Spokesman for Manufacturers Asserts Proposed Measure Would Stop Recovery.

Washington, April 30.—(AP)—Bearing the surprising endorsement of the Hoover secretary of state—Henry L. Stimson—the Administration's reciprocal tariff bill was criticized today by representatives of industrial interests on the ground it would impede recovery. Harry L. Derby of New York, speaking for the Manufacturing Chemists Association, told the Senate finance committee the legislation would be the "greatest factor in stopping the progress of industry that could be done."

Derby protested against giving the President power to enter into tariff reduction agreements with other nations without submitting the facts to the Senate for action and unless affected industries were granted a hearing in advance. "No industry will be safe in expanding unless it knows its interests are to be safeguarded," he added.

XLAS CLUB PLAN BASIS FOR SUIT

New York Concern Seeks Injunction Against Firm Using a Similar Scheme.

New Haven, April 30.—(AP)—Setting up the claim that there is unfair competition in a Christmas club plan, subscribed to by merchants in various sections of the state, the Christmas Club Corporation of New York has brought two suits in the Federal Court here against Gordon, Hamilton Associates, Inc., of Hartford and has asked that a permanent injunction be granted against it and those tradesmen in its plan. The plaintiff corporation claims unfair competition because of similarity with its own Christmas club plan. The first suit was filed some months since with certain Hartford and Bristol merchants named as defendants. The second suit filed last week against the Hartford company as principal names as co-defendants about 15 stores in the New London area. It is understood that in the latter instance notice was given also that there is a suit pending again at Hartford and Bristol stores. In the latter city eight stores were named.

Operating for Years The plaintiff corporation in its complaint sets up that it has been operating a Christmas club plan in banks for years, and in addition has a trading stamp proposition for stores. It alleged J. Maxwell Gordon, a former employe of the plaintiff corporation formed the Hartford company and has put out a Christmas club plan which the plaintiff alleges is an infringement. Although there had been some court argument on the first suit no further action has been taken except the filing of pleadings, it was understood today from information

DILLINGER MOB OF 3 TAKE AWAY OFFICERS' GUNS

Chicago Police Chase Gangsters' Car, Then Give Up Weapons When Threatened by a Machine Gun.

Chicago, April 30.—(AP)—Four gunmen climaxed a two mile chase with a hand-to-hand battle with police in suburban Bellwood early today—and the officers said one of the four, all of whom escaped, "looked like" John Dillinger, the hunted killer. Another of them, said Police Lieutenant Joseph Hagemister, resembled George "Baby Face" Nelson, the little gunman of the Dillinger gang, and a third bore a likeness to Henry Fox, another Dillinger aide.

The chase ended when the hoodlums disarmed the officers. One of the men hit Policeman Harry Whalen over the head with a machine gun before speeding away into the darkness with his companions. Whalen and two other officers, Lieutenant Joseph Hagemister and Policeman Gus Mendze, began the chase in a police car when the gunmen's machine failed to halt at a red light. The police caught up

NEGRO IS SAVED FROM ANGRY MOB

Sheriff Sends Him Away Under Guard Before He Informs 500 Searchers.

Crisfield, Md., April 30.—(AP)—Sheriff Luther Daugherty early today captured Harry Flemming, negro for whom hundreds of men and boys had searched woods and swamps since early last night. Flemming was taken to the hands of a guard of state police and rushed to Baltimore before the sheriff let the searching crowd know their man was gone. The sheriff, who said he had been "working alone," made the arrest unaided when he found Flemming at the home of Joe Spence, near Westover cross roads, several miles from the spot where the crowd believed they had him surrounded in a swamp.

TODD KILLED HIMSELF, STATE OFFICIALS THINK

Motive Was to Cover Up a Shortage of $3,200 They Say—Planted False Clues of a Robbery.

Bridgewater, April 30.—(AP)—While Coroner J. J. Phelan today reiterated his statement of last week that his investigation into the death of Arthur Todd, 70 year old Bell Island, Norwalk, resident, would remain open for the time being, state and county officials who worked in the case have accepted a theory that Todd committed suicide by drowning. The motive for taking his own life, according to the investigating officials, was to cover up a shortage of about $3,200 in the estate of his former wife which he had been holding in trust for his son, K. Stanley Todd, of New Haven.

Police and soldiers of many lands were marshaled for extraordinary duty today as authorities girded for battle in outbreaks feared on May Day. In Paris alone Tuesday, 18,000 police, 10,000 mobile guards and 3,000 mounted guards will be ready for action if mobs take to the streets during a May Day general strike against recent government economy decrees.

WARNS AGAINST INTIMIDATION IN CASE OF STRIKE

Prosecutor Shea Says Any Rough Tactics Will Be Severely Dealt With—Four Strikers Guilty.

Acts of intimidation or violence by strikers against local persons will not be tolerated in the future, and those found guilty of such acts will be severely penalized, Prosecuting Attorney William J. Shea declared in emphatic language in Police Court today when the cases of four men formerly employed by the Vanderbrook Nurseries came before Judge Raymond Johnson.

Four Fined Henry and Felix Zatkowski, brothers, of 88 Union street; Stanley Lis, of 60 North street and Chester Yaworski, of 17 Kerry street, the defendants, were found guilty of breach of the peace and fined $2 and costs each. Yaworski and Lis paid but the Zatkowski brothers filed notice of an appeal. Prosecutor Shea stated that he had received numerous complaints about strikers making intimidatory threats to those remaining at work, and added that it was his duty to see that the strikers behaved themselves. He revealed that many residents who had received such threats were too frightened to complain to the police, feeling that if they did so retaliatory tactics would be adopted. He made it clear that strikers found guilty of intimidating others would have to pay the extreme penalty under the law for such acts.

ONE AUTO DEATH OVER THE WEEK-END

Double Drowning, Suicide and Man Killed by Train, Reported in the State.

