Red Dust" and in "Hold Your Man" with Helen Hayes in "White Sister" and with Greta Garbo in "Susan Lennox."

Miss Colbert's stardom and popularity is based upon her marvelous work in such productions as "Sign of the Cross," "The Torch Singer," "Three Corned Moon," "I Cover the Waterfront," and "The Smiling Lieutenant," and is now equal to that of the top-notch feminine stars of the Cinema capital.

Together, with Gable furnishing the appeal for the feminine moviegoers, and with Miss Colbert's well known popularity with the male sex, they should form one of the most popular star-combinations of years.

The picture, "It Happened One Night," was directed by Frank Capra, whose recent production, "Lady For A Day" has been cited as one of the best pictures of the current year.

WALL ST. BRIEFS

New York, March 9.—General Motors Corporation's foreign sales for February totaled 11,195 units, an increase of 62.3 per cent from the same month in 1933, and a gain of 49 per cent over February, 1932. For the year to date overseas volume has amounted to 21,513 units and has risen 71.9 per cent ahead of the corresponding period of 1933 and 58 per cent over 1932.

The continued chiefly in the European states, is world-wide in extent, applying not only to products manufactured in the United States and Canada but also to the Opel product made in Germany and the Vauxhall in England.

The North American Co., has applied to the New York Stock Exchange for the listing of 83,097 additional common shares. National Distillers Products Corp. seeks to list 188,000 more shares of its common stock.

The New York Wool Top Exchange Service says orders received by woolen mills in the past week from Baltimore, Cleveland and other manufacturing centers catering chiefly to the south and middle west indicate a slow good recovery in the hands of cutters are running low and that they are being compelled to replenish bare shelves. The same situation "exists to a greater extent in the retail field," states the service, adding: "There has been a marked upturn in apparel sales in the south in the past few weeks and the improvement is spreading to the west and middle west."

COMMITS SUICIDE
Hamden, Conn., March 10.—(AP)—The death of Maurice Berryman, 37, of Hamden, who was found by his wife, seated in the kitchen of their home with the jets of the gas range open, was called suicide today by Medical Examiner George H. Joslin.

The medical examiner found that Berryman had been suffering from mental depression and amnesia for several weeks.

ALLEGED THIEF IS BOUND OVER

E. J. De Mars, Accused of Stealing Local Car, Must Face Higher Court.

Edward Joseph DeMars, 32, of Milford, Mass., was bound over to the April term of the Hartford County Superior Court this morning, in town court, in default of $8,000 bond on a charge of breaking and entering in the night season and theft of an automobile owned by Thomas O. Miner, March 4, DeMars was arrested in Whitinsville, Mass.

Monday after local police had broadcast a report of the theft of the local car, and was brought back for the hearing Tuesday. The stolen car, was recovered and returned to the owner here.

DeMars, on parole from the Cheshire Reformatory, to which institution he was committed on two occasions, had been employed on a Wethersfield farm. He was en route east when he attempted to steal an automobile from a garage on Silver Lane. Gaining admittance, DeMars found only a truck, and continued on to Manchester. At midnight he forced the bolt on the garage of Thomas O. Miner at 592 East Court street, and made away with a Red sedan owned by Mr. Miner.

It was brought out in court that the car had been left in the garage at 10:30 Saturday night and was not missed until 10:30 Sunday morning. DeMars was assigned to the investigation. DeMars was taken to jail today to await trial the first week in April.

AUTO VICTIM DIES

New Britain, March 9.—(AP)—Nathan Herman, 85, a Holyoke, Mass., jeweler, died in New Britain general hospital of a fractured skull and other injuries last night. Herman was crushed when his car was demolished in a collision with a truck on the Berlin turnpike. The truck ran off the highway after the crash. Carl Kostor, of Springfield, was held by state police on a charge of reckless driving.

LEGION RIFLE TEAM BEATS MIDDLETOWN

Skill of Dwire and Newcomb in Drilling the "Bulls-eye" Factor.

The American Legion rifle team cracked the bulls-eye with unerring accuracy during a shoot with the Middlefield American Legion men over a 50 foot range in the Charter Oak league last night, and triumphed by a margin of 48 points.

The score, which was 900 to 851, was largely due to the skill of G. Dwire and Newcomb, who made 180 and 184 hits, respectively.

At a rifle meet in the state armory, Hartford, Sunday, with American Legion teams throughout the county participating, the Manchester five won the distinction of capturing second honors.

The tally last night was as follows: Manchester—H. Muske, 178; H. Cude, Jr., 177; H. Cude, Jr., 178; G. Dwire, 185; Newcomb, 184; Middlefield—Ahlberg, 171; Franchini, 169; Warner, 168; Handley, 172; Bascon, 181.

LOCAL NRA HEAD URGES "BUY NOW"
William P. Lyons Believes Time Ripe to Get Values at Low Cost.

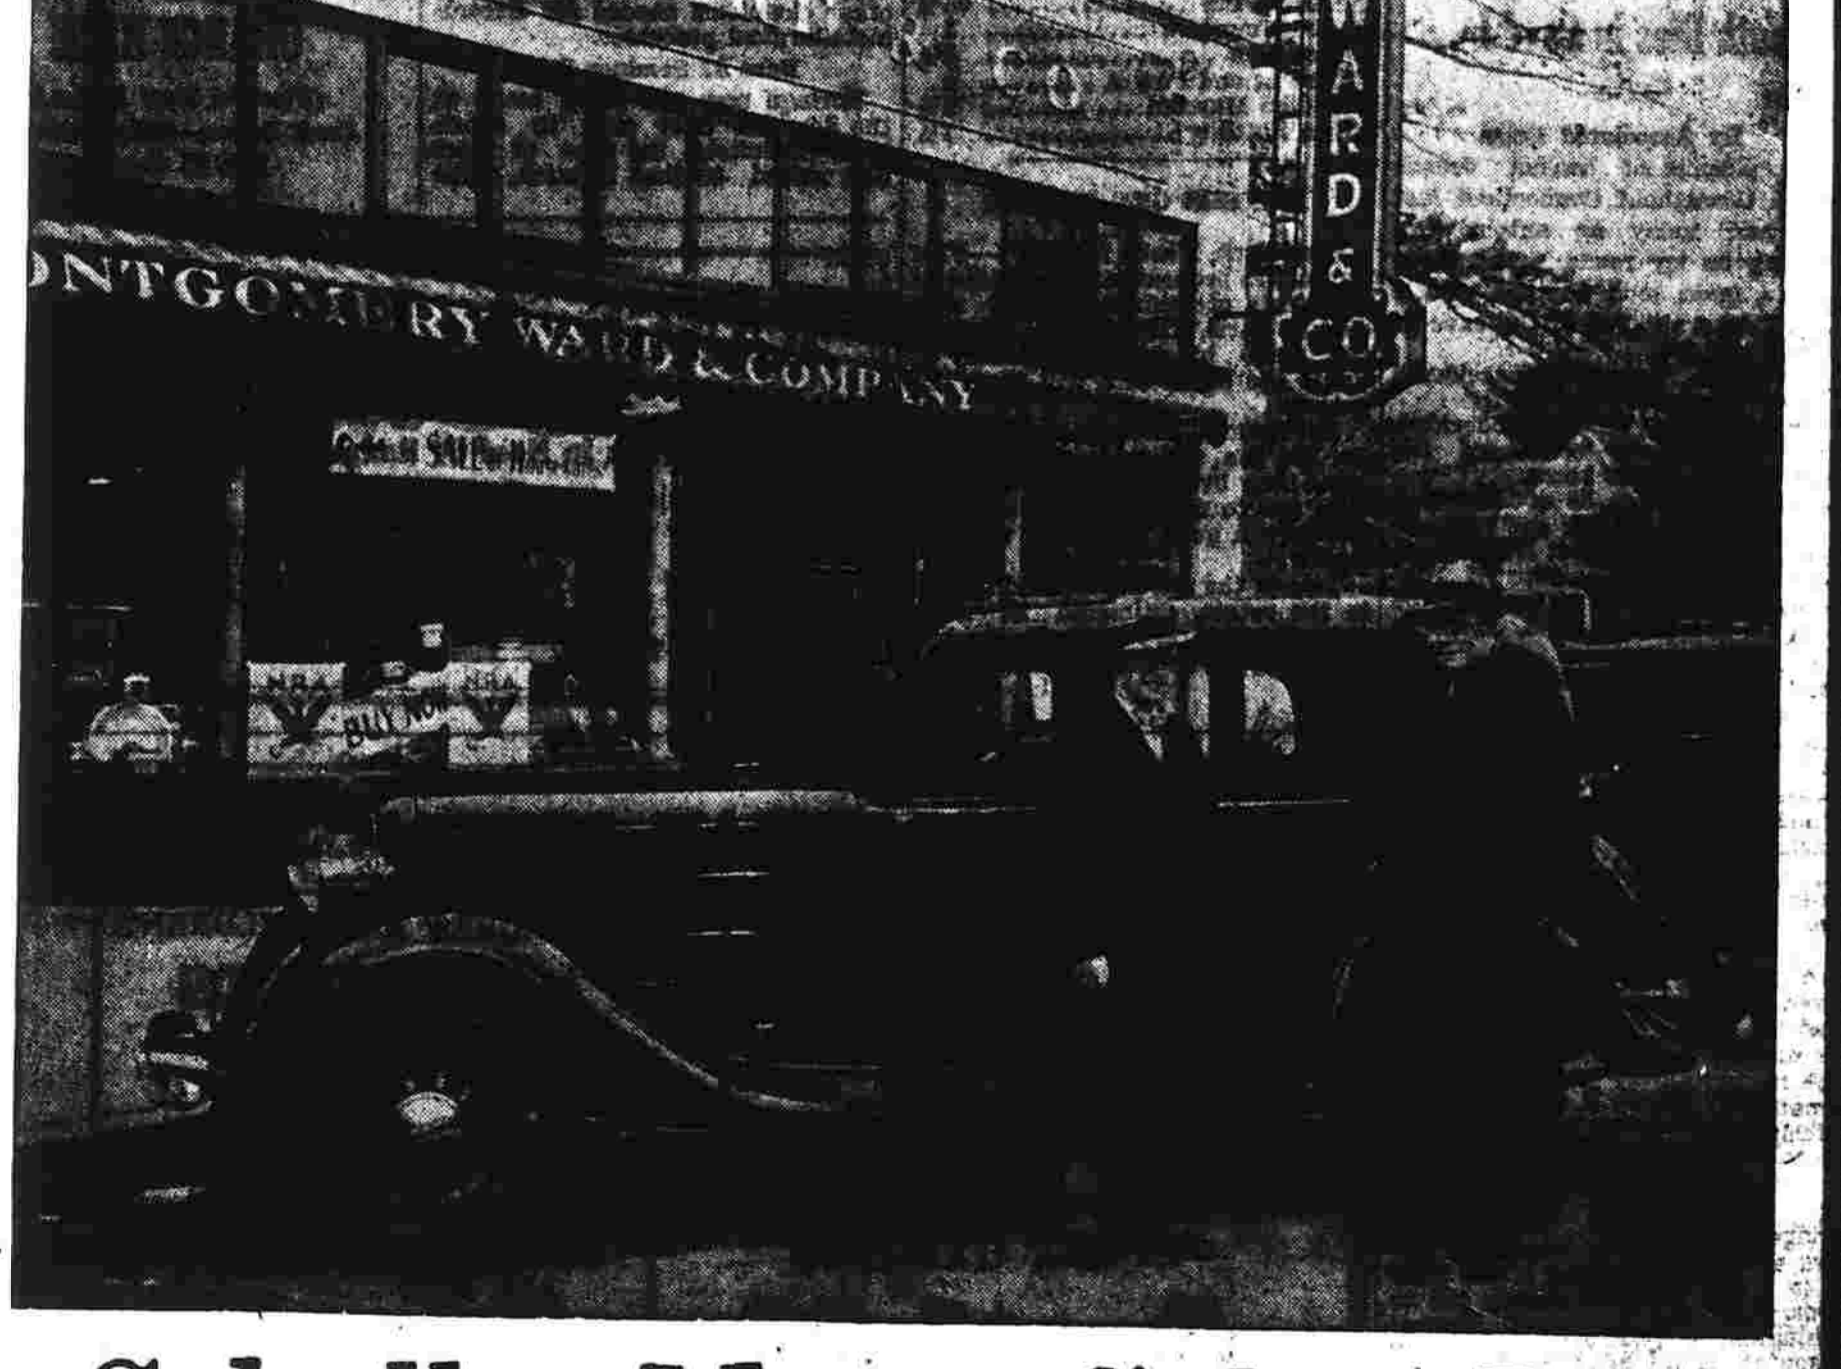

Annual Meeting at Marlborough and church.

