AIRCRAFT WORKERS IN EAST HARTFORD GO OUT ON STRIKE

Employees of Propeller Com- pany Strike; Expect Other Plants to Follow Suit; Strike in Rocky Hill Settled.

(By the Associated Press.)
The first of a series of strikes aimed at Connecticut's aviation center was called today, giving new impetus to the campaign of the Connecticut Federation of Labor for a restoration of the 1923 wage levels. Their demand for a ten per cent increase denied, 148 workers walked out of the East Hartford plant of the Hamilton Standard Propeller Company.

Officials of the Industrial Aircraft Workers of America, Inc., said the aviation strike would be extended tomorrow to the gear department of the Pratt and Whitney Aircraft Company tomorrow and that on Thursday all departments of the concern and of the Chance Vought Corporation would be affected.

Other Strikes.

The aviation strike was one of several affecting Connecticut industry. One of these involved 1,800 workers in the four Hartford plants of the Arrow-Hart and Hegeman Company and another 200 employees of the Norwalk Fire and Rubber Company.

Meanwhile workers in other plants in the state awaited the outcome of wage negotiations.

In Danbury, the hat makers union voted for restoration of the 1923 wage scale for the production of hats in the rough. Manufacturers immediately announced they were investigating wage and working conditions in other hat making districts competing with Danbury.

At New Britain, increased wages were also demanded by employees of the Bristol and Meriden plants of the New Britain Manufacturing Company, the Terry Steam Turbine Company of Hartford and the Underwood Elliott Fisher Company, also of Hartford.

While the drive for higher wages broadened, settlement of a strike at the rayon factory of the Belamont Corporation at Rocky Hill was announced. This strike involved chiefly recognition of the union, a point that was won by the workers.

Labor Commissioner Tene this afternoon conferred with representatives from the Connecticut Koppers Coke Company of New Haven, regarding labor disputes in the organization.

BISHOP CANNON'S TRIAL CONTINUES

Lawyer for Accused Urges Exoneration; Says Church Met Legal Requirements.

Washington, April 10.—(AP)—Urging exoneration of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., his attorney, Robert H. McNeill, told a jury today the Southern Methodist churchman met legal requirements in reporting the 1928 contributions he received for opposing Alfred E. Smith for President.

He admitted that Cannon had placed some of the contributions in his personal bank account but that "within 24 or 48 hours" had forwarded them to Miss Ada L. Burroughs, treasurer of the Headquarters Committee, Anti-Smith Democrats, to be entered on her books.

The bishop's attorney, Burroughs, on a charge of conspiracy to violate the Federal Corrupt Practices Act through failure to report all of $65,300 contributed by Edwin C. Jameson, New York insurance executive.

Closing his statement, McNeill told the jury:
"I know that you will come back here and say to the defendant, 'go on bishop, in the last years of your life, free of any stain not guilty.'"

McNeill said $17,800 was reported to the clerk of the House and that the remaining $48,000 was spent in Virginia by the "State Anti-Smith Committee," a different organization from the one the bishop headed.

CONOVER SUGGESTS NEW MAJOR PARTY

Yale Professor Claims Old Parties Are Headed for Destruction.

Washington, April 10.—(AP)—A prediction that both major political parties are headed for disintegration, an assertion that the present "social chaos" calls for a new major party and a claim that present policies of the National Administration are not solving the problems of the farmer, the laborer and the woman in industry were outstanding points in an address given today before the Women's National Committee of Law Enforcement by Professor Milton Conover of Yale University.

Conover is president of the National organizations grouped under the title of the National Temperance and Prohibition Council. In his address he relegated to a minor place the liquor problem saying that while it is a far more intolerable situation than it has ever been before it is "entwined with the others, especially with the war problem."

New Parley Needed.

"The present social chaos calls for a new major party regardless of the liquor problem and its proposed remedies through state and congressional enabling acts," said Professor Conover. "Both of the old National parties already have demonstrated their certain disintegration. The Republicans have abandoned the state and the Democrats are finding their greater champion in the Democratic party and the drys finding themselves deserted behind an ignoble camouflage."

"The Democrats have deserted Woodrow Wilson's world peace program and are dividing themselves among Alphabetical and Constitutionalists, Farleyites and Jeffersonians, leaving the commonwealth at the mercy of war makers, munition-dress, unwarranted pension drivers and treasury raiders."

"Likewise, it leaves untried the

TRAIN WRECKERS CAUSE 2 DEATHS

Score of Persons Injured When Express Is Derailed in Austria.

Vienna, April 10.—(AP)—Train wreckers derailed the Vienna-Paris-London express early today between Wels and Linz, capital of upper Austria, causing two deaths and a score of injuries.

No foreigners were reported among the injured. The casualties were confined almost exclusively to trainmen and railway postal employees.

The fireman was killed almost instantly when the locomotive jumped the track and overturned. One postal employee died later.

The wreckers apparently removed a wheel from the track of the train, bound from Vienna to Paris. The government posted a reward of 5,000 schillings (about $950) for the apprehension of the wreckers.

The directors of public security of all provinces in Austria, meeting in Vienna today with Vice Chancellor Emil Fey to discuss ways and means of combatting anti-government propaganda and actions, immediately were confronted with this new instance of apparent anti-government violence in the train wreck.

Members of the jury Closing his statement, McNeill told the jury:
"I know that you will come back here and say to the defendant, 'go on bishop, in the last years of your life, free of any stain not guilty.'"

McNeill said $17,800 was reported to the clerk of the House and that the remaining $48,000 was spent in Virginia by the "State Anti-Smith Committee," a different organization from the one the bishop headed.

He added that Miss Burroughs was employed primarily by the Anti-Saloon League and that she usually worked but an hour a day in the headquarters office.

FORMER WORLD WAR SPY NOW A BUDDHIST ABBOT

Trebitch Lincoln Was Once Member of Parliament; Is Known for His Adventures All Over the World.

Victoria, B. C., April 10.—(AP)—Trebitch Lincoln, a former member of the British House of Commons, adventurer and spy, prepared today for a journey across Canada, over the Atlantic and into seclusion in a Buddhist monastery in Germany.

He came back into the public eye as he reached here during the week and from the Orient accompanied by six nuns and four monks of the Buddhist religion. His former Canadian Lutheran missionary said he might speak in Canadian cities, but so far no arrangements for meetings had been made.

Lincoln now is known as the Abbot Chao Kung. He said he wanted to forget all about his days of spying for the German government during the Great War. He wanted to be friends with the British and the world in general. The years of conflict should end with peace, he said.

The abbot declared the Buddhist religion voids all extremes, and offers good will.

Are Vegetarians
"At home we eat only one meal a day and we are always vegetarians," he said. "It is not that we believe in necessarily castigating the body, but we believe the mind works better if the body is fed less. Buddhist demands precise, profound and correct things."

Other than stating he would preach Buddhism in Europe, probably in Switzerland or Germany, the abbot would reveal nothing of his future plans. He did state, however, he would not return to China. It was believed Germany would be the country selected for establishment of his Buddhist monastery.

Trebitch Lincoln, former European spy, was born in Hungary in 1875. He became secretary to Seeborn Rowntree, a leading British Liberal, and was elected to Parliament in 1908 as a Unionist.

He gained a position in the censor's office during the war and propounded various ambitious schemes for the defeat of the Germans, but was dismissed.

"Many students of world affairs believe that the choice into which the Nation has been plunged is due to indolent planning on the part of skillful political strategists for the purpose of gaining the mastery of the United States and eventually of the world.

"Our problem is the more difficult because it comprehends not only the intrigue of certain groups in the United States, but also deep laid plans of an aggressive group in Europe, the two working together."

The feminine prohibitionists planned to fast and pray, instead of having lunch today.

In proposed speeches for delivery in their open forum the repeal amendment was soundly berated.

WIRT CLAIMS TUGWELL HINTED AT REVOLUTION

WIRT STATEMENT DENIED BY TODD

Others Mentioned by Educa- tor Also Say They Made No Remarks.

Washington, April 10.—(AP)—Lawrence Todd, representative here of the Soviet News Agency, Task denied to newspapermen today the quotation attributed to him by Dr. William A. Wirt that President Roosevelt is the "Kerensky" of impending revolution that will replace him with a "Stalin."

The alleged remark was said by Wirt by the House investigation to have been made at a September dinner also attended by David C. Coyle, of the Public Works Administration. Coyle also told reporters he heard no such statement.

As to assertions attributed indirectly to him by Wirt, Dr. Rexford Guy Tugwell in an interview said they were garnered from a 1931 public speech by him.

Speaker Rainey also denied a remark attributed indirectly to him in Wirt's testimony to the effect that "the government would take over some industries."

Others Mentioned.

Other principals in Wirt's testimony either would not comment or were unavailable here.

Todd acknowledged that he attended a dinner at the Virginia home of Miss Alice Barrows last

TARIFF ACCORD NOT PRACTICAL

Runciman Doubts Negotia- tions Between Britain and U. S. Possible at Present.

London, April 10.—(AP)—Walter Runciman, president of the British Board of Trade, told the House of Commons today that tariff negotiations between the United States and Great Britain were impractical at present.

Runciman said: "I do not think commercial conversations between the two governments could be usefully considered at present."

His statement was in reply to a member's question whether in view of the fact that "a free interchange of commodities would secure additional employment in the two countries," he would initiate talks with the United States designed toward the mutual lowering or, preferably, abolition of tariffs.

The reply was interpreted as at least a partial answer by the British government to Richard Washburn Child's recent tour of Europe in the midst of President Roosevelt's tariff questions.

Runciman added that he understood the United States' commercial policy was "under review" in connection with Roosevelt's activities in seeking permission from Congress to negotiate reciprocal trade agreements with other countries.

TREASURY BALANCE

Washington, April 10.—(AP)—The position of the Treasury April 9: Receipts, $8,731,708.43; expenditures, $22,818,974.50; balance, $4,698,593,545.45; customs receipts for the month, $5,011,759.13.

Receipts for the fiscal year since July 1 were $2,372,473,568.94; expenditures, $5,054,384,972.60 including $5,020,319,079.79 of emergency expenditures; excess of expenditures, $2,682,511,405.76; gold assets, $7,718,688,898.78.

Indiana Educator Tells Names of Some of His Informants—Speaks for Two Hours Before House Committee—Two Men and Three Women, Employed by Administration Told Him of Plot, He Declared—Speaker Rainey's Name Also Figures in Professor's Story.

Washington, April 10.—(AP)—Naming "brain-trusters" and their subordinates as his informants, Dr. William A. Wirt indicated today that he traces back to Dr. Rexford Guy Tugwell—assistant secretary of agriculture—his conviction that a plot exists to "overthrow the social order."

For two sensation-studded hours recounted his fears to the House investigating committee, while a massed crowd followed his words.

The story began with an account of a dinner, attended by him, two men and three women associated with the Administration, and the representative here of the Soviet News Agency, Task. The last named, Lawrence Todd, he quoted as saying President Roosevelt was "in mid-stream" and could not turn back from the "revolution."

May Call Others.

It ended with the Indiana educator, unable to complete his testimony today, suggesting that the committee summon Lewis W. Douglas, budget director, and W. I. Westervelt, Chicago business man formerly with the Farm Administration. They, Wirt asserted, could throw more light on the alleged plotting to bring Communism.

Speaker Rainey's name figured, too, Wirt quoting Westervelt as having said "he had asked Rainey what Congress was going to do, and Rainey replied that congress would assemble, pass certain laws, stay in session until May or June, and within a month or six weeks the government would take over some industries and then I don't know what will happen."

Testified as present at the September dinner were: Dr. Raymond Rainey, chairman of the Textile Code Advisory Committee; David C. Coyle, of the Public Works Administration; Hildegarde Kneeland and Mary Taylor, Department of Agriculture economists; Alice Barrows of the Education Bureau at the Interior Department, and Lawrence Todd, representative of the Soviet News Agency.

The dinner was in the Barrows home in nearby Virginia.

Wirt said Miss Kneeland had quoted Tugwell as having said he "would have closed the Grain and Stock Exchange if he had the power" and that he termed last summer's business improvement "a speculative spree."

"Miss Kneeland said," he went on, "that Tugwell said: 'If we begin to plan nationally we must change once and for all our statutes and Constitution.'"

He also testified Miss Kneeland had quoted the assistant secretary of agriculture to the effect that "it was impossible to have a planned economy and have big business operating industry."

Representative Bulwinkle (D., N. C.) wanted to know who had talked of President Roosevelt as a "Kerensky," later to be replaced by a "Stalin."

"Lawrence Todd," Wirt replied, "As to Westervelt, the schoolmaster testified the Chicagoan had said 'Dr. Frederick C. Howe (head of the A.A. Consumers Council) had told him that if there was a way to stop feeding people on federal relief that quicker progress could be made toward what we are after.'"