By ASSOCIATED PRESS Five lives were snuffed out in Connecticut over the last week-end, one in a double drowning, one by locomotive, one by suicide and only one in an automobile accident. Thomas Brennan, 9, and Paul Caron, 10, cousins, drowned Sunday while playing on an unprotected bridge over a canal in Moosup at the rear of young Caron's house, where the Brennan boy and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Brennan of Jewett City were visiting. The boys' mother who was picking violets nearby missed their sons and on investigation found them in the canal. Mrs. Brennan pulled her son from the water and Ferdinand Caron went to his boy's rescue, but all efforts at resuscitation failed.

THREE PRISONERS ESCAPE FROM PEN

Secure Pistol, Disarm Tower Guard and Get Over Wall at Ohio Prison.

Columbus, April 30.—(AP)—Three convicts with a smuggled pistol who slid over the wall of Ohio Penitentiary after disarming a guard were free today as Warden P. E. Thomas promised "an investigation indefinitely until we can find out, if possible, where the gun came from." The three prisoners—Martin Schmitt, a bank robber; Arthur R. Deeds, an auto thief; and Rufus Deeds, a robber—diplomatically worked their way through a guard which for weeks has been watching for an attempt to free three former members of John Dillinger's outfit. Warden Thomas who tomorrow will celebrate his 51st anniversary as head of the institution, said the gun either had been smuggled in by an unfaithful guard or was the property of a prisoner who had been in the prison for years. Floundering the pistol, the men owed 24 fellow convicts and two civilian citizens, climbed a ladder and slipped over the wall on the latter side of the pen.

Mormon Crickets Threaten To Destroy Crops in Idaho

Boise, Idaho, April 30.—(AP)—A wind blowing constantly among the leaves. Desperate Mormon settlers, from whose experience with them the insects get their name, tried every device available but failed to protect their crops from the pest. The Latter Day Saints' history credits the insects from islands in the Great Salt Lake with saving them from starvation. The insects, swarming in thousands, gnawed on the leaves of the crops, and the Mormon settlers, who have made their homes in the area since the late 1800s, were forced to leave their crops to rot.

GRANDSIRE OF JUNE ROBLES, KIDNAPED CHILD, DISAPPEARS

U. S. and Mexican Agents Now Searching for Arizona Who Vanished After Seeking Contact With Snatchers—Old Man Left Last Night for Secret Destination With Two Companions and Has Not Been Seen.

Tucson, Arizona, April 30.—(AP)—Two governments sent crack agents on the hunt for little June Robles, kidnap victim, today, and for her 73-year-old grandfather who has mysteriously disappeared. Bernabe Robles, the grandfather, left last night with two companions for Mexico, presumably to establish contact with the kidnapers and perhaps pay the ransom of $15,000 which has been demanded. Their failure to return early today gave rise to fears for their safety. Agents of the governments of the United States and Mexico began looking for the aged man, reputedly wealthy, and for the child, who was kidnaped last week.

The report, with the findings of other special committees will be acted on by the Chamber as a whole, which opens its annual meeting tomorrow. The businessmen will be called on to vote for an attack on the securities act, in a report of the committee on regulation of securities. "Unless the act is properly modified," the committee found, "there is little, if any, prospect of the origination and sale of new and refunding corporate issues in needed volume."

PRIEST IS KILLED SHIELDING WOMAN

Bullet Intended for Her Pierces His Heart—Killer Is Believed Insane.

Jersey City, N. J., April 30.—(AP)—Dominic Marra, 58-year-old Newark carpenter, was formally charged today with killing the Rev. Julius Moscati, pastor of Our Lady of Mount Carmel Roman Catholic church, and was held without bail to await action of the Hudson County grand jury. Arraigned before City Judge William McGovern, Marra was charged also with assault with intent to kill Mrs. Christina Moscati, 46, widow of the priest's brother and housekeeper at the rectory. Marra's "delusion of persecution" was blamed for the slaying which occurred at the rectory yesterday. Marra entered the rectory just after Father Moscati had officiated at noon mass. The priest was slain when he attempted to shield his sister-in-law. A bullet penetrated his heart. Mrs. Moscati was shot three times. Her condition today was critical. Marra, running from the place, was captured by a passing policeman who had heard the shooting. He told police Mrs. Moscati owed him $245 in connection with some work he had done, and that he sought to collect it. Relatives of the man said he suffered a severe head injury three weeks ago and that since then he has suffered "delusions of persecution."

TRAFFIC SURVEY NEARING THE END

About 900 Persons in State Given Employment for Last Six Weeks.

Hartford, April 30.—(AP)—The state-wide survey of motor vehicle traffic in Connecticut which has given employment to approximately 900 individuals for about six weeks, is practically completed.

With the completion of the state traffic survey, Captain Leonard J. Maloney, in charge of veteran relief in Connecticut, today submitted to Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins at Washington, suggestions for a new project which would give employment not only to veterans who have been engaged in the survey but to others who are disabled or who have passed the generally accepted age limit for employment in industry.

The new plan would call for an expenditure by the government in Connecticut of approximately $325,000 and would furnish employment to approximately 1,700 individuals for a three months period. Under the plan, he explained today, ten offices would be provided in the larger cities of the state, and the new organization would provide regional directors and instructors or foremen, who would instruct the larger group in the repair of shoes, furniture, stoves, clocks, clothes and other articles for individuals on public relief rolls, or for inmates of state institutions.

GRANDSIRE OF JUNE ROBLES, KIDNAPED CHILD, DISAPPEARS

Were understood to have expressed approval of the mission of the elder Robles, at whose wealth the $15,000 ransom demand was directed.

Announcing the Federal government's cooperation in the case, Joseph E. Dunn, special agent in charge of the department of justice division investigation, said a friendly basis existed between his seven special agents here and police and sheriff's officials.

Reports that the kidnapers had demanded withdrawal of all investigators to guarantee safety to the child were denied officially. Members of the Robles family said no request had been made to authorities to stop activities since a small army of quick-shooting cowboys, ranchers and war veterans halted their volunteer search for June Friday to allow negotiations with the kidnapers which the family hoped to arrange.

