STOCK MARKET WINS VICTORY IN SENATE

Federal Reserve Board Not to Have Authority Over Exchange; New Commis- sion to Be Created.

Washington, April 7.—(AP)—The New York Stock Exchange scored a smashing victory in the Senate banking committee today by a 10 to 8 vote to create a new commission to regulate the exchanges instead of giving jurisdiction to the Federal Reserve Board and the Federal Trade Commission.

The committee adopted an amendment to the Stock Market bill offered by Senator Glass (D., Va.), up-setting plans of the bill's authors and President Roosevelt to have the exchanges regulated by the two existing governmental agencies.

As it now stands, a commission of three members appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate, would be set up to exercise all the powers the bill originally proposed to turn over to the Reserve Board and the trade commission.

Friends of the original legislation planned to carry their fight to the Senate floor, and with President Roosevelt's expressed support, were hopeful of final victory.

Opponents of the bill as originally drafted also scored an important victory by the same margin in adopting a motion by Senator Adams (D., Colo.), to eliminate the vital introductory section of the bill outlining its purpose for constitutional reasons.

Senator Glass, who voted to strike out this section, immediately entered a motion to reconsider the action, however, on the ground that some substitute wording should be adopted.

No vote was taken by the committee today on the troublesome marginal section, but Chairman Fletcher predicted the committee would eliminate the fixed minimum margin requirements and turn the entire power over to the administrative agency.

One of the warmest battles ever the Stock Market bill when it first came out was centered on the proposal for control by the Federal Trade Commission, with the Stock Exchange and other critics asking for a new and separate agency.

Friends of the legislation believed this had been settled, however, when President Roosevelt let it be known he favored administration by the trade commission.

The committee's action today took them by surprise, and they did not hide their chagrin.

The vote by which the Glass motion for a separate commission was carried was:

For: Glass, Bulkley, Reynolds, McAduff and Adams, Democrats; and Goldborough, Townsend, Walcott, Carey and Kean Republicans.

Against: Fletcher, Wagner, Costigan, Byrnes and Bankhead, Democrats; and Norbeck, Couzens and Steiwer, Republicans.

U. S. FLEET TURNS TO EASTERN COAST

Ends Two Year Stay in Pacific Waters — 101 Ships in the Fleet.

San Pedro, Cal., April 9.—(AP)—"Anchors aweigh" was the order among the 101 fighting craft of the United States fleet today.

Terminating a two year stay on the Pacific coast, the fleet was under orders to proceed to the east coast, through the Panama Canal. The movement meant a giant tactical problem.

Fifteen giant patrol planes, the largest units of the navy's aircraft, poised for a takeoff from San Diego to fly in four hops of about 700 miles each to the Panama Canal. They will rejoin the fleet there April 21. Seventy-five officers and men will make the flight.

Simultaneously the navy's giant of the air, the U. S. S. Macon, was to cast off from Sunnyvale, Cal. The dirigible will return to Sunnyvale

Photographing President's Son Turns Out A Smashing Success

The two who stole the spotlight at a Philadelphia wrestling match the other night were not the grapplers in the ring, but the principals pictured here: Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., son of the President, and Don Corvelli, Philadelphia newspaper photographer. Young Roosevelt, angered when Corvelli snapped the ringside photo of him shown at left, leaped for the photographer and smashed his camera. But Corvelli got the last laugh, as you see. He had slipped the plate in his pocket before being felled by a Roosevelt flying tackle.

GREAT BRITAIN WATCHES HITLER'S ARMING MOVES

Giving Serious Consideration to Germany's Plans for In- creased Expenditures on Her Army and Navy.

London, April 9.—(AP)—Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary told the House of Commons today that the British government is giving "very serious consideration" to Germany's contemplated increased expenditures on her Army, Navy and Air Forces.

Sir John was cheered by the Legislators as he made the announcement.

"He declared:

"I have instructed our ambassador at Berlin to make inquiries of the German government on the subject."

The Commons was reconvening after its Easter recess for the session which will end in July.

No Discussion

The foreign secretary refused to be drawn into a discussion of the possibility of strengthening the British air force to a point at which it would be as strong as the air force of any other nation.

He said only that he could not add to the statement made by Stanley Baldwin in the debate March 8 on air appropriation estimates in which the Marquess of Londonderry, secretary for aviation, and others made plain Great Britain's determination to strengthen her armaments if other powers persisted in building up theirs.

TWO LOSE LIVES AS BOAT UPSETS

West Hartford and Hartford Men Drowned While Fish- ing in the Sound.

Madison, April 9.—(AP)—The waters of Long Island Sound off Circle Beach were the scene of an intensive search today as grapplers tried to make them yield the body of Lawrence Fogg, 33, of West Hartford, who with Donald C. Griffin, 29, Hartford, son of Fred C. Griffin, widely known leaf tobacco dealer, drowned when a small rowboat capsized.

A large wave struck the eight-foot boat the men had taken for a fishing trip yesterday, when it was only 250 feet off shore upsetting it, while watchers on shore were nearly powerless to help.

Griffin, a strong swimmer, struck out for shore but disappeared when he was within 100 feet of the beach and his body was recovered in shallow water 80 minutes later by his brother, Charles.

Loses Hold On Boat

Fogg clung to the overturned rowboat, but before rescuers arrived, he too had disappeared.

Jack Gould, 16, of East Haven and Blanton Bergen, 21, of Meriden, a Tufts College student, who were week-end guests at a camp adjoining one occupied by the Griffins, saw the tragedy and started out in another boat to render aid.

Believing Fogg safely clinging to the capsized rowboat, they spent 10 minutes over the spot where Griffin was last seen in an effort to find some trace of him, and when they next turned their attention to Fogg, he was gone.

Friends said Fogg could not swim.

Francis E. Ingalls, chief of the Chaffinch Island fire department, a one-man affair, but known as the best equipped for rescues of any in the state, worked over Griffin with an inhalator and oxygen tanks for several hours before all hope was lost.

State police have notified all shore stations, via their electric typewriter system to be on the lookout for Fogg's body should it be washed ashore.

SHOTS ARE FIRED AT INVESTIGATOR

150 Rifle Bullets Rain Upon Official Probing Pennsyl- vania Mine Strike.

Uniontown, Pa., April 9.—(AP)—Snipers fired a fusillade of shots today at an automobile in which Shippen Lewis, state investigator, was riding to a mining camp to inspect picket lines. Between 100 and 150 rifle bullets came from the nearby hills. No one was hurt.

Lewis is chairman of Governor Pinchot's committee appointed to investigate employment of deputy sheriffs in the coal fields, scene of widespread strikes last fall.

The investigator and Frank Calhoun, a state trooper, were riding to the Smoek Mine where a small group of miners are on strike.

Homes Are Struck

Two miners' homes in the background were hit by the hail of bullets, but the families who occupied them were not struck.

Five suspects were arrested.

The shooting occurred about the time a new shift of miners was to come on duty at the Smoek mine. Observers estimated the bullets came from seven or eight rifles.

About 50 miners have been on strike at the mine which is operating with about 500 men in the pits. The men are demanding reinstatement of a group of workers they claim were dismissed. William Hynes, district president of the United Mine Workers, said previously the strike was not authorized by the union.

THREE ARE KILLED BY A ROCK SLIDE

Man, Woman and Child Die as Avalanche of Stones Roared Down Mountain.

West Point, N. Y., April 9.—(AP)—A crashing rock slide down precipitous Storm King Mountain on a scenic highway left three motorists dead today and three others injured.

The avalanche of loosed rocks tumbled down the mountainside without warning late yesterday, killing Mrs. Otto Selheimer, 28, and her 8-year-old son, Otto, Jr., of East Paterson, N. J., in their automobile and fatally injuring Lambert Shackleton, 27, of Brooklyn.

Selheimer and her daughter, Geraldine, 18 months, were injured. Shackleton and his wife were struck by a boulder which tore through the top of their car. Mrs. Shackleton was not seriously hurt.

Another boulder hurled into a third car just after its occupants, Dr. Francis E. Lehman, a dentist, and Miss Mary Wolf, both of Long Island, had leaped from it.

Recent rains were blamed for the slide.

The highway, known as the "Storm King", is one of the most

TEST TALES MEN FOR PREJUDICES IN CANNON CASE

Bishop and Miss Burroughs Plead Not Guilty as They Face Trial for Corrupt Practice Act Breach.

Washington, April 9.—(AP)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., and Miss Ada L. Burroughs today pleaded "not guilty" in criminal court to a charge that they conspired to violate the Corrupt Practices Act by failure to report all the anti-Smith presidential campaign contributions they received in 1928.

Miss Burroughs answered first in a quiet voice. Cannon, speaking loud enough to be heard throughout the court room, then said "not guilty."

Indications that issues that played a large part in the Hoover-Smith campaign more than five years ago would enter into the trial proceedings came when the court and counsel framed a question to test the jurors on their religious, prohibition and political views.

Twelve persons were called to the jury box immediately after the arraignment.

Text of Questions.

The text of the question involving religious views which were asked collectively of the ten men and two women in the jury box follows:

"Does the fact that Cannon is charged with opposing Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic presidential nominee in 1928, on the ground that he was a member of the Roman Catholic church and because said Smith was opposed to the 18th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States prejudice you against said Cannon?"

"Do you hold any religious prejudice preventing you from giving to the defendants, Bishop James Cannon, Jr., chairman of the Board of Temperance and Social Service of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and Ada L. Burroughs, an employee of the Anti-Saloon League and a member of that church, a fair and impartial trial on the issues involved?"

The jurors also were asked whether they would be prejudiced because Cannon and Miss Burroughs' campaign in 1928 was due to the attitude of the Democratic candidate toward National Prohibition and the liquor traffic.

Other Questions.

Other questions were whether any of the jurors had contributed to an organization for or against the prohibition organization and whether they would permit political prejudices to influence them in trying the case.

Witnesses, the prosecution said, would take the stand for the government included Frank R. McNinch, chairman of the Federal Power Commission, and J. S. Frelinghuysen, former Republican Senator from New Jersey. E. C. Jameson, president of the Globe and Rutgers Life Insurance Company, New York, and his secretary, H. F. Healey; South Trimble, clerk of the House of Representatives; E. J. Armbruster, and Lee P. Oliver, special agents of the Department of Justice, and Ernest H. Cherrington, Westerville, O.

During questioning of the prospective jurors by the court, defense counsel asked that each be asked if he had any possible connection with the Washington Times or Washington Herald. Cannon is suing the Washington Times — Company and William Randolph Hearst for $1,000,000.

PRESIDENT LAUDS RED CROSS WORK

Sends Special Message from His Yacht to Delegates At- tending Convention.

Washington, April 9.—(AP)—In a message to the Red Cross annual convention, President Roosevelt said today the organization had "worked to develop among our people a feeling of responsibility in the misfortune of others" and the activities "may have a more far-reaching effect than is generally apparent."

The message, sent from the yacht Nourmahal, was read to the convention today by Henry Morgenthau, Sr., had appealed for support of the Red Cross in order to make it "a school where the brotherhood of man is not only taught but practiced."

The President's message follows: "Honorable John Barton Payne, Chairman, American Red Cross, Washington, D. C.

"I am sorry that circumstances are such that I cannot be present at the opening of the National Red Cross convention. At the same time I do not want you to think that because I am permitting myself to enjoy a brief vacation I am not deeply interested in the proceedings and work of your convention.

