ARMORY FILLED AS 650 ATTEND MASONIC BALL

Town's Outstanding Social Event Is Brilliant Spec- tacle as Local Society Turns Out for Dance.

Attended by 650 dancers, brilliant and beautiful in its display of exquisite gowns, staged in a wonderfully transformed auditorium, the Masonic ball maintained its reputation last night, in its 23rd annual repetition, of being Manchester's outstanding social event. Elated at the fine crowd of dancers attending the affair and pleased at the sociability evident, the general committee under Charles H. Buzzel, chairman, was satisfied today that the ball was a huge success.

Decorations A Feature

The beautifully decorated armory was without a doubt the outstanding feature of the ball. The gowns as usual were gay and beautiful but the improvement in the decorations scheme overshadowed all else in the many attractive features of the dance. A canopy of light blue paneled in white fringe was further enhanced by festoons and garlands draped to various points about the ceiling and lighter in gaily colored electric bulbs. The walls were draped with blue and white bunting in such a way that no part of the armory building could be seen.

Grand March

An unusual feature of the dance was the promptness in starting the grand march. Realizing that a delay in the grand march robs the evening of considerable time for dancing the floor committee ordered the parade of attending couples to start promptly at nine.

Luncheon

During intermission the guests assembled in the dining hall and enjoyed luncheon consisting of chicken salad, with rolls, French ice cream, fancy cakes and coffee. The portions were large and over 600 were seated at one time, only those arriving late finding it necessary to await the second table.

CONGRESSMAN POU RITES TOMORROW

Delegation from Congress in Funeral Party; His Townspeople Pay Tribute.

Smithfield, N. C., April 8.—(AP)—The body of Edward William Pou, veteran representative from the Fourth North Carolina District and dean of the House, was brought home today for burial.

Born south on a fast train of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, which made a special stop at this little home town of the political leader, the body was accompanied by one of the most distinguished Congressional delegations ever to attend a funeral outside Washington.

As the train drew to a stop here hundreds of townspeople were waiting in quiet sorrow, and nearly a thousand negro school children stood at attention, the flag at their head at half mast, in tribute to "Mister Ed," as he was known in the district he served for 33 years.

In the delegation which accompanied members of the Pou family were Speaker Henry T. Rainey of the House; House Majority Leader Joseph W. Byrns of Tennessee; House Minority Leader Bertram Sells of New York; Representative John J. O'Connor, New York; Rep. J. Bennett Johnston, Louisiana; and Rep. William B. Bankhead of Alabama, who will succeed Mr. Pou as chairman of the Powerful House Rules committee.

North Carolina members of Congress who accompanied the body were Senator Robert F. Reynolds, and Representatives Walter Lambeth, Zebulon Weaver, W. B. Umstead, J. Bayard Clark and A. L. Bulwinkle.

Great loads of flowers awaited the body at the church, where it will lie in state until the afternoon, when it will be laid in Riverside cemetery beside Mr. Pou's son, an aviator killed on the western front during the World War.

SEN. BORAH PROTESTS TAXES ON JUTE BAGS

Washington, April 8.—(AP)—Senator Borah (R., Ind.) protested in the Senate today against the processing tax on jute bags, reading letters saying it had cost growers of potatoes, onions and beans in Idaho $100,000 in 1933 and would cost them over $250,000 this year.

Borah said the tax was adopted on the theory that jute bags were in competition with cotton bags, but that this was a mistake. The only remedy he could follow, he said, was a petition to the farm administration to remove the tax.

Borah read letters from Colorado growers saying the tax had cost them $83,000 so far this year and estimating the total cost for the year for all farmers at $2,000,000. "The fact is conclusively established," he said, "that the producer or farmer pays the tax."

BOSTON DEMOCRAT CRITICIZES REPORT

Says Hub Writer Made Insulting Remarks About His Constituents. Washington, April 8.—(AP)—Representative McCormack, Boston Democrat, today protested to Richard Kohn, director of Housing of the Public Works Administration, against what he characterized as "insulting and false references made by Joseph Lee, Jr., concerning residents of certain sections of Boston" in connection with Boston housing projects.

McCormack called to Kohn's attention, Boston newspapers of Sunday and Monday which quoted Lee as referring to "low grade Irish trash" in Boston and "poor white trash" in a part of Roxbury. Lee, Boston philanthropist and writer, made public a report said to have criticized the Boston housing projects, and commented adversely upon the sections of Boston which might be benefited from a new housing program.

McCormack said he was informed by Kohn that Lee was not connected directly or indirectly with the Federal Housing Administration, and that there was no record to show that he had been requested to make any investigation or report by Washington officials. McCormack said the intimation that Lee was connected with the Federal Housing Administration was a gross insult to his constituents.

McCormack also told Kohn he would protest vigorously if any opinions attributed by Lee were incorporated in the government's folder housing projects. McCormack said he had demanded an investigation to determine whether any Washington official had directed Lee to make any survey or report on the Boston Housing project.

MORSE MAKES PLEA ON MURDER CHARGE

Wall Street Broker Pleads Guilty to Killing Woman in His Apartment.

New York, April 3.—(AP)—Arthur W. Morse, Wall street broker, today pleaded guilty to manslaughter in the first degree in connection with the death of Mrs. Edna Field Leavett, of Brookline, Mass.

Judge Charles C. Nott, Jr., in General Sessions Court, remanded Morse to Tombs prison for sentence April 17.

Mrs. Leavett was found beaten and unconscious in Morse's Greenwich village apartment in MacDougal Street March 13 last, and died a short time later in Bellevue hospital. An autopsy showed death was due to cerebral compression.

Morse was held on a charge of homicide and later a Grand Jury indicted him on a charge of murder in the first degree.

Assistant District Attorney James T. Neary gave no reason for his recommendation that the plea be accepted.

Morse said he was 34 years old, a broker and lived at 7 MacDougal alley, where it was charged, the injuries from Mrs. Leavett died were inflicted.

At the time Mrs. Leavett died police said the couple had returned to the broker's apartment and quarreled after a round of Greenwich Village night clubs.

Cude, Jr. of the Legion team topped all marksmen last night with a total of 188 out of a possible 200 points.

The Wallingford leader was H. F. Anthony with a score of 182. In cooperation with Bank Commissioner Walter Perry.

The banking department will do the work for the actual cost and its reports will be made directly to the judges of the court.

Justice Maltbie said that the plan is experimental and that it can be abandoned unless it proves of sufficient value as a safeguard in the administration of closed banks.

In a statement Justice Maltbie said: "There are 16 banks in the state now, being administered by receivers appointed by the Superior Court. The assets of these banks now in the hands of the receivers amount to a very large sum."

The plan will be put into operation as soon as the necessary details can be arranged.

HARTFORD STYLIST TO ADDRESS WOMEN

Miss Katherine M. Pattillo to Speak at Second Congregational Church Tomorrow.

Miss Katherine Munn Pattillo of 42 Asylum street, Hartford, widely known as a clothes consultant, will address local women at a meeting at the Second Congregational church tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock.

Miss Pattillo has been invited to come again to Manchester by the Women's League of Service of this church. Her mission is to guide women in the correct choice of color and line, and to aid in assembling one's wardrobe and yet come within the dress allowance.

Her services are much in demand particularly at this season of the year, and her studio has become a clinic where perplexing problems of dress are solved with an artist's discriminating taste, and a stylist's eye for smartness.

According to Miss Pattillo, there are three cardinal points to keep in mind when selecting a gown that will be becoming and smart.

First, it must have lines flattering to the figure of the woman who will wear it; secondly, its color must be in harmony with her own coloring of eyes and complexion and hair; thirdly, its price must be in keeping with her budget. An unbecoming dress is an extravagance no matter how inexpensive it is.

Tea will be served by the League members. During the afternoon a committee from the Married Cou-ple club of church will conduct a food sale. Mrs. Sherwood G. Bowers, Mrs. Kingsley Kuhney, Mrs. Charles J. Meisterling and Mrs. Ralph Rockwell will be in charge.

STATE BODY RESTRAINED IN ADVERTISING CASE

Court Grants Permanent Injunction Applied for by Big Department Stores.

Hartford, April 3.—(AP)—Judge Edwin C. Dickenson in Superior Court today granted a permanent injunction restraining the state board of examiners in optometry from enforcing its rule against price advertising of optical goods and services.

Applications for the injunction had been made by the Sage-Allen Company, Inc., of Hartford, the Howland-Hughes Company of Waterbury, the Buhl Optical Company of Pittsburgh and Joseph S. Jaffee of Hartford and Morris Marquese of Waterbury, the latter optometrists in charge of the optical departments in the department stores named.

Judge Dickenson held the rules of the board to be discriminatory, arbitrary and have not the authority of the statute because they are "inconsistent with law," and attempt to enlarge an express provision of a section of the law covering the same matter.

INDIANS IN FLORIDA TO STAGE SUN DANCE

West Palm Beach, Fla., April 3.—(AP)—With about one-fifth of Florida's Indian population here in a palmetto thatched village to put on their tribal rites, this community today began revival of a famous annual festival of former years—the Palm Beach Seminole sun dance.

Braves squaws and papooses decked in their voluminous and many-colored costumes will put on their picturesque sun dance and other strange dances through the three days of celebration that began this morning.

The "Mardi Gras" section of the celebration was to start today with coronation of "King Rex," (Municipal Judge Phil O'Connell) and "Queen Regina," (Miss Emily Williamson) by Mayor John Shepard, Jr., of Palm Beach. The royal couple with their court of honor were picked by popular vote.

Parades, dances, fireworks and a night phantasmagoria in which hundreds of masked marchers will participate are on the program.

