"I fear it will undo much of the good which the Recovery Act has brought about," said Harriman at a hearing upon the measure before the Senate labor committee.

"In view, however, of the very broad interpretation of that section, which was recently made by the President in his settlement of the threatened automobile strike, I see no reason for any further amplification of that section, except to carry out the thought of the President."

CANNOT OPEN GOLF SEASON TOMORROW

Ground Too Wet to Permit Play—Opening Set for Saturday, April 7.

Golfers who have been looking forward to a first round of their favorite sport tomorrow, the first Spring holiday, must face disappointment, at least as far as playing the local course at the Manchester Country club is concerned. Bill Martin, local pro, said this afternoon that the fairways and greens are too soggy to permit play. There is still some frost in the ground and the sun this afternoon brought it out so rapidly that the greens, especially are wet. Play upon them now would ruin the playing surface.

FINDS NEW TALENT IN MINSTREL SHOW

Varied Entertainment to Be Presented by St. Bridget's Holy Name Group.

A full evening of varied entertainment for both young and old is promised by the large committee which is completing the details incidental to the presentation of the minstrel show and dance to be given by St. Bridget's Holy Name society for the benefit of St. Bridget's church, Tuesday evening, April 10 in the Hollister street school hall.

James Breen has very ably assisted Mr. Campbell in the selection and arrangement of all musical numbers. A special committee has been busy planning costumes and scenic effects.

Joseph Handley of the Community Players in the role of interlocutor keeps the marriage at top pitch throughout the show with the ends, Thomas Conran, Kenneth Campbell, James Crowe and Larry Scranton, in step with his stride all along the line.

Among the soloists, Miss Adele Karpunak, Mrs. Margaret Shea, Mrs. Arlene Garrity, John Hughes, Roy Griswold and James Breen, there appear the names of many who have frequently afforded Manchester audiences very real musical joy in the past.

A banjo duet by Farrand and McCarthy, late of Hank Keene's Billies, will be a specialty of worth and alone worth the price of admission. Specialty dances will be introduced by Faith Spillane, Robert Campbell and the well-known Conran-Campbell dance team.

Following the dance, an old and modern dance program is being arranged with Weir's orchestra. Cornelius Foley will act as prompter. The occasion promises to be an event to be remembered in the annals of Manchester history and the entire committee from director down to the last ticket distributor is working tirelessly to make the entertainment "marvelous, colossal and stupendous."

OPEN FORUM

ENJOYS TILT

Editor of The Herald: Regarding the article of Carolin Kerner Britton, in Tuesday's Herald, I would say that I appreciate the "rape" which have been so neatly worked in, in her interesting story. If I have said anything that seemed unfair I can only say that I had no intention of being unfair. It has been of some interest, and I may say somewhat of a privilege, to have a tilt with one who has the courage and the ability to defend a principle. I feel that we are dealing with an exceptional firm; and that here at least is one instance where there is no need or place for a labor union. A labor union, cannot reasonably demand from an employer more than fair wages, and fair treatment.

The local silk workers have always received fair wages and fair treatment. Then why bother with a union and pay thirteen thousand dollars a year for that which is freely given without cost? I am not opposed to labor unions. I have said that they have their place. I feel that in the local silk plant there is neither need nor place. But eighteen hundred silk workers in a plant, that there is a need and a place. If everybody knows more than anybody, no matter how learned that anybody may be, it may well be that these eighteen hundred silk workers who have joined the union know better than I do, what they need and want.

Anyhow, the union is here either for good or ill, and we shall see what we shall see.

OLD FACTORY HAND.

NOTHING WRONG WITH GOD There's surely nothing wrong with God. The wrong is all with man. If we will only walk with God; He'll surely lend a hand.

A God of wisdom, love and grace, Could never walk in sin; He'll lend a hand at any place, If we will walk with Him.

Twice when man sinned against his Lord And let loose of God's hand; And ran and hid from God's own word, That sin has cursed the land.

Let's don't blame God for what we've done, In spite of His command, Let's hear His voice and to Him come And take hold of His hand.

God sent His Son to lend a hand, To save us from all sin, To satisfy laws' just demand And bring us back to Him.

God loves man with all His heart, He gave the grace of life, And He will surely do His part, To end the sin and strife.

The Heavens declare His glory; His works His power shows; And He through that gospel story, Eternal life bestows.

To all that have been born again And can His Kingdom see, The plan of life will be made plain, As it was meant to be.

So sinners turn away from sin And come in Jesus' name, Take hold of His hand, new life begin, And you'll be glad you came.

For God so loved the whole wide world, His own dear Son He gave, That whosoever believed His word Eternal life might have.

The world has turned away from God; Refused to do His will; That's why in sorrow's path we've trod. But God's hands held out still, A. E. FISH, Manchester, Conn., R. F. D. No. 2

INSULL ON BOARD GREEK FREIGHTER

Ship Stops at Istanbul to Take on Provision — Few See Him.

Istanbul, Turkey, March 29.—(AP)—Samuel Insull, whose mystery ship, the Maiotis, put in here for provisions early today, will sail this afternoon for Rumania, it was reported from apparently authentic sources.

The decision to depart for Rumania, it was said, followed wireless instructions from Athens delivered to the 74-year-old fugitive this morning.

Insull, asleep when his dingy chartered vessel nosed around the Golden Horn at 6:30 a. m. today, remained aboard the ship in the face of strict police surveillance.

The Maiotis within five hours completed the work of taking aboard water and foodstuffs. The captain said on arrival, that the boat was bound for Rumania.

The authorities of that country last night repeated warnings that Insull would be arrested if he landed there.

Agent Boards Ship T. Chelchides, agent here for the Maiotis, was allowed on board and said he saw Insull "lying down in his cabin. His health seemed pretty good," the agent continued, "but the old man querulously complained of his difficulties and emotions on his trip."

The Maiotis, in the eleven days it has cruised the Mediterranean and Aegean seas since leaving Pireaus, Greece, went so far as Port Said but found it impossible to pass through the Suez Canal, it was learned.

She then cruised around before coming here. One man's word was the sole authority for the statement that Insull was aboard the Maiotis.

But the Greek ship's agent, Stavros Tchepelidis declared unhesitatingly: "I went, I saw."

The Turkish officials who boarded the Maiotis evaded all queries as to whom they had seen here.

The harbor police saw to it that all efforts to board the vessel and discover for one's self whether Insull was really a passenger of the Maiotis met with failure.

I chartered a motor launch and rushed out to the Maiotis as she lay at anchor. But after we had approached close enough to the steamer to get a good look, the police aboard the Maiotis warned us off with shouts and gestures.

Mrs. Bertelme Lashinske

G. Albert Pearson

Mrs. Bertelme Lashinske and G. Albert Pearson, both of this town, have been re-engaged as soloists at the Asylum Hill Congregational church in Hartford for the coming year, starting May 1, it was learned today.

Mrs. Lashinske is a well known contralto and this will be her fifth year at the Hartford church. Mr. Pearson is a widely known bass and this will be his second year at Asylum Hill.

beaten, and its deck was dingy. It did not look like the vessel for a dramatic Odyssey.

I learned that Insull slept late after his arrival but I could not find out whether he came on deck for a view of the nearby ancient palace whose grey walls, towering on the European shore of Turkey, once hid the mysteries of the Sultan's tyrannies and the intrigues of the Imperial harem.

No other newspapermen fared better than I.

The Turkish government apparently does not want the name Insull mentioned in connection with Turkey even as a transit voyager. Under strict orders from Ankara, the Turkish officials refused as much as to mention the boat.

TRADE SCHOOL NOTES

By THOMAS J. CHARA

The June graduating class of the Manchester Trade School elected as its class officers the following students: John Adams, president; Norman Dowding, vice-president; Albert Schub, secretary and Harold Jarvis, treasurer.

The officers were elected by a ballot vote of the entire graduating class last Monday afternoon. Director Echmalian being in charge.

The following committee members were appointed in charge of formulating plans for a class year book: Francis Weber, Walter Kayan, Dora Joslin, and Edmund Belotti. This year book, if present plans materialize, will be the Trade School's first publication.

There will be no session of Trade School classes tomorrow, Good Friday.

A foot press for the purpose of stamping out tooth-thrower rings which are used in insulating the cores of electric motors and generators prior to rewinding has recently been completed by the Machine Department for the Electrical Department. This device, designed by Howard W. Fisher, electrical instructor, will eliminate much waste and will insure a much better product.

In conjunction with the High school, Director Echmalian and Principal Illing have outlined a new schedule for Trade School-High school co-operative students. According to the new plan, Freshmen and Sophomores will attend high school in the afternoon and trade school in the morning; Juniors and Seniors will attend high school in the morning and trade school in the afternoon. Previously, the co-operative students alternated their time in both schools. This plan is expected to work for the advantage of students.

About 40 baseball enthusiasts answered Coach Crowley's call as candidates for this season's baseball team last Tuesday afternoon. Although the trade school and the high school will both use Mt. Nebo field this year, the schedules have been arranged so that the home games of either school will not conflict with one another. Obviously there ought to be plenty of baseball at the Mount this year.

Coach Crowley's schedule is as yet incomplete with five or six games still pending. Baseball practice will begin during the first week of April.

The team is being equipped with new uniforms to be purchased from the Manchester Plumbing and Supply Company.

Luckies are All-Ways kind to your throat

WHEREVER the finest tobaccos grow—in our own Southland, in Turkey, in Greece—all over the world, we gather the very Cream of the tobacco Crops for Lucky Strike. And that means only the center leaves. Not the top leaves—because those are under-developed—not ripe. Not the bottom leaves—because those are inferior in quality—they grow close to the ground, are coarse, dirt-covered, sandy.

The center leaves are the mildest leaves—they taste better and farmers are paid higher prices for them. These center leaves are the only ones used in making Luckies. Then "It's toasted"—for throat protection. And every Lucky is fully packed with these choice tobaccos—made round and firm, free from loose ends—that's why Luckies do not dry out. board was made it is probable that most people anticipated that there would be introduced into the situation, as neutral member, some person of recognized high standing who had not been involved in the disputes and conflicts between labor and labor's employers that have filled the air for the last six or eight months; some one who would bring to the implicit umpire a completely fresh viewpoint. Dr. Wolman, while undoubtedly an able and probably a very fair man, certainly does not fall within this class.