"As I have thought over what this convention represents, it has occurred to me that the activities of the Red Cross may have a more far-reaching effect than is generally apparent. You have worked to develop among our people a feeling of responsibility in the misfortune of others. You are the instrument of expression of a great group of Americans who have given generously for human welfare in times of distress of emergency. The guidance which you have given has been practical, well planned and far-sighted.

HEATED DISPUTES AT COAL HEARING

Head of Miners' Union and Operators' Representa- tive in Verbal Tilt.

Washington, April 9.—(AP)—A heated dispute between John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, and Forney Johnston, representative of Alabama commercial coal operators, caused a brief recess today in the NRA hearing on increased wages and shorter hours for miners.

Johnston, after calling the NRA order for the wage and hour changes a violation of the Recovery Act, said union representatives, during conferences with the operators leading to a wage contract, had assured the operators they had no intention of initiating another wage increase.

Lewis, who had been sitting at one side during Johnston's speech, interrupted with the question of whether Johnston meant to imply the union has a secret understanding, apart from the contract, with the operators.

Johnston denied making such an implication.

Lewis persisted.

"I made no such statement," Johnston repeated.

"You implied it," countered Lewis.

"I did not."

"Then withdraw it," Lewis said. "I implied nothing and withdraw nothing," replied Johnston.

Witnesses Warned

At this point, Blackwell Smith, of the NRA legal division, interrupted the debate and asked the witnesses not to make any "naughty, foul implications." The recess then was ordered.

Under the NRA order, Alabama miners wages would be increased more than a dollar a day.

Alabama operators bitterly resisted the entry of the union into their fields, and only recently, after months of negotiations, did they draw up a contract containing the wages and hours specified by the code.

When Hugh S. Johnson, the recovery chief, ordered the general wage increase, the Alabama opera-

But Labor Leaders Say Movement Will Spread from Hartford County to Rest of State Until Wages Are Increased.

By Associated Press

Demands for increased wages backed by strikes or threats of walkouts found Connecticut industry today on the threshold of a state-wide movement for the restoration of wages to the level of 1929.

With several strikes already under way and others threatened, John J. Egan, secretary of the Connecticut A. F. of L., disclosed the rough outlines of a drive to force higher wages.

"No company," he asserted, "should declare any dividends until the 1929 wage level is restored."

Egan pointed to Hartford county as a target for the "opening guns" in a campaign having as its goal, he said, wage increases of from 10 to 25 per cent and "at least 15 per cent on the average."

"We are hitting it," he said, "where they least expect it."

New Controversies

Meanwhile, threats of new wage controversies came from various parts of the state. But there were bright spots in the industrial picture, employees in several large plants began the week with improved wage scales.

Among the plants announcing wage increases of approximately ten per cent during the past week were the International Silver Company, the Bridgeport Brass Company, and the Waterbury brass plants—the American Brass Company, the Scovill Manufacturing Company and the Chase companies.

Demanding a 30 per cent increase, workers of the Norwalk Tire and Rubber company voted to strike effectively today, the company employs 354 persons.

In East Hartford, employees of three aircraft companies were to present demands during the day for higher wages. If their demands are not met, union officials said, employees of the Standard Propeller Company will walk out tomorrow to be followed on successive days by workers in other aviation plants.

Meanwhile, 1,300 workers remained on strike at the four Hartford plants of the Arrow-Hart and Hegeman Electric Company and smaller numbers stayed away from the jobs at the Floral plant of A. N. Pierson, Inc., at Cromwell, the Belanos Corporation factory at Rocky Hill and other plants.

Hearings were scheduled during the day before Joseph M. Tone, state labor commissioner, in the Rocky Hill and Cromwell disputes.

$200 PER MONTH FOR BLIND VETS

Will Receive Nearly Twice the Relief Given Those Whose Lost Legs.

Washington, April 9.—(AP)—The Veterans Administration laid down a rule today that blind veterans entitled to a pension are entitled to nearly twice the relief given a soldier who lost a leg in action.

In answer to a written question, it said that a blind veteran restored to the rolls by the new veterans legislation, is entitled to $150 a month plus $50 for a nurse or attendant, even though blindness resulted from "willful misconduct."

"A World War veteran with a disarticulation of a leg as a result of combat with the enemy can receive a maximum of $119 per month," the ruling said.

The Bureau then outlined the status of other cases as follows:

"A World War veteran who, as the result of gunshot wound received in action, has lost the use of both feet or both hands, or one foot and one hand, or one foot and one eye, or one hand and one eye, or is helpless or bedridden cannot receive in excess of $178 per month even though granted the rate for permanent total disability, $100 per month, plus $50 for nurse or attendant, plus the statutory allowance of $25 for the loss of one or more feet or hands."

The interpretation added that "for disability less than that described but nevertheless serious injury resulting from gunshot wound, the veteran would receive proportionately less, depending upon the degree of disability."

Should the veteran have suffered injuries additional to the loss of his sight rates are graded up to $250 a month.

With the sole exception of World War cases pension for disabilities resulting from misconduct is not allowed.

It was explained further that in all other cases if it could be shown the injuries were not "service-connected" the government need not pay for them, but that "blind cases are restored to the rolls without any authority on the part of the government to apply this stipulation."

New York, April 9.—(AP)—A number of a liquor merchant, Tarantino called it.

Joseph Tarantino, ex dealer, chortled today and figured he is now a lot more even with Vincenzo Tibbo, former financier.

The ice dealer lost $5,000 when Tibbo's private bank blew up with a $2,000,000 bang 11 years ago, but the fun he had yesterday in juggling the banker in a wine cellar was almost worth the money.

Since the Tibbo brothers bank collapsed, police had sought Vincenzo Tibbo around the world, but never caught him. That remained the banker in a wine cellar was almost worth the money.

On Friday Tarantino finished digging a wine cellar in his home in Jamaica and started shopping around for something to put in it. A friend gave him the telephone

Welfare of Others

"These are accomplishments which we look for in other prases of our National life. A sense of responsibility for the welfare of others — surely we need that in the men who are leaders in our private as well as in our public life. Well planned and far-sighted measures to assure this welfare — surely we need them too.

"It seems clear to me, then, that in serving the Red Cross you are also aiding by example those similar great causes for which this Nation is daily striving.

"I am happy, therefore, to offer to Judge Payne and to you all, my congratulations and my wishes for the welfare of others."

STRIKE SITUATION IN STATE REMAINS UNCHANGED TODAY

HEATED DISPUTES AT COAL HEARING

Head of Miners' Union and Operators' Representa- tive in Verbal Tilt.

Washington, April 9.—(AP)—A heated dispute between John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, and Forney Johnston, representative of Alabama commercial coal operators, caused a brief recess today in the NRA hearing on increased wages and shorter hours for miners.

Johnston, after calling the NRA order for the wage and hour changes a violation of the Recovery Act, said union representatives, during conferences with the operators leading to a wage contract, had assured the operators they had no intention of initiating another wage increase.

Lewis, who had been sitting at one side during Johnston's speech, interrupted with the question of whether Johnston meant to imply the union has a secret understanding, apart from the contract, with the operators.

Johnston denied making such an implication.

Lewis persisted.

"I made no such statement," Johnston repeated.

"You implied it," countered Lewis.

"I did not."

"Then withdraw it," Lewis said. "I implied nothing and withdraw nothing," replied Johnston.

Witnesses Warned

At this point, Blackwell Smith, of the NRA legal division, interrupted the debate and asked the witnesses not to make any "naughty, foul implications." The recess then was ordered.

Under the NRA order, Alabama miners wages would be increased more than a dollar a day.

Alabama operators bitterly resisted the entry of the union into their fields, and only recently, after months of negotiations, did they draw up a contract containing the wages and hours specified by the code.

When Hugh S. Johnson, the recovery chief, ordered the general wage increase, the Alabama opera-

But Labor Leaders Say Movement Will Spread from Hartford County to Rest of State Until Wages Are Increased.

By Associated Press

Demands for increased wages backed by strikes or threats of walkouts found Connecticut industry today on the threshold of a state-wide movement for the restoration of wages to the level of 1929.

With several strikes already under way and others threatened, John J. Egan, secretary of the Connecticut A. F. of L., disclosed the rough outlines of a drive to force higher wages.

"No company," he asserted, "should declare any dividends until the 1929 wage level is restored."

Egan pointed to Hartford county as a target for the "opening guns" in a campaign having as its goal, he said, wage increases of from 10 to 25 per cent and "at least 15 per cent on the average."

"We are hitting it," he said, "where they least expect it."

New Controversies

Meanwhile, threats of new wage controversies came from various parts of the state. But there were bright spots in the industrial picture, employees in several large plants began the week with improved wage scales.

Among the plants announcing wage increases of approximately ten per cent during the past week were the International Silver Company, the Bridgeport Brass Company, and the Waterbury brass plants—the American Brass Company, the Scovill Manufacturing Company and the Chase companies.

Demanding a 30 per cent increase, workers of the Norwalk Tire and Rubber company voted to strike effectively today, the company employs 354 persons.

In East Hartford, employees of three aircraft companies were to present demands during the day for higher wages. If their demands are not met, union officials said, employees of the Standard Propeller Company will walk out tomorrow to be followed on successive days by workers in other aviation plants.

Meanwhile, 1,300 workers remained on strike at the four Hartford plants of the Arrow-Hart and Hegeman Electric Company and smaller numbers stayed away from the jobs at the Floral plant of A. N. Pierson, Inc., at Cromwell, the Belanos Corporation factory at Rocky Hill and other plants.

Hearings were scheduled during the day before Joseph M. Tone, state labor commissioner, in the Rocky Hill and Cromwell disputes.

CHICAGO WARD LEADER KILLED

Boss of "Bloody Twentieth" Bumped Off On Eve of Primary Election.

Chicago, April 9.—(AP)—Illinois will have a primary election tomorrow but Joseph Tierne, politician in Chicago's "bloody twentieth ward," will take no part in it.

"I found his body in the street yesterday, with bullets in his back. He was a precinct captain in a ward where there is bitter strife for control of the Democratic organization, but he was also seen walking with a woman shortly before his death. Police are uncertain whether politics or jealousy actuated the slayer. They will keep their eyes on the twentieth tomorrow, nevertheless, for it is a ward with a history of bloodshed.

The citizens committee working for honest elections, and the public affairs committee of the Union League clubs charged yesterday that at least 100,000 persons have registered fraudulently for tomorrow's voting.

Most of the interest in the primary centers on contests for control of the Democratic county central committees.

Nothing has arisen to make the Illinois primary a test of sentiment as to the policies of President Roosevelt, barring such an unexpected development as the defeat of several congressmen.

Standing for renomination is Speaker Henry T. Rainey of the National House. His opponent is a former state Representative, James H. Kirby of Petersburg. Included in the primary are contests for nomination of:

Two congressmen-at-large, congressmen in 25 districts, where the Democrats now are in the majority and some districts have no contests.

BYRD MEN DARE NOT RISK TAKING BATES.

New York, April 9.—(AP)—Reporting "All's well" in the Antarctic, two members of the Byrd Expedition returned to New York today. They were Victor H. Czecka, supply officer, and Granville P. Lindley, chief electrician. They arrived on the liner Virginia.

Lindley will return to the Antarctic next fall; Czecka won't because of ill health. The morale of the members of the expedition has been high, Lindley reported. No one takes any baths in Antarctica, he said; it means pneumonia.

"It doesn't matter, however," he added. "We can't get dirty. There is no dirt in Antarctica."

LATEST STOCKS

New York, April 9.—(AP)—The Stock market again was in a rather non-committal mood today and most traders and investors appeared to be well satisfied with their seats on the side-lines.