Westervelt also was quoted as having said "Tugwell assured he could get $1,000,000 for a special school for 'recent college graduates,' and that it would be 'easy to inoculate them with ideas about the new planned economy.'"

Wirt also assailed the subsistence homestead plan of the administration.

Is Part of Plan.
"Do you consider it part of a plan to overthrow the established order?" he was asked, and replied he "regretably did."

Asked by Representative O'Connor (D., N. Y.), if he discriminated between overthrowing the social order and changing the government, Wirt said that he spoke of revolution such as the "Roosevelt revolution" referred to in a book by Ernest K. Lindley. He said some people thought of revolution as "throwing the top of the capitol."

"The President is not to blame," he said, "but the real friends of the Constitution have not come forward."

Asked by Representative Arnold (D., Ill.) who made the statement in his remarks that "we are on the inside and had controlling influence which made the President think he was making the decisions," Wirt replied:

"Todd, Kneeland and Taylor. Convening of the House terminates the hearing soon after noon. It will be resumed tomorrow with Wirt on the stand. What other witnesses will be called, if any, remained to be decided."

SPRINGS A SURPRISE.

Washington, April 10.—(AP)—Dr. William A. Wirt sprang a surprise on the House of Representatives today by appearing for the investigation into his "Brain Trust" accusations with former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri as counsel.

The militant Reed had ready a statement that Wirt was allowed to make a statement. Whether he would make this before Wirt was called upon the name the Roosevelt advisor he says told him revolutions was being plotted, remained to be seen.

The huge House caucus room was crowded as Wirt, an Indiana schoolmaster, strode in with Reed. Word had spread that the much-awaited witness faced the dilemma of naming his alleged informant or being threatened on charges of holding the House in contempt.

Slower in arriving than the hundreds of curious watchers, the investigating committee consisted of Chairman Bulwinkle (D., N. C.), O'Connor (D., N. Y.), Arnold (D., Ill.), McGugin (R., Kan.) and Lehbach (R., N. J.).

Wirt's Assertion.
The Wirt assertion they were intent upon finding out about was: "Last summer I asked some of the individuals in this (Brain Trust) group what their concrete plan was for bringing on the proposed overthrow of the established American social order."

"I was told that they believed that by thwarting our then evident recovery they would be able to prolong the country's destitution until they had demonstrated to the American people that the government must operate industry and commerce."

"The most surprising statement made to me was: 'We believe that we have Mr. Roosevelt in the middle of a swift stream and that the current is so strong that he cannot turn back or escape from it. We believe that we can keep Mr. Roosevelt there until we are ready to sweep him with a Stalin. We all think that Mr. Roosevelt is only the ferryman on the inside. We can control the avenue of influence. We can make the President's feet slip by making decisions and statements by the committee to name N. C., O'Connor (D., N. Y.), Arnold (D., Ill.), McGugin (R., Kan.) and Lehbach (R., N. J.).'

Western Gold Miners Work in Bathing Suits

Aberdeen, Wash., April 10.—(AP)—The gold-diggers of Grays Harbor, stated by President Roosevelt's new high price for the yellow metal, are getting out their bathing suits and clam forks.

They earn a living extracting gold from sea-sand, an occupation in which they can wear bathing suits.

When gold-panning is halted for lunch they chase the clammy clam. It isn't much of a living they say, but a patient and industrious beach miner can make $5 a day, since the President has set the price of gold at $95 a fine ounce. Says Charles A. Bushnell, an expert,

"It's a fine life—except when a high tide and surf beat in at night and wipe out all your hopes and pound your fumes to kindling."

His sons Charles and George just finished two weeks part time gold mining, taking about $30 worth of gold and perhaps $20 worth of platinum.

Their system is to divers a small stream near the beach into the home-made a sluice box, wash out much sand as possible, then roll the remainder around in a miner's pan containing mercury. The mercury picks up the gold, which then is separated.

TELLS OF FLOWER SHOW IN READING

Paper by Mrs. Harold Belcher Vividly Describes Recent Boston Exhibit.

Members of the Manchester Garden club were entertained last evening by those who attended the Boston and New York flower shows in March, at the April meeting held at the Y. M. C. A.

Mrs. Burr had the privilege of a pre-view of the show at Mechanics hall, and assisted with some of the exhibits. She related a number of amusing incidents, as well as some that bordered on tragedy.

September at which Wirt was a guest. At no time during the dinner conversation," he said, "did anyone present make any mention whatever of anyone who had, or was presumed to have, any influence over Mr. Roosevelt."

There was no mention whatever of any "Kerensky of the revolution," Of Stalin, and there was nothing said concerning any movement to retard the Nation's recovery program.

"All through the dinner, Dr. Wirt himself, did most of the talking and the other guests, including myself, really had very little opportunity of expressing any views we might had had."

Dr. Wirt has a weird idea of the conversation at a dinner party, which was greatly amused to hundreds of others held in Washington every night at which general political and economic questions are discussed.

Todd has been a newspaper correspondent in Washington for different press associations and newspapers for nearly 20 years.

When informed by reporters of those mentioned who are personal in his organization, the secretary smiled and said: "Oh, yes, we've had a standing order around here for sometime to check everybody for bombs."

GOV CROSS 72 TODAY

Hartford, April 10.—(AP)—Governor Wilbur L. Cross observed his 72d birthday anniversary, but he did not allow the occasion to interfere with his official duties.

The chief executive, who took his first fling at politics in 1890 after retiring as dean of the Yale graduate school, reported for work at the Capitol as usual. State officials called on him to extend felicitations.

Anyone wishing to see the broadcast is invited to attend Thursday morning, the only provision being that guests be in their seats at the State Theater not later than 7:50 o'clock.

"CORN FED CUT UPS" ENTERTAIN CROWD

Minstrel Program at Concordia Lutheran Church Last Night Makes Hit.

Fred Werner and his "Corn-fed Cut-ups" had reason for alarm at the way the minstrel program on which they have put in a lot of rehearsal recently, was received last night at the Concordia Lutheran church. The audience taxed the seating capacity to the utmost, many were obliged, and willingly, to stand up throughout the show.

Tonight will be the last opportunity to enjoy the program at the church on Winter street, to hear the jokes by the end men, Oscar Anderson and Ernest Turck, the solos and the chorus numbers, and see the dances by Dorothy and William Gess.

NEW COURT FIGHT FACING DAIRYMEN

Proposed Production Control Program Is Set Up as Latest Target.

Hartford, April 10.—(AP)—Threat of a new court battle faced the milk industry today with the proposed production control program of the agricultural adjustment administration set up as the latest target.

The milk producer-dealers association formally placed itself on record as opposed to the federal plan of assessing a processing tax on all milk sold. Under the plan, revenue derived from the tax would be paid as benefits to farmers who cut their production for a year.

The association, which recently obtained a permanent injunction against the equalization plan of the State Milk Control Board, decided at a meeting last night to resort to a court injunction if necessary to stop the federal plan.

Support for the A. A. program providing that it is modified came, however, from Cicott F. King, state commissioner of agriculture.

"I am not satisfied," he said, "with the proposed plan and probably no dairymen in the east would give it his unqualified support in its present outline, but it does seem as though it offers the possibility through the incorporation of some changes of bringing an end to Connecticut's chaotic milk situation."

The milk producer-dealers association is authorized to support at a meeting in Philadelphia April 16, when eastern opponents of the federal plan will consider the plan.

FLEET IN TWO GROUPS ON WAY TO CANAL ZONE

With the U. S. Fleet off Lower California, Mexico, April 10.—(AP)—Divided into two great opposing fleets, the United States Navy "fought" its way toward the Panama Canal today in maneuvers which will carry the armada to the Atlantic coast.

In a separate movement to the Canal Zone, 15 naval seaplanes safely completed the first lap of a 2,800-mile flight from San Diego to Panama when they landed at La Paz last night. They were to leave today for Acapulco where a two-day stop was planned.

At sea the fighting force was divided into a "Blue" armada of tremendous strength and a fast striking "Brown fleet."

Cruising southward with momentary expectation of an engagement, the Blue fleet formed in battle array with three divisions of dreadnaughts in separate columns, followed by aircraft carriers, with destroyers encircling these floating fortresses and light cruisers far off each quarter as outpost guards.

This force was under command of Admiral Joseph Mason Reeves. The famous heavy cruiser scouting divisions of Vice Admiral Harris Laning, composing the chief striking power of Vice Admiral Frank M. Brumby's Brown fleet, were scattered over a wide area searching for the Blue battle line.

Some light cruisers, aircraft squadrons, submarines and destroyers completed the fighting units of the Brown navy.

The general movement of the 101 ships was toward the Panama Canal, where the fleet, joined by two aircraft base force ships from Acapulco and Corinto, will arrive a week from next Saturday.

The Montgolfer brothers were the first to experiment with balloons and made their first attempt on June 5, 1783.

POLICE COURT

Because he has a wife and six children, works steadily in the boiler room of the Hockanum mills in Rockville and never has been arrested for any offense before, leniency was shown Charles Gawlica, of 6 Stone street, Rockville, when arraigned before Judge Raymond Johnson in Police Court today on a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

Gawlica pleaded guilty to the charge and was fined $100 and costs, but $50 of the fine was remitted.

Counsel for Gawlica brought out that his client had consumed only four glasses of beer while he and his wife were visiting friends in Hartford. The Rockville man was arrested Saturday night by Policeman Joseph Prentice, who said he had followed his car from Buckland to North Main and Marble streets, where the arrest was made.

Michigan Man Hangs Self After Killing His Wife With a Claw Hammer.

Inlay City, Mich., April 10.—(AP)—Thomas Holt, 38, has ended in a noose the life he once offered to science.

Holt hanged himself, the coroner's verdict said, after killing his wife, Ruth, 38, with a claw-hammer. The bodies were found last night, Holt's swinging from a rope in a barn on his farm near here and his wife's in the farmhouse.

Several years ago, Holt offered his life to the University of Michigan medical school. The University declined the offer but gave him a job as a janitor in the medical building. Later he was made a laboratory assistant.

Coroner George Church said he believed the Holt couple had died Sunday night after a furious struggle in which Mrs. Holt fought for her life.

FERGUSON REJECTS LEVITT CHALLENGE

Lighting Company Head Says Professor's Recourse Would Be Libel Suit.

New London, April 10.—(AP)—In a letter to Samuel Ferguson, president of the Hartford Electric Light company and chairman of the Board of the Connecticut Power company, Albert Levitt, special assistant attorney general of the United States, has challenged the power company executive to another debate. The two men met in debate in this city last week.

During this debate Ferguson announced that he would immediately lower rates for electric current if Levitt could prove his charges that the company made excess profit of more than $700,000 after paying dividends. Ferguson announced today that he will not accept the challenge to another debate.

Mr. Ferguson, reached by telephone this morning, said he had not seen his mail today and hence had not received the Levitt communication. "If such a communication comes I will ignore it," he said. "I made my statement, subsequent to the debate at New London, explicit enough to be libelous if it is not true. His recourse would be a libel suit."

EAST HARTFORD STRIKES BEGIN

148 Workmen Walk Out of Hamilton Standard Propeller Shop Today.

Hartford, April 10.—(AP)—The first of a scheduled crippling series of strikes in the East Hartford airplane factories, which would completely tie up Connecticut's aviation center by Thursday morning, became a reality at 9 a. m. today, as 148 workmen walked out of the Hamilton Standard Propeller Company shop following refusal of employers to grant a 10 per cent increase to bring wages to the 1929 level. They went to work as usual, having warned the management that a walkout would come 24 hours after submission of demands at 9 a. m. Monday, if not met. A reporter counted 148 workmen passing out of the gate today. There was no demonstration. Continued refusal to meet demands will result in a group of the gear department of the Pratt and Whitney Aircraft Company tomorrow, and a complete crippling of that company and the Chance-Vought Corporation, Thursday, the workers' organization announced.

MCCONAUGHY RAPS STATE INSTITUTIONS

Says Adequate Care Has Not Been Provided for Mental Defectives.

Speaking last evening at the annual banquet of the Wethersfield Business Men's and Civic Association, President James L. McConaughy of Wesleyan University compared the principles of the Connecticut pioneers with present practices in Washington. He eulogized the convictions of the pioneers, who had faith in democracy in the face of graver problems than ours today. They condemned any form of dictatorship, whether in England or in Washington. They believed in individual rights and, said the speaker, would have opposed any codes to control their businesses and individual lives. They believed in education and were willing to make sacrifices for the support of the schools. They also held that society must care adequately for the unfortunate, and keep the delinquent from harming society.