Instead he has been mixed up in the muddle for a long time. He rates as an expert in the economics of labor. He has specialized for many years as professor of economics at Columbia, in labor and industrial research. For ten years he was economic adviser to a militant labor union. His face has been close to the board of the perennial labor war. As a man of great information and intelligence he must have strong, perhaps immutable opinions.

Perhaps the selection of such a person as the neutral or public's member of the board of adjudicators in the automobile controversy may have been the wisest possible in the circumstances. Probably a good many people will feel that it was not. It is perhaps barely possible for a referee member, where both the other members are highly skilled special advocates of opposing sides, to know too much about the game. At all events it might have been encouraging if the "third man in the ring" in this affair had been so far removed from all association with the history of labor troubles and so thoroughly well known for horse sense and decency as to free him from the faintest possible suspicion of predisposition or prejudice.

We're not sure that we wouldn't have preferred to see Marie Dressler on that job.

TRICK BONUS BILL?

What may be an administration attempt to head off the bonus bill recently passed by the House of Representatives made its appearance in the Senate this week with the introduction of a bill by Senator Pittman of Nevada intended as a substitute measure.

Pittman, coming from a silver state, has always been interested in any kind of legislation which, either by first intent or incidentally, is calculated to improve the market for the white metal. In this case he has tied up the matter of the adjusted compensation certificates with a silver purchase proposition. Instead of having the bonus paid off with treasury notes—greenbacks—as provided in the Patman House bill, his measure would resort to another great bond issue. It is further provided that during the next eleven years the secretary of the treasury shall buy silver bullion up to two billion dollars, paying for it in silver certificates, the silver to be coined into dollars and held against the outstanding silver certificates. The seigniorage or profit from these transactions would go into a sinking fund for the payment of the bonus bonds. Also some other part of the silver or the certificates—in a manner not made at all clear by the Washington dispatches—is to go into the sinking fund.

We confess to a lack of complete understanding of the workings of this curious operation, but one thing appears fairly clear, the Pittman bill proposes considerably smaller payments to the holders of adjusted compensation certificates than does the House bill.

Ex-service men will want to know a good deal more about this measure than has yet been made public before they seriously consider assenting to its substitution for the House bill. So will a good many others. On the face of things it looks like a not too attractive sop to win away the silver state senator from support of the House bonus bill.

WAGNER BILL FADES

So well informed a news agency as the Washington bureau of the New York Times foresees for the Wagner bill either marked modification or complete failure. There is considerable doubt, according to this authority, as to whether the bill will go through in any form.

While such a fate for the Wagner bill would not displease most industrialists and while it would be better to have it fall altogether than to pass as written, it is not improbable that both industry and labor would be better off for the creation of such an explicit law provided it were made to embody as careful restrictions upon the activities of labor unions as upon those of employers.

It should be remembered that this measure is calculated to clear up ambiguities and doubtful implications in the National Recovery Act which have been the cause of endless trouble. Only Senator Wagner appears to have concerned himself solely with clearing up these doubts with relation to employer action, leaving organized labor to do pretty much anything it felt like doing, no matter how unfair or outrageous. If the bill can be so amended as to hold both employers and employees to exact and equitable rules of conduct in their collective bargaining both industry and labor would be the better for having it on the statute books.

IN THE SENATE

The other day Senator Bailey of North Carolina was making a speech on the floor in opposition to the Bankhead cotton bill—a subject concerning which the Democratic Southern senators are fighting bitterly among themselves. Said he at one point:

But I bear testimony here in the Senate—and I think testimony ought to be borne here—that the secretary of agriculture has issued a command to us Americans that we must choose. I deny that America has to choose. America never has chosen. America has lived and grown and flourished and there has never been a man in America big enough to tell us that America must choose or whether or not America will choose.

And that was that. And what's more, 'Merica c'n kin th' pants off'n any segty of ag'lulture or any king or any ebody else that tries to make her choose anything or—oh, hell! Les' all go have a lit' sort—segty of ag'lulture 'n ev'body!

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

Sorry Story Is That of National Labor Board . . . Chiesler Gets the Last Word . . . CWA Dead in Name Only . . . Tugwell Still Is "in Good."

By RODNEY DUTCHER, Herald Washington Correspondent

Washington, March 29—The New Deal's gummiest inside story is that of the National Labor Board.

But shenanigans involving NLR have developed a knock-down capital-labor fight which labor is likely to win.

Part of industry, defying NIRA, kept on intimating and imposing company unions on employees. Ernest Weir of Weirton Steel conspicuously defied NLR as it sought an employee election in his plants.

NLR asked the Justice Department to prosecute. Boss Joe Guifrey of Pennsylvania, Weir's man, intervened for the steel man.

Roosevelt, fearing New Deal court tests, personally took over the case and vainly tried to persuade Weir. Then he officially empowered NLR to hold elections, but put NLR under NRA jurisdiction by ordering it to accept complaints referred to General Johnson's compliance section for review.

NLR floundered, with Chairman Wagner busy in the Senate, no vice chairman, and a few members appearing for hearings. Two conservative labor members, Dr. Leo Wolman and George Berry, favored enforcement by persuasion, not action.

Wolman, accused of delaying further Weirton action, resigned. Wagner, deciding that he not quit at a critical time, got him to cancel that.

Secretary Perkins led a group demanding that Wagner be free from Johnson. Roosevelt consented and she drafted a modification order for him. It was lost from F. D.'s desk while both sides stood for days with bated breath.

Roosevelt signed a newly prepared order Feb. 23, but not until March 3, after Johnson's field day for critics had produced hot fire at Weirton and other cases of NIRA breakdown, did he issue it.

He simultaneously strengthened the board by giving it two vice chairmen and some new members. After discussion at the White House, NLR, with Wolman absent and not voting, again referred the Weirton case to the Department of Justice for prosecution.

Wagner, disgusted with delays and NLR's internal situation on top of industrial defiance, had decided to pin his faith on his bill to abolish company unions and give NLR unquestioned legal power.

The great capital-labor fight impends in Congress, yet Weir's lawyers easily can drag out his case in the courts until NIRA expires, summer after next.

That gives employees fired for union activity plenty of time to starve.

Chiesler Gets Last Word
 PWA made a new type of chiseling in a southern state where its advisory board chairman was holding daily meetings, with the seeming idea of collecting regularly the $10 a day salary provided for such officials—when they work. Other state boards meet every week or two.

Deputy Administrator Henry M. Waite, touring the country, fired this unusual official when he arrived at the spot. That night, as honor guest at a banquet, he found the man billed as a speaker. And he had to listen to a strong diatribe at PWA policies in Washington.

INFERIORITY COMPLEX CURABLE

Yes, the inferiority complex can be overcome. If you have an inferiority complex, do something about it. You can lose your sense of inferiority and find out that you have all the powers you need. If you may take several weeks of effort to build up your self-confidence, but the patient with the ordinary case of inferiority complex can do great deal toward overcoming his mental twist and even extreme cases yield to treatment although expert help may be required at the start.

Here are some of the things for you to do in building up a healthy self-confidence: Begin now to build up your own powers by doing. Action is your best medicine. You must create new habits to take the place of those which have limited and stopped you. Each time that you notice a feeling of inferiority, replace it with a thought of confidence. Use positive pictures and see yourself as actually doing those things which you want to do. Say to yourself many times each day, "I am self-confident." Every time you meet a person you are to think to yourself, "What kind thing can I do for you?" The day will come when you find YOU HAVE THE SAME POWER AS ANYONE ELSE. Keep on using your powers in a way that will do you good.

Remember that each time that you use your emotional power in a way that is good, you weaken the old habit of inferiority which was not good. You grow more confident day by day and the more you practice the habit of replacing a feeling of inferiority with a feeling of confidence, the more rapidly you will recover. You will then plunge through the fences of shyness, embarrassment, and fear as though they were tissue paper.

After you regain a feeling of self-confidence, you will learn to place a true value on yourself. Remember, the value of those who have limited value on yourself and let your own worth in a dollar. To try to claim them out in a hurry, he marked them down to 4c. He watched one woman after another pick up an apron and lay it down because it was so cheap that it was not reliable merchandise. CHEVROLET HEAD HAS VITAL ROLE IN AUTO FRACAS

Magnate Who Will Have Charge of Auto Settlement Urges Discipline in Industry.

Detroit, March 29—William S. Knudsen's somewhat battered brown felt hat drops flop on the papers atop his large roll-top desk. Until the very moment when his giant frame sinks into the chair, the brown hat was right where General Motors people are accustomed to see it—on the head of the executive vice-president of the world's greatest auto building plant.

In any of the dozens of G-M offices, or in the corridors or offices of the mammoth G-M building here, that tall, slightly-stooped figure of Knudsen may be seen, the brown badge of an ex-informally tilted back on his Viking head.

Voicing Attitude Toward Labor Ills
 "It's like giving the baby an alarm clock to play with!"

In that one snort of disgust tinged with just a little pity, he expresses for the whole upper hierarchy of auto industrialists their opinion of the current government efforts to regulate the auto industry. His hand traces on a paper the names of four men active in this work. "What do they know about building automobiles?" he asks. "I doubt if some of them know what makes an auto go. Yet they go ahead and issue regulations like the new Wagner bill that are not legislation at all. They are simply the assumption of executive power in the industry. We would probably have to go to court to protect ourselves if that bill passed."

It is Knudsen who will have as much as any man to do with putting into effect the auto industry settlement.

"We have been conscious for a long time of the evils of seasonal production," he says. (This was one of the points specifically mentioned in the agreement.) "We have for some time had a plan before the NRA suggesting means of keeping employment and production more constant throughout the year. But you can go only so far with that. People want to drive new cars in the summer time, and they buy them from mid-April to mid-May, just like they buy a straw hat on Decoration Day. There's no sense to it, but that's the way people are, and as long as they're that way, you can't do much about it."

Auto Show Blamed For Seasonal Rush
 Incidentally, other Detroit interests are suggesting that one of the causes of this seasonal rush is the annual New York Auto Show. They suggest that this starts all makers off on a single date into a competing rush to get into production as fast as possible. These people suggest that the New York show be eliminated, and an all-year "mart" be maintained in Detroit, at which builders could introduce new improvements and changes as fast as they were developed, entering on their production at any time during the year rather than immediately after the New York show.

"Why have the manufacturers been so firmly against the closed shop, and maintained that it would turn the industry over to the unions?"

Knudsen's answer is prompt. "The minute you have exclusive union recognition, you have the closed shop; the minute you have the closed shop, you have seniority

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Question: Mrs. E. C. of Vancouver, B. C. writes: "What are some of the causes of diarrhea? Please answer through the Sun."