A few of the metals, including some copper and silver issues, were fairly firm as futures prices for these staples pointed upward. Transactions were around the dullest levels of the year. The grains were virtually at a standstill, along with cotton. Rubber improved moderately. U. S. Government and prime corporate bonds were in some demand, but secondary loans were mixed. International dollar rates were narrow.

The various shares of Allegheny Corp. were active at gains of around 2 points each coincident with unconfirmed rumors that some sort of reorganization of the Van Sweringen superstructure was being considered. However, improved moderately. U. S. Government and prime corporate bonds were in some demand, but secondary loans were mixed. International dollar rates were narrow.

TELLS KIWANIAN ABOUT FURNITURE

Modern Trend Is Toward Simplicity and Refinement, Paul Towsley Says.

Paul Towsley, author and lecturer, gave an interesting and most instructive account of the "Romance of Modern Furniture" at the weekly noon-day meeting of the Kiwanis club at the Hotel Sheridan today, tracing the development of furniture from 4000 years ago to the present time. The speaker was introduced by C. Elmore Watkins.

In his address, Mr. Towsley pointed out that furniture has had a great influence all through the ages and during every period of history it has reflected the governing powers and the temperament of the people. Additional interest was lent to his talk by a huge book of illustrations, which he used to stress the various important points of his address.

He said that furniture in the early days of the world was crude and barbaric in design, even as the rulers of the day were crude and barbaric. As the centuries advanced, furniture slowly became more refined until today it is plain and simple, reflecting the taste of the modern man and woman, who prefer plain and simple things in which refinement is paramount.

William E. Hatfield, announced the parts which would be taken by Kiwanians in the forthcoming show, "Thurs Gold in Them Thar Hills," which will be presented at the Hollister Street school Tuesday and Wednesday, April 9 and 10, for the benefit of the Kiddies Camp at Hebron. The first rehearsal will be held at Watkins auditorium on Oak Street Wednesday noon and all members taking part are requested to be present.

Fayette B. Clarke won the free dinner donated by the hotel management and George Glenney won the attendance prize donated by George Keith.

A delegation of local members plans to attend the New Haven Lawn club meeting Wednesday, at which the International President and District Governor will be guests of honor.

G. O. P. Pot-Shots At New Deal, But No Attack On Roosevelt, Price's View Of Fall Voting

(By BYRON PRICE)

Various groups of political architects have begun active blue-print work for the 1934 campaign, but thus far nothing like a clearly recognizable national pattern has emerged.

Possibly none ever will. Party lines were so badly shaken two years ago, and subsequent events have so confused the present situation, that many congressional candidates will be running pretty much on their own, without special guidance from the national party organizations.

Some republicans may attack the whole Roosevelt program as though they had, but the vast majority seem disposed to confine their criticism to a few individual policies.

Thus it is indicated that the "burning issue" in some congressional districts will be the tariff, in others the NRA, in others the farm relief experiments, and so on. As far as it now is discernible, that seems to be the strategy of the republican senatorial and congressional campaign committees. It contrasts with the recent attitude of the republican national committee itself, which more or less went into retirement after issuing several broadsides declaring the Roosevelt administration as a whole had been a failure.

Those general attacks caused a lot of complaint among republicans who felt that the party had been moved to supplant Everett Sanders as national chairman.

Those who want a new chairman argue that the Hoover wing, with which Sanders has been identified, cannot hope to effect a reorganization representing the will of all factions. Not so much is heard about that, now that Sanders and his national headquarters have been put more or less on the sidelines, but it is a subject certain to come up again later.

Among the democrats, the latest indications are that Postmaster General James A. Farley will stay on for some time as national chairman. He has committed himself to no specific retirement date, and talk of the possible impropriety of his holding both a party and a public office is subsiding.

Of course he is expected to get out eventually, even if it is after the fall elections. For the moment, the difficulty seems to be to find someone who could take over the chairmanship, without friction and complications, just as the campaign is beginning.

Some rather delicate situations face the party, in such states as California, Wisconsin and New Mexico, where republicans who supported Roosevelt in 1932 are running for reelection, and there probably is no one else who understands the ins and outs of those situations as well as Farley.

FUNERAL RITES DRAW HUNDREDS

Center Church Crowded as Final Tribute to M. J. Turkington Is Paid.

The funeral of Milton J. Turkington, who died Friday afternoon in St. Francis hospital, was held this afternoon from the Center Congregational church at 3:30. A private service was held at the home, 76 Scarborough road at 2:15.

Fred Bendall, a close friend and associate, sang two hymns, "Some Blessed Day" and "Come Home". Organist Kenneth Hudson played a group of familiar hymns before the service, including "Abide With Me," "Lead Kindly Light," "Asleep in Jesus" and "There is a Land." As the body was borne from the church, Grandt Hudson played "Ave Maria" by Schubert.

The bearers were former associates and friends of the deceased. Six honorary bearers from the Aetna Life Insurance Company attended the services. A group of 100 employees of the company attended in a body.

The active bearers were: J. E. Griffin, secretary of the group division and I. P. Cook, assistant secretary of the group division of the Aetna Life Insurance Company; Arthur A. Knoda and Sherwood Beechler, close friends and representing the Manchester Lodge of Masons and Earl Ballester and Clifford C. Varney, representing the Manchester Country Club.

The honorary bearers representing the Aetna Life Insurance company were: E. E. Cammack, vice president of the Aetna Life Insurance company; H. S. Beers, associate secretary; Dr. H. M. Stevenson, Dr. H. F. Taylor, G. W. Winters and C. B. Johnson.

Rev. Watson Woodruff, pastor of the Center Congregational church officiated and burial was in the East cemetery.

The ushers at the service in the Center church were Herbert House, Harlowe Willis, Thomas K. Clarke and Elmer Weden.

There was a profusion of beautiful floral tributes that covered the entire length of the altar rail in the church.

HERE IS MILK THAT JUST WON'T GO SOUR

W. E. Straughan, local milk dealer, has a new advertising idea which is attracting quite a bit of attention in town.

Firmly affixed to the radiators of his delivery trucks was a milk bottle of actual size, the cream content plainly visible. Though this milk bottle is subjected to the vagaries of the weather, it is guaranteed that the "contents" will not turn sour.

MILK PRODUCERS TO INCORPORATE

Dairymen Without Markets Form Cooperation and Collect Funds.

Hartford, April 9.—(AP)—At the meeting today of the Farmers Co-operative, experimental marketing group of milk producers left without a market April 1, slightly more than the $100 cash required to cover part of the cost of securing incorporation papers was received. A marketing committee was appointed consisting of President John Rankl, Marlborough, Fitz Jones of Hebron and C. A. Ryan of Marlborough, and authorized to purchase the equipment for temporary uses not exceeding $3,000 in cost.

It was said that incorporation papers will be taken out with authority to issue $100,000, M. H. Pierpont of Waterbury, acting as secretary to the co-operative, declaring, "we don't want the C. M. P. A. or National Dairies to get control of this stock. We have a clause stating that before selling your stock you must first sell it to the co-operative an opportunity to buy it back."

The goal of the group is to sell milk direct to consumers, an application for a dealers license now pending before the control board, and Garrett Burkitt of Ansonia, manager of the organization, said the time the weather warms up the group secures its own plant with modern equipment and a good laboratory.

TO PORTRAY IRISH LIFE IN MYSTERY

"The Rale McCoy," Written by Son of Auld Sod, Sure to Please.

Reserved seats have been selling rapidly for "The Rale McCoy," the Irish mystery story by M. J. Keown, made famous by the Dublin Players who produced it hundreds of times in the British Isles and in their tour of this country two years ago. Press comments by leading papers in London, Belfast, Dublin, Derry, and throughout Ireland, Scotland and Wales were strong in praise of this play which fairly sparkles with wit and homely comments of the countryside.

"The Rale McCoy" should not be missed, it is pure fun all the way through. It will be the final offering of the Manchester Community Players at the Whitton Memorial hall this season. The date is Tuesday evening, April 17. Only one presentation has been arranged for, and that under auspices of a committee from Ever Ready Circle of Kings Daughters of which Mrs. Frank V. Williams is chairman.

The author hails from Newry in Northern Ireland, just across the border, but he elected as a member of the Civil Service to charge in his lot with the Irish Free State. "The Rale McCoy" is the cleverest of his comedies and is considered the best of its kind ever written in Ireland. His characters are well drawn, the dialogue racy, and he is able to intrigue his audience and hold their interest while he maintains the sense of mystery, and yet the play does not call for native Irish actors and actresses. The director, Mrs. J. L. Handley, feels that the cast is doing an excellent job with this rollicking portrayal of Irish life.

Tickets are on sale at Keller's store, the Y. M. C. A., Potterson & Krahn's and Kemp's.

A BOOK A DAY

BY BRUCE CATTON

"It's a Battlefield" is Tale With Lots of Suspense.

Graham Greene is establishing himself as a novelist who constructs fast-moving and intelligent tales that work up to a neat climax without any loss of motion. His newest book, "It's a Battlefield," is no exception.

This is a story of present-day London, with a glimpse at the way one incident can create turmoil and struggle in half a dozen lives.

A young Communist has been sentenced to hang for killing a policeman during a riot. The execution day draws near, and his friends make last-minute efforts to get him reprieved.

We see, in turn, his young wife, to whom the fight for his life is the most painfully important thing in the world; his brother, who is hopelessly in love with her and who signs for his life knowing that his own future will be brighter if the fight is lost; a well-to-do dilettante who gets drawn into the whirl through his infatuation with the wife's sister; a Communist newspaper reporter, who has his own half-hearted part to play; and the commissioner of Scotland Yard, who isn't interested in the case at all, but who almost gets killed because of it.

Mr. Greene sets all these people spinning and sets back to watch what happens. I shan't tell you how it all comes out, but I can report that it makes a good, rapid story which picks up suspense as it goes along and holds your interest right to the end.

Unpretentious and competently written, it's the kind of book you recommend to your friends as "a good, interesting story."

Published by Doubleday, Doran and Co., it sells for $2.50.

Two Grass Fires, One on Old Golf Links, Other on Parker Street.

The South Manchester fire department answered three still alarms over the week-end. Sunday at noon No. 2 was called for a grass fire started on the old golf links off East Center street, which was extinguished without the fire gaining much headway.

At 8:30 last night another grass fire, this at Parker and Green Hill streets, called out No. 3 of the South Manchester fire department. This fire was soon extinguished.

REVENUES FROM BEER QUARTER OF BILLION

Chicago, April 9.—(AP)—Nearly a quarter of a billion dollars in tax revenue has been washed into its first legal year in the North Country with the relatively smaller stream of hard liquor since December 5, 1933.

A total of $238,782,116 has been collected by Federal and state governments to date in beer and liquor taxes on the basis of incomplete reports compiled by the Associated Press.

Beer, now legal in 45 states and the District of Columbia, contributed $179,913,205.

The Federal government took $137,212,000 in beer taxes as compared with Treasury Department estimates before legalization that the brew would produce between $125,000,000 and $150,000,000 in revenue annually.

Wine and liquor taxes brought in $62,800,000 since legalization December 5, 1933. Taxation at the same rate would produce $188,000,000 annually.

EARLY PONTIAC ORDERS INDICATE POPULARITY

Public Seems Anxious to Get Delivery as Soon as Make Is Decided Upon.

As an indication of Pontiac's popularity in the low price field Fred C. Sibley, Pontiac Boston Zone Manager, reports that dealers sold more Pontiac cars in the last ten days of March than they did in the first twenty. Ordinarily these heavy sales are not reflected until April. But this year dealers report the public is anxious to take delivery of a new car as soon as they decide on the make and model they intend to purchase.

