150 Employees at Belamo Plant Attempt to Stop Others Going to Work — Two Arrests Are Made.

Rocky Hill, April 4.—(AP)—Eight state policemen were called to the Belamo Corporation plant and made two arrests on charges of assault and breach of the peace this morning after about 150 employees recently laid off attempted to halt those going to work.

The lay-off was due, according to Gilbert Loveridge, executive manager of the plant, to curtailed production necessitated by cancellation of orders, which resulted from strikes in other textile plants.

Those arrested are Josephine Carbone of 261 Pleasant street, Hartford, who is held at the Hartford police station in default of $200 bonds, and Salvatore Scata of 74 Ellsworth street, Hartford, held at the state police barracks in default of $200 bonds.

Notices were posted in the plant March 30, Loveridge said, that between 200 and 300 of the 900 employees would be laid off within a week or ten days, and that it was hoped they could be taken back within a few weeks although it might be longer.

The re-employment, the notice said, would be based on the production rating of the workers, those having the highest rating to be re-employed first, except in some cases where the worker was the sole support of the family.

The ratings were posted today, and due to misunderstanding of the plan by those laid off, the rioting began.

Road Is Blocked The disgruntled group blocked the road to prevent those still employed from reaching their work, but the employees of the chemical division, according to Mr. Loveridge, were extremely loyal and determined to get to the plant. Logs were put in the way of cars and bricks and stones were tossed at those who persisted in trying to pass, except for Mr. Loveridge and other officers who were not molested.

So far as the company knows officially, there is no union of the workers at the plant. There have been no demands made nor requests for conferences, Mr. Loveridge said. But unofficially the officials had heard rumors of union agitation and on March 16 they conducted a secret poll of the employees to determine whether they favored unionization.

The result showed that 90 per cent were opposed to any union and were perfectly satisfied, Mr. Loveridge asserted. Since then the union adherents have made some gains and he estimated that 15 per cent of the 950 workers now wished organization of a local.

Theory of Foul Play In Bethany Mystery

Bethany, April 4.—(AP)—Identification was still sought today of the nude, one-armed man found dead in a wooded section of Bethany yesterday, after an autopsy disclosed a fracture at the base of the skull and authorities leaned to a theory of foul play.

Coroner James J. Corrigan of New Haven, in charge of the investigation, said the man, one of his eyes blackened, was seen on forest road by two persons Monday.

At that time, the coroner said he had been told the man was dragging an overcoat and was without coat of shirt.

Officials at first believed the man had died of natural causes after the bruised and scratched body was found by Arthur Doolittle, a member of the New Haven county superior court jury panel, in front of his home.

But with the result of the autopsy, the theory of natural death was abandoned, authorities said.

The body was clad only in boots when found.

Later, state police and Bethany authorities turned to New Haven and West Haven in their efforts to establish the middle aged man's identity.

A motorist whose name is being withheld by police told them a man answering the description of the dead man had narrowly missed staggering into the rear of an oil truck on Forest road Monday.

Persons who saw the incident believed the man to be drunk, Lieutenant William Schattsman of the state police said. The motorist told him. An hour later, the man was seen at another point in Forest road.

Investigators were satisfied, they said, that the man had not received his injuries from an automobile. They accounted for the bruises on the man's body by saying they probably were caused by dense underbrush.

GOVERNOR SEES NO REASON FOR EXTRA SESSION

State Executive on Return from West Says He Has Not Changed His Mind on Subject.

Hartford, April 4.—(AP)—Governor Wilbur L. Cross, back from his western trip, has not changed his mind as to what he had several times in recent months termed a lack of need of a special session of the General Assembly to tinker with the state liquor control law.

He has said there was a widespread grievance in desire of hotel men to have the law changed which will give them the right to sell liquors on a party with package and drug stores. He also has reiterated his belief that state control of the liquor traffic, if politics can be eliminated in that control, is the best.

Made Two Stops Governor Cross yesterday said on his trip he had little opportunity to inquire into or observe the operation of liquor legislation in other states. His two stops were in Oklahoma and California. He said the former place is dry under a constitutional provision while California has a control law with some features in it which approximate the Connecticut law.

He said he found dissatisfaction with control conditions extended to other states and was not confined to this state alone.

No Politics The governor said the Connecticut law, which he believes is one of general merit, eliminates "undesirable political influences," which would be present if control over issuance of licenses, or permits, rested with county or town officials.

He said he was convinced the situation in adjoining states as to the sale of liquor has put hotel men in this state at disadvantage which will require correction at the next session. But he said he was not in an opinion, had not convinced him a special session was needed.

Toronto, April 4.—(AP)—Canada today saw definite signs of industrial recovery in business news from many parts of the country. Reports told of increased wages, increased employment, greater harbor activity and new business for industrial plants.

The Dominion Steel and Coal Co., at Sydney, N. S., announced it had received orders to manufacture 26,000 tons of soft steel products for export to the United Kingdom and New Zealand. The company said the order represented new business. It reported its working force at 2,200, the largest in recent years.

SOUND ICE BREAKERS OPPOSED BY TREASURY

Senator Lonergan and Connecticut Business Men Describe Conditions of Rivers During Winter.

Washington, April 4.—(AP)—The construction of specially built ice-breaking vessels for use in the shallow waters around Long Island Sound was described as contrary to Treasury Department policy today by Commander F. R. Waeche of the Coast Guard before the Senate commerce committee.

However, under questioning by committee members, Commander Waeche said present facilities had proved to be greatly inadequate to meet ice-breaking calls during the past winter and said the Coast Guard would have use for the proposed vessels when not needed for ice-breaking. He said he was "unprepared to state" the reason for the Treasury Department opposition but thought that it was for purposes of economy.

He appeared at a hearing on a bill introduced by Senator Lonergan (D., Conn.), to provide two specially built shallow cutters for the Connecticut river and other harbors along Long Island Sound.

LOWLANDS FLOODED IN EAST HARTFORD Over 17 Feet Recorded at Hartford This Morning—River Is Still Rising.

Hartford, April 4.—(AP)—Shack dwellers have been driven from homes, and additional yards and streets in the East Hartford lowlands are under water as the Connecticut river continued rising during the past twenty-four hours, passing the 17.8 foot mark at 10 a. m.

During the night the rate of rise was gradual, but the effect of melting snows up north was felt at Hartford after daybreak today when the rate increased to approximately one-tenth of a foot an hour.

ICE JAMS BROKEN Boston, April 4.—(AP)—Fear of any serious flood along New England river valleys was allayed today as ice jams broke and pent up waters swept seaward.

The Merrimac river had stopped rising. A slow rise was still discernible at Springfield, Mass., on the Connecticut river, but barring heavy rain during the next 24 hours, it was believed, the Connecticut could hold its ground.

Bitter Foe of Former President Machado Dies from Self Inflicted Wound — Friends Believe Overwork Motive for Deed.

Havana, April 4.—(AP)—Colonel Roberto Mendes Penate, Secretary of Justice in the Mendieta Cabinet, died today of a bullet wound which authorities said was self-inflicted.

The 62-year-old veteran of Cuba's war for independence and bitter foe of former President Machado died shortly after he was taken to a hospital from his home.

He had been found lying in his private office, a bullet wound in his neck. President Mendieta and other Cabinet ministers were at the hospital when he died.

Once Political Exile Penate, once a political exile, after an unsuccessful revolt against Machado, was considered for the provisional presidency when Ramon Grau San Martin appeared ready to get out.

Shortly before the Cabinet member was found wounded a bomb exploded in downtown Havana in a manhole, disrupting telephone service. It was apparently another act of violence in the long labor discord in the American Telephone Company.

As President of the powerful Nationalist Union, Col. Penate headed the strongest organized group to survive the political disintegration that succeeded Machado's downfall in August, 1933.

Wounded in Action A youthful student in Havana, Penate in 1905 took up arms against the Spanish ruler. He was wounded in action.

After the abortive revolt against Machado, Penate went into exile in New York in 1931 and returned to Cuba last fall, to be greeted by 40,000 persons when he entered Havana.

Miro Barnet, Penate's private secretary, said Penate had been trying to resign for some time because his work was too heavy and that he had been worrying because a recent law took authority from civil courts by giving jurisdiction in trials of all military officers to military courts.

PRESIDENT HOOKS NO FISH AT ALL

Son Elliott Reports That He Did Not Even Get a Bite So Far.

Miami, Fla., April 4.—(AP)—Care-free and feeling "swell" President Roosevelt entered into his extended vacation cruise today with a determination to have better luck at fishing.

Elliott Roosevelt, second son of the President, returned last night from a flying trip to the Yacht Nourmahal. He reported his "Dad" was "feeling swell." But he turned in the presidential father as an unlucky fisherman so far.

Elliott said he found his father dressed in the "usual white hat, a shirt supposed to be white, and the dirtiest pair of trousers you ever saw."

Didn't Get a Bite Three barracuda were caught yesterday, he said, but the President "didn't get a bite." Robert Clark of the Secret Service got the credit for the barracuda.

Mr. Roosevelt was ready to move along today from Elbow Key light when the fishing did not improve, but in true vacation style, he was keeping his itinerary open to developments.

Bridge and Railway Trestle Wrecked as Floods Cause Half Million Loss.

Hudson, Wis., April 4.—(AP)—Two dams, a 150 foot highway bridge, and a 200 foot railway trestle were washed out early today under pressure from food waters, adding an estimated $500,000 damage to the loss from the torrential rains of Monday night.

The middle dam of the Willow River Power Company, about four miles east of here, gave way about midnight, releasing a 50 foot wall of water.

The torrent buried buildings, trees and debris under a bridge between Hudson and North Hudson, and pounded it to pieces.

Next the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha railway trestle collapsed before the smashing flood.

Tammany Chief Refuses to Quit Position; Leaders to Apply Pressure.

New York, April 4.—(AP)—John F. Curry, beleaguered Tammany chieftain has announced his intention to fight the growing move to oust him.

He threw down the gauntlet at the Hall during his weekly reception for district leaders, of whom only seven appeared to pay their respects to their chief.

Asked if he intended to remain as leader, he replied: "I certainly do." He added he had no thought of resigning under pressure from dissatisfied district leaders.

This silence was broken on the advice of friends, it was understood, who felt he could no longer ignore the very public efforts of his lieutenants to oust him—a situation which has never occurred before within Tammany's well disciplined ranks.

FRENCH CABINET FACING CRISIS

Move to Save Franc from Devaluation Brings National Strike Threat.

Paris, April 4.—(AP)—Premier Doumergue braved a threat of a country-wide strike by government functionaries today with his first dictatorial decree laws to save the franc from devaluation.

One-tenth of the nation's 800,000 civil employees will be dismissed and the pay of others will be slashed five to ten per cent through decrees which are expected to be promulgated tomorrow after being signed by President Lebrun at a Cabinet meeting today.