Answer: Diarrhea may be due to Colitis or to Amebic Dysentery and in some cases it is brought on by a meal containing unsuitable food substances which are eliminated through the bowel in the excessive movements.

Question: From Mrs. K. D. P. of Greenville, N. Y.: "I have been using the juice of four or five lemons a day as I have heard that it is helpful in building up resistance. Do you think I should stop it?"

Answer: I would suggest that you continue to use the lemon juice providing it is taken in between the meals. Lemons are an alkaline forming food and also contains vitamin C. There is considerable reason to believe that they do actually help to build up resistance against disease.

(Catching Cold Easily)
 Question: I. H. C. of New Orleans writes: "Could you give me some deep breathing exercises to develop my lungs? I would also like to know what you advise when the patient catches cold very easily."

Answer: I am sure that article on Catarrh and Colds, and the article called, "Breath Control," will prove helpful to you. I suggest that you write to me in care of the Times-Picayune and enclose one large, self-addressed envelope and 6c in stamps. If you will request these articles, I will be pleased to see that they are sent to you at your home address.

IN NEW YORK

By PAUL HARRISON

New York, March 31.—The beggars of Manhattan seem to have heard somewhat that money is freer and spirits are better here about, along Broadway, at least, there's more whimsy than when in their voices, less affectation of pain and urgent necessity.

"Mister kin I have an ol' rusty dime you s'kin a quarter?" "Mac, if you know how I need a drink, you'd give me a quarter?" "NRA, brother, means 'Never Refuse Alms'!" "Buy a pencil, mister I'm workin' my way t'rough collich."

It's a prosperity approach, and it seems to be getting results. One panhandler, who keeps fairly well dressed, always asks for a dollar. The sheer audacity of his request usually stops the prospective sucker, and the donation, if any, is seldom less than a quarter. Scores of mendicants put on "acts" for their money. One banjo-saxophone team of supposed blind men lives comfortably in a mid-town hotel and last summer attended the Chicago world's fair.

A singing pair, made up like crippled war heroes, one in a wheeled chair, appear on Broadway every few months and reap a shower of coins.

Subway Backet
 A fellow with no dramatic talent works the subway trains. He'll leap to his feet with a groan and a grimace, looking so wild eyed that other passengers are frightened. "For God's sake, help me!" he'll shout. "I've got to do something, my little girl is both sick and starving!" Collectors are generous. When anybody takes his name and address they're always found to be fictitious.

Newspaper publicity not long ago broke up a dramatic racket that was being staged on street corners. The "actor" who begged for his two little children, all accomplished weepers, and a second woman who appeared fairly prosperous. The mother would pause on a crowded sidewalk, look into her purse, and begin sobbing bitterly, the youngsters whimpering in sympathy.

Sort of People Who Beg
 Now and then one of the thousands of panhandlers arrested annually by the mendicant squad will turn out to be the owner of a big limousine or the occupant of a fancy hotel suite. Most of them are less provident folk who toss their money along as fast as it's thrown to them. A scientist made a survey of the city's vagabonds a few years ago, and out of each hundred men he discovered that 48 were advanced alcoholic cases, 17 were drug addicts, 73 were mentally unsound, 19 were illiterates and one a college graduate. Seventy were native-born Americans, 13 were ex-convicts.

It is estimated that there are at least 10,000 professional beggars in New York City. Not bums, you understand, or those thousands of broken-spirited down-and-outers who haunt the municipal lodging houses and the breadlines. Or mission "stiffs" who deliver their souls each night in exchange for "java, punk and a flap"—which means coffee, bread and bed. The 10,000 are men and women who work hard at their trade, make a good living, and wouldn't take an honest job if they could get one.

rights, inability of the employer to hire or promote for efficiency, or to fire for inefficiency. You have a stifling blanket of rules and regulations less than he could get it for anywhere else, but what do we get—charges of chiseling money out of our employees! Our welfare system has been good enough at Chevrolet that not a single Chevrolet employee has had to go on welfare who has not been currently or even recently on the payroll.

"It isn't true that we fire men for belonging to unions. No man to my knowledge has ever been fired for this. But the men are not permitted to solicit and harangue others during working time. You've got to have discipline."

Knudsen, who is just 55, came to the United States at the turn of the century with a few dollars in his pocket, the groundwork of a sound technical education obtained in his native Copenhagen, and no English at all. He worked in bicycle and engine plants until in 1913 he went with Ford. Nearly 40 years ago he became operating manager of Chevrolet and then its president. It is on him that the burden of bringing about any new adjustments throughout the vast General Motors will fall. It need not be said that despite his large library (one of the best collections of Spinoza) Knudsen is a practical man, interested in what ought to be done only insofar as it can be done.

THE THIRD MAN

Heralded as a settlement of the automobile labor trouble, the tentative agreement between the employers and the employees now appears to be considerably less than a positive assurance of peace in the industry. Already both sides in the controversy are beginning to have doubts as to precisely what they have agreed to. The avoidance of a great strike looks more like a postponement than an elimination; the situation more like a state of truce than of treaty.

Into this somewhat uncertain state of affairs comes the naming by the government of Dr. Leo Wolman as the public's member of the so-called Grievance Board created to carry out the terms of the agreement; he is also to be chairman.

WORK IS RESUMED ON NEW CUNARD

Expect Giant Liner Will Be Finished in Glasgow by Autumn.

Glasgow, March 29.—(AP)—The countryside along the Clyde was brightened today by news that the work on the giant Cunard liner 534, suspended 27 months ago, will be resumed next Tuesday.

It was officially announced that the launching probably will be made in the autumn. The resumption of the work will be gradual and it is likely that some weeks will pass before a full complement of work is employed.

The resumption of work follows the merger of the Cunard and White Star lines by which their North Atlantic fleet will be jointly operated. The government, which is financing the work, arranged to assist in completing the big new liner.

CARE OF BABIES' EYES IMPORTANT

State Bureau Director Warns of Infection Which May Cause Harm.

Careful attention to babies' eyes during the first few weeks of life and the summoning of a physician in case of swelling, puffing or discharging of pus are of utmost importance in avoiding irreparable damage or perhaps blindness.

Particularly one infectious disease of infants' eyes has led to one of the most common forms of unnecessary blindness, Dr. Talbot said. Twenty years ago, about 30 per cent of the blind or between 6,000 and 7,000 individuals were blind from this cause, but in recent years this infantile infection was responsible for only 8.5 per cent of those totally blind—an achievement brought about largely through preventive care.

This preventive treatment was developed about 50 years ago by a German obstetrician named Crede. It reduced the incidence of blindness in babies in spectacular fashion. Many states including Connecticut now require that this treatment be administered to all infants.

Information from the Connecticut State Board of Education for the Blind shows, he said, that of 13 children with this infection who were followed up in a period of five years, most of these cases occurred within a week after the birth of the child. Three of these 13 occurred when the children were two years or more of age. The eyes of these three cases undoubtedly became infected because of home conditions, which were the result of contaminated articles, such as hand-towels. These infections are due to inexcusable carelessness on the part of some adult, Dr. Talbot declared. Of the 13 eye infections referred to previously, it was fortunate that, because a physician was called in time and the cases treated properly, the eyesight of seven of the cases was saved. One eye in each of three cases was rendered totally blind—two of these cases had no physician in attendance. Only two cases out of this group resulted in blindness. The other case has light perception only.

CATHEDRALS IN ROME OBSERVE HOLY WEEK

Church Bells Ring and Edifices Resound With Hymns of Glorification Today.

Rome, March 29.—(AP)—In Rome's many cathedrals and churches this morning a brief period of religious ecstasy held away as devoted Catholics from many nations flocked to Holy Thursday services commemorating the anniversary of Christ's institution of the Eucharist.

During the "Gloria in Excelsis" climax of the commemorative reverence, Rome re-echoed with the clanging of church bells and the temples resounded with hymns of glorification.

Then the bells were silenced suddenly. Music of the swelling organs was stilled. At that moment Rome began to mourn the passion and death of Christ.

No church bells will be heard until Saturday noon and only the mourning chants of the choirs will be permitted in the temples.

Queer Twists In Day's News

Pittsburgh—A negro entered a small grocery store and ordered candy. When 72-year-old William Tramer turned to get it, he heard the command "hand over your dough."

The aged storekeeper dropped behind a counter and the intruder opened fire. He was greeted by an unexpected volley of shots from the rear of the place. The negro, identified as Henry Perry, didn't live to learn that Kramer's son, Edmund, recently appointed to "the force" was visiting his father.

Seattle—Two automobiles crashed. A police dog, riding in the rumble seat of one them, disappeared. He never has come back.

In a court action, the owner asked $500 for the dog, as well as damages to the car. Judge W. B. Hawkins granted damages for the car, but none for the dog.

Portland, Ore.—On the spot where a small red rubber balloon found on the ice of Lake Champlain had a tag attached asking the finder to notify authorities at Hot Springs. It was released in a balloon race contest March 4, taking at the most 24 days to make the 2,000 mile flight.

Salisbury, Md.—Looking over a line of men waiting at the Federal emergency relief office. Chief of Police Holland picked out a negro and identified him as Preston Waters, wanted in an adjoining county for murder.

Cumberland, Md.—The person who stole 49 tickets for the opera "Lulu" at the "Lulu" theater, will have little use for them. The management discarded the entire set and substituted a different series.

Santiago, Chile—Senor Terrablancia, a sexton at the General cemetery was called upon to pronounce a funeral oration over the remains of a fellow grave digger. He opened his mouth to begin and dropped dead.

SOVIET AERIAL RESCUE PARTY REACHES NOME

Favorable Weather Awaited by Fliers Seeking to Assist 89 Stranded on Floe.

Nome, Alaska, March 29.—(AP)—A Soviet aerial rescue party hoped for favorable weather conditions today as its members prepared to fly to the assistance of 89 Russians stranded on the Arctic ice pack 350 miles northwest of here.

Snow was falling as the large plane, carrying three Russian fliers and two American pilots landed here late yesterday after a 200-mile flight from Nulato on the Yukon river.

Word by wireless from the refugees, stranded on an ice pack when their steamer sank, February 13, said only two weeks of food supplies remained. In addition to the shortage of food, the party faces the danger of a break-up of the ice pack.

Professor George Yunahoff, leader of the rescue expedition, plans to remove the refugees to the mainland, later bringing them here for transportation back to Russia.