(AP)—Waterbury Tuesday and sent to city moving in automobile. Five other men who does not give him instructions jobs in his car, after charging arrangement against.

William P. Lyons, chairman of the local NRA Retail Code authority believes, with General Johnson, that now is the time to buy. Mr. Lyons, who is constantly in touch with varying market conditions states that it is not only a patriotic duty but that never before have his fellowmen in need of a job to buy now but that dollar values say "buy now" but that never before have his experience have before values been so great.

"I have been holding out for the last three years, but now based only on business sense based on an expected effort of stimulation for a period of years." Lyons said.

UNSKILLED LABOR NEEDED ON FARMS

Henry Ford Says New Crops in Place of Staple Will Solve the Problem.

Fort Myers, Fla., March 9.—(AP)—Laborers incapable of growing in skill with advancing efficiency of machines have no place in modern industry, says Henry Ford.

"These men should go back to the country and learn to make their living—become independent and self sustaining."

In Ford's opinion, the back-to-the-land movement will take care of unskilled labor in the future. He also believes it will bring more happiness to skilled labor which becomes dissatisfied with city life. "A skilled man in the country can find plenty of ways to use his skill profitably. The person who cannot find work in the city is out of place in the city. In the country they will become individuals and not unimportant cogs."

Farmers in Rut "When I tell people to go back to the land and produce crops, they cry over-production and point to the farmers who cannot sell the crops already produced. That is because both agriculture and the farmer have been in a rut for a long time. The staple crops are out of date—almost obsolete. We can use just so much wheat, cotton and corn. The call is for new crops to be used in new ways."

As an instance of what is being done to develop new uses for certain crops, Ford pointed to his Michigan farms where he grows soy beans and produces oil from them. The oil is utilized in paint for automobiles, replacing a staple crop—flax. And, too, said Ford, the beans improve the soil whereas flax robs it.

Likes Dissatisfied Men Dissatisfied folk run the world, said the manufacturer, and "when it leads to improvement of conditions and produces a better order of things, it is a good thing."

"That is why I am glad to observe that so many people are dissatisfied. Maybe they will do something about it. Maybe they will help the leaders with vision enough to try to build a better world for all people to live in."

"President Roosevelt is a dissatisfied man. If he was not dissatisfied, he would not attempt Herculean experiments to improve existing conditions."

HOUSE HEARS CLAIMS OF BRITISH SPYING

Washington, March 9.—(AP)—Amid talk about a "British spy" a House naval affairs sub-committee decided today there had been no excessive profits made on or collusion involved in navy airplane and engine contracts.

Representatives McFarlane (D. Tex.), objected to approving the report prepared by Chairman Delaney (D. N. Y.), until "all the evidence is in." He contended the committee should not act until the printed hearings were available.

He asked to insert a statement by C. H. J. Mackeanzie-Kennedy holding that America's air forces are below those of other nations. Delaney, however, objected, saying that Mackeanzie-Kennedy "is over here at the instance of the British government, find out what he can, and our government will not be a damn fool enough to tell him."

Mackeanzie-Kennedy's statement, urged that the committee hear him, adding that "if he's a British spy, gentlemen, we ought to know it."

The committee declined to accept Mackeanzie-Kennedy's statement and took no action as to whether it would hear him.

RECORD AWARDED

Bridgeport, March 9.—(AP)—A record award of $20,000 given by a jury in the Superior Court here in February to Otis T. Wingo, Jr., Washington, D. C., bank employee and son of Mrs. Effigene Wingo, former United States congresswoman from Arkansas, is upheld in a memorandum of decision returned today by Judge Patrick B. O'Sullivan.

Through the decision Judge O'Sullivan dismisses a motion by the Connecticut Company to set aside the award on the grounds that it was excessive and contrary to the law and evidence in Wingo's suit against the company.

 FRIDAY, MARCH 9.

MUNITIONS

When Henry Ford comes out with the declaration that a hundred men, munition manufacturers, are responsible for the world's armament race and the ever present threat of wars, the thought suggests itself that he has been reading a book—or, rather, a magazine. Or perhaps some secretary has read a certain magazine article and lain in front of Mr. Ford a slip embodying the tabloid salient.

In the most recent issue of "Fortune" appeared this article on the munitions business of the world. It is having amazing repercussions. Even Senator Borah, who needs no promptings to become an outspoken enemy of war, almost immediately made a speech in the Senate which indicated that he, too, had been reading "Fortune."

This week Senator Nye, possibly with a view to forestall attempts of all sorts of people to win reputations for themselves by appropriating to themselves "Fortune's" discoveries, had the entire article reprinted in the Congressional Record as an exhibit in a speech he was making in opposition to the big-navy bill.

Never before have the real insides of the munitions business of the world received such a ruthless showing up. It is shown with the utmost particularity how the munition business is international in its ownership, completely indifferent as to whether the arms and munitions manufactured in Germany today are to be used against Germany tomorrow or those made in France are to be used against France—or for that matter whether guns and shells—or tractors, Mr. Ford—sold by America to Japan this year are to be used against Americans next year. It is shown that purchases of armaments by country A from country B, though indubitably for eventual employment in a war against B, are financed by B banks who then engineer loans from the people of B country to A country to pay off the latter's debt to the munition makers.

It is shown that Charles Propper Eugene Schneider, head of the Schneider-Crusoe Co., with mines, smelters and foundries all over France, is not only a great international banker but controls 182 munitions manufacturing concerns of all kinds in France and a still greater number throughout Europe. It is shown that the great De Wendel family, still more powerful in the metal goods industries of Europe, is De Wendel here and Von Wendel there and shifts the "de" and the "von" from time to time—and always plays the game of internationalism and war profits to the hilt. It is shown that the great British Vickers-Armstrong concern, which sells guns and shells and bombs and every other instrument of destruction all over the world, numbers among its stockholders some of England's most conspicuous capitalists, including three bishops, the president of the Y. M. C. A. and Dean Inge.

It is shown how in this country Charles M. Schwab announced in 1927 that "Today Bethlehem Steel Company has definitely abandoned any thought of ever again engaging in the manufacture of ordnance except in time of great national emergency"—and has never for a minute stopped the making of armor plate, projectiles, gun and shell forgings, warships, submarines and aircraft carriers.

But it is also shown how extraordinarily difficult it would be for the nations to do away with the private ownership of the munitions business when the alternative would be to maintain enormous plants and enormous organizations in idleness or in merely nominal operation, during long periods of peace, in order to have available an adequate supply of munitions in the exigency of war. Nations wink at the immoral, often illegal, operations of their munitions producers in promoting wars and the risk of wars for the sake of continued operation and profits, because they do not dare to let the munitions sources within their borders dry up. Short of complete socialization of all those industries which are capable of instant application to the production of war material, the problem of suppressing the privately owned munitions business, and its devastating interference in the politics of the world in the interest of its own markets, appears well nigh insoluble.

It is to be doubted if Mr. Ford, who does love to get his views into print—when he suddenly imagines that he has some—would know just how to go to work to eliminate these "hundred men" and their works; or whether he would care to do so if he were to realize that there were a hundred and one, including Henry Ford.

But there is no discounting the immense usefulness of such an open survey of the secretive ramifications of the munitions influence as that on which "Fortune" has embarked. It may result at least in showing the people of the world what terrible suckers they have been—and are.

What ever the Connecticut Supreme Court may decide to do about the State Control Act's validity as a law against the unlicensed sale of liquor, there is no question about where it stands with relation to the Control Board's ambition to write its own laws. That ambition is definitely squelched by the court's finding in the matter of the druggists' permits.

The lay interpretation of the opinion is that notice is served on the Control Board that it must administer the law as it finds it, as a whole and not merely in such parts as it likes, ignoring the parts that do not conform to the board's idea of how liquor control should operate.

With the merits of the question whether druggists should be permitted to sell during hours prohibited to package stores, and in quantities not legal to the latter class of permittees, the public has nothing to do and can have nothing to do until it is time to pick Legislative candidates; but with the question whether the Liquor Control Commission shall be bound by the law or by nothing but its own notions the people have had quite a lively concern.

The Commission has now been set quite firmly in its place by the Supreme Court, so far as the matter of the druggists is concerned. The next thing to speculate on is in what new spot the Commission will break out next.

SET DOWN HARD

Getting Their Number
 By their license plates you may know the big shots. Every year the New York motor vehicle bureau gets a flood of special requests for special lucky combinations of numbers, or low numbers, or plates with the initials of the applicants. And if the plates are in stock, they're issued as requested.

So it is that this year John F. Curry, who is still boss of what's left of Tammany Hall, has the plain letter C on the tags of his limousine. Samuel Seabury, who conducted the city government investigations, has been issued SS-19. Cardinal Hayes has the single letter H. Two friends of Postmaster-General Farley, Daniel Kicketrick and Jack McKoon, have been issued DM-1 and JM-1 respectively.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, likes the number 60. His home address is 60 Morningside Heights, and his telephone number is University 4-0606. And now his automobile license number is NY-60.

You'd think Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia might have a M-F-L-G if he wanted it. He didn't want it, didn't give a whoop one way or the other. For several weeks he drove around in the limousine, used by the former Mayor O'Brien. The license plates read OB-1.

Broadway Brothers
 Every now and then some comparative stranger to Broadway will try to introduce a scenic designer named Leo Mielziner. An actor named Kenneth MacKenna, one named Leo Mielziner, an actor named Kenneth MacKenna, and one named Leo Mielziner, still draws and paints for his own amusement, and likes to give dinner parties.

Leo Mielziner, Jr., was working in a bank and acting in amateur plays when he was discovered and hired by William A. Brady, the producer. Brady ordered him to change his name; said nobody could spell or pronounce Mielziner. So Leo, Jr., became Kenneth MacKenna, and was successful from the start. About six years ago he went to Hollywood, acted for awhile, became a director, and married Kay Francis. Now he's back on Broadway, appearing on the scenes that his brother designed for the comedy called "By Your Leave."

Intensive exploitation of Italy's oil resources is planned for the next five years.

THAT BONUS BILL

Not many more days intervene between today and the date set for the most crucial test of strength between Congress and the President that this administration has known. On February 20 there was completed in the House of Representatives the required mustering of support to a petition for a vote on the discharge of the Ways and Means Committee from consideration of the Patman bill to pay the soldiers' bonus by an issue of $2,400,000,000 of greenbacks. The date for the vote was fixed by the petition as March 12.

On Monday, then, it will be seen whether a House of Representatives consisting of 213 Democrats, 117 Republicans and five Farmer-Laborites will completely set at defiance the will of a Democratic President supported by unprecedented prestige and vote out of committee a measure to which the President is unalterably opposed and which he desperately wants to remain buried.

A few days ago there was a very pronounced impression that not only would the House vote to bring the Patman bill out of committee but would pass it, and that it then would have better than an even chance of passage by the Senate, despite the fact that President Roosevelt has made it known that he would veto the measure. Whether there has been any change in the situation in the last week or so is not indicated in the Washington dispatches. But there is no particular reason for doubting that Mr. Roosevelt faces, in this business, the battle of his life.

MERELY A THOUGHT

With probably more inches of frost in the ground than at the end of any winter in half a century, it will be strange indeed if the state of Connecticut does not witness, within the early spring weeks about to come, the worst upheaval of roads since the beginning of the motorized era.

Already, though the recent days of snow have but touched the surface of the ground, there are indications all about of the havoc done by the excessive cold. Some of the town's streets are, even now, in the extreme of dilapidation. And in the country many residents are beginning to worry lest the roads they must traverse cease to be roads at all together by the time the frost is all out of the ground.

If, however, anybody has done anything but worry about the impending situation we have not heard about it. Perhaps there isn't anything to do. Still, it might do no harm to give the matter some consideration. How would it do to start off by inveigling dear old Dr. Cross into a not too new or too good car and take him for a ride of some three hundred miles over Connecticut highways and byways some fine day about three weeks from now when the going is perhaps at its worst. There is possibly one chance in a million that the good governor would understand, at the end of his jaunt, what is the real meaning of the word "emergency."