THREE TRAINMEN KILLED

Hudson, Wis., April 3.—(AP)—Three Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha railroad trainmen were killed today when a train was derailed because of a washout.

The dead: Jesse Utter, Minneapolis, engineer. C. W. Lang, St. Paul, fireman. Glen Parle, Minneapolis, brakeman.

The freight train left the rails and plunged over an embankment one mile out of Hudson. The engine and 12 cars piled up in the ditch crushing the men.

FRATERNITY HOUSE RUINED BY BLAZE

Estimate $10,000 Damage to Wesleyan Building—Students Absent on Vacation.

Middletown, April 3.—(AP)—A fire wrecked the interior of the Sigma Nu fraternity house at Wesleyan University today while the students were absent on their spring vacation.

Damage estimated at $10,000 was caused in the old Colonial mansion, once the home of Professor John Van Vleck, former acting president of the university.

The fire started in a carpet on the staircase in the center of the house. Although the students were away, caretakers were in the house and Fire Chief Michael W. Lawton attributed the fire to a cigarette carelessly dropped.

After a two hour fight, firemen brought the blaze under control, saving the roof and walls of the structure, but they said the interior of the house was ruined.

The house which stands at 148 Church street, has a living room, dining room, kitchen and servants quarters on the first floor and houses 20 students on the upper floor.

BIG STRIKE IS ON AT CAMPBELL SOUP CO.

Camden, N. J., April 3.—(AP)—A crowd estimated by police at 2,500 today surrounded the Campbell Soup Company plant where a strike is in progress, and police said that only six employees other than foremen and the powerhouse crew entered the grounds.

Two workmen who attempted to break through the crowd were attacked by 15 women who clawed their faces, pulled their hair, tore their clothing and carried off hats and lunches before police could rescue the men.

Police lines around the plant were maintained, however, and only the thirty authorized pickets marched up and down in front of the gate. Yesterday hundreds of persons pressed forward to block the entrance.

MUDDLED MILK

To add to the utter confusion and bewilderment of the milk situation as it exists in Connecticut and most of the other states of the Union, comes the proposed intervention of the federal government in an attempt to accomplish results which include at the same time, if you please, "getting more land into pasture," and reducing by ten per cent the production of milk. We may be in error in assuming that more land under pasture would mean more milk, and that more cattle would mean more milk, but the fallacy of such a conclusion has not been made clear.

It is rather more than doubtful that either milk producers or consumers will welcome or put the smallest degree of confidence in any further regulatory laws, mandates or "agreements" until there is manifested by some authority, either state or federal, a disposition to get at the real seat of the trouble. And the one thing clear about milk is that it is being exploited and for many years has been exploited by respectable racketeers operating within and under the full protection of the law.

The dairy business of this state and this country took care of itself and of the needs of the public until the camel of profiteering corporations intruded its head under the tent of milk distribution. There is not a grain of evidence that there would be any milk problem at all if it had not been created by middlemen. There would have been none of this absolutely idiotic talk of a "surplus" when babies are kept on half rations of milk because the price is so high their parents cannot buy enough, if the dealings had continued to be between the producers on one hand and the consumers and individual processors on the other.

It is the middlemen who constitute the problem that state laws and federal policies should have to do with. And so long as federal and state measures are taken, as they invariably have been, with elaborate precaution against interfering with the cause of all the trouble, they would much better not be taken at all.

Wipe out all the laws hampering free dealing between producer and consumer and the joining together of producers in co-operatives for distribution and processing, eliminate price fixing that cuts down the consumption of a vital food, and there will be no need of these thousand and one twisted schemes for starving babies so that farmers may get enough out of the exorbitant retail price to maintain their existence and that of their herds.

CLOSED BANKS

Announcement that, through agreement with the judges of the Superior Court bench, the State Banking Department will hereafter exercise its examining powers over banks in receivership as well as those in operation should bring considerable satisfaction to depositors and stockholders in the closed banks.

There have been several instances in this state, since the devastating days when the banks began to blow up, where it has been suspected that not the best possible methods had been followed by receivers and where the expense of administration seemed unjustifiably high. The people of the state, naturally, have not the highest of confidence in the court receivership situation, therefore, feeling that with the best intentions in the world no court can establish and maintain any adequate system of checks over its own receiver—even that it would not be likely to attempt to, since ethics require the court to repose unqualified confidence in its own officer. At the same time the State Banking Department is peculiarly qualified to exercise a salutary supervision over the operations of receivers and enjoys to the full the confidence of the people of the state and it goes without saying that both depositors and stockholders will have more complete faith in a bank receivership working under the skilled checking of that department than in one so very largely dependent on the ability and rectitude of a receiver, whose knowledge of banking is very likely to be theoretical.

It may even be that this innovation will be so successful as to lead to the statutory adoption of the system, now on trial in this town, of having the Banking Department, instead of court receivers, administer the affairs of all closed banks.

The liquidation of the closed Manchester Trust and Safe Deposit Company, it is to be borne in mind, is being conducted by the State Banking Department under a special act of the 1933 General Assembly and is the only closed bank in the state being so administered. That its affairs are being handled with great skill and industry and at an extreme minimum of expense to the depositors and stockholders will one day be fully realized; it is rather probable that, under any conceivable court receivership, its administration would have eaten up a large part of the salvage which depositors at least will eventually receive.

It would not be in the least surprising if, at the next session of the Legislature, the system of bank liquidation in this state were to be wholly changed and, instead of remaining a function of the Superior Court through specially appointed receivers, should be reposed in the hands of the State Banking Department, where it seems clearly to be long and where it would be reasonably sure to be done better and more economically.

THAT WAR WASTE

The figure finally accepted by statisticians as the total cost of the World War, not in life but in property from wrecked cathedrals and factories to expended automobiles and bursted shells, is 400 billions of dollars.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, in his report as director of the Division of Intercourse and Education of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, reviews from an old Congressional Record some illustrations of the significance of that wasted sum. They are worth storing away in memory against the possibility that this country may some day again be called on to decide between peace and war.

With that amount we could have built a $2,500 house and furnished this house with $1,000 of furniture, placed it on five acres of land worth $100 an acre and given all of this to every family in the United States, Canada, Australia, England, Wales, Scotland, Ireland, France, Belgium, Germany and Russia.

After doing this there would have been money enough to give each city of 20,000 in all the countries named a $5,000,000 library and a $10,000,000 university.

And then out of the balance we could still have sufficient money to set aside a sum at 5 per cent interest which would pay for all time to come a $1,000 yearly salary to 125,000 teachers and to each of an army of 125,000 nurses.

And after having done all this we could still have enough left out of our 400 billions to buy up all of France and Belgium and everything that France and Belgium and Belgium farm, home, factory, church, railroad, street car—in fact everything of value in those countries in 1914.

Anyone who questions the correctness of this figuring is of course, at perfect liberty to figure it out for himself. Even if he doesn't get precisely the same result he can hardly escape reaching one which will make war look substantially as idiotic.

MAKING IT FIT

Sometimes it seems regrettable that, in the infliction of punishment upon criminals, judges are held within such narrow bounds by the law. In the case of Samuel Insull, for example, who now appears to be in a fair way to be brought to America to stand trial for his colossal frauds; if he is convicted the Illinois trial court can do nothing but send him to prison for a longer or shorter term.

Yet what's the good of putting a person like Insull in jail? He is old and feeble and won't last long at best. In the meantime he will be soon forgotten, so the example of his punishment will not be very impressive to other potential big business crooks. Besides, he will probably live the life of Riley while in the coop, apparently still having unlimited means at his command and Illinois being what it is.

Now if they could and would put Sam Insull in a set of good old-

IN NEW YORK

HURRY, NOW! TAKE QUICK LOOT AS SPEEDY GOTHAM

By PAUL HARRISON

New York, April 4—Meanderings: Nowhere else on earth, surely, does life gyrate in such a dizzy dither of grab-and-hurry as it does in Gotham. Nobody knows what the rush is all about, or event takes time to think about it.

Every city overtone is a jittery imperative. "Hurry up!" yell the subway guards. "Hurry it up!" shout the traffic cops. "Jump or get killed!" snarl the taxi horns. . . . Walk fast, talk fast, pounce on a vacant car seat and don't worry about old ladies and blind men. Don't lay aside your evening newspaper in a train or station unless you've finished reading it. Somebody'll have it in a trice, or even a good deal less than a trice.

New York is smatchtown.

Watch a crowd of women at a bargain counter. Observe a lot of stenographers lined three-deep before a soda fountain at lunch time. Their hands are quicker than your eyes. . . . See the restaurants advertising "A Meal a Minute." Notice busboys grabbing dishes from under the nose of any patron who dares lapse into a 30-second reverie. Some cafes and most cafeterias, technically known as "fast houses," forbid smoking. This is because a cigaret might induce a contemplative mood and slow things up. . . . Even Gotham jargon reflects the lust for speed. People talk about diving into clothes, gulping a date, hooking a cocktail, nabbing a bite, making snappy conversation and pulling fast ones. Evenings, they grab a cab, snatch a ticket, catch a show.