Factory shipments of Pontiacs in the month of March to the Boston Zone show an increase of 181 percent over a year ago. These shipments place the dealers in a fine position to make delivery on the large number of unfilled orders which they had on hand as of March 31st.

Due to recent price increases announced by most car manufacturers Pontiac still remains the outstanding value in its price class, offering all the features desired by most car owners such as long wheel base, a smooth, powerful, economical Straight Eight motor, luxurious body trim and riding comfort.

PRISONER CAPTURED

Lawrence, Mass., April 9.—(AP)—Abraham Burks, 47, negro prisoner who escaped Saturday night from the Essex county jail, was captured today and returned to the institution.

Burks, who had been employed as a trustee in the boiler room at the jail, had sought freedom, authorities said, because he apparently feared a bill collector who had called at the jail Saturday afternoon in search of a radio which the prisoner allegedly had bought on the installment plan.

THE NEW HARMONIZED DELCO HEAT BOILER THAT HAS EVERYTHING

Heat rises... Delco Heat even improves on this! Delco Heat takes advantage of the natural laws of heat travel and heat radiation. It doesn't force the heat but controls its travel through the heating unit by a unique multiple air arrangement. All available heat is thus captured and sent into the home.

It's completely automatic... offers highest degree of heating efficiency... burns cheapest grade of domestic fuel oil... supplies hot running water winter and summer... operates at remarkably low cost

TODAY the makers of the famous Delco Heat Oil Burner introduce another brilliant engineering achievement—a complete, harmonized heating system years ahead in heating efficiency and economy. The influence of General Motors' 25 years' experience in the combustion of liquid fuels... the vast facilities of Delco Research Laboratories are clearly reflected in this great new Delco Heat Boiler.

It provides absolutely dependable heat—automatically. It supplies hot water winter and summer—provides more heat in your home from every drop of oil burned—burns the cheapest grade of domestic fuel oil that can be bought. And thorough tests in scores of homes have proved that this new Delco Heat Boiler actually cuts fuel costs as much as 50%.

This amazing economy is due to two things... the method of preheating the air before combustion takes place—and the manner in which Delco has harmonized a super heat-absorbing boiler with the remarkable, heat-producing qualities of the Delco Heat Oil Burner.

Come in and see this new Delco Heat Boiler in actual operation. And be prepared for a pleasant surprise when you learn the price.

If you can't visit one of the Delco Heat showrooms located below soon, phone or write for complete details.

The story, based on a French stage success of the "sams" name, will serve to introduce Miss Bennett in her first dual role...

Surrounding her is a cast which includes Franchot Tone, Tullio Carminati, stage star of "Strictly Dishonorable," Helen Westley, one of the founders of the New York Theater Guild...

Its action, for the most part, takes place backstage of an important New York revue and in the Park Avenue penthouse of the actress Raquel.

Miss Bennett introduces two songs, "Coffee in the Morning and Kisses in the Night," and "Boulevard of Broken Dreams," Tullio Carminati sings "Songs of Surrender."

Chorines trained in intricate modernistic dance routines by Russell Markert, who originated the Rokyettes in Radio City Music Hall, appear recurrently in numbers keyed to the underlying rhythm of the picture.

The picture was produced on an exceedingly lavish scale, and marks Miss Bennett's debut in musicals.

The co-feature will be "One Is Guilty" with Ralph Bellamy.

"DOUBLE DOOR" WRITTEN TO PRODUCE SHUDDERS

Thrill Drama at Parsons' Theater, Hartford, This Week Played by Fine Cast.

With the record of having enjoyed one of the longest runs of the current New York theatrical season, "Double Door," the engrossing melodrama by Elizabeth McFadden, is at Parsons' Theater, Hartford, all this week.

Deliberately designed to produce the maximum of shudders and chills, the play places no reliance upon walking monsters, shots in the dark and clutched hands; everything takes place in full view of the audience. The scene is set in a grim, old New York mansion, tyrannized over by a middle-aged spinster whose avariciousness is equalled only by her family pride. In this house, her younger brother, who has dared to marry his pretty nurse in defiance of tradition and without his sister's consent...

Jessamine Newcome portrays the terrible old woman with grim and menacing realism. She is given excellent support from such accomplished players as Derek Fairman, Marjorie Dalton, Thelma Paige, Ernest Woodward, John Soames, George R. Taylor, William Moran, Alice May Tuck, S. Pothringham Lyons, George H. Quimby and Lucia Laeka.

The Poet's Column

THE LOVE OF GOD All praise to God whose gracious love For man has always been So deep, so true, so high above, Beyond the thoughts of men.

It reaches down to where we are, And sees our every need, And cares for us much more by far Than we deserve indeed.

He gives to us the grace of life And every need supplies, A mind and heart to make the strife And no good thing denies.

To those who fully trust in Him And walk in all His ways, His love for them will ne'er grow dim; But last till end of days.

The reason that He loves us so Is why He so hates sin; And did so much to let us know He needs our love for Him.

For sin hurts those for whom He cares, And keeps these two apart; And God loves man and God hates sin; And both, with all His heart.

To save the sinner from his sin; The debt of life to pay; And bring the sinner back to Him, God's love, it found a way.

It cost our God an AWFUL price To pay the debt we owe, And He will never pay it twice; No need, but once, to go.

To Ca'vary's cross, God's own dear Son; To take the sinner's place He died for us, God's will was done; And we are saved by grace.

God's love has sent His Church to tell This news to all mankind; That they might come and with God dwell But leave their sin behind.

For love and sin can ne'er abide, In that great Kingdom fair; 'Twas sin that made the sinner hide From God's great love and care.

So let's love God with all our heart And soul and strength and mind, And walk with Him and do our part, And LOVE, all hearts, will bind. — A. E. Fish.

WIFE LETS CAR WAIT 25 YEARS FOR HONEYMOON

Wedding Trip Blocked— Auto Kept Ready in Street— Widow a Recluse.

Evanston, Ill., April 19.—A story of love cemented twenty-five years ago in death was revealed tonight as newspaper men talked to former friends of Mrs. Anna Porter, widow of a Northwestern University physicist.

Newspaper men sought to discover why Mrs. Porter, a recluse kept an ancient automobile—top up as if prepared for a journey—always at the door of her home. They found the car had been there for a quarter of a century—since a day in the spring of 1909, when Professor and Mrs. Porter prepared to start on a belated wedding trip.

The automobile was the first in Evanston and the house bustled with activity as the couple prepared for their journey. Friends said they had never seen a happier pair. Porter had been his wife's physics teacher in high school. After her college days at the University of Michigan they attended Johns Hopkins University together.

Tickets were purchased for a trip to Europe to conclude the automobile tour. Bags were packed. The automobile was driven to the side entrance.

But the excitement was too much for Professor Porter. He collapsed as he was about to leave the house. A few hours later he was dead.

The formerly fashionable young matron became a recluse. The automobile was never moved from the driveway. Surrounded by her twenty or more dogs, Mrs. Porter has lived alone. Neighbors have seen her only when she emerged for short walks with her pack of dogs. She dresses always in black.

MONDAY, APRIL 9.

NEWS OF STRIKES

The newspapers are finding, in the growing labor unrest, a situation of unusual difficulty for themselves. Not only is it sometimes a matter far from simple to determine upon a right course of editorial policy relative to the conflict between employers and employees, no matter how resolute the journal may be in its purpose of being just and fair, but frequently it is almost as difficult to present a fair news picture of what is going on.

One very great handicap under which the newspapers labor in the presentation of labor trouble information is to be found in the common practice among employers, particularly when they are large corporations, of adopting the strategy of the clam and saying nothing—nothing, that is, calculated to shed the slightest light on the trouble or to convey any real meaning whatever to the public.

On the other hands the labor leaders have the keenest sense of the value of public sympathy and are very much inclined to rush into print, not only with all the facts that can possibly lend support to their side of the controversy but, sometimes, with pictures of the situation in which not all the values are preserved with equal care—in other words, one-sided presentations of the trouble.

The assumptions back of these differing attitudes appears to be that the labor side takes it for granted that the bulk of public opinion will lean in its direction, while the employer side takes it for granted that public opinion will lean away from it, and that there is no use in trying to do anything about it.

The employer probably does not realize that the public reaction is very likely to be one of suspicion that the employer has no just or reasonable case to present, else he would present it—a suspicion which in any number of instances would be far from the truth.

There are very few newspapers that are not especially anxious to be absolutely fair in the presentation of the news of labor disputes, whether or not they reach the extreme of strikes. No doubt a few of them do deliberately take sides and function as partisans to one or the other party in a labor controversy, but these are rare exceptions. It does, however, very often happen that in its presentation of the news of pending or existing strikes the press prints a great deal more matter presenting the labor side than presenting the employer side—for the very good reason and sufficient reason that this is the only news obtainable.

In a word the labor leaders talk with apparent frankness while the employers shut up and stand pat—apparently. The effect of this is to make newspaper readers draw the conclusion that the employers are high-and-mighty and that they recognize no obligation to anybody but themselves and their stockholders; which, especially in these times, is extremely likely to be about a million miles from being true.

A very marked exception to the prevailing custom among employers finding themselves confronted by labor trouble, of making either no statement or a wholly perfunctory one, was presented in the statement made by Edward R. Orier, head of the Arrow-Hart and Hageman Electrical Company in Hartford on Saturday. Mr. Orier's statement was frank and human and well calculated to convince neutral readers that the strike at his plants had been sprung on his company as a surprise and without reasonable opportunity to consider the demands made. If he had said no more than the usual stiff-necked thing—"We consider the strike unjustified and have nothing further to say"—he would have thrown away nine-tenths of that part of public opinion which will not conclude that that strike was not fairly begun, no matter what the merits of the dispute may be.

If employers who become involved in labor troubles with their workers would think just a little less of their own dignity and a little more about the value of public opinion, and in doing so would be franker in presenting their side through the press, it is entirely possible that they would suffer from less unjustified public prejudice and that they might even avoid some of the strife.

PROFITEERING

Announcement that one hundred and twelve Consumers Councils will be formed throughout the nation to aid in the adjustment of local consumers' price complaints may prove to be the introduction to a really important development. We have already such a myriad of boards, councils and co-ordinating agencies of one kind and another, most of which are largely scenic, that no one is likely to become greatly excited over these Consumers Councils. Just the same, they may turn out to be important, because it is quite apparent that there is a fixed determination in some quarters to profiteer on the NRA wages and hour conditions.

A striking example is that of the steel industry. With considerable beating of cymbals it was announced recently that the steel industry was putting up wages 10 per cent, voluntarily. There was much applause. Without any cymbaling or drumming whatever, the business pages of the big newspapers quietly let it be known, a few days later, that steel prices had been advanced.

The significance lies in the amounts. The increase in wages advanced the cost of the product on an average of $1.60 a ton. The advance in prices put into effect range from $3 to $4 a ton.

There is unquestionably a pronounced tendency on the part of a number of industries, almost exclusively those where close relations and understandings exist between a number of large producers, to do this sort of thing.

Any consolidation of the protection of the consumer that will tend to counteract profiteering on the "New Deal" must be, in its very nature, of some use. Perhaps these Consumers Councils will prove to be as useful as they should be. It remains, of course, to be seen.

AVALANCHES

The killing of three persons and the injuring of three others, occupants of a trio of automobiles struck by an avalanche from Storm King Mountain near West Point, N. Y., will undoubtedly have the effect of bringing the danger of such accidents closer to the front of the minds of highway engineers.