Do you sometimes find yourself puzzled because some of your friends act so differently from the way you act that you cannot understand why they do what they do? In using a simple, easy way to understand the differences between human beings, one of the most helpful things to you is to learn that most people are divided into two different groups. The first group refers to those who are called extroverts and the second group refers to those who are called introverts. Most people can be divided into these two general groups, although a person who combines the traits of both is called an ambivert. In dividing people into extroverts and introverts, you will put into the same class those who will have the same reaction in any given emotional situation.

For example, suppose you are giving a large party at your home where you meet new people. All of the extroverts will perfectly happy mixing in the crowd while the introverts will want to avoid meeting the strangers. The "Bill Fellow Well Met" is an extrovert. While the person who would rather stay in the corner and be a "wall flower" is likely to be an introvert.

The extrovert lives in the outside world around him and most of his interests are outward. He craves action and plunges into the swift stream of life and starts swimming. He mixes well and is a "go-getter." He is miserable when alone, works best with others all around him, likes crowds and joins lodges and clubs.

He "shows off" to advantage and is stimulated to his best efforts by the praise of others. He craves the attention of his friends and the admiration of his neighbors. He is willing to overlook their faults. While a true extrovert may win the highest athletic honors at college, he finds it hard to study. To expect him to study the night before the exam is about as reasonable as to expect an airplane to do the work of a typewriter. He is eager to give advice but is not interested in whether you follow it or not.

On the other hand, the introvert is his exact opposite in many ways. The true introvert will hesitate about giving you his advice unless you do for it, but may feel hurt if you do not follow it. He likes to be alone and does his best work by himself. He is good at study, gives attention to detail and is quite willing to do any task over if he can do it better the second time. He is content to sit at his typewriter and write his easy slipshod, and dreads parties. He will not worry over whether his clothes are in style and in face may cling to old garments.

IN NEW YORK

By PAUL HARRISON
 New York, March 9—Roger Wolfe Kahn, whose money, marriages, music, movies, monoplanes and mansion on Fifth Avenue have made him one of the best-known young men of Manhattan, is reorganizing his orchestra and will lead it in one of the big gyrate-and-guzzle establishments on Broadway.

It seems that Papa Otto H. Kaan has lost a good deal of money and even has sold the family home in London and the Maine estate. Roger is going to earn his own way, or most of it. . . . He has sold a couple of his planes—only has six now in his private hangar. At Roosevelt Field—and with his wife has moved out of the family mansion to an apartment on the East river. He's 25, and in the last seven years, since he started flying, has hung up 3,900 hours in the air—more than any other private transport pilot except Colonel Lindbergh.

Broadway and the gayer fringes of avenue society are fond of Kahn because he's a younger little spoiled by wealth. Papa Kahn, a musical classicist, was shocked when his son began collecting jazz orchestras but Roger went right ahead. His friends include mechanics, brooklyn debutantes and chorus girls. He will protest a 50-cent overcharge in a night club, and on the way home is likely to give the taxi driver a $20 tip. He thinks drivers have a pretty tough time of it.

CITY OF ANGELS BALANCES BUDGET

Los Angeles—You expect miracles in the City of the Angels. People out here just take it for granted that Los Angeles is wonderful. But you might expect money troubles in a city that has grown from 576,878 in 1920 to far above a million today, which has had to build its own harbor, vastly expand its limits, and carry its water 280 miles.

Throughout the depression, this city has maintained a balanced budget, kept almost intact a $5,000,000 reserve fund, slashed its public debt, and—laugh this off!—reduced municipal taxes!

Taxpayer Gets Change
 More than 85 per cent of the tax levy for the night meter night is collected to date. Here, too, many taxpayers have had a hard time to meet their assessments.

As a temporary measure recently was passed abolishing all penalties for delinquent taxes except 7 per cent interest on the amount due, and permitting payment in 10 equal installments.

This "bread" for the taxpayer was made possible because the city has no unpaid tax warrants and is not in default to bondholders. And it's bringing in considerable money.

This tax levy for the last year is $9,000,000 less than in the fiscal year 1929-30, and means a reduction of 10 cents, down to $1.55, on each $100 of assessed valuation.

The vast programs of improvement in harbor and water systems have given Los Angeles a municipal debt of $167,774,066 in serial bonds, which are being paid off at the rate of 13,000,000 a year, and their interest readily carries the balance.

Part of the reduction in this annual tax burden is due to the fact that the water and power department assumed payment of its interest on its own bonds, thus taking them off the taxpayer's back.

Additional savings came from assumption by the state of part of the annual school cost. The Department of Water and Power, in addition to taking care of its own bonds, has shown a further surplus at the end of each of the last five years.

The $22,500,000 RJC loan for building a power line to Boulder Dam is not a taxpayer liability, but is secured by notes of the Department of Power and Light itself.

ARE YOU AN INTROVERT OR AN EXTROVERT

The difference between an extrovert and an introvert may ruin a marriage and in the business world, an introvert may fail at an extrovert's job and vice versa. An extrovert trying to hold down an introvert's job is like a "round peg in a square hole."

Let this information I am giving you today help you in choosing your work. If you are dissatisfied with the work you are now doing, this may be because you have been tackling work unsuited to you. It might be a good thing for you to fall at it as this will push you out where you have to try again and you may find work suited to you where you will be a big success. Also apply to people around you. In this way you will learn to understand the fellow who is different from yourself and will be better able to get along with him.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Cause of Blood-stained Mucus
 Question: S. A. D. of Oakland, Calif. writes: "Would you please explain if I have catarrh of the stomach or a gastric ulcer? In the mornings I bring up mucus which is pinkish. It looks as though it might be colored with blood. My doctor says that I have a gastric ulcer."

Answer: If you bring up a blood-stained mucus, this would indicate a tendency to an ulcer of the stomach, and it is very important that you follow the directions for overcoming this disorder, beginning as soon as possible. As you say that you are very often sick at your stomach, that the stomach is sore in the morning, and that you have lost several pounds in weight lately, I believe that your doctor is correct when he diagnoses the cause of your trouble as stomach ulcer.

Sea Foods

Question: From Texas: "My brother is in the wholesale sea food business. We are quite naturally interested in obtaining your viewpoint as to the value of these sea foods in the diet."

Answer: It is my opinion that, when lobster meat is used in the proper season and freshly boiled, it is quite as healthful as any other food but it should never be combined with cheese. The meat contains from 17 per cent to 19 per cent protein. Crabs, lobsters, crab and shrimp are also wholesome. Most people will find that the flesh of these seafoods is quite wholesome and adds an interesting variety to the diet. Seafoods are naturally a good source of food iodine; however, I advise that you use these meats in combinations with non-starchy vegetables. They are also excellent in salad.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

By RODNEY DUTCHER
 The Herald Washington Correspondent.

Washington, March 9.—Civil works may be done, but something else will take its place. Increasing evidence of Roosevelt's determination to abolish that spectacular work-relief plan by bringing in a large crop of new proposals designed to absorb portions of the 4,000,000 CWA has been employed.

Many private interests with axes to grind are exerting pressure. Some of these seem to think an administration that would adopt the civil works plan would try anything.

Proposals range in merit all the way down to that of the gent who wants Secretary Ickes or Harry Hopkins to put hundreds of thousands to work at selling his patent air restorer.

One of the plans most seriously considered calls for a billow-dollar corporation to promote a general program involving loans to home owners, home building, renovation, and slum clearance. Local capital would be attracted and used along with government funds under this plan.

Contractors, insurance companies, some home loan corporations and some home loan corporations and some Chamber of Commerce are behind it. Director Frank C. Walker of the National Emergency Council, Roosevelt's boss correlator of federal activities is interested.

A mammoth highway program of building, repair, and maintenance also is being considered. It is likely that Roosevelt eventually will decide on a public works expansion, with emphasis on highways and housing and some modification of the civil works plan.

How's the Old Eye?
 Now that Roosevelt is to have his own little private shooting gallery in the White House, he wonders how rusty his aim is.

Long ago the President was an enthusiastic duck hunter that was before he succumbed to infantile paralysis. He hasn't done any shooting for years.

The Virgin Islands are receiving more and more attention here, and the islanders are going to be seeing a lot of the local celebrities.

Charles Taussig, the President's sugar and Cuban adviser, has gone down to advise Gov. Paul Fearson on purchases in connection with the federal rehabilitation program.

Assistant Secretaries Rex Tugwell and Oscar Chapman of Agriculture and Interior plan a trip to the islands in the near future. Mr. Roosevelt plans to pop in on St. Thomas by plane or route to or from Puerto Rico.

The President himself expects to visit the islands if ever he makes that cruiser trip which he fondly anticipates.

The corporation which will finance a government-owned sugar plant with public works funds soon will be organized and the present plan calls for division of the profits 50-50 between an island welfare association for poor relief and the factory workers and growers of sugar cane.

The administration sugar bill allows importation of only 8,000 tons of Virgin Islands sugar, so most of the profits will come from rum. Tourist business will also be fostered under the rehabilitation program.

Conservatives, who have had their ups and downs of enthusiasm ever since Roosevelt came in, temporarily are conciliated by evidences of conservative tendencies at the Treasury. Secretary Morgenthau, going along with his usual habit of borrowing program. The plan is based on an official statement by the outstanding. The present plan calls for division of the profits 50-50 between an island welfare association for poor relief and the factory workers and growers of sugar cane.

The ROMANTIC RUNAWAY

KATHARINE HAWLAND-TAYLOR

BEGIN HERE TODAY
 FABRITO, a handsome 17-year-old youth, works at the paint shop of millionaire JIM FIELD. When Field's daughter, ESTELLE, arrives he falls in love with her almost at sight.

Pabito knows nothing of his parents—ditch Englishman and a servant girl. As a child he ran away from ANGELA, the heartless old crone in whose care he was left. Since then he has lived with NORRIS NOYES, wanted by police for a murder years before.

TED JEFFRIES, a guest at the Field home, sees Noyes and recognizes him. Pabito tells Noyes to hide in the swamp and promises to meet him there.

In the swamp Noyes hears a man and girl making plans to rob the Field home during the masquerade party next evening. Without telling Noyes, Pabito has determined to go to the party, in order to talk to Estelle. He secures a costume. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VIII
 Pabito found Noyes where they had agreed to meet in a part of the swamp near an open stretch.

"It's all right," he said, seeing the shadow that Noyes cast upon the water. "You're sure?" the other asked in an undertone.

"Yes. I've been to the camp and to Bantam's. Nobody's been talking in either place. I've been thinking Jeffries may not have recognized you."

"He knew me all right. I saw it in his eyes."

"But you were facing the sun."

"Just the same he knew me."

"Well, say way, it's all right," Pabito stooped and untied Noyes' canoe. When he raised his head he saw the faint glow of the fire farther in the swamp.

"Someone here?" he asked.

"Yes. I'll tell you about it later. I don't know what to do about what I overheard. But let's get started."

"All right. Ready?"

"Yes."

Pabito gave the canoe a shove and led it to the end of his boat. He made it fast to the second boat got in and headed home. He whistled on the way. He was relieved because Noyes was safe and because he had his costume. Perhaps on the following night he would talk to Estelle.

When they reached the island he tied up both boats and followed Noyes into the shack. Looking over the older man's head he saw Jack, one of the servants at the camp.

"Hello," Pabito said with forced cordiality. "We're having a party. I brought a friend home with me."

Jack made no reply to that. "I come over to wash you—," he stammered. "Alice, Miss Jeffries' maid, she—"

Pabito heard the story without a change of expression. He thought quickly. There would be a boat for Havana in the morning. If Noyes could get on everything would be all right. If Noyes would get to the dock at once he might be able to steal aboard. Once on the boat it would be quite simple.

He heard himself thanking Jack and a moment later saw him slip. Then he came back to the shack and outlined his plans to Noyes.

"I'll join you as soon as I can," Pabito promised. "We'll meet at that hotel called 'La Mirasol.' I've heard Kerry at the camp speak of it often. You'll have to get on board tonight without anyone seeing you. Take plenty of money and you can tip any of the crew if they find you. Get one of them to help you get through the customs house, too; the officials won't see you. I have enough I think."

He gave Noyes $100; he had $15 left.