President McConaughy expressed his regret at Connecticut's present niggardly policy toward the children and adults whom society must care for in institutions. "Pay as you go" is a fine policy, said the speaker, so, doubtless, is using all the automobile license money for roads, but when Connecticut refuses, because of legislative short-sightedness, to provide adequate care for its mental defectives, the public should know and should hold some one responsible.

"I am not criticizing any individual—certainly not the Governor, who knows these needs and wishes them met, nor the State Board of Finance, men of unusually high-minded devotion to the State's welfare. The whole group of men elected to represent us at Hartford last year are responsible, I believe, for a condition that Connecticut citizens should face. Certain children are so deficient, mentally and emotionally, that they are a liability to other children and to society. Nine hundred such have for years been on the waiting list for our state institutions, but they are full; at least four hundred are acute cases. One such child last month burned a million dollar public building in another State Capitol. There is no room in

The workers reiterated their demands for a 30 per cent wage increase and their willingness to negotiate with President John Whitehead.

"I get better than 19 miles to the gallon!"

"THEY built astonishing economy into that brilliant engine that powers my new 1934 Dictator," says Studebaker owner George E. Hickman.

"I give a car punishment. I take long trips and drive fast. And when I tell you that the 5,000 miles I covered in my new Dictator the first month didn't mean even five minutes' time out for an adjustment, you'll realize what a truly superb automobile this new Studebaker is.

"It has the style a 1934 car should have— attractive, not freakish, streamlining. And it handles easily under all conditions."

You too will be thrilled by the performance and value of the new Dictator. Whatever your plans or price ideas about a new car, make sure you take a Studebaker trial drive.

 AAA MILK SCHEME

Perhaps the AAA milk program is as well conceived, as rational and holds as much of potential benefit to the milk producers and as little injury to the consumer as any that could be built upon a foundation of reduced production. It is proposed to effect part of the reduction by a shift from grain to forage feeding, which is said to produce less but better milk; to provide for the distribution of surplus milk to needy children ($5,000,000 being provided for this); to eradicate tubercular cattle and to buy from the dairy herds five million dollars worth of healthy cows to be given to needy subsistence farmers. These are measures with much to recommend them.

But we do not believe, and we find it impossible to make ourselves believe, that this whole business of reduction of crops and lessened production of commodities of universal use is anything but utterly, fundamentally wrong.

When the Connecticut Milk Control Board or the AAA or somebody else can show us anything like credible evidence that more milk is being produced in this country than the people would consume if it were free—we do not mean the amount they would consume on the first two or three days of such a novel experience but the amount they would consume year by year if they could have it—then we shall stand ready to be converted to the reduction plan upon the establishment of proof of a surplus. But we know and everybody knows that the consumption of milk is limited not to the amount of it that people want or need but to the amount they can buy.

And so long as the men, women and children of this country have to go without milk that they need or cotton that they need or hog products that they need—or any other thing that they need—then it is our firm conviction that a government which proposes producing less of such things as a helpful measure, instead of trying its best to make it possible for the public to buy more, is on the wrong track and headed in the wrong direction.

Just what is it that this administration is aiming at—a national reduction of production so far that there will be a shortage and plenty of unemployed? Or a national recovery calculated to stop short at a point where only a few shall have plenty and the rest shall have less of milk, less of everything, than they need or want?

We don't believe that mere border line substance is going to satisfy the people of this country—ever again; nor that a policy which aims at limiting production to a semi-starvation "demand" is quite sane.

LEVITT MYSTERY
 Now let's see. We are anxious to keep this thing straight—perhaps it would be better to say "get" it straight.

Professor Levitt is emphatic that there is still an Independent Republican party, and that he is still one of its leaders. Then he has a plan to organize another party, which would get onto the ballot in this state next fall by the process of petition—a party yet to be named. Then, too, he has a plan to enlist into alliance with the Independent Republican party and this New Party, certain groups of regular Republicans which will be supposed to "bore from within," seeking to set up new leadership inside the G. O. P. itself.

Now this is a fairly complicated variety of political strategy standing by itself. But if we assume, as would seem to be inevitable, that Mr. Levitt expects to run all these shows, and when we recall that he is also an office holder in a Democratic administration, the effect is somewhat like the view in a kaleidoscope that has just been jostled by the kick of a mule. It is not merely difficult to see how the professor expects to maneuver these forces, once he gets them organized, but impossible to imagine what on earth can be his objective.

It was hard enough to understand how Professor Levitt, in 1932, could be an Independent Republican and a Republican at the same time. It became more involved when he became a Republican and an Independent Republican and a Democrat. But now that he is a Democrat and a Republican, an Independent Republican and the organizer and expected leader of a New Party all simultaneously, a London peacop fog is Colorado sunlight by comparison.

If the professor were merely a Democrat it wouldn't be particularly troublesome to understand his scheme of firing out the experienced G. O. P. leadership and supplanting it with amateurs and tyros. More than one partisan boss has put his party into power in city or state by flogging "borings from within" and demoralization in the opposing party. But the New Party device is a puzzle, since there is already the Independent Republican party as a refuge for beregged members of the G. O. P. and a New Party would be far more likely than not to draw disappointed Democrats almost entirely. Which wouldn't be such hot politics if the professor is merely interested in upsetting Republican control of this state.

It's really becoming a bit of a mystery whether Professor Levitt's activities really mean anything at all or whether he is just indulging in a passion—which he perhaps couldn't explain himself—for organizing parties; and grouches. Some people busy themselves very earnestly in just swallowing pins. Like the professor, however, they do not explain.

GLASS' VICTORY

The Senate Banking Committee's action in voting to take the administration of the Stock Exchange act away from the Federal Trade Commission and the Federal Reserve Board and place it in the hands of a new and independent commission, is being hailed with rejoicing in the Wall Street zone and received with dismay among those who have been hoping for genuine reform under the New Deal.

For our part we can see no cause for tears in the removal of the administration of the stock exchange laws from any connection with the Federal Reserve Board. Nor, by the same token, need administration by a separate commission, appointed by the President with Senate approval, necessarily result in the nullification of the benefits of the act. It is true that the separate commission idea was advanced by Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock Exchange, and was put over in the Banking Committee by Carter Glass, chief monetary and banking reactionary of the Senate, and these two facts are enough by themselves to make many folks suspicious.

But it will seem to many others that the reactionaries have taken considerable risk in advocating effectual control of the stock exchange by a small commission concerning whose personnel they can never be sure. No doubt Mr. Whitney and Mr. Glass and those other gentlemen who desire the smallest amount possible of interference with stock gambling feel quite sure that they could always manage to keep militant reformers—or even ordinary straight shooters—off that commission. But they might not. They might wake up some morning to the realization that the President had appointed a Stock Exchange Commission with a whole row of teeth for every little incisor in the mouth of the Federal Reserve Board. Of course, President Roosevelt, probably wouldn't, but he might.

And then again, there might be another President some day.

LABOR BOARD'S "OUT."

This newspaper said the other day that it would rather see, in the position of neutral member of the National Automobile Labor Board, some one—we cited some one like Marie Dressler—less closely associated with labor controversies than Dr. Leo Wolman, the President's appointee. Just as might have been anticipated, the attempt of the Labor Board to settle the strike of the employes of the Motor Products Company ran into major trouble, largely, it appears, because of feeling on the part of the workers against Dr. Wolman.

It is one of the penalties of becoming a proponent of labor organization that the person who does so is forever after estopped from adopting a neutral or judicial position in any matter in which organized labor is involved without risking the cry of "Judais!" if even once in a hundred instances he thinks capital is entitled to a break. Once a labor booster always a labor booster—or a traitor.

Organized labor is chronically capable of entertaining a more friendly feeling for some day-and-night enemy who has fought it at every turn all his life and who has been ruthless and unfair in his fighting, than for him who, once known as a "friend of labor," even though he has won for labor any number of benefits, in a single instance shall suggest that labor is in the wrong and the employer in the right. That was the weakness of Wolman's position as the independent member of the Labor Board. It ought to have been apparent, we should say, to Mr. Roosevelt.

If the Automobile Labor Board is to function its neutral member should be not only a neutral in fact but in, as well, the understanding of laborites and employers alike.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

Do We Starve? Is Query of Strikers Berkeley Is Senate Bellowing King . . . So They'll Get No New Postoffices . . . Bootleggers Turn To Counterfeiting.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
 The Herald's Washington Correspondent.

Washington, April 10.—If you want to know what most of these labor troubles are all about, just gaze upon a few excerpts from a letter addressed to the White House representatives of 800 strikers at the Harriman Hosiery Mills in Harriman, Tenn.:

"We have been trying to bargain collectively since last October. When the Labor Board . . . (held the company) . . . had violated Section 7-a, the company's reply was that it would do nothing and awaited action by the courts.

"The company had this brazen proposal: 'Why don't you strikers just go on being strikers? You have federal relief. That is fine and you, National Labor Board, just let us all alone.'

"What we want to ask you, Mr. President, is this, and though we know you're a heavily over-worked man, we propose to stay at your door until we get an answer: Suppose the board does send this case to the Compliance Board, where it sent Budd's case long ago, or to the Federal Board of Conciliation, where it sent Weir's case December 18 and then again two weeks ago.

"We understand it may take six months to a year before the Supreme Court would get through with such a case.

"What are workers who really believe your administration's laws and acts on collective bargaining last June—workers like us—to do? You told us to take our demands for collective bargaining to the board and many of us have had to go on strike to get our demands really considered.

"When we do that, must we get ready at the same time to settle down to a year's starvation battle? Our courts in Harriman have thrown us in jail, some apparently for being witnesses before your National Labor Board. . . . If your present governmental powers are hapless, then tell us.

"Our people still have enormous faith in you, but men and women who have had five months of being beaten down and pauperized deserve a plain answer."

(The case has been referred to the Compliance Board and the Department of Justice.)

King of Bellowses
 Senator Barkley of Kentucky has the most powerful lungs in the Senate—and that's no mean distinction. His only rival is Huey Long in some of Huey's most impassioned moments.

Barkley proved his right to the following title beyond doubt, storekeepers of Pennsylvania avenue half a mile away agreed, when he defended the right of Democrats to patronage pie in opposition to the successful Norris amendment, which barred political considerations in appointments to the Home Loan system.

So No New Postoffices
 Hundreds of towns are demanding: "Where's that new postoffice we were going to get?" Often they ask Congressmen who made promises. The Congressmen find all kinds of excuses.

A prominent citizen in a mid-western town writes to say that the Congressman stirred up a new post office there, that postal inspectors came, and that PWA actually allocated the building.

But he believes local landlords, who want to keep renting quarters to the government, secretly had it blocked.

The PWA answer, which may be typical, is that this is a town of 6,000 whose postal revenues and population were found to be decreasing. Rent now costs $1,800 a year, whereas carrying charges on the new building would be $8,000. So, said Mr. Tokes, what the heck?

Leggers Turn Cothens
 Watch those $10 bills! Many bootleggers have gone out of business and their disappearance from the liquor trade has been followed by a boom in the counterfeiting industry.

The Secret Service suspects a connection. It thinks some criminal elements must have made elaborate preparations, as much of the bad money is hard to detect and even passes through the banks to the Federal Reserve banks before it is spotted.

A Big Stick Policy the Entire Country Will Soon Endorse

HEALTH-DIET ADVICE

By DR. FRANK McCOY
 Questions in regard to Health and Diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

EAT WHEAT
 In today's article, I am going to try to answer your questions about what kind of bread to eat and when it may be used in the diet of a person in good health.

For the man or woman doing hard manual work, who is in good health, I strongly recommend the genuine wheat bread, prepared from the entire grain. This kind of bread may be labeled in several different ways and may be called "100 per cent whole wheat bread," "entire whole wheat bread," etc. When buying your bread, look closely at the label and you will be able to pick out the kind that I recommend, made from the real whole . . . grain, to which nothing has been added and from which nothing has been taken away. This means that the bran, the vitamin, and the mineral elements which Nature put in the grain have all been left in.

A loaf baked from the real whole wheat flour has a delicious satisfying flavor different from any other kind of bread. When you eat it, you are getting an honest food in a form which is most easily and most completely absorbed in feeding human beings for thousands of years.

As a rule a loaf of whole wheat bread is of a dark, rich brown color, but the color of the loaf will vary as the wheat varies. The light or dark wheat was used and you can not depend entirely on the color of the loaf to guide you.

In eating wheat in the form of this 100 per cent whole wheat bread, it is advisable to correctly combine it with other foods. As this bread is a starch, it combines well with non-starchy vegetables and one good way to use the bread is in lunch. With it you may use cooked non-starchy vegetables such as carrots or string beans and a generous salad.