SILK CODE AUTHORITY MEETS TWICE MONTHLY

New York, March 29.—The Silk Textile Code Authority decided at its regular weekly meeting yesterday, to hold two meetings a month instead of four as has been the custom since the Code went into effect last October.

The meetings will be held on the second and fourth Tuesday in each month. Peter Van Horn, chairman of the Code Authority, was given a vote of confidence immediately after the announcement that James A. Goldsmith was retiring as chairman. Mr. Goldsmith sat as chairman of the last two meetings at the request of Mr. Van Horn.

The Code Authority also voted to name an executive committee which will act with Mr. Van Horn on routine matters. Mr. Van Horn said he will make the names of this committee public in a few days.

TEXTILE OUTPUT AT HIGH LEVEL

Mills Have Work Until July Despite Recent Drop in Orders.

New Bedford, Mass., March 28.—In spite of the limited demand for textiles during the last three weeks mills have orders on hand which will keep their machinery busy until early July. In many instances mill agents reported the contracts which they accepted some months ago will not begin to run out until the first of September and later, thus assuring the operatives employment during the summer.

One mill in New Bedford which resumed operations several weeks ago has enough business to last it until early July. So optimistic is the management of this corporation that preparations are under way to get additional departments in the other plant ready for operation. One of the most successful textile mills in New England, located in New Bedford and producing novelties, in addition to its general range of fabrics, accepted some sizable orders during the week for fancied colored bordered handkerchiefs. This business will mean that a number of looms will be kept busy for at least two months.

Original Designs It has been the aim of most mills in New England to attain as much flexibility as possible because New York and other converters demand textiles which are different from the general run of patterns and these designs must be original and possess an appeal to the eye. This is especially true of women's outer wear. Mills which are in a position to meet the demand for these new creations are in a good way to secure a sufficient amount of business to keep their machinery running for some time. The head of one of the most versatile mills in New England stated a few days ago that it was absolutely necessary for him to bring into existence a line of new fabrics which are entirely different even from some of the intricate fancies in order to stimulate business and to meet the severe exactions of the trade.

Trend Forces Mill Change The changes in the trend of styles for women's wear demand much "changing over" by the mills. This entails additional manufacturing cost. A number of mills which had reduced corps of designers have added to their personnel and this department of the mill is kept very busy. In some instances mills have been forced to compete with woolen and worsted mills in the matter of designs. One concern in New Bedford showed a new pattern which is about to be exhibited to the trade for fall wear. This fabric has the appearance of a brown woolen cloth and only a close view and a feel of the cloth disclose that it is made of rayon filling and cotton warp.

Knitted Goods Another line of cloth that is being manufactured by the mills to a considerable extent is a fabric that resembles knitted goods. In some instances according to mill agents this fabric will be made into skirts for women with a blouse of a different texture. Stylists claim that the combination has made a decided hit with the women. In this connection it may be stated that yarn mills which do not do any weaving have benefited to a considerable extent because of the fact that some mills have brought out a cloth which is composed of filling yarn having a popcorn or ratine effect. This appearance on the yarn is due to a large extent to the amount of twist put in either on the frames or as the result of a special process in twisting. Those mills which specialized in the manufacture of goods containing rayon and silk report that they are doing a very fair business, and it is a known fact that prices which have been named by them and accepted by the trade show a good profit in many instances.

Fine Yarn in Demand It was reported during the week that one of the largest manufacturers of lines who produces his own fine yarn is so conditioned that he has found himself unable to supply enough of yarn for his own requirements and has given a substantial order to another yarn mill to supply the yarn. According to reports from cotton yarn mills, buyers of yarn insist upon a certain form of package and this means additional expense in manufacture. The cloth trade, the electrical trade, knitters of underwear and other users require that their yarns be either filling or warp yarn or put on winders according to the uses the yarns are to be put.

The mills of Fall River report that they are doing a fair-sized business and that additional help being taken on increases as new business warrants. One of the oldest textile mills in Fall River is about to reorganize and it is

NILA CRAM COOK NOT WELCOME YET

But New Relatives Will Greet Her When Things Have Quieted Down a Bit.

Wilmington, Del., March 29.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hutchins invited a visit from Hutchins' son, Albert, and his bride, the former Nila Cram Cook—but not now.

The 28-year-old mess boy on the ship which brought him and Mahatma Gandhi's former disciple from India telephoned his father and stepmother last night. The brown-eyed bride, a native of Iowa, joined in the conversation.

"Albert called us from New York last night," said Mrs. Hutchins. "Nila talked with us, too, and we explained that there had been a lot of publicity over this marriage and that, as neither Mr. Hutchins nor I like it, it might be well to postpone their visit to us until things have quieted down."

"We could welcome Albert and his bride of course, but we feel it would be better for them to go somewhere else on their wedding trip and come to us later."

The bride has evinced a yearning for the banks of the Mississippi.

AMUSEMENTS STARS, SPECTACLES FILL 'WONDER BAR'

Hit Coming to State On Sunday Reaches New High in Features.

Never in the memory of this town has there been staged a show of such magnitude and magnificence as the First National production of "Wonder Bar" which has its premiere at the State Theater, Sunday, continuing through Wednesday.

"Wonder Bar" is not just another musical. Warner Bros. First National has produced three great musicals: "Gold Diggers of 1933," "Footlight Parade," in the past year. It was held that they had hit the high spots with these three productions; that they could not go on indefinitely putting out greater spectacles.

But Warner Bros. First National have again done the seemingly impossible. "Wonder Bar" is something entirely new, so vastly different from anything that has gone before that there is no means of comparison. It surpasses its predecessors not only in its uniqueness and novelty, but in the beauty and grandeur of its spectacle and its throbbing drama of life.

And what a cast! Six brilliant stars, with a dozen featured players to say nothing of five hundred other performers. Johnson has his old stage role which he enacts with all of his old time fire and enthusiasm as one of the world's greatest entertainers. He sings two catchy new songs in English and a Russian gypsy melody, as well as acting as master of ceremonies at the gay Parisian night club where the drama is set.

Kay Francis is stately and charming wife of a wealthy banker who has lost her head over a cabaret singer. Dolores Del Rio, the magnetic brunette and the dazzling Ricardo Cortez make an excellent team as the dancing marvels of "Wonder Bar" cabaret, whose fiery and impassioned last performance of the newly invented "Gaucho" dance ends in the stabbing of the lover.

Other notable performers in the cast include Guy Kibbee, Hugh Herbert, Louise Fazenda, Ruth Donnelly, Fritz O'Shea, Henry O'Neill, Robert Barrat, Merna Kennedy and Henry Kolker, all of whom do excellent work.

It is impossible adequately to describe the magnificence of the spectacles created and directed by Busby Berkeley, that master craftsman who sets the numbers not only for "Wonder Bar," but for "Gold Diggers of 1933," "Footlight Parade," and "Gold Diggers of 1933." The number called "Don't Say Good Night" set on a revolving stage and encircled by gigantic pillars and glass, is a revelation in beauty and splendor and can be appreciated only by being seen.

Three hundred of Hollywood's most beautiful dancing and singing girls romp through this and other numbers amid a riot of color and dazzling light effects.

Lloyd Bacon, who guided Johnson through the "Singing Fool," in the early days of the talkies, has guided the various parts of this mammoth production into a complete dramatic entity that makes it thoroughly balanced entertainment. Earl Baldwin wrote the screen play while the catchy music and lyrics are by Harry Warren and Al Dubin. If you only go to one show a year, this is the one you should not miss.

EVERETT HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS ON STRIKE

Everett, Mass., March 29.—(AP)—Everett High school, where a student strike was unceremoniously quelled by teachers last week, was damaged to the extent of several thousands of dollars during the night. Vandals entered the building through a rear window, turned on two fire hoses on the third floor and left them running throughout the night.

A policeman saw water running from under the front door of the school at 7:30 a. m., and investigation showed water pouring down through the stairs and ceilings.

The teachers received advance information of the planned strike last week and broke it up by dragging the leaders out of lines leaving the building and keeping them in separate rooms.

BUS NEARLY RUNS DOWN BRIDGEPORT POLICEMAN

Bridgeport, March 29.—(AP)—Joseph Ravaglia of 387 North 18th street, Newark, N. J., found out today that the men he nearly ran down with his Springfield-New York bus last Monday afternoon were Captain Philip T. Bianzfeld and Patrolman John Erickson of the Third Precinct.

Ravaglia was brought back to Bridgeport today by his employers and released on bond for hearing Saturday on a charge of reckless driving. Captain Bianzfeld said he and Erickson had alighted from a street car by the precinct station house at Fairfield avenue a little after 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, when they were started into a sudden leap for the curb and safety by the squeal of hastily applied brakes behind them.

Best Way to Drink Wine? Bite It, Says Surgeon

New York, March 29.—(AP)—Dr. Adolph Lorenz, the famous Viennese surgeon, called for home today after sipping a few sashes into the American wine drinker's goblet. "You must learn," he said, "not to swallow your wine. Swallowing is bad manners."

"I don't getcha, Doc," someone interjected. "The proper way to take wine is to bite it." "You mean," said the same interrupter, "to let it freeze in chunks, and then bite it?"

The doctor indicated he meant no such thing. "In Vienna we call it wine biting," he continued. "Wine must be bitten and not swallowed. You Americans must learn to appreciate the difference between the tongue and the palate."

Dr. Lorenz did not indicate specifically just how the wine, once bitten, was to continue on its journey down the gullet without swallowing. The impression he gave was that when one has become a proficient biter, the wine proceeds automatically to its destination.

He spoke very highly of California wines. "They are very good," he said. "Not as good as European wines, but very good. They are young, and they will be much better when they get older."

Hartford, March 29.—(AP)—The second rapid rise of the Connecticut river this season has been noted during the past 24 hours, with indications of a full-sized freshet within two days if warm weather continues throughout the valley. During part of the night, the rise was one-fifth of a foot an hour, which rate has seldom been surpassed, and the river gauge at 10:30 a. m., measured 10.2 feet. The measurement has doubled during the week. At midnight it was 8.7.

The Boy or Girl Who Refuses to Eat

"What have I ever done to deserve a child who refuses to eat, and is just skin and bones?" The mother who asks that question might be surprised to learn that she alone is to blame. She knows a lack of appetite is the sign of a clogged system, but does the wrong thing to remedy the condition. A violent cathartic that upsets the stomach pulls down a child like a spell of sickness. It often forms the laxative habit. A more sensible way of regulating children is explained in the column to the right.