Though road planners, of course, never disregard altogether the necessity of guarding against the possibility of landslides, accidents of this character have been so unusual in this country that they have seemed to be almost entirely theoretical dangers. Those three smashed automobiles on the side of Storm King, however, are not theory but very tragic reality.

So far as we can recall, Connecticut has been free from disasters of this nature and the Highway Department may very well congratulate itself on having taken wise engineering precautions against them, for there are plenty of spots where Connecticut roads are overshadowed by activities of none too stable character. In fact it is just that circumstance which is immediately alluded to by the New York state tragedy. There are few Connecticut motorists who, if they have driven about the state a great deal, cannot call to mind several points along the highways where rock masses and great boulders seem to sit waiting for some convulsion to hurl them down upon the roads.

Probably in no case is there any real danger but there are some where it might make for the easing of minds if part of our many unemployed were put to work, under skilled direction, making, let us say, doubly sure of safety.

In connection with this subject the present is probably the first occasion when the newspapers were ever called on to deal with two avalanche stories—the major tragedy of the Norwegian coast village of Tafjord, and the lesser one at Storm King—on the same day.

NATURALIZED

In Chicago's Twentieth Ward the nice refinement of "taking for a ride" some objectionable person had made its first appearance in the conduct of a political party primary. The Twentieth Ward is almost entirely made up of foreign-born persons and their families. Its politics is in their hands. The Twentieth Ward of Chicago is not, in reality, any part of the United States—not culturally, racially or, for that matter, politically, because the people who live there have kept themselves apart from everything American; they have merely transplanted themselves, their habits, their way of life and their outlook, from Europe to America as a unit. A very large part of them cannot speak a word of this country's language.

Yet by the thousands these people have been made citizens and voters. There is not the least doubt that the very great majority of them are admirable people, industrious, honest, intelligent. But they are not, by any stretch of imagination, American in thought, practice or purpose. They have, however, been "Americanized" in swarms and naturalized by the regiment.

The Twentieth Ward of Chicago constitutes a concrete example of the effect of what has always seemed to us an idiotic craze for forcing naturalization upon people not by any means yet ready for it. That craze is predicated on the notion—and how its holders ever came to conceive it is a puzzle—that by putting a foreigner through the process of making him a citizen you magically change him from something he was yesterday into something wholly different today.

Health and Diet Advice,
By Dr. Frank McCoy

In some cases where the patient has been constipated for years and then tries to overcome this condition, the treatment which will cure constipation in the average case fails to be of benefit. There may even appear to be some actual stoppage in the intestines. In many cases the interference is coming from adhesions, prolapsus or kinks in the intestines.

Very often it is extremely necessary for the patient to overcome the constipation as the chronic poisoning is causing rheumatism, arthritis, gall bladder disorders, and chronic appendicitis. For example, I receive many letters from you who have arthritis and who do not seem to improve in a satisfactory manner. In such cases, I would advise you to have a thorough examination to find if adhesions or kinks are present, and if they are found, to start treatment which will overcome them.

As the intestine is returned to a more normal condition, the patient will find that he will be able to gain headway in overcoming the arthritis or the rheumatism.

To understand how adhesions form in the body, you will first have to consider sagging or falling of the internal organs. This sagging results from poor muscular tone so that the abdominal organs slip down instead of being held in their proper positions. As the organs slip, they rub against each other, causing an irritation and the irritation results in an abnormal growth of tough connective tissue between the two surfaces. In the course of time, the organs grow together, forming adhesions. As the adhesions tend to bind the organs and to limit free movement, they are often a direct cause of kinks.

When the bowel becomes twisted or kinked, it will not do its work in the right way and instead of the wastes passing through it, they may be slowed down or stopped, leading to chronic constipation of a severe type.

In curing kinks and adhesions, it is first necessary to thoroughly understand the shape and position of the kink and the location of the adhesions. It is advisable that a doctor trained in manipulative treatment feels down into the abdominal area and t-y-s to work the parts into their normal positions with his fingers while the patient is being examined under the fluoroscope. Sometimes he can completely straighten the kinks out at the first treatment.

Such treatments are perfectly comfortable and the beauty of them lies in the fact that the adhesions may be broken down and the kinks straightened out without cutting into the abdominal walls. As the condition of severe kinks bound down by adhesions is smoothed out, the intestines will begin to function better and for the first time in many years, the patient finds the intestines discharging wastes normally.

After the good results have been obtained, it is then vitally necessary that the patient keep the abdominal muscles strengthened and toned up by means of special exercises. The best exercises to use are those similar to the ones described in my article on Slanting Board Exercises.

If you wish to know more about the treatment for kinks which I have found to be the best, write to me in care of this newspaper, enclose one large, self-addressed envelope and 6c in stamps and ask for the following articles: BEWARE OF ADHESIONS, KINKS, SLANTING BOARD EXERCISES, CLEANSING DIET.....

Package Store Owners Want to Continue to Sell Like Drug Stores.

Hartford, April 8.—(AP)—The package store proprietors of Connecticut were to file briefs with the clerk of the United States constitutional court today as another step in their demand that the court make permanent an injunction which now prevents action against them while they operate equally with drug stores in liquor sales.

Thomas J. Spallacy of Hartford and Samuel April of New York, are counsel for the package store men. The attorney general has until Wednesday to file briefs on his argument for the vacating of the injunction and the package store association has until next Monday to file an answer to the defense briefs.

UNION TO HOLD MEETING SERIES

Watchmen Will Gather at Odd Fellows Hall Tomorrow Morning.

Announcement was made at a mass meeting of members of Local 2125, United Textile Workers of America, held Saturday afternoon in Odd Fellows hall, that there will be a series of meetings this week in which workers in the various departments at Cheney Brothers' mills will elect shop foremen and transact other business proper to come before the meetings.

Watchmen on duty at Cheney's will gather tomorrow morning at 8:30 o'clock.

The broad goods weavers will have a special meeting Saturday morning at 9 o'clock. Shop foremen will be elected in Rooms W-1A, W-2A, W-1B, W-2B, R-1A and R-1B. All broad goods weavers, whether working on broad goods or not at present, as long as they are on the Cheney payroll, are eligible to attend and have a voice at the meeting.

The presiding officer, however, will have the deciding voice on all questions. Women weavers in particular are urged to attend.

There will be a meeting of all clerical workers of Cheney's Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock in the banquet hall of the Odd Fellows building. President Arthur Shortt is making a special effort to have Joseph Sylvia, secretary of Local 2125, to attend this meeting.

Workers in the trimming department will assemble Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock in the ping pong room of the Odd Fellows building. It was decided at Saturday's meeting that no advance of the time study department will be allowed to become a member of Local 2125. Those who already have signed an application will have the $1 fee returned.

Close Charter April 14. The union voted to close the local charter at noon Saturday April 14. Any person on the Cheney payroll who does not sign up with the union by that time will be obliged to pay a fee of $25 for the application. Those who do apply, however, will be charged the present fee of $1. It is, therefore, necessary for Cheney employees to apply for membership in Local 2125 before April 14.

1900 Members Now. Owing to the rapid growth of Local 2125, which now has a membership of 1900, according to the leaders, it has been found necessary to add a second and a third vice-president to the list of officers. Tracy Block, who has been representing the outside labor for the local, was named second vice-president, while Miss Martha Poppo, representing the inside labor and spooling department of the Old Mill, was chosen third vice-president.

Secretary John J. Egan of the Connecticut Federation of Labor, speaking at Saturday's session, predicted unionization of all Manchester industries and the establishment of Central Labor Union headquarters here in the near future.

Egan Rape Manufacturers. Mr. Egan said organized labor resented the "bonus army" march of Connecticut manufacturers to Washington to protest passage of the Wagner labor legislation. He denounced them as men seeking to share dividends, bonuses and big salaries before proper adjustment of wages was reached.

Calling the NRA the driving force behind the recent nationwide increases in wages, Mr. Egan held up the American Federation of Labor as the policing agent of the codes, and promised that Connecticut employers, through the weapon of strikes, would be forced to comply with President Roosevelt's promises when the codes were signed.

Mr. Egan advanced the opinion that at the next session of the Legislature there will be movements launched for labor reforms, especially compulsory shorter hours. He mentioned Howell Cheney of Manchester, as one of two men in this state who realized shorter hours was a necessary step for the retention of prosperity.

John A. Lonergan, secretary of the Hartford Labor Union, briefly reviewed the recent strike riots at Rocky Hill and warned local workers to beware of false hearers who might seek to place the union in a bad light with the public.

Cheney Pay Raises. No labor demands have yet been made of Cheney Brothers and, in spite of strikes in the textile industry throughout the state, there has been no talk of this kind locally. Cheney Brothers recently made wage increases effective in several departments.

DILLINGER TRAIL TURNS OUT COLD

Abandon Garage Vigil When Desperado Fails to Claim His Auto.

St. Paul, Minn., April 9.—(AP)—The untiring hunters of John Dillinger, America's number one bad-man, had come today to a dead-end trail, and found it cold. By their abandonment last night of a vigil at a Mankato, Minn., garage, officers disclosed they had discovered the automobile used by Dillinger and his woman companion, Evelyn Frechette, when they fled from the Twin Cities March 31, after narrowly escaping capture.

For a week the garage has been closely watched in the hope that Dillinger or one of his gang would return for the automobile. The car was left there shortly after the escape from the Twin Cities, with orders that it be painted a different color and the name plates filed off. When told the job would require several days, the man who left the car there—believed to be a Dillinger aide named Tommy Carroll—bought another machine and said he would return for the other. The police set a trap, but he did not come back. There is some evidence that Dillinger was wounded in the leg, when with the Frechette woman, he shot his way out of a St. Paul apartment house March 31. Eugene Green, a Dillinger associate who also escaped from the apartment house by fighting off police with machine gun fire but who was captured a few days later, is near death in a St. Paul hospital. He was severely wounded by police bullets when he, with a woman companion, was captured last week.

ONE AUTO DEATH OVER THE WEEK-END

Two Drownings, Suicide, Death from Burns are Reported in State.

(By Associated Press)

Death struck Connecticut by land and by sea over the last week end and the toll today had mounted to seven including two drownings, a suicide an automobile fatality and a victim of burns suffered Thursday.

A small rowboat capsized on Long Island Sound only 250 feet from Circle Beach and Donald C. Griffin, 29, son of Fred C. Griffin, a leaf tobacco dealer of Hartford and Lawrence Fogg, a West Hartford broker, drowned. Griffin was set out on a fishing trip Sunday afternoon, when a large wave struck their craft.

Commits Suicide. Lillian Moore, about 30, who conducted a dress shop in Stamford, was found dead on the floor of her garage with the engine of her car running. Police said they have notes left by the woman in which she said she intended to take her life. Rabbi Samuel Marmorstein, 58, of Brookton, Mass., died in the Stamford hospital Sunday night after he had alighted from a bus and was struck by a car driven by John Cavallieri, 28, of Brooklyn, N. Y., on the Boston Post road, in Darien. Cavallieri was held in $2,500 bonds, on a technical charge of manslaughter.

Dies From Burns. Mrs. Catherine Kunze, 30, of Waterbury, died in the Waterbury hospital Sunday of burns she suffered Thursday while she was trying to light the gas range. She said she thought she threw the match away but believed it fell into her dress.

What the medical examiner said was a drink of horse medicine taken a few days before the death of Dewey Johnson, 35 year old negro stable hand in Torrington. He was found dead in bed at a friend's house Sunday, where he had gone for the night.