Noyes packed a few things in an old bag, then Pabito piled him to the mainmast and waved farewell hastily. Pabito watched Noyes up the track until he was out of sight, then went back to the shack—alone. For a few moments he sat on Noyes' cot, touching Noyes' pillow. Then he unlocked the door to indulge an unmanly display of white alone, he arose and opened the package containing the terrors of costume.

Noyes, about that time, realized he had not told Pabito what he had heard in the swamp. He decided it did not matter much. Pabito never went to Field's camp after the fall of dusk.

At the docks he paused. He would have just one drink, he decided, before he made his dash. One or two, perhaps—would steady him. He did not go to Bantam's but turned into a more obscure place where he was not well known. Here he sat down and ordered a bottle of rum.

In a few minutes an unshaven man who had once been white arose from where he had been sitting watching Noyes. He settled by the newcomer; he had seen Noyes' roll of bills.

"Have one on me," the man invited.

Noyes accepted but kept his eyes on a clock on the wall. In a few moments he would go down to the boat to look for Noyes.

The camp on the night of the party was a gorgeous place. Ornate torches here and there gave off wavering flames which made the palms cast long, black, uncertain shadows. Rugs were spread with cushions. The boats were masquerading as gondolas. A New York florist had produced a rose garden and Francois, also of New York, had provided marvels of food and drink. Two orchestras had come from the north to provide music for the affair.

Field could see that Estelle, wide-eyed with wonder, was excited by these preparations.

"I think, my dear," he said, "that this will be rather a nice party."

It was at the end of the afternoon and he and the girl were moored by the dock in the boat Pabito had run from them.

Estelle looked toward the land.

There had been changes even during the hour they had spent on the water. There was a big tent with a colorful Venetian awning spiked to the ground by tall poles with gilded tops and a forest of evergreens had suddenly sprang up.

"If only, she thought, she could wander this fairyland with someone like the young man who ran her father's boats so efficiently. She turned her delicate, oval face toward Pabito.

"It could not help but be a very wonderful party," she said and for the first time her voice was a little vague.

Field stepped from the boat to help her out. Pabito, one strong, tanned hand on the dock and the other on the edge of the boat, looked up at her.

"It was a fine run, Pabito," she said.

"Thank you, Miss Estelle."

"Will you be working here tonight?" she questioned.

"No, Miss Estelle."

"I'm sorry. It will be beautiful with all the colored lights. I think you might like to see it."

"Thank you," he said again. Then he watched her make her way up the long, water-blackened dock toward the land.

Field left her as she set foot upon the bench and returned to Pabito. "Smith," he said, "I want a little talk with you some time. Shall we say tomorrow morning at 11?"

"At any time that suits you, sir."

"Very well. Then I'll expect you at that hour in my office."

"Yes, sir."

"I want to do something that will be rather good for you, Smith."

"Thank you, sir."

Alone, Pabito wondered why his employer should want to talk with him. He doubted Field's intentions. He had heard of his being "good" to men before and knew that this usually meant shaping men or warping them so that they would fit some use of the rich man's and be fit for nothing more.

No doubt, Pabito decided, Jeffries had told of having seen Noyes. He must have spoken of it to Field and now Field was planning to use this information for his own purposes. He would try to make a tool of the one who was shielding Noyes. Well, Pabito reflected, Noyes was in Cuba by this time. He drew a breath, the depths of which was made by relief.

Looking inland he saw Estelle standing before the tent that had been set up while they were on the water. He hoped fervently that Field would curb those natural instincts of his which had been displayed so fully at their camp parties. Doubtless he would. He seemed so deeply devoted to this daughter who in no way resembled her father.

A MOTHER WHO MADE ART HER LIFE

Unhappy At Home, Mme. LeBrun Found Solace In Her Painting.

A self portrait of Mme. Vigie LeBrun and her daughter Julie.

By ALICE ROBE

The story of the beautiful woman in today's picture is the story of the artist as well.

But if Mme. Vigie LeBrun could step from this charming portrait of mother and child to be interviewed on "Can a woman have a career and a home?" she wouldn't know the answer.

Art, for her, was not a career but her life. As for a home, she maintained many of them for the men who preyed upon her talent.

Not often does talent, success, distinction, fame join hands with youth, beauty, charm, sweetness of character. Yet the little girl who was born to the pastel artist Louis Vigie in Paris in 1875 had still more—the genius for work. She was christened Marie Elizabeth Louise and she was an artist at six. Her first punishment was for drawing in her books at her convent school.

Father First Teacher

When she was thirteen and already a familiar figure studying at the Louvre and in Vermet's studio, her father died. He was her first teacher. Life was rather difficult when her mother remarried for her stepfather, avaricious and disagreeable, began immediately to exploit her. But no matter what happened she always took refuge in her work and let whoever would profit by her labor.

Against one thing only she rebelled—artificiality. She wore simple white muslin dresses with a blue sash and refused to powder and distort her hair into the plumed monuments of her time.

She even created a scandal when she painted Queen Marie Antoinette, with whom she was a favorite, without her architectural head-dress and costume, but in simple raiment.

When she was twenty and already the mode in Paris her stepfather thought it a profitable arrangement for her to marry the art dealer Jean Baptiste LeBrun. She was indifferent, her only interest being the hope of escape from the sordid avarice of her stepfather.

Marriage and Motherhood

The bondage, if less sordid, was even more relentless. She was—or rather her husband was, getting from two to eight thousand francs for her painting. Yet she was not even allowed enough cash to gratify her generous desire for giving to the less fortunate. But so long as her work she did not complain.

She was asked everywhere in brilliant society, but she gave up everything except occasional evening affairs. Even motherhood made only a brief break in her tireless painting. Her little daughter brought her the only love which rivaled her art. But her devotion which at first caused her such happiness resulted in bitter disappointment.

Her finest painting, though not the most characteristic, is this lovely self-portrait with little Julie's arms about her neck. She was—

It does not foreshadow the daughter's lack of affection, her ingratitude for her mother's self-sacrificing expenditures on education and luxuries. For the Revolution forced Madame LeBrun and her child from Paris—and fortunately from LeBrun. Even with hardships threatening them Vigie LeBrun kept on painting, in Italy, in Russia, in Vienna, in Germany, in Holland, in Belgium, in England. Crowned heads were only too glad to pose for her. Her own admiration were hers from all the world—but Julie, she married unfortunately, against her mother's wishes. Though they came together later in Paris where Vigie LeBrun was again the rage under the Empire, Julie LeBrun seems to have been as unappreciative of her mother's love as she was of the gift for painting which she had inherited. It was well for the artist that she had the solace of her work! Her human relationships had brought her little happiness.

Admitted to Academy

Aside from her art—Julie LeBrun's mind was not typical of the average pretty woman. She was unaffected, unselfish, not coquettish,

LISTENING WITH INTELLIGENCE IS A WAY TO A MAN'S HEART

By HELEN WELSHIMER

Maybe it is because a man has held the center of the stage ever since Adam blamed Eve for choosing the wrong apple for that first unfortunate breakfast.

Nobody really knows, of course. But the world of men holds considerably more interest for women than their lipstick realm does for the butcher, the baker, and candlestick maker.

The play begins at an early age. Since Adam blamed Eve for choosing the wrong apple for that first unfortunate breakfast, a girl may go along. If there isn't, then it's the maid's day off. Statistics, gleaned from news stands, mostly under 1, who read the magazine want the masculine influence.

For a girl will read boys' books but a boy is scornful of girls' books. Girls will play boys' games, too. Leap frog, marbles, baseball, kite flying. But when did you ever see a boy playing jacks, skipping rope, or sewing a hem in a rag doll's dress?

No. They don't want to enter our world. They have a nicer one of their own. And the only way we can get into it is by being such an interested audience that after a while we are given credit for enough intelligence to try a game or two.

Men, when they discover that women are capable of walking right down the main thoroughfare, grow a little fearful. No man wants a woman who can ride faster than he can, throw a ball farther than he can, think straighter than he can. And no woman, by the same measuring stick, wants her strength to exceed that of the man who has promised to love her, cherish her and sock in the jaw any chance male who makes passes at her!

But women need a great deal of

INTELLIGENCE TO PLAY THE ROLE

For a man grows weary of a woman who merely says "yes" to everyone of his suggestions. He can buy a phonograph record and get the right responses. He wants intelligence. A pair of China blue eyes and hair like flax may turn a February blizzard into an April thaw but winter comes again—if the woman isn't intelligent. An intelligent enough to keep the man from knowing that his today's comment is something she thought after breakfast yesterday.

Margot Asquith, Countess of Oxford and Asquith, who has had ample opportunity to observe the men of the world, creates considerable interest when she remarks in her new book, "More or Less About Myself," than that of any woman she has known because—

Because her husband never let his love for her usurp his interest in their conversation!

Lady Oxford is brave! She admits it is nothing to do but be one. There when we find a man who lets us talk, too, we are likely to be so pleased that we will sit quietly and give him a bigger floor!

Oklahoma Quadruplets Have Lots of Fun Making Their Dates.

By NEA Service

Waco, Tex.—Four slender forms hurry into the classroom; four heads bend over books; four bright faces, amazingly alike, confront puzzled teachers, and the Keyes sisters, famed Oklahoma quadruplets, are in college.

Out on the Baylor University campus, their arrival created a furor. Even yet the faculty at these colleges find novelty in their daily appearance for school tasks. And dating the Keyes sisters has its complications. But the Keyes sisters—Mary Roberts, Leota and Mona—are pursuing the even tenor of their way. Long ago the gushing adulation of thousands and the stares of the curious became a routine part of their education.

Education Comes First

They're in college for one purpose—their education. Maybe then the vaudeville stage. They're preparing for musical careers, studying voice, regularly attending band practice. And—say it softly—all of them can play the saxophone.

Along the way, of course, there'll be social diversion, so the campus dandies are all astr. Think of the reflected fame that would come in being seen abroad in the evening with one of the only living set of quadruplets in the United States! Or, if this is taking up too much territory, at least the only foursome now attending one American college together.

But there's a catch in dating the Keyes sisters, as Editor Elton Miller and Sports Editor Harry Florey of the college newspaper discovered. To this scheming pair, dated Mona and Roberts, the "twins" are a quartet, to attend vit practices.

"We'll fool 'em and switch," said Miller to Florey. They did—or thought they did. But when checking-up time came, each found that he was escorting the girl he originally had dated.

There's one "break" for the puzzled Baylor faculty members and students, however. Leota leans toward the blond type, while her sister, Mary Roberts, is brunette. And this may be a "break" for Leota, too, as even a college boy likes to know who he's stepping out with.

The quadruple dress exactly alike as they go to their classes and to social functions. Mother Keyes has seen to that. She fashions all their clothes, four garments at a time. To complete the riddle, they're getting most of the time. But as to getting married, they doubt that they'll be able to stage a vaudeville seremony.

Work of High Order

Teachers are high in their praise of their scholastic work. The four are among the 10 highest in the freshman English class of 35 members, reports Ray Rozell, English instructor at Baylor. They always bring in their assignments on time and prepare each day's lessons in advance, not a common practice in modern circles, asserts Rozell.

In the meantime, since birth, these four girls from the one-street town of Hollis, Okla., have learned to face the world with cosmopolitan poise.

"We have tried not to get excited over being born quadruplets," they say. "And we have succeeded. Most people are as nice as they can be. We don't blame them for being curious about us."

"But when people aren't nice, and want to pry too much into our affairs, we've had to learn how to treat them. However, we don't mind the occasional inconveniences and unpleasantness. We've had lots of fun."

Thousands Visit Home

Thousands of visitors have stopped at the Keyes home in Hollis since the quadruplets were born the night of June 4, 1915. More than 3000 came before the quartet had reached the age of three months.

Your CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Bantor.

Not so long ago mothers hung over weight charts with anxious eyes, especially if Johnny or Sue were not doing their part to keep up their average in gaining.

These charts were like most innovations, a good beginning toward the new science of computing growth. But they were not intended to be the last word, and they weren't. Neither were they intended to be a worry to the mother who couldn't count-feed her baby to balance the scale when he fell short both in pounds and inches of being a "standard" child. However, they were a real bugaboo in many instances. Today's charts allow for differences in race and family characteristics and that is better.