The measures, which mark the beginning of a program to modernize the state by administrative reforms, are intended to cut two and one-half billion francs out of the budget deficit with more to follow until four billion are saved.

The moves are urgently necessary to avoid inflation, the government warned functionaries who threatened to launch a national protest strike on May 1.

The Communist wing of the labor federation voted several days ago to call a general strike beginning on that date and "continuing until victory is assured," if the Premier decreed pay cuts or dismissals of government employees.

WAR DECLARED

Washington, April 4.—(AP)—Endless war against the Dillinger gang, believed by him to be concentrated in the St. Paul area, was declared today by J. Edgar Hoover of the Department of Justice.

Commenting on the shooting of Eugene Greer of Milwaukee in St. Paul last night, Hoover said "This man has admitted that he participated in the gun battle with our men in St. Paul Saturday. That's going too far."

In the 20-odd years of the existence of this division no one has ever shot at any of our agents and got away with it.

"We run them to earth. You can say that extra forces of men are in that section of the country and that we are going to run that entire gang down."

Hoover would give no details concerning last night's affray but referring to Saturday's battle said "It's a wonder that our men weren't killed—they were fired on without provocation and before they had even attempted an arrest."

West Palm Beach, Fla., April 4.—(AP)—The whole town has been invited to the wedding tonight of John Phillip, Seminole Indian brave, and Josie Tiger.

Seattle, April 4.—(AP)—What this country needs in the way of inventions is a new finish for playing cards, Albert Burns, president of the National Inventors' Congress said here today.

Concert Before Duchess Gave MacHugh His Start

A black-haired boy of seventeen stood up in front of a great crowd of notables at the Royal Hunt Club in Montreal. He was a little scared because he was very young, and because he was singing a solo. In fact, the merry twinkle was quite gone out of his eye for a few minutes. But the Black Watch Band struck up in the old heart-stirring strains of "God Save the King," and the boy's fine voice followed it through with nary a quaver. The Duchess of Devonshire happened to hear this performance. She was one of the greatest notables of all, the wife of the governor-general of Canada. She recognized great promise in the unprofessional voice and arranged for the boy to go abroad to study in the Royal College of London.

Edward MacHugh

Here Friday Night
This boy was Edward MacHugh, prominent radio singer who is to give a concert here in Orange hall on Friday, April 6. Though he was born in Bonnie Dundee, he is a North of Ireland man, and has a fine collection of both Scotch and Irish songs to sing. He has a busy life, giving four broadcasts a week and an average of six full evening concerts a week.
These broadcasts are from a studio in Boston. Mr. MacHugh had his difficulties in the recent blizzard. He and his accompanist were trying to get from Brookline to Boston in the storm. The first trolley stalled with its nose in a snow-drift, so they plowed along on foot, coat collars turned up and shoulders hunched against the gale. Then they came across another trolley which was crawling along at a snail's pace, and boarded it, but soon it gasped and died as the other one had. So the two men walked the rest of the way into Boston, a good ten miles. And they got there on time.
On his program will be the following numbers: Penn's "Give Me a House on a Hillside," Morris's "The Stranger of Galilee," Guoin's "Home on the Range," Fraser's "The Road to the Isles," and Monro's "My Ain Wee Hoose." There will be several other well known numbers on the program and in addition he has agreed to sing "I'll Take Thee Back Again, Kathleen" and "The Old Rugged Cross." The Manchester Pipe Band will give an opening number and Chester Shields, a local cornetist, will play the following selections: Stger's "Carnival of Venice," "Annie Laurie," Adams's "Holy City," and "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms."

The Men's Bible Class of St. Mary's church is in charge of the concert. Tickets are on sale at Connelly's Jewelry store at the Center at Kemp's Music House and the store of J. Robb and Son, 217 Center street.

PICK HOLLISTER SCHOOL FOR PLAY

Kiwanis Club Decides Stage Facilities There Superior to High School.

The annual Kiwanis show, for the benefit of the Kiddies Camp at Hebron, will be presented at the Hollister street school instead of at the High school auditorium, it was announced today by William B. Halsted, chairman of the committee in charge of the production. The show will mark a drastic departure from the form of entertainment presented by the Kiwanis in former years.

Two-Fold Reason
Mr. Halsted stated that the reason for the change of location was two-fold. The Hollister street school hall presents more adequate stage facilities, a factor seriously considered by the Kiwanians, who desire to make this presentation the finest in the history of the club. Then, too, the club has received many complaints of the inconvenience of climbing the many flights of stairs at the High school. This, also, influenced the committee in transferring the show.

Mr. Halsted also announced that all seats for the show will be reserved and that tickets will go on sale next Monday. Tickets will be sold by Kiwanians and members of the Community Players, who will assist in presenting the show. The reserved seat chart will be at Watkins Brothers.
To Assign Parts
Parts will be assigned to Kiwanians at next Monday noon's meeting. The show will consist of a burlesque of the Gay Nineties, entitled "There's Gold in Them There Hills." Among the headlines of that period that will be featured are the Floradora Sextette, a group of beauties who danced and sang their way to fame in the Nineties. Six prominent members of the Kiwanis club will be cast in these parts and their identity is being kept in utmost secrecy until the show is presented, May 8 and 9.

MANY NEW TAVERNS PLANNED IN TOWN

If Permits Are Secured Number of Drinking Places Will Near 50 Mark.

The number of places where it will be possible to get a drink of beer in Manchester, if all the additional taverns planned are permitted, will exceed by almost four times the number of places where liquor was sold before prohibition.

At present there are plans under way for the opening of a tavern on the west side of Main street in the Montgomery Ward building. Another place is being fitted up in the Tinker building, where it is planned to open a tavern. Daniel F. Renn, owner of a vacant store building at Cooper and Walnut streets, is having a new bar built in that place and a tavern license will be applied for. The vacant store in the old Princess building, on Birch street, is another place that is being considered for a tavern and alterations are being planned in the building located at the corner of Cooper and Summer streets, owned by Mrs. Nora Donnelly, where another application for a tavern permit is being considered.

In addition to these another package store has opened in the Cowles Hotel building, where there was already a tavern. Still another permit will be sought for a tavern to be located on the east side of Main street in the south end. The number of licensed saloons that were doing business in Manchester previous to prohibition was 12. Of this number three of the saloons were located in the north end and nine in the south end. There had been 13, but two years before prohibition became effective the late James M. Burke, who had a saloon on Birch street, did not ask for a renewal of his license and this dropped the number to 12. Saloons in Manchester before prohibition were pretty widely spread. There was one on Charter Oak street, another on Spruce at Maple, a third on Spruce street, at Birch, two on Bissell street, two, both in hotels, on Main street, two on Oak street and three on North Main street.

Queer Twists In Day's News

Memphis, Tenn.—Jackie Menn Williams, two years old, saw an electric milk truck parked in front of his house yesterday. He climbed aboard, pulled a lever and was off. The truck struck a car—one dent on fender. It passed safely over an intersection and struck another car—another dent on fender. It crashed into a telephone pole. Jackie, slightly cut, crawled from beneath a pile of milk bottles. "Wanna go ridin'?" he asked a passerby.

HEPBURN CALLS GARBO GREATEST SCREEN STAR

Actress Returned from Short Stay in Paris Because She Was Homesick.

New York, April 4.—(AP)—Greta Garbo is "incomparably the greatest" screen artist and Katharine Hepburn is going to try to be a better actress. These two bits of information were released by Miss Hepburn herself, fresh off the liner Paris, which docked here yesterday. It was Miss Hepburn, and not Miss Garbo who received the prize of the Motion Picture Academy of arts and sciences last month for the best screen performance of 1933, but Miss Hepburn was not talking about the screen but the Broadway stage.

SENATOR COPELAND SEEN IN SPLIT WITH FARLEY

New York, April 4.—(AP)—Today's New York Times says Royal S. Copeland, New York's Medico-Senator, is going to run for re-election this fall.

"I am a candidate and will submit my name to the voters of New York," a special Washington dispatch to the Times quotes him as saying, "though Postmaster-General Farley may desire some one else to head his ticket." "I am willing to trust the untrammelled and undirected desire of the men and women of my state," he added. "I am not seeking to be Mr. Farley's candidate for anything."

COLUMBIA

In spite of the drizzling rain which fell most of the forenoon, a large audience attended the Easter service at the local church Sunday morning. The church was decorated with a profusion of potted plants loaned by members of the congregation. During the service Mrs. Edith Isham sang "There is a Green Hill Far Away" and Vernon Northrop sang as an offertory solo "Have Thine Own Way." The choir sang two anthems, "O Morning of Easter" and "Ave Maria." "That Sleepeth," the latter immediately following the pastor's sermon which had as its text, "Awake Thou That Sleepeth." Mrs. Laura Squier was received into membership by letter from the Methodist church in Meriden. The primary children, who usually meet apart from the adults in the Sunday school session, were in the main room and conducted the opening exercises, following their usual form, which included several songs, verses and a story read by their teacher, Mrs. Albert Emerson. There were 21 little ones present.

BOLTON

Next Sunday the service will be on "The Meaning of the Cross." Mrs. Olive Toomey and Junior Jones were admitted to membership with the usual ceremony. Benediction was pronounced and a postlude played by the organist. The church was decorated with several pots of Easter lilies, of tulips and pussy willows. A bible marker has been given to the church by friends which added to the attractiveness of this Easter occasion. Rev. and Mrs. Harold Wiltz took the Easter plants to the shuttles in the afternoon. A card party will be held at the home of Mrs. Leslie Bolton Thursday afternoon. PRISONER IS KILLED ATTEMPTING ESCAPE

Valdosta, Ga., April 4.—(AP)—Louis Collett, convicted recently in the holdup and robbery of a jewelry company and sentenced to 25 to 29 years in prison, was shot and killed today in an attempt to escape. Collett drew a gun from his clothing and ordered guards on one of the county's convict trucks to "stok 'em up," county officers reported. ROCKVILLE

CWA MAN WHO STOLE TO BUY BEER JAILED

Paul J. Brisard, 29, of Stafford Springs, Given Nine Months by Superior Court Judge.

Nine months in the Tolland County jail was imposed upon Paul Joseph Brisard, 29, of Stafford Springs, charged with breaking and entering and theft in the night season, when presented before Judge Ernest C. Simpson, of New Haven, in the Tolland County Superior Court.

Brisard was defended by Public Defender Robert H. Fisk of Stafford Springs, while State's Attorney Michael D. O'Connell, also of Stafford Springs, prosecuted the case.

A plea of guilty was entered by the accused, who admitted that on the night of Wednesday, March 7, he broke into the First National store in Stafford Springs and stole $35.58. The money was taken from three coffee cans under the counter where it had been hidden for one night by the store employees.