It's a lucky girl whose mother knows how to regulate her children's bowels without some strong, evicting cathartic that upsets the system and ruins their appetite! SEND OUT INVITATIONS FOR DE MOLAY BALL HERE

Music and Decoration Committee Combine to Make Function Best in the Chapter's History.

The committee in charge of arrangements for the sixth annual DeMolay ball today announced that invitations are being distributed in town and mailed to DeMolay Chapters throughout Connecticut. Preliminary plans for the affair have already been completed and all indications point to one of the most successful balls of recent years.

The music committee has been in communication with several of New England's leading dance orchestras and promises a highly attractive musical organization for the occasion. In order to arrange an attractive setting the decoration committee has completed a widely known interior decorator and is making extensive plans to change the Temple dance floor into a beautiful ballroom. It is the earnest desire of local DeMolay to present to the dance following of Manchester and surrounding cities and towns a semi-formal dance unparalleled in the history of the Chapter and every effort will be made to accomplish this.

LATEST STOCKS

New York, March 29.—(AP)—Financial markets maintained a steady to firm position today and various securities and commodities appeared to have benefited from a mild revival of inflationary sentiment.

The currency expansion implications attached to the overriding of the presidential veto of the Independent Offices appropriation bill by the Senate apparently did not bring the buying rush that might have resulted under other circumstances. Trading was dull.

Some of the metal stocks and a few specialties were put up 1 to around 3 points in quiet dealings. Grains, silver and rubber improved. Cotton rallied about 1/2 cent. Stealing jumped 2 cents in terms of the dollar, probably in response to the veto news, but other foreign exchanges were narrow. U. S. government bonds eased. Secondary corporation issues did better. Shares of U. S. Smelting advanced more than 2, while Doms, American Smelting, McIntyre and Alaska Juneau gained 1 or more. There was a relatively large turnover in International Nickel at an improvement of 1-3 points. Others, up a point or so, included Texas Pacific Land Trust, Kelvintor, Wilson preferred A and Armour Preferred A. The rally was moderately higher. Such issues as U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Montgomery Ward, American Can, National Distillers, Chrysler, General Motors and Good-year just about held their own.

Many operators and most of the public were reported to have stepped aside because of the fact that the security exchanges will be closed tomorrow for the Good Friday holiday.

Lack of aggressiveness in leading stock groups, however, was attributed largely to pessimistic interpretations of the administration's actions change control bill. In some circles it was felt that if the measure goes through in its present form, the securities business may dwindle to extremely small proportions. There were few hopes that amendments satisfactory to the financial district would be approved by Congress.

Optimistic commentators pointed out that the technical condition of the market had improved considerably, that equities generally were inclined to be firm rather than reactionary in exceptionally dull sessions and that stocks, as a whole, seemed to be in fairly strong hands. There was still talk of a possible step-up in the price of gold in the near future, but most banking quarters were not inclined to anticipate any change in the existing rate until and unless other influences fail to work.

The ROMANTIC RUNAWAY

KATHARINE HAVILAND-TAYLOR

FABLITO, a handsome youth, becomes a fugitive when, due to circumstance beyond his control, he flees from Key West to Havana with BEAU and LOTTIE, two thieves.

Beau has killed a man and stolen a famous string of pearls at the Florida home of wealthy JIM FIELD. FABLITO does not know this or that he himself is accused of the crime. FABLITO loves Field's daughter, ESTELLE, and she loves him. MARCIA TREADWAY knows FABLITO is innocent but fears scandal if she tells this.

In Havana FABLITO tries to find NORBIS NOYES who befriended him as a child but his efforts fail. Beau, impressed by FABLITO's natural ability as a boxer, arranges several profitable matches for him.

Meanwhile SIR AUBREY, a titled Englishman and FABLITO's father, is trying to find his son.

Estelle fields another die. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXV

In November in little Guanajuay where the tobacco is grown "Juanito" fought a sailor who had declared his willingness to meet "anyone anywhere."

Beau arranged for a cock fight to precede the match. This drew the crowd but they remained to watch and cheer and depart declaring enthusiastically that this new and beautifully brutal sport was good.

"Juanito" and his opponent had met in a great shed where tobacco was usually stored. Lanterns supplied the only light and the corners were dark. FABLITO, standing erect and waiting, saw a sea of swarthy faces. Then Beau rang a huge bell.

Presently Beau rang the bell again and the boy who was fighting FABLITO staggered against the ropes. Blood was on his face, streaming from a cut over his eye. FABLITO stood back; Beau fanned him ardently. Then again the bell sounded.

When at last the sailor was lying on the platform breathing loudly, FABLITO crept to his corner and sank into his chair. The Cubans were screaming their approval. Money was changing hands. FABLITO rose, spoke a few words, and again the spectators went mad. He spoke Spanish perfectly, and was proud of himself and was a hero.

Soon afterward the proprietor of a private athletic club heard of this new boxer, "Juanito," and hunted up Beau.

Beau did not know whether "Juanito" would be interested in a good purse to tempt him to fight, he confided. But the club proprietor had patrons who came from New York and wanted more than cock fights for their entertainment. He said at length, cautiously, that he thought he could make it worth "Juanito" to fight.

Beau said to FABLITO, "Not a cent under $5000 for the first fight. And I get a third of the purse! See?" FABLITO saw. He estimated his winnings from a year or two of fighting and saw himself with Noyes in some secluded corner of the world where there would be peace and a sort of security. That was all that he could hope for.

A priest, whose abode was in a narrow, dark way back of one of Havana's churches received a letter about this time from one he had sheltered.

"I am weak enough at moments," Noyes wrote, "to brood on what would come from my telling the truth, as I told it to you. I am tempted because I know that if I did my money would be mine again and would help me much in finding FABLITO. On the other hand, there is my duty to think of and my own son who must by this time be a man."

"I have been paying a long while for my sin and know that I must continue to pay. Pray for me, Father, and for the woman of whom I told you—the best woman I have ever known."

Three years later in a dim old library in an English country home Sir Aubrey wrote a check payable to the American detective agency that employed Billings. With the check Sir Aubrey sent a letter, one line of which read: "I want you to keep on with the case."

Billings himself wanted to keep on with the case. He had become interested in locating the boy who was, he decided in his low ebb moments, probably dead. He certainly was nutty about this case!" he murmured often. Yet the tangled haunted him.

The spring before he had made a trip to England to see Sir Aubrey and his healthy, red-cheeked, lawyer-haired daughters. Mr. Billings, being imaginative, saw the old house at Lower Girtings in the hands of a somewhat rough young buccaneer who would "strut things up a little" and saw the village being put upon an "up-to-date" basis.

"What you lack here," he said bluntly to Sir Aubrey, "is pop!" Sir Aubrey, somewhat at a loss, replied vaguely, "No doubt." Then he quickly changed the subject.

Marcia Treadway was leaner, sharper and three years more weary of the world. She sat, one February morning, in the boudoir of her New York home, eating breakfast and reading her letters. The boudoir's walls and furnishings were a riot of purple, blue and green—a result of a fashionable decorator's ideas of "the new color harmonies."

There were a great many letters on the tray and sometimes, after a brief glance at an envelope, FABLITO would toss one, unopened, into a wastebasket. This gave her a sort of malicious enjoyment and at the same time the cautious side of her nature would open the letter later and read carefully all that Marcia did not read at all. If there were news of any importance the maid would be sure later to report it in a shamefaced, devious manner. This, too, gave Marcia pleasure because she could be sharp with Marie about spying.

Not so she picked up a letter with a Havana postmark and slit it open, recognizing Estelle Field's handwriting.

The letter read: "Dear Miss Treadway: Father and I hope very much that you can meet me in a great shed where tobacco was usually stored. Lanterns supplied the only light and the corners were dark. FABLITO, standing erect and waiting, saw a sea of swarthy faces. Then Beau rang a huge bell.

"I have been traveling with father in South America for some time, meeting no friends, and have been quite lonely. That is the reason I especially want you to come, anyway. I hope you are quite well. Father and I are well but a little tired from so much traveling."

"With my love, Estelle." Reading this letter, Marcia felt a warmth steal over her that she had not known for some time. She remembered Estelle vividly—a slender, coltish youngster who had thought Marcia's clothes immensely attractive and watched her with eyes widened by admiration.

"Poor little devil!" Marcia said aloud. Then she looked at the letter again, noticing that the handwriting was less school-girlish than it had been, though still marked by affectations.

Marcia reflected, her finely arched brows drawing closer together, that Estelle must be 18 or 19 by this time. Eighteen, she thought. And evidently she was oddly immature in some ways though probably, from close companionship with Jim, unhappily worldly about others.

Well, she thought, she decided, and stick it out even though it did prove to be "rather deady." Marcia rang for her maid then and asked for a cable blank.

"I shall love coming, darling," she scrawled.

Marcia had almost lost all hope of finding FABLITO during the three years that had passed but she had never been able to lose her sense of responsibility for the charges against him. She had employed detectives to search for him and, soon afterward, dismissed them. Her own search she had renewed after this failure but it brought no better results.

She considered the whole affair "damnable trying." At moments Marcia's irritation, which grew because for the first time she had learned what it was to be thwarted, turned against FABLITO himself. She would have known that this was unreasonable but there are women to whom reason is never a very important consideration. This is particularly true among those who have always been able to buy what they want whenever they want it with no thought of price.

Marcia had not been in Cuba for more than a year and at the prospect of the trip she felt a faint glow of pleasure. Jim Field's home, of course, would be a monstrosity—a new-rich castle. Well, she would have the pleasure of sneering at it while she enjoys it. Argentina could afford to stare at the ceiling and murmur, "Oh, my God, the murals!"

This feeling of superiority had become very dear to Marcia and she welcomed chances to display it. It served her solace for much she had missed.

Oh, yes, Marcia would go to Havana. She turned through the rest of her letters, aware of a vague sense of anticipation and excitement.

CWA CLOSES WORK SATURDAY NIGHT

Will Be Replaced by FERA But Quota for Manchester Has Not Been Set.

All CWA workers in Manchester, including the six members of the administrative staff, will be "technically laid off" this Saturday night. Pay unchanged.

Hayden Griswold, supervising engineer for the CWA in Manchester, emphasized today, however, that the Federal Emergency Relief Commission will replace the CWA. This means that those on the charity list will merely be transferred from the CWA to the FERA. Pay for work will be unchanged.

