SUBSIDIES HIT BY J. J. PELLEY

Railroad President Also Says Buses Should Help Pay Highway Cost.

Boston, April 24.—(AP)—Subsidized transportation, in the form of "free waterways, free airways and public highways for commercial transportation," was blamed today by President J. J. Pelley of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad as largely responsible for the transportation problem in this country.

Speaking before the Advertising Club of Boston on "A Glance into the Transportation Future," Pelley said present conditions "whereby the taxpayers of this country are contributing more than two billion dollars each year to provide waterways, airways and highways have resulted in the great surplus of transportation facilities which now exist, and are responsible for the problem."

"It is easy to understand why air, water and highway transportation have been able to compete so successfully with the railroads," he said. "It is impossible for any business which is required to be self-sustaining and pay its full way to meet subsidized competition."

With the end of subsidized transportation, he predicted, the railroads would occupy a place of increasing importance in national affairs. The different transportation agencies will be coordinated under a common control to provide "a service that will be more efficient and less expensive than any service the public of this country has ever enjoyed." Pelley said the Federal government was paying a large part of the operating expense of air transportation through subsidies to commercial air lines for mail contracts which, he added, were extremely generous, to say the least. The taxpayers of the country he said, were contributing an average of $100 for each passenger that travels by air, to pay for the mail subsidy lighted airways, radio beacons, radio weather service and airports.

Taxpayers he said, also had paid the bill for development of water transportation facilities and the "tremendous sums being spent by the Federal government to create artificial waterways are gradually depriving New England of the natural advantages it once enjoyed because of its sea-coast."

Similarly, he argued taxpayers were paying a large part of the bill for development of highways used by commercial vehicles and trucks and said commercial use of the highways was a privilege "and the big motor trucks and motor buses should pay their full share of all highway expense."

Washington.—If the now celebrated Wirt incident, more familiarly known in Washington as "the dinner party across the Potomac," is to be set down as a closed incident it won't be the fault of a "black-haired, earnest republican from Kansas."

Representative Harold McGuin of Coffeyville, who learned his law at the Inns of Court in London and who got his first opportunity at big-time investigating in the Wirt case, did everything in his power to make the affair a cause celebre.

It was the 41-year-old Kansan who took it upon himself as one of the two minority members of the committee to see that the democrats didn't pull any fast ones, Lehigh of New Jersey, member of the house for some 16 years longer than his fellow republican, occupied a back seat compared with McGuin.

It was evident from the start that he would mull no opportunities which came his way.

At Odds With Chairman As a result he was almost continually at odds with Bulwinkle of North Carolina, chairman, and O'Connor of New York, ranking democrat on the committee.

It seemed at times as if he would come to blows with the latter. McGuin never quite forgave O'Connor for accusing him on the floor of the house of inserting a speech in the Congressional Record without permission.

It was later shown that permission for the insertion was given; O'Connor withdrew the accusation, but the incident still rankled with McGuin.

The next day they clashed in the committee hearing and for a time it seemed as if only the broad shoulders and huge gavel of Bulwinkle kept them apart.

As it was, the hearing was almost disrupted and the chairman had to admonish McGuin to observe "the rules of common decency."

Giving "Money's Worth" Nothing, on or off the floor of the house, daunted him.

One member of the house figured out how much the Wirt investigation had cost and placed the amount at between $10,000 and $20,000. He faced McGuin with his findings on the floor one day when he requested permission to discuss the Wirt case.

"I want to make sure the people will get their money's worth," McGuin retorted.

This was the attitude he displayed all the way through the investigation. Others may forget "the dinner party across the Potomac," and everything connected with it, but the impression here is that it will be some time before the gentleman from Kansas permits those within range of his voice to forget.

Democrat and Leader; O. S. Wharden, Great Falls (Mont.) Tribune. They offered suggestions for voluntarily meeting code requirements and thereby maintaining self-government.

Newspapers discussions were led by J. D. Barnum, publisher of the Syracuse (N. Y.) Post-Standard, and H. W. Blodgett, business manager of the Louisville Courier-Journal. In his welcoming address, Davis said, "this year, as never before, a full and frank discussion of the problems, many of them new, confronting newspaper publishers is necessary if you are to receive all the advantages which this meeting make possible. Certainly the past year has been fraught with difficulties for all of us."

Harris, acknowledging the President's remarks, spoke of the code: "Since we assembled in this room a year ago today," he said, "newspaper publishers have been passing through one of the most interesting and, we might add, one of the most hazardous periods in the history of American journalism. The passage of the National Industrial Recovery Act followed by provisions of the President's re-employment agreement, brought the newspaper publishers face to face with many new problems which they had not encountered before."

"On the additional revenue," he said, "we desired to co-operate with the government in its recovery program; on the other hand, there was no method in sight to provide additional revenue for newspapers to meet the increased expenses accompanying an adherence to the government program. The publication of a newspaper is unlike other business enterprises because the additional expense cannot be handed on to the consumer. In our case this additional expense must be absorbed by the newspaper itself either through a drain on a surplus account or through reductions in expenses in some other phase of the publishing business. In the final analysis, the publication of a newspaper falls into two general classifications: First, it is a

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

Because of large surpluses, 918,080 tons of coffee were burned by Brazilian coffee growers in 1933. It has been estimated that at least $40,000,000 of unpaid salary is due public school teachers in this country. The skeleton of an insect is on the outside of its body. There are 214,000 Christians in Japan's 90,000,000 population. The moon's surface contains about 14,857,000 square miles as compared with the earth's 196,911,000. Only 23,068 immigrants entered the United States in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1933. A reindeer resulted recently inside the big airship hangar at Lakehurst, N. J., when the temperature rose rapidly from 15 to 56 degrees. The President does not have the constitutional power to pardon state prisoners. American cigaret production totaled 111,563,400,000 in 1933. More than 3,000,000,000 pounds of soap are used annually in the United States. The green phalanger of Australia is the only animal known with green fur. The skating lake of Kenya Colony, Africa, is located exactly on the equator; at an altitude of 15,000 feet. Ammonia once was known as hartshorn, because it was made by destructive distillation of hartshorn.

AIRCRAFT WORKERS ASK PROTECTION

Strikers Follow Workmen to Homes—Try to Wreck Their Autos.

Hartford, April 24.—(AP)—The Pratt and Whitney Aircraft strike situation took a new turn today when East Hartford police announced that they would ask for warrants for the arrest of several men on charges of breach of the peace and molestation of an employe of the company while going to and from his work at the plant.

Police of other towns will also take action in order to afford protection to the workers employed in taking an inventory at the factory. Many of these employes declare they have been followed by strikers in automobiles, that they have been run off the highways or "pocketed against the curbs," and that in some instances their private property has been invaded and threats hurled at them by those who are endeavoring to obtain an increase to 1929 wage levels from officials of the company.

Ten state troopers will patrol the state highways surrounding the Pratt and Whitney Aircraft Company this afternoon. Four East Hartford police officers, with state troopers, are guarding the entrance to the factory.

Edgar Abild of East Hartford, reported to police of that town that strikers followed him to his home last night, several times trying to wreck his machine on the highway. Shortly after his arrival home three carloads of strikers drove up, creating a disturbance on his lawn and front porch and threatened him if he dared to return to work today. It is in this connection that police will ask for warrants.

The high feeling of the strike has reached into West Hartford and Manchester with reports being made to police of both these towns of molestations of workers by strikers. Manchester police will patrol Silver Lane tonight to guard against automobiles being forced off the highway by machines operated by strikers.

Charles L. La Vista, president of the Industrial Aircraft Workers of America, Inc., recently organized union, said today that he knew nothing of such tactics being employed by the strikers under jurisdiction. He said that he did not advocate any violence on the part of his men and to the contrary, had urged that the strike be conducted on a "battle of wits," and that it be a "hard, clean fight." He said no reports of such activities on the part of his men had been given to him, adding that he would again request the strikers to conduct themselves in orderly manner.

Chief of Police Samuel G. Gordon said this afternoon that he had heard nothing about molestation of workers by strikers or of a police patrol on Silver Lane tonight.

LAWYER DESCRIBES NEEDHAM MURDERS

(Continued from Page One) Murton of killing both Forbes McLeod and Frank O. Haddock, Needham policemen, who tried to arrest them during the holdup, and also inflicting wounds that were nearly fatal to Fireman Timothy Coughlin who was standing beside Haddock when the officer tried to stop the fleeing bandit car.

The district attorney's statement came as a surprise, as Abe Faber, the university graduate member of the trio of accused men, had been referred to at all times as the "trig-gler" during the days which preceded the trial, now in its second week.

It was a story of vicious killing and well planned crime the district attorney told as he calmly related to the jury the crime of which Murton and Faber and Murton's younger brother, Irving, are accused.

Dewey said Murton, standing with a machine gun in his arms looked out the bank window and saw McLeod running toward the bank in answer to the ringing of the trust company alarm bell.

"Here comes a cop," Dewey quoted Murton as shouting. "Let him have it," a voice answered. The huddled form of the policeman, writhing in pain, was described by Dewey.

Prisoners Calm No sign of emotion crossed the faces of the defendants as they sat in the prisoner's cage. The leisurely escape of the bank raiders with their two hostages was then described by Dewey. He told of the approaching the fire station at Needham Heights, where Haddock and Coughlin were standing on the sidewalk talking.

PRESIDENT NAMES MORGENTHAU AIDE

Thomas Jefferson Coolidge to Be New Undersecretary of the Treasury.

Washington, April 24.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today nominated Thomas Jefferson Coolidge of Massachusetts to be undersecretary of the Treasury. The President also sent to the Senate the name of Rexford Guy Tugwell, present assistant secretary of agriculture, to be undersecretary of agriculture.

It was stated at the White House that the office of undersecretary of agriculture had been created by the President for Mr. Tugwell. Tugwell, a former professor of economics at Columbia University, was associated with the President during the 1932 campaign. His name was mentioned in the recent House investigation of the inquiry into Dr. Wirt's charge of a revolution plot.

The President also named Lon Warram of Kansas City, to be marshal for Kansas.

The Japanese Cabinet's approval with the announcement that the Japanese air force will be practically doubled within the next three years.

The Evening Standard printed a picture of Japanese troops manning a machine gun on a sandbag emplacement with a map of southern China showing "some principal towns where foreigners have a footing."

The picture and map were used in connection with the dispatches from Tokyo.

News Comment: The Evening News, however, under the editorial heading "Discouraging Troublemakers," declared:

"As a nation, we have only the friendliest feeling toward our former ally. We have no occasion whatever to quarrel with her policy in the Far East."

Official circles explained that the British government's communication had taken the form of instructions to Ambassador Lindley, to confer with Japanese officials verbally. This process, it was pointed out, lacks the formality of a note.

While the nature of the instructions to the ambassador was not revealed, it was indicated the instructions comprised a combination query as to Japan's intentions and an explanation of Great Britain's present views.

AWAIT U. S. ACTION: Tokyo, April 24.—(AP)—Confronted by Great Britain's demands for a clarification of Japan's statement of April 17 concerning the Empire's China policy, official Tokyo today awaited indication as to whether the United States would follow suit in a sign of Anglo-American solidarity.

Thus far, no evidence has developed in Tokyo that the United States would follow Great Britain's lead. The Associated Press learned that the State Department has not acted in that direction.

Great Britain's demand—which did not reach the foreign office although foreign office officials were informed of it by newspapers—gave Koki Hirota, the foreign minister, the task of explaining his policy in such a way as to appease British suspicions and, simultaneously, avoid the retraction of any essential feature of the statement in which the world was warned not to meddle with internal Chinese affairs.

Would Start Protests: Such a retraction, it was believed, would be likely to evoke a storm of protests within Japan.

It was learned that the instructions sent by Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, were received in the British Embassy this morning, but by late afternoon the ambassador had not yet visited the foreign office.

The Cabinet today discussed the China policy, the ministers asking Hirota to explain to them the world-wide hostile reaction to the April 17 statement.

According to the newspapers Asahi and Nichi Nichi, Hirota promised the Cabinet that the foreign office would attempt a further explanation to Washington and other foreign capitals to allay suspicions of other powers.

An outline of the prospective explanations appearing in Japanese language newspapers, however, indicates no recession from the main points of the April 17 statement.