"At present the railroad rate structure is far from adapted to public needs for those of the carriers through improvements in the rate procedure should be adopted to make possible prompt adaptation of rates to requirements."

CHICAGO LEADER CONFESSES HE WAS INVOLVED IN THE BREMER KIDNAPING

Chicago, April 30.—(AP)—The Federal Bureau of Investigation said today that John J. "Boss" McLaughlin has confessed handling $53,000 of the ransom collected from Edward Bremer, St. Paul banker.

POLITICAL BOSS HANDLED RANSOM

Melvin H. Purvis, chief of the Chicago office of the Bureau of Investigation, announced that McLaughlin had made a full confession of his part in the disposition of portions of the $200,000 ransom paid for Bremer's freedom after 23 days a captive of kidnapers.

Four men were in Federal custody today—McLaughlin and Vidler already arraigned, and two others awaiting the issuance of warrants charging them also with conspiracy.

Some Recovered
Purvis said the government had recovered $3,000 of the ransom. They found $85 of it Saturday on young Jack McLaughlin, 17 year old son of the erstwhile west side political boss, Purvis said. Still more was found in possession of Philip Delaney, whose arrest in McLaughlin's home at the same time the "boss" was seized became known only today.

Delaney, the fourth accused of conspiring in the disposition of the ransom, was alleged to have handled $34,000 of the money that passed throughout Laughlin's hands.

The government is hunting two Oklahoma ex-convicts, Arthur Barker and Alvin Karpis, as the actual abductors of the St. Paul banker.

A report that the pair had been seen in secret custody of Purvis over the week-end was denied by Federal officers.

Bridgewater, April 30—(AP)—Divorce and a change of name are sought in an action filed in the Superior Court today by Mildred Knapp Bennett of Wilton against William C. Bennett of Joliet, Ill. The two were married on May 8, 1929, and Bennett is alleged to have deserted on July 1 of the same year.

CHURCH'S FOUNDERS AT SPECIAL SERVICE

Two of Original 20 Attend Concordia Lutheran 40th Anniversary Celebration.

Two of the original group that organized the Concordia Lutheran Evangelical church in Manchester were present at the 40th anniversary services held yesterday morning and evening. They were Henry Schuetz and Henry Custer. Two others are still living in Manchester but ill health and infirmities prevented their attendance. They are William Friess and John Lautembach.

Big Attendance

Large congregations featured all services yesterday, the church auditorium's capacity being taxed both morning and evening. Several former parishioners now living out of town were noted in the gatherings.

Rev. Karl Richter's sermon in the morning dwelt on the theme of hard work and the fruit it bears. He pointed out the extreme difficulty the little band of 20 families experienced here when they organized their church. This group first decided to form a Concordia Lutheran church society in 1893. The organization was completed in 1894 and the church was built in 1897. In the span of 40 years the church has had 550 baptisms, 463 confirmations, 236 marriages and 228 funerals.

Reunion Service

The confirmation reunion service in the evening was an occasion for many happy gatherings of class members who had not met in many years. Rev. Richter talked to the congregation on King David's leadership of the Children of Israel pointing out the honor and rewards that come to those who remain faithful.

Features of the anniversary celebration were the presentation to the church of an outdoors bulletin board by the Young People's Society and the gift of new hymnals by the Sunday school.

BIG RUSH TO PAY TAX BEFORE PENALTY LEVY

Long Lines at Municipal Building as Property and Personal Taxes Are Paid.

With one day remaining before the $1 penalty is laid for non-payment of the personal tax within the prescribed 30 day limit, long lines of residents appeared in the corridors of the Municipal building today to discharge this annual $2 obligation with Tax Collector George H. Howe.

Men and women started to assemble as soon as the doors to the Municipal building opened at 9 o'clock, and an hour later the number increased to such an extent that it was necessary for a double line to form. Some of those in the line, of course, were there to settle their property tax, but the majority by far were on hand to meet the $2 personal tax. After tomorrow a penalty of $1 will be levied.

SAFE IS BLOWN OPEN

Danbury, April 30.—(AP)—Burglars blew open a safe in the general store of Connery Brothers in Georgetown, 12 miles south of this city, last night and attempted to blow the safe in the nearby post-office, but apparently were frightened away before they completed the job. The Connery safe was completely wrecked, but the burglars got little for their trouble, as the concern's money had been hidden elsewhere in the store. State Police Lieutenant Leo F. Carroll of the Ridgefield barracks said today that the job apparently was the work of experts.

IMPROVED WEATHER SERVICE PROPOSED

Co-operation of Brainard Field Automatic Telegraph Is Sought by Loneragan.

Washington, April 30.—(AP)—Senator Loneragan plans to take up with the Department of Commerce and the Weather Bureau the proposals of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce special committee on Weather Bureau Service for improvement of the service through co-operation with Brainard field.

The committee wrote the Senator saying that the reduction of the Hartford Weather Bureau personnel to one man had destroyed much of that bureau's effectiveness, while the efficient service provided Brainard field by automatic telegraph was unavailable to the general public. To correct that condition, the committee suggested that the Weather Bureau office in the Hartford Federal building, be closed and the meteorologist there be transferred to Brainard field.

There he would use his technical knowledge, aided by the Department of Commerce service, to provide accurate weather information to the entire state. Arrangements have been made, the committee report said, to broadcast his forecasts.

EQUALIZATION TAX TO BE DISCUSSED

Selectmen and District Commiteemen to Go Over Apportionment Plan.

The Board of Selectmen will meet with representatives of the nine school districts in Manchester Friday evening, May 4, to talk over the apportionment of the equalization tax on schools.

Some of the districts have been found to possess a greater amount of property than others, with debts to some and credits to others. So that all of the districts may be on the same plane when the special tax is collected, is the principal reason for Friday night's session, at which time it is hoped to equalize the various debts and credits.