It was shown in court that Brisard has a wife and three children and had been a charge on the town of Monson, Mass., for a long period.

From December 15, 1933 until February 15 last, Brisard was employed as a CWA laborer and received his last pay check March 1. The arrest was made following the break on March 7.

State's Attorney O'Connell showed in court that Brisard had admitted to the State Police of using part of his CWA pay for beer.

State's Attorney O'Connell also stated that the authorities were unable to learn just how Brisard had found the place in the store where the money was hidden in the coffee cans under the counter. He stated that he believed that he looked in through the window.

charge of selling liquor after 6 o'clock and also because a trial is now pending in the Superior Court relative to the hours of sale of liquor legally, this case was continued under the same bond of $250. The case will now come before Judge Fisk in the Rockville City Court Tuesday morning, May 1.

Teachers Organize Club. A Rockville Teachers club was formally organized in Rockville Tuesday afternoon. Professor Kenneth W. Little, head instructor of the machine shop of the Rockville High school, was elected president.

At a meeting of the teachers of the town of Vernon, which also comprises the city of Rockville, held at the Rockville High school, the following officers were elected for the fiscal year 1934-35: President, Kenneth W. Little; vice-president, Miss Hattie E. M. Barr; second vice-president, Miss Alice Burke; secretary, Miss Charlotte Dreacher; treasurer, Philip M. Howe.

A committee is to be named to draw up a constitution and by-laws and to report at the next meeting. It was also voted to hold a picnic and social this spring but no date was selected.

Much support has been shown for the new Rockville Teachers club and indications are that the club will be of much value to the members of the faculties in the different schools.

Scholarship Candidate. Miss Hilda Kreyszig, a senior in the Rockville High school this year, who was nominated by the directors of the 4-H Club work in this state as the Connecticut candidate in the competition for a scholarship at the Massachusetts State College, covering the expenses of the freshman year, has received word that she has been awarded the scholarship for New England.

For this scholarship six candidates were named, one in each of the six New England states and the success of Miss Kreyszig in obtaining the scholarship reflects great credit not only upon herself, but also on the 4-H Club work in Connecticut, in which she has been successfully engaged for several years.

Her school standing was also high and entitled her to direct certification from the Rockville High school to the Massachusetts State College, which is one of the New England College entrance certificate board institutions.

A campaign was laid out for the different membership teams, each of which had a list of prospects prepared for them to canvass this week.

Check the Economy of the FORD V8 for 1934 with any Car at any Price! This big V-8 Ford motor develops 12% more power than the motor that powered last year's great performer. MORE cylinders give the new Ford V-8 an effortless flow of power. Flashing pick-up. Responsive car smoothness. But they do not mean greater gasoline consumption. Eight cylinders merely indicate how the gasoline is distributed. It costs you no more if gasoline is divided in small amounts among eight cylinders instead of larger amounts among less cylinders. The new Ford V-8 is the most economical car that Ford has ever built. It gives you even more miles per gallon of gasoline than last year's model. But that's only the start... Tungsten steel exhaust valve-seat inserts make valve-grinding virtually unnecessary. Aluminum-alloy pistons minimize carbon formation... Brakes need relining less frequently because of great braking surface per pound of weight. And Ford springs—which give free action for all four wheels—seldom require lubricating. And here's good news. Ford parts cost from 17% to 59% less than parts for any car selling at or near the price. Most important of all, however, is Ford resale value. The record shows that Ford gives you greater "trade-in" value than any other car built. Before you buy any car at any price see and drive the Ford V-8 for 1934. WEDNESDAY, APRIL 4.

UNLIMITED TAXING

A decision was handed down by the United States Supreme Court on Monday which will serve as a compass to many a state legislature on many an occasion in the future. It was a unanimous opinion, written by Justice Sutherland, one of the recognized conservatives of the court, supporting the right of the legislature of the state of Washington to place a tax of 15 cents a pound on butter substitutes.

The tax was attacked on the ground that it was confiscatory and would destroy the business of those engaged in the butter substitutes trade in the state. The court held that even if the tax did have that effect it was still none of the court's affair since "the courts are without authority to prescribe limitations upon the exercise of the acknowledged powers of the legislative department."

This would appear to mean that since the power of a state to lay taxes cannot be questioned, as a principle, neither can its power to lay taxes to any extent and in any way that it chooses.

The court's opinion becomes very explicit in this connection, saying: "The power to tax may be exercised oppressively upon persons, but the responsibility of the legislature is not to the courts but to the people by whom its members are elected."

This is all very illuminating and is likely to seriously disconcert a good many people who have always felt that, if their state legislature should go to extremes in the matter of taxation, the courts could be depended on to protect the individual interest. No such hope can longer serve as a buttress for the confidence of potential victims of "discriminatory taxation," either in Connecticut or any other state.

But that is not the only important implication in this decision. The conclusion is set up, in terms, that state legislatures may legally accomplish, by the exercise of their taxing powers, results which would be unconstitutional if attempted by direct prohibitory legislation.

Almost any kind of regulatory or prohibitory legislation can be put into the form of a tax measure. General price fixing within a state could be accomplished by taxing all excesses 100 per cent. Property values could be regulated. Foreclosures could be stopped, in all probability, by taxing the returns from the sale.

It may very well be that this Supreme Court opinion, joined in by conservatives and liberals alike and without a dissent, will turn out to be the most far reaching action that the court has taken in many years.

And, under it, does it more than ever before behoove the people of every state to be extremely careful about the kind of representatives they send to their legislature.

BLUFFS

General Hugh S. Johnson, whose early retirement from the headship of NRA is a common subject of gossip, is reported as saying he would not object to the termination of the licensing provision of the National Recovery Act on June 1.

It is difficult to see any reason why he should. The licensing provision is entitled to the distinction of being No. 1 in a growing list of New Deal innovations which, beset as magnificently courageous measures of redemption, have turned out to be very large and very hollow bluffs. Not once has the licensing provision been invoked, although it was the very foundation stone of the whole drastic Recovery Act. It would much better be eliminated if it is not to be used—and it certainly never will be used now.

The administration, by obtaining the passage of a Recovery Act bristling with the most stupendous powers and penalties and then completely dodging all responsibility for their employment, placed itself in the position of an army which takes the field in a campaign loaded down with an enormous artillery train and thousands of trucks of ammunition, and then throughout the whole campaign never dares to shoot off one of its big guns for fear, perhaps, it will burst.

The result has been what might have been expected in such circumstances. The campaign has consisted in a constant succession of popfire skirmishes as the infantry puts in about all its time and suffers all its casualties defending the useless big guns from more or less imaginary attack.

The NRA bluff, the "adequate currency" bluff, the bluff about driving the money changers from the temple, the bluff of refinancing the closed banks, the PWA bluff—these would have been far better left unmade than to have been made and then never carried out.

WRONG REACTION

We have always had a tremendous degree of respect for the views of Newton D. Baker, wartime secretary of war, but we find it difficult to agree with him when he declares the present to be the time for a new drive for American membership in the League of Nations.

"There can be no doubt," he says, "that the world at this moment is drifting rapidly into competitive armaments to be used for nationalistic purposes. If this drift continues, another disastrous world war will inevitably result."

No one can dispute the first of these statements. But one may well hesitate before accepting the second as being beyond any possible doubt.

Granting that it is in accord with all past experiences that the creation of armaments and the training of great armies lead to war through the sheer necessity of rulers to justify the military systems they have set up, does it necessarily follow that no new condition can nullify such an effect now?

Never, until the present hour, has it been so certain that the nation which takes up the sword shall perish by the sword. The long range airplane and the high explosive or incendiary bomb, as they are now developed, are a factor which conceivably might clean up all the lessons of history.

Where is the nation in Europe that would dare start a war today, much less next year or five years hence—no matter what the burden or the magnitude of its military establishment? One country might be utterly confident of its power to devastate a neighbor country, to destroy its armies and navies—but it could have no measure of faith whatever that it could prevent the air forces of the enemy from devastating and destroying in turn its own territories, cities and people.

No surprise, no superiority in armies or ships or planes, no conceivable military strength of any kind, nor ruthlessness nor matchless skill could insure an aggressor nation that its very vitals would not be torn out by the desperate strokes of enemy airmen. There is no known defence against air attack even fractionally adequate to the sure protection of any nation, not even our own. No preponderance in air power could insure any country against forays by enemy planes. What would it suffice, to Germany, to destroy Paris and the French armies, knowing that inevitably French bombers would destroy Berlin and turn the Fatherland into a smoking waste?

Fear has driven nations, a thousand times, into war. But fear of this new and horrifying thing, reprisal from the air, seems to us to be, in this strange and changing age, the very handmaiden of peace.

When friends of the League of Nations talk as Mr. Baker is talking now, of the imminence of a world war, they are just possibly plugging the game of the Big Navy crowd, the "preparedness" group and the home market munition makers. But there's one thing that they can't do for the League of Nations—they can't get America into it by scaring the people. The more they scent a European war, or think they do, the more stubborn are they about keeping away from the whole thing, League and all.

IN BARBARIAN HANDS

Turkey, lacking the legal refinements which in the United States lend so much of comfort to crooks, appears to look coldly upon Sam Insull's efforts to have his extradition made into a game of lawyers' wits. The examining court merely found that Insull was not entitled to special protection as a Turkish citizen, that the crime with which he was charged was neither political nor military, and regards the incident as settled. It is not a matter of Turkish controversy. If the United States wants Insull it can have him.

Mr. Insull, who is no paragon of learning, was likely enough surprised to find that the Turks did not carry scimiters in their teeth and divert themselves all day long but cutting off each other's heads. But he probably still considers them barbarians and their legal system completely uncivilized.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

Lobbyists Grid for Battle of Century . . . Walls Echo Through Congress Halls . . . Confederate Bond Suit Inside Bared . . . Canadian Booze Monopoly Broken.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
 Herald Washington Correspondent

Washington, April 4—It'd hate to be accused of trying to excite public pity for the lobbyists.

But those fellows certainly are being overworked. If the pay weren't so fancy, they'd be demanding an NRA code providing shorter hours.

The most powerful lobbies here are being called on for supreme effort. And do they respond to the call?

Congress, lately deserted as the lobbyists rushed to NRA, PWA and other administrative agencies and now finds the boys and girls—swarming back to Capitol Hill.

Old line business and industrial interests are pressing against Roosevelt's proposal to allow him to wipe out tariff duties when he thinks it's a good idea. Their lobbyists are at grips with the strong labor lobby over the Wagner bill aimed at company unions.

Wall Street will modify the stock market control bill or die in the attempt. The munition makers and the peace lobby—both powerful forces—seek respectively to suppress and promote the proposed munitions investigation.