Dr. Victor Kowalewski, medical examiner for New Haven gave a verdict of death from alcoholism Saturday night in the case of Charles G. Sorenson, 55, found lying on Wooster street, in New Haven, earlier on that day.

Prisoner for 23 Years, Outside Life Awees Him

Pittsburgh, April 9.—(AP)—Whizzed past at right angles, Maley exclaimed: "What if we hadn't stopped?" Bruff explained "those lights control the traffic. See we can't go until it turns green."

"Who does all that?" "Oh, they're automatic," said Bruff. As the machine started down a slight grade Maley became excited, shouting "put on the brakes." They told him the car could be stopped at any time and he sat back in his seat. Automobiles weren't always reliable in 1911. Street cars, department stores, speedy elevators, all were revelations to Maley. He hopes to reach Jugo-Slavia in time for his niece's wedding. She postponed it several times upon learning her uncle was coming home. "But you know how impatient women are about those things," he said.

PONTIFF RECEIVES FOREIGN NEWSMEN

First in History That Any Pope Spoke to Correspondents in a Body.

Vatican City, April 9.—(AP)—Writing a new footnote to church history, Pope Pius XI, received for the first time any Pope has received them in a body. His holiness delivered a heartfelt eulogy of the press and thanked the newsmen for their work during the world-wide Holy Year. The audience took place in the Consistorial hall. Correspondents from 25 nations all wore the required full evening dress, demanded by Vatican ceremony.

Pope Pius first made a circle of the correspondents, speaking a word or two with each. Dressed in white, the Pontiff then ascended to the crimson throne chair. Speaking in French, he said he was happy to have made their acquaintance, that he himself had arranged the audience and that they were welcome in the house of "the common father of all."

Praises Newspapers. The presence of the journalists, he said, gave him much consolation. "Newspapers were a considerable element in creating the magnificent Holy Year had had," the Pope said. "The Holy Year has created a new, exalted religious spirit on earth, I am grateful, therefore."

The Pope, highly praising the speaker with strength and that it carried the thoughts and deeds of leaders to all corners of the world. "This is an important mission in the world, to be transmitters of thoughts of humanity to all humanity," he asserted. The Pontiff concluded the address by wishing the correspondents every success in their work and imparting his blessing to them, their assistants, families, cities and countries.

popular scenic roads in the state. Completed in 1922 at a cost of $1,500,000, it took seven years to build and was literally hewn out of the side of the cliffs overlooking the Hudson. It is only 4 1/2 miles long but it shortened the route up the river by 21 miles.

At the point where the slide occurred, a mile and one-half beyond the north gate of United States Military Academy, the highway skirts the cliff about 400 feet above the tracks of the West Shore railroad, which run along the river bank. Although most of the larger boulders continued down the mountain the tracks were not blocked.

90 IN FIRST COMMUNION CLASS AT ST. BRIDGET'S

Four Masses Each Sunday to Be Continued at North End Church; Assistant Requested

A class of 90 received first communion at the 8:30 mass at St. Bridget's church yesterday morning. This was one of the largest classes to receive first communion in the church in several years. The communicants were prepared by Rev. John Kenney, acting pastor, who has reorganized the Sunday School and is being assisted in the teaching by adult members of the church. The class was composed of 58 boys and 32 girls. Father Kenney was assisted by Rev. John Gorman, M.S., of Hartford. The girls were dressed in white and wore veils while the boys wore dark suits. The church was well filled with relatives and friends to witness the ceremony. The attendance at the four masses which have been held in St. Bridget's church yesterday morning, was 1,000. The month has resulted in a decision to continue holding that number of services. Father Kenney has asked that an assistant be given him each Saturday in order to take care of the added duties of hearing confessions and celebration of two of the masses each Sunday. The masses will be held at 7 o'clock, 8:30, 9:30, and 10:30. It may be decided to change the hours a little later.

C.), to condense the language, which has been characterized as a "stump speech," was lost on a tie vote 9 to 9.

Byrnes' amendment, modified by Senator Carey (R., Wyo.), then lost again 7 to 9. The final vote eliminating the section entirely was 10 to 8, with the following line-up: To eliminate: Glass, Reynolds, McAdoo, Adams, Democrats; and Goldborough, Townsend, Walcott, Carey, Steiwer and Kean, Republicans. Against eliminating: Fletcher, Wagner, Bulkley, Coughlin, Byrnes and Blackhead, Democrats; and Norbeck, and Couzens, Republicans.

The German budget for 1934, made public March 27, shows large increases in military appropriations for the Reich. Among the items which attracted attention was a $100,000,000 grant to the Nazi storm troops—the first time in the history of the German Republic that appropriations have been made for the political army.

The German budget shows that in the coming fiscal year the navy and navy is to receive $37,600,000 as compared with last year's appropriation of $28,000,000, while aviation is to get $83,600,000 as compared to the $28,000,000 which it received last year.

The total German budget was balanced at $2,583,312,000.

HEATED DISPUTES AT COAL HEARING

tors went into a Federal Court and obtained an injunction to restrain the coal field during a recent strike, in which Persons stated there was no intention on the part of the employees' representatives to initiate an increase in wages.

Johnston told the administration that if this "impossible situation" were removed, the Alabama operators would cooperate to the utmost in reaching a reasonable adjustment.

Must Have Hearing. "We must have a hearing, however," he said. "It would be a disaster if it should become necessary to test the validity of this order in the courts."

Johnston also stated that J. D. A. Morrow, president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, had disclaimed responsibility for formulation of the disputed wage and hour amendment. The amendment was recommended to the administration at the coal code hearing last month by the code authorities of Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, and part of West Virginia.

Lewis asked the administration to lay for information as to whether the NRA is free, under the Alabama court order, to proceed with enforcement of the $4.60 rate if it is found proper at this hearing. He was informed by Blackwell Smith that NRA "would be free to approve the rate it finds to be correct."

PACKAGE STORE OWNERS IN NEW LEGAL ACTION

Hartford, April 9.—(AP)—Briefs for approximately 300 package store owners throughout the state asking that a Constitutional Court make permanent an injunction restraining state officials from enforcing the liquor control act with reference to druggist permits as against package store permittees were filed early this afternoon in Federal court.

The brief stresses three main points: First, that no reasonable basis exists for discrimination between druggists and their competitors for package store permittees; second, that the fact that the statutes regulate liquor does not exempt the legislation from the operation of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution; and third, that the act is in violation of the Liquor Control Act by favoring the druggists over practically all statutory restrictions, made those restrictions discriminatory and therefore unconstitutional.

RIVAL ARMENIAN GROUPS RIOT ON BOSTON COMMON

Knives, Ice Picks and Other Weapons Used by Factions in Battle.

Boston, April 9.—(AP)—Nine burly-bred combatants faced off in a battle today as an aftermath of a battle between two rival Armenian groups on the streets bordering Boston Common.

The rival groups, hostile to each other since the assassination of Archbishop Leon Tourian in New York last December, fought yesterday with knives, ice picks and other weapons. More than 250 police, armed with riot guns and gas bombs, quelled the rioters, a score of whom were injured.

The rival groups had engaged in a stone-throwing of each other since the assassination of Archbishop Leon Tourian in New York last December. They met and fought as parades of the two groups turned into Boylston street, enroute to the meeting place.

BLAME FOR FRACAS NOT ALL HUSBAND'S

Kerry St. Man Released After Judge Hears Testimony This Morning.

Convicted that the fault was not entirely on his side and that his wife was partly to blame for the fracas, Judge Raymond Johnson in Police Court today suspended judgment in the case of Stanley Osocki, of 25 Kerry street, charged with assault on complaint of his wife. Questioning of Mrs. Osocki brought to light the fact that she had trouble over property for several years and that both had agreed to separate. It appeared from the testimony that the husband's greatest offense was in breaking down an inside door in the house. Osocki denied he was intoxicated, but admitted he had lost his temper. He was represented by Attorney Raymond Bowers. Henry Black, charged with theft, must join the army without delay to avoid prosecution. Judge Johnson agreed today to enter a nolle in the case to permit Black to enlist, the army refusing to consider an applicant accused of a criminal offense. Black must report to Prosecutor Shea in two days and make it known whether or not he has joined the services. If he fails to do this, the army will stand trial on the theft charge. Charles Galloway, of 8 Stone street, Rockville, will appear in court tomorrow morning to answer a charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He was arrested at the corner of Tolland turnpike and North Main street last night by Policeman Joseph Prentice. At the police station, where he was taken, it was determined that he was intoxicated.

TELLS THE INSIDE OF WIRT'S STORY

Gary Educators Had Practical Joke Played on Him by President's Friends.

Princeton, N. J., April 9.—(AP)—Adolf A. Berle, Jr., New York city chamberlain, in an interview published in today's issue of the Daily Princetonian, said that charges of a Red plot to overthrow the government were the result of a joke played on Dr. William A. Wirt "by some of the boys." "The boys" were not identified in the Princeton undergraduate publication, but otherwise, Berle told what he described as the inside story of "the terrible scandal." The interview follows in part: "The brain trust? Let's explode that myth right now. There is no such thing. "Between the 1932 National election and President Roosevelt's inauguration, Hugh Johnson, Raymond Moley, Charley Tausig, Ray Tugwell and myself, who frequently consulted with the President in the official capacity as the research committee of the Democratic Party were dubbed the 'Brain Trust.' But then it was nothing new to have the campaign committee continue to function until the President took office and an official Cabinet was selected. "No Kitchen Cabinet. "But since there is no place in our government for a Kitchen Cabinet, we five broke up the night before inauguration. We have not been in the same room together since. Now, anyone who is seen talking with the President is immediately called 'another one of the brain trust.' "When questioned about the alleged plot of the 'brain trust' recently unmasked by Dr. Wirt, Mr. Berle broke into a broad grin. The Princetonian said, 'I've just heard the inside story on that terrible scandal. The good doctor was at a party with some of the boys who are connected with things down in Washington. Wirt started asking a few questions about the Roosevelt revolution he was hearing so much about. "Kidded Professor. "They were all in pretty good spirits, and relaxed, kidding the credulous old dufer. Concluding that Roosevelt was a Kerenky, they said that he was just waiting for

SANITARY SEWER RIGHTS DEBATED

Question Coming Before Selectmen at Meeting Wednesday.

The question of rights of different persons to continue to use the sewer in the South Manchester Sanitary District, now owned by the town, which was given title today in the owners of the sewer district before it was turned over to the town, is to come before the Selectmen Wednesday. When the sanitary sewer was extended it was necessary to cross private property. In order to do this, people who had the sewer line through their property were, not taxed for the use of the sewer while it was owned by the former owners. There are several places where this was done, as the main sewer left Center street and cut across private property onto Cooper street, to Summer street and then down into trench then on land of Cheney Brothers, the sewer company at that time being a subsidiary of Cheney Brothers. Since the town took over the water supply, there has been objection by several to paying the 80 per cent additional for the use of the sewer. The sections from West Center street to Cooper street and to the Walnut street extension are not the only places where such water rights exist, but there is another important section that involves considerable money each year, that is also in debate.

Guilford, Conn., April 9.—(AP)—William Pettinill, 19-year-old son of Rear Admiral George T. Pettinill, commanding officer of the U. S. Submarine base at New London, was injured critically early today in an automobile accident. His companion, Alfred C. Sheffield of Waterford, suffered minor lacerations as their automobile overturned on a curve at 2 a. m. They were en route to New London from New York. Pettinill suffered possible fractures of the skull and jaw, a concussion of the brain and possible internal injuries. He was taken to Guilford Sanitarium, but later his father came here with a physician and the youth was transferred to Lawrence and Memorial Associated hospitals at New London. Sheffield is the son of W. K. Sheffield of 10 Park avenue, New York, vice president of the Collapsible Tube company. The automobile, driven by Pettinill, struck a spring and a fence after overturning.