Manhattan Flashes

One of the tallest Broadwaymen in the theatrical revivalist named O. W. Wee. . . . Amelia Earhart, taking a flyer at clothes designing, now has a Katharine Hepburn bob and looks like an elder sister of the actress. . . . It's taps for two more of the town's most famous ex-gay-spots—Jim Moriarity's and the Embassy Club, closed after the desertion of the prodigal spenders. . . . Early evening is bartering time backstage at the Follies. Some of the youngsters came an hour before the show, and you can find the tap dancer trading tricks with the Strauss ballet girls; and gangling Betsi Beaton learning acrobatics from little June Freiser; and chorus beauties with dramatic ambitions practicing diction. . . . Marina Yuliova, the girl who fought with the Russian army through the World War and wrote a book about it, is afraid to ride in New York taxicabs. . . . Most confusing play title since "Morning Becomes Evening" was "Broomesticks, Aemra" the witch-drood drama. After it has been spoken of and written about as "Broomesticks, Aemra" and "Broomesticks, Aemra" and "The Groom Sticks to Min," they changed the name. Now it's just "Broomesticks." Dragon's Nest

ROADS IN BAD SHAPE

Hartford, April 3.—(AP)—The highways of the state were never in such need of repairs following a winter season as this year, and it will require much hard work on the part of the state highway department to restore them to their former condition. Highway Commissioner John A. MacDonald said today.

The particularly severe winter weather had its effect on the highways, the commissioner explained, and while some of them are impassable, much repair work is needed.

fashioned New England stocks on a high platform somewhere in the heart of Chicago—or out at the Fair grounds during the summer—and make him sit there in the public gaze every day for the NRA six hours, and permit all the people he has ruined to come and express their opinions to him, that would be a sentence that would be of some use.

There are a good many people in this country who would pay quite a bit of railroad fare for the opportunity to see just one out of the big crop of big shot chads sitting with their hands and heads through one board and their feet through another.

RUSSIA-JAPAN

A correspondent of the New York Times makes the statement that Russia has so far advanced the double tracking of the Transiberian Railroad that it will probably be completed within six months. This would seem to indicate that the great war between Japan and Soviet Russia, which for a year has seemed not only inevitable but imminent, may never come at all if it should be postponed until next winter.

If Japan still entertains any expectations of attacking Russia in Siberia she is aware, of course, that to await the completion of the railroad's improvement would be to make infinitely more difficult the task of conquering the Soviet Union's Red army. It is likely enough, then, that if Japan is ever to attack it will be before the summer is too far advanced for a conclusive campaign, and that if she does not force war upon Russia in the next few months there will be no conflict at all.

Not, that is, on the initiative of Japan. If, as would come later it is probable that it would have to be started by Russia, which at this time gives no indication whatever of seeking a fight with Japan or anyone else.

1880 everybody was convinced that a herd of 100-foot dragons nested under the cliffs along the Hudson. . . . After eight weeks' "rest" in the Bahamas Irving Berlin has returned with the score of a new musical show and a new song, "Butterfingers," which you'll be hearing soon. . . . "Hostess" at La Perroquet, a French restaurant, is Laura, a South American parrot with a vocabulary of 50 words and a penchant for lump sugar soaked in brandy. . . . Hermann Oelrichs, the socialite, makes a hobby of magic. And Myron C. Taylor, the steel man, goes in for genealogy, tracing the family trees of any friends who are willing. . . . A Portland, Me., correspondent reports the incident of the prominent attorney who was called upon by an automobile salesman, but who closed the interview by selling the salesman his saddle horse.

FRENCH SOCKS

HOLD ONE THIRD OF NATION'S COIN

Paris.—(AP)—Half enough money to run the whole government of France for a year is hidden away in the good old "woolen sock" of the thrifty Frenchman.

There can be no statistics on hoarding, but the Bank of France and the government calculate fairly closely how much money is in the banks in circulation, and how much is abroad. The remainder is what the French have put away for "safe keeping" in tin boxes, bottles and jars, hidden in every conceivable way.

Huge Sums Hoarded

Close to one-third of France's money is estimated to be in hiding. The last official statement on the subject was by Georges Bonnet, then Minister of Finance, December 9, in the chamber of deputies. He said 25,000,000,000 francs or $1,650,000,000 were hoarded then when the circulation was $1,000,000,000.

Bank of France officials thought the figure high, and since then they have asserted that the money has been in hiding because big hoarders were tired of getting no interest.

Robberies of these hoards seem to be few. French peasants, secretive by nature, have learned to guard their fortunes.

Gold Bars Favorites

Burial in the ground is a favorite way of hoarding. Often, money sealed in bottles or jars is hidden in large pebbles, tin cans, and in walls, usually by taking out a brick or a stone and digging out a recess. Sometimes banknotes are concealed in books by hollowing out the leaves or by pasting the edges together.

Gold bars have become more popular with hoarders since France went on the gold bullion standard in 1928. These bars cost about $14,350 and weight about 30 pounds. But they are small enough to go in a deep coat pocket.

Silver Lining in Cloud

Usually condemned, hoarding is not considered altogether evil even by the Bank of France. It means, officials said, that there is a reserve in the country that will come to light when France's back is to the wall.

It means also that there is thrift, even if it is miserly thrift, and that the hoarder has a stake in the country and usually in the land and will defend his fortune.

ROADS IN BAD SHAPE

Hartford, April 3.—(AP)—The highways of the state were never in such need of repairs following a winter season as this year, and it will require much hard work on the part of the state highway department to restore them to their former condition. Highway Commissioner John A. MacDonald said today.

The particularly severe winter weather had its effect on the highways, the commissioner explained, and while some of them are impassable, much repair work is needed.

HARDENING OF THE ARTERIES

Hardening of the arteries may be found in old age and is often accompanied by high blood pressure, the two disorders being found in the same patient. In addition to the harmful changes in the walls of the arteries and the high blood pressure, the vital organs may be affected, such as the kidneys, heart and the brain. Hardening of the arteries, also called "arteriosclerosis," is one of the degenerative diseases of middle age and old age, and in a great many cases starts when the patient is fifty or over.

The inner walls of the healthy arteries are soft and elastic, but in the hardened artery, these walls have thickened, tensed, and at a later stage, a lining of lime has been laid down which makes the artery hard and brittle. The healthy artery stretches like elastic rubber, while in an advanced case of hardening of the arteries, so much lime has been deposited that the artery may become like a hard pipe stem instead of like a soft rubber tube. The laying down of the calcium or lime makes the artery more brittle and also narrows it so that the blood does not flow through as easily.

I believe I can make this plainer to you if I compare the hardened arteries to iron pipes. In plumbing which have become clogged up with a mineral deposit from the water after years of use. The water will then flow through the pipe in a slow exasperating trickle instead of in a smooth fast stream. The same thing happens when the blood tries to flow through an artery clogged with lime. The artery does not permit a full flow of blood and the parts do not get a sufficient supply. Most of the symptoms of hardening of the arteries do not come from the lessened supply of blood.

For example, if the arteries of the brain are affected, the lessened blood supply may cause dizziness, faintness, or giddiness which often appears when the patient tries to get out of bed or when he tries to stand after sitting down. There may also be a loss of memory so that things are easily forgotten. The danger is that apoplexy may occur, and unless a better regimen is adopted, these attacks of apoplexy may be repeated.

If the arteries around the heart are affected there may be a breathless feeling and pain. If the arteries of the kidneys are affected, the patient will develop Bright's disease. Sometimes when a hardening occurs in the arteries of the legs, the patient has a sensation of numbness or tingling, with perhaps cramping pains through the calves after walking. Some of the general symptoms of this disorder are headache, weakness or sleeplessness. High blood pressure might be considered a symptom of arterial hardening as the extra effort needed to push the blood through the thickened arteries means that the blood pressure must be raised.

 Question: Wenatchee, Wash., writes: "My brother has written me that he has been suffering from a disease called 'Iritis.' What are some of the causes of this trouble?"
 Answer: Iritis may be caused by a number of different conditions and is often due to injury or to an irritation brought about by chemicals. Other common causes are disturbances in the digestive tract or the presence of focal infection. The patient notices a feeling of heat in and about the eyes and also some tenderness. Occasionally there is a severe pain which grows worse at night. About the only way that I

TELLS GERMANY HOW TO WAGE NEW WAR

Prof. Banse Calls for Vast Extension of Frontiers

If your memory runs back to 1914, you doubtless can recall the publicity which was given to the books of such Germans as Bernhardi and Treitschke.

Those books did Germany a vast amount of harm in the United States. They seemed to confirm everything that the allied publicists were saying about German greed and ruthlessness.

The state of mind that produced such books evident, died hard. Now we have a brand-new one in the same vein—"Germany Prepares for War," by Ewald Banse, a German professor who undertakes to tell his fellow countrymen just why they lost the last war and how they should prepare to win the next one.

In 1914, says Professor Banse, Germany erred—not by invading Belgium, but by failing to invade Holland, Italy, and Rumania also. The next time she must not be so squeamish.

War is coming, and every soul in Germany must prepare for it; for out of it will come regeneration for Germany and a great extension of German frontiers.

The new Germany, continues the professor, not only must include all of pre-war Germany; it must take in part of Belgium, Holland, much more of France, Part of Switzerland, Austria, Hungary, the Italian Tyrol, and diverse other places.

England must be invaded, France must be crushed, Poland and Czechoslovakia must be ground to bits. And Professor Banse goes on to show just how and why all this must be done.

How far this represents the official Nazi program I know not. It makes, at all events, a rather alarming book.

Published by Harcourt, Brace and Co., it sells for $3.00.

Behind the Scenes in WASHINGTON

By BODNEY DUTCHER
 Manchester Herald's Washington Correspondent

Washington, April 3.—All this talk about the professors fading out of the administration picture are just so much baloney.

The latest census of professors says there are about 50, as against only 35 a few months ago. That indicates the increase, but the total is much too low.

You really can't count the professors—there are too many of them. You stumble into them wherever you go.

Every time a professor steps out of the New Deal (usually in disgust), there's another to take his place.

