There is a distinct reminiscence of the 1900's to the long afternoon gown launched by Lanvin, completed by a large picture hat. It differs from the cocktail-dress in that it usually boasts of long sleeves and a moderate neckline, instead of the decollete back which distinguished many end-of-the-day creations.

Linon sports frocks with long skirts seem to be popular as dancing frocks. Frances Drake, Paramount star, selected a dark blue linen with nautical lacings, and accented by trimming, and caused a lot of attention when she danced in it at Baltimore supper room.

Bodies, while as soft and feminine as you please, underline the natural curves. This gives them a quaint late Victorian look, which is emphasized by sleeve fullness massed just above or just below the elbow. The waist, too, is clearly defined. Some couturiers adopt a higher-in-front movement; others drop the belt below the normal line at the back. Combined with fullness concentrated at the front or back, this also contributes to the new profile of the mode.

KIDNAP RING WITNESS IS PUT ON THE SPOT

Brooklyn Man and His Bartender Found Shot to Death in Their Autos.

Brooklyn, N. Y., April 11.—(AP)—Peter Turrigiano, proprietor of a bar and grill, and Pietro Calico, his bartender, who lives in Manhattan, were found dead in a sedan today in the Sheepshead Bay section of Brooklyn.

Both bodies bore several bullet wounds. Turrigiano was to have been a witness in proceedings against a kidnap ring. Two weeks ago he appealed for police protection after threats were made against his life.

He acted as contact man last December when Joseph Gionella, a beer garden proprietor, was kidnaped. On the day Turrigiano prepared to deliver $10,000 ransom, Gionella's body was found in Nassau county. He had been shot to death.

Turrigiano was under ball as a material witness. Clothes were found piled on the sedan seat, leading police to believe the men were in fight.

LOGGITT & MYERS TOBACCO COMPANY

Side Glances at Persons Mentioned by Dr. Wirt

Washington, April 11.—(AP)—Here are side-glances at some of the persons mentioned by Dr. William A. Wirt to a House investigating committee:

Miss Alice Barrows, blonde divorcee, Vassar graduate, formerly Wirt's secretary, now an Interior Department employee. Hostess at the dinner party at which Wirt said he found out about the proposed "revolution," she said his charges were "absurd" because he himself supplied most of the conversation at the party. She said: "He's a monologist."

Lawrence Todd, young-looking but middle-aged newspaperman who for 21 years has reported events in the capital. He now represents Texas, Soviet News Agency. He said of the dinner: "There was no mention whatever of any Kerensky of the revolution."

Dr. Rexford G. Tutwell, studious, retiring, enigmatical former professor, who now is assistant secretary of agriculture and sometimes called the "No. 1 Brain Trust." He had no comment other than: "Some of the quotations attributed to me were from a speech during Christmas week, 1931."

Miss Hildegard Kneeland, one of a large group of studios Agriculture Department economists, a federal employee since the early 1920's, and now assigned temporarily to North Carolina University. Wirt quoted her freely as quoting Tutwell. She observed: "I have never met Dr. Tutwell."

Miss Mary Taylor, attractive, shy, be-spectacled former newspaperwoman, who is editing a farm administration publication, decided to comment only to the House committee.

David C. Coyle, Princeton graduate, a construction engineer, authority on structural design, now with the PWA. Speaking of Wirt and the dinner party, he said: "He (Wirt) got started talking and talked for hours so nobody else had any chance to say anything."

Walter Bruere, ruddy-faced, gray haired, kindly-eyed author, teacher, research and industrial relations workers, who now is chairman of the textile code advisory committee. He could not be reached immediately for comment.

Dr. Frederick C. Howe, small, quiet and smiling veteran of many campaigns for social reform, and now the farm administration's consumers' counsel. He remarked: "All bunk."

THREE AMERICAN FLIERS FEARED LOST IN CHINA

Shanghai, April 11.—(AP)—Fog hindered a search today for three American fliers believed marooned in island-dotted Hangchow bay. They are Robert East, pilot, of Louisville, Ky., James Finch, co-pilot of Miami, Fla., and Ivan Carlson of Donna, Texas. They hopped early Tuesday in their mail plane from Shanghai for Canton with a Tokyo business man as passenger. Carlson is communications manager for the Shanghai-Canton Airline.
The air over Shanghai cleared slightly late today, enabling two amphibian planes to undertake a search, but they soon returned, unable to penetrate fog engulfing Hangchow Bay.
Frank Hawks, American speed pilot, here demonstrating a big bombing plane, stood by to take off if the weather cleared.
Tugboats also entered the search.

DU MAURIER DIES, NOTED STAGE STAR

Famed in England and America as Actor, Producer and Manager; Was 61.

London, April 11.—(AP)—Sir Gerald Du Maurier, noted actor, died in a nursing home today after an operation for an internal disorder. He was 61 years old.

Famed as an actor, producer and manager, Sir Gerald was born at Hampstead, England, March 26, 1872. He was the son of the late George Du Maurier, who won renown as an artist on the staff of Punch and as author of "Trilby." At 21, Sir Gerald made his first stage appearance at the Garrick theater in the play "The Old Jew." He came to the United States in 1896 playing in "The Dancing Girl," "Hamlet," "The Seats of the Mighty," "The Red Lamp," "Trilby" and "King Henry IV." One of his big successes was scored at the Hicks theater in May, 1907, when he appeared as Montgomery Brewster in "Brewster's Millions."

He became associated with Frank Curzon in the management of Wyndham's theater and opened in September 1910, as John Frampton in "Nobody's Daughter."

Sir Gerald interrupted his brilliant theatrical career in 1918 to join the army as a cadet in the Irish Guards. He did not reappear on the stage until September 8, 1919.

With Gilbert Miller. He terminated his managerial association with Wyndham's after 15 years and went to St. James' theater where he became associated with Gilbert Miller in 1925.

He appeared there as Lord Arthur Dilling in "The Last of Mrs. Cheyne." Sir Gerald and Miller ended their association in 1929. Honors were heaped on him from many sides. At various times he served as president of the Actors' Orphanage Fund, as president of Denville Hall, home for aged actors and actresses and as president of the Actors' Benevolent Fund. He received the honor of knighthood in the New Year's honors of 1922. He was author of "A Royal Rival" and part-author with his brother Guy, of "Charles I and II" and of "The Dancers."

Sir Gerald was featured in the motion picture "Escape" three years ago and appeared in "Lord Camber's Lady," in 1932.

REAL THRILLS GIVEN DURING PARSONS' DRAMA

"Double Door" by Elizabeth McFadden Has a Wallop in Every Act. The old-time thrill of real drama is restored in "Double Door," the play by Elizabeth McFadden, which, after a highly successful engagement of six months in New York, comes to Parsons' Theater for one week, beginning Monday evening, April 9th. Taking advantage of the present interest in costumes, customs and decoys of a former period, Miss McFadden has returned to the period of 1910, laid her gripping drama in an old Fifth avenue mansion and brought back the atmosphere and the enthralling interest of the sort of play a former generation used to applaud and enjoy. "Double Door" is full of suspense, with situations that gain in interest as the plot develops, offering act-end climaxes that make the spectator long to know what comes next, and even in the final scene still holding something to wait for.

In the old family mansion on Fifth Avenue, stern, grim Victoria Van Bret reigns with relentless authority and bends her timid sister, Caroline and her younger brother, Rip, to her iron will. The upstairs sitting room of the house, with its ancient furniture, hangings and trimmings, is the scene of the play, in the back wall of the forbidding room being the double door of the title, which only Victoria knows how to open. In this terrible room, with its dark vault, abides terror for shrinking Caroline and, after a while, for Anne, the young bride of Rip, whose plebeian intrusion Victoria never can forgive. Her jealousy, her cruelty and her efforts to be rid of Anne and to wed her brother to one in his own class, a determination which results even to attempted murder, are incidents in the unfolding of this weird and gripping drama. The players in "Double Door" act it in all seriousness, tensely with the right touch of melodrama, but with a sense of realism that makes it all seem not only thrillingly dramatic, but to a marked degree convincing. Jessamine Newcombe is said to give a remarkable portrayal of Victoria. Others in the cast include Derek Fairman, Theima Faige, Marjorie Dalton, Ernest Woodward, Jack Soanes, George Taylor, William Foran and others.

X-RAY PICTURES

It was stated in yesterday's report of the use being made of X-ray pictures recently taken of school children in Manchester that those showing no abnormalities would be sent to the parents through their family physicians. This was incorrect since only those pictures that do show an abnormal condition will be returned to the parents of the children. No one knows what the wild ancestors of domestic cattle looked like, or where they lived.

TEXTILE MILLS ORDER STRIKES

3,000 Workers Idle Because of Labor Troubles in New England.

Fall River, Mass., April 11—(AP)—Three Fall River textile mills remained closed today and three thousand workers were idle because of labor troubles.

The day shift of the printing division of the American Printing company, comprising 1,200 persons, walked out yesterday after Plant Manager Nathan Durfee had refused to reinstate a worker the mill hands claimed had been discharged because he refused to run two machines.

There was no attempt to open the plant for the night side last night and 800 additional workers were affected.

Four hundred workers at the Arkwright mill No. 2 walked out alleging the company had failed to live up to agreements regarding rates of pay and numbers of looms to be operated by one weaver. The strike was called without the sanction of the United Textile Workers union, but strikers were confident official approval would be forthcoming.

Meanwhile, approximately 450 workers of the Algonquin Printing company, who went on strike last Friday, voted not to return. They had walked out because of an alleged "speed-up" system they said the company was putting into effect. Their vote against returning was taken yesterday during a meeting attended by representatives of the state department of labor and industries.

Textiles, this section's chief industry, employ nearly 20,000 persons in Fall River alone.

SEEK ABE LINCOLN'S DESK IN WHITE HOUSE

Hartford, April 11.—(AP)—The whereabouts of the desk on which President Lincoln signed the Emancipation Proclamation was a moot question today, but so far as Connecticut is concerned, that historical piece of furniture is in the state library.

A statement in the published memoirs of the late Irwin H. Hoover, White House usher for many years, that when President Hoover moved into the White House in 1929, he had the famous desk, brought a storm of protest from authorities who said they can prove it all a mistake.

George S. Godard, state librarian, is one of the stoutest defenders of what he terms the truth about the situation and he can exhibit documents as proof of his assertions.

When told about the statement, Godard said the late Daniel Nash Morgan of Bridgeport, who was treasurer of the United States under President Cleveland from 1893 to 1897, presented the authentic desk to the state and that ever since 1912, it has reposed in a specially constructed vault in the library.

Godard's story, substantiated by affidavits, is that the original desk was owned for many years by Louis Burdort of Washington, D. C., who gave it to Morgan on June 7, 1884, in exchange for another.

Burdort was a White House messenger from 1848 until just before Lincoln's assassination and he served under Presidents Folk, Taylor, Fillmore, Pierce, Buchanan and Lincoln.

ART OF UNEMPLOYED MAN IS APPLAUDED

Fort Worth, Tex., April 11.—(AP)—An unemployed oil company worker whose wife didn't think much of his idea of courting her by drawing pictures, has been discovered as the creator of a sketch which won the admiration of the First Lady of the Land.

Sent anonymously to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, the sketch of a blue eagle glowing above a group of men on their knees with outstretched hands, so won the favor of the President's wife that she sought to locate the artist.

He is W. F. Rhodes, 38, who never had had training in art, but draws to "express my feelings."

Years ago he courted his wife by expressing his sentiments in drawings instead of letters.

"She used to get so mad she nearly quit me because I wouldn't write," Rhodes said. "I merely drew pictures. She got the general idea but that wasn't enough."

Rhodes, located after several weeks of effort by Dr. A. M. Fickel, local relief administrator, expected to know today whether he would be given work in the relief office here.

Fourteen columns in Kelly's Postoffice London directory are required to take care of all private residents named Smith.

TO EXPLAIN CREDIT CODE THIS EVENING

Expect Large Attendance at Meeting at 6:30 in Hotel Sheridan.

More than fifty merchants and professional men will gather this evening at the Hotel Sheridan for the purpose of hearing the proposed Retail Credit Code discussed. George Flynn, secretary-manager of the Bridgeport Credit Rating Bureau will be the principal speaker. Recognized as one of the leading authorities on the retail credit situation Mr. Flynn will outline the credit problems and answer any and all questions regarding the adoption of the proposed code.