Standardization impossible

There is no "standard" child. How could there be, with families of every race, size and kind under the sun? Even so, it does not follow always that families will resemble each other as to physical characteristics either. One family I know, a very large father and mother with four mammoth sons and tall daughters, produced one child, a pretty little girl, now full-grown, is not over four-foot ten, weighs at the most ninety pounds and is as happy and healthy as anybody I ever knew.

Modern charts are more general and elastic and give approximate figures for right development that are a help rather than a discouragement to the parent.

Here are a few figures from a recent one. If a mother discovers one of her children to be too far over the line, either underweight or overweight, it doesn't necessarily follow that everything is wrong, but it might be wise to have a doctor check him soon so as to be sure.

Boys Taller Than Girls

Boys as a rule are a little taller and heavier than girls. This chart is for children from one to six, and is, of course, general.

Year.	Weight.	Height.
1	about 21 pounds	25 to 28
2	about 28 pounds	28 to 40
3	about 30 pounds	31 to 43
4	about 34 pounds	33 to 47
5 to 6	about 39 pounds	36 to 49

There should be a certain ratio of weight to height. I think it a wise course to have each child examined twice a year, by a doctor, even if he is in apparent good health.

Babies gain at different rates. The only gain of value is the gain to gain—and gain consistently each week. They should be weighed weekly and any interference with progress should be reported at once. Either his food needs attention or he needs it himself. Of course there is such a thing as a "minimum."

Children's minds are seldom idle even when their bodies are. Either they are wishing for something, planning to do something or wondering about it. We must be sure that whatever it is, they discard it thoroughly when we speak. We must be clear in commands and be certain we have their full attention. There will be less forgetfulness.

MANCHESTER QUADRUPLETS

Oklahoma Quadruplets Have Lots of Fun Making Their Dates.

By NEA Service

Waco, Tex.—Four slender forms hurry into the classroom; four heads bend over books; four bright faces, amazingly alike, confront puzzled teachers, and the Keyes sisters, famed Oklahoma quadruplets, are in college.

Out on the Baylor University campus, their arrival created a furor. Even yet the faculty at these colleges find novelty in their daily appearance for school tasks. And dating the Keyes sisters has its complications. But the Keyes sisters—Mary Roberts, Leota and Mona—are pursuing the even tenor of their way. Long ago the gushing adulation of thousands and the stares of the curious became a routine part of their education.

Education Comes First

They're in college for one purpose—their education. Maybe then the vaudeville stage. They're preparing for musical careers, studying voice, regularly attending band practice. And—say it softly—all of them can play the saxophone.

Along the way, of course, there'll be social diversion, so the campus dandies are all astr. Think of the reflected fame that would come in being seen abroad in the evening with one of the only living set of quadruplets in the United States! Or, if this is taking up too much territory, at least the only foursome now attending one American college together.

But there's a catch in dating the Keyes sisters, as Editor Elton Miller and Sports Editor Harry Florey of the college newspaper discovered. To this scheming pair, dated Mona and Roberts, the "twins" are a quartet, to attend vit practices.

MINDS SELDOM IDLE

When we want a child to hear what we say we must be sure he is not excited or deeply interested in something else at the moment. A boy reading a book won't hear a word we say although he may answer "Yes, mother. I'm going right away." A little girl playing house with her neighbor is so busy being "Mrs. Jones" and bathing her baby doll, she may hear us with half an ear, but the chances are that the deeper interest will claim her again in a second. We cannot compete with such things as these, for their interest is so deep.

To be sure we often talk to children who appear to be doing nothing at the time, and still they forget.

Children's minds are seldom idle even when their bodies are. Either they are wishing for something, planning to do something or wondering about it. We must be sure that whatever it is, they discard it thoroughly when we speak. We must be clear in commands and be certain we have their full attention. There will be less forgetfulness.

What you may think is rheumatism may be, instead, a form of arthritis, or some inflammation following an accident, that can be cured more easily than rheumatism.

Rheumatism may affect the whole body, while arthritis is any inflammation of the joints. Of course, some cases of arthritis may be rheumatic. On the other hand, a person may sustain an injury to a joint, such as a sprain of the ankle, which may be followed by inflammation.

Arthritis of this type usually is not infected and gets well if the joint is put at rest by bandaging or with a splint. After the inflammation has disappeared, the joint may be used a little each day and will recover.

There is a form of acute rheumatic disease which is secondary to infection in gallbladder, appendix, kidneys or sinuses. It is not so acute and serious as the type just mentioned. This form of arthritis is not so frequently fatal and much less likely to attack the heart.

In still another type of arthritis, the joints gradually become crippled; one after the other they break down and are injured permanently. It is not definitely known whether this is due to infection, to some dietary disorder, or to some special type of sensitivity.

The disease gradually gets worse, and the most that can be done is to give the patient relief from the pain by suitable physical measures and perhaps, by good treatment, to limit extent of the deformity and progress of the disease.

Finally, there is a form of arthritis that is due to disorders of the metabolism, or chemical functioning of the body, in reaction to food. Gout represents arthritis of this type.

Apparently, in this type of inflammation, moderation in eating is of the greatest importance. Such a person should eat eggs, green vegetables, cereals, milk, and milk products as the chief elements in his diet.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

The business girl has beauty problems that the woman of leisure never has to meet. When good grooming is urged upon her she is likely to say, "Yes, but I go to work in the rain many mornings and arrive at the office with gloves and stockings covered with mud and water stains. What if I did wash everything out last night? No one ever would know it!" It's a handicap but a little ingenuity and foresight will overcome it.

Keep extra pairs of clean gloves, hose and one or two fresh handkerchiefs in the desk drawer, along with cleansing lotion, foundation cream, cotton pads and a bit of powder and rouge. A clothes brush and a brush for suede shoes are other conveniences to add to the freshening-up list.

When it comes to white collars and cuffs, the problem is harder. Certainly it would seem a little inconvenient to keep an entire wardrobe at the office in order to appear always perfectly groomed. However, there's nothing to prevent carrying these accessories in a paper bag and pinning them on after arrival.

FREE LIST CLAUSE FOR TARIFF BILL

Republican Chairman of Tariff Commission Wants Broadening of Proposal.

Washington, March 9.—(AP)—Broadening of the administration's reciprocal tariff proposal to permit the President to place items on or take them from the free list was recommended today by Robert L. O'Brien, Republican chairman of the Tariff Commission.

Testifying to the House ways and means committee on the administration proposition, O'Brien said "his bill ought to take in the free list."

"I think it should go a great deal farther," he added, "it is so simple that it should pass both the Senate and House without a dissenting vote."

O'Brien said there was virtually no difference between the new proposal and the present way of changing tariffs under the flexible provision of the Smoot-Hawley act, which gives the President power to change rates 50 per cent upon the recommendation of the Tariff Commission.

"The President makes the Tariff Commission, and it does what he says," O'Brien added. He said the "bi-partisan character" of the commission made no difference, explaining that former President Hoover appointed a Democrat to the commission who was a stronger protectionist than the present representative Crowther (R., N. Y.), a member of the ways and means committee who helped put through the Smoot-Hawley bill.

Lieutenant Shulgen said he was unable to supply further information on Wienecke, but referred inquiries to Mitchell field.

Asked if he had anything further to say on the fatal crash, the lieutenant said:

"I guess not."

He said, however, that the weather report received last night prior to Wienecke's takeoff was favorable.

HIGGANUM TRUCK DRIVER KILLED

Struck by Car on Post Road—Two Others Slightly Hurt.

Greenwich, March 9.—(AP)—Joseph Gumanick, 38, a truck driver of Higganum, was struck by another truck today as he stood on the Boston Post road and died in the Greenwich hospital.

Gumanick's truck had been in a minor collision with an automobile driven by Raymond S. Sanford, 45, of George avenue, Norwalk, and the two men were standing on the Post road, talking, near Dayton avenue.

Another truck, driven by Charles R. Smith, 33, of Uxbridge, Mass., skidded on the icy road, crashed into the parked automobile and then knocked down both men.

Gumanick, who was crushed beneath the truck, died 30 minutes later at the hospital. Sanford, who was knocked unconscious, was treated at the hospital for cuts and bruises, and then released.

A passenger in Sanford's car, Miss Dorothy Chatterton, 22 of Norwalk, also suffered minor injuries, but did not require hospital treatment.

Both Smith and Sanford were held by Greenwich police for a one-day detention in the case of the driver's inquest. Officers who communicated with Gumanick's home said he leaves only his widow, who is in Central Europe. The body was taken to a Greenwich mortuary.

CCC CAMP RECRUIT CRUSHED TO DEATH

Morris Cooper of Hamden, Dies in Gravel Pit at Camp Roosevelt.

Killingworth, Conn., March 9.—(AP)—A recruit at the C. C. C. Camp Roosevelt, Morris L. Cooper, 24, of Hamden, died today beneath a cave-in in a gravel pit.

The youth, who had been at the camp since January, was working with several other recruits in the pit, removing gravel to be used for road construction, when he was trapped.

Apparently he was crushed to death before his companions could extricate him. The cave-in occurred about 9 a. m., and Coroner L. A. Smith of Middletown was notified.

Camp Roosevelt in the Connecticut state forest, is under the command of Captain Elmer L. Manning. Camp officers said Cooper's nearest relative was Mary Legiero, of Hamden.

another equality of treatment as regards her own security."

Situation Tense
Germany's memorandum, which like a letter of Louis Barthou, new French minister, to Arthur Henderson, president of the world disarmament conference Feb. 10, was hitherto unpublished, indicates the tenseness of the disarmament situation.

An encouraging angle was a proposal by Chancellor Hitler for European nations to guarantee an unconditional maintenance of peace by pacts of non-aggression. He pledged Germany would "settle amicably any dispute between France and Germany."

Germany demands complete equality rights, that heavily armed states undertake not to exceed their present level of armaments, and declares that Germany will adhere to a convention agreeing to show such moderation in taking equality rights "that cannot be regarded by any European power as an offensive menace."

Needs Quick Solution
Barthou notified Henderson that the increasing pace with which certain countries were continuing to rearm in violation of treaties necessitates "a rapid solution of conference problems."

After directing this broadside against Germany the foreign minister announced France would not reduce armaments if the immediate rearmament of Germany is beyond

SUGGESTS BELGIUM PAY OFF DEBTS WITH RADIUM

Proposal by Senator Davis Favorably Received by Officials Heading Monopoly.

Brussels, March 9.—(AP)—Officials of the Union Miniere Du Haut Katanga, which has a monopoly on the production of radium, today indicated they would consider favorably a proposal by Senator Davis that Belgium give the United States $10,000,000 worth of radium toward war debts payment.

No such offer has been made, it was explained, and no negotiations are underway along this line.

The Belgian Foreign Office and Department of Finance did not comment on the proposal, embodied in a bill introduced by Davis yesterday.

The actual amount of government radium reserves officially was not revealed but it was believed it would total at least 100 grams, 30 of which were placed at the disposal of the Belgian Cancer Foundation, created in 1932.

Radium has been selling for approximately $50,000 a gram, it was said, thus 200 grams would be needed to carry out the plan.

new recipes, describe new food products, give away free a number of filled market baskets, and in addition some of the dishes cooked during the demonstration, but on Friday more important gifts from the local merchants will be given to a few members of the big audiences.

There is no admission charge, no tickets are required, only prompt arrivals at the state at 10 a. m., so that the school may begin on time and the long full and vasty entering program go forward promptly at each session. Begins Tuesday at 10 o'clock and continues Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

PROVIDENCE BUS CRASHES, 1 DEAD

dent conflict. Charles Prairie, of Johnston, driving a sedan, said the bus skidded when it tried to pass his car. The sedan was struck by the bus and damaged. Gallagher claimed that the Prairie car passed the bus and slowed up when in front of it again so that he had to apply the brakes sharply, causing the skid.

Roads in this state this morning were particularly dangerous, snow which fell during the night having melted and then frozen, glazing the highways.

The production of briar root for smoking pipes dates back to 1890, when a French firm found it to be of excellent quality for that purpose.

HIT-AND-RUN DOBBIN CAUSE OF BOY'S DEATH

Horse Hair Found on Coat of Child Found With Fractured Skull.

New Haven, March 9.—(AP)—A search for a hit-and-run horse marked the investigation today into the death of Clarence Whitner, seven years old, of New Haven.

The boy was found lying unconscious in the street yesterday near his home and died soon afterward. The medical examiner said death was due to a fractured skull.