The yarns about the professors losing their places in the sun started with resignation of Ray Moley as Assistant Secretary of State, but Moley still is a fair-haired boy to Roosevelt and you may have noticed that the next Assistant Secretary was another professor—Francis B. Sayre of Harvard.

When Prof. O. M. W. Sprague quit the Treasury (with a loud roar), Secretary Morgenthau hired a couple more urologists—Dr. Roosevelt Magill of Columbia and Dr. Jacob Viner of Chicago university. And so it goes.

The professors are popular around here. They get invited around to all sorts of places. Funny thing is, most of them are young men often handsome and fast on their feet.

The fellows here who look like the comic strip conception of a professor are some of the veteran government employes, especially the scientists.

The only sure way to tell a New Deal professor is by the gleam in his eye—and the gleam often dies.

Garner Dodge Society

One reason Mr. and Mrs. Jack Garner avoid the social racket here is that it gives them a pain in the neck. An equally cogent reason is that they'd rather live within the vice president's salary, which is $15,000 normally, but only $12,750 since the 15 per cent federal pay cut.

The vice president gets no allowance for entertainment, as the White House does, and no mileage. Mrs. Garner, still Jack's secretary, cooks lunch for herself and the staff in the vice presidential office suite. Something simple, usually, like bacon, eggs, and coffee.

But that's for convenience rather than economy.

Senators Tighten Up

Brand new in Washington is the crop of "office hours" notices on senatorial doors. Dozens of Senators now restrict the general run of visitors (meaning, chiefly, job-hunters) to certain hours of the day.

Some are liberal, designating 9 a. m. to 3 p. m. or 10 to 4. But Senator Tydings of Maryland, who started the fashion last session, when he found his nearby constituents crowding into town by bicycle or on foot, says you can see his secretaries only from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m.

His sign warns applicants to get recommendations from their ward leaders, the Democratic central committee, or other politicians. Tydings even has taken his name off the door.

Kills Skunk at Capitol

A skunk invaded the Capitol the other night. Policeman John Ahley, attracted by unmistakable indications, shot it on the portico of the House entrance. The aroma lingered for days. . . . Capitol cops have varied experiences. Policeman Guy Reeves was bummed for a quarter recently by a man seeking taxi fare. The "bum" was Secretary Morgenthau, who wanted to get to the Treasury. . . . The Methodist Building restaurant has become an oasis—for surviving dregs. There now are few other respectable eating places here where drinks aren't served. . . . The cabinet member who wears spats is Attorney General Homer Cummings. . . . Roosevelt's favorite song continues to be "Home on the Range." . . . "Even the weather has gone Democratic," commented Senator Dave Deed of Pennsylvania, as he looked out from a Capitol window on a mean, nasty day. . . . The government hospital, St. Elizabeth's, now knows more about what's in a name. It removed $14 in nickels, dimes, and quarters from the stomach of a patient named—Nickels.

BUCKINGHAM

Seven boys were received into the membership of the church Sunday and Rev. H. A. Fast officiated.

The Buckingham Community Players held their monthly meeting Monday evening.

The Glastonbury Library books will be changed today.

Several children were sliding downhill Sunday on a sledge in back of H. J. Wick's home in Hilltown.

Ray Williams of Maple street, East Hartford, has two "Totem" poles set up on his premises.

The Herald reporter learned this week that clay makes good material for grafting fruit trees and takes the place of grafting wax.

Queer Twists In Day's News

St. Paul—Corrections are O. K., sign the editors of the St. Paul Pioneer Press—but this one was asked for 24 years after the tem was published.

In the issue of Sunday, January 30, 1910, the paper published a dispatch in which the name of Michael Spettel was mis-spelled.

And yesterday Miss Frances Spettel and Miss Gertrude Spettel, daughters of the man whose name was mis-spelled, dropped in at the office of the newspaper and asked that the error be corrected.

They had never requested a correction in the 24 years that have elapsed, they said, nor did their father who has died since.

The daughters brought along a clipping of the paper for verification—"just in case," they said.

Pittsburgh—Michael S. Hanley, 65, remembered by "the force" as the man who put detectives on their toes, is dead.

Hanley, during his term as captain of detectives, ordered all chairs removed from the division, explaining: "Officers not working should at least stand and a person standing can think better than one sitting."

Charleroi, Pa.—A messenger boy interrupted the funeral services of William W. Spence, Sr., to hand a telegram to James M. Spence of Bellaire, O., a brother.

The message said his wife and son had just been killed in an explosion and fire in the family home. Spence collapsed.

Chicago—Peter, the rabbit, accused of biting three children, is in clover, so to speak.

A stay in Peter's execution, by intercession of the Des Moines Chapter of the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Belgian Hares, brought joy to John Grimes, the chapter president.

He wired the Chicago police who had condemned Peter to death offering to give the rabbit a good home. "If they will entrust the rabbit to me, it will be given a chance to start life anew, out where the west begins."

Toronto—The surprise of R. E. Martin, Dominion chess champion, was extreme as he played 21 simultaneous games at the Toronto Chess Club. He was getting along splendidly, eliminating one player after another, when he found himself stumped by an eight-year-old boy.

The boy, Elmer Runkowsky, who came to Canada two years ago from Latvia, played stubbornly and beat the champion, although his father, who had coached him, conceded his game early. Martin won 18 games, anyway.

Denver—Because Dr. John Swenson and Harold Connor of Holly, Colo., couldn't hit a duck in the dim twilight of 6:04 p. m., Oct. 11, 1933, they were freed in Federal Court of the charge of shooting ducks after sundown.

John Boyensen and Roscoe Edward of Holly, whose aim was better, were fined $2.50 each by Federal Judge J. Foster Symes.

Oakland, Calif.—Though S. R. Neill, 52, is in jail under a misdemeanor sentence, he still takes his citizenship seriously.

While acting as a trustee, Neill vanished but returned several hours later to announce to jailers he'd just been out casting his ballot in a city bond election.

Hood River, Ore.—One potato would be more than enough at a meal for any ordinary sized family if all Libbers were the size of one grown by Allen Marcur near here. The potato weighs four pounds and five ounces.

Evanston, Ill.—Every man, woman and child in Evanston is going to be finger-printed if Chief of Police William O. Freeman has his wish.

He invited all residents to step down to the Detective Bureau and have their fingerprints taken saying they would be "valuable in case anything happens, if the youngsters are lost or hurt, for instance."

Lebanon, Pa.—The NRA gave DST a solar plexus blow. City Council voted not to adopt Daylight Saving Time this summer after Mayor John K. R. Shroop said the need for it is less than ever before.

Shorter working days under the NRA, said the mayor, make it possible for employes to leave their jobs earlier in the day.

Harrisburg, Pa.—Charles R. Meek, rector of the Bureau of Forest Extension, sent a list of trees offered for sale by the Department of Forests and Waters to Prospective planters.

An up-state resident replied: "Received your list and found out that I wouldn't have no use for them so please don't send no trees of no kind."

Chicago—Finding an alibi will be a tough job for Chicago brides in the future.

Because Cook county in a booklet, free with each marriage license, tells the bride all about the care of babies, how to keep a family budget, how to furnish a home and even how to develop into an arresting conversation.

There are no booklets for the groom.

THREE CHILDREN DIE IN OGDENSBURG FIRE

Baby Saved When Father Leaps With It in Arms from Porch Roof.

Ogdensburg, N. Y., April 3.—(AP)—Three small children of Mr. and Mrs. Milford Donaldson of Ogdensburg lost their lives early today when fire destroyed the family home here.

The dead: Milford, Jr., 7; Lucy, 6, and Albert, 4.

A sixteen months old baby escaped with slight burns when the parents, the father holding the child in his arms, leaped from the roof of a porch after efforts to rescue the other children proved futile.

Both parents received minor burns and all three were taken to a hospital.

The cause of the fire was undetermined.

The dead children had been sleeping in a back room on the second floor of the house and were overcome by smoke, apparently without awakening.

Elder Oscar Snipes of New London preached to the Hopevale group of Seventh Day Adventists Saturday, the subject of his sermon being "Bible Ethics."

The selection posted dog notices last Saturday. Dog taxes, as well as other property taxes, are due this month, on or before the first of May.

The severe storm of Saturday afternoon and night lessened church attendance on Easter day. The sun did not come out until about the middle of the forenoon. However, there was a good attendance at both churches in the village.

The Rev. Walter Vey preached on "Christ's Easter Message to the World," and the choir sang an anthem, "The Resurrection."

The solo parts of which were sung by Roger W. Porter, Mrs. Merton W. Hills, accompanist. A congregation of over 70 were present, among the worshippers being Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Little of Mansfield. The service was tastefully decorated with Easter flowers, loaned by friends.

Tennant was baptized Malcolm Louie, the sponsors being the parents and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis W. Phelps. Fitzgerald, for many years rector of the Hebron church, and of the late Rev. Edward Fitzgerald, brother of the donor.

HANDWRITING SPECIMAN CALLED DILLINGER CLUE

Federal Agents Believe Desperado Has Recruited New "Mob"—Bankers Prepare for Raids.

St. Paul, April 3.—(AP)—A handwriting specimen gave Federal men another clue today in their quest for the identity of the new "mob" John Dillinger has gathered about him.

A Minnesota state driver's license, addressed to the apartment from which Dillinger and another man and woman fled after a gun fight Saturday, was intercepted by authorities. It bore the signature of the applicant. While the name was believed fictitious, the handwriting specimen was regarded as a valuable clue.