The meeting has been called for the purpose of protection for local business men, it is asserted. In view of the fact that Hartford merchants adopted the code in February the grocers' increase of inquiries through the local credit exchange has made it necessary for the merchants in Manchester to protect themselves.

In many sections of the country central credit bureaus are acting as control clearing houses for state bureaus. Several states have the situation so closely lined up that with the use of fingerprints it is impossible for an impostor to use the credit of another in the larger cities.

During the course of his remarks here last week Mr. Flynn pointed out three glaring faults in the present credit situation especially in the smaller towns and cities. It was the general knowledge that each and every merchant felt that he possessed regarding a prospective customer. He stated that this was very true in the majority of the cases where gasoline stations were not closely brought together. Garage men and tire and battery stations were another class of trade where the dealers did not have close co-operation.

The professional men, claimed Mr. Flynn were altogether another group in the picture that had suffered much in the past. They had, however, due to the depression, become deeply interested in credit reporting on special cases, information that was needed especially among the dental profession where minors were treated without the knowledge of the status of the parent.

He stated further that the depression made strange bedfellows in the past five years. The butcher, the baker, the grocer, the doctor, needed credit bureau protection as never before and the adoption of the Retail Credit Code would eliminate a lot of undesirable accounts with all concerned.

The meeting this evening will be at 6:30 o'clock sharp.

SOUND ANOTHER ALARM ABOUT JOHN DILLINGER

Nashville, Tenn., April 11.—(AP)—West Tennessee police watched today for three men, heavily armed, after local officers reported one of a member of the John Dillinger gang.

Last night two Nashville policemen attempted to inquire into the identity of three men who were armed with machine guns. They were repulsed with the admonition "get the hell back in your car and drive toward town." The three then drove off on the highway toward Memphis.

Shortly afterwards the two policemen, T. Vernon and John Byrd, were reported at headquarters as identifying a photograph of a member of the Dillinger gang as one of the trio. The photograph, in possession of Department of Justice Agent J. M. Towler, was marked only by a number and Towler did not name the man whose picture was shown.

While preparing to join in the search for the three men, Deputy Sheriff William G. Small, 54, was shot through the hip when a machine gun he was helping to load was accidentally fired.

Police headquarters notified all towns between here and Memphis to watch for the three men.

- 1 WHAT IS ITS OPERATING COST? Electrolux operates for less than any other refrigerator.
- 2 IS IT PERMANENTLY SILENT? Electrolux is... it has nothing to make noise, or to wear and become noisy.
- 3 WHAT ABOUT REPAIRS? Electrolux has no moving parts to wear and need costly repairing.
- 4 WHO WILL SERVICE IT? Your own gas company stands behind Electrolux and services every one it sells.

QUICK FACTS
Permanently silent
Has no moving parts
Frees you from costly repairs
Costs less to operate
Temperature regulator
Non-stop defrosting
Ample food space
Plenty of ice cubes

Don't hesitate to ask all the questions you think of when you consider the purchase of an automatic refrigerator.

We have listed four pertinent questions above. And we believe that the New Air-Cooled Electrolux has the best answers to all of them.

It costs less to run, because it operates upon a simpler, more efficient principle. A tiny gas flame circulates a simple refrigerant. Ordinary air cools it.

It's permanently silent, because it has nothing to make noise with.

It frees you from costly repairs because it has no moving parts to wear.

But Electrolux does not stop there. It has all the modern conveniences that make an automatic refrigerator a real joy to own.

Here are some of them: Interrior lighting. Vegetable freshener.

Rubber ice-cube grid. New gleaming-white Newton finish. Non-stop defrosting. Trigger tray release. Temperature regulator that speeds the freezing of ice cubes—and makes it easy to prepare delicious salads and desserts.

Please come in. We are sure that you'll share our enthusiasm for the New Air-Cooled Electrolux... it's so far in advance of all other refrigerators.

It's a real pleasure to own an Electrolux. And it's a pleasure, too, to know that your own gas company stands back of Electrolux and gladly services every one it sells.

STEEL INDUSTRY NOW IMPROVING

Head of Bethlehem Corporation Tells Stockholders Things Are Encouraging.

Newark, N. J., April 11.—(AP)—E. C. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, told stockholders at the annual meeting today that the company showed some improvement in the preferred stock in March and that he was hopeful of a profit in the second quarter.

"The trend of business is encouraging," he added. In response to a stockholder's query as to dividend prospects for the preferred shares, Grace said "the disposition will be to resume payments as soon as possible." He expressed the opinion that business in the second quarter "will go a long way toward earning the preferred dividend for that quarter."

There were protests from some stockholders on the corporation's salaries to executives, as revealed by the Federal Trade Commission. One shareholder cited the $250,000 yearly compensation to Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board, and asserted "there was no excuse for it."

No Bonuses Paid
 Regarding executives' bonuses Grace told the stockholders that none had been paid since July, 1931. Grace expressed views on the steel industry's NRA code which paralleled those given by Myron C. Taylor chairman of the United States Steel Corporation at its annual stockholders' meeting last week.

He characterized the code as one "which gives an opportunity for proper consideration of employees, the consumer and the owners of the business," but he believed it should be regarded as an emergency measure.

Grace said there had been "fine co-operation" by the government in the working of the code, and "no dictation." Administration of the code, he added, was in the hands of the American Iron & Steel Institute.

Reverting to the question of Schwab's salary, the President said the company felt that the chairman was entitled to compensation not in view of the fact that he had worked without salary and without dividends on his preferred stock and had stood ready to sign the notes of the company when it was young.

"The corporation," Grace averred, "could not by payment of $250,000 annually or any other sum repay Mr. Schwab for his past sacrifice."

Schwab is still working for the corporation, said Grace, and would have been at the meeting were it not for his illness. The chairman is in Europe by his doctor's orders, Grace reported.

When Grace finished his remarks on Schwab the meeting gave a vote of confidence to the chairman and the chief executive officer of the corporation.

Tax Collector Must Fill Out Applications Giving Needed Data.

Thirty-five home loans have been granted in Manchester since the government announced the plan to assist in the financing of property which owners were in danger of losing. Two more such loans are to be completed today, bringing the total to 37 and in addition to this there was mailed from the Hartford office on Saturday 31 more applications that have been made by owners of property in Manchester asking for loans. The applications all come to the tax collector. The face of the application is filled out, which gives the name of the person making the application, the location of the property as to lot, or street number. The tax collector is asked to complete the reverse side of the application. On the reverse side there is the question of the amount of the valuation placed upon the property by the assessors, the amount of tax and the total tax that is due or if not paid what amount and the cost of the lien.

When these are filled out they are again sent to Manchester and two appraisers go over the applications, look up the condition of the house as it is today. On the report of the appraisal that is made the amount of the loan to be made will be decided.

Queer Twists In Day's News

Femberton, N. J.—George Riely, former constable and traffic policeman who was arrested on a charge of beating up a brother-in-law, told Justice of the Peace Emil T. Speir that he had no money for bail.
 But, said the magistrate, he had no officer to take the prisoner to the county jail at Mount Holly.
 "What's the matter with taking myself to jail?" asked Riely.
 The court consented and the prisoner went to jail unescorted.
 Woodbury, N. J.—"Let's go boys! There's a fire in Sewell," cried the Barnabro boys, with a lusty yell from the fire house siren. They had seen a glow in the sky.
 "Let's go, boys! There's a fire in Barnabro," shouted the Sewell firemen on hearing the siren.
 The two fire companies met half way between the villages and halted for explanations. The fire, it seems, was in some grass which the Sewell laddies had burned for "practice."
 Clarion, Pa.—Lightning struck a transformer outside the junior high school last night in the midst of a student display, shattering a score of windows and bringing the 850 spectators to their feet.
 Thirteen-year-old Mary Belle Baker kept on with her piano playing without missing a note.
 "That's all that saved a panic," said school officials.
 Curtis, Neb.—Sheriff Art Hudson now is sure of the truth of the old axiom that chickens go home to roost.
 In searching for some chickens stolen from the Berry farm and Hudson found that a Maywood produce dealer purchased some chickens from Earl V. Nelson. Berry was unable to identify them and Nelson denied having stolen them.
 So Hudson took the chickens to a point half-way between the Berry farm and the house occupied by Nelson and turned them loose. Came dusk, and the 14 fowls went to the Berry hen house to roost.
 Pittsburgh—Anti-daylight forces took the lead in Mayor William N. McNair's post card referendum yesterday.
 The issue—whether Pittsburgh will operate on fast time again this summer—has brought 2,064 votes against and 1,141 in favor of advancing the clocks.

MEDIAEVAL LAW

At a time when it is beginning to be realized that the total indebtedness of all kinds in this country is actually greater than the total value of property of all kinds—which means that even a 100 per cent liquidation would still leave a great mass of debt uncollected—it is impossible to continue to hold the same view toward debt that was almost universally held up to the time of the 1929 crash. That view was that the creditor must be protected in his due, no matter what became of the debtor.

That we are beginning to examine this problem anew is no indication of any change in a moral attitude. It merely signifies that we are becoming a little better at arithmetic and that we are making a distinction between possibilities and impossibilities.

It is probable that there will be, before long, a considerable alteration, not only in the common view of the question of debt but in those laws which have grown up, over a long period, out of a determination to arrange things so that the creditor shall always be enabled to collect his due; and which have had scant mercy on the delinquent debtor.

There was a time, and it is not so long since, when imprisonment for debt was a very common recourse. Charles Dickens was largely responsible for practically driving that long standing institution out of Great Britain and every American state long ago eliminated such protection for the creditor, save in special circumstances where deliberate fraud was at least indicated.

Here in Connecticut we have retained on our statute books some vestiges of the old debt imprisonment system. On the face of these existing statutes they are applicable only to persons unworthy of much consideration, but in practice they are sometimes made to apply harshly and unjustly. It is actually possible for a well intentioned person to be put in jail for a debt which he had neither the desire nor the intention to contract, which he is unable to pay but would pay if he could.

A current case of this sort is in mind. The debtor became a debtor through a court judgment when, without legal advice, he admitted responsibility for an automobile accident. He did not have the money to meet the judgment, nor any way of raising it. He offered to pay in installments. The judgment creditor refused to accept anything but a lump sum and attached the body of the debtor, landing him in jail.

It is submitted that statutes under which such action can be taken are out of sympathy with the times and completely out of accord with the whole debtor-creditor setup of the country. It should be the business of the next session of the General Assembly to either abolish this archaic law providing for the attachment of bodies on judgment debts or so amend it that merely unlucky individuals cannot, under it, be sent to jail like common criminals. Such cases as the one in question are a relic of medievalism.

HARTFORD'S TAGS

The Hartford alderman who stormed and crated all over the place because he turned out to be one of the 124 automobilists to receive the new "unfixable" tags in Hartford's crusade against motor law violators at least had the courage of his convictions. Obviously it is the sincere belief of Alderman Reid that city officials should not be held to the same accountability to the law as ordinary people, and that when a policeman or police official fails to recognize such immunty there is something the matter with our civilization. It is not, really, an altogether extraordinary view, being held by a good many, but most of those who do hold it are not so willing as Mr. Reid to maintain it on the housetops.

Whether the Hartford Police Department will stand by its guns, and continue to give to automobile law violators tags that cannot be "fixed" anywhere short of the city court, remains to be seen. But the department is certainly justified in declining longer to take the rap for slovenly and discriminatory enforcement of the laws.

If the traffic regulations are unreasonable they should be changed. That is true of every state and city and town. If they are not unreasonable they should be enforced. And if they are to be enforced there is neither benefit nor common honesty in enforcing them against people without a pull while neglecting to enforce them against persons with a pull.

It is well to remember that while 124 motorists received tags yesterday there were probably twenty or thirty thousand on the streets of Hartford who did not. That, in the vast majority of cases at least, was unquestionably because they obeyed the regulations. The 124 could have avoided tagging by doing the same thing.

JONES AND FROZEN BANKS

Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, leaps into print with an attack on the McLeod bill providing for immediate payment of depositors in closed national and Federal Reserve banks, which Mr. Jones describes as "hard to justify" and which he says would, if it were extended to all state and national banks, occasion a loss to the government of two and a half billion dollars.