You who must pack lunches each day will be glad to know that whole wheat bread may be used in preparing sandwiches. When you get ready to pack your lunch tomorrow morning, I want you to go into the kitchen, get out a loaf of entire wheat bread and spread it with butter and peanut butter, tuck in a leaf of lettuce and the sandwich is ready to be wrapped to go in the lunch. Or, get out the cheese, cut up medium sized slices of medium American cheese and place the cheese between two layers of real whole wheat bread. If you are in good health, I prescribe an occasional cheese and entire wheat bread combination. I mention this for the reason that I have had many letters recently which ask about this particular combination.

Another desirable kind of whole wheat product is whole wheat macaroni or spaghetti. Both may be obtained through a health food store. I also highly recommend the many different breakfast foods prepared from the entire grain. The whole wheat shredded biscuits which are put up in packaged form are especially desirable. Break these biscuits open, re-toast under the broiler, pour over hot water, season with butter and eat with a spoon and I am sure you will enjoy the rich whole wheat flavor. Another wholesome breakfast food is the "puffed" grain, and I note that there are additional whole wheat breakfast cereals now on the market, using the entire grain, all of which I recommend. One of the cheapest breakfast foods is the cleaned wheat, cooked until the grains burst open and served with milk or cream. An entire family may have a meal of this wheat for about three cents. In spite of being inexpensive it provides you with a nourishing and healthful breakfast meal.

GIARDIASIS
 Question: Mrs. C. O. L. of Salt Lake City, Utah, writes: "The doctor says that a friend of mine has a disease called 'Giardiasis'. Could you please give me a little information on the subject?"

Answer: "Giardiasis" is also called Flagellate Diarrhea and is a chronic infection which occurs in the small intestines, and occasionally occurs in the liver and gall bladder. The patient will probably notice attacks of stomach trouble, and may suffer from diarrhea which alternates with constipation. There is usually anemia, together with a poor appetite and as the disease progresses, the patient may become weak and lose weight. The patient is also easily irritated and frequently becomes extremely nervous. The disease is caused by Giardia Intestinalis which is a parasite infecting the small intestines but which occasionally finds its way into the gall bladder or liver. As a general rule the disorder is more common in children than in adults, but may be found in those who are grown.

HARELIP
 Question: Mrs. C. I. M., Janesville, Wis., writes: "What is a Harelip?"

Answer: A harelip is a congenital deformity, that is, the baby is born with it and it is due to the fact that certain parts of the face have not grown together properly during the period before birth. As a general rule such defects must be remedied by means of an operation, and I advise that the operation be performed as early as possible as the younger the child, the better the results. No known cause has ever been discovered. There is some reason to believe that heredity plays a small part in the development of such defects. However, this has never been adequately proved or disproved.

THIS TOWN HAS LEVIED NO TAXES SINCE 1931
 Municipal Operation of Electric Light and Power Plant, Also Waterworks, Reason.

Skanateles, N. Y., April 10.—Skanateles has $98,288.10 in cash on hand for operation of its government and has not levied one cent in taxes since 1931. In addition, $48,000 in bonds were sold for a special street improvement and purchased by the community's own agencies, represent the village's only indebtedness.

The answer to the village's healthy financial condition is found in profitable venture into municipal operation of an electric light and power plant, waterworks and cemetery. The Municipal Electric Light Bureau increased its earnings for 1933, the thirty-fourth year of operation, and started the new year with $49,321 in cash, according to the treasurer's report. The plant is debt free. The cemetery commissioner's report disclosed a cash balance of $17,842.42 and an additional $65,000 in a trust fund. The water department ended 1933

IN NEW YORK

By PAUL HARRISON
 New York, April 10.—There must be some kind of negative moral to be plucked from the contrasting stories of Baron Mario Giorgio Suriani and Prince Michael Romanoff.

Prince Mike, you may recall, is neither a Romanoff, a prince or even a Russian. Yet he has lived on the fat of the land, even in jail; has traveled far in luxury and for nothing; and for years was virtually subsidized by various prominent people who were amused by his brazen impostering.

Baron Suriani on the other hand, not only is an Italian and a Suriani but is generally believed to be a genuine baron. Yet he hasn't had a nickel's worth of luck—and through no fault of his imagination, either, or lack of press agents. As long ago as 1926 he was an acknowledged member of the foreign nobility so generously scattered around New York, and got into all the papers with an announcement of his engagement to Miss Gertrude Vanderbilt, a dancer and actress.

Something cooled the romance, and by 1928 the Baron was offering to marry any eligible woman for a flat payment of $100,000. But he had been a bit too frank about revealing his motive, and there were no takers. He did get engaged, though, for no monetary consideration, to a few more actresses. By 1931 there was an announcement that he had inherited $250,000 from a titled uncle. Apparently there was a hitch somewhere, because another year found him organizing a gigolo union with headquarters at a Manhattan taxi dance palace. Still later he tried to form an association of needy noblemen. None, however, was quite so needy as the Baron, so another project failed.

Scheme That Failed
 One cold night the Baron's insatiable craving for publicity led him to submit to being bound, gagged and laid athwart a sidewalk near Grant's Tomb. His pockets empty anyway, were turned inside-out, and after being discovered he was to recount a harrowing tale of being robbed of a fabulous sum. The stunt had been planned with such finesse that at the police station the Baron was to demand two dollars for taxi fare, declaring haughtily that he wouldn't dream of riding home in a common subway that would be a sure-fire gag for the tabloids.

After an alarmingly long time a patrolman stumbled over the half-frozen Baron and led him to a district station. Through blue lips he told his story, made a futile request for taxi fare, but finally joined his accomplices in a midtown hotel to sit up the rest of the night waiting for the morning papers. There wasn't a word in any of them about the Baron. The schemers had been unfortunate enough to choose the one night in that or any other year when a new police commissioner had suppressed, experimentally, all news of petty crime.

A very unlucky man, the Baron. The other evening he went around to some of the night clubs trying to get a job as a waiter. Nobody hired him.

Pardon the Error
 It develops that the famous Hollywood satire, "Once in a Lifetime" wasn't all fiction, after all. Al Thomas, playwright, has been revealed as one of the originals about whom the show was built. He had been in the film capital for months, drawing a fat salary in a scenario department but doing no work at all. Finally another company got in touch with him, promising a $200-a-week raise and an opportunity to get some writing done.

He accepted, went into a huddle with the big executives, and was put to work on a script. He finished in his release from idleness he worked at top speed for ten weeks. He also was pretty tickled about the way the scenario was shaping up. Finally he finished and took the pile of manuscript in to the executives. One of them looked at the first page and got almost apoplectic.

"Somebody," he yelled, "gave you the wrong script. 'This one was filmed two years ago.'" with a balance of $11,730.18. The electric plant maintains 240 street lamps. When the $48,000 bonds were issued the electric light bureau took $21,000 of the issue and the cemetery negotiated the remainder.

Texas is larger than Germany.

URGE ADOPTION OF CREDIT CODE

Local Stores to Meet Tomorrow Night to Hear Details of Proposal.

An attempt to bring about the adoption of a Retail Credit Code by local merchants will be made at a meeting to be held tomorrow evening at 8:30 o'clock at the Hotel Sheridan, at which George Flynn, secretary of the Bridgeport Credit Rating Bureau, will speak under the auspices of the Manchester Retail Credit Association, of which John E. Dwyer of the Manchester Rating and Collection Bureau, Inc., is executive head.

The Retail Credit Code, which it is said has been installed in all the large cities and towns of the state, would eliminate unlimited and excessive credit by placing business on a more strictly cash basis. The entire credit situation will be thoroughly discussed by Mr. Flynn and invitations have been issued to local merchants to attend the meeting.

Will Be Presented in Hollister St. School on May 8 and 9.

Although regular tickets were placed on sale yesterday for the annual Kiwanis show for the benefit of the Kiddies Camp at Hebron, reserved seats will not be available until next Monday, it was announced today by William B. Halstead, chairman of the Kiwanis committee in charge of the show.

The show, in which the Community Players will assist, will be presented at the Hollister street school hall on Tuesday and Wednesday, May 8 and 9. A burlesque of the Gay Nineties, it is titled "There's Gold in Them Thar Hills." The first rehearsal of Kiwanis taking part in the production will be held at Watkins auditorium on Oak street at 12 o'clock noon tomorrow. A buffet lunch will be served and it is important that all members taking part in the show be present.

GIRLS CLUB TO GIVE FASHION SHOW HERE

Friendly Society of St. Mary's Church to Have Entertainment Monday Night.

The regular monthly devotional service of the Girls' Friendly Society of St. Mary's church was held last evening at 7:30. The junior choir attended this service. The business meeting followed with Edith Thrasher in charge. Minutes of the last regular meeting were read by Valette Turner, younger members secretary. There will be a conference for all G. F. S. leaders at Christ Church Cathedral on Friday and Saturday, April 13 and 14. The meeting will be at 7:00 on Friday, and at 8:30 and 7:30 on Saturday. Miss Booth will speak at this time and her subject will be "Planning Programs." Anyone intending to go to this conference should get in touch with Ethel Madson.

Tickets were distributed for the three-act play to be given on May 11 under the joint auspices of the Girls' Friendly Society and the Young People's Fellowship. Final plans were completed for the Fashion Show which will be held next Monday evening at the parish house. A feature of the program will be a novelty tap dance by Billy and Dorothy Gess. Candy will be sold during the evening. An invitation is being extended to the Ladies Guild and the Women's Auxiliary to attend this affair.

On May 2, the candidates will present an entertainment in the parish house which will consist of a short sketch entitled "The Minister's New Car" and other features. Due to the resignation of Mary Law as secretary, Florence Cockerham was elected to that office. A cabinet meeting was held following the business meeting. At this time plans were discussed for the annual Mother's Day Daughters' banquet which will be held during the month of May.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the following committee: Mary Robinson, Judith Kilpatrick, Eleanor Keish, Margaret Ubrich and Helen Hyde.

OPEN FORUM

BETTER FILMS. Editor of The Evening Herald: Will you kindly publish the following answers to the questions asked by "Interested" in your paper on April 8 regarding the Better Films Council?

Their primary object is to bring better and more suitable films, especially on Saturday afternoons and during school vacations when the greater part of the audience is composed of children. About a year ago an appeal was sent to all local women's organizations asking them to send a representative to a meeting at which time this local council was organized.

This appeal met with splendid results and much enthusiasm, but lately the attendance at the meetings has fallen off and those trying to carry on are wondering if these organizations are losing interest.

The Better Films Council is not a new organization by any means, having been organized several years ago, and having branches throughout the country.

LIFE IMPRISONMENT FOR 3 HOLDUP MEN

Killed East Hartford Grocer—Fourth Member of Gang Is Believed to Be Insane.

Hartford, April 10.—(AP)—William Warren, 26, Robert Bates, 19, negroes, and Salvatore Spagna, 30, of Hartford were sentenced to life imprisonment today by Judge Allyn L. Brown in the Superior Court on pleas of guilty to second degree murder.

The death of Abraham Klein, an East Hartford grocer, who was shot in a holdup on February 3 and died February 10 in the Hartford hospital is the crime for which these three young men will spend their lives in prison. James Sazano the fourth member of the holdup party, who is said to be insane at present will be given a hearing in the court tomorrow in his sanity. This young man has been under the surveillance of Dr. Burlington and Dr. Wedman of Hartford and Dr. Wetherman of the state hospital at Norwich.

The ROMANTIC RUNAWAY

KATHARINE HAVILAND-TAYLOR

BEGIN HERE TODAY

PABLITO, a handsome youth, becomes a fugitive when he flees from Key West to Havana with BEAU and LOTTIE, two thieves. Pablito has been accused of a murder he did not commit. MARCIA TREADWAY, socially prominent, could prove he is innocent but fears scandal.

Pablito is in love with ESTELLE FIELD, daughter of rich JIM FIELD. In Havana, under the name "Juanito," he becomes celebrated as a boxer and he and Beau open a gymnasium.

SIR AUBREY, a titled Englishman and Pablito's father, is searching for his son, employing Billings, New York detective.

The years pass and then Pablito sees Estelle again. They admit their love for each other and meet secretly until Estelle's father hears of it. He tells her she must break off with Pablito or he will turn the young man over to police on the old murder charge. Estelle agrees.

Meanwhile Billings, convinced Pablito is Sir Aubrey's son, sets to work to prove him innocent of the murder charge.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXV

Pablito, returning from town that afternoon, raised his eyes from the dusty road to see an Englishman who appeared to be wandering aimlessly.

"Are you looking for the gymnasium?" he asked.

"No, I'm waiting for a friend who is doing a bit of sparring. Are you (the Englishman eyed the young man intently) Juanito? I mean Senor Juanito?" Pablito answered.

"I'm Juanito," Pablito answered. He liked the appearance of this stranger. He had never seen anyone quite like him before at the gymnasium. Nevertheless he was rather surprised to hear him say "Juanito" to my care to come to my rooms to wait for your friend? I'd be glad to have you."