Police said a horse drawn vehicle was seen in the neighborhood just before the boy was found and that coarse horse hair was on the coat the child was wearing.

CARNEBA'S MANAGER JAILED

New York, March 9.—(AP)—William J. Duff, American manager of Primo Carneba, was sentenced to the Federal House of Detention for four months today, for failure to file an income tax return for 1930.

Judge William Bondy told Duff's counsel he would consider a plea for revision or reduction of the term at any time within ninety days.

Duff, who was absent from court when the case was called, returned from Florida last night.

PLANS TO BUILD NEW FUEL TANK

Ernest Bantly Buys Large West Side Tract from Cheney Brothers.

Ernest Bantly, proprietor of the Bantly Oil company and the Center Auto Supply company, with his place of business on Center street at Winter street, has purchased from Cheney Brothers an acre and a half of land on what is known as the "power house" tract.

Included in the purchase is a railroad siding of 150 feet. There was also purchased by Mr. Bantly another strip 150 feet long and 40 feet wide that extends from the tract to Broad street, which he will use as a road to reach the acre and a half plot.

This is land that has been leased by Mr. Bantly from Cheney Brothers for several years and it is here he has his bulk station. He now has five 20,000 gallon storage tanks for oil located on the land which he has just purchased and will install another tank with a capacity of 20,000 gallons.

With the increased demand for fuel oil, Mr. Bantly has found it necessary to have additional storage and although he has at different times made an effort to purchase the property with its railroad siding on the South Manchester railroad it was not possible until this week.

As soon as the weather clears there will be the additional tank installed and other changes made to the building that he now owns there and the possible building of another.

Forced to Quit As Coal Miner

Ohio's only woman coal miner, Ida Mae Stull, 34, above, has been banished from her job in the Cadiz, O., mine, shown below, because state law forbids women working in mines and she has been "sentenced" to housework, which she detests. A miner since she was 12, Miss Stull has loaded five tons of coal daily.

MILITARY BALL APRIL 6 TO CELEBRATE ARMY DAY

Affair in Hotel Bond Will Be Brilliant. With Many Distinguished Guests Present.

Hartford, March 9.—Army Day, April 6, has appropriately been chosen by the Hartford chapter, Reserve Officers Association of the United States, for its first annual military ball for which invitations were sent today to a host of men and women prominent in military and civic affairs of this city and state. Lieutenant Governor Roy C. Wilcox and Mrs. Wilcox will be the guests of honor.

Lieutenant Colonel A. Raymond Ellis of West Hartford is honorary chairman of the committee in charge of the ball, which will take place in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Bond. With music commencing at 9 o'clock, a program recalling much of the military splendor of former days has been arranged. The grand march at 10 o'clock and the massing of the colors will lend impressive brilliance and pomp to the pageant of gay evening dress and military and naval officers' uniforms.

dynamite shooter and between classes and on Saturdays handles the explosives on CWA highway projects.

Fort Erie, Ont.—A mongrel was honored for saving the stock of a liquor store, but its master was treated to a more left-handed compliment.

Employees of the store presented a night watchman with a large leather medal bearing a grotesque caricature of himself armed with a pistol and followed by his dog.

The dog, whose barking had summoned the watchman when intruders tried to open a door, got a ham bone.

Norwalk, Conn.—Councilman Stephen Ungary wants to "fire" three horses whose keep costs the city $2,000 a year. "They're on the retired list," Ungary says, "and don't justify their existence on the city payroll." An investigation disclosed that the city receives less than $500 labor return for the trouble and expense entailed by keeping the horses.

CUTTER DRIFTING IN ICE

Grand Haven, Mich., March 9.—(AP)—The Coast Guard cutter Escanaba, which has been attempting since Monday to fight its way through high-piled floe ice to go to the rescue of an ice-bound fishing tug, was drifting southward in the grip of the ice field today. The cutter was considered in no danger, however.

A strong wind has piled up an ice barrier along the eastern shore of Lake Michigan, extending out beyond the range of vision.

Queer Twists In Day's News

Pittsburgh—Howard Burket, 34, was discharged from the Homeopathic hospital several days ago after a lengthy stay because of a broken leg.

Yesterday police were summoned on an accident call. They found Burket's car smashed against a tree and Burket on the running board with a broken leg—the same one that had been fractured before.

"Where shall we take you?" asked the officers.

"Homeopathic hospital," promptly replied Burket.

Thomasville, Ga.—It looked like a tough job, but the fire ladders here did their duty in fine style.

Called to a residence they saw through a small crack what appeared to be flames in the attic. They ripped away a portion of the ceiling in no time, and found a blazing patch of sunlight.

Wildwood, N. J.—Don't like the weather, huh? Well, be careful what you say about it around the Wildwood Great Grammar school.

The principal is Mrs. Brooks Bilszard.

The music teacher is Frank Sunshine. And the janitor is William Showers.

Philadelphia — The Christmas spirit has reached the domestic relations court — rather late and only temporarily.

A quarrel over a Christmas tree resulted in the separation of Carl Draudt and his wife Eleanor.

Meeting in court Carl presented Eleanor with her belated gift, a wrist-watch. She smilingly put it on and then, refusing a reconciliation, obtained a support order taking half of Carl's pay.

ALL-BRAN RELIEVED HIS CONSTIPATION

Delicious Cereal Brought New Health to Mr. Bartholomew

We quote from his voluntary letter: "I had considerable trouble with my stomach. Digestion was out of the question. I got medicine which gave me only temporary relief.

"Then I thought of taking ALL-BRAN. I started eating a cereal dish two or three times a day.

"It has been over a year now since I ate that first dish of bran, but from that day to this I have had the pleasure of enjoying the proper functioning of the digestive organs.

"Thanks to ALL-BRAN, I still eat it regularly and like it better all the time." Lester Bartholomew, Cadillac, Mich.

Constipation is usually due to lack of "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to promote elimination. ALL-BRAN supplies both, as well as iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. Certainly this food is more natural than taking harmful patent medicines. Two tablespoons daily will usually overcome most types of constipation. With each meal in chronic cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Garnish with carrot flowers and sprigs of parsley and celery. Serves eight.

TOLLAND

The Ladies' Aid society of the Federated church will serve supper in the church dining room this evening. The public is invited. Mrs. Emory Clough, Mrs. William L. Ayers and Mrs. Joseph Du Fore are on the supper committee.

The Tolland Grange will hold one of a series of whists at the Community House this evening. The public is invited and refreshments will be served.

Mr. and Mrs. William Wuerdig of South Manchester were recent guests of relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Ernest Hall and daughter, Miss Bernice Hall, in company with Mrs. Walter Pearson of Hartford, left Thursday morning by automobile for a trip to Florida and other points of interest.

Professor A. J. W. Meyers of the Hartford Seminary Foundation will be the speaker at the Federated church next Sunday morning service.

The regular meeting of Tolland Grange held Tuesday evening was well attended by a good number outside of the Grange membership in attendance to talk by Professor David E. Warner of Storrs College, associate professor of poultry. He directed his talk on factors that go to make up a good number of lantern slides to illustrate his talk. Many questions were asked by those interested and were readily explained.

Most of the officers of Tolland Grange attended the school of instruction meeting held at Ellington Wednesday evening when the officers of granges in the East Central Farmers jurisdiction were present.

Edwards, Overseer of Tolland Grange visited Westfield Grange last week.

Arrests have made for the killing of deer in town and those who have accepted the meat were fined as were those who shot the animals.

WAPPING

The regular meeting of the Wapping Parent-Teachers Association will be held at the school hall next Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, with Mrs. Benjamin Work of Clintonbury, the county president, as the speaker.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene W. Platt and daughter, Jacqueline M., and son Douglas F., spent the day last Sunday with Mrs. Platt's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Addison E. Frink. Mrs. Frink, who has been ill at her home, for some time, was taken to the Manchester Memorial hospital on Sunday afternoon for treatment.

The 4-H club at Rye street, held its regular get-together at the Rye street schoolhouse, last Wednesday evening with forty present. A fine time was enjoyed by all.

Raymond W. Belcher entered the Hartford hospital last Wednesday afternoon, where he underwent an operation on Thursday morning.

Guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur C. Hill last Wednesday were Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Lundberg, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carter, and Mrs. James Hart and daughter Leona, all from New Britain.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS (Frequent Hunger)

Question: From Mrs. B. B.: "I read your column in the Fullerton Tribune and I wish that you would tell me what is the cause of my always being so hungry. I crave food at all times, and never seem satisfied."

Answer: Such a craving is very often due to gastritis, or irritation of the membrane which lines the stomach. In some cases, it is a very prominent symptom in hyper-acid-

RALLY OF EPWORTH LEAGUES TOMORROW

Banquet, Musical and Speaking Program in Willimantic Church.

The Norwich District Epworth Leagues will have a mid-winter rally tomorrow night at the Methodist church in Willimantic. Members of the two Methodist churches here will have a good sized delegation present. A banquet will be served by the host league at 6:30 o'clock.

Following this, a musical program arranged by Howard T. Pierce of New London will be presented. Included on this part of the program, will be a group of vocal solos by David Hutchinson, bass baritone of this town. The speaker of the evening will be Rev. George G. Scribner, district superintendent of the Norwich District.

Members of the South Methodist League will meet at the church at 5 o'clock from where transportation will be provided in private cars.

BLAST ON SUBMARINE INJURES FOUR SAILORS

San Diego, Calif., March 8.—(AP)—Four members of the crew of the locally-based submarine Nautilus were injured last night in an explosion at sea and were rushed to port here today aboard the destroyer Barry for treatment at the Naval hospital.

Reports from the hospital stated all are expected to recover.

The injured: Mason Bowen, 30, chief radioman, lacerated scalp; H. M. Springstun, 29, machinist's mate, second class, first-degree burns on face, left hand and forearm; H. S. Young, 28, fireman, first class, fractured jaw; and R. W. Bradshaw, seaman first class, lacerated scalp.

The accident occurred when a crankcase exploded as the submarine was engaged in a power run 100 miles at sea, it was reported.

On receipt of word of the mishap here, the destroyer Barry of the scouting force, commanded by Lieutenant Commander C. Allen, was ordered to give assistance. It reached the Nautilus shortly after midnight.

The Nautilus, commanded by Lieutenant Commander P. E. Glutting, was expected to return here this afternoon under its own power.

COLUMBIA

Thunder and lightning and a deluge of hail stones about 1 o'clock Tuesday morning added more variety to the different kinds of weather we have had the past two weeks. This about completes the changes of climate which New England is noted for. The hail stones were so numerous and large that heaps of them were visible in the ditches along the Willimantic road at eight o'clock in the morning.

Now that the snow has left to a large extent, it is evident that the roads are in a very bad condition. In some places the state roads are breaking up badly. On the green shoulders of the road have been washed away by the torrents of water running over them, making a drop of several inches from the roadbed, and undermining the road surface back quite a way making it dangerous for an automobile to turn from the center of the road very far.

The chair caning meeting held Tuesday at the hall under the direction of Miss Evelyn Plummer, Home Demonstration agent, was well attended, over 20 ladies being present. Sixteen of them brought chairs to be caned, and the work was started nicely. Another similar meeting will be held March 20 that the ladies may finish their chairs. A delicious lunch was served at noon, consisting of waffles and syrup or honey, sausages, cake, pie and coffee.

Worthy Master Donald Woodward of the local Grange, with Mrs. Woodward, who is lady assistant steward; Rev. A. W. Mellinger, lecturer; William March, Jr., overseer and Alfred Soracchi, gatekeeper, went to Ellington Wednesday evening to attend a meeting for the instruction of Grange officers in the East Central Pomona Grange jurisdiction.

Miss Margaret Danahy, school nurse, was a guest for lunch Wednesday at the home of Miss Katherine Ink.

Friends here will be interested to hear of the birth of a daughter February 22 to Rev. and Mrs. John Howell of Franklin, N. H. The baby has been named Mary Lou, and was born on the second birthday of the Howell's other child, a son, Glenn Williams. Rev. Mr. Howell is a former pastor of the Columbia church.

The Thursday Afternoon club met with Mrs. Evelyn Williams with 20 ladies and six children present.

The state highway department examined the ice about the bridge between Columbia and Willimantic Tuesday after discovering that it had moved four inches from its position on the abutments. Those who use this section of road still remember the inconvenience of detouring last spring when one span of the bridge was demolished, and would not desire another period of detouring especially at this time of year.