These newspaper accounts of the Cabinet discussion agree with the picture of Hirota's present position as generally accepted in diplomatic circles in Tokyo.

According to this version, Hirota signed instructions to Akira Hirota, Japanese minister to China, outlining the Japanese policy, but the publication of these instructions by subordinates was without his knowledge or approval.

Proceeds of Affair in Wapping Saturday to Be Given to Peter Zekewick.

A benefit dance is to be held Saturday at the Balch dance hall in Wapping for Peter Zekewick of Warehouse Point, who is a member of a local orchestra. Last week a truck and garage owned by Mr. Zekewick were burned. He is engaged in the trucking business and the truck was covered in part by insurance, but there was no insurance on the garage. It is the intention in having the dance Saturday to turn over the proceeds to Mr. Zekewick. Many of his Manchester friends are planning to attend.

111 WARSHIPS PASS THROUGH THE CANAL

planes started a patrol above the Canal Zone and a few minutes later the pursuit ships from Albright field were in the air, flying back and forth across the canal.

The whole organization gave the appearance of war days, with military units on duty everywhere.

The dispatchers who have gone without sleep since 3 a. m., yesterday, were feverishly at work moving the vessels along on their course from the Pacific ocean to the Atlantic which, strangely enough, is from the east to the west.

This is due to the fact that the Isthmus of Panama bends in such a fashion that the passage is actually west of north rather than east.

Likewise sleepless were 50 civilian pilots, half of whom are members of the United States naval reserve, operating under the direction of Commander L. D. Scott, U. S. N.

The Balboa port captain, and Capt. Charles Svensson, U. S. N. R., assistant port captain, also sleepless.

Each one of the 111 vessels is guided through the 47-mile waterway and the movement of each vessel is reported in the dispatchers office by signal stations along the route.

GIRLS' FRIENDLY GROUP ARRANGES FOR BANQUET

The regular meeting of the Girls' Friendly Society of St. Mary's church was held last evening in the parish house.

The program opened with a reading and prayers by Evelyn Carlson. The scripture lesson was read by Peggy Smith.

Minutes of last meeting were read by the secretary, Florence Cockerham. Tentative plans were discussed for the annual Mother and Daughter banquet which will be held on Monday evening, May 28.

Next Monday evening the society will hold a May party, at which time each member will bring a May basket. Mary Robinson and Edith Thrasher will speak to the society on the semi-annual convention of the Girls' Friendly Society which will be held Saturday, April 28, and for which they are the local delegates.

Rehearsals are being held regularly for the three-act play to be presented by the society and the Young People's Fellowship, Friday evening, May 11.

During the evening Branch President Hannah Jensen spoke of the conference for G. F. S. leaders which was held in New York city, April 6 and 7. Mrs. Veta Trotter also attended this conference.

executive branch of the government. It very well may be that the silver bloc will not succeed, at this session, in putting through the legislation it desires. But it will at least come reasonably close to doing so and, in case of failure, it will have created the one great issue for the fall elections—elections which are not in the least likely to be between Democrats and Republicans, as such, but between orderly inflationists and obstinate deflationists.

If Mr. Roosevelt should be so unwise as to take his place in the latter category he will, in all likelihood, spend the last two years of his term in eclipse. If he wants to continue to be a leader he will have to lead in the direction in which Congress is determined to go.

HUNT FOR DILLINGER

The extraordinary facility with which such fugitive characters as John Dillinger escape, again and again, through corridors of law officers is not due to any lack of courage or determination or resourcefulness on the part of the police but to the fact that the latter labor, almost invariably, under a certain very definite handicap. They are required, by the law and by their own consciences, to modify their actions into reasonable conformity with decency and the safety of innocent persons. The criminal fugitive is hampered by no such considerations.

Engaged in such a hunt as that for Dillinger in the northern woods of Wisconsin, the hunters cannot instantly open fire on every suspicious car or shoot at each movement in the underbrush without the utmost danger of killing the wrong person. The inevitable result is that the law officers must and do lose many an opportunity to end the chase by taking a long chance. A desperado like Dillinger, on the contrary, suffers from no such restraints. Knowing every man's hand to be against him he is at perfect liberty, under his evil code, to shoot at any stranger. If the victim turns out to have been a citizen wholly unconnected with the chase, what odds to a Dillinger? If he is an officer, so much the better. In either case it is just one more dead man—and another notch on the machine gun.

If police authorities were as utterly reckless of innocent lives as the gangsters there would soon be an end to the latter, but the list of bystander casualties might take on an appalling length. In this warfare the police have to fight by rule while the criminal fights with utter disregard both to rule and consequence.

This is an aspect of practically all of these criminal hunts which it is unfair to the authorities not to bear in mind.

WARBIRDS BRING PEACE

Seven hundred mechanical birds of prey sitting in sinister silence in eastern Siberia appear to have accomplished more for the prevention of an imminent war than all the multitude of peace agencies in the world. Six months ago it seemed to be beyond the possibilities that a major conflict between Japan and Soviet Russia along the Siberian-Manchurian border would not be regarded by this time. It is now regarded as not altogether improbable that there will be no second Russo-Japanese war—and to the revealed strength of the Soviet air forces alone is this new situation to be attributed.

CONGRESS IS BOSS

When Congress passed the General Offices bill over the veto of President Roosevelt it put to an end any honest fears that the country had fallen into the hands of a dictatorship. When the silver bloc Senators voted yesterday, after a conference, to disregard the opposition of Mr. Roosevelt to any mandatory legislation on silver, they set a period to any lingering impression that may have existed in the mind of the President himself that this was to be a one-man government, despite his veto debacle, even for a single term.

Congress originally did accept Mr. Roosevelt's leadership, and followed it, with extraordinary loyalty, as long as it gave evidence of going somewhere. But when it ceased to go along in its original direction and began to mark time, then Congress indicated, in the case of the veto, that it still believed itself to be the responsible agency of government; and the silver senators, by refusing to alter any further with "permissive" currency legislation, proved that they have more faith in themselves and their colleagues than they have in the is's industrial communities are scattered and far from Japan's bases and thus relatively immune to counter-attack.

The rest of the nations may not know what to do about the fantastic militarism of Japan but it is quite evident that Russia knows—and is prepared to employ such methods of frightfulness as would make those of the World War look timid and gentle.

So we find Japan and Russia now earnestly aspiring each other that there must be no war. And it may very well be that they both mean it this time—Japan as well as the Soviet Union.

MAY CECILIA

There is one girl in America, at least, who is proof against the lure of luxury, fine clothes and all the fascinations of riches. Beyond doubt there are a good many such girls, but this one, May Cecilia Bethanis of Prosser, Wash., has proven her case.

May Cecilia is fourteen. When she was an infant her mother died. Her father was poor. When Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Shelley offered to take the baby and bring it up Bethanis consented.

Now Bethanis is well-to-do. He is, indeed, a very prosperous hotel man at Los Angeles. Having become rich, he conceived the idea of getting his daughter back. The Shelleys resisted and Bethanis took the matter to court.

Much testimony had been given when Judge Charles Leavy put the decision up to the girl. With tears she instantly declared she would stick by the foster parents who loved her and whom she loved, foregoing the temptations of the fine home and college education held out to her, "even if I have to dress in rags."

Let's forget about the father—he doesn't count. But a girl like that is a jewel on the brow of humanity. There are lots of such girls and lots of such boys. That's what makes it possible for hope and faith to persist in the midst of so much that is sordid and grasping and heartless and luxury loving in the world.

By BODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, April 24—The House subcommittee which white-washed the navy's airplane purchases is also suppressing the dissenting view of its minority.

The minority consists of Congressman William Doddridge McFarlane of Texas, one of the rare Naval Affairs committee men who haven't navy yards or stations in their districts.

The suppression lies in refusal to print his minority report along with the hearing and majority report of the investigation.

Minority reports are almost invariably printed in the same volume with majority reports. Printing McFarlane's report would make the cost $3500, instead of $2000. Chairman Vinson of the full committee concurs in the suppression.

The minority report says that: This government has spent more than two billion dollars on aviation and is inferior to other nations in war aeronautics. Although competitive bidding is much cheaper and is required by law, more than 90 per cent of navy and army bidding for planes and engines has been non-competitive and resulted in excessive prices.

Interlocking directorates and patent pools of the "air trust" afford a chance to agree on prices before bids are made. Use of aluminum in planes benefits only the "aluminum trust"—Steel should be used.

Monopoly has discouraged progressive development until we are most backward of all nations in design of war plane engines.

Elaborate charts presented by McFarlane to prove his points are endorsed by Dr. A. F. Zahm, chief of the Library of Congress aeronautics division, who has 20,000 volumes on aeronautics with which to check them.

Fight on Thorp Falls
 Confirmation of Dr. Willard Thorp as director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, held up in the Senate as a result of congressional politics and a Commerce Department cabal, is now virtually certain.

Revelation of the spoilsman's plot to block Thorp, an economist of great distinction, but no political experience, raised a storm among statisticians, economists, and trade experts.

Assistant Secretary of Commerce John Dickinson told Secretary Roper he would resign if Thorp fell a victim to departmental intrigue of ambitious subordinates.

Both Roper and Roosevelt then swung in behind Thorp.

Why Johnson Applied Lid
 If Administrator Kenneth M. Simpson hadn't got to laughing so hard, General Johnson might never have issued those new NRA censorship orders.

A newspaper story said NRA had taken an afternoon off to laugh at Federal Trade Commission charges that the steel code tried to eliminate anti-trust laws and encourage monopoly.

Simpson had started the laughing and let newspapermen in on it. The big joke, it appeared, was that FTC had publicly wept over an example in the shape of a small steel mill in Duluth, described as in danger of extinction.

Simpson and other NRA folk found that the only steel mill in Duluth was a subsidiary of the U. S. Steel Corporation. Small industry. Huh.

But Simpson had read only an FTC press summary rather than the report itself. The commission, as shown by the report, was citing the case of a horseshoe company in Duluth, employing about 800 persons and in danger of being wiped out because the code made it pay $6.80 more a ton for steel than the Chicago price.

Johnson, tired and nervous, decided to muzzle his administrators and all other subordinates.

SCIENTISTS 'PLAY' WITH TOY RIVER FOR WATER DATA

Washington.—(AP)—A small-boy game played in earnest by scientists—building toy rivers in a sand pile—is showing the way here to solution of problems connected with the water-supply and irrigation works to be served by Boulder dam.

The toy river in this case is a miniature Colorado river, and the "sand pile" was shipped 2,000 miles direct from the Colorado's bed to Washington for scientific experiments at the bureau of standards hydraulic laboratory under direction of H. N. Eaton and Dr. C. A. Wright.

The miniature "Colorado," a few inches deep, runs through a wooden flume instead of between canyon walls, over an experimental "bed" of the Colorado river sand, to show scientists how the real river will behave after Boulder dam is completed.

Through glass windows in the sides of the flume the experimenters can watch the water in the actual process of eroding the sand in the "river bed." A gauge shows them the depth and contours of the eroded places. The eroded sand is washed into a trap where it can be measured to learn the amount of the erosion and the river's sand-carrying capacity.

Advance knowledge is important because the water flowing over the new dam will be clear water, free of most of the silt it now carries. The mud will sink to the bottom where the water is standing behind the dam. It probably will be the first time in centuries that clear water has flowed through the lower Colorado river channel.

Engineers want to know whether this clear water will scour and erode the bed and banks of the river below the dam much more than the present muddy water, already so saturated it can pick up little more sand.

PROSTATIC DISORDERS
 One of the common disorders of men which causes a great deal of distress is an inflammation of the prostate gland, in addition to the physical signs which keep the patient uncomfortable, there is also a strong mental effect and in many men, the mental symptoms are the most marked feature of the disorder. For example, the patient is blue, depressed, and discouraged, and begins to think of himself as an old man.

Prostate trouble develops when there is a congestion and swelling of the small gland called the prostate which in men surrounds the neck of the bladder and the urethra. This gland is made up of three lobes and one or more of these lobes may be affected. Prostate disorders lie in wait for the man of middle age and only infrequently develop under the most favorable conditions.