"Thank you," Sir Aubrey answered. "You're most kind."

"I live over that shop," Pablito explained with a wave of his hand. "Foghorn they crossed the road and went up the long stairway. At the top Sir Aubrey looked about.

"Snug place you have here," he said approvingly.

"A little bare," Pablito answered. "Ah, well, a man's castle, I hear you're in a bit for boring?"

"A bit," Pablito answered, smiling. Then he asked, "Will you have a drink?"

Sir Aubrey murmured, "Ah, thank you, awfully." That would be good, you know."

Pablito rang a small hand bell and a slovenly criada appeared.

"What is it?" Pablito asked Sir Aubrey.

"En? What?" the other questioned.

"I mean what'll you have?" Pablito translated.

"Oh, I see. A whiskey and soda?"

"I'll have one with you," Pablito agreed. "It will be a rare treat for me. I take a drink only about once a year. Have to go slow to keep in training, you know."

"Oh, quite."

Pablito felt suddenly warmed for the first time since he had received Estelle's note. The look in Englishman's eyes were fixed on the youth unmovingly. They were frankly, almost pitifully affectionate eyes. Pablito was conscious of a strange feeling that most people have known at one time or another—a feeling that makes it seem as if living, we have stepped into an unreal dream.

"Hang it!" he thought. "What's come over me?" To the stranger he said, "Is this your first trip to Cuba?"

"No, I've been here once before."

"Lives it here?"

"No. To be frank, I don't like it much. Have you ever been in England?"

"No," Pablito answered.

"Ah, you must come. You must come." The criada appeared as Sir Aubrey was speaking, bringing glasses, a symphon and a squat, brown bottle on a tarnished tray. She set the tray on the table and disappeared from the room. There was the bubbling spurt from the syphon and Pablito tendered Sir Aubrey his drink. He was surprised to note that the older man's hand shook. He had thought him to be "in good shape."

Glass in hand, Pablito motioned Sir Aubrey to a chair and then sat down himself. Sir Aubrey began to speak of England—the hedges, the lanes, the order and quiet. He spoke of houses which grew more beautiful as they were lived in year after year; of great trees; of all that was to him most beautiful in the land of his fathers, the only land where he could do more than exist.

"I think I'd like it," Pablito said as Sir Aubrey's voice dropped away. "Some times it seems to me that all my life I've been hunting a sort of permanence which is always just out of reach. I haven't had much—go on."

He saw Sir Aubrey's eyes fill and was surprised and embarrassed by the sight.

"You must come—whenever you're over there—to visit me at my place at Lower Girtlings," Sir Aubrey said with a shaken eagerness. He set his glass on the tray again because the increased trembling of his hand did not permit him to hold it steadily. This boy was his son! This splendidly strong, tall youth with the steady, even look. He wanted intensely to lay his arm across Pablito's broad shoulders. Instead he must sit and sip his drink. Some day, however—if God was kind—some day—

"Refreshing," he said as he finished the whiskey and soda. "No end refreshing. Thank you awfully. You—enjoy living here?"

"Oh, I guess so," Pablito answered slowly. He added with more energy in his tone, "I like Cuba."

"You know, I'm keenly interested in Cuban houses—"

"Want to look over this apartment?" Pablito offered.

"Oh, I say, that's no end kind of you—if you don't mind?"

"This is my sleeping room," Pablito said a few minutes later. Sir Aubrey paused at the doorway.

A little later he and Pablito stood at the door of the gymnasium to meet the perspiring and anguished Billings. Seeing Billings, Pablito smiled for the first time since the ache had settled in his heart the night before.

"Your friend doesn't seem too happy," he said.

"Oh, he's all right," Sir Aubrey guffawed loudly. Later as he and Billings were about to leave Sir Aubrey clung to Pablito's hand.

"I hope you'll come again," Pablito said, a trifle ill at ease.

"As friends," Billings promised after a groan. "As friends!"

As atoms spring together after separation and as certain elements in chemical laboratories can not be kept apart, so human groups seem destined to interweave.

Jim Field suggested to Marcia Treadway that she become a member of a group he was inviting for a yacht cruise. "I've got to get Estelle away," he said with a deepening of the worried line that was now almost permanently etched between his coarse heavy eyebrows.

"I've got to divert her."

"She has rather a one-track mind, I'm afraid," Marcia stated.

"Um—I don't know. She's young."

"Well, she'll have to get over it. She'll have to. How about it, Marcia, will you come?"

"I haven't anything else to do," she answered, thereby accepting the invitation.

"I'm going to take young Alec David," Jim Field went on. "I hope I hope very much that he and Estelle will make a match of it."

"So you're beginning that?" she questioned with a lazy smile.

"Well, help it along where you can," he entreated. "You can do that much, can't you?"

"Oh, I suppose so," she agreed.

Carlito, another human atom of the group of which Jim Field was the center, heard of the sailing of the Field yacht. His mother, a toothless old crone, told him about it as they sat in her kitchen. She was holding Carlito's son in her arms.

"Already," she said, relief making her tone bright, "they are well at sea!"

"But he will come back," said Carlito who had sworn vengeance with all the hot fury of which a Latin is capable.

"Ah, my son!" the old woman murmured sadly. Carlito made no answer. Again in his mind he was stooping over his young wife who had lain in the dust. Again he was calling her futilely, again feeling her growing coldness within his arms.

"See the child!" said Carlito's mother. "He is to be a strong boy who will give you much happiness."

Carlito looked absently at his son who, with Field, had killed her. He would go to Field when the man was alone. He would torture him a little while and then—Carlito smiled and his mother, seeing the smile, was heartened. "Ah," she said, lifting the baby, "there is much in the world—even for the sorriest of us—to make the life of the lips."

"Yes," Carlito agreed. "Each of us has his dream!"

Along about this time of year, the homemaker is ready to throw up her hands in despair. No one will eat. The roast that was such a favorite dish with the entire family in December goes begging now. And the stew—well, just try and get anyone, even Dad with his hearty appetite, to touch a bit of it. So something has to be done to preserve both peace and health in the family.

Green vegetables and fresh, crisp salads are the perfect substitutes for the heartier recipes of mid-winter. Try serving vegetable plates for dinner at least twice a week. And for luncheon, varying the old combina-

Good as a Spring Tonic, This Gelatin Salad of Carrot and Cabbage

A carrot and cabbage salad is the main course will do wonders to improve lagging appetites.

Heredity must be mentioned. It has nothing to do with a gangster's son being a gangster. It deals with Old Lady Nature, herself.

She says, "I can do better with these human offsprings of mine if I treat them as I do my other animals in the beginning. They shall inherit the same general characteristics of their species. That means that calves of all time have had the characteristics of cows, kittens of cats, and so on. There are Jersey cows and Guernseys and Aldernays, therefore their offspring will have the general characteristics of their parents. The kittens of Angora cats will be Angoras." And so we have racial characteristics.

Factor of Heredity

Just how far this heredity goes in the individual has not been settled. There are many of the learned who turn from the word with utter contempt. Again there are those more inclined to lend an ear and concede that some inclinations are directly inherited.

As it happens, the analogy between human beings and animals can be carried only so far. The human has a mind that probably outclasses the sum total of all other animal minds put together.

One thing has been about proved, that although children react as a class to about the same things, NO TWO CHILDREN are alike. This is more noticeable after the sixth year, but even before that any mother can tell us the truth.

But Mother Nature has another trick up her sleeve.

It is right in the cradle that the baby makes his choice of how he can best beat the game. Poor little soul, he doesn't know it, but he's either going to find it easier to get the most out of life by appealing to his senses, or by more or less bulldozing his way as he goes. A few "behaviorists" refute this and insist that all children can be "conditioned" alike. This theory has fewer supporters than formerly.

Be that as it may, there are two major classes of people in the world, those who find mental content and happiness in subordinating their wills to others, and those who will never be satisfied unless they can control events and people about them. This choice is made so early in life it is difficult to tell when it begins.

"Good" vs. "Bad"

There is no difference from a "good" and "bad" standpoint. It does make all the difference in the world about "behavior," however.

As a rule children are a normal mixture, and so are adults, but in the last analysis, the characteristics are pure either one way or the other.

The little chap who decides that he can manage life better by being dominant is going to have a tough time of it. He will probably end up as a miser, he turns his "force" of his will be beaten down, for we love to discipline rather than guide. Being active he will be experimental and "try anything once."

And that means trouble. He will be called a bad boy.

His parents will very probably try to curb and control him rather than find him energy outlets. His impulses can be turned to enormous good, but if misdirected and frustrated, this is a terrible thing to let loose on a world because impulses turned back on themselves become the extremes of maturity. It is this strong-willed child who is one of our greatest problems. He needs an understanding heart if ever any one did.

Are Women Their Own Worst Enemies?

By HELEN WELSHIMER

Life in the kitchen to some women is no more stimulating than a long-handled mop. The march of events in an office, to other members of the sex, holds about as much appeal as a piece of carbon paper that did its repetitious duty.

Strange, isn't it, that when women have had to fight so ardently for economic parity, education, suffrage... things which were always considered the divine right of their older and younger brothers... that we hasten to two flags and erect two camps?

It is true, though. Women whose natural ability and instinct draw them into homemaking exclusively often fail to understand why some other women find supreme joy with a medical kit, a brief case, a typewriter or a schoolroom as their medium of service. Those same misunderstood women fail to take off their aprons and join the business parade.

After all, why can't we have two groups without having two flags, two calls to arms, two sets of principles to go all up to the hilt and fight for? Not all men want to do the same type of work. Why should women?

Germany, at the beginning of the movement which tended to make every man's wife his housekeeper, and not an economic equal, discovered that women were opposed to

Quickly New and Important

You will find this frock suitable for almost any occasion that your day brings forth. Significant are its shapely bretelles and princess lines.

Wool, velvet or crepe are effective ideas for the modish and practical frock illustrated here. You can get it in five sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 38 requires 4-1/2 yards of 39 inch material plus 6 yards of 1-1/2 inch bias binding.

To secure a pattern and simple sewing chart of this model, tear out this sketch and mail it to Julia Boyd, 103 Park Avenue, New York, N. Y., together with 15 cents in coin. Be sure to enclose, on a separate sheet of paper, your name, full address, your size, the number of this pattern (No. 3608x), and mention the name of this newspaper.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Every child on earth works a racket.

To explain this it is again necessary to go back to beginnings.

Heredity must be mentioned. It has nothing to do with a gangster's son being a gangster. It deals with Old Lady Nature, herself.

She says, "I can do better with these human offsprings of mine if I treat them as I do my other animals in the beginning. They shall inherit the same general characteristics of their species. That means that calves of all time have had the characteristics of cows, kittens of cats, and so on. There are Jersey cows and Guernseys and Aldernays, therefore their offspring will have the general characteristics of their parents. The kittens of Angora cats will be Angoras." And so we have racial characteristics.

Factor of Heredity

Just how far this heredity goes in the individual has not been settled. There are many of the learned who turn from the word with utter contempt. Again there are those more inclined to lend an ear and concede that some inclinations are directly inherited.

As it happens, the analogy between human beings and animals can be carried only so far. The human has a mind that probably outclasses the sum total of all other animal minds put together.

One thing has been about proved, that although children react as a class to about the same things, NO TWO CHILDREN are alike. This is more noticeable after the sixth year, but even before that any mother can tell us the truth.

But Mother Nature has another trick up her sleeve.

It is right in the cradle that the baby makes his choice of how he can best beat the game. Poor little soul, he doesn't know it, but he's either going to find it easier to get the most out of life by appealing to his senses, or by more or less bulldozing his way as he goes. A few "behaviorists" refute this and insist that all children can be "conditioned" alike. This theory has fewer supporters than formerly.

Be that as it may, there are two major classes of people in the world, those who find mental content and happiness in subordinating their wills to others, and those who will never be satisfied unless they can control events and people about them. This choice is made so early in life it is difficult to tell when it begins.

"Good" vs. "Bad"

There is no difference from a "good" and "bad" standpoint. It does make all the difference in the world about "behavior," however.

As a rule children are a normal mixture, and so are adults, but in the last analysis, the characteristics are pure either one way or the other.

The little chap who decides that he can manage life better by being dominant is going to have a tough time of it. He will probably end up as a miser, he turns his "force" of his will be beaten down, for we love to discipline rather than guide. Being active he will be experimental and "try anything once."

And that means trouble. He will be called a bad boy.

His parents will very probably try to curb and control him rather than find him energy outlets. His impulses can be turned to enormous good, but if misdirected and frustrated, this is a terrible thing to let loose on a world because impulses turned back on themselves become the extremes of maturity. It is this strong-willed child who is one of our greatest problems. He needs an understanding heart if ever any one did.