More such instances could be cited to show how the lobbying business is spreading employment. But the one thing that brings lobbyists to the Hill in a practically united front is the series of anti-lobbying bills now pending.

Each member, however pure, has a certain lobbyist friend. "Pure" members work with "pure" lobbyists.

Some of the latter, considering their efforts dedicated to humanity and the public interest, don't oppose curbs and publicity.

Lobbyist Is "Wounded"

Notes on Lobbying: Both Arthur Mullen and Henry L. Doherty, utilities magnates, became indignant at charges that Mullen had represented Doherty in tax matters before the Internal Revenue Bureau. The fact is, Mullen represented Doherty and his companies at private sessions with the Federal Trade Commission involving the utilities investigation. . . . Brokers started a flood of mailed protest against the stock market bill by writing their clients that the measure would devalue their securities something terrible. . . . The air transport crowd first got under the skin of the new post-office officials when the latter found armal lobbyists taking up hours of their time pleading for extensions and other favors.

The Inside Background of Monaco's suit in the Supreme Court

for payment on defaulted bonds of the state of Mississippi may astonish you. Preposterous as it may seem, a representative of holders of "Confederate bonds" tried for years to get some northern state to sue one of the eight southern states whose legislatures repudiated bonds, especially in the reconstruction period. A sovereign state may be sued only by another sovereign state. So this gent secretly—and vainly—propositioned North Dakota, Connecticut and Vermont, among they'd sue for recovery. Others, offering them bonds if "Finally, it seems, he got to the Queen Isabella II of Spain had

APEX OF CHANGE

When the Russian motorship Kim came into New York harbor on Monday, first vessel of her nationality to make that port in seventeen years, she brought with her as striking an example of the complete separation of the new from the old as could be found anywhere.

At sea the world over, for many centuries, the forecastle has been an institution as distinct, as changeless and as significant as the anchor. The Kim has no forecastle—neither as a traditional hull hole in the ship's eyes nor even as a modernized provision for quarter-way privacy. The crew of the Kim live in outside staterooms, one able seaman to a room, or two ordinary seamen. There are two women stewaresses to take care of the rooms. Officers and crew alike occupy the "commons" or main saloon—which has a piano in it.

While the ship itself may be interesting, it would probably be far more so to hear the comments of Bill Barnacle or Popeye the Sailor on a ship without forecastle or forecastle life. A Stalin in the seat of the Czar is nowhere as revolutionary a proposition as an A. B. on a foot deep mattress in a stateroom.

If Russia can get away with that she can probably get away with anything.

Booze Monopoly Broken

Roosevelt, seeking cheaper whiskey for this country, found he had to out a Canadian monopoly as well as an American monopoly. That's the reason behind the order for unrestricted imports of foreign liquors, previously under quota.

The quota bars first were let down on Canada's American type whiskey in an effort to break the price. But only five million of an estimated available 25 million gallons came in.

The Canadian monopoly preferred to dribble the stuff and higher prices than would prevail if all of it were shipped along at once.

TREATMENT OF HARDENING OF THE ARTERIES

There are several causes of the hardening of the arteries such as lack of exercise, worry, nervous strain, and a habit of driving the entire body at too swift a pace, but the main cause is a systematic poisoning built up by years of careless eating and constipation. As these acid poisons in the blood pass through the arteries, they irritate and inflame the delicate linings. In time, the arteries protect themselves from injury by forming a coating of lime.

Hardening of the arteries is therefore a constitutional disease in which the chief changes are located in the walls of the arteries. The main part of the treatment is to remove from the blood the irritating poisons. By improving the blood, the patient stops any further hardening and in many cases is able to undo some of the damage already done. After the start of the treatment, I advise the use of the fast, during the fast, the enema must be taken each day. If high blood pressure also exists, the fast is doubly important.

After the fast, the patient must avoid food combinations which are not good and starches should be omitted. The right diet must be continued for a considerable period of time and will prove of great benefit in helping the patient to live longer by preventing the vital organs, such as the kidneys, heart, and brain.

Whenever possible, it is advisable for the patient to continue with some kind of work which maintains his interest. To stop all work and rest is not good. Exercise is helpful in the ordinary case in reducing the weight and also in producing better muscular strength and making the patient feel better in every way. The best kind of exercise is the daily walk. In advanced cases, the walking may be omitted.

The patient should not expect a cure from drugs, as medical authorities frankly admit that medicines do not alleviate the condition.

A calm, optimistic frame of mind is desirable and if the patient will avoid worry, excitement and mental stress, it will be helpful. Such measures, as massage, treatments with the deep therapy lamp, and the daily sponge bath followed by a brisk rub down with a coarse towel are all recommended.

I have frequently found that the patient who is willing to follow the right diet will steadily improve over a period of years. In addition, he will be able to lower the blood pressure.

If you are interested in securing an article on hardening of the arteries, together with a copy of the low fat diet which you write to me in care of this newspaper, following the directions for questions and answers as given in the heading or end of today's article and enclosing one large, self-addressed envelope. sunk $1,200,000 in Mississippi bonds, which King Alfonso, inheriting, recently sold for $400 to the man who interested the price. (Repudiated bonds of southern states are said to aggregate $375,000,000 in principal and interest.)

his 600th performance of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street", and has been talked about more than any stage dog of this generation. He has had a book written about him, many copies of which he autographed with an ink-smudged paw, and he has been painted, etched and sculpted.

All that makes a pretty difficult precedent for Kim, who has only a small part in "Yellow Jack." But even the critics admit that he is a dog juvenile of great promise.

Doggone Discouraging

Consider, then, the plight of a Pekinese ingenue named Gertrude. She has had the misfortune to be miscast as a spoiled, vine-tempered pet in "As Thousands Cheer". She is seen encooned in a high chair at the dining table, and is defended by a doting mistress against the pretensions of a husband whom Gertrude is supposed to be fond of biting. After a good deal of this the scene ends with the man biting the dog, which is news even on the stage.

The trouble is that Gertrude is an outrageously and obtrusively friendly dog. Her small tail beats an audible tattoo on the shelf of the high chair, and when the man approaches her with obvious trepidation and yet determination to do her harm, she shivers in delight and leans toward him yearningly. It is very discouraging. The stage manager even has tried to rile Gertrude into an evil mood just before her entrance cue, but all of no avail. If a better character actress can be found they probably will have to give Gertrude notice.

Success Story

Of all this season's crop of stage success stories, Tamara is the most romantic. As a child in Russia she labored side by side with her mother near Odessa, and was paid in salt and calico. Once she hid in a haystack that was fired by marauding bandits, but they didn't notice her escape. When her family decided to try to leave Russia during the revolution they spent tortuous days in a farmer's cart covered with straw. Eventually they arrived in New York, ignorant of the language and almost penniless. Tamara (her last name, never used now, is Drasin) can speak unemotionally of those experiences. She doesn't consider it remarkable, either, that an immigrant girl could work her way through high school, find a job in a chorus, and soon become a night club sensation with her songs and guitar accompaniment. Today as the star of the musical comedy "Roberta", she wears the jewels and silken robes of a princess, and sings the Russian national anthem. More important still is the fact that she was chosen to introduce one of the year's most outstanding lamentations, "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes."

INSULL AWAITING BRITISH LAWYERS

Buys Peanuts and Eats Them in Hotel Prison—Reported in Good Health.

Istanbul, April 4.—(AP)—Reduced to munching peanuts in a Turkish house of detention—unable even to obtain his personal baggage from the vessel upon which he was seized—Samuel Insull awaited today efforts by newly acquired British lawyers to delay his extradition to the United States.

The Malotis, lying in Istanbul harbor. The valise was reported to contain important documents. Undaunted by the final character of the decision of the Turkish Ministerial Council for Insull's extradition, Alexander Mango, British barrister, sped final efforts to save Insull from extradition with hopes of at least delaying the final action of handing Insull over.

There still was no indication as to when Insull will be extradited. An American boat sails April 10, however, and Insull may be placed aboard her if extradition proceedings are completed.

Insull's lawyer declared he had not received notice of the Court's ruling yesterday that there could be no appeal. No Appeal Rights. Turkish legal authorities explained the court ruling Sunday upon which the decision that Insull could legally be extradited was based constituted merely a statement of fact—not a verdict. For this reason, they explained, it was not subject to appeal.

ON THE BAKER'S WAGON During your vacation and on Saturdays drive a bakery truck for your father. It's many interesting experiences and my knowledge of the world is broadened by associating with the various types of people I meet.

Rather Long Hours My working hours are from 5 a. m. to 5 p. m. The first task is to load up the truck with bread and pastry, which I will need on my route.

The first customers may be of the crabby, sour type who always complain about the bread. My first words are always: "Good morning, Mrs. Dubinsken. How are you today?"

She will always say that the bread is too hard, burnt too much, too soft, or that the loaf of bread is too small for a price.

Come Up Sometimes The more pleasant and laughing type. They will usually start the conversation first and discuss some interesting incidents of the day.

There are also many other types of people. There are the silent kind, who like to argue, those who always have an interesting story to tell, and last but not least, the gossip.

Job Educational This job is very educational as I have said before. When I speak to the English people, I am very careful to use correct English.

Watch Those Nickels I have to be able to figure quickly and correctly. It is all right to give a customer a nickel too much, but just as soon as you give one nickel less, you're a crook, robber, thief, and so on.

Although this job is full of amusements, it is not, and what I like it just the way it is. With all these things, the job would be slow and dull, but with these, the job brings me something new and interesting every day.

CHANGES Cockle-doodle-doo! The old monarch of the barnyard crowed for the last time for Willie Jones. Willie hurried himself from the bed onto the floor and thumped his way to the bathroom where he quickly brushed his head, washed his face, and jammed his hat down on his head.

When Willie returned to the house, Auntie Matty was bustling about making breakfast. He sat down at the table and pulled his napkin over his lap. Uncle Lem entered the house and sat down at the table.

And now it's go! The boys have taken their clubs out of the closet, polished them up and can be seen on empty lots eradicating the rust from their swing.

SPORT SLANTS The league formed last year by Middletown, Manchester, Meriden and West Hartford will be continued this year. A cup will be given to the winner.

Here's how it happened: Manchester played Meriden twice, breaking even. They defeated West Hartford twice and claimed the two matches with Middletown when that team never appeared for their scheduled matches.

Meriden defeated Middletown twice and didn't even arrange a match with West Hartford—but they still claimed the cup. The question was satisfactory to no one as the cup was not given out.

Manchester won eight matches last year and lost three. If they do as well this season—well? —Joe Mistratta, '34.

APPEAL ISSUED TO HELP BIRDS

Robins Deserve Few Cherries for Eating Insects and Their Larvae.

No one is quite sure which of our feathered friends arrived first in the spring—the blue-bird, song sparrow or the phoebe. Usually one sees the blue-bird because of its bright color.