When the prostate is enlarged or diseased, the gland may not follow good habits of living may develop an inflammation of the prostate which leads to a serious bladder irritation and other troubles.

"Watch the Curves" Tells of Share-Expense Trip
 "Watch the Curves," by Richard Hoffman, is one of those novels which make a reviewer feel that it isn't such a bad world, after all.

That is to say, it's an utterly unpretentious book, issued without ballyhoo, which simply sets out to tell an interesting story in an entertaining way—and succeeds. It proves that fiction can be light without being cheap.

It tells about a group of people who go from New York to Los Angeles in one of those share-expense tours.

In the party are the son of a bank president, whose father has cut off his allowance and sent him forth to make his own way without benefit of high finance; a retired Iowa farmer and his wife; a beautiful girl who wants to get in the movies; a veteran newspaperman addicted to some of the most ingenious puns ever perpetrated; a vaguely sinister confidence man, and a sleazy cuss who does the driving.

If all share-expense tours are as interesting as this one, I shall set out on such an expedition tomorrow. Lots of things happen. The driver tries to decamp with the money and baggage, the banker's son falls in love with the girl, the newspaperman commits a murder, and the confidence man tries to engineer a badger game with the banker's son as victim.

The action is fast and spirited, and all hands have varied experiences before reaching California.

And through it all runs Mr. Hoffman's genuine feeling for the American countryside. The panorama of a great continent unfolds before the eyes of his travelers.

Touring American style, is one of the greatest bits of recreation on earth. Mr. Hoffman does full justice to it, and it gives his book an added charm.

Published by Farrar and Rinehart, "Watch the Curves" sells for $2.

IN NEW YORK
 By PAUL HARRISON

New York, April 24.—Some of the gay-spot proprietors must have been to New Orleans and discovered lagniappe, which is the fine old custom merchants have of giving a present however small, with every purchase.

Doubtless competition has something to do with such generosity. Anyway Gotham's fun-venturers are throwing in a little something extra these days and nights sometimes it's a special cocktail featured by the establishment, or a souvenir booklet, cigars, or individual entertainment.

At the Park Lane cafe a customer can have a sketch of himself made by an artist named Kite. Or he can watch the card tricks of Sydney Ross, a magician from Cambridge, no less. Ross also tells fortunes. . . . At the Chateau Rouge, a night club, half-Gai goes around to the tables and does amazing light-of-hand stunts. . . . Fred Keating, magician, actor and Broadwayman, presides at El Morocco. . . . In Sennett's Pub, the only classic nightery on Broadway, patrons are provided with clay pipes and little jars of tobacco. . . . And the Tic Tac Club has an iron-clad no-smoking policy—a negative—but positively unique—type of service.

Night Life On High
 The Tic-Tac, on the tip-top of the Park Central Hotel, is typical of what seems to be a new upward trend—upward in altitude, from the days of earth-bound basement speakeasies. La Cremiere, very elegantly Parisian, is on the fifteenth floor of a noûvee overlooking Central Park. And L'Escargot d'Or, specializing in snails, has a sixteenth floor location at far off Broadway. Pretty soon the hotel roofs will be open-air, and then New York night life really will be up in the air.

There's also a definitely French trend in cabaret, though the Gallic influence is likely as not to end with the name over the front door. One of the three floors of the new Petit Palais, however, has real French decor and entertainment. As for nudist: The Casino de Paris has a nudist bar in the basement, with cut-out caricatures of celebrities sans clothes. And at the end there's a real-live nudie in a golden bowl—all illusion done in miniature and with mirrors. The Palais Royal, set to be outstripped, has nudie in a champagne glass. The Hollywood has a nude peep against a black drape, and the Paradise Rude behind feather fans. All of these establishments present startlingly bare choruses in their shows, and nude pictures in their lobbies. Nobody seems to mind.

And the police, apparently of the opinion that any show costing more than a dollar must be respectable, are devoting their reform activities to the burlesque theaters.

Blueblooded Beefeers
 Patrons of the Ches Folies, applauding a dancing couple who call themselves Patricia Moore and Bruce Draper might be more impressed if they knew they were being entertained by two honest-to-social-register bluebloods. She's really Priscilla Gurney, daughter of Rowley Gurney, the former elevator magnate. He's Jack Stillman, youngest son of banker James Stillman. Maybe it's a bet, but they vow they're going to make a career of it.

As I mentioned the other day, the Revue, "New Faces," contains a skit in which Katharine Hepburn is satirized by her former understudy, Nancy Hamilton, who also looks like La Hepburn. Among the backstageers the other evening was a dowager who barged into a dressing room and beamed at the young lady sitting there. (Miss Hamilton's family is well up in society, too.)

"I think, my dear," said the visitor, "that you were marvelous in your burlesque of the Hepburn woman. Simply marvelous!"

"Thank you," said the young lady, smiling just as sweetly. "I tell Miss Hamilton you said so. I happen to be Miss Hepburn."

FIGURES REVEAL APPETITE TREND

Oranges and Grapefruit Gain, while Breadstuffs Decline; Potatoes Increase

Perhaps the "apple a day keeps the doctor away," but New England people or at least those in the territory served by the New Haven railroad are going in more and more heavily for oranges and grapefruit. The final figures on the freight traffic carried by the railroad during 1933 reveal:

The total volume of traffic in oranges and grapefruit last year increased by 12,600 tons while apple traffic dropped 15,500 tons. It has been suggested that New England is watching its collective waist line by adhering to a fruit diet, but this is belied by a growth of 22,000 tons in the amount of potatoes carried and at the same time given some support by a reduction of 36,000 tons in wheat flour used in the making of breads and pastries.

The total tonnage of fresh grapes hauled by the New Haven last year fell off by 26,000 tons and was only about two-thirds of the preceding year's volume—possibly those who had previously converted grapes into prohibition-era "fruit juices" failed to operate as many wineries in anticipation of repeal.

The entire category classed as "Products of Agriculture," which includes cotton and mill products made from vegetable fibre, showed a reduction of 70,000 tons during the year. These comprised 12.2 per cent of the total volume of freight.

"Animals and Animal Products" gained 20,200 tons, both fresh meats and wool showing marked increases. The "Products of Mines," featured by the hard fuels which are about one-third of the total traffic and salt, underwent a general decline, anthracite coal dropped 281,000 tons, but bituminous gained 12,000 tons. Coke gained 44,500 tons. Gravel and sand were up 38,000 tons.

"Products of Forests" showed increased tonnage as did "Manufactures and Miscellaneous." In the latter category, petroleum oils including gasoline declined 233,500 tons. New England's sweet tooth demanded 6,800 tons of sugar more than in the previous year. Building materials fell 1,000 tons, 1932 totals. Passenger automobiles increased by 2,500 tons. Beverages including those recently legalized gained 17,800 tons.

NORMA TALMADGE WEDS GEO. JESSEL, COMEDIAN

Atlantic City, N. J., April 24.—(AP)—Norma Talmadge, star of the silent screen, now is Mrs. George Jessel.

She and the stage comedian were married at the Hotel Ambassador yesterday after keeping a week's vaudeville engagement in New York. After that, he said, they will go to Florida.

Miss Talmadge, all smiles, departed to a telephone immediately after the ceremony to talk to her sisters, Constance and Natalie, in California.

"Am I happy?" she yelled. "Do you think I would have done it unless I was sure I would be happy?"

Less than a month ago Miss Talmadge obtained a divorce from Joseph Schenck, the producer. For two years the former movie actress and Jessel had been denying reports they would wed.

The couple will remain here until Friday when Jessel begins a week's vaudeville engagement in New York. After that, he said, they will go to Florida.

Miss Talmadge, all smiles, departed to a telephone immediately after the ceremony to talk to her sisters, Constance and Natalie, in California.

"Am I happy?" she yelled. "Do you think I would have done it unless I was sure I would be happy?"

FAT PERSONS WARNED AGAINST REDUCING DRUG

Chicago, April 24.—Fat persons were warned that an injudicious use of the new "heat" method of shedding excess poundage would bring serious illness and possible death.

Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, said several serious cases of diphtheria poisoning have occurred in Chicago, the victims having taken the weight reducing drug without medical advice.

Since the beneficial use of diphtheria was first pointed out in medical literature five months ago, he said, several deaths and numerous cases of poisoning in America and England have been reported.

Those suffering from poison as the result of overdosage develop skin irritations and blisters. If the poisoning is critical, their body temperature rises to a point where the brain is affected.

The drug banishes weight by raising the body's metabolism.

COLLEGE DANCE.

New London, April 24.—(AP)—The loyal student at Connecticut College will probably choose the heaviest escort she can find for the dance next Saturday.

Each girl will be charged fifty cents admission, but her escort will pay a half cent for each pound of his weight.

The dance is sponsored by the International relations club and its proceeds will help defray the expenses of a foreign student who will attend the college next year.

FOREST FIRE CHECKED BEFORE DOING DAMAGE

Local Fire Warden Hears of Blaze from Lookout Station in Somers.

John Jensen, forest fire warden for the town of Manchester, was notified by telephone from the lookout station maintained by the state in Somers that a fire was visible in the northeast part of this town. He was asked to investigate and take such steps as were necessary to fight the fire. Soon after getting the information, Mr. Jensen made a check of the report and learned that the fire was burning in a woods between Lake and Vernon streets.

A force of men was gathered and taken to the fire armed with forest fire fighting equipment. The fire was checked before it had an opportunity to spread and do much damage.

OPEN FORUM

AN INSPIRING SOLO

Editor, Evening Herald:

Those who attended Divine worship at the South Methodist church last Sunday morning could not help but be inspired by the solo which was given by Miss Eleanor Willard, the soprano soloist of our choir.

The words were taken from hymn numbers, 617 in the Methodist hymnal "On Jordan's Stormy Banks I Stand, And Cast a Wistful Eye, To Canaan's Fair and Happy Land, Where My Possessions Lie." A hymn which has inspired thousands upon thousands down through the years, as the choirs have led the congregations in pealing it forth.

Miss Willard's sweet voice is well adapted to the music to which these words have been set, and she sang them so beautifully that hearts were uplifted with new hope and new courage, to go forth and face the tasks which are ours. And I found myself singing with her in my heart, and in the words of that hymn, "Which my father taught me in childhood, 'No chilling winds or poisonous breath, can reach that beautiful shore. Sickness and sorrow, pain and death, are felt and feared no more.'"

Those who neglect these church services are missing much that would benefit them greatly in these most trying and difficult times. God speaks through sermon and song, and we need to hear Him speak if we are going to do our best work.

Bewildered folks everywhere are searching in vain for relief from the present. They are realizing that from God alone can they get the courage and the strength to hold on when the way seems very uncertain. The owner and publisher of the Evening Herald is seen quite regular at the church services. He evidently finds something there that helps him with his tasks, which are most difficult. You, too, will be helped if you come looking for help. I am not urging you to attend the South Methodist church, but I do urge you to attend some church and get the inspiration and help which all our churches are dispensing every Lord's Day with both sermon and music.

Back to God and the church should be our watch cry, and this one thing would do more towards bringing about better times, than the multitude of things now being tried. As a humble salesman I believe this with all my heart, and have been pleased to see this same thought expressed in recent articles by men in prominent positions, like Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Roger Babson and others.

Then come with us, who regularly attend the church services, and we will do these good.

WM. E. KEITH.

CERTIFIED SEED POTATOES URGED

Growers Advised to Buy Only Seed Potatoes With Certified Tags.

Hartford, April 23.—The old expression "Small Potatoes and Mighty Few in a Hill," will become a reality on many farms and gardens next fall in the opinion of Commissioner of Agriculture Olooff F. King unless those who are planting potatoes buy genuine "certified seed." The Department of Agriculture has noted numerous lots of potatoes being offered for sale as "seed potatoes" but they carry no tag of certification and consequently can be considered as nothing more than good eating potatoes.

The Commissioner points out that while table stock potatoes used as seed may give fair results in some cases, there is no way of knowing what extent disease prevails which may ruin the crop this year. The difference in cost between certified and ordinary table stock is relatively small and the purchase of the latter is not worth the gamble.