The name of Tommy Carroll, sought in connection with several bank robberies, was injected into the case by Minneapolis police along with that of Dillinger's chief lieutenant, John Hamilton, who escaped with him.

The theory is that Carroll left the apartment with two women companions shortly before two Department of Justice agents and a St. Paul detective raided it and attempted to halt Dillinger's flight.

While numerous clues and tips were being checked, bankers, apprehensive over Dillinger's presence, posted additional guards about their institutions.

Insurgent Democrat Says Probe Has the Earmarks of a Whitewash.

Albany, N. Y., April 3.—(AP)—As the State Senate moved today to expediate the investigation of its veteran member, Warren T. Thayer, Republican of Franklin county, his alleged relationship with public utilities Senator John J. McNaboe, insurgent Democrat of New York, said the proposed legislative scrutiny of utilities has "the earmarks of a whitewash."

McNaboe was shut off last night from presenting resolutions asking investigations of utilities and Thayer.

"The Dunnigan and Dunmore resolutions aren't worth the paper they are written on," said McNaboe. "They leave only one interpretation of this entire situation and that is that they have all the earmarks of no investigation at all, or else a whitewash."

McNaboe's complaint was that neither resolution covered Governor Lehman's request for a scrutiny of relationships between public officials, past and present, and utilities.

"It would require much better legislation than Senator Dunnigan or Mr. Dunmore to reconcile their proposed investigation with what Governor Lehman is demanding and what the people want," continued McNaboe in a statement.

"It looks as if the Assembly intends to pass the Dunmore resolution and let the two propositions criss-cross and do nothing."

"If good government has sunk so low that a representative of the people is refused a voice on the floor of the Senate, what can the people expect? If it can be that these public utilities have such a grip on certain people that they can gag a representative of the people, what a hopeless and helpless state the people are in."

NUDE BODY OF MAN FOUND BY FARMER

One Arm Missing—Had On Pair of Boots—Police Work on Case.

Bethany, April 3.—(AP)—The body of an unidentified man with one arm missing, nude except for a pair of boots, was found by Arthur Doolittle in front of his home on the Downs road early today.

Doolittle left his house, situated in a wooded section three miles across country to the east side of Bethany at 6 a. m., to go to the barn when he stumbled over the dead man, his right eye blackened.

Coroner Called.

Constable Harry Baldwin of Bethany was summoned by Doolittle and he called Coroner James J. Corrigan of New Haven.

The man wore a brown and gray mustache, weighed 150 pounds and stood five feet, five inches in height, but the amputated arm was described by authorities as an old injury.

GIRLS' FRIENDLY GROUP TO PRESENT PLAY MAY 11

The regular meeting of the Girls' Friendly society of St. Mary's church was held last night in the parish house, and was well attended. Lucille Kilpatrick was in charge of the worship service, with Violet Madden reading the Scripture lesson. The business meeting was in charge of Edith Thrasher. The minutes of the last meeting were read by Valette Turner.

A conference of all G. F. S. leaders will be held in the parish house on April 6 and 7, at the national office of the society, 388 Fourth avenue.

On April 13 and 14, there is to be a conference at Christ Church Cathedral, Hartford. Miss Jeanette E. Booth, one of the national officers, will be the leader. It is hoped that a large number of associates and older members will plan to attend this conference. Those wishing to do so should notify Miss Ethel Madden, telephone 4785.

Announcement was made of the three-act play, "The Middlemarch Maid," to be presented under the joint auspices of the Young People's Fellowship and the Girls' Friendly society on Friday evening, May 11. Margaret Robinson is chairman of the ticket committee.

The G. F. S. candidates will have an entertainment on Wednesday evening, May 2, and will present a short sketch entitled "The Minister's New Car."

Announcement was also made that the date of the supper to be given by the Woman's Auxiliary was changed to April 12, instead of April 13, as previously announced. All members intending to be present are asked to notify Mary Robinson.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the following committees: Florence Cochran, Marion Cook, Peggy Smith and Evelyn Carlson.

Plans are being completed for the Fashion Show to be held Monday evening, April 16. Dorothy Jensen and Margaret Robinson are co-chairmen.

its location and mailed it to William Wintermuth, another of those held at Birmingham.

The gang also planned to print fake lottery tickets, the agents say, and made money on the side printing piecework payroll vouchers. They had disposed of comparatively little of the spurious money. Among those held at Teofil Frankskowsky, a Scranton, Pa., organizer, behind whose organ the government charges some of the money was found, and Robert Reid, Jr., son of the Baldwin, L. I. "Proprietor of Doom." The woman prisoner is Mrs. Lois Gallo, wife of one of the others.

FOUND DEAD IN BED.

Meredon, April 3.—(AP)—Otto W. Schipke, 45, for many years an employee of the Napier Company, was found dead in bed this morning by his wife. Medical Examiner Dr. H. DeForest Lockwood stated that death was apparently due to heart trouble, but as Mr. Schipke was involved in an automobile accident on the Meriden-Middletown road last Friday evening, it is expected that post mortem X-rays will be taken to determine if he had suffered any injuries at that time.

OTTIS NINE MONTHS

Rockville, April 3.—(AP)—Paul Mann, was sentenced to nine months in the Tolland county jail today for theft of $25.00 from three coffee tins, hidden under the counter of a Stafford Springs grocery store.

Briard, who said he was a CWA worker from December 15 to February 15, and received his last check March 1, pleaded guilty to the charges of theft and breaking and entering March 7. He was sentenced by Judge Ernest C. Simpson in Superior Court.

INSULL REFUSED RIGHT OF APPEAL

Little Chance for Him to Escape Extradition—Lawyers Flock to His Defense.

Istanbul, April 3.—(AP)—The last door to the possible escape of Samuel Insull from extradition to the United States was slammed shut today.

The white-haired fugitive was refused the right of appeal from the decision of the Penal Tribunal upon which the Turkish Cabinet's decision to extradite him was based. Thus it was determined definitely that he must remain here until he is transferred to the custody of United States government agents.

M. Kena, prosecutor, explained that the Third Tribunal's decision that he could legally be extradited constituted merely a statement of fact and was not a verdict. Hence, he said, no appeal could be entertained.

Lawyers Mobilized.

The announcement made amid an extraordinary mobilization of legal strength for a final fight in Insull's behalf. Greek lawyers rushed here from Athens. Others were retained in Istanbul.

Despite the apparently insurmountable odds, they had prepared to battle to the last ditch against both the arrest of the weeping Chicagoan, held today in the hospital room of the house of detention under what is called "house arrest," and his actual extradition.

Insull received a visit from his attorney, Maitre Mango, with whom he held a long conference.

Is Depressed.

Mango said he found the Chicagoan in good health but depressed. He is passing the time reading English newspapers and is making himself as comfortable as possible under the circumstances, the lawyer said.

One of the inmates of the hospital, an Englishman suffering from effects of a recent automobile accident, is acting as Insull's interpreter when he needs one.

The fugitive is his limited supply of clothing, as he brought little luggage in his hurried departure from Athens.

LATEST STOCKS

New York, April 3.—(AP)—Only feeble flutters characterized stock market trading during the greater part of today's session.

The dullness was pronounced and prices, as a whole, recorded only sequential variations. While there were scattered soft and firm spots apparent, the list was virtually at a standstill.

Gains were again a little depressing, with wheat and corn falling nearly a cent a bushel at one time. Cotton, silver and rubber traveled in a small fractional range. Bonds were quiet and a trifle mixed. Sterling developed strength in terms of the dollar, but other exchanges were narrow.

Some of the alcohol shares, including Schenley, American Commercial and National Distillers got up around a joint. The rails were somewhat higher, as were several of the oils. Chrysler and Nash eased, but General Motors was about steady. Consolidated Gas and Public Service of New Jersey was a bit lower. U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and various stocks of this group lagged. American Telephone, United Aircraft, American Can and a number of others were virtually unchanged. A few specialties were relatively active.

Some mild selling of the steel stocks was attributed, of course, to the estimates of the American Iron & Steel Institute that this week's operations would average about 43.3 per cent of capacity compared with 45.7 a week ago and 47.7 a month ago. At the same time most steel authorities felt that the decline may be only temporary.

Although the utilities had few friends, due probably to the various inquiries now under way into rate-making and other activities of this industry, the majority did not exhibit particular heaviness.

Followers of the rails were encouraged by the American Railway Association forecast that freight car loadings for the second quarter would exceed the total for the same period of 1933 by 10.7 per cent. The estimate was based on information obtained from shippers through the regional advisory boards.

At the beginning of the first quarter, however, shippers figured their demands at about 6.5 per cent over that of a year ago, while the actual advance for the 1934 period was around 10 per cent.

Market observers generally were in agreement that backing and filling sessions of the peritric exchanges could be expected for a while, at least until Congress acts on the control bill which has kept Wall street in a state of nerves for the past several weeks.

little girl, she romps about, while her strength lasts, singing songs she makes up herself.

The other girl, Roma Garrett, of Peekskill, N. Y., is at a hospital at Eastview, N. Y. The cannibalistic white corpuscles have ravaged her blood. Ten minutes of listless playing with a teddy yesterday left her exhausted.

Scientists are working far into the night, measuring, filtering, scanning the results of exhaustive tests to save the lives of the children. They still have hopes of checking the diseases.

In some cases of leukemia, transfusions and x-ray treatments help. But according to Dr. William Martens, of Peekskill, Roma's disease is apparently not that type.

Willie Mae goes to a hospital every day for x-ray treatment. Her parents still have hope. The doctors say the overproduction of white corpuscles is continuing.