This special school tax is figured on the property held by the various school taxes as of the date of consolidation of the schools. Complications may arise before the matter is satisfactorily settled. It was stated by Mayor Aaron Cook today, because some of the properties in the different school districts have changed hands in the meantime.

ALFRED E. LAVERY ASKS SQUARE DEAL

Former President of State Senate Speaks Before Women's Organization.

New York, April 30.—(AP)—Alfred E. Lavery, former president of the Connecticut State Senate in the last Legislature, urged Republican women to supplement the "New Deal" with the "Square Deal" in an address today before the Livermore School of Politics at the Women's National Republican Club.

"Point out the word 'New' in the New Deal and insert the word 'Square,' he said. 'It was a plea for a square deal made in 1776 by our forefathers. It is time we made such a plea again. The time has come to cast aside false modesty and false guilt and admit our mistakes. It is time to get back to the thought of our fathers.'

"We have been following false gods too long. Let us go back to the Constitution, which should be as sacred to us as the Bible itself."

Raps Administration Assailing the policies of the Roosevelt administration, Lavery said the President was elected because the people wanted a change—"the plea of the people was for a new deal, for the return of prosperity."

Subsequent legislation "appalled" many, he declared, "but we were loyal." "Time will not permit me to go through the alphabet of all the government agencies. They came up like toadstools and operated with reckless abandon."

NRA a Great Help The National Recovery Act, he said, was "a great help" because there was "some question" to the extent of the NRA. Codes have embraced 900 industries, he said, with about 800 outside the code.

"This 800," he asserted, "are those businesses which are the so-called chiselers and which you will always find in the 800 even in either because they had nothing to hide, or because they thought it was wise and prudent. It is the same with all the other agencies as well as the NRA."

He asserted Roosevelt's campaign promises were "made" and said his is "the most inefficient political government ever known." "The offices in Washington are honeycombed with Democratic employees," he said. "As a Republican, I am almost bluish for the simplicity with which our own party carried on before this."

Mrs. Ernest Howe, president of the Litchfield (Conn.) County Republican Women's Club, presided.

SAYS MACHADO READY TO SURRENDER HIMSELF

Former Cuban Secretary of State Claims Ex-President Humiliated by Being Hunted.

New York, April 30.—(AP)—Gerardo Machado, who fled the presidency of Cuba last year and who is hunted on charges growing out of deaths that occurred during Cuban riots after Federal agents in flight, is ready to surrender, Dr. Crescas Ferreras, former Cuban secretary of state, said today.

"President Machado feels keenly the humiliation of being hunted like a felon," said the former secretary. "Yet he cannot surrender without first knowing that the charges against him are in this country, if he did, he could be held in jail for two months pending arrival of the papers."

A fugitive warrant has been issued for the former resident's arrest. He disappeared from his New York apartment last week, just a few hours after Federal agents appeared to arrest him for Cuban authorities.

MOTHER IS ARRESTED FOR ABANDONING BABE

"I'm Sick of This Sob Stuff," Says Judge Denying Motion for Leniency.

New York, April 30.—(AP)—Maurice Martin, 21, and his wife Dorothy, 20, were held under bail of $1,000 each today for Grand Jury action on a charge of abandoning their two weeks old child.

Mrs. Martin left the baby in the vestibule of a church last Friday, returning to her home at 443 Hamilton street, Southbridge, Mass. She and her husband later changed their minds and called for their infant daughter at the New York Foundling hospital. They were arrested there yesterday.

Mrs. Martin fainted in court. Magistrate Francis J. Erwin denied a motion by Assistant District Attorney Edward B. Margolies to parole the mother so she could receive hospitalization.

"I certainly will not," he said. "I'm sick of this sob stuff. She had no consideration for the baby when she left it in the vestibule."

The doors will be open at 5:30 to give opportunity for all who desire to inspect the quilts. The dinner will be served at 6:30. Mrs. George F. Borst is in charge of the tickets.

LATEST STOCKS

New York, April 30.—(AP)—Nervous and erratic price movements characterized trading in the Stock Market today and the trend generally pointed downward.

Mild irregularity and dullness was the rule in the first hour or so. Then there was a rather sharp selling flurry which dropped quotations in most categories to 2 or more points. The ticker tape got behind floor transactions for several minutes. The relapse was comparatively brief, however, and liquidation dried up as some rallying tendencies appeared.

There was little news of an emphatic nature and the majority of transactions were attributed to the so-called professionals. Rubber was a strong spot in the commodity structure, but silver sagged. Wheat responded to further price damage reports with the gain of a cent mere a bushel, but yielded part of this later. Other grains and cotton were hesitant. Bonds were mixed.

A number of prime investment loans improved, but the secondary groups were reactionary. International dollar rates were narrow.

Shares of Firestone, Goodyear, Goodrich and U. S. Rubber were up fractions to about a point at one time, although they subsequently relinquished the greater part of their advance. The utilities had relatively steady, as did the alcohol. Commonwealth and Southern Preferred was an exception with a loss of more than 2 points. U. S. Smelting declined 4 and other metals were a little heavier. Industrial rayon, Columbia Carbon and Republic Steel Preferred were down about 3 each. Issues off a point or more included U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Montgomery Ward, Dupont, Allied Chemical, Johns-Manville, Cleanse Western Union, Santa Fe and Sears Roebuck. N. Y. Central, ex-rights, lost about a point.

Rubber futures got up a cent or more a pound on overnight word from London of the signing of an international peace agreement for the control of exports and production. Corporations with large inventories, of course, made the best showing, but opinions varied as to savings under higher prices for raw material and the possibility that some of these inventories might be sold at a profit.

OPPOSE RATE CASE ACTION AT PRESENT

Chairman of Selectmen Cook Says Prospects Do Not Justify the Cost.

Aaron Cook, chairman of Board of Selectmen today expressed the personal opinion that now is not the proper time for the town to take further action against the Manchester Electric company for a reduction in electric rates.

"I personally do not think," Mayor Cook said, "that this is the time for the town to continue action against the lighting company because of the heavy expense involved in hiring expert engineering opinion and legal talent, on the gamble that the town will obtain a reduction from the courts."