When a woman loves... ADAPTED BY LUCY HUFFAKER FROM THE DRILL PLAY BY EDWARD GOSWOLD A LITTLE GOLDWYN-MAYERS PICTURE

CHAPTER VIII

FOREWORD

Tommy, seriously injured from his leap, is taken to the hospital. Mary, unaware of what has happened, is visited by the police, who believed he jumped from her room. She rushes to the hospital. Tommy asks her to kiss him. She does as he might kiss a sick child. A correspondent of a New York sensational paper has sneaked in after her and snaps the picture. She telephones Lord Rexford she may be involved in a sensational story. He tells her he sympathizes with her and will understand.

Despite Lord Rexford's assurance to Mary that he would understand the whole matter, he was furious when the sensation broke. He had not reckoned with the lengths to which the scandal sheets would go. He was so harassed by reporters asking him for statements that he had difficulty doing his work.

Mary, learning that Tommy would be up and about in a short time, left Cannes at once for London. She wanted the security and quiet of home; she wanted to be with her small daughter Pamela. She must compose herself before her husband arrived.

As soon as Tommy was able to travel, he went to London. He was genuinely sorry for the trouble he had caused Mary. Wild he was, but without decency and aside from his infatuation for Mary, he had a real and deep affection for her. He would have wired her telegrapher. But he received no answer to any of his messages.

Mary was in a panic the day of Philip's arrival. Over and over she told herself he had promised her to understand. Again and again she assured herself she had done nothing really wrong. But it was all in vain. Never had she received so much from the loved her husband until the ter-

"I didn't let myself think — I didn't dare to."

"Which means that you did think — that you did doubt me. Oh Philip, how could you — after our love for each other — after five years — after Pamela —"

"What made him think he could come to your room?"

"He was drunk. I wouldn't let him in when he banged on the door. I wouldn't answer when he phoned the room. That is why he tried to jump to my balcony. It may have been indiscreet, under the circumstances for me to go to my hospital. But you, Philip, are sure, would stand by an old friend when he was in trouble — perhaps near death — no matter what he had done. The kiss which that sneak reported snuffed, was one of friendship only and of forgiveness for what he had done. If only Erskine or I had had presence of mind enough to smash the camera — or to buy the plate, it wouldn't have been so incriminating."

"What had gone before?" Philip demanded. "Why did he come to your room? What made him think you would admit him?"

"I wrote you all that — everything. I told you of the party. I admitted we had been foolish and over-joyed. I had been having a good time. It all seemed innocent to me, as it was. Then when he kissed me, I was panic-stricken — and I ran away."

"Very interesting!" he said in a sarcastic tone.

"Philip! I've told you the truth and it has not been easy. I didn't want to tell you but it is your right to know everything. It also is my only fair thing to do. After all, it was only a kiss — and you might have had grounds for a divorce."

"Was just thinking that."

"Blame me in the face — why don't you shout! Knock me down! Kill me! Anything but this."

Philip had risen from his chair and saying he had important matters to attend to with his secretary, started for the door. Mary blocked

"I caused you both great trouble and I want to apologize," said Tommy.

for smote her heart that she might be losing him forever.

There was so much excitement at his arrival — Pamela in high spirits at seeing her father again, reporters that meant important messages which needed immediate attention, which any real talk between husband and wife had to be postponed.

She had arranged that they should dine alone in her sitting room before the fire. She had given great thought to the dinner, which consisted of his favorite dishes. She wore her most becoming gown. She was setting the table well, she told herself bitterly. While Philip was disposing of the pressing business, she went to the nursery. She always sat with Pamela, she had her supper and was put to bed, but tonight she stayed longer than usual.

She adored the child, as did Philip. Surely, she told her anxious heart, that was a bond between them that must hold through anything and everything.

They could talk of casual things while she waited for him. But when the servants had left them alone in the room, they could put off no longer the one thing which was on both their minds. In answer to Mary's saying she wanted to explain a few things, Philip answered brusquely that if she was referring to anything about the Cannes episode, he did not want to hear it.

"But you must," Philip's Mary cried. "It is not fair to me not to listen."

"Mary, how could you get mixed up with anything like this Treat chap? It's all so mucky — and those awful stories in the Sunday supplements — pictures of women who had been in his life — and my wife's with a question mark over it?"

"It must have been horrible for you, Philip. I can't tell you how sorry I am, how ashamed that I did anything, however innocently, to bring you such mortification. It has almost killed me."

There was a silence. Then Mary gasped suddenly: "Philip, you never thought for one moment, did you, that I was one of Tommy's adventures?"

Daily Health Service

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN.
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Your community officials can protect you and your neighbors against Amebic dysentery in several effective ways.

Much depends on having a properly guarded water supply, a proper disposal of sewage, protection of food from flies, and suitable examination and treatment of waiters, cooks, dishwashers and other food handlers in public eating places.

Chlorination of water will sterilize it against bacteria, but it takes 100 times as much chlorine to kill the cysts of the entameba histolytica as it does to kill bacteria in water. In fact, the addition of this amount of chlorine would make the water unfit for drinking.

Therefore, whenever water is contaminated heavily with entameba histolytica, the only way to make it safe is to boil it, obviously a difficult matter for any city water supply.

In controlling food handlers, they should be examined at fairly frequent intervals, and their excretions should be tested in the laboratory to rule out the presence of the organism.

Following the outbreak which occurred in Chicago, most large cities developed a series of rules regarding examination of food handlers.

Fortunately, several methods of treatment have been established as useful in controlling amebic dysentery. All the remedies concerned are powerful. Therefore, they are dangerous if taken in excessive dosage, and never should be taken except under advice and control of a physician.

Among the remedies most commonly used today and proved to be valuable, are chiniofen, carbarsone and viofilm. These remedies will control the entameba and eliminate it from the body.

The drug called emetin, which is much used in this condition, is especially valuable in controlling the symptoms of the disease and usually is given early to bring about prompt recovery of the patient.

Since the diagnosis of this disease is made with certainty only after the excretions have been examined under the microscope, to determine whether entameba histolytica is present, it is not safe to make the diagnosis until such microscopic study has been made.

At the same time, the man who makes the laboratory study must make certain that the ameba is the real entameba histolytica and not a form of the other amebas that live in the bowels without causing symptoms.

He also must distinguish between the dysentery caused by the ameba and the dysentery which follows infection with certain bacteria.

Forty Candidates Out For M. H. S. Baseball Squad

Favor Giants to Repeat In the National League

Forty Out of 97 Experts Pick New York to Retain Title; Cubs Given Heavy Backing With 34 Votes; Cards Get 9 and Pirates Receive 10.

New York, April 10.—(AP)—Major league baseball experts, who agreed the Giants would finish no higher than sixth in last year's National league race, have done the handsome thing this spring by picking them to repeat their triumph. It remains to be seen just how Bill Terry's club will react to this startling vote of confidence.

Cubs 2nd Choice
Meanwhile the ballots in the eighth annual Associated Press pennant pool testify that the Chicago Cubs are the team most likely to oust the Giants from the top in another of those dramatic five horse races for which John Arnold Heydeler's circuit is famous.

Of the 97 writers and editors contributing to the poll's consensus forty pick the Giants to repeat while 24 name the Cubs to finish on top. The St. Louis Cardinals have 13 backers for their hopes of taking first money and the Pittsburgh Pirates only nine, but in the consensus the Cubs land third place. The solitary remaining vote for first place goes to Boston's Battling Braves.

Klein Is Factor
The vote for the Cubs proved surprisingly heavy and was not entirely confined to the western wing of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

The performance for the Bruins over the Pirates was based on the majority belief of the experts that Chuck Klein, National league batting king will add much more strength to Chicago's lineup than the acquisition of pitcher Red Lucas will mean to Pittsburgh.

MILKMAN PAUL RUNYAN KING OF WINTER GOLF

Hot Springs, Ark., April 7.—Milk-cow is excellent training for future golf professionals. Witnesses the case of Paul Runyan, 29-year-old ace from Arkansas, and leading money-winner of the winter season.

Runyan, who won $6,483 during the winter, was born here and milked cows right here very early during his boyhood, for his father operated a dairy. Paul was a busy lad, what with milking, caddyng and school.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Runyan, still live here. Very proud they are of their now famous son.

"Paul was a good kid," his father will tell you. "He never smoked, a cigar. He never told a lie."

"The two boys—Paul and his brother, Dick, had to shift for themselves pretty early," chimed in the mother. "Their father was ill for several years. Paul only reached the tenth grade in high school."

For several years the elder Runyan operated a dairy farm near the golf course. Paul spent all his spare time on the golf course. He gives credit for the suppleness of his wrists to that same daily routine of milking cows.

He was about 10 when he first became interested in golf, his father recalled. One night the boy came in from the golf course, all tired out, but enthusiastic.

"You know, Dad," he said, "I kinda like this game of golf. I'm gonna be a golfer. I think maybe some day I'll get on that Ryder cup team."

Last summer that ambition was gratified.

Young Runyan gives credit for his development to Jimmy Norton, veteran of the links, who was pro at the Hot Springs Country club while Paul was a caddy and later assistant pro. Norton is now assistant to Runyan at White Plains, N. Y.

Paul's father relates that Paul obtained a pair of old balls at the golf club, and after milking was over Paul was off to the course to drive ball after ball until all were out. Then he'd pick them up and drive them again until darkness forced him to quit.

Eventually, Paul became assistant to Norton, and Norton made him grow a mustache and teach the ladies. Norton had little patience with women dub golfers. He thought Paul looked too young to be an assistant pro, so the mustache was for the purpose of adding age.

Paul wore short pants until he got his first job away from the home going to Fargo, N. D., at the age of 17. He spent a couple of years there as assistant pro, and at 19 became professional at the Concordia Country Club, in Little Rock. It was there that he met and married Miss Joan Harris. She travels with him on the winter golf trail.

After a year at Little Rock, Paul went to Bloomfield, N. J., as assistant to Craig Wood, and worked there's year. This is his third year at White Plains Country Club, which has a membership of 1900.

While still here, Norton began to take young Paul around with him to tournaments, and before long the lad was Arkansas champion. He held the title two years.

The first big tournament he won was the 1930 North and South open at Pinehurst, N. C. The rest is history. Like a comet he has blazed across the golf sky. His record was one success after another in the winter of 1932-33, and when the results were all in, he had tucked in 11 major tournaments under his belt.

He won six major tournaments and tied for another in the winter circuit just finished.

SHIELDS IN INITIAL TEST OF NET TOURNAY

Pinehurst, N. C., April 10.—(AP)—Frank X. Shields, of New York, seeded first, faced his initial test of the North and South tennis tournament today with young Fred Stein, of the University of North Carolina, furnishing his opposition.

The match was carried over from yesterday because of rain which fell after only two matches had been run off. These saw Giles Verstraeten, of Jackson Heights, L. I., whip Charles Gill, of New York, 7-5, 6-2, and Armand Bruneau of Brooklyn, eliminate Alvin Sulloway, of Concord, N. H., 6-4, 6-4.

HAWKS AND RED WINGS IN 4TH GAME TONIGHT

Chicago, April 10.—(AP)—The fourth installment of the Stanley cup play-offs will be presented to-night in the Chicago Stadium, with the Chicago Black Hawks making another attempt to end the struggle and the Detroit Red Wings battling to keep it going.

The Hawks need only one more victory to win the world professional hockey championship for the first time since they entered the National league.

Walter "Ty" Holland, who excels at tennis, baseball and basketball and is proficient in numerous minor sports, turned his hand to bowling Saturday afternoon and in a friendly match between two picked teams at the West Side Rec hit a triple strike to roll up a score of 156, just missing the alley record of two pins.

The alley record, as far as can be learned, is 158 and has been held by Bert McConkey for the past three years.

St. James defeated St. Bernard's of Rockville and closed the season in a blaze of glory. It was a dull game, however, as St. James held the ball most of the time. Countless subs were sent into the game but the rout was just as bad. Koss and Greene tossed in 14 double deckers between them.

St. James also defeated St. Joseph's last week, 31-25, Koss and Squatrito starring. The losers were from Hartford.

RUGBY PLAYERS WANT NO PART OF FOOTBALL

New York, April 10.—(AP)—Cambridge University's rugby players have taken one look at the American game of football and decided they want no part of it.

The visitors gasped with astonishment at the terrific impact of the rival lines as Lou Little sent his Columbia squad through a rough scrimmage for their benefit.

"Why wouldn't I play that game for a minute," remarked little J. E. Bowcott, a Cambridge star. "How many deaths did you say occurred during your last season?"

"Damn painful that bending," commented W. J. Leather, big Cambridge captain, who had decided to see whether or not he'd like to be a football lineman.

BASEBALL BRIEFS

By Associated Press
CARDINALS-BROWNS
St. Louis, April 10.—(AP)—Five weeks of training in the south behind them, the St. Louis major league clubs, the Cardinals and Browns, were enroute here today to open a five-game city series Wednesday.