The children's plight has aroused sympathy throughout the country. A newspaper chain engaged a New York specialist to fly to Wilkes-Barre to give aid, but Dr. H. Alex Smith, of the General hospital at Wilkes-Barre said the New Yorker was not given permission to examine the patient.

NEW YORK STATE STREAMS RISING

Ice Jam Forms in Hudson River While Lake Champlain Above Normal.

Albany, N. Y., April 3.—(AP)—Adirondack communities kept a watchful eye on creeks and rivers today, as spring temperatures caused water from melting snow and ice to pour into bank-full streams.

An ice jam that formed early yesterday in the Hudson river between North creek and North river in Warren county, north of Glens Falls, went out a few hours after it had flooded the North creek-Indian lake highway and left it covered with huge ice cakes as the water receded.

It formed again further downstream at the Glen, threatening a bridge and the Adirondack division tracks of the Delaware and Hudson railroad.

At Gansevoort, the main line of the D. and H. was washed out in two places. One of them caused damage that would take 24 hours to repair. Passengers from Albany to Montreal were forced to walk around the 200 foot obstruction and take a train waiting on the other side.

The ice in the Mohawk river was melting rapidly, bringing the prediction that Barge Canal traffic would be resumed about April 15. Navigation usually opens about April 6.

Lake Champlain was reported rising rapidly. It was five feet above normal last night.

BRITISH VESSEL'S KEEL IS REMOVED FROM RIVER

Had Rested More Than 121 Years in Bottom of Connecticut River at North Channel Cove, had a new resting place today in the back yard of Samuel Hunt, Jr.

Essex, April 3.—(AP)—The keel of a British vessel, that rested more than 120 years in the bottom of the Connecticut river at North Channel cove, had a new resting place today in the back yard of Samuel Hunt, Jr.

Although few facts in the history of the keel are known, stories handed down in the old families of the town tell that it belonged to a frigate "Osage," British owned and today—in the Revolutionary period, that sank in the Connecticut river.

From its burial place in the river bottom, the keel was raised as the heavy winter ice broke up and hauled to the towed to the Essex dock, lifted out of the water and carried in to his yard.

The keel is of solid oak, 30 feet long and apparently well preserved.

LOOK OUT FOR THESE SYMPTOMS OF CONSTIPATION

Get Relief with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sallow complexion, and sleeplessness are often warning signs of common constipation. Unless checked, constipation may impair health.

Today, you can usually get rid of common constipation by eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" and vitamin B to aid regularity. ALL-BRAN is also a good source of blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears the intestines of wastes. How much better than taking patent medicines.

Two tablespoons daily will overcome most types of constipation. Chronic cases, with every meal. If seriously ill, see your doctor. ALL-BRAN is not a "cure-all."

Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or use in cooking. Appealing recipes on the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

The ROMANTIC RUNAWAY

By KATHARINE HAVILAND-TAYLOR

BEGIN HERE TODAY

PABLITO, a handsome youth, becomes a fugitive when he flees from Key West to Havana with BEAU and LOTTIE, two thieves. Pablito has been accused of a murder he did not commit. He is in love with ESTELLE FIELD, daughter of rich JIM FIELD, but feels he has exiled himself from her forever.

In Havana he becomes celebrated as a boxer and he and Beau open a gymnasium.

SIR AUBREY, a titled Englishman and Pablito's father, is searching for his son, employing BILLINGS, New York detective.

Three years pass and then Pablito and Estelle meet again. She tells him she has always known he was innocent. MARCIA TREADWAY, visiting in the fields, proves that Pablito was not the murderer but remains silent, fearing scandal.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Estelle had disliked Trixy Golden from the day she first met her. Now she knew why—having just seen the tableau of her father's rough capture of this social hoiden: Trixy's perfunctory struggle and Jim Field's kisses.

Estelle thought, through a dizziness that came from actual physical nausea, "He should remember to be more careful."

Marcia Treadway had left that Estelle would never grow up but there were ways in which Estelle had grown up long ago. She had begun to realize that the appearance of respectability was all she could hope for from her father.

A little later she wrote a note to Pablito which she sent by Carlitto, a servant whom she trusted.

"Dear Juanito," Estelle wrote, "I wonder if you can meet me in the park at three? I think surely I can meet you there. I am a little depressed and you always cheer me up. You can send an answer by Carlitto who is bringing this."

Her eagerness to see Pablito would have told her more than if she had seen him more experienced. As it was, she knew that even though she tried she could not any longer pretend about her father. She knew, too, that Marcia's calculating creed was the creed of most of the men and women of the shoddy social world into which she had been introduced. Estelle felt incredibly hurt and incredibly alone. With Pablito she could forget all this and, with him, she would not have to believe that all men were like her father's set.

Carlitto came back swiftly, rattling like a brown-roasted peanut in the small car the servants used. He made his way upstairs carrying a tall glass of malted milk on a silver tray. Beneath the cloth on the tray was Pablito's answer. Estelle took the milk. Then she smiled at Carlitto and lifted the tray cover.

"Thank you so much, Carlitto," she said.

"He is a good young man, Senorita. All Havana knows that he is a good young man. Ah, how he flushed as he saw me! It was dramatic. But even the strong are like children at the touch of love."

Carlitto bowed himself away then. Pausing a moment at the door before closing it, he saw the girl, suddenly pink of cheeks, reading her letter.

Pablito had written: "Will I be there at three? Don't you know at all how I feel? Your wanting to see me, if only a little, has made me more happy than I've ever been before."

The letter bore no salutation. She wished he would call her Estelle. Presently she stood with the letter in her hands, imagining what he would say when they met. Then, once more, she saw the tableau in the living room.

At half-past two Estelle told Ruy that she would use the Lancia to take her to Havana. She had shopping to do and a friend at the Inglaterra to see. Ruy stifled a smile at her explanations. All the servants knew of her meetings with the young man. They discussed the affair frequently and hoped the lovers would elope. They narrated tales of Juanito's strength and bravery, of his intelligence of character. Obviously Jim Field was unfit to be housed with a creature so young, so sweet and so altogether lovely as his daughter.

"Ruy," Estelle said, "you need not wait but you may return for me at five at the usual place—near the Cosmopolita."

"Si, Senorita. Gracias," he answered with a bow and a flash of teeth.

"I am a little early," she said, seeing Pablito and then coming close to him, her hand in both of his. She had known it would be like this. She reminded herself. All her unhappiness was washed from her and forgotten.

Pablito could not keep his adoration from his eyes. He had flushed darkly as she drew near.

"I'm so glad to see you," she whispered unsteadily.

"Look here," he said suddenly. "Let's go to a picture show. We can sit there and talk—"

"And not in a preference," she said, meeting his eyes. "I have a preference of those who pay an extra sum for the privilege of stumbling up a twisting, narrow, dark stairway to look down upon those in cheaper seats."

"I suppose downstairs would be safer for you—the balcony."

"Yes, under a roving fotingo and I helped her in."

After they were settled in the theater and the story, with Spanish and English captions, was moving on the screen Pablito felt the pressure of her shoulder against his. He set his teeth, staring blindly at the row of boxes that were gay with Spanish shawls flung across their ballustrades.

Then the world rocked for him. He felt her hand on his cuff and stealing into his. He turned and saw that she had been crying.

"It's all right," she whispered with a little quiver of a smile. "I can't explain, only when you feel you can't believe something you must believe—and then know that you can, you're so happy it's almost an ache."

He understood her not at all but it did not matter.

"You're the finest person I know, Pablito."

She felt his sharply indrawn breath and felt her hand pressed against his lips.

Her heart trembled and seemed to turn within her. She saw the figures on the screen only as misty blotches and moved closer to Pablito. With her free hand she patted his arm. He dropped her hand then and turned eyes toward her that denoted the last of her reserves.

"I do—love you," she whispered. "She had not known she was to say it."

For a short second he put an arm around her slender shoulders, pressing her close. She felt his lips against her hair and started at that. "We—mustn't," she stammered. "People might—"

"It's dark and they do anyway—sometimes—down here—" he whispered in turn.

His kept her hand in his, kissing it when he dared trust himself. He was secretly afraid that he might go wholly mad; to stand up, fling wide his arms and smash things; to laugh and cry and kiss her—kiss her!

"You haven't said you love me," she whispered shyly.

He could not. He pressed her hand against his lips until she winced a little. Then, breathless and without having seen her wince, he said, "Did I hurt you, my dearest?"

Pablito wondered what would happen if all this proved to be a dream. He didn't see how he could go on now without Estelle beside him always. "Always?" he asked her in a roughened undertone.

"Oh, Pablito, you must know that with me it's for always," she assured him. He felt her cheek pressed against his shoulder. He heard her voice again. "Pablito, you're so wonderful!"

Some day, he thought, she would raise him from his knees and let him touch her lips with his. All the hunger he had ever known paled before this hunger.

She thought, "We can meet in the grounds, perhaps, with Carlitto watching to see that no one comes near."

"Pablito, I want to see you alone," she whispered.

They parted that day was the sweetest heartbreak either of them had ever known. Estelle rode homeward with closed eyes, still seeing his humble, adoring gaze.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

Ho-Hum! Spring fever days are here again. Father complains of that tired feeling. The Finicky Member of the family pushes away her plate and doesn't "feel like eating."

Even the cat has lost her appetite. Of course, mother's the one who must do something about it. All. To make matters worse, she's just heard that grandma's sulphur and molasses tonic is completely out-of-date.

Which is, too. But the modern scene offers a substitute that is not merely just as good but a lot better—the profusion of green vegetables and fruits in the market.