Each kind of bird has its special work to do. A family of black-headed grosbeaks can keep a good sized patch of potatoes free from pests.

Three-fourths of the bluebirds' food is insects and the meadow larks' food is ground insects.

Wood-peckers go under the bark of forest trees for wood boring beetles and grubs.

Can't we help the birds this spring by building box nests for the house wrens and blue-birds, and putting up extra brackets under the eaves for our swallows?

After the depression, what will it be? Happiness and joy? People care for love or tears? Fear and hate? People trying to recuperate?

After the depression, what will we see? Repentance and sorrow? Fun and gladness? Anvil and hammer? Eagle and dove?

ATHLETE READS OPERAS; GIRL WANTS TREE NOOK

A discussion of what high school students like to read and what environment they would like to have, brought forth some interesting papers in Miss Page's junior English class.

Mary Marsden would choose her reading place and her books with equal care. She says: "If I had a fairy godmother to grant my every whim I would ask her for a little den tucked away in a quiet portion of the house."

"My den would have a small fireplace. I would have gay curtains and a window seat, covered with bright cushions, and here I would pass many an hour, reading my favorites. I would also have a chintz-covered chair where some favored guest might share my solitude. I would have bookcases on all sides, filled with all kinds of books."

"Now comes the month of March a little later than the bluebirds. Then for three long months he has nothing but worms, ground beetles and dry winter berries to eat. In the summer one brood of robins will eat thousands of insects and larvae. Surely we can spare a few cherries to the robins who give long months of work for us."

THOMPSON FINEST OF MODERN POETS

Dr. W. L. Phelps Praises English Poet; Analyzes Old and New Books.

"Francis Thompson," declared Dr. William Lyons Phelps, former professor of English literature at Yale University, at his last Thursday's lecture in Hartford, "is the greatest poet of modern times."

The next type of customers is the more pleasant and laughing type. They will usually start the conversation first and discuss some interesting incidents of the day.

There are also many other types of people. There are the silent kind, who like to argue, those who always have an interesting story to tell, and last but not least, the gossip.

Job Educational This job is very educational as I have said before. When I speak to the English people, I am very careful to use correct English.

Watch Those Nickels I have to be able to figure quickly and correctly. It is all right to give a customer a nickel too much, but just as soon as you give one nickel less, you're a crook, robber, thief, and so on.

Although this job is full of amusements, it is not, and what I like it just the way it is. With all these things, the job would be slow and dull, but with these, the job brings me something new and interesting every day.

CHANGES Cockle-doodle-doo! The old monarch of the barnyard crowed for the last time for Willie Jones. Willie hurried himself from the bed onto the floor and thumped his way to the bathroom where he quickly brushed his head, washed his face, and jammed his hat down on his head.

When Willie returned to the house, Auntie Matty was bustling about making breakfast. He sat down at the table and pulled his napkin over his lap. Uncle Lem entered the house and sat down at the table.

And now it's go! The boys have taken their clubs out of the closet, polished them up and can be seen on empty lots eradicating the rust from their swing.

SPORT SLANTS The league formed last year by Middletown, Manchester, Meriden and West Hartford will be continued this year. A cup will be given to the winner.

Here's how it happened: Manchester played Meriden twice, breaking even. They defeated West Hartford twice and claimed the two matches with Middletown when that team never appeared for their scheduled matches.

Meriden defeated Middletown twice and didn't even arrange a match with West Hartford—but they still claimed the cup. The question was satisfactory to no one as the cup was not given out.

Manchester won eight matches last year and lost three. If they do as well this season—well? —Joe Mistratta, '34.

APPEAL ISSUED TO HELP BIRDS Robins Deserve Few Cherries for Eating Insects and Their Larvae.

No one is quite sure which of our feathered friends arrived first in the spring—the blue-bird, song sparrow or the phoebe. Usually one sees the blue-bird because of its bright color.

Each kind of bird has its special work to do. A family of black-headed grosbeaks can keep a good sized patch of potatoes free from pests.

Three-fourths of the bluebirds' food is insects and the meadow larks' food is ground insects.

Wood-peckers go under the bark of forest trees for wood boring beetles and grubs.

Can't we help the birds this spring by building box nests for the house wrens and blue-birds, and putting up extra brackets under the eaves for our swallows?

After the depression, what will it be? Happiness and joy? People care for love or tears? Fear and hate? People trying to recuperate?

ATHLETE READS OPERAS; GIRL WANTS TREE NOOK

A discussion of what high school students like to read and what environment they would like to have, brought forth some interesting papers in Miss Page's junior English class.

Mary Marsden would choose her reading place and her books with equal care. She says: "If I had a fairy godmother to grant my every whim I would ask her for a little den tucked away in a quiet portion of the house."

"My den would have a small fireplace. I would have gay curtains and a window seat, covered with bright cushions, and here I would pass many an hour, reading my favorites. I would also have a chintz-covered chair where some favored guest might share my solitude. I would have bookcases on all sides, filled with all kinds of books."

"Now comes the month of March a little later than the bluebirds. Then for three long months he has nothing but worms, ground beetles and dry winter berries to eat. In the summer one brood of robins will eat thousands of insects and larvae. Surely we can spare a few cherries to the robins who give long months of work for us."

The carpentry team took an early lead, as the score for the first half was 8-4. In the beginning of the last half the drafting team started a rally which carried them to the end of the third quarter. In the second game the carpentry department didn't have any trouble in winning the second game of the league. The drafting team was outplayed and held scoreless through the largest part of the game. ## ROADS RAVAGED BY CRUEL WINTER

Surfaces Torn in All Sections of Town—Urge FERA Funds to Help.

Streets and roads in Manchester and outlying sections have suffered severely this spring from the frost-bites of the past winter. On several highways yawning holes and deep depressions are seen which presented smooth, hard surfaces last autumn. Deep ruts and large cracks, where construction had been unable to resist the reaction of the intense cold, have been observed on other streets.

Hard On Autos

One only has to drive a car over the streets and roads to get an accurate picture of the widespread injuries which have marked the trail of the most severe winter in the history of this town. Everywhere there is evidence that this is the worst spring breakup ever experienced since the automobile became an important factor in transportation.

Warm sunshine during the past two or three days has caused mud to bulge through the stones of the poorly constructed roads, starting large surface "boils" which soon burst, scattering large chunks over the roadway and leaving holes behind. In other places the heaving action of the frost, reacting to the warmth, has broken stones loose from the macadam binder. Traffic has scattered the stones, and dangerous craters and ruts have formed, constituting a serious menace even to slow moving traffic.

Broken Springs

Broken springs, blowouts and other damages are common to say nothing of the wear and tear on the nerves of automobile operators. Frost and a hard winter are no respecters of materials, and endeavor to break up the strongest of them. Naturally, the more lightly built, as well as the more poorly built roads, obviously succumb readily to their ravages.

During the past winter, especially in February, the Connecticut company spread sand and rock salt alongside the tracks in town and on the road to Hartford. The latter substance has had a devastating effect on the macadam surfaces, particularly along the edges of the tracks.

Urge FERA Funds

Several taxpayers here have suggested that it might be a good plan when the FERA begins to function to assign workers to repairing the road surfaces. They have pointed out that the damage to the roads this spring is far too widespread to enable the regular town highway forces to make adequate repairs. This is considered an improvement equally as necessary as some of the projects which the CWA has undertaken while it functioned in town.

SWALLOWS TINY CAMERA STOMACH WALLS FILMED

Philadelphia Man Undergoes Test of New Austrian Invention—Shows Disorders.

Philadelphia, April 4.—A tiny camera designed to take pictures of the inside of the stomach—was tried out at Hahnemann hospital today. It was used on Henry Harrington, forty-five, who is suffering from an undiagnosed stomach ailment.

The camera consists of a metal tube two inches long and half an inch in diameter, containing lenses, a roll of film and a miniature flash bulb. It takes sixteen pictures at once, at 1-120th of a second exposure.

Harrington swallowed the cylinder. Fastened to it was a rubber tube containing a plunger to set off the flash bulb. Acid was pumped into the patient's stomach to keep the tissue away from the lens. The operation took less than two minutes.

Doctors pointed out that the camera, developed in Vienna, will show the first stages of many disorders which would not appear in an X-ray photograph.

TOUHY BANDIT GETS 30 YEAR SENTENCE

Charlotte, N. C., April 4.—(AP)—Isaac Costern, Touhy mobster, was sentenced today to 30 years in the $105,000 mail truck robbery here November 15.

The former member of the Touhy gang from Chicago and one time Tennessee mountaineer was sentenced to 25 years on conviction of robbery with firearms and to five years for robbery and assault.

The indictment listed 12 counts but he was sentenced on only two. Judgment was suspended on the other counts which charged various violations of postal laws.

Immediately Marvin L. Ritch, his counsel, arose to say that his client felt he had received "a bum rap" in the conviction.

The verdict was sealed and returned yesterday after the jury had deliberated only 40 minutes and Judge E. Yates Webb then instructed that it be held until opening of court this morning at 9:30.

SEN. HOWARD ALCORN NOT TO ENTER RACE

To Support Judge Cannon of Windsor Locks in Seventh Senatorial District.

Hartford, April 4.—(AP)—Senator Howard W. Alcorn of Juddfield will not seek re-nomination in the Seventh Senatorial District, but with other Republican leaders of that section will support Judge James E. Cannon of Windsor Locks, it became known today. Judge Cannon is reported to have agreed to run and is said to have been assured of sufficient backing in the district to make his nomination almost certain. Judge Cannon was one of the leaders who helped Senator Alcorn remove opposition when his elevation from the House to the Senate was objected to by a hostile faction in the district.

FAIRBANKS HAS TALK ON PHONE WITH WIFE

Barcelona, Spain, April 4.—(AP)—Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., left for London today after two or three trans-Atlantic telephone conversations with his wife, Mary Pickford, in Detroit.

The motion picture actor refused to discuss the nature of their conversation or to indicate whether he would go on to the United States after he reached London.

Reconciliation between the two famous screen players is reported as imminent, but Fairbanks himself has not commented on the report publicly.

His son Doug, Jr., is in Mallorca visiting Gertrude Lawrence, the British actress with whom he is appearing shortly in a stage play.

THREE NEGROES DIE IN ELECTRIC CHAIR

Nashville, Tenn., April 4.—(AP)—Three Shelby county (Memphis) negroes died in the electric chair at the state penitentiary early today. They were Percy Smith, 20, who last night signed a confession to attacking a white woman, and Jasper Graham, 26, and Frank Mays, 20, who were convicted of attacking a young woman in North Memphis in September, 1932, after robbing and shooting her escort.

Graham and Mays repeatedly insisted they were innocent as they awaited electrocution last night.