Mr. Cook said the cost to the town of the investigation of Edgar J. Kates, consulting engineer, was $400 and he estimated the expense of continuing the fight would run between $10,000 and $15,000. He said the uncertain outcome of further litigation did not justify the expenditure of such a large sum of money.

It was pointed out by Mr. Cook that the town as a whole benefits from the increase made by the Board of Assessors in the grand list of the Manchester Electric company.

Then he added: "If through court action the property assessment used for a rate case base is lowered, justifiably the tax list should be decreased."

FORMER RICH MATRON IS JAILED FOR THEFT

Mrs. Jennie Blackmore of South Salem, N. Y., Sold or Pawned Household Goods.

New Canaan, April 30.—(AP)—Mrs. Jennie Blackmore, former wealthy matron of South Salem, N. Y., was found guilty of theft and sentenced to 30 days in jail today.

Mrs. Blackmore was arrested at Bedford, N. Y., on the complaint of Mrs. Walter Littlefield of New Canaan, who told state police that furniture and household goods in one of her local houses were sold or pawned by Mrs. Blackmore.

The New York woman admitted taking many articles of furniture, including antiques from the home of Mrs. Littlefield, when arraigned in police court today.

Mrs. Philip Nelson, colored, was given a sentence of 60 days which was suspended for six months on a cruelty charge. She was arrested for tying the wrists of her 10-year-old step-child together, inserting paper between them which she set afire, causing painful burns to the child.

'DILLINGER' MOB OF 3 TAKE AWAY OFFICERS' GUNS

(Continued from Page One) when the other machine pulled up at a filling station for gasoline. Officers Are Disarmed. Two of the gunmen jumped out. One, armed with a machine gun, forced the three officers to give up their weapons and struck Whalen. The other two men remaining in their car, held machine guns on the officers.

The four then resumed their flight, eluding Forest Park policemen who attempted to intercept them. The gunmen's car, a new dark Ford sedan, was believed to have been stolen from Dr. Marie Sweeley at Melrose.

The skirmish came as a rumor of Dillinger's death was gaining circulation. This report had it that the desperado may have been mortally wounded when he and his pals blasted their way out of the Little Bohemia resort country near Mercer, Wis., a week ago this morning. Gets Official Notice. The rumor, heard several times since the greatest manhunt of the decade began, received official notice last night. Melvin H. Purvis, chief of the Chicago office of the government's bureau of investigation, made the terse announcement that Federal reports had been "unable to verify reports that Dillinger is dead in Wisconsin."

"We are still looking for him," he added: "All Poppycock" was the comment of Tom McGrogan, sheriff of Vilas county, where last week's gunplay cost the lives of a Federal officer and a private citizen. "Everyone was at the Little Bohemia resort when the shooting started has been accounted for," the sheriff said. "The gang didn't have time to bury anyone and they were too busy getting away to take along any cripples. If Dillinger is dead from bullet wounds, he was shot somewhere else—not at Little Bohemia."

He added that every inch of ground for several miles around the Little Bohemia resort had been combed for traces of the Dillinger mob, without yielding any clue that would substantiate the theory that the notorious outlaw was dead.

Continue Search Federal investigators at St. Paul declined to discuss the report, but continued to push their investigation, begun eight weeks ago after Dillinger, with his wooden gun, bluffed his way out of the Crown Point, Ind., jail.

There was the usual crop of reports on the whereabouts of Dillinger. Dillinger and some of his gang were reported to have been seen in the vicinity of Fort Wayne, Ind. Purvis sent a squad of heavily armed Federal agents into that territory, but their quarry—if there was one—eluded them. Northern Minnesota meanwhile was the hunting ground in the search for Nelson, also reported "seen" at Marshfield, Wis.

Women Identified Authorities established definitely the identities of the three young women caught in the Little Bohemia resort and since held in jail at Madison, Wis. They named one of them as the wife of "Baby Face" Nelson and the other two as friends of Tommy Carroll and Homer van Meter, henchmen of the Indiana desperado. Van Meter was identified through photographs as the leader of a band of bank bandits that looted a bank in suburban Villa park last Friday of $8,000.

The authorities said that Carroll's girl friend comes from St. Paul, that her name is Delaney, and that she is the sister-in-law of Pat Riley, former St. Paul American Association baseball club mascot, now sought for questioning in connection with the Dillinger search. The agents accused the third girl—Van Meter's friend—of making arrangements for the rental of an apartment used as one of the gang's hideouts in Minneapolis.

Warning Sounded A warning was sounded by District Attorney Randall Elmer of Monticello, Wis., that Nelson might try to liberate the women. He said he believed he had sighted Nelson in a car between Monticello and Madison and told Federal agents and the sheriff at Madison to take extra precautions against an attempt by Nelson to free the women.

PARKING FINE REDUCED

New Haven, April 30.—(AP)—Motorists who violate parking ordinances in New Haven will be fined only $1 hereafter instead of $2.

The reduction was authorized by the City Court judges on the request of Mayor John W. Murphy. The mayor expressed the belief that $2 was too much to charge for minor infractions, but warned that hereafter the parking ordinances will be enforced rigidly.

Hartford also reduced its fine for parking violations recently.

TRAWLER CREW BATTERED BLAZE WHILE AT SEA

Facing Danger from Explosion, Gloucester Fishermen Bring Boat Safely Into Port.

Liverpool, N. S., April 30.—(AP)—Battling fire at sea and refusing to take to their boats even when there was danger of an explosion, the crew of the Gloucester fishing trawler Sabia saved the vessel and brought her into Liverpool for repairs.

A spark from the generator of the motor operating the winch started the blaze in the engine room while the trawler was fishing on Brown's Banks yesterday.

The flames spread so rapidly the interior was a mass of flames within 15 minutes. For a while the men feared the fire would set its way through to the oil stores and cause an explosion.