He is serving a life sentence for his part in the slaying of Captain William F. Madden of Manchester. McDonnell once escaped, has been guilty of slashing the throat of another prisoner while confined, was involved in another attempt to break prison and spent much time in solitary confinement. McDonnell, who had completed a prison sentence in New York state a short time before coming to Manchester with other men to attempt the theft of raw silk from Cheney Brothers, made good his escape from Wethersfield, but was arrested in New York in a speakeasy he conducted after three years of liberty. He was the henchman of Bill Beasler, who owned the saloon where the plan to rob the silk was hatched, and was engaged as a bartender by Beasler before his arrest in Hoboken, N. LIBERTY BOND SERIAL DIGITS ARE VALUABLE

That is, if the Numbers End in 9, 0 or 1, Treasury Chief Says. Washington, April 9.—(AP)—Secretary Morgenthau wants all holders of Liberty Bonds to dust them off and see if they have serial numbers ending with the digits 9, 0 or 1. The Treasury chief explained that if any of these figures appear at the end of the serial number the bonds are Fourth Liberties and can be exchanged for other government bonds at "substantial premiums." Morgenthau said last night that the exchange transactions in the first four days since the new billion and a quarter dollar bond issue was announced have been "gratifying." He said the response had totaled about $550,000,000, but that many more of the bonds were still out and that the opportunity to make an advantageous exchange would terminate shortly. "The Treasury is concerned," he said, "that none of the holders of these securities shall suffer a loss because of lack of information."

Members of the House of Assembly, are considering the admittance of automobiles to the Colony. It irks the novelist. Besides, he argues, in the current issue of "The Bermudian Magazine," "if by the introduction of motors you are going to make Bermuda more like Detroit and Pittsburgh, then, why should the citizens of Detroit and Pittsburgh take the trouble to come here at all?" The ROMANTIC RUNAWAY

KATHARINE HAYLAND-TAYLOR

BEGIN HERE TODAY

PABLO, handsome youth, becomes a fugitive when he flees from Key West to Havana with BEAU and LOTTIE, two thieves. Pablo has been accused of a murder he did not commit. MARCIA TREADWELL, socially prominent, could prove he is innocent but fears scandal.

Pablo is in love with ESTELLE FIELD, daughter of rich JIM FIELD, in Havana, under the name "Juanito," he becomes celebrated as a boxer and he and Beau open a gymnasium.

SIR AUBREY, a titled Englishman and Pablo's father, is searching for his son, employing BILLINGS, New York detective.

Three years pass and then Pablo sees Estelle again. They admit their love for each other and meet secretly until Estelle's father hears of it. He tells her she must break off with Pablo or he will turn the young man over to police on the old murder charge.

Meanwhile Billings, convinced Pablo is the youth he has been seeking, has called Sir Aubrey this news.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIV

Jim Field spoke slowly, eyes on the girl. "If you want to save your Pablo," he said, "you write him a letter saying that it's all over—that you never did care for him and the whole thing was a mistake. Otherwise we'll read of his being strangled in that chair. We'll read about it—after it's all over."

The words ended. There was silence for a time and then Field snapped his watch shut. "Time's up," he said. "What's it to be?"

Estelle moved, swaying, toward the desk. She sat down to write unsteadily. Once she sat back, as if unable to get on, which she picked up the sheet on which she had written the message. "All right," he commented grimly.

She rose then to face him—a slender flame that had momentarily blazed into scarlet.

"I hate you," she said slowly in a voice that was too quiet. "I shall never stop hating you. My mother hated you. Any woman who knows you will hate you because you are cruel and merciless. If you ever so much as try to lay your hand on mine I will leave you forever. And remember, please, that I, too, keep my word. Is that understood?"

He tried to laugh but the laugh was a failure. "I imagine I shall get along—in some manner," he muttered with a poor imitation of jauntness. Estelle gave him a flaming look of hatred and then she, too, smiled—an echo of his smile.

Field pounded down the stairway, pallid and shaking from the force of his anger and the fright Estelle's words had given him. Carlito was responsible for this, he thought. Carlito who had carried notes between Estelle and Pablo. "Kerry!" Field howled. Kerry came, alarm on his face.

"Get that—Carlito out of here!" Field roared, his voice breaking.

Kerry swallowed hard and then protested. "But his wife is in labor," he said.

He shrank as Field answered that, screaming vituperation and every sort of verbal filth. Was that his fault, Field demanded? He wanted the couple and she shut now. Unless they went he would throw them out himself!

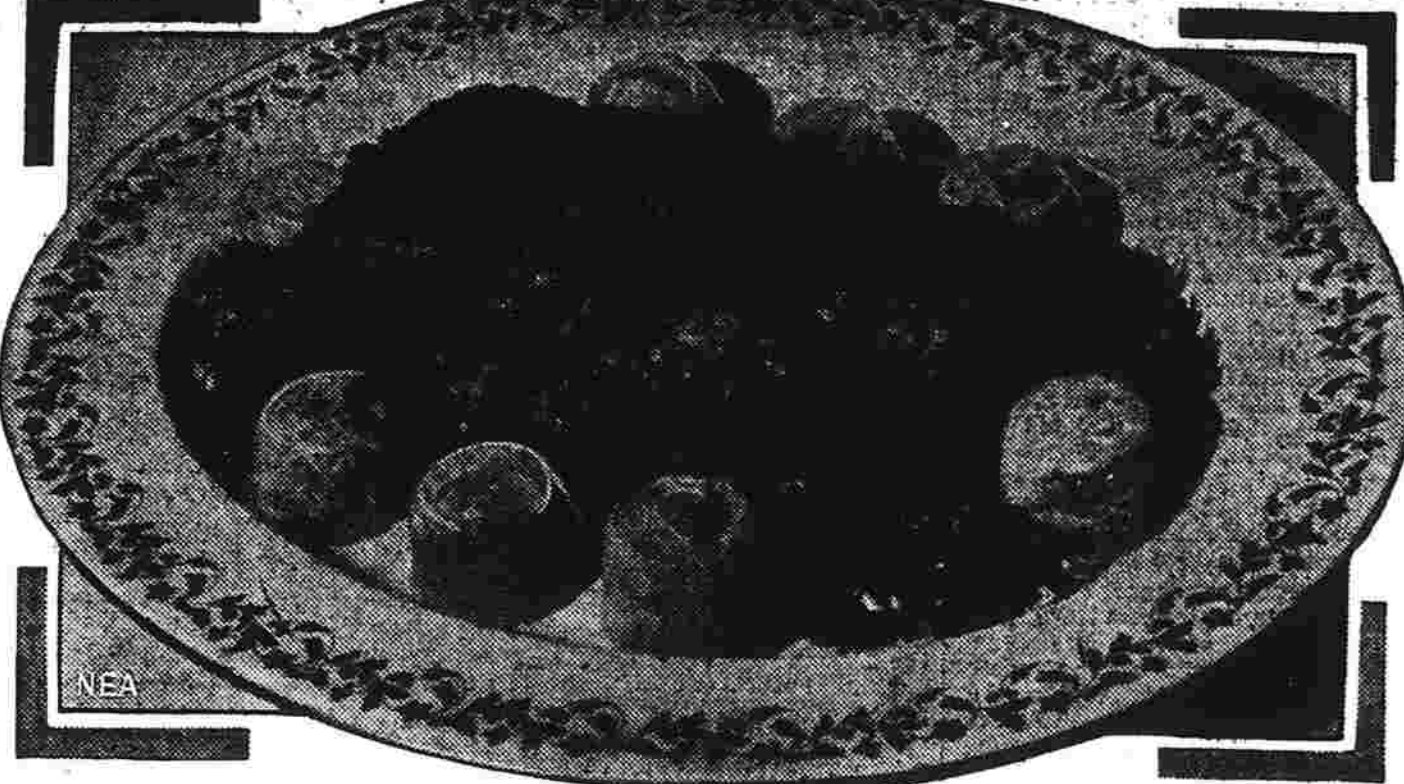

Carlito's first-born was delivered near a roadside hedge and his young wife, struggling too long and being delicate, did not recover. The few servants who had dared dismissal by following Carlito in his trouble ranged around the body wailing. Carlito, in the center of the ring, kissed over and over again the forehead of the young wife, who for the first time, did not answer his appeal.

Kerry, making his way cautiously toward the great house, thought he would not care to be in Field's shoes. "You can not manage the world that way," he thought grimly, shaken by all that he had seen and heard.

"It was terrible," he said to his wife, who was the housekeeper. "Alone, Field strode the length of the room he called his office. He heard the wailing, heard also the echo of his daughter's voice as she gave him her ultimatum and her opinion of him. He swayed loudly at the wailing and summoned Kerry to have the long windows

IT'S GREAT WITH MEAT LOAF, THIS RELISH

Jellied Cabbage and Horseradish Sauce Add Zest To Ham Dish

Baked ham loaf with jellied cabbage and horseradish sauce is an appetizing main course for a spring menu.

Individual portions of jellied relish give a meat loaf a festive touch that will pep up indolent spring appetites. If you've been in the habit of using only chopped beef for meat loaf, switch to ham and pork and see how pleased your family will be.

Here's a new recipe for ham loaf: Combine one-half cup of quick cooking tapioca with one-fourth teaspoon of pepper, one-fourth teaspoon of minced onion, one pound of Worcester-hire sauce, one tablespoon of minced onion, one spoon of lean pork (ground), one pound of lean ham (ground) and two cups of milk.

Dissolve one package of lemon flavored gelatin in one pint of warm water. Add one tablespoon of vinegar, four tablespoons of horseradish and one-fourth teaspoon of salt. Set the bowl in the ice box and, when slightly thickened, fold in one cup of shredded cabbage and one-fourth cup of finely chopped green pepper. Turn into individual molds, filling them only half way, and chill until firm. Unmold when ready to serve and put them on the platter with the meat loaf.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

In our last article we were talking of taking the family into the school, by more direct interest on the parents' part, also the harm done by complete detachment from the child's school life.

There is the other side, too, almost as important—for the school itself is relinquishing its burrowing habits and seeking the air.

So much progress has been made along this line that this comment is in no way a criticism, but a cheer. If the parent is not contacting the school, the school itself is contacting the outside world. In this way:

Last winter I was in an art gallery when a teacher died in with her flock. The boys looked bored. They slouched and slumped their caps on their knees and I selves "baby stuff" for they were older boys. There were few girls in the class.

Teaching "Appreciation" Even I, who favor the "outside" teaching, remarked to my companion, "This is a waste of time. Look at those boys. They're sons of workmen and probably will have no more use for a knowledge of art or artists than I have this minute for a fishing rod."

Not that I don't think that "appreciation" of all sorts should be taught just that way. Besides, if you had seen the class you would understand what I mean.

They roamed around flapping caps and jeering derisively at some of the pictures. As far as that goes, I didn't blame them much. The gloom lifted, eventually, and grins began to appear. They turned into a darn good comedy after all, one could tell by their faces. They were having a good time.

Then suddenly a sweet-faced woman, an assistant curator whom I knew, got up on a bench.

"O dear!" I thought. "I hope she's careful of what she says, or they will hurt her feelings."

Catching Interest But she started right in, her voice clear, low and sympathetic. Instantly she caught her audience. She held a picture of mills and smoke and many bridges half hidden in a mist.