Certified seed potatoes are those grown under official state supervision which provides periodic inspection of the fields during the growing and digging season. Those fields that pass all requirements are "certified" by the State Department of Agriculture in the state where grown and the grower is given permission to sell seed potatoes as "certified." Such potatoes bear a distinctive tag with the official state seal and a statement of certification signed by the Commissioner of Agriculture or proper enforcement authority of the state. In order to help defray some of the cost of certification, the grower is given a percentage of the cost of the Connecticut State College at Storrs.

Seed potatoes are somewhat higher in price this year and it is anticipated that potato prices in general will be lower next year than they have been during the past season. This outlook makes it imperative that the successful grower have large yields and where some money might be saved in the initial cost by planting table stock for seed, the risk of crop failure is too great.

TRADE SCHOOL NOTES

Due to adverse weather conditions last Friday, the scheduled baseball game between Manchester Trade and Willimantic Trade at Mt. Nebo was postponed indefinitely. This interruption on the Trade's 1934 slate has given Crowley's nine extended time to brush up on baseball both on the diamond and during "skull practice" sessions.

Disappointed by the cancellation of Friday's opener, the Traders are hoping that tomorrow will find a break in the clouds when the local Trade and Windsor Locks High clash at Mt. Nebo grounds.

Heading the line-up in tomorrow's game is Ed Smith, a rookie who has plenty of pep, vim and vigor—the greatest asset of any shortstop. Smith is smart, has a nice pair of hands, can hit and is a real fighter. He truly should be the infield's outstanding player for this season.

According to orthodox baseball, Emory Phelps, second man up, should be a good batter. This department is not giving away any secrets, but Phelps will mount the keystone sack in tomorrow's contest.

Bill Kelsh, veteran of last year, who batted .328 and .886 in his fielding, will get his swat at the apple on the third man up at the plate.

Kelsh will hold down the dizzy corner and it is hoped that he will repeat his most successful season of '33.

Eddie Raguskus, clean-up man, will of course play his usual position on the initial bag. Raguskus is the young man who can multiply a curve ball into three bases without the use of a trigonometry table. If that's not figures, was it the eye? Eddie batted an average of .389 percent last year—at bat 59 times with 20 hits to his credit.

In the orchard we find Anthony Quarnau, first fielder, Harold Jarvis, left field; and Adam Karavich, center field, in that respective batting order.

Otto Cook apparently will "warm the bench," giving way to Roland Lashinski who will take the part of a talkative barber in the catcher's box in tomorrow's drama with Windsor Locks High school.

The last man in the line-up is Mitchell Crowley, pitcher—a slammer who batted an even .258 last season. Orlovski who will twirl the pill in tomorrow's first pitching assignment is a hurler who has "plenty of stuff" on the ball and should likewise offer enough twine to the opposition to place him in the "menace to baseball" category.

Coach Crowley still refused to commit himself today as to the outcome of the battle tomorrow but hopes that the Manchester Trade school's squad will make a favorable showing.

At a recent meeting of the Manchester Trade School Student Activities association, it was unanimously voted to hold a dance in honor of the Trade school graduating class on May 11. The proceeds from this dance will be donated to the Trade school's year book. The members of the dance committee are Raymond Skopek and Charles Noveck.

The various committees in charge of the Trade school's year book are now in full swing and progressing rapidly. Francis Weber, drafting student, is making cartoons illustrating school activities. Weber is truly gifted with the art of cartooning. In order to help defray some of the expense in publishing the year book, advertisements are being solicited by members of the advertising committee. The committee has the approval of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce and has already met with much success.

Aaron Cook, mayor of Manchester, will address the student body of the Trade school next Thursday afternoon.

Preparations are being made for the Trade school Open Night which will be held May 2. Anyone wishing to attend is cordially invited.

NEW ENGLAND DIRECTOR FOR SHOE REBUILDERS

No Additional Information Regarding Operation of Code for Industry.

Since the meeting in Boston two weeks ago of shoe rebuilders from all of the New England states to discuss the code under which the shoe rebuilders are to operate, there has been no additional information given to the Connecticut organization. It was announced that the state of Connecticut would be divided into three regional sections and there would be appointed regional directors for each section, all under the direction of the New England director. The division of the state into the different districts has not as yet been announced, although it is expected that there will be some report received before the end of this week.

MOTHER LOVE VIES WITH LOVE FOR MAN

Ann Harding Confronted With Age-Old Problem in "Gallant Lady" Coming to State.

Which is the stronger love—the love of a woman for a man or the love of a mother for her child?

In "Gallant Lady," the latest 20th Century picture coming to the State Theater, beautiful Ann Harding embodies the answer to this age-old question.

Faced with the alternative of becoming reunited with her little son after years of separation under the penalty of silence regarding her true identity, or of disclosing the facts and thereby wrecking his future. Ann makes a decision which changes the whole course of her life—and the boy's. What would you have done under similar conditions? Would you have acted as she did?

The story of "Gallant Lady," deals with the experiences of an unwed mother who achieves phenomenal business success, and then accidentally meets her own child, whom she had signed away for adoption immediately after her birth through inability to care for it. In a series of dramatic sequences the tale reunites mother and child, but does it under penalties which would seem to be almost unbearable.

A brilliant cast, including Clive Brook, Tullio Carminati, Otto Kruger, Dickie Moore and Janet Beecher supports Miss Harding in this, her initial picture for Joseph M. Bohenic and Darryl F. Zanuck. The picture is released by United Artists.

WOOLLCOTT'S WIT ENLIVENS PLAY

"The Dark Tower," Now Playing at Parsons', Direct from Broadway Success.

Acclaimed by critics and public alike as being one of the cleverest mystery plays of this or any other season, "The Dark Tower," the melodramatic success from the facile pens of Alexander Woolcott and George S. Kaufman, comes to Parsons' theater, for an engagement of one week only, commencing Monday evening, April 23, following its recent Broadway triumph and with Jessie Royce Landis, Alexander Clark and Allan Tower in the featured roles.

Embodiment as it does the wit and humor at Woolcott's command and the deft, sure dramatic touch so characteristic of Kaufman's work "The Dark Tower" should prove a welcome addition to local theatrical fare. The intriguing plot revolves around Jessica Wells, one of the most promising actresses of the day

WARNING ABOUT FIRES IS ISSUED BY CHIEF

Residents Doing Spring Cleaning Are Advised to Use Caution by Foy.

Chief Foy of the South Manchester fire department warns against fires now being set in the general spring cleaning that is on and advises that they be carefully watched while burning. Last night at 7 o'clock a fire started on the roof of the house located at 54 Eldridge street. A still alarm brought No. 4 to the scene and the fire was extinguished before it had an opportunity to spread.

At 4:30 yesterday afternoon a grass fire at Doane street and Manchester Green road was gaining such headway that a still alarm was telephoned to Chief Coleman of the Manchester fire department. No. 1's truck was run to the scene and the fire was soon extinguished.

$225,000 STOLEN BONDS ARE RETURNED TO BANK

Kansas City, April 24.—(AP)—Unseen hands, dealing through a slightly opened door between two hotel rooms, today had restored approximately $225,000 in allegedly stolen stocks and bonds to the Independence, Kas., state bank.

In a strange transaction, shrouded in secrecy, the securities were delivered to attorneys for the bank by unidentified negotiators here last night.

The stocks and bonds were reported stolen last January 31, when four gunmen entered the bank, slugged a janitor, seized $10,000 in cash and the collateral portfolio and fled with three women and two men as hostages. The hostages were released at the edge of the city.

By prearrangement, the securities were divided into five packages, each of which was to be turned over separately to the bank's attorneys upon payment of $5,000. After a package was handed through the door, it was taken to an institution acting as a fiscal agent, checked and $5,000 sent to the parties making the delivery.

After two deliveries had been made, however, the delivering parties, became impatient and turned over the remainder at one time.

FIRST ICEBERGS REPORTED

New York, April 24.—(AP)—The first report by an incoming liner of icebergs in the trans-Atlantic steamship lanes was brought in today by Capt. Robert Smart, of the liner California.

Early last week the international ice patrol warned all ships that 64 icebergs had been sighted off the Grand Banks, drifting south. Capt. Smart said that on Friday he sighted three "growlers," small icebergs that had broken off large ones. He said each "growler" was as large as the ship.

NORTH END GROUP MEETS TOMORROW

Officers of Manchester Improvement Association Will Be Elected.

The request made by the Manchester Improvement association for a change in the curbing at the intersection of North Main and Main streets, asking that the curbing be moved and the hedge along the north side of North Main street, near the tracks, be cut away, has reached the point where a plan has been drawn showing what is proposed to be done.

The committee consisting of the police commissioner, the selectmen and the improvement association went over the question several weeks ago. A drawing of a cut off of the curb, the removal of the hedge and the adding of parking space for the buses to Rockville, will be shown at the annual meeting of the association to be held in the Manchester Y. M. C. A. building tomorrow night.

Tomorrow night's meeting will start promptly at 7 o'clock, as there is a long program of entertainment, in addition to the election of officers and the reading of reports.

KIDNAPING THREATS

Los Angeles, April 24.—(AP)—Police questioned two junior high school girls today regarding kidnap notes received by several mothers of their neighborhood.

The police report said Mrs. J. Puppymias found a note beneath her door last Friday instructing her to put $500 under her house "or we will kidnap your baby." Other mothers received similar threats.

Authorities identified the girls as Irene Watt, 14, and Jewel Ennis, 12.

TAFT SET THE CUSTOM

Washington, April 24.—(AP)—Yale men of '78 wanted it distinctly understood that President Roosevelt and his Harvard classmates of '04 aren't the only ones who had a room at the White House.

William L. R. Wurts of Newark, N. J., recalled today that Mr. Roosevelt was not the first President to entertain his entire class membership.

William Howard Taft invited members of his Yale class to a White House dinner March 4, 1911, he said, and of the 82 men who attended 21 are still living.

NEW LAW CLOSES COUNTY JAIL SHOP

Hartford, April 24.—(AP)—The Hawes-Cooper act, prohibiting interstate shipment of prison or jail-made goods, has reduced the shirt shop at the state prison in Wethersfield to 200 workers and has entirely shut down the chair factory in the county jail here.

Connecticut and the other New England states were among the 28 signatories of the compact of fair competition for the prison industries of the United States.

The state prison now has a population of 714. There are 200 inmates working in the shirt factory, their product being sold through a selling agency. Fully 150 more are at the prison farm in Enfield. Others are at work making signs and concrete for the highway department or performing tasks for the prison itself.

BOLTON ENTERTAINMENT TO BE STAGED TONIGHT

Proceeds Will Be Used to Buy Equipment for Baseball Team There.

Tonight the entertainment and dance to be given for the benefit of a baseball team, that will represent Bolton takes place. The entertainment, which starts at 8 o'clock, will be held in the Bolton Center hall and for several weeks a large cast of local young people have been preparing for the presentation of a show that promises to surpass that of last November when the benefit performance was given for the Grange.

Not only will local young men and women take part in the entertainment, but there has been arrangements made for professional performers from out of town. Following the entertainment there will be dancing and the promoter will sing the "calls" for the old fashioned dances which will be equal in number to the modern dances.

TOLLAND

Mrs. Garret Seigel and Mrs. Beale Fish of Snipic Lake, the two women in town who took out a fishing license, have had real fishermen's luck. Each caught five trout each last Wednesday.

Mrs. Ellen B. West of Hartford spent the week-end with relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Johnson of Hartford were Sunday guests for Mrs. Laura Judson.

The local schools are closed for a week of vacation and will reopen for the spring term April 30.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Hoyt Hayden attended the funeral of Rev. Woodin in Andover Monday afternoon.

There will be two flower exchanges in Tolland County under the direction of the Extension Service of Tolland County.

The first will be at West Stafford, May 15, and the one in Columbia will be May 22 in the Town Hall. A. E. Wilkinson, extension specialist in gardening, will be at both meetings to answer questions and discuss flower problems. Any type of plant, perennial, bushy shrub or anything else will be acceptable in exchange.

The following are the names of the nominating committee for the Federated Sunday school: Mrs. Samuel Simpson, Lucile Agard, W. Hoyt Hayden, Charles Gunning and John E. Clough.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Pearson of Hartford were guests of relatives here Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Chorchis entertained relatives from Hartford over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Newman held a family reunion at their home over the week-end. Relatives were present from Hartford, Rockville and Tolland.