Part of the crew was ordered to fight the fire, while others made the lifeboats ready for a quick getaway. After battling for more than an hour the fishermen finally got the flames under control and the Sabia was headed for Liverpool, reaching port under her own power.

The engine room was badly scorched and major repairs and replacements will be made before she returns to the Banks.

WRIGLEY'S TO DISPLAY NEW BLUE CODE EAGLE

Coast to coast newspaper advertising of the Wm. Wrigley Jr. Company beginning May 1 will carry the new N. K. A. Blue Code Eagle. The new insignia differs from the old in that it carries below the blue eagle the word "Code" instead of "We do our part."

In a letter to employers operating under codes the Recovery Administrator said: "Its display by you will inform the public that you are cooperating with the vast majority in stamping out unfair practices and methods of competition, and giving your employees a square deal by paying code wages."

Display of the new Blue Eagle certifies that the chewing gum company is in strict compliance with Code under regulations issued by the administrator.

ZORIC DRY CLEANING CLICKS AGAIN

The testimonial states: 'I want to take this occasion to congratulate your company on the excellent cleaning job you did on my Polo coat. I was a little dubious as to just how well this coat could be dry cleaned - as it was, frankly speaking, quite soiled - but the thorough manner in which your ZORIC process cleaned it was really a revelation to me. It was especially pleasing to me to find that this remarkable process left no odor, plus the fact that it cost me no more than I have been in the habit of paying for such work. State's Achievements Over Three Centuries

The following article is part of a pamphlet, which will be ready for distribution soon, prepared by Professor George M. Dutcher of Wesleyan University, Middletown, for the State Tercentenary Commission, in answer to numerous inquiries as to why Connecticut will have a tercentenary celebration in 1935. A second and concluding installment will be published one week from today.

THREE CENTURIES OF CONNECTICUT ACHIEVEMENT
By George M. Dutcher

It is an event when an American commonwealth is able to celebrate its three hundredth birthday. Connecticut is about to enjoy that privilege. A Tercentenary Commission, authorized by the state legislature and appointed by the Governor, is planning the celebration for the summer and early autumn of 1935. Connecticut is a daughter of the Massachusetts Bay Colony whence settlers came to found the three river towns of Wethersfield, Windsor and Hartford. Except for a few pioneers, this migration began in 1635, and by the end of that year there were, for the first time, settlers living in each of these three towns, and, furthermore, a fort had been established at Saybrook. Hence, 1635 has been selected as the year to be generally commemorated.

Today Connecticut is a little state with an area of less than five thousand square miles. In the early days, however, settlements from as far north as Springfield to those on the southern shore of Long Island were reckoned as belonging to Connecticut. To the eastward the colony at one time claimed as far as Narragansett Bay, and to the westward, it included Rye in New York. Later the charter from Charles II named the South Sea at the western limit of the colony, and, as a consequence, over a century later Connecticut people migrating westward into Pennsylvania and Ohio presumed to act under Connecticut authority. It was as late as 1800 before the state became definitely limited to the boundaries substantially as they now exist.

Grew Slowly

At first, the population grew slowly and at the end of the first century amounted to only 85,000. By the conclusion of the second hundred years, it had barely reached 300,000, but in the third century, it has expanded rapidly to over 1,800,000. During the first two hundred years the colonists, with rare exceptions, were of English origin. In the last century, however, vast numbers from many other nations have been making Connecticut their home. The pioneer instinct seems to have been strong in Connecticut blood, since throughout the last one hundred and fifty years the state has been moving westward and southward to open new lands. Consequently, today numerous citizens in every state of the Union look back to Connecticut as the old home.

Queer Twists In Day's News

Brownsville, Pa.—Mike Minsky, 28, was willing to go along with the holdup until the things got interesting.

Returning home late at night Mike was halted by two gunmen. He emptied his pockets of 11 cents. "Ain't you got no more?" asked one of the thugs. Mike said no.

Then they stopped him. Minsky got mad, flattened one of the gunmen and took a swing at the other. Both thugs fled.

London.—The Prince of Wales, renowned for his appreciation of a good story, tells one of his own.

The year, related by the Royal Highness at a dinner of the Welsh guards, tells of a man who complained to his doctor of pains, but was unable to locate the pain.

The patient was ordered to place a piece of paper under his vest and make a mark wherever he felt the pain. But when the doctor called later, the paper was missing.

The man's daughter, asked if she knew its whereabouts, replied: "Do you mean that piece of paper with all the holes in it? We put it in the piano and it played, 'O God, Our Help in Ages Past.'"

Chicago.—Aloysius Lattjak, 7, knows what it was like to be punished on the stocks in Colonial days. He was caught, with his head wedged in the door of a huge box in an abandoned gravel pit, for 27 hours.

Rescuers came when the cries of his imprisoned companion, Stephen Frejcek, 8, attracted attention.

The boys fell into the box while leaning over its edge and Aloysius was caught while trying to find a way out. Doctors said he will recover.

Spokane, Wash.—It's dangerous also not to pick up hitch hikers, Robert Hughes, 19, learned.

Scorned by Hughes, a would-be hitch hiker hurled a rock through the motorist's windshield.

Fresno, Calif.—Wood beetles are at it again, just as in the days before prohibition.

Not content with boring through wine barrels, they have attacked fermenting tanks and vats in at least five wineries to a serious extent, the owners report.

Rio De Janeiro.—A weeping pickpocket, Francisco Da Silva, who specialized in funerals—and the purses of the mourners—is in jail.

Police records say his method was to go to a funeral, weep convincingly and seek out the most tearful of the mourners.

"Permit me to embrace you," Silva would sob, related Jorge Jurgens. "My sorrow is equal to yours; we were great friends." Jurgens' pocket was picked.

New York.—George Jean Nathan, dramatic critic, favors turning over the advertising business to women because, he reasons, they are "walking advertisements."

Women should excel in advertising, he says, as "the art is innate in them with their lipstick, rouge and Rue de la Paix clothes."