RASKOB NRA OFFICIAL BUT FEW KNEW OF IT

Washington, April 4.—(AP)—John J. Raskob, a former chairman of the Democratic National committee, who opposed the Presidential nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt, was reported today to have been quietly working for the NRA for a month.

Raskob was said to have been serving as a member of the NRA's Industrial Advisory Board, for which he received $25 a day while in Washington.

The NRA's practice of not announcing changes in the board's set-up, the membership of which is on a four month revolving basis, was one reason suggested why Raskob has escaped notice by the press in his work for the organization.

OIL TANKERS COLLIDE

Philadelphia, April 4.—(AP)—Two tankers, the Sun and the Northrup Sun, collided in a fog on Delaware bay today and were considerably damaged. Both vessels are owned by the Sun Oil Company.

FRENCH COMEDY HIT AT PARSONS THEATER

"Three And One" Stars Jacqueline Logan, Former Screen Star—Has Excellent Support.

In a merry and risque fashion, the ways of amorous conquest will be revealed in "Three and One," the spicy Parisian comedy hit, which is at Parson's Theater this week.

Jacqueline Logan, famous screen celebrity, is starred while Max Bryant, King Calder and Sterling Oliver are co-featured in this adaptation by Lewis Galantieri and John Houseman from the French of Denys Amiel which is credited with a run of two years in Paris and one of several months on Broadway earlier this season.

As may be surmised from the title, "Three and One" is concerned with the conquest of an alluring young woman by three brothers; three altogether different brothers, sons of the same mother, a famous dancer, by different men. Arthur's sire was a banker; Paul's a concert artist; Charles' a strapping pugilat

CIVIL SUIT SETTLED

Hartford, April 4.—(AP)—A settlement has been announced of the civil action brought by Louis Hickory of Bristol against Mrs. Edith T. Woodford, also of Bristol, which resulted after Hickory had been injured by a train as he went to the rescue of Mrs. Woodford on June 24, 1932, when her car stalled on a Bristol crossing.

Hickory, who was standing on the sidewalk near the crossing when Mrs. Woodford's machine stopped on the tracks, heard a train approaching and ran to the car, pulling Mrs. Woodford to safety.

The car was thrown against Hickory and he was injured. Mrs. Charlotte Hinchoff and Mrs. Mona Lawson, passengers in the Woodford car were killed.

"Three And One" Stars Jacqueline Logan, Former Screen Star—Has Excellent Support.

In a merry and risque fashion, the ways of amorous conquest will be revealed in "Three and One," the spicy Parisian comedy hit, which is at Parson's Theater this week.

Jacqueline Logan, famous screen celebrity, is starred while Max Bryant, King Calder and Sterling Oliver are co-featured in this adaptation by Lewis Galantieri and John Houseman from the French of Denys Amiel which is credited with a run of two years in Paris and one of several months on Broadway earlier this season.

As may be surmised from the title, "Three and One" is concerned with the conquest of an alluring young woman by three brothers; three altogether different brothers, sons of the same mother, a famous dancer, by different men. Arthur's sire was a banker; Paul's a concert artist; Charles' a strapping pugilat

Hickory, who was standing on the sidewalk near the crossing when Mrs. Woodford's machine stopped on the tracks, heard a train approaching and ran to the car, pulling Mrs. Woodford to safety.

The car was thrown against Hickory and he was injured. Mrs. Charlotte Hinchoff and Mrs. Mona Lawson, passengers in the Woodford car were killed.

ROADS RAVAGED BY CRUEL WINTER

Surfaces Torn In All Sections of Town—Urge FERA Funds to Help.

Streets and roads in Manchester and outlying sections have suffered severely this spring from the frosts of the past winter. On several highways yawning holes and deep depressions are seen which presented smooth, hard surfaces last autumn. Deep ruts and large cracks, where construction had been unable to resist the reaction of the intense cold, have been observed on other streets.

Hard On Autos
One only has to drive a car over the streets and roads to get an accurate picture of the widespread injuries which have marked the trail of the most severe winter in the history of this town. Everywhere there is evidence that this is the worst spring breakup ever experienced since the automobile became an important factor in transportation.

Warm sunshines during the past two or three days has caused mud to bulge through the stones of the poorly constructed roads, starting large surface "boils" which soon burst, scattering large chunks over the roadway and leaving holes behind. In other places the heaving action of the frost, reacting to the warmth, has broken stones loose from the macadam binder. Traffic has scattered the stones, and dangerous craters and ruts have formed, constituting a serious menace even to slow moving traffic.

Broken Springs, blowouts and other damages are common, to say nothing of the wear and tear on the nerves of automobile operators. Frost and a hard winter are no respecters of materials, and endeavor to break up the strongest of them. Naturally, the more lightly built, as well as the more poorly built roads, obviously succumb readily to their ravages.

During the past winter, especially in February, the Connecticut company spread sand and rock salt alongside the tracks in town and on the road to Hartford. The latter substance has had a devastating effect on the macadam surfaces, particularly along the edges of the tracks.

URGE FERA FUNDS

Several taxpayers here have suggested that it might be a good plan when the FERA begins to function to assign workers to repairing the road surfaces. They have pointed out that the damage to the roads this spring is far too widespread to enable the regular highway forces to make adequate repairs. This is considered an improvement equally as necessary as some of the projects which the CWA has undertaken while it functioned in town.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

PABLITO, a handsome youth, becomes a fugitive when he flees from Key West to Havana with BEAU and LOTTE, two thieves. Pablito has been accused of a murder he did not commit. He is in love with ESTELLE FIELD, daughter of rich JIM FIELD, but feels he has exiled himself from her forever.

In Havana he becomes celebrated as a boxer and he and Beau open a gymnasium.

SIR AUBREY, a titled Englishman and Pablito's father, is searching for his son, employing BILLINGS, New York detective.

Three years pass and then Pablito and Estelle meet again. They admit their love for each other.

MARCIA TREADWAY who is visiting the Fields could prove Pablito was not the murderer but has remained silent, fearing scandal.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXX

J. Smithson Billings was in Havana. It was the first week of March and so hot that Cuban senators and their daughters were beginning to long for the time when they could don the light raincoat that the mad tourists wore throughout the winter.

Billings was going to pay another visit to the woman who, before her marriage, had been Concepcion Villaverde y Blanco. He knew that unless you traveled the same road many times you could not be sure that every stone had been turned over. Then he was going to Key West again to hunt up the filthy old croon called Angela. And this time he would see to it that she would not escape him. He felt a curious and comfortable sense of having at last set out on the right course.

He whistled as he dressed on that early March morning and for some moments he studied the pattern of colors on the tiled floor. The pattern was made by sunlight sitting through the colored glass of half of an inward-opening window.

As a child, visiting his aunt, Billings remembered gazing into a remarkable kaleidoscope. He had loved to watch the changing patterns with a twist or a shake of the object. The kaleidoscope. The color on the tiled floor made him think of that kaleidoscope.

He adjusted his tie carefully, studied his face in the mirror and then assumed the expression which he thought most becoming. He rather fierce expression made more impressive because his head was thrown back and his shoulders held high. Billings liked to look like a man who was not to be trifled with.

He studied himself for some minutes, hands in his pockets and then out. He frowned, assumed an expression less severe, nodded and then smiled. There are few of us who do not occasionally indulge in such manifestations of human frailty.

Then he went down stairs to his breakfast, stopping on the way to buy a newspaper that was printed in English.

Reading while he waited for the food, he saw on the last page of the newspaper that there was to be a prize fight at the end of the week between the Juanito of whom he had often heard and one Al Gates, hailing from London. Billings decided he would take in the match, then turned to another page.

The fight was to be at La Miraflores, a club run by monasteries. It would probably be a rather restricted affair but Billings was sure he could gain admittance.

An American strolled into the dining room, proclaiming his nationality by his shoes and clothing and that haste that cannot be forgotten even in leisure. He saw Billings and paused beside his table.

"American?" the newcomer questioned, with an eye on Billings' tightly encased shoulders and Grafton-tailored clothes.

"Yes. Fine morning."

"Yes, but it's going to be a scorcher again if I knew anything about it."

"Likely. Sit down, won't you?"

"Thanks. My wife takes her breakfast in bed and I don't like eating alone, even if I read the paper. At home she gets up but she says she's on a vacation now. I guess she deserves it. You know how hard it is to get help. We haven't had a cook for more than 10 days in the last 10 years."

"Too bad," Billings agreed solemnly. "It's the same with me and my wife."

The stranger ordered ham, eggs, a pot of decent coffee if you have any, and hot rolls. "What's the news?" he questioned, his eyes on Billings' newspaper, now folded beside the steamed carafe.

Billings told Mr. Gartside—whose card he had taken to slip into a case as he handed his own card across the table—that there was to be a fight.

Mr. Gartside had known that and said he was going if he could manage it.

"Ever seen this Juanito?" he asked, Billings shook his head.

"Well, he's the queerest looking fellow for a Cuban you ever laid your eyes on. Blond as they make 'em. Blue eyes, too."

"That so?" Billings asked. His face was losing a little of its morning thickness and he leaned across the table.

"Does he have any relatives here? I mean this Juanito?"

"Well, they say an old woman back in the country claims him as her son but I've heard that's just a story. Made up for some reason."

"What that?"

"An funny place, Havana."

"By the way, what's your line,

Mr. Billings? I'm in plumbing. Newark's my home. I suppose you've been in Newark?"

"Many times. Fine, progressive city."

"City of beautiful homes," said Mr. Gartside heavily.

They talked in a desultory way after that and finally, with promises to meet again soon, separated. Billings went outside where he ordered a fonting to take him to Juanito's gymnasium of which Mr. Gartside had told him. He was rather oppressed on the trip; he hated exercise.

The visit gave him no reward. Juanito was not to be seen and a harsh ordered product of the Bowery ordered Billings to "Speed up! Speed up!" After that the same voice ordered him into a chamber where he was mercilessly pummeled, subjected to ice water from a large nozzle hose and otherwise tortured. Billings returned to Havana utterly limp and angry over his failure.

"My God!" he thought, lurching from side to side in the taxi cab and mopping his brow. "My God, that was fierce!" He would be selling something the next time he went to that "damned place" he decided. Passing the cemetery of dramatic tombstones and a few catacombs he thought that one of the gymnasiums had been located with an eye to the convenience of those who endured the treatment.

He ate a light luncheon and, although still very uncomfortable, pursued his quest. The boy at the counter spoke English. "By the way," Billings said after some conversation about the weather, "what's the name of the mother of this Juanito, the big fighter? I'm a newspaper man and I thought I might get a story out of her. You know people like hear of a mother's influence, which—take it from me, kid—may be a beautiful thing!"