Miss Alice E. Hall is spending this week with friends in Romney, W. Va.

A quarterly conference of the officers of the Methodist branch of the Federated church was held this afternoon at the home of John H. Steele. Rev. George Scrivener, district superintendent of New England Southern conference, Norwich District, presided.

Miss Thelma Price of Kent, Conn., spent the week-end at the home of her parents.

Miss Plummer of the Home Extension Service of the Tolland County Farm Bureau met several women in the social rooms of the Federated church last Friday. All worked on chair seating.

Miss Florence Meacham is enjoying a week's vacation from her high school duties at Manchester.

Mr. and Mrs. Collins of New Britain were recent callers on friends here.

Wanda Tortorelli, Edward Wochomurka, Charles Clough and Andrew Buckley are the Tolland students of the Rockville High school who left last week for the annual trip to Washington, D. C.

The regular meeting of the Men's Community club of Tolland will be held Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in the social rooms of the church. E. C. Winch, district forester, will show five reels of moving pictures taken in the state forests. Ashur Reed of Rockville will entertain with musical numbers with his violin. All men of the community are invited.

A meeting of the Tolland Cemetery Association was held Saturday afternoon in the Town Hall.

The body of Frank Lincoln Field was brought to Tolland Saturday afternoon and buried in the family plot in the North cemetery. Mr. Field was the son of the late George and Emily (Phelps) Field and was born Sept. 4, 1865, in Forest City, Calif. He married Oct. 2, 1895, Miss Mary Williams Rathbun of Richmond, R. I., who survives him, as do a son, Courtland Phelps Field, and a daughter, Mr. Field's father, Deacon Field, purchased the Luther Baldwin farm in Tolland August 1870, and with his family were residents of Tolland for many years; he being deacon of the Baptist church in town for eighteen years. The deceased, after leaving town, resided with his family in Woodbury, Conn., where he passed away last Thursday.

Queer Twists In Day's News

Winnipeg—Jacob Goody, who was born 107 years ago in Russia, hopes to become a British citizen before he dies.

He has renewed the application he made two years ago for naturalization.

His previous application was rejected because of insufficient knowledge of the English language.

Hanford, Calif.—The Lebanon County Court agreed that Mrs. Gertrude S. Wells, of Allentown, should have a divorce from William Wells, of Niagara Falls, N. Y. Mrs. Wells, who lives on Chew street, testified that her husband washed his false teeth at the dinner table while guests were present and picked drops of cream from the rim of the pitcher.

Philadelphia—it was all so stunlike, police say their two prisoners exploded. Motorcycle officers nabbed Raymond and Raymond Kiedel, charging that the men were carrying a bathtub from a vacant house.

"We wanted some pipe to rig up a gas stove," was the explanation.

Hanford, Calif.—It was twelve down and four to go for Oscar, the 16-inch gopher snake, and it might have been a big day for Harry the hoptoad had not E. J. McIntire, principal of the Oakville school, happened along.

The twelve down were the twelve most important inches of Oscar's anatomy, and they were down Harry's stomach. The four to go were what McIntire grabbed hold of to pull the snake out of Oscar.

McIntire reported Harry and Oscar immediately went their ways, neither the worse for wear.

Denver—Jake Wagner of Littleton needed aid in getting his car out of a parking space so he "gave it the gun" and it responded so readily that it crashed against a pole with fire alarm box.

In a moment Wagner found himself surrounded by fire apparatus. The fire chief let him go on his promise to pay for the damage.

Oklahoma City—Civilization, in the opinion of Prof. W. H. Hill of Oklahoma City University, has done a lot for pigs but mighty little for boys.

"We've devoted time and money to improve our cattle and dogs, observing inherent characteristics and improving the breed but during the same time we haven't progressed one iota in improving our children," he said in a public address.

San Francisco—Supervisor Arthur M. Brown convinced the city's governing board that bricks "are no joke."

First he offered a resolution calling for an investigation of reports that speakers at a "Good Government League" meeting urged "tax payers to march to the City Hall with a brick in each hand."

When the other supervisors appeared unconcerned, Brown drew two bricks from his brief case and slammed them to the floor. "They're no joke," he declared.

His resolution was promptly referred to a committee for action.

Baltimore—Judge Robert F. Stanton took under consideration the leniency plea of James Svoboda, 84-year-old Spanish-American War veteran, who was convicted of larceny of three rings valued at $1-150.

"Don't put the last nail in my coffin," the prisoner pleaded. "I am an old man and haven't long to live."

Let me out to breathe the fresh air again."

FOUR ARABS SENTENCED FOR KILLING AMERICAN

Baghdad, Iraq, April 24.—(AP)—Four Arabs today were sentenced to death for the murder of Ray Fisher, 23, University of Cincinnati graduate and the son of Charles Fisher of Hialeah, Fla.

Young Fisher and a companion, Rudolf May, a newspaperman of Duesseldorf, Germany, were shot and killed by Arabs 100 miles south of Baghdad, March 5.

At the time the two were on a trip around the world. They were trying to reach India by way of Iraq, padding a collapsible canoe. Fisher was shot through the head and died instantly. May was shot in the abdomen and, before he died, told authorities that the Arabs approached them and asked for matches as they were tying their canoe to the river bank. The Arabs fired without warning.

Fisher's body was found by police in an improvised grave here. An investigation, arrests, and today's conviction followed.

ROMANTIC RUNAWAY

By KATHARINE HAVILAND-TAYLOR

BEGIN HERE TODAY

FABRITO, a handsome youth accused of a murder he did not commit, escapes from Key West to Havana with two thieves, BEAU and LOTTIE. In Havana, under the name of "Juanito," he becomes celebrated as a boxer and he and Beau open a gymnasium.

Pablo loves ESTELLE FIELD, daughter of rich JIM FIELD, and she loves him. They meet and plan to marry, but Field breaks up the affair, taking Estelle away. Two years later she becomes engaged to ALEC DAVIDS.

SIR AUBREY, titled Englishman and Pablo's father, has been searching for his son, employing BILLINGS, New York detective.

Believing Estelle faithless, Pablo asks Lottie to marry him. Field loses his fortune and Estelle breaks his engagement to Davids. She and her father return to Havana. MARCIA TREADWAY, who knows Pablo, has reached the murder charge, at last tells the truth.

Estelle writes Pablo, but, feeling he cannot break his engagement to Lottie, he does not go to her. NORRIS NOYES, who befriended Pablo as a child, comes to see him. Lottie, realizing she stands between Pablo and his happiness, breaks their engagement and departs.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLVII

Billings, who had written Pablo that Sir Aubrey wished to see him personally and asked the favor of Pablo's address in case he should change it at any time, was to meet Sir Aubrey, also on his way there.

It would be hot in Cuba. Billings thought as he rode in the southward-speeding train on a warm August day. Yes, it would be hot in Cuba. But he would be on his last trip on the case that had taken so long to untangle. The case that had held so much interest for him.

Marcia Treadway, at Como, had met the eyes of a woman who no longer knew her. And Marcia had smiled, seeing in this the sign that her tale was now an old one and that Pablo was safe.

Carlito was kneeling in the Church of the Angels, asking the gentle mother of Christ to forgive him for his intent to kill Jim Field who, before Carlito had reached his triumphant moment, had killed himself. Near Carlito was his son, "Madre Santissimo de Jesus." Carlito entreated, "guard my son from the pain I have known and the evil that it caused!"

He left in the same box a substantial part of his wages and stepped into the blistering heat of the dry street feeling that the gentle mother had smiled on him.

Estelle, living in three rooms of the great house that had been her father's, thought bitterly of the transience of men's affections, as she waited for the coming of the winter that would bring northerners to Cuba. Then again she would show the house to possible buyers—a little over-energetic, perhaps, as she pointed out the beauties of the place and always stopping at the threshold of her father's office where one wet night he had looked through the door after him before stepping through the door which is before all men.

She had heard from Pablo again and had burned the letter. She was through with caring for anyone. She would give nothing and take all she could get. In time, perhaps, she would learn to love material things that held no warm, treacherous, changing hearts.

Pablo, writing that second letter, had said that he was free, that he loved her and had always loved her, that he always would love her. She had smiled bitterly as she read the words, unable to forget the rebuff he had given her with the news that she was engaged. She would never again hold out her hands to pain.

The bell on the Field gate post clanged one late August afternoon as the sun was lying on the earth in long, thick, golden streaks. A shabby little boy opened the gate to Norris Noyes who said he had business with Miss Field.

"She is in the garden, I think," the boy said. "In the garden

You Can Sing In the Rain In These Dashing Coats

Waterproofing Permits Wearing of Fine Silks and Gay Cottons

GLADYS PARKER

If you've been saving your pennies for a rainy day you may as well dig them out right now for trick indeed is the new snowier apparel. The old bumbershoot and slicker days are gone forever. The fine silks and gay cottons have been waterproofed and made into dashing garments to keep you snug and smug in the wettest weather.

White seersucker, with a yoke shoulder and slightly fitted lines forms the coat at the left of the sketch. A wide young collar frames the face and there are huge carry-all pockets. Glass ball buttons, like tremendous raindrops, fasten the front. The voluminous cape (right) is of blue and white checked rubber. The pointed yoke and wide collar are youthful. The roomy cut of the cape allows you to carry as many bundles beneath as your arms will hold. An especially practical cap of white waterproofed gabardine tops this outfit. The white beak will keep your nose powdered in the heaviest downpour.

—Gladys Parker.

only he and his God will ever know how much he hoped that. She said nothing. She plaited the edge of a handkerchief as she had years before when rebuked by the Mother Superior for eating the peaches which were being saved for Father Ignatius who was coming to visit the convent.

Noyes saw that her fingers shook and that she kept her eyes lowered. "My dear," he said suddenly, "you are very young! If you were not quite so young you would know that I love you a right side and a wrong side and that sometimes the cleverest of mortals will think the wrong side is the only side. The wrong side of love has a great many rough places and when the wrong side is uppermost a man will go off without saying goodby and slam the door. And the woman he loves will cry and talk about going home to her parents. Then—if they are sensible—they put love on right side out again and kiss and make up."

He paused a moment. "Love," he said, "means kissing and crying and giving and forgiving. A great deal of forgiving. And when you grow as old as I am, my dear, you will find yourself craving the power to forgive yourself and not another. I think that if you would let me send Pablo to you seeing what he has suffered will make you begin to hope that some day you can forgive yourself."

"He—he was building a house for her," Estelle whispered. Her voice broke. "He was doing all that he could to keep another from suffering the same misery you had taught him. That is the truth—I know it. I saw them together and I love Pablo enough to know the truth of his emotions."

Love

By Helen Weishimer

LOVE is a pretty dream, you say, a theme that the poets sing. Brief as the showers that fall in May, fleet as a bird on wing. A fairy story that should be left in the heart of a picture book; a fantasy that one never finds. Though he runs with a quelling look.

YOU never have had a rainbow, dear. I Yet you have seen its glow. On a summer's day when a storm is done. Seventy times, I know! Faith is the substance of things unseen. We trust till the world's doors close. When did you touch a star, a wind? The fragrance that haunts a rose?

THE sea goes out with the ebbing tide, The end of the stars brings dawn; The cycle of seedtime and harvesting Year after year goes on. So surely your love will come to you, In peace or to maddened drums. For a heart must turn to another heart. Hold to it when it comes!

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

Asparagus, thank goodness, is one full-of-health vegetable that you don't have to sell to the family. As long ago as old Colony days it was an epicurean item in good and regular standing, with the newspapers extolling it in marketing and gardening lists and receipt books giving minute directions for its cooking.

One cook book considerably over a hundred years old admonishes its readers that "great care must be taken to watch the exact time of their the asparagus stalks becoming tender; take them up just at that instant, and they will have their true flavor and color—a minute or two more boiling destroys both."

Asparagus is simply loaded with minerals and vitamins. The tips are rich in actively functioning cells. Calcium, iron and phosphorus—all valuable for body building—abound and good old vitamin B is present in quantities.