According to Mr. Griswold today, the quota of 288 men, excluding two who were on the payroll but did not work this week, were engaged on the following local projects: six, administrative; 24, traveling roads; 72, engaged in the building of highways; 85, forestry work; 49, painting and repairing jobs; 19, engaged on the Princeton street project; 15, engaged in the work of installing a sanitary sewer at Manchester Green; two, doing electrical work at the High School; 11, trimming trees and other painting "ship" signs on the highways passing through this town.

No Work Monday Mr. Griswold said today there would be no CWA work in Manchester carried on Monday. He also pointed out that the FERA quota for Manchester has not yet been determined. The Manchester Green sewer job, he declared, would be completed today.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

There is an old saying that a person is no better than his stomach. I can vouch for the truth of this. I lay most of my sins of omission and commission to the fact that I have never been "strong" due to the result of two devastating illnesses in childhood.

No one can write from the heart, or with conviction, who has not had this experience. The strong, well person cannot have the gift of understanding the misery and discouragement of chronic weakness. Even parents, although they are sympathetic and worried, cannot possibly interpret the struggle such a child goes through. The well never understands the sick, and the most heartless (unintentionally) people are those who have never been in bed a day in their lives.

Such people acknowledge illness only when it has a "name" and the patient is tucked between sheets with the doctor stopping at the door. But it just happens that a certain physical defect is not so dramatized. It goes by no name, or is not recognized at all.

Age And Youth Old, middle-aged and young often walk with one or seven devils tearing at them somewhere and yet the world expects these weak chemical engines to pull the train up hill and down dale with the same speed and energy as their more fortunate neighbors. We make allowance for age, and even for youth. But we make almost no allowance for children.

Actually, the majority of children are healthy, but if we knew the truth, there are thousands trying to carry on the daily burden of school and home responsibility that are not fit for it.

Sometimes recuperation after a severe illness takes months. Even the most sympathetic and understanding mother will begin to worry after a while about school and she may say something like this: "You're missing so much. It's going to be hard to make up. I think by Monday or Tuesday you'd better be starting on your back work and I'll send for your books."

Lowering Resistance Jimmy lies in bed and worries, or frets about the house and work. Then finally he gets at bank lessons when his mind is in no state to be driven, or his body, either. And so the records of the school won't look too settled, and it avoids the humiliation of not passing, he studies or is sent back to school before he is quite ready. The reserve gained is used up. He loses interest in all school work, his appetite goes and tonics are reported to be built him up.

Then we are terribly surprised when a month or two later the child who was so well before goes down with a second illness, something entirely different, perhaps, but directly traceable to the first attack, as reduced vitality and detense leave the small body vulnerable to germs that suddenly become pathological.

We are told that the mind, itself, as a thinking machine, does not tire, but however true this may be, the brain is a physical as well as a mental organ and depends upon good blood and nourishment, and must be free of a trainload of worries to do its work.

Health Behind Behavior In the last five years, conditions have been adverse to child health and happiness. Poor environment, food leading to chemical variety, or even wanting altogether, and illness, receiving scant attention. The general health of our children has been depleted. Are they fit, therefore, to carry on as usual?

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Nothing is so aggravating as to put on a dress and at the last minute find that it must go to the cleaners because it shows perspiration stains. Losing your temper won't help the dress nor prevent the stains from recurring.

A reliable deodorant will. And the price of a good one is small compared to even one cleaning bill. Besides, there's the angle of personal fastidiousness. The advertisements continually proclaim the hazards of perspiration odors and doubtless they are right. Certainly no dancing partner will kiss you or the loveliest bit of feminine softness that ever followed his steps if body odors war with your nicest evening perfume.

But cheer up! On the market now are preparations that do absorb work perfectly. There's a colorless liquid, for instance, that is to be put on under the arms twice a week when you start to use it—once a week after the first two months. Eventually you can even put down to once every two weeks and still be adequately protected. Put on at night, let it dry before you get into pajamas, and then rinse off in the morning before dressing.

COOKING THE EASTER HAM

In baking the whole ham or the ham butt, wash the ham or butt and place it in a covered roaster or baking pan with sufficient water to just cover the bottom of the pan. Then bake in a moderately slow oven, 300 degrees F., for about 45 minutes before the ham is in the oven. When the ham or butt is more than half done remove the rind and return to the oven. If desired a cup of fruit juice may be added at this point. If fruit juice is desired haste frequently. About 45 minutes before the ham is finished cooking dot with whole cloves and sprinkle with brown sugar. Complete baking uncovered.

Tests have been made in Italy with automobiles operated on a gas fuel made in transit from charcoal and steams.

TO ASSIST CHORUS IN FIRST CONCERT

Beethoven Club to Sing On Schubert Singers Program on April 11.

The Schubert Singers of Hartford will present their first annual concert on Wednesday evening, April 11, at the Emanuel Lutheran church of Hartford, under the direction of G. Albert Pearson of this town, who organized and directed the chorus. The Singers will be assisted by the Beethoven Glee Club of Manchester, which is under the leadership of Helge E. Pearson.

37 Members The Schubert Singers were organized by Albert Pearson on January 26, 1932, and the membership now totals 37 young men from many of the churches of Hartford. Mr. Pearson, who is prominent as a bass soloist and vocal teacher, besides being director of music at Manchester Junior High School, has made rapid progress with the chorus, which has made sixteen appearances in Hartford churches this season and has also sung at the Newington Home for Crippled Children and the Hartford Retreat.

Assisting Artists The Schubert Singers will also be assisted by Charlotte Robble Gray, Hartford contralto, and Robert Doellner, widely known local violinist. The Beethoven Club will appear individually and in a combined group with the Schubert Singers.

DIABETES DEATHS RISING "Sugar Disease" Fatalities Up Fifteen Times in Last Half Century. Most Deaths Than Men Found with Allment.

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Deaths from diabetes in the United States have risen as much as 15 times the rate of a little more than half a century ago.

In New York, for example, the rate per 100,000 population in 1886 was 2.1. In 1932, it was 29.2.

Perhaps even more serious is the fact that more women have been dying of diabetes than men. The death rates for men and women were about the same until about 1905. Then the rate among women began to rise more rapidly, so that by 1932 about twice as many women as men died of diabetes.

South American countries, diabetes, however, cannot be drawn, because insulin was introduced around 1923, and diagnosis has become more frequent.

A part of the reason for the greater number of cases found among women in recent years has been the improvement in diagnosis and the fact that women are being examined more frequently and regularly than they were in an earlier day.

Not all the people who have diabetes get an early diagnosis. The condition appears insidiously, and the symptoms are relatively mild in the early stages. Moreover, a latent form of diabetes, which is required to make a positive diagnosis.

This, and the fact that women are appearing more frequently in industry and similar occupations, requiring physical examinations, likely explains some of the increase in diabetes as found in women.

An interesting change brought about by the use of insulin in relationship to diabetes is the manner in which death occurs.

In an earlier day, people who died of diabetes used to die in coma—a form of unconsciousness which resulted from chemical changes in the body. Today the number of deaths from this cause has decreased greatly.

For instance, from 1900 to 1930 the number of diabetic deaths due to coma dropped 60 per cent. At the same time there was a rise of about 80 per cent in the deaths associated with changes in the heart, the circulation, the kidneys and with gangrene.

MASS. EDUCATOR TO SPEAK HERE

Deputy Commissioner Frank V. Wright to Lecture at High School Hall.

Frank V. Wright, deputy commissioner of education of Massachusetts, will lecture at the High School auditorium on Tuesday evening, April 10, under the auspices of the local Educational club. Mr. Wright will speak on "New Occasions to Teach New Duties."

The entire proceeds of the lecture will be used by the Educational club to defray the work it has undertaken in the local public schools. The club has defrayed all the expense of dental hygienist work in the schools since the work was halted by the town and also has furnished glasses for needy children with defective eyesight and provided milk and diets for undernourished children since the open air school was closed.

CONSTITUTIONAL COURT SITS ON LIQUOR CASE

He said that under the act drug addicts could sell in "dry" towns on Sundays and without regulation of hours.

"The act broadens the scope beyond anything that we've ever had," Spelly explained that the drugists were under no restriction from the liquor control commission and that they were only under self imposed restrictions which he said were not legal.

Other Speakers The court opened at 10:34 a. m., and Spelly made the opening court statement. He was followed by April and then Louis Evans of New Haven, representing sixty interveners talked. He was followed by Charles A. Harrison, also of New Haven, representing other interveners.

At 12:25 p. m. the plaintiff had concluded its arguments and the defense took the floor. Attorney General Warren B. Burrows addressed the court telling the judges that a motion to dismiss the injunction had been filed with the defendants answer to the complaint.

Burrows presented Deputy Attorney General Ernest L. Averill, who proceeded with the defense arguments.

AMERICAN LEAGUE IS BETTER BALANCED THAN IN A DECADE

SO SAYS COCHRANE, WHO BELIEVES ALL TEAMS ARE THREAT

Refuses to Predict Where Tigers Will Finish; Thinks Yanks and Senators Will Be Clubs to Beat.

Editor's Note: This is the fourth of a series of eight articles written for The Associated Press by big league managers, giving their views on the coming season.

By MICKEY COCHRANE (Manager, Detroit Tigers)

Lakeland, Fla., March 29.—(AP)—No matter where a lot of major league club clubs will wind up this year, including the Tigers, I am sure more aggressive spirit will be shown on the field and that the games will be more hotly contested. The American league, to my mind, is better balanced than at any time in the 10 years I have been in the circuit. Follows like Bucky Harris, Rogers Hornsby, Walter Johnson, Joe Cronin and myself—all either in a new job or with comparatively brief experience as a manager will have the teams hustling right from the start.

More clubs figure they have a chance to be in the pennant hunt than usual. No team is really outclassed so far as I can see, and a few good breaks for one club or another might upset all advance calculations. Senators and Yankees I consider the Senators and the Yankees as the clubs Detroit must beat if we are to be up there fighting for the championship. I feel sure we have a real first division prospect, but I would not care to make a flat prediction on where the Tigers will finish. Baseball has too many uncertainties to start trying to pay off before the race is even begun.

There is not a team in the league outside of Washington which hasn't at least one or two doubtful spots in the lineup. If the men we have available come through at third base and shortstop; if we get the power we expect from batters like Goose Goslin and big rick Greenberg, our first baseman will pitch in the lineup. Charter Oak Girls Down Middletown in 3 Games

Clicking in brilliant style last night, the Charter Oak Girls swept all three games of a State League match with the Middletown Girls at the Charter Oak alleys to bring their season's record to date to forty-three wins and seventeen losses. Although official standings are not available, it is believed that the local team is very close, if not ahead to the leaders.