Of course he would. Mr. Jones has administered his office, ever since he assumed it, with extremely small regard to bank depositors. He and his RFC, upon which Mr. Roosevelt relied all too confidently to come generously to the aid of the distressed banks, have operated on the old fashioned "big banker" plane straight through these many months of attempted recovery. More than a few banks are closed because of accepting ill-advised RFC loans for which they surrendered securities far in excess of the sums they received. As for the depositors, they have received as much mercy from the RFC as if they were enemies of their country.

For months before the final great banking collapse of winter before last the United States government, through every agency at its command, besought the people not to withdraw their money from the banks. The "hoarder" was held up to public obloquy. Then the banks closed and the "patriotic" deposits were "frozen" and hundreds of millions of them have never thawed out.

If ever there was a case where the losers' losses should be shared by everybody, this is it. By any half way decent moral standard the obligation of the government to assume the deprivation and the inconvenience of waiting for the indefinitely slow "thawing" is plain and sure.

The McLeod bill is one of the most honest and most moral measures that Congress has ever been called to pass upon. But the person who wouldn't have known Jesse Jones' attitude toward it, without a word out of him, is simply incapable of adding to and two but perfectly capable of expecting something besides its age-old vocal exploit from a hog.

HIGH PRICED TORCHES

Whether the Wagner-Costigan anti-lynching bill, which has been reported by the Senate Judiciary committee, ever comes to a vote at this session of Congress appears to be regarded as problematical. On the face of it, the smart way to beat the measure is to keep it from being voted on if possible, since even the hardest-bolled Southern Congressmen must shrink from openly voting against it. Indeed if a vote can be forced it would not be in the least surprising if it were adopted, despite the preponderance of Democrats in Congress and the importance of the Southern influence.

The bill would transfer the responsibility of investigating lynchings and the prosecution of lynchners from state to federal authorities. It provides severe penalties for peace officers who turn over prisoners to mobs.

But the really clever provision is the one which would permit federal attorneys to bring suit in federal courts against counties in which lynchings occur and provides that a county found guilty would be required to forfeit $2,000 to $10,000 to the family of the victim. The original bill fixed the penalty at $10,000 but the change was made in committee.

Even a $3,000 penalty would probably result in a very decided change in the attitude of many a Southern county toward the lynching of Negroes. Southerners do not like to pay excessively for their fun any more than anybody else and Negro-burnings at $2,000 or perhaps $10,000 may be expected to be a very different thing from one absolutely free with some corn liquor thrown in.

It is doubtful if all the other sections of the Wagner-Costigan bill put together are worth as much as that one. "Niggers" at several thousand dollars apiece are reminiscent of slave days. They didn't lynch them in the old time when each represented cold cash.

CHEAP BUT THEN WHAT?

Over in New York state they are discussing, often with much heat, a proposed law very considerably extending the parole system for convicts. Police Commissioner O'Ryan says its passage would bring what would be "little short of a general jail delivery from the prisons of the state." Warden Lawes of Sing Sing and others make indignant replies.

With the details of the proposed law we need not concern ourselves but it is interesting to note that prominent in Warden Lawes' argument is the assertion that while it costs $485.19 a year to keep a convict in prison it cost only $46.81 to keep him on parole.

They had a way of dealing with ordinary criminals in England a century and a half ago which, if economy is to be the measure of merit, laid all over the parole system. They hanged them on Tyburn Hill. The hangmen got about a sovereign apiece for the job and that was the end of the expense of that particular burglar, pickpocket or counterfeit, for good and all.

It was the cheapest possible way of disposing of crooks—but it didn't, after all, prove satisfactory. The extensive parole system proposed in New York may be potentially excellent, but you can't prove it by sitting its economies.

CHERRY BLOSSOMS BLOOMING

Washington, April 11.—(AP)—The capital's far-famed cherry blossoms were in bloom more and more this sunny, warm spring day.

Yesterday the trees bordering the tidal basin, near the Washington monument, were but a deep crimson tinge where the blossoms nestled.

But this morning early horseback riders saw the first furries of pink and white as the blossoms began.

IN NEW YORK

By PAUL HARRISON

New York, April 11.—Black Harlem is almost as racially conglomerate as the rest of Gotham. For here are Negro people from all over the earth—Mohammedans from the East, Buddhists even, from islands near the Orient—Christians from ancient Abyssinia, Nubians, Senegambians, folk whose forebears knew Stanley, East and West Indians, castles from South America.

Thousands speak French; others Portuguese and Spanish. Some newspapers print columns of items from Jamaica, Cuba, Porto Rico and the Barbados. Societies have been formed to promote interracial amity, but the strongest integrating force is the feeling of superiority of the American Negro and the foreigners' envy of him. In the night clubs of the dusky "Latin quarter" around One Hundred and Tenth street they're singing "Je Got Harlem on Mon Mind," "Vieux Home River" and "Underneath ze Harlem Lune."

All races show a willingness to stake money on the turn of the dice or the flip of a card. And in well-guarded basements reached by labyrinthine passages, all manner of dusky sportsmen gather each night for the breathless, bloody excitement of cockfighting.

Food and Drink
 Food and drink are unifying factors, too. They say it doesn't take a Jamaica boy any time at all to acquire a taste for corn whiskey. And there are few Central American and West Indian restaurants any more, each with its native cook and special menu. Foreigners are learning to like fried chicken and corn pone, and are eaten raw, fried or boiled. Sabadillas, or "sugar apples," are the prime delicacy from Jamaica—gray-green with a kind of marsh-mallow inside. Trinidad Negroes will walk a mile for a mangoed or "star apple," which comes in clusters and tastes like figs. All of these things are especially imported for the Harlem trade, and every morning the market men go down to get them at an East river pier where they are unloaded and sold at auction.

Powder and Dust
 Witch doctors and apothecaries meet these boats too, and pay over good money for bags of evil-smelling powders and little bundles, of twigs, all ingredients of the weird concoction of Harlem's black magic. "Devil Sticks" from some thrice-cursed shrub of the West Indies, are

ABOUT HEART TROUBLES

Most of your letters dealing with heart trouble ask about conditions which are common but not always serious. For example, the patient wants to know about it if he has a beating of the heart, nervous heart, valvular leakage of the heart, or pain through the chest which he believes may be due to heart trouble, etc.

A symptom which readers often inquire about is too rapid beating of the heart. This is present when there is an increase above the normal in the times the heart beats per minute. Too rapid beating of the heart may be a temporary symptom or may be present most of the time. It alarms the patient and he generally desires to be examined by a heart doctor. As a matter of fact, this symptom is not in itself a serious one and while it may be due to a heart complaint, very often the cause is not in the heart but elsewhere. If it lasts for only a few minutes and causes no alarm.

Some of the conditions which cause palpitation or rapid beating of the heart with a thumping or banging sensation are: anemia, the presence of gas in the top of the stomach which is pressing against the heart, over-use of tobacco, emotional strain disorders of the thyroid gland such as some forms of goitre, valvular leakage of the heart, fever, indigestion, etc. Before becoming unduly frightened over rapid beating of the heart, it is a good plan to have an examination by a heart doctor if the palpitation is due to a heart disturbance or is caused by some other trouble.

I believe that the most uncomfortable heart symptoms arise when the patient has what is called nervous heart. This is when there is nothing organically wrong with the heart itself, but there is some disturbance of the nerves which govern the heart rate so that the heart does not do its work as it should. Frequently the attack is followed by emotional excitement or stimulation.

I find that many letters deal with valvular leakage of the heart, also called leaky valves. A mild or moderate valvular damage is not considered a serious heart disorder. A slight valvular trouble may usually be entirely overcome and I have observed serious cases which were relieved to the point where no inconvenience occurred and the patient could carry on all ordinary activities. When there is present valvular leakage, the heart valve is no longer shut off the backflow of blood and some of the blood leaks back instead of flowing forward. When these valvular defects are present the doctor who listens to the heart will hear blowing sounds which are called murmurs.

Pain through the region surrounding the heart is very often not related to any heart condition and in fact the more serious forms of heart trouble usually cause little or no pain. Instead of worrying over these shooting, darting or stabbing pains, it is a much better plan to be examined thoroughly and to find out the true meaning of the symptoms. While pain occurs around the heart and down the left arm in one form of heart trouble, angina pectoris, nevertheless, the presence of pain is not always a conclusive proof that anything is wrong with the heart.

Other symptoms which may be present with heart trouble are: Faintness, giddiness, numb sensations through the hands and feet, perhaps swelling of the ankles, a bluish tinge to the face, shortness of breath after slight exercise, a choking feeling through the chest, and a tendency to become tired easily.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS (Bones in the Body)
 Question: Anderson, Ind., writes: "We have been having an argument and we want you to settle it. The question is does a man's body have one more rib than a woman's or does it have one less?"
 Answer: A man's skeleton has the same number of ribs as a woman's.

(Spurs)
 Question: Cashmere, Wash., writes: "I have recently been having a lot of trouble with the bones in my neck. My doctor says that possibly spurs have formed."
 Answer: The spurs are probably those called "Rheumatic Spurs." These spurs often occur on the heel but may also be found in other parts of the body. When located on the heel they will cause exceeding pain when one walks and it is sometimes necessary to remove large spurs surgically. Small ones may be absorbed in some cases by using the diet for rheumatism and by insulation of the foot through using hot foot baths containing Epsom salts. (Pain and Soreness in Left Side)
 Question: Mr. H. C. of Los Angeles Calif., writes: "What would cause a pain in the left side and also soreness?"
 Answer: It is almost impossible for me to give you a definite cause of the pain since you have provided me with very little information by means of your letter. The pain may be due to pressure of gas in the top of the stomach, or to several other causes. I believe it would be advisable for you to write to me again in care of the "Illustrated Daily News," sending me a copy of your doctor's report and enclosing a large, stamped envelope on which you have placed your name and your address.

AUTO VICTIM DIES

New Britain, April 11.—(AP)—Matthias Labritis, age about 80, of 187 Van Street, who was struck by an automobile driven by William Wilson of this city, last night on Arch street, died today at New Britain General Hospital. His injuries consisted of fractures of both legs, his nose and skull.

When the police learned of Labritis' death, they arrested Wilson on a charge of manslaughter. After the accident, Wilson told the police that Labritis ran out from behind a parked automobile into the path of his machine.

Edward J. Cornish, vice president of Patino Mines and Enterprises Consolidated, reports that the company's properties would be satisfactory were it not for the difficulties between Bolivia and Paraguay. He says Bolivia, where the com-

Because of this situation Patino Mines has proposed to acquire a 25 percent holding in the British Tin Investments Corporation which has large tin interests in Malaya.

The ROMANTIC RUNAWAY

KATHARINE HAVILAND-TAYLOR

BEGIN HERE TODAY
PABLITO, a handsome youth, became a fugitive when he fled from Key West to Havana with BEAU and LOTTIE, two thieves. Pablito has been accused of a murder he did not commit. MARCIA TREADWAY, socially prominent, could prove he is innocent but fears scandal.

Pablito is in love with ESTELLE FIELD, daughter of rich JIM FIELD. In Havana, under the name "Juanito," he became celebrated as a boxer and he and Beau open a gymnasium.

SIR AUBREY, a titled Englishman and Pablito's father, is searching for his son, employing Billings, New York detective.

Three years pass and then Pablito sees Estelle again. They admit their love for each other and meet secretly until Estelle's father hears of it. He tells her she must break off with Pablito or he will turn the young man over to police on the old murder charge. Estelle agrees.

Meanwhile Billings, convinced Pablito is Sir Aubrey's son and innocent of the charge against him, sets to work to prove this.

Field decides to take his daughter on a yacht cruise.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVI

Estelle heartily disliked Alec Davids when she first met him—a lank, attenuated young man with flabby muscles and a constant craving for cocktails. After a week on the yacht, however, she let him talk to her without showing her aversion and he was encouraged.

Sitting beside her in a deck chair, he had his own thoughts that in bitterness squallied hers. "You think I'm mad about you?" Alec reflected as the girl turned away her face. "Well, I'm not. I wouldn't look at you if I could get out of it."

The reason he couldn't get out of it was because of the state of the Davids' finances. Alec quite agreed with his mother that it was necessary for him to marry a rich wife.

"After that," Mrs. Davids had gone on to point out, "you can go your own way." Alec had nodded complacently. He fully intended that.

He knew Field liked him and wanted him to marry Estelle. And he knew the reason Estelle would be means of this marriage, reach the inner circle of society, the shabby outer fringe of which Field had only touched.