BANDS OF TAPE FOR NEW GOWNS

New York Designer Shows Novel Effects for This Summer's Costumes.

New York, April 30.—(AP)—By sewing together bands of tape, New York designer has achieved the latest thing in a summer blouse.

Elizabeth Hawes, who looks with favor each season on some obscure fabric, and lifts it into the front ranks of fashion, showed in her summer collection today a white tape blouse with a white herringbone skirt. It is ordinary linen tape two inches wide. The bands run horizontally, forming elbow sleeves and a high straight neckline widened slightly at the shoulder seam.

Her materials ranged from tailor's line to lace and from upholstery fabric to fur. She showed hats made of tailor's lining, which comes in natural color and has a starched linen appearance, for wear with natural linen suits.

Lace Evening Coats

She is launching lace evening coats over silk evening gowns. The ensemble seen today was "Louis XIV and Madame Pompadour"—all white, the heavy lace wrap made with stand-up collar. The gown of heavy white silk had two narrow straps over the shoulders and a low decollete edged with lace.

In daring contrast was an evening gown made of material which usually covers the living room chairs; upholstery fabric, linen finished, in a spreading tulip design. This fabric is fairly heavy, but cool. The print was handblocked in three colors. The back was cut down to the waist, in a triangle, its point veering to one side.

Several seasons ago this designer played a leading part in the launching of cotton evening gowns. This season she has forsaken them almost entirely. Her gowns for summer dinner and informal evening wear are mostly of printed chiffon or sandy stripes georgette.

For beach wear, she showed a brief, brilliant red box-pleated tunic, over a one-piece white bathing suit. The tunic is of flannel, and has a square neck bordered with white anchor designs. It is belted at the waist with a string cord. The hat that goes with it is a red and white straw cartwheel with the top of the crown missing.

Her advance presentation of fall furs stresses Hudson seal in two colors—black with brown, solving the problem of the woman who can't decide which to buy, and black with seafoam—a new shade of olive green. The contrasting color appears on the collar and cuffs.

POISONED, HUB STUDENT IS FOUND IN GUTTER

Joseph T. Akash of Philadelphia, Had Threatened to Commit Suicide, Police Say.

Boston, April 30.—(AP)—A youth who told police he was Joseph T. Akash of Philadelphia was found today lying in a gutter in the Beacon Hill section, police said, of self-administered poison.

He was taken to City hospital and a patrolman was placed at bedside after hospital attendants said he threatened to commit suicide at the first opportunity.

He was found, semi-conscious, by a police officer on patrol duty. Police said the youth told them he was a student in Boston, was rooming in the Back Bay section and his home was in Philadelphia. They said he was about 18 years old.

WAPPING

Miss Eleanor Stead, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stead of Wapping, returned to her home here after a visit with Mrs. Mary Crawford of New Milford last Friday night.

Charles J. Dewey and daughter, Mrs. Henry S. Nevers, motored to Woodstock, Vermont, to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Adams, last Friday, where they helped them to move to their new home, in Goshen, Mrs. Adams' old home. Her father, J. F. Wooster, died this past winter, leaving the home to his two daughters, and they will all make their home at the homestead hereafter.

There were over 50 members of the Federated Workers of Wapping with their friends, who motored to Hartford where they attended a food forum at 55 Allyn street, last Friday afternoon. After dinner the women played bridge. Mrs. Agusta Burger had charge of the games. A very pleasant afternoon was enjoyed by all who went.

"Wedding Belle," a three-act comedy play, was presented at the Wapping school under the auspices of the Wapping Grange, by the Dramatic club, last Friday evening, to a crowded audience. The hall was filled to a capacity. People were standing in the door. Every one enjoyed the play. The cast was coached by Percy Sashom, who certainly deserves great credit for the success of the play. The play was followed by an old-fashioned and modern dance. The Rhythm orchestra of Manchester furnished fine music with Carl Wiganowski as the pianist. Mr. Sashom, the coach, was seen solo between the acts.

"I NEED HEALTHY NERVES, TOO, MR. CECIL SMITH, WITH A THRIVING FAMILY TO LOOK OUT FOR"

Robert E. Butterfield, Jr., who has two thriving youngsters, says:

"A father's job gives a fellow plenty of experience with nerve strain, too! Providing for the children keeps you keyed up to concert pitch. Then—coming home from work, with Dick insisting on movies—Bob's eternal tap dancing—that's the zero hour for a father's nerves! Although I smoke all I want, jangled nerves have passed me by. That's because I smoke Camels. Camels have the fine flavor of the choicest, most expensive tobaccos. And I find they never upset my nerves."

Cecil Smith, who rose to the top of the polo world this year with a ten-goal rating, says:

"Most polo players, myself included, smoke a great deal. And most polo players, myself included again, prefer to smoke Camels. They are milder. I like their flavor and they never upset my nerves."

How Are YOUR Nerves?

Nerves, nerves, nerves! You hear them discussed everywhere today. For most of us are more or less the victims of irritated, jumpy nerves.

If troubled that way, check up on your eating, your work, your recreation, your sleep. And to be on the safe side about "nerves," begin to smoke Camels.

Marblehead, Mass., Woman
Was Carrying Baby from Burning Apartment House

Marblehead, Mass., April 30.—(AP)—Mrs. Martha A. Gfeller and her 18-month-old son, Dexter, died of burns today several hours after the mother had carried her child from their burning apartment at 51 Elm street.

Mother and child were burned late last night during a fire which was believed to have started from the overturning or explosion of a stove in the baby's room.

Mrs. Gfeller was awakened by the odor of smoke. Clad only in a flimsy nightdress, she rushed into the child's room and carried him to the street. She received first degree burns.

Dexter died early today and his mother passed away a few hours later. Mr. Gfeller, father of the child, was away on a business trip.

CHECKING TREE DISEASE

New Haven, April 30.—(AP)—To check spread of white pine blister rust which threatens state resources in timber estimated to have a market value of 1 1/4 millions of dollars, the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment station is using FERA men besides some 200 men from OCC camps.