Look at the left-overs on the Finicky Member's plate—bread, meat and potatoes! No wonder the poor child isn't hungry this languid spring day. The family is still on its winter diet, heavy in heat-supplying elements, though what bodies are craving is more iron.

Iron for Energy

The reason iron should play the leading role in March and April menus is that iron in the food is the carrier of oxygen to the tissues where food materials are burned to release energy. Adequate iron insures good red blood, pep and endurance.

Meat is one of the richest sources of the all-important element, but it would be very unwise to try to get the family's entire supply from a high meat diet.

Fruit and vegetables, then, must be the mainstays of the spring menu-maker, with plenty of bulky ones assured to give the digestive tract its daily setting-up exercises.

Here's a list to have handy when you start your iron-food marketing: Lean beef, liver, oysters, eggs (the yolks have iron), lentils, dried beans, peas, chard, string beans, potatoes, asparagus, lettuce, radishes, spinach, carrots, apricots, dates, figs, raisins, prunes, oatmeal, strawberries, pineapples, dried currants, bananas, whole cereals, cranberries, olives and molasses.

The method of cooking, by the way, has a great deal to do with iron content. Some vegetables rich in iron lose most of their valuable content if they are cooked wrong. To conserve the life-giving element, cut vegetables in the largest possible pieces and cook in the smallest possible amount of water.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

A permanent wave can be no better than the operator who gives it to you. Your head is in her hands, so to speak, and her skill in winding the hair around the rods determine just how satisfactory the permanent will be. Therefore, selecting the operator is just as important as getting the right kind of wave for your type of hair.

First, go to a reliable shop. Bargain waves are perfectly all right, providing you know the reputation of the shop that is sponsoring a "permanent sale." Otherwise, it is better to pay a little more and be sure that the results will be pleasant. But make sure that you're getting what you pay for.

If you've chosen a certain brand of permanent wave, it's fairly simple to tell whether or not the operator is using the pads sponsored by that brand's manufacturer because the pads are plainly stamped with the trade name.

Your hair should be thoroughly washed, rinsed several times and carefully dried before it is parted in tiny sections, preparatory to being wound on the rods. Incidentally, the smaller the parts and thinner the sections the tighter the wave will be. Hair that is very coarse usually is parted in pretty large sections and wound rather heavily on the rods. Otherwise it may be too fuzzy.

COMPACT, COMFORTABLE FURNITURE SIMPLIFIES "SMALL HOME" PROBLEM

Sofas divide into combinations to fit any room.

By MARGERY TAYLOR

At last the little gray home in the west is going to have a chance. Also the little gray home in the east—and the small apartment.

No longer do we have to try to force the monumental style of furniture into the small rooms we—and our budgets—prefer. And there's a pleasant surprise for those of us who still think that a comfortable armchair must be so massive that there is no space left in the room.

The new designers have proved that it is possible for furniture to be small and compact—and very comfortable.

Of course this new idea is part of the modern movement for re-designing our small homes to make them livable. But we don't have to wait for those modernistic big houses which, we are told, we are going to make from a kind of glorified building blocks, or ready-made unit cubics, each ready to live in.

The new furniture is here and will take its place gracefully in any home. For example, the new armchairs are not only small and comfortable, but they actually achieve the illusion of making a small room look larger.

The sofas which divide themselves into kinds of combinations will solve the hardest furnishing problem. They come in three or four parts and if you haven't a big enough wall, you can fit them around a corner. If the new sofa is too big, you can divide it into a love seat plus a chair or three chairs; or one end piece and a middle section will make a charming chaise longue.

Other welcome pieces for the irregular or small room are the quarter round and half round sofas. And if you have space for one of them in the middle of the room, it will look even better than against the wall.

Takes a Woman to Keep Man's Head Above Water

By HELEN WELSHIMER

After all, there should be limits, even to this career business. To know that women are turning life savers is a little too much. Still, we boast of our freedom of the seas so it wouldn't be fair to make it a man's ocean, I suppose. Anyway, if a girl knows her own mind there isn't anything, any more, to keep her out of deep water.

Somehow the brawny life savers who patrolled the beaches in the days when women feigned helplessness caused more than one timid lass to get into the swim. There was something romantic, mysterious, altogether fascinating in the manner that a long, strong arm could save you from another mouthful of salt water. Then, too, chivalry sat along the benches in dark blue life guards' suits. It yearned to show whom it could save.

But now—

Women are doing the rescue act.

They know their strokes as well as any man ever knew his. They are quite as able to perform gallant service.

But the romantic is gone. What woman wants to be saved by another woman? Still—if it is a question of life or death maybe one doesn't care who does the saving. Women, however, shrink intuitively from venturing into deep water when it is another woman who must aid them if their own breast strokes or backhand strokes give out. For so long we have been taught that men surmount all feats of physical prowess that we can't help being disappointed to know that the sea belongs to women as well as to men.

This is the feminine angle, of course.

Men are rejoicing because someone as fair as June, with features resembling those of the queen who launched the Trojan Navy, is likely to swim to their defense. Risking their lives is a pleasant matter for the gentlemen.

Oh well, women may have their limitations in hospitals. There is that glorious minute when the scion of a wealthy family gazes into the eyes of a ministering angel and confuses love with gratitude. Only—the nurses will tell you that it doesn't happen that way. That their work is long and hard and romance waits until after they leave their corridors.

The stenographic field has been fictionalized, too. Most employers are married, and the eager-eyed girl who takes dictation is much more likely to marry the filing clerk than the junior partner.

No, the only place where a woman could rely on a brief, ecstatic glimpse of unroyed chivalry was the damp moment when she submerged and arose to be rescued. Instead of searching for her boss's letters or her husband's collar buttons she could rest on a masculine shoulder or be towed in by a masculine hand.

Still, if a few gallant women are passing the examinations for official life saving jobs maybe it will spur the rest of us on to learn how to swim. We might as well. There isn't any point in getting into deep water any more. All we do is get wet.

After all, those who are using feminine substitutes for this task may know what they are doing. Guards will save their time. The summer girls who pretended to learn aquatic victories every season may remember to stay on the level from one year's end to the next.

Only, won't it look queer, when summer comes again, to see long, strong brows learning to float while some mermaid hold their hands on their stomachs so they won't go under?

Life's rather nice last summer. And the summer before that. But reversals usually come some time or other.

A parachute, which resembles a giant seed of a maple tree, and which will permit mail planes to drop packages for low altitudes, has been patented.

A German company is said to be backing a project to build an airplane capable of carrying 200 passengers and several tons of freight.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

All parents who have had a little boy or girl in bed with a long illness know the difference in conduct when the germs have flown out of the window and convalescence is over.

The sick woman remains. Obstrepituousness is noticeable, and she will demand its way.

As a rule it takes some time to restore order, and for a very good reason. Both mother and father are so grateful to have the child alive that they are willing to qualify as martyrs. Besides they are afraid that in such a nervous condition their offspring is unable to endure discipline or thwarting. A mother is particularly susceptible to quailms of conscience. Not only does her sympathy have been stirred to the very foundations of her soul, but if possible, the one who has endured and suffered has become infinitely more precious to her. It often happens that the other children in the family become objects of indifference for the time being and all her emotion centers on the more unfortunate one. She also feels that no compensation or indulgence can ever make up for the suffering he has experienced.

Tyranny Vanishes

As a rule this will adjust itself. When the little cheeks are rosy again and Jean is her fat little self, energetic, and filled with every sign of health, she herself will lose this tendency to tyranny, and from sheer interest in everyday play and the resumption of routine, forget her pose. She won't resort to "I'm not feeling well, mother," and pout when told to do things. And when she misbehaves she won't attempt to eschew, "I guess I was tired and didn't think."

Neither Jimmy nor Jean will continue alibiing for very long under normal conditions. Mother will resume her former attitude, and perhaps by this time she is busy with Mary anyway, who has picked up the measles.

But there are numerous cases, especially when recovery has been slow and left certain unfortunate drags, when a mother continues in this state of pity. Then the balance continues to be upset. Toward her other healthy children she even goes so far as to set up a resentment that they had all the lucky breaks and the weakling has so much to bear.

She continues to indulge, excuse and shield, and the result is unfortunate. Not only are the others likely to sense injustice and enter into a cabal against the favored sister or brother, but this child himself is being conditioned to dependence, if not an actual fixation, that will probably stick for life and rob him of the very things he needs to fend for himself some day.

Churl Sentimentalism

In cases of chronic illness, or the results of accident, I don't know what it is to be done. But probably the best thing is for the parent to keep his sympathy and heartbreak in the background as much as possible and do her crying in private. Also kindness and care need not be tagged perpetually with too evident pity or too demonstrative affection.

A certain cheeriness and contagious courage is best in this case. The child will hunger for love and he certainly needs it and must have it, but over-emotion toward a sick or weakly child won't help him to bear his burden. It merely accents self, and his consciousness of his condition is emphasized.

We wonder sometimes why perfectly capable and healthy people are abnormally dependent, and unhappy in later life, who can't make a go of anything and possess a sort of faithful expectancy that someone will come to the rescue. If we looked back to childhood, we might find at least one answer—that of the long illness, or many illnesses, in which the convalescence dragged on, emotionally at least, much longer than was necessary.

Most Deaths Among Undernourished Youngsters Under 3; Yet Little Special Attention Is Needed for Cure.

This is the second of two articles on measles, by Dr. Morris Fishbein.

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Most people who get measles recover from the disease, but in some cases complications set in, which are more serious than the original disease itself. Infection of the lungs and of the ears may be far more difficult to cure than the measles.

Seventy per cent of the deaths from measles occur among children under 3 years of age. These children, in most cases, are poorly nourished or sick with other diseases, and are among the poorer elements of the population.