Alec Davids could trace his ancestry to aristocratic forebears. The fact that the family had disintegrated sharply was unimportant. Alec's mother had been willing to accept considerable benefits from those of her acquaintances who wished to reach a higher rung of the social ladder, the while she sneered at them. Both Alec and his mother took prodigally and gave nothing in return except a smile that was seared with patronizing scorn.

Even now Alec sometimes borrowed from Field. "Might as well get the old rotter in the habit of coming across," he decided. He was amused by Field's too lavish display of his wealth. The older man, seeing and sensing the sneer, was more than ever certain that Alec was the man for his daughter.

"He's the real stunner," Jim Field said to Marcia one afternoon.

"His mother is the worst snob in New York," Marcia answered and her usual drawl was threatened by a rise of heat.

"She snubbed me, too," Field said quickly. Marcia laughed, admitting that the thrust had hit a vulnerable point. "She won't snub me now," Field went on. "She wants this marriage just as much as I do." As he spoke he nodded toward the two deck chairs which, close together, held Estelle and Alec Davids. "Alec told me his aunt had promised to lend him her palace near Rome for his honeymoon."

"The one who married that disgusting count?"

"Yes."

"The place is gorgeous. I've seen it." "One of the largest in Italy," said Field who had a great respect for size.

Alec was talking to Estelle about poetry. She liked it, he had discovered, and he had culled all that he could from the library aboard. Estelle, believing he really was fond of the verses he quoted, looked at him with the first showing of interest. She had not thought that he would care for Houseman. She must have been quite unjust to him.

"That is one of my favorites," she said, after his voice had died away. "I don't quite want to believe it but it does suit a mood that comes now and then."

Alec nodded and went on speaking. He talked well and pleasingly when he cared to. He had been reared by his mother and sundry tutors in France and England and the inarticulateness general in collegiate circles was not his.

"Our tastes must be the same," he said with a suddenly flaring ardor that seemed genuine. "They must be for you to be perfectly happy—that and to be near you some times. You don't mind my saying this, do you?"

Estelle tried not to annoy you again. Estelle, he promised, "but it's difficult to keep silent, feeling as I do. I've never cared for anyone like this before. It's—well, it isn't easy. But that's selfish of me. All I want is for you to be perfectly happy—that and to be near you some times. You don't mind my saying this, do you?"

He waited, leaning across the arm of the chair toward her. She turned her head and he was surprised, but not touched, by seeing tears in her eyes. He said a quick, apparently distressed, "What is it, dear?"

She told him she was very unhappy and that she was lonely. He, too, had been lonely, and felt his jaws ache from the effort. Lord, he was dead for sleep! But he had to go on with this farce.

"You haven't told me whether my being near you annoys you, Estelle. I really want to know. I want to know terribly."

"Oh, it doesn't annoy me," she answered. "Nothing seems to matter much to me lately. But I don't want you to hope that I will change my mind about you, for I can't. I'm never going to marry."

"If I believed that I'd make a lovely splash in the sea out there, I'd leave you," she said almost petulantly. "Oh, please don't talk like that." And again she turned away her face.

The yellowed calendar leaf above Pablito's desk read, "June." He tore the leaf off. Already it was the fifteenth of July and, for all he knew, he might have become a year older. He had no way to count the years since he had no certainty of his birthday.

He had been sitting at his desk writing to the man he had come to know as Sir Aubrey. They had written several letters to each other. Now, his letter sealed in its envelope, the old tangle was plaguing him again. If he were to escape, he would have to pull Beau and Lottie into it. In their way they were his friends. He had for them both a genuine affection that had persisted in spite of many trials. Then too, if he were willing to sacrifice them who would believe him? The evidence was clearly against him. Besides he could not do this to Beau and Lottie—even for Estelle.

He wondered where she might be now. He had had no word from her. Each night he dreamed that the next day might bring him some message, but each day held nothing beyond the usual routine. "I must stop hoping like this," he decided on those bad days when the pain in his heart seemed too sharp to be endured. But he could not stop.

Gossip told him the Field yacht had touched many shores and now was under steam in the Mediterranean. He thought of Estelle looking on fringes of palms, low pink and blue houses, or a misty line of far blue mountains. But thinking of her was not enough. He was more the man and his hunger had grown with his capacity for suffering.

One thing he was spared and that was any doubt of her. He did not so much as question the fact that she would wait for him, just as he would wait, until they could be together.

The clubs were empty of tourists who enjoyed a good boxing match and no one came to the gymnasium during the summer. There was nothing to do—nothing but to wander down to the harbor entrance to hear the band play or motor into the country. At neither of these pastimes could he escape his thoughts.

With the idea that a change might do him good he took a trip to Camaguey and on to Santiago but the ache only increased. He thought so frequently, "Estelle would like this—"

Twice he had visions of her that seemed so real they made him catch his breath on a sob as they faded. He dreamed of her continually and thus waking became agony. He would dream that she was in his arms and then, awakening, find them empty.

He grew thin. His face was haggard and his eyes shadowed. "Honest, you hardly eat anything, dear," Lottie complained at every meal.

PRESIDENT AND HIS SON CATCH NEARLY 200 FISH

Miami, Fla., April 11.—(AP)—President Roosevelt is spending his last day at sea fishing off Gun Cay island in the Bahamas, directly opposite Miami.

Vincent Astor reported the President and his son James caught 190 fish yesterday.

His message to Marvin H. McIntyre, White House secretary here, follows: "The President and Jimmy went fishing yesterday afternoon and believe it or not, they caught 190 fish. From now on, the Ellis and the Nourmahal will live on fish. Remaining out here for remainder of day as fishing conditions seem very fine."

The Nourmahal, Astor's yacht, is the one on which the President is spending his fishing trip. The Ellis is a Coast Guard boat.

TIDE WATER OIL CO.'S REPORT SHOWS STRENGTH

President Humphrey Tells Stockholders 61 Cents Per Share Earned on Stock.

New York, April 11.—Preliminary figures on 1933 earnings of Tide Water Associated Oil Company, given out on March 16 by William F. Humphrey, President, were verified and amplified today in his annual report to stockholders.

The company earned $7,265,801, and, after allowing for dividends paid and accrued on the preferred stock, the earnings applicable to the common stock amounted to $3,404,766 or 61 cents a share. In 1932, the company earned $4,718,694 and of this amount $701,419, or 13 cents a share was applicable to the common stock.

Total current assets on December 31, 1933, amounted to $52,372,485 against current liabilities of $9,631,159, a ratio of 5.49 to 1. In comparison with cash and government and short term securities amounting to $11,169,997 on December 31, 1933, the company had $13,791,847 in 1933 with no bank loans outstanding. Inventories at the close of 1933 were carried at $27,221,797, or more than $4,500,000 lower than their estimated market value.

Out of gross earnings, $10,616,700 was expended in the purchase of property and equipment, $673,000 in the acquisition of common stock of subsidiaries, $7,325,000 in reduction of bank loans, purchase money obligations, funded debt of subsidiaries, and acquisition of preferred stock of the company and its subsidiaries. This expenditure of $7,325,000 during the year reduced the capital and other financial obligations $9,349,000 and eliminated annual dividend requirements in an amount of $187,000 and annual interest charges amounting to $260,000 or total annual charges against earnings of $417,000.

The preferred stock of Tide Water Associated Oil Company has been reduced from 732,845 shares with a par value of $73,284,500 as of January 1, 1931, to 636,223 shares now outstanding with a par value of $63,622,300 or a reduction in capital liability of $9,662,200 and in annual dividend requirements of $576,732, according to Mr. Humphrey's statement.

A total of 51,282 shares of Tide Water Associated preferred stock was retired during the year. The shares were acquired at an average cost of $64.48 per share and the difference between this cost and the par value of $100, totaling $2,339,809, was added to the consolidated surplus account during 1933.

Effectiveness of Advertising Proved by Actual Local Experiences.

From time to time, the effectiveness of The Herald's Classified Ads have been proved by voluntary expressions of satisfaction on the part of the legion of users of this unexcelled medium of advertising. And once again The Herald has the opportunity of driving home the splendid results to be obtained from Classified, results that brought four cancellations in a single day.

Mrs. R. W. Post of 147 Benton street advertised an electric refrigerator for sale. The ad was ordered for three insertions but after the first Mrs. Post called to cancel the ad, having sold the machine on one insertion.

Mrs. Edward Harper of 24 Fairview street wanted a baby carriage in good condition and resorted to Classified. She got just what she wanted and again only one insertion was necessary to bring results.

Mrs. J. J. Allison of 60 Foster street had an upright piano to dispose of and used the Classified medium. The ad was ordered for two insertions but the instrument was sold after the first and the ad was cancelled.

Mrs. John Stevens of Lake Street desired to sell a new milch cow. She tried Classified and the result brought her a purchaser in a matter of days, not with the second but the third turned the trick.

Numerous additional instances could be cited as to the far-reaching power of Classified but four illustrations of its effectiveness should convince even the most doubting that Classified at least deserves a trial. Try it. The results will more than offset the slight cost.

Hits About Everything Except Freight Train

(By Dale Harrison) New York, April 11—(AP)—James F. Dowd went out for a drive in his car last night, going down the street in what might be called a "sigzag" formation. The first thing he did was to run smack into another car, doing it no end of damage. "Gounds!" he muttered, backing away and then proceeding down the street as before the occupants of the wrecked machine were wringing their hands and delivering themselves of hot words, the Dowd car was well advanced on a further career of degradation. The first thing it connected with was a safety zone station. Having disposed of station number one, the car proceeded on toward station number two. Station chion after station succumbed to the vehicle's fury; and no side of the street was shown any favors.

Once the car missed a station; yet it could hardly be scored as a complete miss, inasmuch as a citizen, unidentified, who was standing in the same vicinity, was nicked by a fender and sent sprawling. This latter event incensed another citizen, Samuel Lipschitz, who ran and jumped on the running board of Dowd's car. "Here, here," he shouted to Dowd. "Enough of this nonsense." "Phooey to you," said Dowd, pushing Lipschitz off the running board into the street. Reaching a side street, his radiator sporting steam like a steam train, Dowd flashed into a parked car again, from which his machine bounced across the street into another car. By this time the police had been notified that John Dillinger was on the loose; murdering the entire population of upper Manhattan. Police of three districts through which Dowd zigzagged finally brought him to bay. Pending an audit of safety zone stations, wrecked motor cars and nerve-shattered citizens, police laid a charge against him of felonious assault on Lipschitz.

BARSTOW REPRESENTS WESTINGHOUSE HERE

The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company has announced the appointment of J. F. Barstow, 215 Center street, well-known radio dealer in Manchester for the past twelve years, as exclusive Westinghouse Dual-Automatic Refrigerator dealer for Manchester. Display for the present will be maintained on the floor of the Manchester Electric Company at 773 Main street and at the Manchester Electric Company's display at the Center.

Mr. Barstow, who has had considerable past experience with both open type and hermetically sealed refrigerators, is very enthusiastic over the new Westinghouse Dual-Automatic—Hermetically sealed refrigerator, which are backed by one of the oldest and financially strongest electric companies in the world. In stressing the superiority of the Hermetically sealed mechanism Mr. Barstow states that Westinghouse has designed and tested every type of refrigerator unit—open and sealed—reciprocating and rotary and has made exhaustive tests dating from 1889. After conclusively proving to their satisfaction the superiority of the hermetically sealed unit, Westinghouse put it on the market four years ago and have not changed the basic design since. For free, efficient service, Mr. Barstow states that the best recommendation can be found among the many Westinghouse owners right here in Manchester.

NEED ORDERS NOW FOR THE YEARBOOK

Must Know How Many Subscriptions Can Be Counted Upon This Year.

A low price for Somanthis with possibly further reduction if subscribers are generous was announced yesterday by the business staff in the following notice: "The Somanthis staff is pleased to announce that your wish to have a Yearbook issue of Somanthis in 1934 is to be carried out. Bids for printing, engraving, etc., have been solicited, advertising is being solicited, and the various contents are being planned. In short, everything is being done to produce a Yearbook ranking second to none. "In order that our plans may be successful, it is necessary for us to know how many students are going to back their wish for a yearbook with a cover copy. It is estimated that the yearbook will be possible for us to make a material saving which we wish to pass along to you. However, if the yearbooks were to be purchased during the last week of school, we would be unable to clear up business matters in time to return any savings to you. For this reason the staff wishes to announce that no subscriptions will be taken after June 1. "Our plan is to charge 75 cents per paper covered copy and $1.75 for the full cover copy. It is estimated that we shall need no more than that, anyway. In order to make it easy for you we ask that you pay 25 cents at the time of subscription and the rest in equal installments before June 1. Payments may be made any Tuesday morning at your home room teacher. In case we are able to reduce the price, notice will be given to that effect and the reduction may be taken from final payments or returned to those who are paid subscribers."