The boy at the counter, who had picked up his English from roving Americans, agreed. "Sure!" He did not, he said, shaking his head, know the name of Juanito's mother. He added quickly, he would be able to find out.

"I'm probably on a wild goose chase," Billings thought, waiting while a bell boy went to consult the waiters, most of whom knew the object of his quest.

The boy came back, announcing that the name of Juanito's mother was Julia. She was called Tia Julia and she lived out near Cienfuegos. It was some distance but one could easily make the trip and it was a trip worth making.

"All right," Billings said carelessly as he jotted down some notes in the small book he carried. Then he bestowed a tip and turned toward a spot from which, at a cool, shining-topped table, he saw a dry Martini. He was sore and stiff and still irate. He tapped the table with nervous, short fingers as he waited for the drink.

He was going to Cienfuegos tomorrow, will goose chase or not. The next day's dawn was pink and purple and by the hour when Billings opened his heavy eyelids rain was falling. It was cold, too—one of those amazingly abrupt changes of temperature that are typical of warm countries having a cold during the night.

Going to Cienfuegos on such a day was out of the question. Billings must, he knew, go there as a sightseer who happened in a casual visit to stop to talk with the neighbors. Tia Julia, he wished fervently that he knew the language he heard on the street's through which he sometimes strolled, swinging a recently acquired cane with rather too many flourishes.

Billings dressed with many groans, being acutely stiff. He ate his breakfast at 11. When the skies cleared a bit, he decided, he would go to Morro Castle. He had never been there and it was one of the things that, in Havana, simply had to be done.

(To Be Continued)

Billings was going to pay another visit to the woman who, before her marriage, had been Concepcion Villaverde y Blanco. He knew that unless you traveled the same road many times you could not be sure that every stone had been turned over. Then he was going to Key West again to hunt up the filthy old croon called Angela. And this time he would see to it that she would not escape him. He felt a curious and comfortable sense of having at last set out on the right course.

Daily Health Service

YOUR HEALTH DEPENDS UPON CLEANLINESS

Thorough Washing of Clothes and Dishes With Soap and Hot Water Is Important in Battle Against Disease Germs.

By DR. MORRIS FISHERLIN, Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Do you realize how much you depend on ordinary sanitary precautions for your health?

In most large cities, the boards of health demand that dishes used in public eating places shall be rinsed or sprayed thoroughly, or immersed in clean boiling water for one minute before being used again. If the temperature of the rinsing water is as low as 180 degrees, Fahrenheit, which is under the boiling point (212 degrees), the dishes must be kept in the water for not less than two minutes.

In New Jersey there is a law that all utensils shall be treated with boiling water, or steam under pressure, for at least three minutes after service.

Whenever dishes are washed by use of machines, the safety is more certain, because the machine usually requires boiling water and the use of thick soap solutions.

In most hospitals the precautions about dish washing are very rigorous. After dishes are used, they are cleaned first and then boiled.

The dishes are kept in cupboards which are dry, well ventilated, and constantly watched to make certain they are free from dust or insects. Moreover, the employees who handle the dishes are required to wash their hands thoroughly and frequently.

Use of soap in dish washing is especially important, because the soap tends to kill germs, acting by its change in the physical conditions surrounding the germs, rather than by any special antiseptic effect.

For this reason, modern laundries which wash white clothes thoroughly in soap and water solutions tend to produce almost bacteriologically clean conditions of the clothing.

If the clothing is exposed to sunlight for drying, and then to the heat that is necessary for suitable pressing, additional safeguards against bacteria are involved.

In addition to the cleaning of clothing, bed linen, and dishes, the problem of cleanliness involves removal of dust from floors and from the air in rooms, as well as from furniture.

The modern vacuum cleaner is, for that reason, a great aid in preventing infection. It picks up dusts which may be contaminated with human excretions and which are not picked up by ordinary brushing or the use of a broom.

You should see that your children particularly be taught habits of personal cleanliness early in life. The desirability of washing the hands thoroughly before meals, and always after the lavatory, cannot be impressed upon the child too frequently.

Use of an individual towel and desirability of having other personal articles, such as handkerchiefs and napkins, are other lessons which you should give to your children early in life.

These measures are important not only from the esthetic point of view, but also because they mean so much to the future health of the child.

HOMES OF THE WORLD HAVE GIVEN THIS BEAUTY HER ONLY MEMORIAL

Countess Potocka: A reproduction of the painting by Alexander Kucharski.

By ALICE ROHE

Long before the San Francisco fire but later than the great Kansas grasshopper invasion the United States was swept by the unforgettable Countess Potocka inundation.

It is safe to say that not a town block or a rural district from coast to coast escaped. A new reproducing method had just brought art to the people. Of all the reproductions chosen as a type of feminine beauty, Countess Potocka headed the list.

Few knew who she was and few still know. Yet it is a safe bet that no ancestral home of the younger generation was without her likeness. How many a young girl of thirty-five years ago gazed, enthralled, upon that exotic face. The great dark eyes, the fluffy ribbon-bound hair, the lovely lips which seemed about to speak, the sensitive nose—how fascinating!

A charming, idealistic creature with her slender throat and youthful bosom rising from the low square cut gown.

Educated in Convent. Her name was Apolline Helene Massaleki and she was born in Poland in 1763, the only daughter of Prince Massaleki and his wife Princess Radzivil. Her parents died when she was very young and when she was seven she was placed in the convent school of L'Abbaye Aux Bois at Paris, by her uncle the Prince Bishop of Vilna.

It was too bad that Countess Potocka did not write her memoirs for she lived a romance. Even her youthful diary from the age of nine to fourteen is a valuable epoch. There is the marriage of her twelve-year-old schoolmate to a disagreeable old man; the immigration of "poor Mlle. de Rastignac" in a convent against her will.

She herself is married at sixteen in the school convent to a rich Prince de Ligny whom she has rich but once in the school parlor—and her life begins to move with the incredible sensationalism of a motion picture scenario.

The convent wedding, her prayer at the tomb of her beloved Mother Superior and then—a pale, timid young bride bidding farewell to her girlhood. Beside the strange man who is her husband she enters the post chaise, shining with the rose and silver livery of the De Lignes, and rides into the brilliant gay world of society.

A beautiful innocent girl married without love, is apt to take it when she finds it. There is no real happiness with her severe though generous husband. A child Sidonie is born but the lovely young Princess de Ligny is moving through the days of Paris, Vienna, Warsaw toward an overwhelming love.

At a royal ball in Warsaw she meets Vincent Potocka, Chancellor of King Stanislas of Poland. It is love at first sight for both. The great eyes, the fluffy ribbon-bound hair, the lovely lips which seemed about to speak, the sensitive nose—how fascinating!

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Preparedness is not only sensible but necessary in every household where there are children. To have a thermometer at hand, and bandages, antiseptics, lotions and prescribed physics is sane and sensible. Home nursing consists of a great deal of common sense and promptness.

It is not always necessary to send for the doctor in case of small upsets, or bumps. But it never is wise to guess. The "upset" may seem small to the parents but it may be the beginning of something serious.

The only way to tell if the child has a fever is to feel the thermometer. I think it is correct to say here that in every case of rise in temperature the doctor should be consulted, particularly so if it lasts more than a few hours. A feverish child should have professional attention at once. Or a rash. Or a "chill."

Transfer of Worries

A recurring pain should never be taken for granted, either. There should never be any guessing where a child's life is concerned, or jumping at conclusions, or home diagnosis.

However, there is one thing that should be mentioned in connection with the illness of children that not only connects up with health, but behavior.

It is this. All mothers worry if their children show signs of indisposition. It is natural to feel a fear, a foreboding, and think the worst when the usually bright eyes get dull, the appetite languishes, and there is a cough, a headache, or any symptom that indicates an interlude in health.

But as a result of this fear and the feeling of responsibility, it is quite common to imagine symptoms that do not actually exist. The next thing is to tell the child himself, "I'm afraid you're sick, darling. Are you sure you feel all right? Come and let me feel your head. Yes, it does feel hot. And you haven't eaten your beans."

Power of suggestion

In a way it is rather our worry to pass it on to the child. Of course we may be justified and there may be real trouble. By a few questions we may discover some facts we should know. But do not, times we go through this rigmarole needlessly. It becomes habit and we count it a lost day unless we have managed to tell Mary she is pale, Jean that she looks tired, and Jimmy that we're afraid he's studying too hard.

And by the very power of suggestion we can cause loss of appetite, a real lassitude and heaven knows what else. We can't "think" sickness on them, but by repeated suggestion we can do produce a state of mind that fixes itself on their own feelings and eventually ends in self pity and self protection.

A child will absorb a certain idea that he isn't very strong. So he won't be strong. He follows the line of least resistance and takes life easy.

Mary will look as pale as she can when it's time to do dishes, times she is as tired as possible, and probably actually be so, and Jimmy is sure he's studying much too much, if the thermometer is always in evidence and sympathetic words are poured into their ears day after day.

Get at Reasons

The way to treat a suspected illness is by a brisk and businesslike getting at reasons and trying to correct them, leaving emotion and conversation out of it as much as possible. The more worried we are the less we should pass on our thoughts and fears to the small patient. Some of us are in a perpetual "blue funk," but the extra attention and sympathy centered on them, becomes sweet to the soul. In time they will find plenty of symptoms to satisfy us.

The alert eye, the quiet tongue and action when the occasion calls for it is best. A mother does not need to go to extremes and think that every symptom out of the ordinary is imaginary on her part. There can be extremes both ways. But to fuss too much in either case does not help with cure.

HAGENLACHER CREATES A SHORT GAME RECORD

Chicago, April 4.—(AP)—Willie Hoppe, veteran New York cue master, will attempt to slow down Eric Hagenlacher's rush toward the international 18.2 ballgame title tonight.

Hagenlacher, the German star, set a new short game record yesterday in trouncing Ora Morningstar of San Diego, going only six innings for a 400 to 98 victory, his fifth in six matches. Hoppe edged back into the picture by defeating Kinney Matanyans, the little Jap, 400 to 280, in the night match which went 16 innings.

Cochran was pitted against Matanyans today, and needed to win to keep pace with the German ace.

RIPTIDE

WHEN A WOMAN LOVES

ADAPTED BY LUCY HUFFAKER

CHAPTER III

FOREWORD

Mary, the American bride of brilliant young Lord Rexford is happy in her new home and she and her husband love each other devotedly, although at times he warns her that her now English relatives and friends may not understand her humorous remarks. They are both overjoyed when a daughter, Pamela, is born to them.

On their fifth wedding anniversary, Mary told herself that their marriage had been a success. That she and Philip still loved each other deeply there was no question. Pamela was a charming child and she both idolized her. Lord Rexford was growing in importance and fame and she was proud of him. But—it was silly perhaps, to dwell on such a thing, there were many who almost resented the absorption in his work. It was not that she was a neglected wife, but she loved him so much she would have liked to share in everything which concerned him. Her husband had a professional attention at once. Or a rash. Or a "chill."