The manufacture of hand-made rugs has become an industry of some importance at the mountain village of Mars Hill, N. C., and 100 mountaineers skilled in weaving have found permanent employment.

Nautical Priest Saw Monster Sea Serpent

Apostle of the Sea Celebrates First Birthday Ashore in Six Years of Ocean Roaming.

New York, March 8.—Most port-falling on the paved street outside. "One or two each trip." "And have you ever seen a sea serpent?"

60 Foot Serpent

"As a matter of fact, I have. It was about sixty feet long and appeared very much like the Scottish one described in the papers—sort of yellow. It was in mid-Pacific, three years ago; and there wasn't any doubt the serpent was there. Another man was with me and saw it also. Usually, you know, when you talk about seeing sea serpents, people think you've had too much whisky."

His predilection for the high seas is based on an innate claustrophobia and also on his calling as international promoter for the Apostleship of spiritual and social welfare of seafarers throughout the world; approved and blessed by His Holiness Pius XI—organizing center, 66 Victoria Street, London.

Guest of Bishop

Father Rockliff was found yesterday at his temporary abode in St. Peter's Hospital, Brooklyn, where, in excellent health, he is the guest of the Most Rev. Thomas E. Molloy, Roman Catholic Bishop of Brooklyn.

"My work," he explained, "consists of looking after sailors. For six years I have traveled constantly, establishing organization headquarters in different parts of the world. We have set them up in forty-four ports of call already—clubs, recreation rooms, dormitories, with a priest in charge of each one. You see, we protect the men while they are in port. Otherwise all sorts of sharks get after them."

With regret Father Rockliff was forced to confess that as yet the society had acquired no clubhouse here. The Apostleship has an office, however, at 111 West 11th street, and it has been arranged to establish a dormitory in Brooklyn—in Hicks street—within the next twelve months.

Ministers To Seamen

"You know the Apostleship is in touch with 200,000 seamen all over the world—of all nationalities," Father Rockliff continued, "and during the depression we have had to care for so many—at times we didn't know what to do with them all. The Apostleship was founded, you know, eleven years ago. The archbishop of Glasgow is president and the Pope is very keenly interested."

Father Rockliff was born in Liverpool, and, after serving as assistant priest for several years, was appointed chaplain to a squadron of the Royal Navy in 1912. He served during the World War and became associated with the Apostleship of the Sea soon after its inception, becoming international promoter in 1928.

Around World 6 Times

"Since then," he said, "I've been around the world six times. Several weeks ago, when I came into San Francisco, the pilot asked me, 'Why don't you get a ship of your own?' You come into this port often enough. As a matter of fact, I have a shipmaster's certificate, and I believe there's only one other priest who has."

"Have you been through many bad storms, Father?"

"Oh, most certainly," he replied, glancing a bit restlessly at the snow

KILLED BY AUTO

New Haven, March 9.—(AP)—Paul Schultz, 77, of Woodbridge, died in St. Raphael's hospital today from injuries received when he was struck by an automobile as he crossed the road in front of his home.

State Board of Education to Draft Bill for Next Assembly Session.

Hartford, March 8.—(AP)—The State Board of Education will draft for submission to the next General Assembly proposed legislation calculated to increase the state's participation in the support of public education. The board so voted at its meeting on Wednesday, it was announced today by Commissioner Ernst W. Butterfield.

The action of the board followed considerable discussion of a draft of a proposed act concerning equalization of educational opportunities in the state, and the vote as passed expressed the opinion of the board that the best interests of the schools require the enactment of laws which

NATION TO GAIN BY BANKING QUIZ

Millions Will Flow Into Treasury as a Result of Pecora's Probe.

Washington, March.—If the American people fail to reform and remold their banking and financial system, it won't be because they haven't been told the facts, in detail and with gestures.

By mid-April, the Senate Banking and Currency Committee will have spent two years in making one of the most thorough and most productive of all Congressional investigations.

And it isn't through, despite the 5,000 pages of closely printed testimony it already has produced.

On through this session of Congress and the rest of the summer will go the relentless parade that is giving America a detailed picture of just what makes its financial wheels go around.

The Cleveland bank situation will be gone into as was Detroit's. Piece after piece is being fitted with uncanny precision into a jigsaw which, when completed, will tell the whole story.

Yields Rich Profit

Like Teapot Dome, this investigation already has yielded to the government in revenues many times its cost. Aside from the educational side, which is invaluable if the public is to know how business is being carried on, these investigations have a habit of bringing in many times their cost in cold cash.

Teapot Dome, the government's longest and most involved investigation, cost something like $15,000. The prosecutions which followed cost more than $500,000. But as a result the government recovered the lost naval oil reserves, valued at some $400,000,000.

It got back $22,527,138 in cash, the value of oil taken out under the corrupt leases. It got improvements on the properties worth $15,436,956.

Harvest for Government

It got $2,000,000 in cash in the form of income taxes, penalties and interest from a single corporation, and several hundred thousand in fines and penalties. Not a bad return on an investment of $500,000.

Cancellation of the alms contracts, even if they are renewed on other terms, is almost certain to save the government far more than the cost of Senator Black's small investigation, which has been small direct results of the banking and currency investigation will net the government a sum far above the cost, which is probably not above $150,000 to date.

Boosts Tax Collections

As soon as the Morgan testimony showed that he had paid no income tax for three years, "conscience money" and back income taxes began to dribble into the Bureau of Internal Revenue here. Many claims for refunds or rebates were withdrawn or compromised.

Because the Bureau put on last fall a drive to clean up back taxes, no one can say how many of these millions in collections are due directly to the banking investigation, but a great part undoubtedly is.

Had it not been for this investigation, the present tightening of the tax income law would have been far less drastic and less intelligent. And no one questions that millions more in tax money will be the result.

Passage of the securities Act of 1933 and the Banking Act of 1933 are both traceable to revelations of this investigation, and both should save millions to individual investors in the future.

Started By Republicans

And the humorous part of all this is that it was started by the Republicans. Back in April, 1932, Senators Walcott of Connecticut and Hastings of Delaware, both staunch Republicans, backed a resolution to investigate short selling and other stock market practices. The occasion was this: On "Black Saturday" only a short time before, the stock market had had a sickening drop. Republican minds conceived the idea that prominent Democrats were selling the market short in an effort more or less liberally to create panic and discredit President Hoover.

So, with this good G. O. P. backing, the investigation got under way.

Grab Hot Potato

Little was developed on the subject of bear raiding as the first parade of witnesses, like Richard Whitney, Matthew Brush, William B. Cravath, and Percy Rockefeller, filed by. Sponsor Walcott said frankly he doubted if any legislation would result.

But it became increasingly evident that the committee had got hold of a very hot potato. Once started into the field of the devious financial affairs of the last ten years, one thing led to another. There were frantic attempts to call the whole thing off.

But Senator Peier Norbeck, committee chairman, got interested. With Irving Ben Cooper as special counsel, a subcommittee gathered data all summer of 1932 preparatory to resuming hearings in the fall.

When they resumed, and Samuel Insull, Jr., Charles G. Dawes, Mel Traylor, and Owen D. Young, had been heard, it became clear that the whole thing was very much worth going into.

Pecora Enters Picture

Toward the end of the year, Cooper and Norbeck came to disagreement, and Cooper quit. Whereupon Norbeck hired, in January, 1933, Ferdinand Pecora, New York assistant district attorney, as special counsel for the committee.

Pecora, highly recommended, exceeded expectations. His thoroughgoing, scholarly, dogged methods made the investigation.

Only a month after he took charge, he had President Charles Mitchell of the National City Bank on the stand describing his peculiar stock deals with his wife. Mitchell was forced out and narrowly escaped jail.

The parade resumed. Gordon Rentscher, Whitney again, Harold L. Stuart, John J. Raabok, John L. Weeks, Walter E. Sachs, followed each other on the stand, emboldering the long-continued story.

Morgan Springs Sensation

Then came the mighty J. P. Morgan himself, telling how his immense income tax and how insiders, including officials, received stock favors from him.

Paternal Otto Kahn contributed his homilies on financial morality, including preferred lists and pools. (Later it was to be shown that, almost at the time of his testimony, his firm was connected with pools in alcohol stocks.) Urbane Clarence Dillon described the technique of shoestringing investment, and of control with a minimum of outlay in real estate.

The peculiar financing of Cleveland's Van Sweringen boys in doing much the same thing industrially was outlined.

Wiggin Shocks 'Em

Then came what was to many the greatest shock of all. Albert Wiggin, described how his own bank short, how personal corporations are managed to save on taxes, how he urged wage reductions while getting his own salary boosted.

Wiggin, a conservative idol compared to the flashy Mitchell, brought the situation home to many who had not before realized its implications.

Arthur Cutten then contributed some valuable data on how a market is made for a stock which has no market, and the committee turned to the Detroit banking situation. Then the run-up of alcohol and liquor stocks by pool operations was described, and investigators now are in Cleveland getting data on that place.

Builds Up His Case

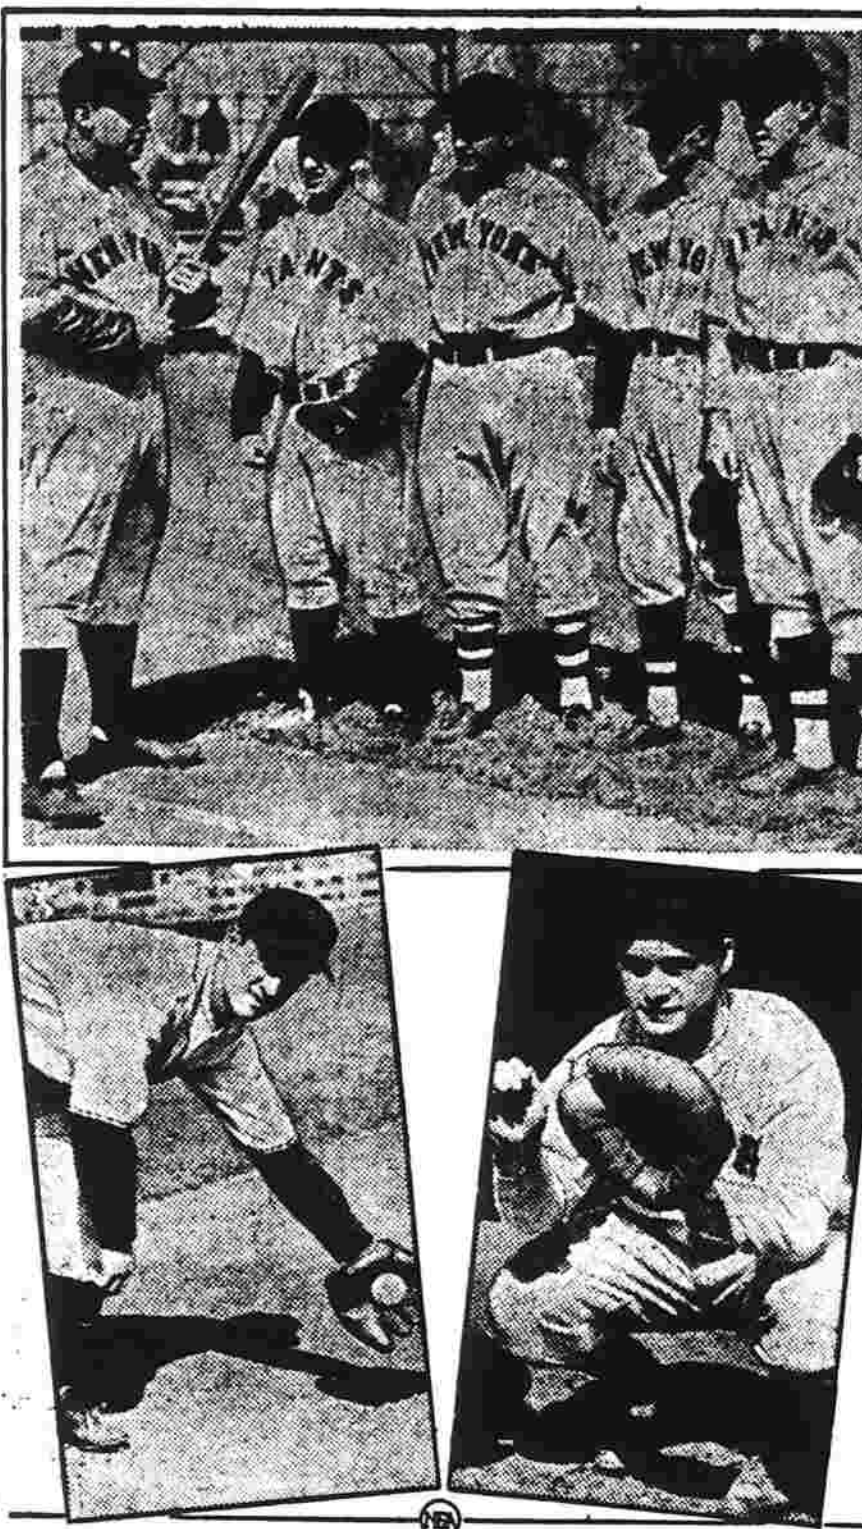

Five thousand pages already, and scarcely a page that does not contribute to a liberal education on American finance and banking. Pecora's method is on the surface, disordered. Even his own committee has at times reproved him for going over the same ground too often.