THE CENTRAL LIMITED

Grand Central Station was a scene of great excitement. The Central Limited, crack speed train of the New York Central Railroad, was taking on not only a cargo worth millions, but also an extraordinary passenger. He was Frank Barnes, a millionaire of New York, who, directed by a strange malady, was being brought to Chicago to be operated on by an eminent surgeon in order to save his life. Mike O'Brien, the veteran engineer, as he sat in the cab showed no outward appearance of excitement for to him it was just another ordinary run. He watched the leading of the precious cargo of gold bullion and the arrival of an ambulance with the important passenger, who was taken aboard into a car already prepared for him. With a gasp the doctor who was to accompany him on this trip. At last everything was in readiness. The chief conductor at the rear car came out to the steps and waved his hand up and down. Mike O'Brien gave a few loud toots on the whistle and the engine slowly moved forward. The cars followed with a creaking noise and gathered momentum with each revolution of the wheels. At last the trip began in earnest. Mike O'Brien took out his watch in order to see the time. "We must arrive in Chicago tomorrow afternoon at four," said Mike to his fireman, Joe Stone. "It is only six o'clock now, so it means this run must be done in twenty-two hours, barring no accidents," answered Joe. "I guess this trip will be like others, only that it will have to be run in faster time than usual," stated Mike. But had he seen the two swarthy men who had boarded the train, his confidence would have been badly shaken. And also had he seen the third man who boarded the train in a suspicious manner, he would have had more to worry about. While the Central Limited sped through the dusk like a great greyhound, the patient sat in his car attended by two doctors. The patient seemed to be very frail and his face was pinched by the pain of the sickness. At one time he had been a great figure in social circles and was known all over the world as a great sportsman. But now he was a forgotten man. In another room sat two swarthy men in earnest conversation. The more evil looking of the two was speaking. "As soon as the train stops at Cleveland, we will strike," he said in a menacing tone. The other nodded in agreement and there the conversation ended. In the cook's compartment a strange scene was going on. The third strange and mysterious personage was making himself at home with milk and cake. "Sam, don't forget my favorite milk is Grade A," he said with a great mouthful of cake. "No sir, I won't forget," responded Sam and there the conversation ended. "I am in the cab everything was as it had been. The great fire in the furnace outline two begrimed men, seriously intent on their work. One roared the Limited, clicking mile behind as it neared its destination. Early in the morning, about six, it reached Cleveland. It stopped at the station where it was to stay for ten minutes. A railroad inspector went to the sealed car to open it in order to see that the cargo was unharmed. Unknown to him, two men secretly followed. A third man was mighty curious and was doing a little stalking himself. The railroad inspector had just opened the car when from behind came a command which froze him in his tracks. But to his surprise a second voice that snapped like a whip spoke out, "please elevate your hands and drop those weapons, gentlemen." The speaker's voice came up to the railroad inspector. "I am Inspector Clark of the Chicago police. I knew these men were present on this train. They are wanted for burglary." With these words he flipped open his coat lapel and exhibited his badge. The two men were taken into a car and locked up. Michael O'Brien asked a railroad inspector how much time there was left. "Eight hours," exclaimed the official. "How is the patient?" Mike then asked. "Well, I hear that he is becoming worse," answered the official. "Then we must do our best to arrive in Chicago before it is too late," exclaimed the engineer solemnly. A few minutes later the Limited began its last leg of the journey. "The patient's worst moments," Mike above the din of the noise to his fireman. The fireman heard and understood. "Let her go, Mike," he exclaimed. The train raced on, nearer to its destination. Hours passed and still miles to go. "How far are we?" cried Joe to the engineer. "About three hours time, I would say." "Let us hope we arrive there on time," exclaimed Joe. Miles clicked behind as the train sped through the night. Finally it reached its destination. An ambulance was already prepared to take the patient. Mike came out of the cab wearily and trudged over to the ambulance. Soon the patient was carried off the train onto the ambulance. Mike spoke to the doctor, "will he live, Doc?" "Yes, I think so, but if he hadn't arrived soon, it might have been a different story." —Victor Haponik, '35B

FORDS WIN TITLE IN BOTH LEAGUES

Automobile Versus College Basketball Fun Galore.

The Fords, winners of the H. S. Auto League, easily defeated the New York University team, winners of the College League, at the Armory Monday, by a score of 32-20. This game was the deciding one in the playoff for the championship of the two leagues. The Fords won the title in the Auto League by virtue of their earned victory over the Auburns, 33-28. The Auburns had been the champs of the first round of the league. Strangely enough, the Fords were at the bottom of the league at the end of the first round, having won but one game and losing six. However, a sudden change came over these stalwart lads and they made a gallant comeback to win every game in the last round. The N. Y. U. team had a fairly easy time winning their title in the College League, being the champs of both rounds, thereby earning the right to contend with the victors of the Auto League. The games for the championship ran to three before the victor was finally decided. The first game, played on Thursday of last week, was won by New York U. 24-20, with Sinnamon starring. The second game was a doubt, well-played tilt, but with little doubt as to the winner. The Fords ran up an 18-5 lead in the first half and 37-13, with Rowell starring. The deciding tilt was a fairly even battle, with the Fords putting on a last half rally to edge the college boys 32-20. The game was fairly even in the first half, but then Tierney and Obuchowski started ripping the cords in great fashion. Fouls were excessive in all three games, with several more still going unnoticed. The Ford team consisted of Captain "Zek" Tierney, "Obie" Obuchowski, "Buzzy" Green, "Nor" Rowell, "Charley" Rogers, and "Dane" Nielsen. The teams have expressed gratitude to Mr. Clarke for his interest in forming these leagues and thereby giving the boys an opportunity to play basketball, even though they were not fortunate enough to gain a berth on the High school teams. —"Dane", '34.

Women Called Timid But Never Cautious

Dr. William Lyon Phelps, formerly of Yale University, speaking in Hartford Monday, referred to the list of books in last Sunday's "New York Times" as an interesting list of the larger selling books, it contains some of the most widely read books, most of them light but not one injurious to the public morale.

The Bible has always been the largest seller and "In His Steps" has the next largest sale. A book of American biography is now being edited which will be absolutely invaluable to schools, for it will name all the important people of today. The first page of a newspaper, according to Professor Phelps, is a record of defeat in home and business life. The sporting page, however, records victories. In recent years athletic activities have been spreading throughout European countries. The English people have always gone in for sports in a big way and many people have copied them. Germany is a good example of a country that has recently become interested in athletics. Eltherton even German schools have done nothing more than study and sit around drinking beer. Now, the motto is, "Less beer and more exercise." "The Sporting Gesture," by Sticks is an anthology of sports—the first ever written. Upon reading these stories written by well-known sportsmen, one finds that the sporting gesture is more important than the sport. "They All Sang—From Tony Parleur to Rudy Valle", is a collection of vocal music edited by Marks, who tells under what circumstances the songs were sung and who sang them. Mr. Bossey edited a book of photographs from the year 1908. They are very funny but are not exaggerated. The hats are the funniest feature and Mr. Phelps compared the roof gardens of yesterday to the pavilions of today. His quotations from Samuel Johnson's that he perceivers of profound "Women are timid but never cautious." A new biography of Queen Elizabeth has been written by J. P. Neale. It brings out in an interesting way the characters of Elizabeth and of Mary, who was Queen of Scotland. Professor Phelps believes that few people know that T. E. Shaw, known as Colonel Lawrence, was only sixteen years of age when he persuaded the Arabs to fight on the side of the Allies during the World War, and is now only thirty-seven years old. Since then he has written many books and lived a life of exciting events. In "While Rome Burns", Alexander Woolcott shows himself to be a good conversationalist and monologist with a good sense of humor. Two interesting biographies, edited by Dr. Phelps are "The Death of an Ancient Mariner" by the Coles, and "Storm Music" by Yates, which are certain to make one forget all of his troubles because they are so thrilling. —Florence De Vito, '34.

MACHINISTS MOVE UP IN TRADERS LEAGUE

Take Nail Drivers Into Camp by Score of 18-14 After Smart Rally.

The carpentry and machine departments played in a double-header in Trade school's inter-department basketball contest at the School street Rec Thursday afternoon. In the main game both teams fought on even terms as they battled through half to a score of 10-9 for the carpentry department. At the beginning of the first part of the last half, the Machinists fought hard to gain a one-point lead over their opponents. Then came the climax of the game when the machine team staged a small rally, winning the game by a score of 18-14. This put the Machine team in second place in League I of the inter-department basketball tourney; while the carpentry team is still occupying the cellar position. "Bud" Carver started for the Carpenters by scoring six points, while the scoring honors were evenly divided among the Machine players. The second game was as interesting as the first as the Carpenters and the Machinists played the first to a close score of 9-8. In the last half the Carpenters five overwhelmed the Machine five as they won the game by a margin of fifteen points that made the final score 24-9. Kavan and Sudoff did the heavy scoring for the Carpenters, as they scored nineteen of the twenty-four points that were made. —Lewis L. Neff, '35.

ENGLISH CLASS USES EXPERIMENTAL TESTS

Manchester High school is one of the High schools in the United States to which the publishing company of Harcourt Brace has sent experimental copies of the text book "Understanding America" edited by William H. Cunningham, who is head of the English department of the Jamaica Plain High school in Boston, Massachusetts. The book is divided into seven different sections: "These United States and Their People", "Business in American Civilization", "Government and International Relations", "Public Opinion", "American Culture", "The Problem of Leisure", and "Changing America." Several articles under these sections are written by such men as Struthers Thurst, Aldous Huxley, Norman Thomas, Stuart Chase, Walter Lippmann, Deems Taylor, Joseph Wood Krutch, James Toulson Adams, and Franklin D. Roosevelt. Of the thirty-five articles now in the experimental text book, ten will be omitted. A chart is given to each pupil in which he records his opinion of each article read and the pupils of each school will vote on the ten articles that they believe should be omitted. —Florence De Vito, '34.

POET CHARACTERIZES ANIMALS IN FABLES

Miss Low's Junior French divisions have been learning and presenting orally before the class La Fontaine's fables, "La Cigale et La Fourmi", "The Grasshopper and the Ant", and "Le Corbeau et Le Renard". La Fontaine, a poet who wrote in the seventeenth century, is famous for his fables in which the characters are animals. During his childhood, he enjoyed country-life and studied the habits and actions of the insects and listened to the birds. He paid no attention to the ordinary activities of life. He began to write at the age of forty-seven. The poet points to and criticizes human faults and brings out definite morals. In "The Grasshopper and the Ant", the author shows what happens to an improvident person, while "The Crow and the Fox" warns against listening to flattery. —Anita Passacantilli, '34.

SPORT SLANTS

The baseball and track team were practicing outdoors for the first time this season Monday afternoon. The veterans were out arrayed in the full regalia of their respective sports while the new candidates went around in everything from neatly pressed suits to shabby old pants and sweatshirts. There is a scarcity of candidates out for the track team. It seems that only the better of the performers are attempting to make the team, although the track team itself has made an effort to get every boy in school interested in the track events and have them come out for the team. The first one out on the field was Wilson McCormick, the pole vaulter, and in spite of the fact it is early in the season, he was clearing over eight feet, easily and gracefully. Wilson's crowning ambition is to keep his brother Bob's record of twelve feet and two inches into an aschcan. He practices diligently and, before the season is over, may attain that height. Most of the attention was focused on the baseball team. Forty-five boys reported with burning ambitions to hit the ball over the road and make themselves a powerful threat to impress Coach Kelly. There was a woeful lack of both long hits and dazzling catches. There was also the lack of the look on Coach Kelly's face of being a man impressed. Earle Judd looked good in batting practice, sending the ball into the far reaches of left center field. Cobb fielded almost sensationally at third and displayed a powerful throwing arm. Rautenbergs, Bob Smith, "Cy" Comber and Captain "Chucky" Smith contented themselves with taking a few cuts at the ball and having a catch during the remainder of the practice. There were about six candidates for the pitcher's position. None stood out as exceptionally good but big Mike Haberman, Jack May and McCurry are tolerable candidates. The pitchers were not allowed to

HERALD GANG EATS AND PUTS ON SHOW

Vaudeville With Staff Members as Principals Features Gathering.