Frying Asparagus. It's good for the dieter who's giving up all to get thin for it's especially low in calories. Not of course if served in a rich Hollandaise sauce or drenched with "drawn" butter. But alone, twenty stalks about eight inches long will only supply 100 calories. Of these thirty-two are protein, eight are fat and sixty are carbohydrates.

To be at its best, asparagus should be just out of the garden. Its delicacy of flavor disappears all too soon. Coddle your fresh bunch as carefully as if it were cut flowers. Cut the cord and stand in a little cold water in a cool place.

When marketing look for straight, crisp stalks with the little pointed scales pressed tightly against the stalk at the tip where the growth is newest. The long thin ones have usually grown a better long time and turned tough. Be sure that the cut surface is not dry and that the stalk does not feel tough and woody nor look wilted and shriveled.

It's best to take off the scales because often particles of sand and grit lodge there, so close to the stalk that no amount of brushing and washing is of any avail. The heads or tips should be handled with special tenderness because they are the choicest part of the stalk and easily bruise. Leave these scales on.

Cut off the tough ends, wash well and put to cook in cold water. This extracts the mineral salts and the water is good for use in cooking the rest of the asparagus. After the ends have simmered 15 or 20 minutes skim them out and throw them away.

There are several good asparagus cookers on the market but if you haven't invested in one simply tie the stalks in small bundles suitable for individual service and cook them standing upright in boiling water. Enough water to cover the thick part of the stalk should be used. The heads will almost cook in the steam. When the stalks are nearly done lay the bunches flat to finish the job. This method will insure a perfectly cooked, unbroken tip. When ready to serve, remove each bundle from kettle cut, take off strings and serve with melted butter or drawn butter sauce made with the liquid in which the asparagus was cooked.

If asparagus is cooked uncovered it will retain its color. The time required depends on the freshness and maturity of the vegetable, but twenty minutes is about the average.

JOINT DISEASE STRIKES YOUNGER CHILDREN

Infected Milk May Cause Tuberculosis of Limbs, a Malady Difficult to Cure Because of Other Complications

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN, Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Watch your children, especially when they are between 3 and 5 years, for any sign of infection of their joints. And, while you're watching them, be on guard against the medium through which the youngsters are most likely to become infected with the disease called tuberculosis of the joints.

In fact, tuberculosis of the bones and joints more frequently follows infection through milk than does tuberculosis of the lungs.

This type of tuberculosis is one of the most difficult diseases for medical treatment, largely because of the way in which it is associated with tuberculosis elsewhere in the body.

If your doctor could treat this disease alone, and ignore the rest of the body, he could do much more than is possible today, to cure the stricken child.

Usually only one joint is affected, but sometimes several joints become diseased. You can tell it by a swelling of the joint, a rise in temperature, pain in motion, and the disability and stiffness of the joint.

The child will be disturbed during sleep and will let you know about it by crying out during the night.

Because the disease generally affects the whole body, the child will feel sick, lose weight, and become inactive.

The doctor examines the joint with the X-ray, to tell how far destruction of the bone has gone, and he takes the skin test for tuberculosis, which is of special value to children.

He also can withdraw material from the infected area, inject it into a guinea pig, and discover whether tuberculosis develops in this test animal. This makes his diagnosis certain.

Today, treatment begun early and carefully controlled will bring about successful results in a great many cases. The first thing the doctor does is to "immobilize" the joint by putting it into splints to prevent muscle spasms, which tend to produce deformities, and to prevent pain.

If put on properly, the splints will produce a joint that will enable the limb to function properly.

In the case of an ankle, a plaster of paris cast is put on to keep the foot at the proper angle with the leg. At the same time, the joint is treated with ultra-violet rays.

While such treatment occasionally may be done at home, it is best applied in institutions especially equipped for this purpose. Direct sun treatment is particularly beneficial, because it provides an outdoor atmosphere. But when good sunlight is not available, artificial sunlight in various forms is next best. This type of treatment is not a matter of days or weeks, but of months. In one case, this treatment lasted three years.

The child should be protected from over-exposure to sun treatment. If the sun is very hot, there should be less exposure, and if the weather is too cold, the treatment may be omitted rather than have the child suffer from chill.

Sometimes an operation is necessary, to remove abscesses that develop, particularly when the tuberculosis infection is complicated by a secondary infection with other organisms.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

©1934 NEA SERVICE INC.

Almost any woman can be interesting, perhaps even beautiful, if she'll figure out her type and then play up to it, according to Leone Sousa, recently chosen the most beautiful girl in the Ziegfeld Follies of 1934.

"Type," said the tall brunette with flashing black eyes and hair that is as smooth and shiny as polished ebony, "is the password to beauty and personality. The angelic-faced girl with straight brown hair should realize that she is the Madonna type and, no matter how much she longs to be dashing, should arrange her makeup and hair to suit. The same applies to the Spanish type of beauty. And to the wan, willowy miss. Even girls with pug noses and freckles can be attractive if they'll only admit to being in the 'cute' category and carry out that line of thought when they decide on a coiffure, a lipstick, a new frock."

"When I came to New York six years ago, Miss Sousa said, "I looked exactly like the stage. I couldn't even get a job modeling clothes, to say nothing of one in the theater. So I decided to make the most of my staturesque appearance, bought a stick of orchid green paint to make me look pale and interesting, pinked my hair on the back of my bobbed head and tucked my short locks up under it. Almost immediately I became a type and was flooded with offers from commercial photographers."

Later, it was able to get on the stage, and now I've won a beauty prize."

Miss Sousa believes that exercise is important to one who wishes to be healthy and beautiful. She, herself, takes long walks in the park, rides, swims and plays tennis.

Hair is another important consideration with her. She uses a hair brush just as the average person uses a comb. Instead of setting aside fifteen minutes for a brushing ritual, she does it while she is putting on makeup, when removing it—any time at all.

Miss Sousa washes her face with soap and water, twice a day, and uses a cleansing cream afterward. Her nails are perfectly manicured and she uses cosmetics sparingly though she thoroughly approves of them for all women. "The trouble with most girls," she said, "is that they use too much makeup and often the wrong shades, at that."

St. Simeon Stylites, the Syrian ascetic, built a pillar 60 feet high, and then, for the good of his soul, sat on top of the column for 30 years without once descending.

The air in some of our big industrial centers is polluted with sulphur, equal to 100 tons of sulphuric acid to the square mile.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Bannan

A little girl strangely shy and retiring and treated like a "delicious" hot-house plant from the day of her birth, found herself at six in a select private school where she could mix with other children for the first time in her life.

One day she came home and said, "Mother, that's a dreadful place. One little girl called another a terrible name and the teacher just laughed."

"What was it, dear?" "What did the child say?" "Oh, I couldn't tell you, mother. It was—" She flushed painfully and stopped.

Her mother didn't press the matter then. But another day her daughter said, "I think something ought to be done about that girl. She's calling everyone that had her name and I keep away from her because I'm afraid she'll call me that too."

This time the mother decided to investigate. "Don't you think you could tell me?" "You could stand out in the hall and say it through the door very softly. I'll pretend it is the other little girl."

Soon came a whisper. "She calls them all 'Chop Suey.' And then the child flew to hide her head somewhere in her own pink bedroom and leave her mother to shudder over the depravity of her schoolmate."

It was probably just as well that she disappeared for her mother was not able for some minutes to smother her mirth.

But she did some real thinking. She had followed the family tradition of bringing up its girls, sheltered and secluded from every contamination until they were grown. She looked back on her own lonely, lonely childhood, spent in the nursery with a governess, then later in rarified schools with high walls that shut out the world and its realities until she was almost old enough to be married.

Then she found herself married and living in a cosmopolitan city in a society that consisted of every sort of people including polite roués and intriguing women. She was confused and unhappy with her puritan views and finally turned against all social contacts and sought shelter in a secluded country home where she saw very few people at all.

She learned during that short period to distrust almost everyone because she had never succeeded in segregating the real from the worthless. Without defense and too highly sensitized it took her several years to look upon people dispassionately, to realize that many of her prejudices were undeserved and unfounded.

After a day or two she explained to her little girl that chop suey was something to eat and not a bad word at all. Ask her to come some with you sometime, dear. I think she must be a lot of fun." Which proved to be true.

She decided that her daughter needed a little more roughage, and a chance to meet the world as it is, rather than a rosy fairytale. Better for her to release that dream of perfection and learn choice rather than prejudice. She saw to it that there were more children in the house and had revamped her idea of too tender education that shuts out realism and keeps its girls' heads in the misty clouds.

Protecting the child can be carried to extremes.

M. H. S. GOLFERS START SEASON HERE THURSDAY, FACING WEST HARTFORD

Harold and Daniel Civallo Only Veterans On Team; Former Is Captain; William Weir Wins Berth; Fourth Place Still Open.

Out to better its impressive record of last year, Manchester High's golf team opens its 1934 season at the Manchester Country Club this Thursday afternoon against West Hartford High. The first of fourteen matches that comprise the schedule. The Red and White team, which lost only three matches in thirteen starts last season, will be captained by Harold Civallo, who with his brother, Daniel, are the only veterans of the team who are certain of varsity berths. The Civallo brothers, both of whom have turned in scores that any golfer may well be proud of, are figured as certain point getters for Manchester.

Michael Reardon, who was on the team last year, is having a battle to retain his place with two newcomers and the fourth member of the team will not be picked until later this week. Martin Anderson and Thomas McVeigh are the other two aspirants for the team. William Weir, another newcomer, has been named to start in the opening match.

Last season, Manchester lost only to Windham, Meriden and Bulkeley and defeated these schools in return matches, besides whipping Glastonbury, Lewis High, West Hartford and Hartford. The schedule, which does not include the state meet as the date is pending, is as follows:

- April 26—West Hartford, here.
- May 2—New Britain, here.
- May 6—Middletown, there.
- May 10—Meriden, here.
- May 11—Hartford Public, there.
- May 14—Windham, there.
- May 17—Bulkeley, here.
- May 18—New Britain, there.
- May 22—West Hartford, there.
- May 24—Middletown, here.
- May 29—Bulkeley, there.
- May 31—Hartford, here.
- June 1—Meriden, Sunday at West Palm Beach, six.
- June 7—Windham, here.

CATHOLIC CLUB FACES NORWICH NEXT SUNDAY

Collegians Come Here for Exhibition Game; Three Local Players in Lineup.

Next Sunday afternoon at the West Side diamond the Catholic collegians will play the Norwich Collegians in an exhibition game. The Collegians will officially open their season a week from next Sunday at Norwich. The Collegians have several local men in their lineup, including Tommy Sipples, Woody Walleit and Lefty St. John. Russ Fisher, Leo Normandin and other West Side ball players also. The Catholic club's lineup just now is indefinite as they have only had a couple of practices.

Tonight at the West Side field the locals will have a stiff drill under the eye of Jim Foley who will coach the locals until the team can get a reliable coach. The club is expected to name a coach before the week is up. Practice is called at 5:30 sharp and all players are urged to be on time.

SEARS IS SEEN AS OUTSTANDING STAR OF DRAKE RELAYS

Butler University Ace, Who Ran Fastest 2 Miles in U. S. History, Seeks Meet Record This Week-End.

By JIMMY DONAHUE, NEA Service Sports Writer

The Headliner of the Drake Relays, to be held in Des Moines, Ia., April 27-28, probably will be a slim, angular Hoosier who answers to the name of Ray Sears.

This fellow, hailing from Butler University, at Indianapolis, is defending his Drake two-mile run title, and it is our hunch that no one entered in the Iowa classic this year will be good enough to rent his during the indoor track season just past, ran the fastest two miles ever turned in by an American, butling over the boards in 9:07.4. In winning the 1933 Drake event, the butler boy chalked up the snail's pace of 9:36.1.

Ray Sears... Butler University's two-mile record holder...

All Sears has to do to break the existing Drake record is to better 9:13.6, the mark set by Henry Brocksmith, Indiana University pacer, in 1932.

Sears won't be the only star in the meet, however. The relays annually draw the cream of the track crop from the Midwest. This year is no exception, and we find entrants from the Missouri Valley Conference, Big Six loop, and Big Ten circuit.

Grinnell, with two veterans of its champion four-mile relay squad back this year, is the favorite in that event. The duo is Pfeiffer and McIlrath, who helped defeat such squads as Notre Dame, Illinois and Indiana in 1933.