The Cards quit Florida claiming the Grapefruit League championship, their record being ten victories and six defeats against major league teams.

The Browns wound up their stay in Florida with a 6-5 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday at Jacksonville.

ATHLETICS-PHILLIES
Philadelphia, Pa. The Phillies are hosts at Baker Bowl today for the first time this year, hoping to hand the Athletics another drubbing in the second game of their city series.

The A's will arrive with their team out to the limit required for the summer, 23 men. Rookies disposed of yesterday left Connie Mack with nine pitchers, three catchers, six infielders and five outfielders.

INDIANS
Huntsville, Ala.—When Earl Averill tried to take second base on Lefty O'Doul's fumble of his single to left in the Cleveland Indians' game with the New York Giants yesterday, he ran into trouble. Umpire George Johnson not only called him out, but also inadvertently spiked his left hand.

REDS
Cincinnati, Ohio.—Confident that the Cincinnati Reds are prepared to launch their most powerful attack in years, Manager Bob O'Farrell today outlined his plans for the opening game against the Chicago Cubs, the ball most of the time. Countless subs were sent into the game but the rout was just as bad. Koss and Greene tossed in 14 double deckers between them.

St. James also defeated St. Joseph's last week, 31-25, Koss and Squatrito starring. The losers were from Hartford.

SENATORS
Washington.—The Washington Senators today tackle the Boston Braves, placing the burden of a successful "home coming" on a pair of hopeful young hurlers who are trying to avoid another year in the minors. Ed Linke, round Chicagoan, and Mark Filley, property of the Albany International League ball club, were named as Senators' pitchers.

PIRATES
Tucuman, N. M.—Larry (Fireball) French was assigned to the Pittsburgh Pirates mound today against the White Sox.

The selection of French, ace of the Pirate staff, was probably a result of the 17 to 7 rout which the Chicagoans administered to their barnstorming mates in Albuquerque yesterday.

RED SOX
Greenboro, N. C.—The Red Sox come to town today with Fred Ostermuller and Rube Walberg scheduled to do the pitching against Greenboro. Ostermuller won 28 ball games here two years ago.

Jim McLarnin to Defend His Title Against Ross

Risks Welterweight Crown Against the Lightweight Champ in "Natural" Bout, Set for May 28; Figured Sure Fire Box Office Attraction.

New York, April 10.—(AP)—One of fistiana's few remaining "Naturals" a welterweight championship bout between Jimmy McLarnin and Barney Ross, had definitely been lined up today. Formal signing of contracts was delayed until today but the rival managers had agreed to terms for a 15 round bout here May 28.

Although the site had not yet been definitely selected, it was regarded as probable McLarnin and his challenger would settle their dispute in Madison Square Garden's Long Island bowl. The milk fund will share in the promotion as well as the receipts of the show. The champion will have the right to scale 147 pounds, the class limit. Ross probably will weigh 140 pounds or less.

The bout, a sure fire box office attraction in New York, with its big Irish and Jewish population, may outdraw the heavyweight championship match between Primo Carnera and Max Baer which the Garden is promoting in the Long Island bowl June 14.

McLarnin always has been a favorite here despite the fact that his mighty fists have beaten down several Jewish idols, notably Benny Leonard, Sid Terry, Ruby Goldstein and Al Singer. Ross, is of Jewish extraction.

In order to make the match, McLarnin and Ross were forced to promote a defense their titles against challengers previously approved by the commission within 90 days after May 18. Chattanooga, Tenn.—Joe McCarthy's trying to find the New York Yankees' lost batting punch. They've lost three games in a row and minor league opposition now and have left a total of 38 men stranded on the bases, an appalling total. They got only six hits off Chattanooga pitching yesterday but had 11 men left on base.

TIGERS
Birmingham, Ala.—The Detroit Tigers have sold Isadore Goldstein, right-handed pitcher, to Montreal. It was his third time up in the majors and the Tigers had to let him go without an option. Goldstein's lack of consistent control has kept him just outside the majors.

The Tigers play here today and tomorrow.

CUBS
Chicago—Woody English apparently has won back from Augie Galan the job of playing third base for the Chicago Cubs.

English has recovered from eye and foot ailments, while Galan has shown that he needs more experience before becoming a regular.

Washington.—The Washington Senators today tackle the Boston Braves, placing the burden of a successful "home coming" on a pair of hopeful young hurlers who are trying to avoid another year in the minors. Ed Linke, round Chicagoan, and Mark Filley, property of the Albany International League ball club, were named as Senators' pitchers.

PIRATES
Tucuman, N. M.—Larry (Fireball) French was assigned to the Pittsburgh Pirates mound today against the White Sox.

The selection of French, ace of the Pirate staff, was probably a result of the 17 to 7 rout which the Chicagoans administered to their barnstorming mates in Albuquerque yesterday.

RED SOX
Greenboro, N. C.—The Red Sox come to town today with Fred Ostermuller and Rube Walberg scheduled to do the pitching against Greenboro. Ostermuller won 28 ball games here two years ago.

New Golf Figures Rise Up To Threaten Rule of Vets

By BILL BRAUCHER (NEA Sports Editor)

New figures are popping up on the fairways to threaten the rule of the older professionals. In the late winter golf tournaments, several times the names of Ky Lafoon, Henry Picard, Harold McSpaden and Ralph Stonehouse appeared high up in the list of contenders.

Lafoon, a Denver pro, won the Atlanta Metropolitan over the Easlake course with a 286, which is six over par for the course where Bobby Jones learned to play. Lafoon beat a formidable field.

COLLEGIANS TO FACE EAST SIDES TONIGHT

Meet for Junior Court Title of Rec Centers; Rec Girls to Play Boys Team.

A game of unusual interest between two outstanding junior basketball teams will be played at the School Street gymnasium tonight between the East Sides and Collegians, the first in the best two out of three games for the junior championship of the Recreation Centers.

The game is scheduled to start at 8:30 o'clock and efforts are being made to get "Ty" Holland to be the eleventh man on the floor.

Both above mentioned teams have had several practice sessions in preparation for the coming series as nothing would mean more to the players than to gain a victory.

Both the Collegians and East Sides have compiled records that contain very few defeats, and only last week these two teams played a game which required an overtime session before the Collegians were returned the victory.

Both teams will use their strongest lineups and no doubt it will be a hard fought game as keen rivalry exists between the two clubs.

Another game of unusual note is the scheduled game between the Rec Girls and the Jack Armstrong Five. The calibre of game as played by the Armstrong team is on a par with the Girls team and it should be a game of worthwhile interest. These games are free to the public.

COACH NOT OPTIMISTIC OVER SEASON'S CHANCES

Hard Hit by Graduation Last Year and Has But Five Lettermen; At Least Four Berths Open; Little Promising Material on Hand.

Manchester High's first call for baseball practice brought forty candidates for the Red and White 1934 squad to the West Side field yesterday afternoon, but the fact did not serve to lighten the pessimism of Coach Thomas F. Kelley. The local school was hard hit by graduation last summer and lost all but five lettermen, who will form the nucleus of this year's team.

At least four and possibly six positions must be filled before the opening of the season rolls around late this month. The pitching situation is probably first and foremost on the list, but Coach Kelley is also troubled over first and third base and left and right field. The catching assignment is also doubtful.

Depend On Smith
Coach Kelley plans to carry three hurlers and Robert "Bob" Smith will probably be called on to carry the mound burden, although Jackie May and Michael Haberen showed promise at yesterday's session and will be considered for pitching berths. Smith divided his time on the mound and in the infield last year and was one of the team's most effective sluggers. He possesses an unusually fast ball but was inclined to wildness last season.

The Certain Places
George Ecabert was second string catcher last year and is considered a leading candidate for the varsity berth this spring, but even here Coach Kelley refuses to commit himself. Charles "Chucky" Smith, diminutive captain of the team, will be at his usual position at second and Earle Judd will in all likelihood hold down the shortstop position. First and third are wide open. Comber is showing up well in the field and Eric Rautenberg, who led in fielding last year, will be in the center garden. Uniforms have been given out to the five veterans and the rest will be given out late this week or early next week.

May Switch Oponer
Manchester is scheduled to open the season against Meriden High, considered one of the strongest contenders for Bristol's title, on Saturday, April 28, but Coach Kelley is planning to ask that this date be pushed into June, as he does not want to play an important League game at this opener. It is possible that Manchester will open at Rockville High on April 30, if the change can be arranged. The East Hartford game slated for May 4 has been changed to June 4.

Practice sessions will be held daily at the West Side until the season opens.

TWO GOLFERS IN THE FOR TOURNAY MEDAL

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., April 10.—(AP)—The comedians, Arthur Lynch of Mamaroneck, N. Y., and E. G. Livesey of Columbus, Ga., national left-handed champion led the 18 qualifiers into the first round of match play in the 14th annual Mason and Dixon amateur golf tournament today.

Lynch and Livesey tied for the medal in yesterday's 18 hole qualifying round, posting 74s, four over par, despite a couple of downpours which sent most scores sky high.

The other qualifiers included Clive Alvord of Greenwich, Conn., 75, Rod Gilson, Jackson City, Mich., defending champion 7 and Dan R. Topping of Greenwich, Conn., 81.

PLAY RUGBY TODAY

Princeton, N. J., April 10.—(AP)—Cambridge's crack rugby team was slated to make the second start of its American tour against Princeton in Palmer Stadium today.

VARDON GRIP HAS POINTS; AND SO HAS SARAZEN'S

To prove there is individuality in the swing let us look at some of the grips of the experts.

Horton Smith, Bobby Jones and Tommy Armour use what is known as the Vardon, or overlapping grip. This grip has won overwhelming popularity among the best golfers in the country. It was introduced by Harry Vardon, who won the British Open six times.

Vardon overlaps the index finger of the left hand with the little finger of the right. This reinforcement of the left hand gives a secure feeling and confidence in the grip, which should be firm.

Gene Sarazen varied this grip and has won numerous tournaments with his development, known as the interlocking. This has the little finger of the right interlocked with the index finger of the left.

Mrs. Lester Hutchins entertained at dinner Sunday her two sisters, Mrs. Daisy Gwatinck of Berlin, and Mrs. Gertrude Erickson of New Britain and part of their families.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Rice, Miss Gladys Rice and Westcott Rice spent the day Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shekleton of West Hartford.

Mrs. Shekleton is a former Columbia girl, having been Miss Elaine Kneeland before her marriage.

CHECK OF CENTER TRAFFIC IS OVER

Men Now Working at Corner of Center and West Center Streets.

Men employed by the motor vehicle department of Connecticut taking a check of the automobiles that pass the Center, which work has been going on for the past four weeks, completed their job at eight o'clock last night. There has been three shifts doing this work. A sketch of the roads leading from the south and north and the east and west was drawn and the checkers, working sometimes four at a time and in other hours two at a time, made a check of the number of cars going in the different direction.

Each checker uses one sheet an hour. The count is made by drawing small marks for each car and then drawing a mark through the center when the number reaches five. These reports are sent to Hartford daily where a study of them is made.

Today the checkers moved westward. Two men were working at the junction of Center and West Center streets, checking the number that came from the west on both streets into Center street and what proportion follow the Center street road or the West Center street road going west.

Another crew is working at Bolton Notch. Here again two state roads divide, one going toward North Coventry and the other toward Andover. The number of cars that come from the east over both of these roads and cross the bridge at Bolton Notch are noted; also the number of cars that go east either on the North Coventry road or the Andover road after crossing the Notch. Just how long the check will be made at these two points is not known.

By making a check at West Center and Center streets it is expected that a better idea of through traffic to and from Hartford will be secured, and by checking at Bolton Notch a like record will be obtained of the traffic that comes directly east into Manchester. Later on it is proposed to make a check of the traffic through North Main street both from the east and west, from the south on Main street into North Main street and the directions that the automobiles follow.

WIFE OF INSURANCE MAN TO OPEN STORE

Mrs. Evelyn Heintz, the Former Miss Evelyn Bray, Will Start Business Here.

Mrs. Evelyn Heintz of Mount Vernon, N. Y., this afternoon purchased the fixtures at the Memorial store, located at Main and Haynes streets, and is planning to reopen the store at the end of this week.

Mrs. Heintz before her marriage was Miss Evelyn Bray of Manchester. Her husband is connected with the Travelers Insurance company as a traveling auditor with the Brooklyn, N. Y., office of the company as his headquarters.

Mrs. Heintz in taking possession this afternoon has arranged to open the store as a confectionery, tobacconist and fancy grocery store. She and her husband expect to make Manchester their future home.