Herald employees and guests to the number of 36 were royally entertained last evening with a chicken dinner by the publisher, Judge Thomas Ferguson, and a program of vaudeville under the direction of the telegraph editor, Will Asmus.

The affair was held at the Manchester Country club, and the meal which was served in Steward Jerry Williams' inimitable style, was by way of returning the compliment of the bon voyage dinner given Mr. Ferguson in February. The delicious meal put everybody in the proper frame of mind to enjoy the entertainment that followed. The tables which were set in the main room were cleared away and chairs arranged for a full view of the impromptu stage erected for the evening by Director Asmus and his willing assistants.

The director in stove-pipe hat and protegee garb appeared before the audience and in a speech which embodied all the synonyms for "colossal" in Webster's dictionary, explained that he had combed the four quarters of the globe with a fine tooth comb for the talent. At every other sentence his rhapsodies on the excellence of the exhibition were interrupted by wisecracks from the stage. Archie Kilpatrick, of the reportorial staff, while the audience roared and held on to their "wicket" buttons.

Kenneth Hucson at the piano and Litman Selwitz, performing on the xylophone, trap drum and other instruments gave an added thrill to the various acts by their excellent music, and sound effects. Miss Dorothy Mitchell of the business office opened the program with a prologue, her closing lines being to the effect that if the audience didn't think it was "top sheet" her advice was like F. D. Roosevelt's, "Get out there and do it yourself."

Miss Ruth Behrend, who is in charge of the "Marianne" woman's column in The Herald, appeared in a kiddie costume and did a clever tap dance.

"Bop" of the classified advertising department, otherwise known as Mrs. Beatrice Jayson, appeared in a breath-taking illusion, and Miss Behrend and Charles Vickerman of the reporters, performed acts of Hindu magic. Albert (Red) Carvini, as the strong man gave a hefty exhibition but finally collapsed under the weight of tons in each hand. Bill Anderson of the famous local family of comedians, brought down the house with his rope-walking stunt, and received the first bouquet (?) of the evening. A closeup view revealed that it was edible, being wonderfully constructed from cabbages, celery plumes and beet greens. Several others were remembered with similar bouquets during the evening, which they received with mixed feelings.

Perhaps the most classy numbers on the program were those provided by David Hutchinson. David, who is the songbird of the Herald outfit, possesses a fine baritone voice, and his wide range was shown in the choice of solos, "Captain Mac," "The Big Bass Viol" and "Shortain' Bread." Dave might be singing yet if he had responded to the vociferous applause. Archie Kilpatrick's rendition of "The Last Roundup," brought forth thunderous applause.

Advertising Manager Leon Thorp, who worked unseen and unsung, was property manager. The cleverly constructed stage, with its equipment and somewhat transparent partitions, was evolved by him. The happy crowd departed at an early hour, with many expressions of thanks and praise to Mr. Ferguson and Mr. Asmus for a thoroughly enjoyable evening. It is hoped that the talent will get together for a repetition, in the not too distant future, of this startling display of the thespian skill.

Paul Packard, one of the musicians, whose sax went out of commission, obliged with a stammering sketch of "In a Way A Way," and brought many laughs not only because of his funny speeches, but from his gut and the fact that he was bearing in his arms a turkey or some other feathered bird that had come through the taxidermist's hands. In the dim light on the stage it resembled some weird musical instrument.

Louis Smith of the advertising department performed several feats of magic, afterward appearing in the audience with his wrist pierced through in a realistic manner by the blade of the sharp knife used in his act.

Assistant Fire Chief William McGonigal would like to find out who is responsible for the "phone call notifying him of a fire in his district when the fun was at its height.

Gypsies were given their names because they were thought to have come from Egypt; the actual original home of the nomadic gypsy tribes was in India, on the Ganges river, however.

STOCK MARKET NEEDS STRICKEN

Exchange Market Requirements Taken Out of Control Bill by Committee.

Washington, April 11.—(AP)—Six marginal requirements were stricken from the Stock Market control bill today by the Senate Banking committee without a record vote.

The committee completely revised the vital marginal section of the bill, adopting the Glass proposal to vest control over the problem with the Federal Reserve Board and the proposed Federal securities exchange commission.

They would regulate the markets under the bill as now drafted. The committee vote was the climax to a bitter dispute over provisions of the Stock Market control bill. Several modifications already had been made in the drastic marginal requirements of the original measure.

The Glass proposal was substituted for a provision under which purchasers of stock would have been required by law to put up 60 percent of the market value in cash or in stable securities.

Senator Glass (D., Va.) offered the plan which was approved by the committee. It has the endorsement of Eugene Black, Governor of the Federal Reserve Board.

This provision would give the Reserve Board complete freedom in fixing the marginal requirements on loans by member banks. The securities exchange commission would fix marginal requirements for brokers and non-member banks.

The committee added to the Glass amendment a provision designed to provide still greater flexibility to permit different marginal requirements in various sections of the country.

The committee referred to a subcommittee the sections of the stock bill dealing with corporations, with instructions to report back to the full committee Friday.

Registration of securities by corporations, prescribe rules for regular reports by corporations. Limit the use of proxies, require reports by officers, directors and large stockholders on their holdings of stock, and set forth liability of company officials for misleading statements.

Members of the subcommittee are: Chairman Fletcher, and Senators McAdoo (D., Cal.), Byrnes (D., S. C.), Walcott (R., Conn.), and Goldborough (R., Md.). Fletcher said this course was followed so the committee could "make better headway" with the bill—his said it would "save time." The subcommittee procedure was suggested by Senators Cousins (R., Mich.) and Walcott (R., Conn.).

Members of the committee said the Glass marginal plan would give the Reserve Board veto power over excessive margin requirements fixed by the commission to a certain extent.

FATHERS AND SONS TO DINE ON FRIDAY

Mrs. Nellie Marks Heads Committee in Charge of Annual Church Banquet.

According to the returns made by those having tickets for the Father and Son banquet Friday evening at the North Methodist church, it will be possible for the committee to care for a few more dads and sons if they will make reservations at once. Mrs. Nellie Marks heads the committee of women of the church who will cater for the banquet, the hour of which is 6:30.

The Happy-Go-Lucky Boys' orchestra will furnish music during the supper hour and will begin playing at 6:15. During the evening the Manchester Community Players will put on a sketch entitled, "The Necessary Ending." Miss Helen Hines of the High school faculty has been directing them.

Fayette B. Clarke will be song leader and Leon Hogue toastmaster. Herbert Reynolds will speak for the sons and Melvin Cox for the fathers. Miss Bernice Lydall will play the piano accompaniment.

The principal speaker of the evening will be Rev. Truman Woodward of the "White" church, East Hartford, who is always well worth hearing. Winslow McLoughlin and Arthur Pratt will sing a duet, and Winslow will play "The Lost Chord" on the violin.

A good supper and a splendid program is assured, and those who have not already signaled their intention of being present, should do so without delay.

Police started a search of the business district.

Certificates Are Redeemable Upon Application to Local Trust Company.

Holders of Fourth Liberty Loan bonds with the digits 9, 0 or 1 at the end of the serial number, may exchange these bonds for other government bonds "at substantial premiums" through the Manchester Trust company, according to an advertisement by the company in today's issue of The Herald.

The exchange must be done on or before tomorrow night at 7 o'clock, at the close of business. The local bank is giving this service on the request of Henry Morgenthau, Jr., secretary of the Treasury, who has wired the bank as follows:

"I would greatly appreciate your co-operation in reaching individual holders of called Fourth Liberty Loan bonds. Please use your good efforts not only in contacting your own customers but as a public service offer your facilities to your community. Suggest you get in touch with your local newspapers requesting them to bring facts to attention of the public. HENRY MORGENTHAU, JR., Secretary of the Treasury, WASHINGTON.

The Birmingham Community Players will present the play "The Antics of Andrew" this evening for the benefit of the church.

The Parent-Teachers Association held the monthly meeting Monday evening. The guest speaker was Mrs. Emily Pratt of South Glastonbury, who is secretary of the Glastonbury Board of Education. Her subject was "Books for Children."

The Highland Dairy company truck, a big white-covered conveyance for carrying milk, was stationed at the foot of Bell street on Hebron avenue to receive milk in the vicinity and from the eastern part of Glastonbury and Hebron.

CHAPTER IX FOREWORD The scandal sheets outside themselves in making a sensation of the episode at Cannes. Tommy returns to London as soon as he can travel but Mary refuses to answer any of his messages. Lord Bexford, on his return, is cold and refuses to believe Mary is telling the whole truth. In desperation, she asks Tommy to tell him. He absolves Mary of all blame, but Philip, far from being persuaded, is more outraged than ever at what he calls "cheap play-acting."

After Lord Bexford had closed the outer door behind him, Mary stood for a long time, gazing listlessly ahead of her. She felt she would never be able to move again. Then she heard one of the footmen approaching. She must move. Whatever had happened, she must not betray before the servants her feelings. Forcing herself to act in a casual manner, she gave him an order or two and went up to her room. She turned on all the lights and sat waiting. Surely Philip would come to her room to say goodnight. His reason would tell him he had been unjust. It could not be that everything between them was over—that her life lay in ruins about her. Her heart almost stopped beating when at last she heard him coming up the stairs. He did not hesitate, even, as he passed her door and went on to his room. So—it was over. It was dawn before Mary fell asleep and she awoke early. The maid who brought her breakfast tray, said Philip had already gone, saying he would not be in until late afternoon and then only to dress for a public dinner he was to attend that evening. On top of several letters

"You would love it," he said, coldly critical. "You watched some of your tricks of late." on the tray, lay a wireless message. Sylvia would arrive in London sometime during the day! "As if it weren't bad enough without her barging in with a wild crowd!" growled Mary under her breath. There was another emotion mixed with her consternation, however. In a way she was glad. Whatever her faults, Sylvia was big-hearted and one to be loyal unto death. Different as they were, there was a strong bond, there was a deep love between them. Her husband might fall here; Mary knew her sister would never, no matter what she did, "walk out on" her. Mary and Philip met in the library when he came home. She had steeled herself to be called but when he wished her good afternoon in polite, formal manner, she laughed hysterically and explained in answer to his question, she did it to keep from crying. "I'm bursting in here," she said, laying her hand on her heart. "What we need is a row—a good, honest, Irish brawl. Oh, I know you won't free. But if I let you, we'd get this out of our systems and the barriers would be down—we could forgive and forget." "You would love it," he said coldly critical. "I've watched some of your tricks lately," he stopped for the butler was approaching. "Miss Sylvia Watts is calling. Your Ladyship," he said. "She has several young men with her." "I'm sorry, Philip," said Mary, "when the butler has left, shall I send them away?" "Why?" he asked raising his eyebrows. "She is your sister." Sylvia took Mary in her arms and kissed her again and again, before she introduced her proper to her friends. Then she saw Philip walk through the hall and start upstairs. "Snubbing the barbarians!" she asked of Mary, who explained he was going up to Pamela before she

NEW ERA POLICY MAY HALT RELIEF Budget Allowance Is Dramatically Cut—Hope to Get More Information.