It was the Charter Oaks last match before heading for Baltimore, Md., and the national duckpin tourney and the locals topped the pins in a manner that indicates they will be a strong threat in the southern city. Miss Gayeski of the visiting team stole the individual honors with a high three string of 342 and also tied Jennie Schubert for high single with 120.

STAR OF BRAVES BREAKS HIS LEG

"Rabbit" Maranville Breaks With Serious Accident in Exhibition Game.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 29.—(AP)—Walter "Rabbit" Maranville, second baseman on the Boston Braves, lay in a hospital today with a broken left leg but Manager Bill McKelchie said physicians gave him hope the "Rabbit" would be back in the lineup before the end of the 1934 season. Maranville, playing one of the best games of his 23 years in the big leagues, ran for home in the last half of the eighth inning during an exhibition game here yesterday with the New York Yankees. He crossed the plate standing up, fell over Catcher Norman Kies and was out—out of the lineup with a fracture midway between the knee and the ankle. He is 43 years old.

By ASSOCIATED PRESS. Los Angeles, March 29.—(AP)—Worried over his batting slump (a slump to Mr. Klein when he hits less than .310), Chuck Klein, hitting hero of the Cubs, is studying timing. "When you get in a slump," says Chuck, "Don't worry. Study your timing and all will be well."

CHAMPIONS EASILY OUTCLASS CHALLENGERS IN RAGGED TILT

"Gob" Turkington

Clarkemen Outplay and Outclass Rivals from Outset, Displaying Superb Defensive Game; Lead at Halftime 13-6; Turkington and Dowd Feature; Nervousness and Inexperience Factors in Decisive Defeat of Losers.

The National Guards easily defeated the Rangers in the opening game of the town title basketball series at the State Armory last night by a score of 32 to 16. In so doing, the Guards gave a small crowd of 300 fans the impression that they are perfectly capable of duplicating the victory next week and thereby capture the championship for the third consecutive year.

The Rangers went down fighting to the last, but the combination of extreme nervousness and inexperience proved too much of a handicap for Coach Hugh Greer's courageous quintet of youngsters to overcome. The Guards dominated the encounter from the outset and demonstrated a marked superiority over their rivals that was in evidence even when the score was close, which it was only in the first half of the tussle.

Coach Wilfred Clarke's charges, court veterans one and all, displayed much improvement but play for the most part was ragged throughout the game, both teams performing loosely, and the moments of excitement were few and far between.

Undoubtedly, the Rangers were a bit awed by the knowledge that they faced a team that has beaten many of the outstanding semi-pro outfits in the state. This was obvious in the slow and cautious manner in which they launched into offense. With their baptism into semi-pro basketball last night, it is possible that the Rangers will furnish stiffer opposition next week.

The team was outplayed and outclassed by its supporters feel that the Rangers are still very much to be reckoned with as a serious threat to the Guards' hopes of annexing another title.

Superb Defense The Guards played a superb defensive game that broke up the Rangers' highly vaunted passing attack almost before it got started and hurried the sharpshooters to such an extent that the Rangers scored only four times from the floor, Enrico sinking two twin-pointers from long range and DellaFera and Raguskus getting one each. Antonio, Rangers' scoring ace, was held scoreless by Mattson and Falkoski.

Turkington easily outjumped Schuetz at center and also gained the brilliant game as Enrico Dowd and both were ably assisted by the remainder of the team. The Guards' attack was the one weak point, the ball being lost many times through slipshod passing, but even this failing was not pronounced enough to cause much trouble.

The Guards tried to speed up the contest after a slow start but the Rangers refused to open up to any great degree and the game turned into more or less of a routine affair that was saved from becoming dull and uninteresting by the way the Guards made sporadic scoring sprays that kept the team in front by double the Rangers score.

Ernie Dowd Features The Rangers were held scoreless from the floor in the first quarter as Enrico Dowd monopolized the play and snatched up six points to give the Guards a lead which they never relinquished and were never in danger of losing after the first half. The Rangers were checked so closely that they could not proceed beyond the Guards' foul circle and not once was a play carried through to completion, with the result that the Rangers turned to long range shooting which also proved unavailing.

A long shot by Enrico and a short side flip by Raguskus put the Rangers into the running in the second quarter on the short end of a 9 to 6 score, the closest the challengers got to the lead during the entire game. Baskets by Turkington and Mattson sent the Guards into a 13 to 6 advantage at the half, by which time also the Rangers had called two time outs in an unsuccessful attempt to gather their shattered forces.

Guards Increase Lead The Guards piled up their margin steadily in the third quarter and always spurred long enough to maintain double the Rangers score. A good portion of the third period was spent in foul shooting, in which department Turkington proved particularly adept, sinking no less than six out of ten shots. The Guards as a team were unusually accurate from the complimentary circle, making ten out of 14, while the Rangers made eight out of 15.

A long side heave by DellaFera brought the Rangers their only score out of the third half period and before it was half over the Guards had proven a decisive superiority that left no doubt as to the final outcome. The Rangers fought a gallant battle all the way, but even when their nervousness had worn off in the second half the team was hopelessly beaten. The Rangers are a coming team, no question about it, but more experience is needed to compete against a stellar outfit like the Guards.

In the final quarter, the Rangers were again limited to a single shot, a bleeder, a side shot by Enrico and the Guards virtually coasted through to triumph. Next week's game should be a closer, better tussle but in the light of last night's outcome it is difficult to accord the Rangers much chance of evening the series and bringing about a third and deciding game. At any rate, the challengers are making an admirable, gallant attempt and a team that keeps plugging is ever likely to spring an upset.

Sweden Are Beaten In the preliminary, the Manchester Swedes bowed to Central Baptist No. 1 of Hartford in a hard fought, bruising battle by a score of 38 to 37. Manchester sported an eleven-point lead at halftime which a substitute five found it impossible to maintain and when the regulars returned to the fray the damage had been done. A foul shot in the last minute of play settled the outcome in favor of the victors.

MERIDEN GIRLS TO MEET KEENEY'S DAIRY A special match will be rolled out last night at the Charter Oak alleys between a girls team from Meriden and Keeneey's Dairy at 8 o'clock.

Local Sport Chatter

The Charter Oak Girls leave tomorrow for Baltimore, Md., making the trip by automobile with Johnny Howard. The local team has entered the team, doubles and singles events Saturday and are hopeful of finishing well up among the leaders. Best wishes, girls!

Charlie Kebart, town bowling champ, will be a member of the Wooster team of Hartford at the national tourney. John "Sparky" Saldella has also announced his intention of taking part in the tournament and expects to pair with Bob White of New Haven in the doubles.

Players on the squads of the high school and trade school basketball teams will not be eligible to participate in the junior cage tourney to be conducted at the Rec, starting Tuesday, April 3, according to a ruling by Promoter J. Bennett Cune. It is felt that it would be unfair to organized teams to allow these players to be drafted for service in the competition, which is limited to boys 17 years of age and under.

Coach Pete Wigren of Manchester High's track and field team says that he was pleasantly surprised by the showing of his dash men in the state indoor meet last Saturday. He doesn't expect to have an outstanding team this year but believes his athletes will hold their own in dual competition.

The track team will engage in an indoor meet at the Hartford Armory on Saturday, April 14, and will open the outdoor season in a dual meet with Hartford High here on Friday, April 20. Hartford handed Manchester its first defeat last year in three years of dual competition.

Meriden High is figured to have one of the strongest baseball teams in the C. C. L. L. this season and is expected to give Bristol stiff opposition in the race for the title. The Silver City five has a new coach, John "Gud" Shaw, who has played semi-pro baseball for a number of years. Manchester opens its season against Meriden on the latter's diamond on April 27.

During the 1932-33 season, Bristol won the football, basketball, baseball and track titles outright but so far this season has been forced to share the football title with Manchester and the basketball title with Meriden.

One reason for the slender attendance at the opening game of the town title series last night, aside from the fact that the Guards are not a drawing card this season, is that this is Holy Week. That many remained away because of this was proven by the flood of phone calls at the Armory through the evening, asking the outcome of the game.

Jason Chapman, curly-haired blond forward of the Guards, may be lost to the team for the series. He suffered a sprained thumb in practice Tuesday night and was able to move his hand only with difficulty.

Turkington got a nasty poke in the eye in the final quarter that sent blood spurting over his face and made it necessary to substitute Ernie Nell at center for the closing minutes of the game. The injury is not expected to prove serious.

The wave of applause that greeted the appearance of the Rangers on the floor indicated that the crowd consisted mainly of rooters for the challengers but a small number of Guard supporters more than held their own in the few outbursts of cheering. In a number of instances, the rousing was carried too far and Referee "Shorty" Mallin came in for his share, although he handled the game in an impartial and capable manner.

ARISTOCRATS VS. GARRONE'S In a postponed match tonight at the Charter Oak alleys Garrone's Market will meet the Aristocrats.

NEW YORK FIGHTERS BEAT CHI AMATEURS

New York, March 29.—(AP)—Due largely to the efforts of a pair of husky middleweights, Gus Lesnevich and Mark Hough, New York's Golden Gloves amateur boxers were on even terms with their Chicago rivals today after seven years of inter-city competition.

The double victory by Lesnevich, who uses his muscles to juggle trays of dishes during his working hours, and Hough, a veteran Negro boxer, provided the only break in the even division of the bouts as they fought two battles in each division. The final count was nine victories for New York and seven for Chicago. Hough conquered Bill Treacy while Lesnevich upset Fred Caserio, 19-year-old inter-city champion.

A crowd of 19,467 packed every inch of space in Madison Square Garden, paying $45,548.77 to see the scraps.

Maple Leafs Come Back To Even Hockey Series

New York, March 29.—(AP)—The Toronto Maple Leafs, who looked like the best team in the National Hockey League through the greater part of the season, have proved their claims to greatness were not entirely undeserved by fighting their way back from the ragged edge of elimination into the midst of the play-off battle for the league championship.

Two games to the bad after being twice defeated on their own rink by the Detroit Red Wings, the Leafs came back on "foreign" ice to even up the series with a smashing 5 to 1 victory last night. The teams will meet again tomorrow to decide their series.