FAVORITES WIN IN JUNIOR TOURNEY, TOWN TITLE SERIES MAY END THIS

GUARDS FAVORITES TO DOWN RANGERS AND RETAIN CROWN

Second Game Is Stated at State Armory at 9 o'clock; Ironmen and Boilermakers Clash in Preliminary.

With the National Guards heavily favored to defeat the Rangers and the stage all set for an upset, the second game of the town series for the local basketball championship will be played at the State Armory tonight at 9 o'clock. The Ironmen and the Boilermakers will meet in the preliminary at 7:30 o'clock in the third and deciding game of their series, both teams ready for a battle to the death.

Everything that can be said has been said about the title series. The Guards gave an impressive display of power and superiority in winning the opener, 32 to 16, last week, the game clearly indicating that the Rangers had stepped out of their class in facing the town champs, now on the verge of their third consecutive title.

Braucher Doesn't Believe Maranville's All Through

By BILL BRAUCHER
(NRA Sports Editor)

Ten years ago the broken leg that has put Rabbit Maranville on the shelf would have been just a twisted leg. The little Boston second-sacker always did have hard luck with catchers, however. He would come crashing into them at home plate no matter how they blocked that dish or how big they were.

About 18 years ago the Rabbit, then a rotting rouser, hurt his leg in a collision with a big Cincinnati catcher. The night watchman knocked on the door and ordered him to desist.

Evans Takes Rap
Rabbit climbed out of bed, opened the door suddenly and socked the watchman. Then he chased him down the hall. When the caps came, Rabbit was in bed. He pointed to the crutches and said the man couldn't have been the man because he couldn't run.

The Rabbit was always up to something with real fun in it. I remember an exhibition game with the Yankees. Babe slammed a terrific foul on a scorching line to right field. The Rabbit reached up and whirled his cap around, put a frightened look on his face and wavered on his legs. On the next pitch the Babe swung at the empty air. The Rabbit lay down, his chin in his hands.

JACK COPELAND WINS JUNIOR POOL TITLE

Beats William Fleming, 50-45, to Gain British-American Tourney Honors.

The British American club's Junior Pool Tournament was brought to a successful conclusion, with Jack Copeland and Wm. Fleming meeting in the final game before a large crowd of spectators.

The game was nip and tuck most of the way, but Fleming got a break and led 17 balls to Copeland, but he staid and in the last rack only 4 balls separated them, with Fleming shooting and the shot an easy one. But Wm. Willie missed and Copeland ran the game, to become Junior Champ 50-45. Both finalists are now senior players and are entered in the senior tourney which opens this week.

In the senior tournament the draws for the first round are as follows:
J. Copeland vs. J. McMenemy.
S. Heffon vs. J. Donovan.
W. Wylie vs. D. Poots.
W. Hewitt vs. J. Hewitt.

TO CUT DOWN PRICE OF RACING TICKETS

New York, April 4.—(AP)—Whether or not they are allowed to bet openly on the races, the racing fans of New York state will get more chances than ever before to see the horses run this season and at less expense.

The 1934 summer schedule approved by the Horse Club yesterday calls for 168 days of racing at the state's five courses, starting at Jamaica April 21 and closing at Empire City Oct. 27. Anticipating legal betting under the three bills now being considered at Albany and consequently increased income and attendance, the heads of the five racing associations have agreed to lower the general admission prices from $2.75 to $2.50, including Federal tax and the proposed 15 per cent state tax.

The dates approved follow:
1. Jamaica—April 21-May 15; Oct. 1-15.
2. Belmont Park—May 16-June 9; Sept. 2-15.
3. Aqueduct—June 11-July 4; Sept. 17-20.
4. Bayside—July 5-23; Oct. 15-27.
5. Saratoga—July 20-Sept. 1.

HEIGHTS, CALIF. BOYS CLUB AND NEWSIES ELIMINATED IN OPENING ROUND FOR TITLE; TO PLAY SEMI-FINALS TOMORROW NIGHT.

The opening games of the Junior Basketball tournament for the town title were played last night at the School Street gym before a fair size crowd and in each of the four games the favorites finished on the long end of the score in their initial games.

One Game Close
The first game found the Oxfords drubbing the Heights 48-27, while the East Siders easily trounced the Cubs in the second game 41-14. The third and best game of the night found the North Ends pulling out a winner over the Boys Club in the first game of the series, 32-27. The nightcap found the Collegians easily outclassing the Herald Juniors, the final count reading 41-21.

The Semi-Finals
The semi-final games will be played tomorrow night at the East Side gym in which the Collegians oppose the North Ends in the first game at 7:30 o'clock, while the East Siders stack up against the Oxfords. From previous games played by these four teams, one can rest assured that the semi-final games will be bitterly contested, as each team is anxious to go into the finals and cop the title. There is very little to choose from in the coming games and some interesting and close games are looked for tomorrow night.

JUNIOR TITLE TOURNAMENT
Sports Editor,
Manchester Evening Herald:
The Herald Juniors lost to the Collegians last night in a way that left no doubt as to who was the superior team. The team was definitely eliminated. The Herald continued with the rules of the tournament as stated in the Herald on March 24, quote—Players on the squads of the high school and school basketball teams will not be eligible to participate in the junior league tournament to be conducted at the Rec. starting Tuesday, April 3, according to a ruling by Promoter J. Bennett Chase. It is felt that would be unfair to organized teams to allow these players to be drafted for service in the competition, which is limited to boys 17 years of age and under.
Carpenter and Muldoon were eligible under this ruling as it reads as were Vinos, Gavello, "Chuckie" Smith, Earl Judd and McCurry. The ruling as stated in last night's Herald quote:
"All teams have submitted their players lists with the restriction that any member of a team having reached his eighteenth birthday the first day of April will not be allowed to enter into competition. Another ruling made was the barring of players that were on the high and trade school squads the entire season, just recently completed" was made with the knowledge of any of the managers or coaches of teams in the tournament until it appeared in print last night. Carpenter, Vinos and Muldoon it appeared are eligible under this new rule, yet Smith, Gavello, Judd, McCurry are not. Yet some of the players last mentioned played the entire season with the high school. Chase's intention, I grant, might have been otherwise but under the original rule all the above players were ineligible or under the new one all are eligible. Such discrimination would appear to edge close on to favoritism to the casual observer. The Collegians without Carpenter and Muldoon I believe would have taken the Herald Juniors but rules are rules and should not be changed without due notification of all concerned and if the ruling is changed according to its wording should allow all eligible under it to play.
I believe the Herald sports department has a list of the eligible players for the tournament. Chase may until the sixth period in E. S. yesterday had not been asked to play with the Collegians. I would appreciate a statement from the sports department as to whether the name appears on that eligibility list. Please note last night's Herald stated players lists were in.
The Collegians have a great team but rules are rules and should not be changed without due notification of all concerned and if the ruling is changed according to its wording should allow all eligible under it to play.
Saratoga—July 20-Sept. 1.

...but HOW I Know My Onions!”

HAM-and-EGGS take their dips and jumps just like Steel and Telephone. You can bet dollars to doughnuts most women wish there was a ticker in every kitchen. A penny more or less in the price of bread or tomatoes can make a lot of difference when you're cooking for a family of five—and the woman who isn't long on buying sense may find herself SHORT OF CASH!

But stocks and bonds are traded in a public exchange. Foods are sold over-the-counter and it's not the same thing at all. There's no “big board” to tell you what to pay for onions and cheese and soap and lard. All the more reason for you to know what NOT to pay!

If you are one of the 5,000 women who read The Herald every day, you'll know the answer. You'll know, for example, that “blind shopping” is needless extravagance. For The Herald Ads are your “price ticker”, shopping list and sound buying guide ALL IN ONE.

The ads tell you the price of a bottle of blueing or a can of beans—not only at one store but everywhere. The ads tell you what to serve for dinner tonight; they remind you what you need. The ads insure your getting real value because an advertising merchant knows you will compare his offering with others and choose the best!

And most important these days—whether you're buying corn, stockings or gasoline—The Herald Ads point the way to QUALITY. Most merchants know that anything less than real quality loses too much good will to be worth the cost of advertising it.

Make it a habit to shop through Herald Ads! You may never feel the thrill of scalping the market. But you'll have the solid satisfaction of knowing that your housekeeping dollar goes one hundred cents of the way!

 The little daisies danced a while and then wee Duncy, with a smile, said "I know how to dance, too. I'll put on an act."

THE TINY TINKLES
 "You flowers sit right down and rest, and for you I will do my best. Why, I'm the best performer of the 'Tinkles, for a fact.'"

THE TINY TINKLES
 "Ha, ha!" laughed Goidy. "How you brag! But go ahead, let us see you drag your clumsy feet around. 'Twill really be a treat."

THE TINY TINKLES
 "I don't mean 'cause 'twill be so good. You never dance the way you should. I mean 'twill entertain us 'cause you'll trip 'o'er your own feet.'"

THE TINY TINKLES
 And that's just what poor Duncy did. He hit a muddy spot and slid right down upon his hands and knees. This made the daisies roar.

 "I thought you said you knew your stuff," said one, "I guess you've danced enough." "You bet I have," snappy Duncy. "I will not dance any more."

STUDENTS TO DRAMATIZE STORIES ABOUT WORKERS

Labor College Group to Put on Program in Hartford Tomorrow Evening.

A program of plays, skits and songs will be presented by the students of Brookwood Labor College, Katonah, N. Y., on Thursday, April 5, 8:15 p. m. at the Labor Temple, 87 Park street, under the auspices of the Socialist Party of Hartford. This will be the third appearance of the Brookwood Players in Hartford. Each year the students and staff complete their school term by taking workers' education on tour. Mark Starr, Brookwood extension director, describes the chautauqua as "economics without tears." The plays dramatize humorous and tragic episodes in the lives of the American workers," Mr. Starr said. "Many of the labor songs on the program have been born out of industrial struggles. Our Brookwood Players may not be Broadway stars but they can portray scenes from working-class life effectively because they are workers themselves, young men and women from Illinois coal fields, New England textile and shoe factories, and California power plants."

One of the features of the program is a ventriloquist who shows how to get ideas into a blockhead. The list of plays and skits includes Bank Run, Gimble Sprockets, which shows what happened to a brainy worker who invented a labor-saving device; Coal-Digger Mule, a war play; and Step, which dramatizes the plight of the unemployed. The Brookwood Players are making an extended tour through New England under the leadership of Miss Sue Shepherd, head of the dramatics department, and Mr. Starr.

Girl Reserves have set the date of Tuesday evening, April 17, for a card party to be held at High school hall.