Tomorrow the stock and fixtures of the Quality Bakery in the Donohue and Johnson building on Main street, now in bankruptcy, are to be sold at auction. The stock and fixtures were sold at a private sale by the trustee of the estate to Oscar H. Karelitz of Hartford, who is to dispose of the fixtures and stock at public auction.

PACKAGE STORES REVERSE PLANS

Decide Not to Remain Open After Being Advised Against It.

The proprietors of six local package stores today decided to suspend their decision of yesterday to remain open until 11 o'clock at night until definite action is taken by the courts on the injunction proceedings.

Six package stores here remained open last night as long as they were permitted to do so by the courts. Public notice also was given that liquor in amounts less than a quart or a fifth would be sold, the same as in the drug stores.

It was understood that the package store proprietors were advised not to remain open later than the 6 o'clock closing hour until a permanent injunction is granted. The proprietors agreed to abide by the decision.

STOLEN CAR RECOVERED

Bridgport, April 10. (AP)—Archibald McNeil today recovered a stolen car from the city last August, and as a result the Democratic National committee discovered not only his stolen car but a new automobile. The stolen car was recovered last night by the Democratic National committee himself, but by Inspector Archibald McNeil of the New York police department, who traced its ownership after the car had been seized with two gunmen several weeks ago. Both have since been given sentences in Sing Sing prison.

SALARY INCREASE

Torrington, April 10. (AP)—A salary increase for teachers representing one half of the teachers which have been made, was authorized by the Torrington Board of Education at its meeting last night. The increase will be effective September 1. It represents ten per cent of the salaries which teachers were receiving prior to the reduction.

EUGENE SULLIVAN, EX-SENATOR, DIES

In opinion of close friends, by worry over the affairs of the American Bank and Trust Company of Bridgeport and the Commercial Bank and Trust Company, now in receivership in which he was deeply interested and in which much money which he had acquired during a long business life was invested. He was vice-president of the American Bank and administrator of the Commercial. He was a charter member of the former and to his energy was attributed much of the success which followed its organization. Sullivan was a native of Colchester. His birthday was September 1, 1862. He went to school in that town and in Bridgeport, his family settling here in 1876. He entered the navy for four years, and had one voyage around the globe. Later he went into the retail meat business with a brother, and the firm of Sullivan brothers became well known to the trade. He retired some years ago.

He leaves a widow and five children, two sisters and a brother, Michael S., in Hartford. The funeral will be from St. Charles church Thursday morning.

AMERICAN CONSUL TO IRELAND DIES

Mr. McDowell's left, was one of the first to reach him when he faltered while paying tribute to the Irish and Americans.

Richard Washburn Child, representative of President Hoover, who served three years in prison and was born in 1874, was born in the American Legation. There it was indicated an autopsy would be performed.

Was 67 Years Old

Today, the Irish Press, President De Valera's newspaper, said in an editorial headed "Sorrow":

"The death robs our nation of a great friend and his of a great citizen. He had said that it he had all the countries in the world to choose from he would choose Ireland."

McDowell was born 67 years ago in Trenton, Tenn. In September 1933 he was appointed Minister to the Irish Free State—succeeding Frederick A. Sterling, who was transferred to Bulgaria.

Fleeing to New York, he was arrested and taken back to London on a forgery charge for which he served three years in prison and was then deported to Hungary. He took part in efforts to overthrow the German Republic government, but was granted an amnesty in 1925.

The next year he was arrested as a spy in Austria. Again he disappeared, but emerged to fight for the life of his son Ignatius Lincoln, who was hanged in England for killing a household during a burglary.

NEWTON D. BAKER ON PROBE BOARD

Accepts Appointment As Chairman of Army Air Corps Investigators.

Washington, April 10. (AP)—Newton D. Baker, wartime secretary of war, today accepted appointment as chairman of the army's new probe board, the committee on which Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh declined to serve.

Secretary Dern, announcing the acceptance of five other civilians to aid army generals in making the military inquiry, said the first meeting would be here late this week or early next.

The investigation, planned by the department itself, stepped into national focus following a list of tragedies suffered by army aviators in flying the mail.

The secretary of war, said the following civilians in addition to Baker had accepted places on the committee of eleven:

Dr. Karl Taylor Compton, president, Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Dr. George W. Lewis, director of aeronautical research for the National advisory committee on aeronautics.

Clarence D. Chamberlin, noted trans-Atlantic flier.

Major James H. ("Jimmy") Doolittle, widely known flier and aeronautical engineer.

Edward S. Gorrell, president, Stutz Motor Car company.

The military members of the committee who already compose the "Drum board" for continuous study of the air corps needs are headed by Major General Hugh A. Drum, assistant chief of staff, who will serve as vice chairman and include Major General Benjamin D. Foulois, chief of army corps.

The manner in which the corps transported this airmail and the dozen deaths connected with these emergency activities, will play a part in the commission's studies.

The survey, however, is designed by Dern to be of the widest possible scope and to make recommendations which will make the air corps as near possible the best in the world.

CONOVER SUGGESTS NEW MAJOR PARTY

problem of the farmer, the laborer and the woman in industry. . . . Those problems should not be approached as party issues. They must be solved upon party principles. That principle should be the general welfare rather than group opportunities. This should eliminate all extremist parties, whether Communist or Capitalist. It would raise to dominance a party of the middle class, the basis of every commonwealth.

The depression must justify itself and compensate its misery in the evolution of a Commonwealth Party. . . . The liquor traffic must be solved rather than controlled. The traffic cannot be eliminated by electing prohibitionists on existing party tickets to serve as camouflage and dry-voce catchers. Our alphabet government has demonstrated that social problems are solved through formulas of about one per cent legislation and 99 per cent administration. . . . If prohibitionists expect to construct a Commonwealth Party, their first function is to coordinate all constructive temperance forces in every local community and eliminate peripatetic mendicant agencies. . . . The Commonwealthers would which to rally the 68 per cent of America's voters who did not vote for repeal. Then would be restored majority rule in this country.

REPORTS ON 1100 X-RAY PICTURES ARE RECEIVED

Those Showing No Abnormalities Will Be Sent to Parents by Physicians.

Reports on the 1100 X-ray pictures taken a few weeks ago have been received by the Board of Health, showing only about 4-1-2 per cent were questioned.

The negative reports have been signed by the family doctor in each case and will be distributed through the schools. The X-ray reports showing no abnormalities will be sent to the parents by the family physician.

For the time being the pictures will be held in the Board of Health office but will undoubtedly be filed later at the Manchester Memorial hospital clinic.

THE TINYMITES

By HAMLIN

The hay the Tinymites landed in was soft, and Scouty, with a grin, said, "Gee, but were we lucky that our jump turned out all right."

"We might have landed on the ground, but now, I guess, we're safe and sound, unless the farmer gets mad. Then we're in an awful plight."

"Aw, he won't mind our being here," said Doty. "There is naught to fear. I guess I'll crawl right up to where he is, and say hello."

"Will you say that he keep us from harm. Perhaps he'll drive us to his farm. Now is my chance to greet him, 'cause he's driving rather slow."

Of course the farmer was surprised. Said he, "I never realized that I had lots of company. Where did you tots come from?"

Then Cobby told him "bout the bird that had six legs. 'Well, well, my word,'" exclaimed the friendly farmer. "So you jumped! You're not so dumb."

"Then, can we ride along with you?" asked Gobby. "Maybe we can do some chores around your farm. We'll gladly work to earn a meal."

"You see, we're hungry as can be." The farmer answered, "Certainly! Why, for your help I'll gladly give you all some of this real."

They shortly reached the farm, and then the Tinymites were thrilled again. "Oh, my, I see a steady horse," cried Cobby, with a smile.

"He looks as if he's nice and tame. Say, Mister Farmer, I see game to try it, if you're willing that I ride him for a while."

"Why, surely, lad, go right ahead," the friendly farmer quickly said. Then Scouty cried, "I'll join you, Cobby. That is only fair."

They climbed on, holding to a strap, and Cobby shouted, "Giddyup!" The horse began to prance, and tossed them both into the air.

(A farm pig furnishes a lot of fun in the next story.)

SENSE and NONSENSE

THE ALPHABET OF WISDOM

After having laid an egg. Some who are not hens do their cackling first . . . and then forget about the egg.

Better be in love with your work than in love with yourself.

Chalk up every lie as a liability.

Deliberating is not delaying.

Enthusiasm is the power behind progress.

Fattery is the food of fools.

Gallantry, to shallow people, consists of saying to females agreeable things in an agreeable manner.

Honking your horn doesn't help so much as steering wisely.

It may be all right to be content with what you have; never with what you are.

Jealous people always find more than they look for.

Knowledge is a treasure, and practice is the key to it.

Life isn't complex if we walk straight.

Men, like bullets, go farthest when they are polished.

Necessity is a disagreeable guest, a good teacher, a hard master, and a powerful weapon.

Once in a while look up at the stars, and as you gaze, think.

Prove all things; hold fast to that which is good.

Quit yourselves like men.

Religion is the best armor a man can have, but it is the worst cloak.

Silence is an excellent remedy against slander.

Talent is wealth, tact ready money.

Uselessness is worthlessness.

Vivacity of one relieves the dullness of others.

What you are is more important than what you've got.

Xerxes did die and so must I. (Not cheerful news, but true.)

You can't build a skyscraper on a faulty foundation. Which is true also of personality.

Zealous yet modest, make men of might.

Businessman (who had got on in life)—Yes, when I first came to New York I had only a dollar in my pocket with which to make a start.

Interviewer—How did you invest that dollar?

Businessman—Used it to pay for a telegram home for more money.

Far too many of our financial difficulties, both as individuals and as a nation, result from spending money we haven't got for something we don't need.

Client—I am deeply indebted to you, Mr. Attorney; what would I have done without you?

Lawyer—About five years.

Lady Friend—Well, how do you like your new flat?

Mrs. Newlywed—Which do you mean—the one I married or the one I live in?

Folks who brag of operations Love their intimate relations.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

A plane recently demonstrated at a Los Angeles, Calif., airport, is said to be free from stalling and tail spins.

The British air forces are planning an expenditure of $87,000,000 for the addition of four squadrons.

A complete system of air fields across Canada is now under construction.

Unless headlight reflectors are polished frequently, they become tarnished and the light is not reflected evenly.

An automobile body with a telescopic rear end has been designed by a British inventor. When extended, it can be used for sleeping or storing extra baggage.

In 1933, 61.3 per cent of the total output of airplanes, measured in terms of dollars, went into Army or Navy service.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

Wealthy Father—Well, young man, you wish to speak to me. Out with it—quickly! I'm a very busy man. I have no time to waste. Tell me, do you want to marry my daughter or to borrow money?

Sutor (very calm and cool)—I don't mind, sir—which would you prefer?

JURY SERVICE IS ONE OF THE SIMPLEST THINGS IN THE WORLD. YOU MERELY LISTEN TO BOTH SIDES OF THE STORY AND THEN VOTE AGAINST THE LAWYER YOU DON'T LIKE.

Mistress—You will clean out the furnace, take out the ashes, sweep the basement floor, close the coal bin door, clean the screens and get them ready to put up, bring them out of the basement, sweep the walk, rake the lawn, work around the rose bushes, and wash the car, then clean the garage and—

New Servant—Excuse me, madam, but is this a day's work or a five-year plan?

GOOD ADVICE

Four simple words most troubles dispel. "Mind Your Own Business" then all will be well.

Manchester Merchants Will Discuss Code With

GEORGE FLYNN

Secretary-Manager Bridgeport Credit Rating Bureau

At Manchester April 11

RETAIL CREDIT CODE

- 1. Application for credit shall be cleared through a reputable credit bureau.
2. The credit bureau shall compile data on past-due accounts supplied through credit departments, and distribute this data to all stores recorded as carrying the accounts having been reported past-due.
3. Any person applying for a monthly charge account shall be advised at the time of application that payment in full must be made during the month following that of the purchase.
4. Any monthly charge account not liquidated within 60 days after the end of the month during which purchases were made shall be declared past-due and member stores notified.
5. Every store shall begin collection effort within five days after the date on which an account becomes past-due.
6. A new account shall not be opened for any person whose account with another store has been reported "closed" because of existing past-due balance.
7. All installment sales shall be recorded with the credit bureau. (By such procedure the possibility of any one customer building up installment obligations beyond capacity to pay will be obviated.)
8. A fair interest rate shall be charged on all installment accounts but the number of months may vary on different commodities.
9. The practice of advertising post-dated billing shall be discouraged.
10. Persons abusing the returned goods privilege, or making unfair claims, should be reported to the bureau, which in turn would advise the customer that on further complaint his account would be suspended.
11. The indiscriminate solicitation of new accounts shall be disapproved.

The above code to regulate the Credit Control problems of all classes of merchants has been installed in every large city and town in this state. Mr. Flynn will tell of its operation in other sections and the manner in which it will be enforced.