The winner will clash in all probability with the Chicago Black Hawks in the five-game duel for the Stanley Cup, emblem of world professional hockey supremacy. The Hawks took an almost unbeatable lead in the semi-final series for lower ranking clubs when they walloped the Montreal Maroons 3 to 0 at Montreal last night. This contest, like all the "preliminaries" is decided on totals for two games. The second clash is to take place at Chicago Sunday.

Major League Prospects

By ALAN GOULD

THE PHILLIES
Winter Haven, Fla., March 29.—(AP)—Among other worries, the Phillies for years have seldom come through the spring training season without some infield problems to solve. Just when it looked this year as though the club's aggressive new pilot, Jimmy Wilson had this ancient jinx on the run, it bobbed up again in the form of the spiking of Dick Bartell, star shortstop, captain and sparkplug of the team.

Will Miss Bartell

Bartell was hurt so seriously a few days ago he may not recover in time to be in the opening game-line-up April 17. Lou Chiozza, promising again in the form of the spiking of Dick Bartell, star shortstop, captain and sparkplug of the team.

Wilson had been counting on Bartell's help in developing Marty Hopkins at third, and Irvine Jeffries at second. Hopkins, a smart fielder, has shown little confidence at the plate. Jeffries only lately has begun to justify the expectations erected around his American Association batting mark of .343.

The catcher-manager's chief reliance is on State Highway, 8 room house, with all modern improvements; 6 pump gas station with 5 rooms for living quarters, with all improvements, 2 car garage and barn. Call Rosedale 52-3.

Man O' War, Famous Horse, 17 Years Old

Lexington, Ky., March 29.—(AP)—Man O' War, famous horse that won 20 of his 21 races in 1919 and 1920 and $249,455 in stakes and purses, was seventeen years old today.

It was just like any other day of the "horse of a century," as he hurried his muzzle in his usual breakfast of four quarts of oats, and was led out for his regular morning canter which helps in keeping down that middle-aged spread of girth.

The 131 sons and daughters Man O' War has sired since his retirement to the stud in 1921 have won more than $1,800,000 for their owners. Among them are nearly forty stakes winners.

SHIRT FACTORY OPERATING

Hartford, March 29.—(AP)—The shirt factory at the State prison in Wethersfield, which was shut down temporarily when the Hawes-Cooper act prohibiting interstate shipment of prison made goods, has been operating for several weeks under state management. Warden Charles S. Reed said today.

Over 200 men are now at work in the shop on a 35-hour week of seven hours a day, five days a week, all of them under a code of fair competition. The old contract system, however, is gone. The state will sell the product through a sales agency under restrictions.

WILLIE HOPPE BEATEN BY ERIC HAGENLACHER

Chicago, March 29.—(AP)—Eric Hagenlacher of Germany stood alone as undefeated in the world's 18.2 ballline billiard championship tournament today.

The German sharpshooter took the undisputed lead last night by defeating Willie Hoppe of New York, 400 to 113, in 14 innings. It was his second victory in as many starts, and the first defeat in two matches for the veteran Hoppe.

Kinroy Matsumya of Japan and Walker Cochran of San Francisco and lost column with Ora Morningstar, San Diego, was all but out of the running with two defeats.

Cochran meets Hagenlacher in the main match tonight. Morningstar tackles Hoppe in the afternoon.

ARMY-NAVY EDGES VFW BY SIX PINS

Capture Ex-Service Men's Bowling Title in Exciting, Close Match.

In the most exciting match of the season, the Army and Navy edged the V. F. W. last night on the Charter Oak alleys by the narrow margin of six pins, to take the season's ex-service bowling honors. The match was the final between the sectional winners of the veterans' league, the Army and Navy club winners of the first half, and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, leaders of the second half.

The Vets got off to a fine 49 pin lead for total pinfall in the first game, lost all but 18 pins of it in the second game, and went into the final frame facing a roused and inspired Army and Navy crew that rallied to wipe out the commanding lead with the largest game score of the evening.

Rooters of both teams crowded the alleys in support of their favorites. Dave McCollum, mascot of the A. and N. five, aided by his able ally Bill Shields led the V. F. W. pin-toppers on edge throughout the night. The die during the last game was terrific.

Guido Giorgetti of the Army and Navy team rolled 129 to take single game honors and his teammate, F. Anderson took the three-game total of 348. Earl Wright of the Legion, secretary of the league, was official scorekeeper.

Bradley Has Quartet Of Likely Horses To Offer In Derby and Preakness

By ORLO ROBERTSON (Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, March 29.—(AP)—Col. E. R. Bradley has come forth with a stronger array of three-year-olds than usual this year which suggests none too well for horsemen who have designs on stopping his string of victories at Churchill Downs in the Derby May 5.

To follow in the footsteps of Be-have Yourself, Bubbling Over, Burgoon King and Broker's Tip, the master of Idle Hour Farm offers Bazaar, an outstanding filly; Boy Valet, a successful winter campaigner; the well-bred Blue Again and Baker's Dozen which, like Broker's Tip, never won a race as a two year old.

Bazaar and Blue Again also have been named for the Preakness.

Bazaar is held at 15 to 1 in the future books despite the fact that Bradley, like most Kentucky horsemen, maintains a filly should not be given serious consideration for a race run so early in the season.

Perhaps he has had a change of heart since he saw Bazaar win five of her ten starts, including the rich hopeful at Saratoga, and $42,885 as a juvenile. The daughter of Tetra-tema-Silver Hue has grown considerably during the winter, developed powerful shoulders and hind quarters and stands 16 1/2 hands.

Of the other Bradley eligibles, Blue Again, a son of Black Servant-Blossom Time, is a full brother of Blue Lakespur, the Colonel's greatest money-winner; Baker's Dozen is another Black Servant colt and Boy Valet was good enough to finish third in the Florida Derby.

Norman Church, owner of the Northway Stable, offers an outstanding Derby candidate in Riskulus. Lightly regarded when the 124 three-year-olds were nominated for the Derby, the son of Stimulus has moved in among the favorites due to his smashing second behind Gal-lant Sir in the mile and a quarter Agua Caliente handicap.

Riskulus now is being pointed for

YOUNG PRO LEADS IN GOLF TOURNEY

Henry Picard of Charleston Shoots 137 in North and South Open Event.

Pinehurst, N. C., March 29.—(AP)—A 27-year-old Carolina professional with a brand new putter and a score five under par, the man to beat as the final 36 holes of the 32nd annual north and south open golf tournament started today.

He was Henry Picard of Charleston, the score was 137 for the first 36 holes of the event and the putter was doing black magic along the grained carpets of Pinehurst's sand greens.

The slender Charlestonian yesterday leaped into the van of the formidable competition when he returned a 68, three under par, to go with his 69 of the previous day. Bill Melhorn, the stocky Louisville, Ky., pro, who led at the end of the first day's play, dropped into a tie for second place with Mortie Dutra, the Detroit Spaniard, with 139.

Melhorn cards a 72 to go with his opening round 68. Dutra yesterday shot a sizzling 67 to pair with his first round 72. George T. Dunlap, Jr., the amateur champion playing over his familiar home course, pulled up into a tie for fourth position with Tommy Armour, of Detroit, with 141. Wifty Cox, of Brooklyn, was a stroke behind with 142.

THE TYMINTES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The ant that shot into the air gave all the Tymintes a scare. Said Goldy, "Oh, he's way up high. What is he going to do?"

"He can't be going. He must stop, and then he'll take an awful drop. A sad catastrophe is what we'll see before we're through."

An ant replied, "Oh, no we won't. You see, young lady, you just don't know what a dandy treat's in store. Real shortly you will see."

"The ant has stopped his upward flight. He'll start down, now, but he's all right. Watch closely, now, and you'll be as surprised as you can be."

The Tymintes strained their necks a while, and then we Scouty, with a smile, said, "Geel! You're right. He's opened up a monstrous parachute. He's coming down real fast, now, but he will not land near here."

"He's being whizzed right through the air. No doubt he's getting quite a scare, 'cause he is going to land out in that little stream, I fear."

(Duncy goes to the rescue of the ant in the next story.)

Optician—Five dollars.
Man—And how much without the case?

Optician—Oh, the case makes little difference, say $4.95.

Man—What? Is the case worth only five cents?

Optician—Yes, sir.
Man—Well, I'm very glad to hear that. It's the case I want.

And placing a nickel upon the counter, he picked up the case and left.

How Long Is Your Smoke In Inches?

With all the hundreds of millions of cigarettes smoked throughout this old world of ours each year, it is our fair guess that not one person in a million knows the exact length of an average cigarette.

How would you like to buy your cigarettes by the inch? How would you like to buy 55 inches of cigarettes for 7c, especially when they are filled with an imported blend of Turkish and domestic tobacco? For your information 55 inches of cigarettes is equivalent to 1 package of regular size cigarettes.

For Friday Afternoon From 3 to 6 O'Clock! Hale's Self-Serve Grocery will sell A New Novelty Length Cigarette 7c pkg.

Each package equivalent to 20 cigarettes and filled with choice tobacco. Limit 1 package to a customer. It's something new! It's something different—and it's real value!

SPECIAL PATCHING CREW FOR STREETS

Damage This Year Greater Than Ever—Many to Be Resurfaced.

The condition of the town highways this spring are worse than for many years and plans are now being made to assign a special patching crew to repair the worst streets. Frost and heavy snows have caused more damage than for many years and the condition of many of the streets warrant scurfing and resurfacing for the summer traffic.

Appropriation Low The appropriation for highways is low, due to the steady drain upon this department during the winter months. The regular crew of highway workers has been kept at a minimum and it may be necessary to increase the highway appropriation later in the spring if anything like a general repair program on the town streets is to be carried out.

One of the worst streets in town is Spruce street. At the present time this thoroughfare presents a hazard to motorists, inasmuch as the street was scarified during the fall and snow came early, preventing the laying of oil. The street is deeply rutted and full of deep holes. In addition to the dangerous state of this important artery, the construction of the Hamlin street storm drain, down the center of the street, has diverted traffic to the side, causing deeper ruts and ridges.

Dangerous For Travel Many of the other streets present a sorry sight with the macadam broken through in places. The action of the storm water has widened and deepened the holes, rendering the side streets dangerous to travel. One of the worst streets in this respect is Bissell street near the L. T. Wood Company plant.

Starting next week the shoe repair shops in Manchester will be closed each Wednesday, the year around at 1 o'clock. The work to be done must be brought to the shops before that hour on Wednesday.