The local ERA board is confronted with the necessity of immediately reducing the number of employees on work relief under the Emergency relief plan begun last Monday morning, conform to an allotment of $13,500 given the town for the next two weeks under the state budgetary allowance plan for the ensuing month. The last regular full-time payroll under the CWA was $4,096.40 and was distributed to 1,500 workers. The allowance per week under the new budget work relief plan will be not more than $3,777 per week. It is expected that if the latest instructions from the state office regarding the budget for the next four weeks is adhered to, that further reductions in the working force to conform to the $3,777 per week will be necessary. The last short-term payroll will be distributed to the workers at the town garage tomorrow morning at 8:30 by G. H. Waddell and Supervising Engineer H. L. Griswold. In the letter from the state office, it was stated that the budget to be anticipated that the first payroll, and possibly the second, would be in excess of the average for the week as allowed under the plan. However, the two payrolls remaining must be reduced correspondingly below the average, since payrolls in excess of the monthly average will not be allowed. Waste of Effort The entire situation, here, with the budgetary allowances for the next four weeks, set, makes for complication and a waste of efforts which have been directed by the charity department working in conjunction with ERA investigators. It will mean that instead of adding to the ERA list, many who are deemed worthy of work relief, the list of employed will be decreased, at least for the next 30 days or until not unexpected cancellation of the recent order respecting the state budget has been received. In an effort to come to a definite understanding in regard to what may be expected in the way of further complicating instructions from the state office, members of the ERA board will visit the office of Miss E. H. Little, acting supervisor of the Emergency Relief Administration for Connecticut tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. At the beginning of the new program, local ERA officials, Mayors and other workers, were decidedly pessimistic of the value of the entire program if orders which members believe to be in direct contradiction to the information disseminated at the group meeting of two weeks ago in the Capital, continue to be received. Original Plan At the latter meeting the members of the board, sitting in with 300 other former CWA officials, Mayors and other workers, were given the opportunity to understand that the program was to be even more flexible as it concerned employment of worthy heads of families and deserving bread winners. The receipt of a budget for the period of the next day, had a very depressing effect on the board as a whole. It was hoped by members that the meeting tomorrow with Miss Little in Hartford will clear up many of the vexing problems which appear at this time. At the first meeting of the board yesterday afternoon, it was voted to set up a free re-employment bureau in town, to help in placing the large number of unemployed on various jobs that are expected to come during the season advanced by this bureau. It was also voted to develop the rest of the East Cemetery, not yet developed, into lots suitable for sale and for final improvement and acceptance as part of the town's largest cemetery. Nothing will be done along this line until the plans for the landscaping of the additions are made. The board voted to improve the Mt. Nebo playground, Globe Hollow swimming pool and the West Side playgrounds. A similar project for the improvement of the north end playground will be continued as other jobs in process of completion are finished.

It can't be a hypocrite," he said firmly. "I'm hurt, deeply hurt. I can't hold you in my arms to appease your vanity." "Stop it, Philip! You have no right to say such a thing." "Shall I change my nature, which is perhaps just a little more normal than your own—and start to set a lie?" She felt as if he had beaten her. Dumbly, she held out her hands in supplication. He did not take them. "Why build up a situation?" he said. "These are your people—the kind you like. Why don't you have a good time? Make whoopee, as you call it. There's plenty to drink—get drunk, if you like!" "Mary, without a word, ran down the stairs. Sylvia, seeing her face, sensed something was wrong, and said she and her friends were going on—she would see Mary the next day when they could be alone together. "I'm going, too," said Mary. When Philip, dressed for the dinner, came down he found Fenwick waiting. The secretary told him Mary had gone out—they had said they were going to the Toad in the Hole. It was, he said, a fashionable place, "a jolly spot." What he did

GRASS FIRES CALL OUT APPARATUS TWO TIMES

Third Blaze in Automobile Evidently from Cigarette—Forest Fire in Lyndalville. The South Manchester Fire Department responded to three still alarms yesterday, all of which resulted in only slight damage. At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Hose Company No. 3 was called to a grass fire in the rear of 19 Benton street. At 4 o'clock, Company No. 1 was called to a grass fire near R. O. Cheney's place at Love Lane. At 9:40 o'clock last night, No. 3 was called to Spruce and Birch streets to a fire in the automobile of Paul Strange, evidently caused by a cigarette tossed by a passerby. Forest Fire Warden John Jensen was engaged today in fighting a fire in the Lyndalville section of town, the first since he assumed that position. The flames were heading toward the Vernon-Bolton town line and a thousand acres are in danger of being burned over. Mr. Jensen was assisted by volunteer fire fighters.

CHILD HEALTH DAY SET ASIDE BY CROSS Proclamation Is Issued Today—Governor Calls It a "Statement."

Governor Wilbur L. Cross today issued a proclamation setting aside Tuesday, May 1 as "Child Health Day." Governor Cross' proclamation differs from previous documents of like nature in that His Excellency does not refer to the pronouncement as a proclamation. It is labeled simply "A Statement." It follows in full: STATE OF CONNECTICUT By His Excellency, Wilbur L. Cross, Governor. Whereas, The lack of proper care and nourishment has a far-reaching effect on the health of little children; and We are looking forward to a brighter economic future; and Our first step to regain ground lost in these years of depression should be taken in behalf of the children; and since we recognize the close relation of good health to proper mind and development of the body; Therefore, I, Wilbur L. Cross, Governor of Connecticut, do set aside Tuesday, May 1, 1934, as Child Health Day, and urge all individuals and organizations to give some thought to their future activities in Child Health and Welfare, that the near future may hold for the improvement in the conditions of health and happiness of our most precious asset, our children. WILBUR L. CROSS, Governor. Dated at Hartford, April 9, 1934 By His Excellency's Command: Kenneth Wynne, Executive Secretary.

WALL ST. BRIEFS

The New York Cotton Exchange Service estimates cotton consumption by domestic mills in March at 335,000 bales, compared with the Census Bureau figures of 48,000 bales for February and 495,000 in March, 1933. The next meeting of the International Chamber of Commerce is held at London beginning July 31, it is learned here. Members will review the metal's statistical position and decide whether to renew their agreement and continue regulation of output. Dow, Jones & Co. estimates that New York Central in March had net income of between $500,000 and $1,000,000 after charges. This would compare with net loss of $2,352,948 in March, 1933. J. J. Pelley, president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, says revenues for the first week in April exceeded those of the same 1933 week by about 14 per cent. JUDGE THREATENED New York, April 11.—(AP)—A postcard threatening County Judge Lester W. Patterson of the Bronx, and his six-year-old daughter, Joan, was received at the Patterson home April 4, the jurist disclosed today. Written in ink and signed "XYZ" the note said: "You'll be sorry for sentencing that young fellow to the reformatory. Something serious will happen to you or your daughter, Joan, before the end of the week." Judge Patterson was unperturbed over the note.

IRISH NINE TO HOLD MEETING TO ORGANIZE

The Irish Nine baseball team will meet at Wells street alley tonight. All players are asked to report. The time is seven o'clock, when all players are there they will go to the meeting place in the Charter Oak street loop. This team in the past years has given the fans some very good games. Last year was the first in three years that the team did not form and it was missed by many ball fans. The present line-up is J. Sullivan, c.; Robbins, p.; E. McCarthy, 1b.; J. Lovett, 2b.; Viot, ss.; Obie, 3b.; E. McCarthy, cf.; B. Sullivan, of.; Wodal, lf. Any other ball players in town who wish to try out may do so by attending this meeting. TRUCK DRIVER A HERO New Haven, April 11.—(AP)—A truck driver who entered a burning building, awakened persons sleeping on the second floor and then continued modestly on his way, was the hero of a fire today in the drug store and dwelling house at Sherman avenue and Legion avenue. The driver, whose identity was not learned, and who was believed to be a milkman, discovered the fire at 5:30 a. m. in the Legion pharmacy. Going to the second floor, he aroused Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cox, picked up their children, Whitley, 8, and Beverly, 8, and carried them to safety.

MRS. MASSIE RECEIVES WIRE FROM EX-HUSBAND

Genoa, Italy, April 11.—(AP)—Mrs. Thalia Massie, a patient in a hospital here following a recent attempt at suicide, today received a telegram from her former husband, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie. Dr. Dario Borelli, head of the mental institute where the central figure of the Honolulu "honour slaying" is taking treatment, said that "with no visible signs of joy or nervousness, Mrs. Massie received the telegram into her pocket. She has replied to it, the physician said, on advice given her by United States Consul John R. Putnam and Mrs. Putnam. "I am surprised at reports that I said a telegram from her husband would be her best restorative," Dr. Borelli asserted. "I did not say this. Mrs. Massie showed no haste to answer her husband's telegram or other signs that she is feeling his absence," the physician added. Dr. Borelli explained that he did not question Mrs. Massie as to the contents of the message.

REACH AN ACCORD ON TAX MEASURE Senate Adopts Compromise on Philippine Proposal—Warned Against Veto.

Washington, April 11.—(AP)—The Senate today tentatively adopted a compromise to return to the Philippine government revenue from the proposed 3 cents a pound domestic processing tax on imported coconut oil. The action left to be acted on a proposal by Chairman Harrison of the Senate finance committee to exempt from the tax $20,000,000 pounds of coconut oil from the islands, the average annual importation for the last five years. Harrison had warned of a presidential veto if the tax remained in the bill and read a letter from Mr. Roosevelt saying it violated the principles of the Independence Act. Not To Oppose Action came after Senator Harrison announced he would not oppose the Norris amendment returning the tax which he said would strengthen the Senate's bargaining position when the bill went to conference. The bill as it passed the

LATEST STOCKS

New York, April 11.—(AP)—Financial markets were fairly cheerful today, but speculative forces were not inclined to let bullish enthusiasm run away with discretion. Stocks generally were steady to firm, although there were a few soft spots in the motors and other categories attributed partly to fear of more strike difficulties. The activity was not exceptional. Rubber, copper and silver were about steady and grains and cotton were only slightly changed. Bonds displayed a moderately upward slant. Foreign exchanges were featureless. Shares up around a point included several specialties and such issues as Case, Dupont, American Tobacco, E. American Can, U. S. Gypsum, U. S. Steel Preferred, American Rolling Mill, American Commercial Alcohol, National Distillers and Armour Preferred. The alcohol's probably were the most active on rumors that some of the distilling companies might declare a dividend. General Motors, Chrysler and Nash sagged. U. S. Smelting lost a point and the other metals eased. American Telephone and most of the utilities were a trifle lower. The various steels improved, as did several of the rails. Pending further clarification of scattered labor situations and the much-disputed Exchange Control Bill, brokerage circles were advising discrimination in both trading and investment commitments. It was pointed out that a strike threat is still hanging over the motor industry in the shape of the tool and die workers' ultimatum which is supposed to expire tomorrow night. The fact that the so-called "Educational" group of workers is not in agreement with the A. F. of L. leaders would not prevent serious interference with automotive production, it was believed, if the difficulty is not adjusted. Although the financial district was still hopeful of desired changes in the regulatory measure receiving the approval of Congress, it was felt in some quarters that the fate of this legislation will not be settled until the President goes on record as to the modifications which have been proposed. Industrial observers were heartened by word that General Johnson would recommend the dropping of the N. R. Licensing provision. Interest was also expressed in the administrator's statement that business conditions generally are good and that improvement had been

NRA NEED NOT FEAR ANY COURT DECISIONS

New York, April 11.—(AP)—Confidence that the NRA has nothing to fear from adverse court decisions was expressed today by Dean Charles E. Clark of the Yale Law School. The attack on the legality of the Recovery Act centered on three points, he told the committee on commerce of the American Bar Association, which he outlined as follows: First, the claimed improper delegation of authority from Congress to the President, about which he said there had been much talk but no adverse court decisions. Second, the alleged attempt to regulate business beyond the limits of interstate commerce. Dean Clark asserted that the present trend of judicial rulings was clearly toward a broader interpretation of what constitutes interstate commerce. Third, the alleged violation of the rights of the individual guaranteed by the due process clause of the constitution. The Dean pointed out that the Supreme Court in the Oklahoma ice case, had emphasized the point that the paramount right of public necessity will justify legislation which may sharply limit the right of individuals. H. Smith, Detroit lawyer, took the position that the Recovery Act was clearly unconstitutional in that it was not merely a framework within which voluntary agreements can be made, but a Federal statute imposing penalties and providing for compulsory codes.

COUPLE SENTENCED

Bridgeport, April 11.—(AP)—Mrs. Elizabeth Nichols, 35, of Brookfield, self-confessed burglar, was sentenced to 60 days in jail in the Superior Court today. Her husband, Robert Nichols, 48, also admitting guilt on the same charge, was given a 30 day suspended sentence. On January 25 last, Mr. and Mrs. Nichols broke into a summer home owned by Mrs. Alice Theobald in Brookfield and looted it of most of its furnishings. Rosierucians were a group of philosophers, originating with a German monk named Rosencrans in the fourteenth century.