When measles break out in an asylum or foundling home, the death rate may reach as high as 10 or even 20 per cent. If the disease occurs among children in average homes, the death rate is much lower.

As a parent, you should be careful to prevent the exposure of infants and children under the age of

WHEN A WOMAN LOVES

ADAPTED BY LUCY HUFFAKER FROM THE SCREEN PLAY BY EDWARD GORDON A METRO-GOLDWYN-MAJESTY PICTURE

CHAPTER II

FOREWORD

Mary Watts, an orphan living with her only sister Sylvia in New York. They belong to a gay young crowd, but Mary unlike her sister does not give all her time to frivolity. Sylvia disapproves of her companionship with Lord Berford, a brilliant young English writer on economics, thinking him snobbish. Mary goes to the boat to see him off, and he purposely misses sailing, to persuade her to marry him.

"Let us get a car and go for a dash in the country—dine at some quiet little place," he said as they left the pier.

"It would be heavenly," said Mary, "but—"

"Please, Mary," he said in a voice which was firm as steel as pleading. "We can't celebrate our engagement with that noisy crowd, drinking and wise-cracking."

"No," said Mary. "I feel that way, too. But we must go to the hay-out. I promised to meet Sylvia and she'll be furious if I stand her up."

"I don't see why—"

"Well, you should, dear. You think as all a lot of hoodlums—oh yes, you do in your British way, but even we announce to our families our approaching marriages. And Sylvia is all the family I have."

"Right-o," he agreed. "And there's not much time. We'll have to take the next boat—bad enough for my work, that I missed this one."

Sylvia was so astonished when she saw Berford with Mary that for once she was speechless and before she found her voice, they told her they were to be married—and with-in three days.

Mary smiled mischievously. "What makes you think she'll be at the dock?" she asked.

The Englishman was stern as he drew himself up, said "My wife is an Englishwoman! Good morning!" and walked away.

"I wouldn't be waiting for that old billygoat!" said Mary to Berford.

"What does he think women are made of?"

But when she saw her husband's face, the smile vanished from her's. "Did I do something wrong?" she asked quickly.

"Of course not—but—"

"But what?" she demanded breathlessly.

"Don't tell all of your opinions to people over here. I understand them, but—"

"A double brander—quick!" she said to the waiter. "I need it," she explained to her sister and her betrothed.

But she was on her good behavior, to Mary's great relief. She didn't want Sylvia bolsterous on this night of all nights. Sylvia, although she loved her young sister, was not thinking of behaving properly however. Her thoughts were all on the trousseau. She loved shopping.

"But there's no time for a lot of furbelows," objected Lord Berford when Sylvia began talking of all the clothes Mary would have to buy in so short a time. "Mary's got all she needs for the crossing—and you know there really are shops in London."

"And we must arrange for the wedding," said Sylvia, as if she had not heard what he said.

He groaned.

"Oh, must there be a lot of fuss?"

"Even if there were time, which there isn't," put in Mary, "I wouldn't want anything but the simplest, quietest wedding possible."

"May" said Sylvia. "But there have to be some arrangements. And"—turning to Lord Berford—"it is going to be in the very church where Mother and Dad were married. You think we're heathen—at least that I am—but our grandfather was rector of that church for forty years and I'm going to sit—and cry—in our old family pew."

So they were married.

There had been so many things to attend to, even after Mary had refused to buy all the things Sylvia said she absolutely must have, that there had been little time for Mary and Berford to talk to each other, or to see each other alone.

"I haven't time to think," Mary said to him the night before the wedding. "I'm in a rush and daze. If I wanted worry about whether we're being foolish or not, I just couldn't find a moment to do it."

"That's fine," he said. "Do all your thinking and worrying afterward, if you must. You promised to 5 years to contact with other children having measles. After the fifth or sixth year of life, the dangers are much reduced.

Most cases of measles get well with a little special attention. But you should put the child to bed and keep him in bed until well after the temperature becomes normal. Any delay about putting the child to bed as soon as the disease is discovered may aggravate the severity of the attack.

There is no reason why children with measles should be kept in dark rooms. It is only necessary to shield the eyes, which are rather sensitive to light in this disease, from too much direct and bright light. The child should have plenty of fresh air in the room, but should not be exposed in any way to drafts of cold air or sudden changes in temperature.

The physician who takes care of your child will particularly watch for signs of infection in nose and throat, and guard against it, as much as possible. He can aid the child with an irritating cough by prescribing suitable sedative remedies.

Proper attention to measles and the use of our medical knowledge on this subject should make it possible to prevent and to control most of the cases of this disease in the future.

GRASS FIRE ATTRACTS EARLY MORNING CROWD
 A fire that was started at 6 o'clock last night burned over five acres of swamp land owned by Selectman Frank V. Williams in the western part of the town and continued to burn until an early hour this morning. The fire attracted attention because of the reflection against the sky and several rods to the scene expecting to find a house burning.
 The fire was set for the purpose of getting rid of unhealthy grass so that proper grass might grow as the land is to be used for pasture. There was no danger of its spreading as the area surrounding it had been plowed.

SENSE and NONSENSE

MEN ARE ALL ALIKE
 A new-made widow called at the office of an insurance company for the money due on her husband's policy. The manager said:
Manager—I am truly sorry, madam, to hear of your loss.
New-Made Widow—That's always the way with you men. You are always sorry when a poor woman gets a chance to make a little money.
IT'S UP TO YOU!
 It's as easy to lift as it is to lean. Do a kind act as be mean; It's as easy to praise as to scorn. To trust and be glad as to mourn; It's just in this world as you take it. It's as easy to look up as down, It's as easy to smile as to frown; It's as easy to laugh as to cry. Quite as easy to sing as to sigh; It's just in this world as you make it.

Take a little time off and catalog the number of people you know who have more brains than you possess. Then go out with a determination to excel them and you will excel them and you will get somewhere—
 Two Negro women were discussing present conditions. One of them remarked: "It shuah is too bad, ain't it, dat did heah repression had to come jes' when times is so hard."

Suitor (sighing)—Well, since you don't want to marry me anymore, perhaps you will return me my ring.
Girl (acidly)—If you must know, the jeweler has called for it already.

Yes, time will tell—but this is so useless when women are around.

Even the pessimist might enjoy the good things he has if he weren't kept so busy grumbling about the disagreeable things he expects.

She—I want to marry a clever man.
 He—Clever men don't marry.

He had managed to get a job as collector for the telephone company. It was his duty to visit the telephone booths containing pay telephones.

Manager—Take this master key and go around and empty all of the coin boxes, get all the nickles, dimes and quarters.
 He was gone for three weeks. Then he walked into the office and announced:

New Collector—Can I have another key? I've lost the other one.
Manager—Certainly. But where have you been all this time? The cashier has waited late for you every Saturday night expecting you to come for your wages.

New Collector—Gracious! Do I get wages as well?

You've probably heard about the native who spent all his life in the Ozarks and had to go to the city to hear a real old-fashioned hill-billy orchestra.

Bronson—Do you remember when a girl was proud of having a wasp-like waist?

Messick—I ought to remember it. That was when I got stung.

Every woman likes to think that her husband is particularly difficult to handle.

Miss—Now golf, auntie, is a game in which you try to go around in as little as you can.
Aunt—I see, girl. Just another excuse for dry land bathing suits.

A man never seems to be satisfied unless he is up to his ears in debt, or a girl unless she is over her head in love.

A fat man stood on one of those automatic weighing machines which speak your weight.
 Voice from inside—One at a time, please.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

More than 169,100 new homes were built in Great Britain during the year which ended Sept. 1, 1933.

Eskimos make ice cream from fish oil, snow, and sugar.

The English shire horse is the heaviest in the world. It is of the same breed as those used by armored knights in the Middle Ages.

California now has 285,000 acres of state-owned parks.

The monkey wrench was named for its inventor, Charles Monck. Sponges are tanned like leather, by a new process, to increase their durability.

Palestine is governed by Great Britain under a mandate granted by the League of Nations.

A Marfa, Tex., man, Leroy Cleveland, commutes between his ranches in Texas and Mexico, 235 miles apart, by airplane.

Stepping on a pedal on the back of a new long-handled dustpan presses its edges tight against the floor to receive all sweepings.

The celebrated leaning tower of Pisa is made entirely of marble.

Approximately 9 per cent of Scotland's houses consist of one apartment; 36 per cent have two rooms only.

The Kodiak bear of the Alaskan peninsula weighs only 20 ounces at birth and reaches a weight of 1500 pounds when full grown.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE By Gene Ahern

Y'KNOW, BASIL—I WAS THINKING OVER WHAT I SAID THE OTHER NIGHT, ABOUT NOT WANTING TO TAKE ANYBODY IN WITH ME ON MY GOLD MINE—YOU SEE—AH—I MEANT THAT IN—AH—IN A BROAD SENSE—YOU UNDERSTAND—SOME STRANGER WHO WOULD WANT TO INVEST A HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS AND HAVE CONTROL OF THE MINE—BUT, WITH A FRIEND, ESPECIALLY A CLOSE FRIEND, IT IS DIFFERENT—NOW, IF YOU WANT TO PUT IN $500, I'M SURE I CAN—IN FACT, I WILL—MAKE AN ALLOWANCE IN MY POLICY—UM—KAFF KAFF.

HIS SPORTING OF YOU, OLD TOP—BUT YOUR WIFE HAD ADVISED ME TO BUY A SMALL FARM BACK IN HIGHLAND, AND RAISE SHEEP! A STERLING HIDEA, DON'T YOU THINK?