Drake University expects to grab some glory in its own meet, too. The school has a quartet of good performers in Linn Philson in the high jump, Irvin Stringfellow in the high hurdles, and John McGee and Grant Thompson in the two-mile run.

Others figured to have chances in their respective events this season are Clarke, Missouri Valley indoor shot put titleholder, and McClure, sprinter, both of Washington University, St. Louis; Carl Ripney, Oklahoma A. and M.'s Missouri Valley javelin record holder, and Jim Tichenor, Aggie's best bet in the shot put.

"Jarring Jim" Beusch, decathlon champion of the 1932 Olympiad games, is employed in Chicago by the internal revenue department.

Helen Hofmann became Utah's women's golf driving champion when she averaged 218 yards a shot on the Forest Dale golf course at Salt Lake City.

Local Sport Chatter

Birdies, eagles and aces are the goal of all dyed-in-the-wool golfers but a local man, whose identity must remain a secret, wasn't elated over the birdie he got at the Manchester Country Club over the weekend, mainly because the "birdie" happened to be a pheasant with murderous tendencies. It seems that the golfer in question was wending his peaceful way about the links when he found a pheasant obstructing his path. The golfer brandished his club to shoo the bird away. Instead of taking flight, the pheasant, with an angry gleam in its eyes, rushed to attack. Flabbergasted by this sudden and surprising turn of events, the golfer swiftly hid himself from the scene. The match went to the pheasant, one up.

Local track enthusiasts are here-by advised not to let their enthusiasm run away with them over the prospects of Manchester High this season, despite the smashing triumph over Hartford High last Friday. Coach Pete Wigren undeniably has another good team but he certainly doesn't expect to steamroller all opposition this season. Hartford had a very weak team and saved for Cude's record-tying performance in the quarter mile Manchester didn't come close to being impressive.

However, we have so much respect for the coaching ability of Mr. Wigren that we believe he'll wield a strong, all-around team before the season is far gone and we sure are rooting for the boys to regain the C. C. I. L. title which went to Bristol last year. Wigren is the most popular manager at Manchester High and his charges give their best to justify his faith in them.

Billy Murch may be off the High school track team but he's doing his bit in a big way. He and his gang spent several days at the West Side field, working hard to get it into tip-top shape for the opening meet against the Eastern League Sunday, a fine job that drew praise from Coach Wigren.

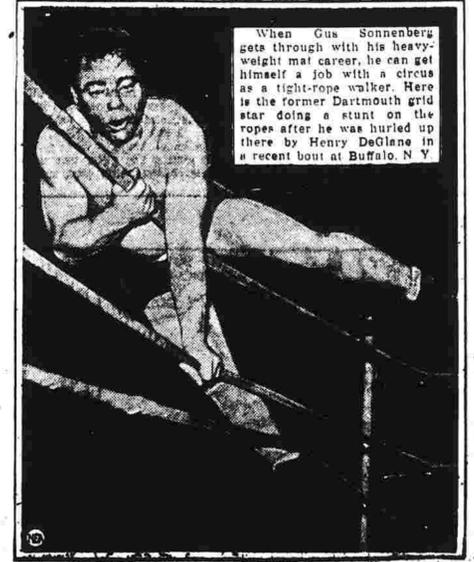

Tommy O'Neil of the Manchester Rec soccer team, who was selected to play inside left on the Northern league team in an April game against the Eastern League Sunday, turned in a brilliant performance in his position. O'Neil scored one of the two goals that won the game for the North, 2-0, and was in on almost every play of the game.

West Hartford High pounded out a 9 to 0 triumph over Middletown yesterday in the first C. C. I. L. encounter of the season. Gowdy and Chis divided the hurling assignment for the winners and allowed the losers only three hits, while West Hartford connected for ten bingles.

WITH THE WALKER CUPPERS

Gus Moreland

Dallas Star, 23, Has Blazed Bright Trail In Southwest.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth of a series of articles on the careers and personalities of the eight members of America's 1934 Walker cup golf team which meets the British at St. Andrews May 11-13.

By BILL PARKER (Associated Press Sports Writer)

Dallas, Tex., April 24.—(AP)—Gus Moreland, 23-year-old Dallas links star, got a surprise on the eve of his departure for New York to sail with other members of the 1934 United States Walker cup team when a sports writer showed him a complete record of the tournament he had won since he started his phenomenal career in 1927.

There were 26 in all, including several important championships within the last three years, and in addition he had been runner-up in five others.

"I don't see how it was possible for me to win that many events," said Moreland, "but if the record shows it, I guess it must be so. Honestly, I didn't know exactly how many I had won, but I never dreamed it was that many."

Moreland is the Texas native named to the Walker cup squad for the second consecutive time, has a room full of trophies which he calls "hardware" and "tin." For winning the Trans-Mississippi title at Oklahoma City in 1928 he was given an extensive automobile, but the United States Golf association frowned on the gift. Gus took the car back and received another piece of "tin" in exchange.

The youthful star's first tournament victory was in the Texas intercollegiate league in 1927, and next year he added the Dallas Country club invitation meet. He won seven Texas tournaments the next two seasons, and in 1931 "arrived" in Wichita, Kan., with only $5.00 in his pocket. He finished in a tie with Gene Harless for second place in the Texas open, retained his Texas amateur title, won the Trans-Mississippi crown and the Western amateur, and was notified of his selection on the Walker cup team—the realization of his biggest golf dream. He qualified for the National amateur but lasted only until the second round.

Great Gallery Favorite Last season Moreland kept his Texas amateur and Trans-Mississippi crowns, but lost his Western amateur title. He kept the Houston Country club invitation title for the third consecutive year and added the New Orleans invitation. In the National open he finished in a tie for sixth place with 295.

Moreland started his 1934 campaign by leading the amateurs in the Texas open with 288, three strokes behind Witz Coy, the winner.

Rated one of the coolest and most consistent putters in the country, Moreland has the going serve to try anything and an ideal competitive temperament. He is a tremendous gallery favorite because he is always shooting for eagles and birdies.

He has expressed confidence that he would win the Walker cup matches, and hopes to remain in England for the British amateur.

HOME RUN FIGURES INCREASE IN BOTH THE MAJOR LEAGUES

America's Net Hopefuls Face Two Vital Factors In Challenging England

Wimbledon, England, April 24.—(AP)—America's Davis cup hopes, if they haven't already been advised of it, may as well learn now they will be up against two important factors in challenging England for tennis honors this season. The first is a better and more confident Fred Perry, ace of the home team. The other is a new and livelier ball.

"I should say Perry is about thirty percent better than he was at this time a year ago," declared Don Maskell, professional coach of the British Davis forces. "His back hand is much better, his forehand is sharper and his service is doing things today that I never taught him."

Although he was playing only the second time since early February,

NATIONAL HITTERS MORE THAN DOUBLE NUMBER OF HOMERS

Hit Nine in 21 Games Last Season, 26 in Same Number This Year; American Also Shows a Heavy Gain.

By HUGH S. FULLENTON, JR. (Associated Press Sports Writer)

If home run figures for the first seven days of the major league season furnish a true barometer, these injections of a little more "rabbit" have been made not only in the National League ball but the American as well.

Greatly Improved Although National League batsmen have shown the greatest percentage of slugging improvement—more than 200 per cent—swatting hits at the same sphere they did a year ago, already have clouted nearly sixty per cent more homers than they did in the same period in 1933.

John Haydler's bombardiers, who could hit only nine homers in their first 21 games last season, have banged out 26 in the same number of contests this year, an increase of 211 per cent. In the American League the figures for the first twenty games showed 17 home runs in 1933 and 37 this, an increase of 88 per cent. The general major league increase was 118 per cent.

The figures by clubs, giving the 1934 home run total first, add that for the corresponding period a year ago, shown, follow: National League—Chicago 6 and 0; New York 6 and 3; Brooklyn 5 and 1; Boston 3 and 0; Philadelphia 2 and 0; St. Louis 2 and 1; Pittsburgh 3 and 2; Cincinnati 2 and 2. American League—Philadelphia 7 and 3; St. Louis 2 and 0; Cleveland 3 and 1; Detroit 3 and 0; Chicago 3 and 2; New York 2 and 0; Washington 2 and 2; Boston 2 and 0.

After a one day vacation granted by the schedule-makers, the athletes will resume the struggle for the National and American League today.

In the American League President Roosevelt was to toss out the first ball for Washington's home opener against Boston.

Clark Handicap To Open Churchill Downs Season

Two Derby Winners Expected to Start in Old Racing Fixture; Col. Bradley Has Chance to Win Every Major Stake at Track.

Louisville, Ky., April 24.—(AP)—With the winners of the last two Kentucky Derbys as probable starters, the $2,000 Clark Handicap for three-year-olds and up over a mile and a sixteenth will feature the opening day of racing at Churchill Downs Saturday. The Clark is as old as the Derby, and like the more famous stake has been run continuously since 1876.

The Northway stable's Gallant Sir has been assigned top weight for the Clark Handicap, 128 pounds. Colonel E. R. Bradley's 1933 Derby winner, Burgoon King, drew 122 pounds, and Pucky Play, a stable mate of Gallant Sir, was assigned 128 pounds.

Weights of other leading eligibles are War Glory, 118; Bazaar, a filly, 115; Larranga, 115; Tick On, 114; Quaker, 113; Breeze, 113; Gold Medal, 113; Breeze, 113; winner of last year's Derby for Colonel Bradley, 113; and 113 each for Barn Swallow, Big Beau, Stride-away, Sun Archer and Liberty Limited.

Colonel Bradley, who became last year the only owner to win both the Kentucky Derby and the Kentucky Oaks in the same year when Broker's Tip and Barn Swallow triumphed respectively in the two stakes, has a chance to sweep every major stake at the Downs this year.

His nominees in the Clark Handicap are Burgoon King, Broker's Tip, Tick On and Barn Swallow. His nominees for the Derby are Bazaar, Boy Vain, Blue Again and Basher's Doser. His fine filly, Bazaar, will be his reliance in the Kentucky Oaks, and he doubtless will have one or more starters in the Bashford Manor stakes for two-year-olds.

SEEK POLO TITLES

Chicago, April 24.—(AP)—The N. Y. A. C. and the Cleveland Riding Club's trio will ride out tonight in the 12th field artillery armory, aiming to clean up their business in the National indoor polo championship tournament.

The New York team had one victory over the Chicago Riding Club in the senior division and headed one more to win a title. Cleveland has one game jump on Boulder Brook, New York's representative in the 7-12 goal section, in their two out of three series.

LOCAL LUTHER LEAGUE LOSES BOWLING TITLE

Is Beaten by Meriden in Best Out of Nine Game Playoff; Barney Sjolholm Stars.

The Luther League bowling team of the Emmanuel Lutheran church was defeated by Meriden in the playoff for the Hartford District bowling title, the Silver City pinners winning the championship in the crucial match last Saturday after the teams had split even on the first six games. The final match was filled on the Maple alleys at Hartford.

Manchester won the Northern title and Meriden the Southern title and the playoff was decided best five out of nine games. The locals took two out of three games here and were beaten by the margin in Meriden, making a match necessary on neutral alleys. Meriden took the first game by 43 pins and the second game ended in a tie, 558-all. A roll off proved unnecessary as Meriden clinched the title by taking the third game by ten pins, 675 to 560.

Barney Sjolholm, one of the state's leading pin topplers, rolled high single with 145 and high three string with 405. Arthur "Lefty" Anderson featured for Manchester with a single of 183 and a three string of 878.

Grand Circuit In Return To Toronto This Season

Toronto, Can., April 24.—(Special)—Returning to this city after a lapse of two years, the Grand Circuit will help Toronto celebrate its 100th anniversary with six days of the speediest of trotting, July 19-20, according to Marvin M. Smith, secretary of the meeting, who announces that $20,000 already is up for early closing events.

Rejoicing in the major trotting horse loop through the re-awakened interest of Toronto citizens anxious to stage a premier sports event in connection with their centennial fête, and the work of William E. Case, "Dad" of the Grand Circuit, this Canadian metropolis bids fair to make the other 10 cities comprising the big harness league look to the laurels.