BANK ASSOCIATIONS TO MERGE IN STATE

New Haven, April 11.—(AP)—By acceptance of a committee report at a meeting last night the Connecticut Association of State Banks and Trust Companies voted to merge with the Connecticut Bankers Association thereby eliminating duplication of efforts in this particular field of effort. Yale Crew Prospects Appear Bright

Nationals Are Seven Up In Grape Fruit Battles

New York, April 11.—(AP)—With only a week to go before the big show opens the National League clubs still held a comfortable margin over their American League rivals today in the grapefruit league competition. To date the National clubs have chalked up 42 victories in the inter-league competition against 35 for the American League entries.

and Cleveland as a standout in the junior circuit. The Giants' despite their trouble with Cleveland, have been the blivest winners in the inter-league competition with nine victories. But they also have the largest loss figure, ten. The Boston Braves with seven triumphs and Chicago White Sox with six also rate up among the big winners.

EAST SIDES LOSE TO COLLEGIANS IN REC TITLE CLASH

Are Beaten, 29-21 in First Game of Series for Junior Crown; Rec Girls Bow in Prelim, 34 to 24.

Before the largest crowd of the season at the School street gymnasium last night, the impressive Collegians disposed of the East Sides by a score of 29-21 in the first game of a series to decide the Junior championship of the Recreation centers. In the preliminary novelty the Jack Armstrong Five scored a 34-24 victory over the Rec girls.

The Collegians played a fine brand of basketball to beat the East Sides, who put up a stubborn game throughout. Dave Muldoon led the attack of the winners, dropping in four field goals and one from the foul line. Sinnamon, Raguskus and Obuchowski hit the cords for a total of seven field goals, thus playing an important factor in the triumph.

The East Sides rallied in the closing minutes of play and succeeded in reducing the lead to eight points before the final whistle but the rally was too late.

These two junior aggregations meet again at the School street gym tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock in the second game of the series. There was much praise from both teams and spectators for the efficient manner of "Ty" Holland in officiating this game.

You Take The Others, Braucher Takes Ekky

By BILL BRAUCHER (NEA Sports Editor)

Experts are flashing the news that several noble gee-gees have been nominated to obtain the turf crown which perched so jauntily last year on the brow of Equipoise. You can have them. I'll have to take Ekky. When midsummer comes the son of Pennant-Swinging will come swinging down the lane again. You will know then that the old champion still has what it takes.

Journalistic drummer boys are sounding the tom-toms in behalf of a horse named Larranaga. Freddie Hopkins, who used to ready up Equipoise for the races, is now in charge of this animated hide and begs to report that when old Ekky comes back to the races in Maryland this year, Larranaga will be there to break his heart.

Now He Can Be Wrong
But Hopkins happens to be a pretty fair conditioner of horses, and his predictions usually have not been far wrong. He can look at a horse and tell within two-fifths of a second how he'll run the mile. He was wrong a couple of times. The year Twenty Grand made the others in the Derby look like Clydesdales, but he had the right steed even though his prognostication meant the time (which was 2:01 4-5) was a bit pessimistic.

Any forecast, however, which gives Larranaga a seat over Mrs. Swinging's stalwart son seems to me to be so much salami. Too often have I seen Ekky come from back there in the stretch and kick heads into these country horses' faces. Freddie or no Freddie, my 5-cent mind bet goes smack-dab on that Whitney host's prognosis.

A meeting between the two has been inevitable since Larranaga headed home first in the Cuban Grand National, a $50,000 feature at Havana. He is at Bowie now and his name is on the line for the big handicaps. A month's training has brought him to razor-edge form.

In Shape
Equipoise has spent the winter at Lexington, where winters are just cold enough to keep the blood flowing.

Elis Hope to Break Harvard's String of Victories on Thames in June; Pin Chances on Balance.

New Haven, April 11.—(AP)—It has been four years since a Yale crew gave Harvard its wash at New London but the quiet confidence of Coach Ed Leader in the prospects for his 1934 boat-load have caused him rowing adherents to believe that perhaps happy Haven, W. S. Kilburne of New York and J. S. Pillsbury of Crystal Bay, Mich., remain. Usually taciturn on Yale rowing prospects, Leader makes no secret today of his pleasure with the material on hand for the start of the 12th year of his regime.

"It is too early to say what men I shall have in my boats, when they go into action," he commented, but then added: "I am very pleased with the material I have. The men are keenly awake to what is needed. All are looking forward to our season."

Bank On Balance
Thrice beaten by Harvard in as many years on the Thames, Yale pins its hopes of breaking the Harvard victory string next June on balance rather than experience.

Of the boat-load that rowed and lost last year, only Captain Johnny Jackson of New Haven, W. S. Kilburne of New York and J. S. Pillsbury of Crystal Bay, Mich., remain. To this nucleus Leader may add P. L. Taylor of Louisville and J. S. Atwood of Springfield, Mass., both of whom rowed on the junior variety a year ago.

More than a score of crews—varsity, junior varsity, 150 pounds, yearlings, and college house eights—are at work and it is possible some bright prospects may be uncovered on the minor crews. Organized last fall, the college house rowing has been placed in charge of Bob Butler, University of Washington graduate and former coach of two navy crews at Poughkeepsie.

Yale opens its season April 28, when two crews will row against M. I. T. on Lake Quinsigamond.

April 28—Varsity and 150 pound varsity crews vs. M. I. T., Lake Quinsigamond, Worcester, Mass. May 5—Varsity, Freshman, Junior varsity and 150 pound crews vs. Pennsylvania and Columbia on the Hudson river, New York.

May 19—Varsity, junior varsity, freshman, vs. Pennsylvania and Cornell and 150 pound crews vs. Harvard at Derby.

June 22—Harvard Regatta at New London (varsity, junior varsity and freshman).

New York, April 11.—Here comes the big guess: AMERICAN LEAGUE: New York New York Boston Detroit St. Louis Cleveland Philadelphia Chicago NATIONAL LEAGUE: St. Louis Chicago New York Pittsburgh Boston Cincinnati Brooklyn Philadelphia.

St. Louis—The Cardinals and the Browns will bring big league baseball for 1934 to St. Louis today in the first of a five game pre-season series.

Bill Hallahan, the Cardinal veteran pitcher, will be on the mound against Jim Weaver, Brown newcomer who will pitch his first game in Sportsman's Park. The home town Nationals and Americans will play the "city championship" series in five consecutive days, concluding Sunday, polished up for the opening of the major leagues next Tuesday.

Races in both leagues that promise to be the closest in years seem to be on the program as the season begins. Shifting of players has made the task of selection the hardest experienced in many years.

In the American League, as this observer sees it, the Yankees seem to have everything needed to win a pennant. Last year, due to illness and injury, the pitching bogged down badly. Now, with Ruffing in splendid shape, the team appears to be a winner. I am expecting a great season also from Lefty Gomez.

Washington won a pennant last year largely through the superb pitching of General Alvin Crowder. Another season from the General who is getting along in years, hardly can be expected. The fact that Clark Griffith has been shopping for a pitcher speaks volumes on the weakness of the Washington club.

In the National League, the Cardinals begin the race with strength in every department. Last year, even though the team led the league in run-making, there was discord under the management of Gabby Street. With Frisch in the saddle, and with the best reserves a club could ask for, the Cards should win 100 games.

The St. Louis entry will have a distinct edge on the Giants in the second place series of the National league playoffs.

The Hawks became the third American team to take Canada's most highly prized trophy. The New York Rangers won in 1928 and 1933, while the Boston Bruins emerged victors in 1929.

After more than 90 minutes of bitter, dogged hockey before a crowd of 16,500 spectators, March, the littlest man on the ice, drove a waist high shot into the net behind Wild Cude, to give the Blackhawks a one to nothing victory over Detroit Red Wings in the Stanley cup and the world professional title.

It was this same March, who slashed home a goal in an overtime period to defeat Les Canadiens of Montreal, in the final match of the second place series of the National league playoffs.

Chicago, April 11.—(AP)—Chicago's eight year quest for the Stanley Cup had ended in triumph today and Little Harold (Muh) March was professional hockey's man of the hour.

MAX BAER STARTS EAST FOR SERIOUS TRAINING

Begins Grind for Title Bout With Carnera on June 14; Confident of Lifting the Crown; Brother Sparring Partner in Exhibitions.

By BILL BRAUCHER (NEA Sports Editor)

Secramento, Calif., April 11.—(AP)—Max Baer is enroute east today to begin serious training for his title battle with Primo Carnera June 14 for the heavyweight boxing championship of the world.

He was the guest at a farewell dinner prior to boarding the Southern Pacific overland limited here last night. The last words he heard as the train pulled out was a firm shout shouting "bring back the title."

"I sure will," replied Max waving his hat to the crowd. Baer tossed an apple he had been eating into the street and remarked: "This is my last stop playing. From now on it is to be serious business with me. I alone can win the title for me and I am going to do it."

On the train with Baer is Ancil Hoffman, his manager, Mrs. Hoffman, Mike Cantwell, his trainer, and his brother, Buddy, a strapping 18-year-old youth who will be his sparring partner in a series of exhibitions.

The first exhibition will be at Springfield, Mo., Friday night. The other exhibitions that have been scheduled will be at Tulsa, Okla., April 18 and Kansas City, April 18. Two other stage appearances may be put on Hoffman said, before the party arrives in New York, April 25.

BLUEFIELDS TO GIVE YOUNGSTERS A CHANCE

Invite Boys 14 to 17 Years to Try Out for Team in Effort to Develop Talent.

By BILL BRAUCHER (NEA Sports Editor)

At the regular meeting it was decided that youngsters in town between ages of 14 to 17 years would be eligible to try out for the Bluefields baseball team, which is known as one of the fastest semi-pro teams in Manchester, specializing in young ball players.

All boys between those ages wishing a try out are asked to report to Coach Jim Foley at Bluefields' practice diamond on Monday, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Boys trying out for team will not have to join the club.

Eddie Raguskus is an example of a youngster making good regardless of his 14 years of age when he started to play for Bluefields. Today he is considered one of the best first basemen developed in town. All players on the team last year and members who wish to try out are asked to report Saturday at 2 o'clock.

SENSE and NONSENSE

THE RECKONING
 "When the Great Scorer comes to write against your name, He writes not if you won or lost, but how you played the game."

Youth (at dance)—I think that girl over there dislikes me.
 Friend—Why?
 Youth—She just pulled down her skirt.

It is a cruel fact that the beginner generally is assigned to the most heart-breaking tasks.

At a dinner party one of the guests made the old remark that there is nothing new under the sun. A doctor who was present turned to the woman at his side and said:

Doctor—I always think that's such a silly phrase.
 Woman—I think it's true.
 Doctor—But, take X-rays, why nowadays you can see right through a man.
 Woman—A clever woman could always do that, doctor.

The young crowd's definition of a home seems to be the place to go when you haven't any other place to go.

First Stenographer—Elsie, how do you spell forty-two?
 Second Ditto—Why?
 First Stenographer—Well, the boss dictated a letter saying that this man would make a good salesman; he has lot of intestinal forty-two.

Have you ever noticed the number of rascals who are kept busy pointing out other rascals to detract attention from their own rascality?

Harold—Who was that hag you just danced with?
 Jasper—That was my sister!
 Harold—Oh, well you just ought to see mine.

Although it is stated that this is no longer a free country, a doctor still insists that it is. He bases his opinion on the fact that out of about 23 infants he has ushered into this world during the past year, only about five of them have been paid or partly paid for.

Jacob—Why did they invite only married people to his wedding?
 Able—Well, in that way he figured that all presents would be clear profit.

HOW TO LIVE WELL:
 To laugh often and love much;
 To win and hold the respect of intelligent persons and the affection of little children;
 To earn the approbation of honest critics and to endure without flinching the betrayal of false friends;

 To always appreciate beauty, whether in earth's creations or man's handiwork;
 To have sought for and found the best in others, and to have given it oneself;
 To leave the world better than one found it, whether by a healthy child, a garden path, a cherry letter or a redeemed social condition.
 To have played with alacrity, laughed with exuberance and sung with exultation;
 To go down to dust and dreams, knowing that the world is a wee bit better and that a single life breathes easier because we have lived—
 This is to have lived well.
 This is to have succeeded.

Old Lady (visitor on dude ranch)—What's that funny stuff on the sheep?
 Guide—Wool.
 Old Lady—Wool? Huh, I'll bet it's half cotton.

When a man complains of leading a dog's life, he is married to one of three species—a great dane, a lap setter or a toy type.

The thing that riles the ordinary sinner, is being reformed by somebody no better than he is.