"Boys, the man who painted that picture was once a heater boy. His father, a workman in a mill, just like this, died, and he had to support his mother and sisters. His hands got hard and rough. He did not know then that one day they would be soft, but still strong, and hold a paint brush that would make him famous, and if not actually rich, comfortable. I'll give you his name."

She chose other pictures, each with its story of human interest in the artist—stories of struggle and starvation. And she would add, "But it seems that hard work and struggle could not kill their love of beautiful things. Instead, it only added to it."

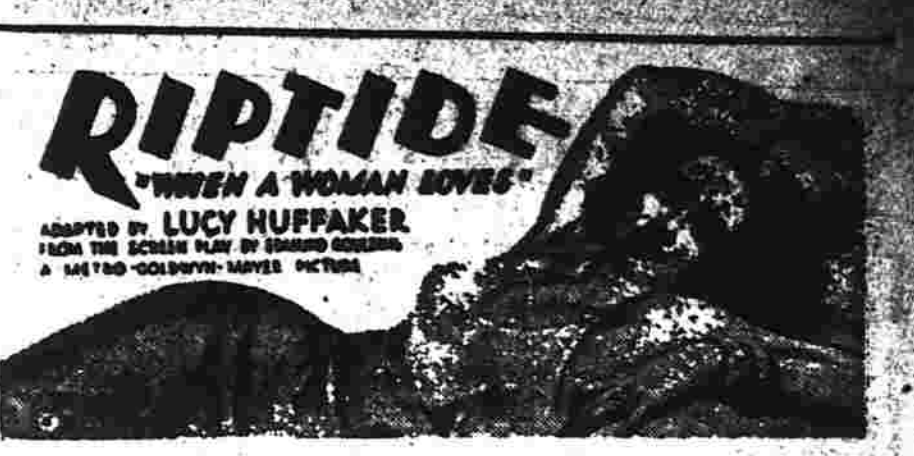

I myself was spell-bound. The boys were intensely interested. They began to look behind the oil and the frames into human life and to view beauty itself with new eyes. I never saw appreciation more wholesomely taught. It was not emotional, just human, uncovering hidden things.

Benefits Derived I had been mistaken. I had jumped to a wrong conclusion. That class got more that day than they would out of a geometry book.

The interludes are good things for both young and older children. Young children are now taken on country jaunts to look at nature's own book. Older children are taken into the industrial and artistic world. When they live certain experiences, a deeper interest in learning, more about them takes hold. We can't expect all boys who will some day be in the trades, or in business, to find pictures highly useful. But I know that at least some of them would look on a furnace or a converter some day with a little more liking, because one workman had remembered its grandeur and put it on canvas.

I like the tent idea where children can study outdoors, where the day I wonder just what part the building will play in education.

These trips are never a waste of time. Learning does not consist of books alone. They merely supplement reality.

CHAPTER VII

FOREWORD

Mary refuses to open her door when Tommy bangs on it or to answer him when he phones her. Wild with rage and disappointment, he tries to leap from a balcony to the one outside her suite, but crashes down the two stories to the cafe below.

"Is he dead?" gasped the manager of the hotel when the doctor had examined Tommy.

His shock his head. He was unconscious but he was breathing. It had been a bad fall however and he must be taken at once to the hospital. He would require the best of care. Even that the doctor said solemnly might not avail. There might be serious internal injuries.

Lady Riversleigh arrived at the hotel a few minutes after Tommy's leap. Loving any excitement she would have stopped to see what was going on, but she was anxious to find Mary, so she went at once to their suite.

"Isn't Tommy here?" she asked.

"Of course not. What do you think I am?"

"A very pretty and mischievous little baggage—on the loose. What happened, exactly? I know about Tommy's pulling you in the pool—and his chase after you."

"Nothing more. I knew it was time for me to run—and I did."

"Thrilled, eh? Tempted, perhaps?"

"Yes—and it frightened me. You know, Aunt Hetty, I really and truly love Philip. What would he say?"

"Don't give him a chance to say anything. You were just gay—may be a little thoughtless. Come on, we're going out somewhere for a good time."

"Not I," said Mary. "I've had enough for one while and I've put on my hat for Washington. I want to hear Philip's voice. I have a slight attack of conscience. And I've made up my mind to go back to London tomorrow. Cannes is a little too much for me."

There was a sharp knock on the door.

"Sh-h," she warned. "It's Tommy. I can't see him. I won't have him in here."

"Why not? With me here as chaperone, it is all right. And he'll keep on pounding until everyone in the hotel hears it."

But it was not Tommy who stood outside the door when Aunt Hetty opened it. The manager of the hotel and four other men were there. The manager looked, and was embarrassed as he apologized for the fact that his companions were from the police force. Lady Riversleigh crossed the room, tapped on Mary's door.

"Mary dear," she said, "You must come out. It is the police."

There was astonishment writ large on Mary's face as she appeared in the doorway.

"What is it? What do you want?" she asked. Then in answer to a question, she said: "Yes, I am the wife of Lord Rexford. Will you kindly explain to me why you have forced this call on me?"

"Tonight, Madame," said the chief officer, "you have been a witness to a gentleman who comes perhaps for a little chat—a little drink."

"No—no one has been here. Only my maid and I until my husband's aunt, Lady Riversleigh, came in."

The manager whose nervousness had been increasing broke in to remind the officer he had told him from the first he was making a mistake. The officer did not answer him. To Mary he said in an insinuating way: "So—Madame was alone?"

"I have said so. By what right do you come here to question me?" The officer strode out to the balcony. He drew a card from his pocket, read it slowly, looked up, paused a moment to lighten the

NO BASIS FOR BELIEFS ABOUT BIRTHMARKS

Most Such Skin Spots Are Harmless Malformations of Tissue, and Only Mole Type May Become Dangerous When Irritated

By DR. MORRIS FISHER, Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

A birthmark may be a useful thing for purpose of identification, or it may be of particular value to you as a beauty spot, if it happens to be a dark dot on your cheek, chin or shoulder blade.

But there are several types of birthmarks, and about as many superstitions regarding them. And you'll find very few people without birthmarks at all.

Whenever a baby has a strawberry mark its mother is likely to remember an uncontrollable appetite which she had for strawberries, which was unsatisfied.

If the baby has a hairy and pigmented mole, the mother may have some memory of being frightened by a mouse or a dog. Sometimes a baby is born with a skin that resembles in spots that of a fish, and there are innumerable superstitions about fish.

But all these birthmarks are merely malformations of the tissues, and they are not related in any way to mental causes.

Most birthmarks, if not too extensive, are not dangerous to health and are treated easily by modern scientific methods. In most cases, they are made up of small blood vessels.

When they are flat with the surface of the skin, they are a port wine color and are called port wine marks. If they are raised above the surface of the skin and are soft and spongy, they resemble strawberries and are called strawberry marks.

There is only one type of birthmark that may have potential danger—that is the mole which is bluish-black or slate colored and which varies in size from that of a pinhead to several inches in diameter.

If this type of mole becomes irritated, it may grow suddenly and develop into a serious form of cancer.

Cases of this type have been reported in medical articles, in which a mole occurs on a part of the body on which it is likely to be irritated, it should have prompt treatment.

It has been found, through recent investigations, that the strawberry birthmark is treated best with radium and the best time to do this is during the first few years of life. The skin of the young child heals promptly.

The port wine marks do not respond as readily to radium as do the strawberry marks, but in many instances they can be treated successfully by repeated freezing with carbon dioxide snow.

A method much used for the non-hairy and pigmented moles is the electric needle, which destroys the blood supply at the bottom of the mole and thus causes it to disappear.

Your House Frock

Should you be looking for slim lines, this frock will give them to you. It is cleverly collared and the many buttons add a practical and interesting detail. Easy to make.

STYLE and comfort are combined in this house frock which you can make from either percale, linen, voile, foulard or challis. Designed in seven sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46, size 38 requires 4 1/2 yards of 32-inch material plus 1 1/2 yard of 35-inch contrast for the collar and cuffs. The trimming requires 2 yards of pleating and 4 1/4 yards of 1 1/2 inch piping or bias binding.

To secure a pattern and simple sewing chart of this model, tear out this sketch and mail it to Julia Boyd, 103 Park Avenue, New York, N. Y., together with 15 cents in coin. Be sure to enclose, on a separate sheet of paper, your name, full address, your size, the number of this pattern (No. 9947x), and mention the name of this newspaper.

Address your envelope to Julia Boyd, Manchester Herald Fashion Bureau, 103 Park Avenue, New York, N. Y.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

If you're planning a new spring coiffure, carefully consider the shape of your face.

A round face is flattered by the new windblown arrangements but the forehead line should be exposed to give length to a profile. Waves should be wide and soft but distinctly slanted to eliminate the broad effect.

The girl with a square jaw can easily wear curls about the back of her neck and her waves should be soft and feminine. For evening, she can be a little more extreme and tuck her fair locks behind her ears.

The pointed face usually needs width and the woman who has one ought to wear her hair quite fluffy about her face. If the hair is bobbed, that makes it simple. If not, try letting the waves fall free about the cheeks instead of pinning them in place.

Of course the very first essen-

A lot of men never do anything on time, except quit work.

Briggs (smiling appreciatively)—Jove, old chap, that's a nice overcoat you've got on. Where did you get it?
Snuggs—Yes, it's rather good. I picked it up at Jackson's.

The following interesting incident occurred some weeks ago, but has just "come to light." Wishing to get married, a couple went to a minister's house just as he was ready to leave for his service. He invited them to attend the service, promising to marry them at the end. They agreed to this and when the minister had completed his sermon, in order to give the couple the cue to come forward, he announced: "All those desiring to be married come forward."

Know the Truth about REFRIGERATION

A COMPARISON of MERIT

THE COOLERATOR

- 1 Pure, sparkling ice at all times.
- 2 Requires re-icing only every five to seven days.
- 3 Melting ice in a Coolerator maintains proper humidity for food preservation.
- 4 The water from melting ice absorbs gases and odors that foods give off. In a Coolerator the air is washed clean and pure.
- 5 Melting ice is quiet, and automatically maintains the proper constant temperature.
- 6 The patented exclusive and new method of air circulation is found only in the Coolerator, insuring the preservation of foods in their natural state.
- 7 No moving parts, nothing to wear out. Under average conditions, will last indefinitely.
- 8 Removable shelves, round corners, easy to clean.
- 9 For a family of five, costs only an average of $3.50 per month to own and operate a Coolerator.

THE AVERAGE ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR

- 1 Heavy, complicated machinery, making noise, causing vibration, wearing out, consuming power.
- 2 Ice trays must be kept filled. Inefficient ice in hot weather.
- 3 Almost air-tight compartment with circulation of cold, dry air dehydrates foods.
- 4 The dead air in the food chamber causes the mixing and absorption of gases from one food to another.
- 5 The temperature in an electric refrigerator fluctuates.
- 6 Circulation of dry, stale air is an accepted poor practice of sanitation.
- 7 All machinery wears out—how soon—depends on principle of operation. Gas must be replaced.
- 8 Complicated coils, usually with crevices and corners. Must be defrosted every few days.
- 9 For a family of five, costs an average of $7.10 per month.

Do not be misled by extravagant claims . . . Compare the Coolerator with electrical refrigeration and decide for yourself

The Coolerator is exclusively different and better. Prove this for yourself in your own home. Simply call us. A Coolerator to suit your need will be delivered at your convenience. If, after ten days, you are not satisfied that it is the best refrigerator you can buy, you may have it returned without the slightest obligation.

"Is an air-tight compartment, filled with stale, dry, gas-laden air a good place to keep the foods you intend to eat?"