WOMEN ARE LOYAL

Milwaukee, April 24.—(AP)—John Dillinger's women associates have been loyal to him.

Several have taken desperate chances to aid the Indiana bad man and all of them have been tight-lipped when questioned by authorities about his movements and plans.

A 20-year old half Indian girl, Evelyn Frechette of Neopit, Wis., has figured most often in Dillinger's escapades. She is now held in Federal custody at St. Paul on charges she helped the outlaw escape a police trap there March 31.

Captured in a Chicago tavern, the Frechette girl told officers Dillinger had slipped away when they entered the place. She chided them for having missed their quarry.

Caught in Arizona

She was with Dillinger and other members of his gang when they were captured last fall at Tucson, Ariz. She was returned to Chicago and subsequently released.

The three girls seized early yesterday at a Vilas county resort near Eagle River, Wis., from which Dillinger and six companions had shot their way to freedom several hours previously, were equally uncommunicative about the men with whom they had arrived at the resort last Friday. They also refused to tell their names.

Apparently fearing a jail delivery, Federal agents removed the three from the Eagle River jail, to an unannounced jail late yesterday.

A mystery woman figured in Dillinger's sensational "wooden gun" escape from the Crown Point, Ind., jail. She visited him and was believed to have arranged a temporary refuge for him, while police searched Chicago and vicinity.

ALL ROADS GUARDED

Mercer, Wis., April 24.—(AP)—Scores of officers kept up their ceaseless patrol today over miles of lonely Wisconsin highways, nervously fingering triggers as they watched vainly for some mark of John Dillinger's trail.

Thirty-six hours had passed since guns blazed at the Little Bohemia roadside and the seven Dillinger outlaw scatters into the woods.

In those hours the bandits might have traveled a thousand miles from the scene of battle or sifted back to some rendezvous in the desolate wilds surrounding Mercer.

All night the automobiles of Federal agents roamed along the roads, stopping here and there in search of information.

But the fugitives had covered their trail. At St. Paul, 250 miles southeast, where three of the suspects battled with the police yesterday, the known hideouts were watched.

Speeding automobiles were seen in Milwaukee, on the outskirts of Chicago, and in Fort Wayne, Ind., but nowhere were the fugitives identified.

The Federal men concentrated their search today on the roads north of Eagle River and about Park Falls, trying to find a trail.

They saw little hope in carrying the hunt back through the trackless woods and swamps to the thousand and more shacks that might have been stocked by the gang for a hideout.

The three girls abandoned by the Dillinger band at Little Bohemia were under guard yesterday, today, awaiting possible Federal prosecution.

SAMUEL INSULL TELLS HOW HE FLED GREECE

Methods that Samuel Insull was at that moment turning over in his mind. Consequently, none of the sentinels on duty was prepared to penetrate the disguise of the man they watched—a man whom they were about to see appear as 25 years younger.

Procuring a box of blacking such as women use to touch up their eyes, he set to work coloring his hair and moustache. He worked patiently, and finally accomplished a remarkable transformation.

Escape Was Easy

The rest was, he says, "as easy as falling off a log."

He hired a cab as any ordinary person might do. In it he drove past the pickets and reached Piraeus, where the Malotis was waiting.

It was, he said, chartered for him by friends whose names he refuses to divulge.

Once aboard, he went directly to the cabin and remained close inside until the dingy freighter could be made ready to weigh anchor.

When the Greek authorities became aware of his whereabouts late the next day, they ordered the Malotis to put back under the threat of sending a war ship in pursuit.

NORFOLK TRAGEDY REPORT AWAITED

Coroner Will Probe Double Murder and Suicide This Afternoon.

Norfolk, Conn., April 24.—(AP)—Local, county and state officials are continuing their investigation of the circumstances surrounding the fire which Sunday night burned the home of Jacob Wersula, taking his life and that of his two children, Bobby 9, and Helen 10.

Today Lieutenant Fred Brann of the state police, Sergeant Thomas Rose of Canaan barracks and Deputy Sheriff Thomas Leahy visited the scene of the tragedy, where the remains of the three victims were picked up yesterday and taken to Canaan barracks where they still await the findings of Coroner Lester Schafer of Winsted.

It was unofficially stated that the coroner's report might not be made before tomorrow, although it is understood that state officials will give a tentative report to the coroner of their investigations some time this afternoon. It is understood that there is no reason to believe that anything but a verdict of double murder and suicide will be found at the close of the inquest. No new angles seem to have developed.

No arrangements for the funerals of the three victims will be made until after the coroner has completed his inquest.

In the meantime Mrs. Wersula is recovering from her shock over the tragedy and her father, Oscar Lankinen, who was presumably struck by a lamp thrown by Wersula in his improving under a doctor's care at the home of a neighbor, Mrs. George Hall.

More than 2,435,000 ounces of gold was produced in the United States in 1933.

pantly declined to yield any information.

Assistant U. S. Attorney General Joseph B. Keenan spurred the marksmen participating in the man hunt with this statement issued in Washington:

"We will get them!"

President Roosevelt, meanwhile demanded that Congress expedite passage of pending legislation that would greatly strengthen the government's hand in smashing criminal combines.

Dillinger has undergone some decided changes in appearance since he broke from jail last March 3. Emil Wanzata, owner of the resort where the gun fight occurred, said Dillinger's hair had been dyed a bright red. It used to be light brown. He has lost none of his knowledge of the psychology of fear. He demonstrated that when he forced Robert Johnson, a farmer to act as his chauffeur when he made his get-away from the Mercer resort.

"Dillinger and two companions," said Johnson, "came to my cottage about 10 p. m., and hollered to wake me up. When I asked him who he wanted he said that Mrs. Mitchell (wife of another resort pecker) was and appropriate accompaniment, and to which the audience listened appreciatively, demanding a repeat of the number. Interest was manifested in "Feasting I Watch," because it will be the contest song at the competition of the New England Federation of Men's Glee Clubs, to be held at the Bushnell Memorial May 12.

FINE CONCERT PROGRAM GIVEN BY GLEE CLUB

While the club singers did not appear at their best in this number, it seems assured that at the competition they will be able to give a very good account of themselves.

The rest of the program was of interesting style with a variety of expression, each sung in the spirit of the text.

The fact that the entire program was memorized and the four choirs so clearly defined, added much to the conviction of an enormous amount of painstaking study has been done by the club and its excellent director, who has been so successful in his efforts to produce fine results in the work of the club.

Mr. Foote's piano solos proved an interesting and worthy addition to the program, and were greatly enjoyed. His playing is marked by a powerful tone, wonderful technique and delicacy of touch. The Chopin numbers were played with finish and fine execution and the Debussy with great appreciation of expression.

The Liszt Rhapsody was given with brilliant execution, and the audience was not content until Mr. Foote responded with "The Butterfly Study" by Chopin, which was charming.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDS MINSTREL AND DANCE

Degree Team of Daughters of Liberty Presents Entertainment in Orange Hall.

Upwards of 300 attended the minstrel and dance given Saturday evening by the degree team of the Daughters of Liberty in Orange Hall. The first part of the program opened with a piano solo by Gordon Vennard, 12 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Vennard. Gordon also accompanied his father who sang during the entertainment. Others who sang were Miss Mary Law, Miriam Jones, Thomas Conn, Miss Gertrude Gardner appeared in a graceful ballet dance, with Ruth Robinson at the piano; Winslow McLaughlin played a pleasing violin selection and Hazel Hamilton and Ariene McCaughey did tap dances. Miriam Hooks, whose readings are a treat to any audience, gave a negro monologue.

The second part was a black-face minstrel, entitled "Way Down South in Dixie." The role of interloper, Mr. Brown, was taken by Mrs. Hetty Binks; Uncle Obie, Mrs. Annie Johnson; Mammy Jincy, Mrs. Lillian McCaughey; Mary Jane, Mrs. Ruby Swain; Sassafras, Mrs. Durdub and Epom Salts, Mrs. Violet Field.

SENSE and NONSENSE

It really seems like trying to sweep the waters of the sea back from the shore with a broom, when it comes furnishing everybody with a job.

Maybelle—So Susanna's divorced her parlor magician? Couldn't he pull enough rabbits out of his hat to keep the pantry filled?
Beverly Ann—Yes, but he couldn't pull enough hats out of his pockets to keep her wardrobe filled.

Did you ever see one man call up another on the telephone, just to visit with him?

Woman—My husband is mean; he's taken all the cash out of the baby's bank.
Neighbor—Oh, my dear! That's awful.

Woman—And just when there was nearly enough for the new hat I wanted.

It's getting so now that you can buy farm land for $5 an acre, and then collect $10 from the government for not using it.

Doctor (to film actress)—You are run down and need a change.
Film Actress—A change? Do you know that during the last 18 months I've had three husbands, four cars, three jewel robberies, 11 cooks, two divorces, three publicity agents, seven maids and eight landlords? What other changes can you suggest?

When father kissed a girl she stayed kissed.... Nowadays she won't even stay married.

Visitor—Why does the janitor at this college wear uniforms?
Student—So we can tell them from the English professors.

People who spend money want to receive courtesy as well as value for their money. They don't want to be met with a grown and a frown.

Waiter—Haven't you forgotten something, sir?
Diner (thinking)—Good heavens, yes! My wife told me to water the plants while she was away.

Daughter (after her new beau has left)—Don't you think he promises well, mother dear?
Mother—I do not. He looks too much like your father when he was a young man.

What We See, Hear and Think As The Busy World Spins 'Round: It's easier to keep going than it is to start after you've stopped—To live with some women, a man must either play second fiddle or a harp—Putting farmers to keeping books may be one of the great things coming out of the new deal—A short speech never gets as much applause as it is entitled to—Give a boy and a girl enough rope and they'll get tied up—Never criticize a woman for lavishing her affections on a pet dog until you have seen her husband—We often grow bitter at others for misfortunes that are our own fault—When the average man sets out to make a fool of himself he is using the cheapest material available—Delegation of responsibility doesn't mean "passing the buck"—The trouble with most speeches is that they lack brain power—Men have been known to be successful in work that they didn't enjoy—Wealth isn't the only thing

END OF U-TURN RULE IS SOUGHT

Merchants Express Dissatisfaction Over Selectmen's Modifying Order.

General dissatisfaction over the Board of Selectmen's stand on the Main street U-turn regulation is being expressed by local merchants, most of whom are of the opinion that the Board should have eliminated instead of modified the ruling. Present indications are that the merchants will continue to protest in an effort to have the regulation removed entirely.

It was learned today that Elmer Weden, chairman of the Merchants Division of the Chamber of Commerce, had sent a letter to the Selectmen in which he asked if the twenty-two accidents, reported to have taken place on Main street in 1932 and 1933 as the result of U-turns, were not due mainly to the excessive rate of speed at which automobiles are driven on the business thoroughfare. Speeding is claimed by the merchants to be the primary cause of most accidents on Main street, and it is also pointed out that the modified ruling which forbids U-turns between Locust street and Maple street will increase the use of side streets within this area for turning around, thereby adding greatly to the accident hazards on these streets.

The Board of Selectmen voted to modify the regulation against U-turns last Friday night, after hearing the arguments of advocates and antagonists of the ruling. Whether or not further formal action will be taken on the matter by the Chamber of Commerce could not be learned at the Chamber office today. It was stated that it would be necessary for the merchants to again vote in protest, after which the matter would be brought before the Board of Control, which would then take action on the merchants' protest. It was said that the Chamber was not prepared to state what course would be followed if the Board of Control again upheld the merchants.

Miss Mildred Hazel Weber, daughter of Mrs. Olivia J. Weber and the late H. O. Weber, formerly pastor of the Lutheran Concordia church, was married Saturday afternoon to Arthur Marx of Bristol, son of Mrs. A. Marx of that place. The ceremony was performed by Pastor Meyer at the Emanuel Lutheran church, Bristol.
The young people were attended by Miss Dorothea J. Kuhr of 109 Foster street, and the bridegroom's brother was best man. The bride wore a gown of white mousseline de soie, with bridal veil of tulle caught with orange blossoms, and shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid wore a blue silk gown with cream-colored hat and arm bouquet of pink roses. A dinner and reception for thirty guests followed at the home of the bridegroom's mother, after which the young couple left on a wedding trip to New York City.