But Pecora plainly is building up his conclusions so that when a certain evil practice is brought up, he will be able to show by example that it was not an isolated case, but was common here, there, and everywhere.

And such a marshaling of facts is the kind on which new law may be based solidly.

The banking inquiry, nearing the beginning of its third year, seems about to take place beside Teapot

VOTE ON WATERWAY IS DRAWING NEAR

Senators Prepare for Battle on St. Lawrence Project; Other Matters.

Washington, March 9.—(AP)—With two days drawing inexorably to the March 14 vote on the St. Lawrence treaty with Canada, its advocates returned to the wars again today in the Senate.

Chairman Pittman of the foreign relations committee presented an Army engineers report that the giant waterway would do no harm to the Mississippi inland waterway system. Opponents of his case showed no sign of being convinced, however.

Other legislation already waiting its turn before the more crowded, meanwhile, the Philippine independence bill being approved by the Senate territories committee as it had been previously on the House side.

On the House tax bill, the Senate finance committee endorsed the provision which measures the capital gain or loss, for tax purposes, from the sale of property by an individual according to the time the property has been held.

House Adjourns

Quick adjournment of the House blocked a prospective Republican attack on Army flying of the mail. "Another Army flier has just been killed," said Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, seeking consideration of a resolution for discontinuance of the Army task.

Speaker Rainey would not recognize her and soon thereafter Majority Leader Byrns obtained adjournment.

Byrns expressed the view to reporters that the House "in its present mood" would be unable to agree upon a compromise on veterans compensation acceptable to the Los Angeles, March 9.—(AP)—Babe Stapp, nationally-known automobile race driver, Al Seavage and Ted Devlin, were charged with kidnaping in complaints issued today by the District Attorney's office. They were charged with abducting James Lee, Los Angeles Examiner reporter, and John Bennis, photographer.

Lee and Bennis were assigned to funeral services for Ernie Triplett, race driver who was killed on an imperial chief track last Sunday.

The Examiner said "the kidnapers openly admitted they had seized the newsmen and declared it was a direct result of the Examiner's vigorous campaign against legalized murder on the race tracks of Southern California."

DIVORCED AFTER HE PUT CHEESE UNDER HER NOSE

Fairfield Wife Claims This Act of Cruelty Was Simply the Last Straw.

Bridgeport, March 9.—(AP)—A husband who held a strong cheese under his wife's nose until she became nauseated was cruel in other respects also, according to the testimony offered Judge Carl Foster in the Superior Court today by Violet Gerard Van Amring of Fairfield. She was granted a decree and custody of a minor child from Charles Van Amring of this city.

Judge Foster continued until March 23, for corroborative evidence a divorce petition brought by Marge McAnelly Stone, of 338 West avenue, again Hal Stone, of Washington, D. C., a former local news photographer.

A decree of divorce, custody of a minor child and support of $5 weekly were awarded Kathleen Gould Shepherd, of Westport, a dancing

VETERAN MEASURES TROUBLE LEADERS

Certain That the House Will Not Pass Bills Over the President's Veto.

Washington, March 9.—(AP)—Doubt was expressed today by Representative Byrns, the Democratic leader, that the House "in its present mood" could agree upon veterans legislation acceptable to the President.

Both Byrns and Speaker Rainey, however, said at their press conferences that the House would not pass a bill over the President's veto.

Arranging to call up the veterans' amendments Monday or Tuesday, as a part of the independent offices appropriation bill, Byrns said the first motion to be voted upon would be on acceptance of the liberalizations voted by the Senate.

After Patman's Bill

Rainey explained the veterans' compensation amendments would be taken up immediately after the Patman bill for payment of the $2,400,000,000 bonus is voted on Monday.

"If we should by any chance pass both of these over the President's veto," Rainey continued, "it would wreck the recovery program, so the next week will be the crucial one."

Byrns added that "everyone" seemed agreed that the bonus would pass the House but expressed doubt that the two-thirds majority necessary to override a veto could be obtained.

FEAR JAP ATTACK ON NORTH CHINA

Official Asks Information About Location of American Mission in District.

Peiping, March 9.—(AP)—A Japanese official today asked information regarding American mission property in North China "in order to avoid damage to these properties in the event the Japanese army found it necessary to come southward from the Great Wall in the near future."

The information was sought by a Japanese civilian official attached to the Japanese military garrison at Peiping.

The Americans approached said he gave as his explanation for his question the statement that it was done "in order to avoid damage."

The identity of the Japanese was not disclosed but his activities threw foreign circles into a buzz of speculation as to what fate hangs over North China.

The Japanese Legation denied that the inquiries from missionaries were significant, saying flatly there was "no significance."

"I wonder where his owner went! He seemed to be a friendly gent. Let's try and find him. I am sure he can't be far away."

Said Nick, "Oh, he's a fisherman. To yonder fishing bank he ran. Why don't you Tingles go and see what he has caught today?"

They all agreed this would be fun, so off they all went, on the run. The old man saw them coming, and exclaimed, "Hello, there, lots!"

"I 'spose you've come to see what I can catch. Well, sit down. By and by I'll start to get real lucky and I'll pull in lots and lots."

(What the fisherman catches gives the Tingles a surprise in the next story.)

TO THE LAST MAN!

SENSE and NONSENSE

To Those That Are Hoping for Relief Through Legislation:
The world is full of ruts, my boy, some shaller and some deep; An' every rut is full of folks as high as they can heap.
Each one that's growin' in the ditch is growin' at his fate, An' 'wistin' he had had a chance before it was too late.
They lay it all on someone else, or say 'twas just their luck— They never once consider that 'twas caused by lack o' pluck.
But here's the word o' one that's lived clean through from 'soup to nuts: The Lord don't send no derricks 'round to hist folks out o' ruts."

Young Lady (with hopes)—What do you think is the fashionable color for a bride?
Male Floorwalker—Tastes differ—but I should prefer a white one.

If a list of hardest jobs were made, heading it we guess would be bringing up a modern child in the way he or she should go.

HEADMASTER—Now we will have a little performance with the cane.
STUDENT (who had stuffed books in the seat of his trousers in readiness)—All right, sir; I've booked my seat.

The more you puff a cigar, the smaller it becomes. . . . And it beats the dickens how many men are built like cigars.

Tommy—Grandma, if I was invited out to dinner, should I eat pie with a fork?
Grandma—Yes, indeed, Tommy.
Tommy—Don't you have a piece in the house I could practice on?

One can always borrow trouble without offering security in return, but the interest rate you pay is exorbitant.

Even though it is considered smart to have the Mae West curves, the women don't seem to be one hundred percent for inflation.

Husband—It is a strange thing, but true, that the biggest fools have the most beautiful wives.
His wife (to him)—Oh, what a flatterer you are, darling.

Another thing about nudist marriages is the bride will never have to worry in after years about the moths getting in her old wedding gown.

Junior was dejected walking home from school, and his weebone appearance attracted the attention of a kind-hearted woman who happened to pass him on the street.

Kind-Hearted Woman—What is troubling you, my little man?
Junior—Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Asthma and Appendicitis.

Kind-Hearted Woman — Why that's absurd. How can that be?
Junior—Teacher kept me in after school because I couldn't spell them.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

We must either keep step with the changing times, or be cast aside. The attempt to hide our lack of ability to adjust ourselves to a changing world, by declaring the changes are all wrong, will never get us anywhere.

Joe—Rankin left town in debt and almost in rags, I understand.
Sam—Yes, but there'll be plenty of suits waiting for him if he comes back.

By the length of time it takes some men who have been going with the same girl for years, to make up their minds to propose, the girl begins to think that they are just taking up her time for the "love" of it.

SPENDALOT —Well, how has everything gone since I last saw you?
HARDUP—Everything's gone!

Most women like to run a house if you'll really let them run it. They get so much real fun out of changing things around every week.

ABOUT TOWN

Dolores Zelenak, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Zelenak of 18 Columbus street, celebrated her second birthday yesterday. Her mother invited 15 of her little boy and girl friends, and decorated the dining room in pink and white. Lively games were played by the children and a buffet lunch was served. Dolores was remembered by her little guests with all sorts of dainty gifts.

Miss Lillian Black, soprano, will be the guest soloist at the annual meeting of the North Methodist church this evening. She will be accompanied by Miss Bernice Lydell who will also play for the chorus singing. W. H. Dunstone will be toastmaster and it is expected that a number of the church people will make short speeches.

Rev. Truman Woodward of the "White" church, East Hartford, will be the guest speaker at the inspirational meeting Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Salvation Army Citadel. Rev. Woodward is a son of Rev. W. D. Woodward of Hollister street and was formerly pastor of the Wapping Federated church. He is well known to Manchester audiences as an excellent speaker, and his friends will be welcome to attend this service. An added attraction will be the singing of Envoy, Malcolm Ogden of Hartford. A native of New Zealand, he has sung in all the large Salvation Army gatherings in that country and has become popular in Salvation Army circles since coming here a few years ago.

The Manchester Soccer club will have a card party at the West Side Rec tonight, at which everybody will be welcome. There will be worthwhile prizes for the winners and refreshments.

Colin V. Davies, son of Mr. and Mrs. Colin Davies, of 39 Hall street, a member of the freshman class at Wesleyan university, has attained the university honor roll for the semester. Mr. Davies also won his numerals on the freshman soccer team this past season. He is a member of the Psi Upsilon fraternity.

C. J. Woodhouse, who operates the Hollywood Market at 881 East Center street, has received a package store permit and has added a stock of wines and liquors to his present business. Mr. Woodhouse has been in the meat and grocery business for many years. He was located for a long time on Spruce street before moving to a new store at his present location.

The Junior Mission band of Emanuel Lutheran church will meet tomorrow at 2:30 for their regular session.

The postponed annual meeting of Nutmeg District, L. O. L. No. 21, will be held in Odd Fellows Temple, Hartford, Saturday evening, March 10 at 7:30 o'clock. The various officers of the district lodge will make their reports, and officers for the ensuing year will be elected and installed.

St. Margaret's Circle, Daughters of Isabella, will hold its postponed public card party Tuesday evening in the K. of C. clubrooms following a brief business meeting at 7:30. Prizes will be awarded and refreshments served by the following committee: Mrs. James W. Foley, Mrs. James Breen, Mrs. Mary Falkov, M. Mrs. W. J. Carrington and Mrs. George H. Williams.

A meeting of the junior group of the American Legion auxiliary will be held at the State Armory, Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Officers of the Rainbow Girls are reminded of the rehearsal this evening at six o'clock at the Masonic Temple.

The regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of St. Mary's Episcopal church will be held this evening at 7:30.

The Friday evening setback and dance will be conducted as usual this evening at the Green school assembly hall by the Community club in that section.

Recreation Center Items of Interest

Today The regular plunge period for women will be held from 7 to 9. Dancing will be in the gym from 8 to 12. Charles Millard and his Hotel Band orchestra featuring Miss Evans will entertain the program will practice basketball from 8 to 9. The girls' league will use the training alleys from 7 to 8:30.

Saturday The girls' dancing classes will meet as follows: 10:30 to 11, tiny tots; 11 to 11:30, intermediate; 11:30 to 12, advanced.

The boys' swimming classes will also meet: 9:30 to 10:15, beginners; 10:15 to 11, intermediate; 11 to 11:45, life saving.