Eradication work is largely against the European black currant bush wherever found within 500 feet of a stand of white pine.

J. E. Riley, Jr., of the station, says the winter survey located 87,870 currant and gooseberry bushes within infesting distance of pines. About 68 per cent of owners agreed to have the bushes destroyed.

OPEN REMODELING SALE AT MONTGOMERY WARD'S

Hope to Close Out Large Amount of Stock to Aid Workmen.

Saturday, Montgomery Ward & Co. started their remodeling sale, during which the local store plans to close out most of its present stock, so that on May 9 or 10 their construction engineer, with the help of local carpenters and painters, can start alterations. The entire store will be completely renovated and present obsolete fixtures will be all replaced by new modern up-to-date counters and displays.

Mr. Lyons, local manager, states that he is quite positive that Manchester will be a big job. Much is expected that the work will take about three weeks during which time Mr. Lyons plans on keeping the store open.

"It may be necessary," states Mr. Lyons, "to close for a few days at the end of the job in order to put on the necessary completing touches, but I will close the store only for the shortest possible period so that my customers will be inconvenienced as little as possible. This means that actual work will begin about May 9th. In the meantime, the store is doing all possible to sell out its stock so that as little time as possible will be lost in moving merchandise when the alteration work begins."

Local laborers, carpenters, painters, contractors etc. should watch the Herald for announcements as to when they should report for work. It is expected, if present plans mature that actual work will begin about May 9th. In the meantime, the store is doing all possible to sell out its stock so that as little time as possible will be lost in moving merchandise when the alteration work begins.

AMUSEMENTS

"DEATH TAKES HOLIDAY" RANKS WITH THE BEST

Frederic March and Evelyn Venable Featured in Great Production at State.

A photoplay which must be included on anyone's list of the ten best pictures of 1934 begins Wednesday at the State theater. It is Paramount's production of "Death Takes a Holiday," starring Evelyn Venable, Sir Guy Standing and Kent Taylor. Through directed by a man comparatively new in directorial circles, Mitchell Leisen, it is one of the most magnificently beautiful productions ever to grace the talking screen.

Its grandiose settings, its superb dialogue and splendid acting make this provocative, dramatic romance, as comes as a surprise, of all time. From the famous play by Alberto Casella, adapted to English by Walter Ferris, Paramount gave the screen play into the capable hands of Maxwell Anderson, Pulitzer prize winner, and Gladys Lehman.

Their efforts and the work of a capable cast which includes such masterly performers as Katherine Alexander, Helen Westley, Henry Travers and Kathleen Howard dignify a production which demanded beauty and dignity above all else in its screen presentation.

The story is based on the intriguing idea of Death, the eternal shadow, taking a three-day holiday that he may come to this world to taste life's pleasures to the full.

He comes as a gay, dashing, romantic Prince, his real person unknown to the guests at the house party at which he makes his appearance.

For three days, he participates in all their games and pastimes, seeking to find an unusual love, a love that knows no fear, a love so eternal that even the knowledge of his true character would be unable to shatter it.

Almost at the end of his stay, his search is successful. He meets a beautiful young girl and in her arms finds all of life's beauty. Then his holiday is over, and like any mortal man, he is afraid, dreads to leave the life he finds so dear.

Mitchell Leisen, the picture's director, may well be proud of this, his second picture. Like "Cradle Song," the picture which brought Dorothea Wieck to the American screen, it is a masterpiece of photoplay art.

Ferric March delivers a splendid performance, one which is bound to bring him to the fore

The Poet's Column

IN MEMORIAM
To Our Friend, Robert D. Phillips
Like shock of corn that's fully ripe,
Our brother lays his weary head
On Jesus' loving breast and—lives!
Although they say he's dead.

For more than three score years and ten
He bore life's burdens with a smile
Until his Saviour said to him,
"Come now, and rest a while."

His faithfulness to all was known,
At home, in church, in lifework true,
We vain would emulate his powers
To do the work he had to do.

For children and grand-children,
too,
His strong devotion never failed;
And when in struggle or in grief
His courage never quailed.

We bid adieu to this good man,
Whose virtues were so fine and strong;
We hope to meet him in God's home,
Where sighing's changed to song.

He loved his God with all his heart,
His mind, his strength, and soul;
And with a gentle sweetness bore
All things in love's control.

And God loves man who serve Him here,
Along the common ways of life:
The Heavenly Father never fails
To victory give in strife.

As Brother Phillips followed Christ,
So let us follow Jesus, too,
Until our Lord shall call us home,
And we His face shall view.

DERBY POSTMASTERSHIP
EXAMS ARE QUESTIONED

Civil Service Commission
Asked to Review Case With a View to Possible Correction.

Washington, April 30.—(AP)—The Post Office Department revealed today the Civil Service commission had been asked to review the examinations for candidates for appointment as postmaster at Derby, Conn., with a view to possible correction and remaining of those eligible for appointment.

The request was made, the post office statement said, as a result of representations that one of those who failed to make the eligible list was actually known to be better qualified than some of those announced as qualified after the examination. However, both the department and Senator Lonergan refused to reveal the name of the candidate in whose behalf the protest was made.

In another source, it was reported that the protest was based on failure to make a "final examination" to determine the "writing" capabilities. As a part of the review, the commission will send an agent to Derby to discuss with members of the commission and the respective ability and the standing in the community of the various candidates. As a result of this final examination, the standing of the eligibles may be modified.

At the Post Office Department, it was reported such reviews are not infrequent, and occasionally show that some injustices have been done some of the candidates.

MRS. KRESSEL DEAD

New York, April 30.—(AP)—Mrs. Edna J. Kresel, who said following the conviction of her husband, Isidor J. Kresel, for misapplication of funds in the defunct Bank of United States case, "the only relief now is death," is dead. Her death, occurring on her fiftieth birthday anniversary Saturday, was announced last night.

Kresel, prominent New York attorney and one-time crusader against political crookedness, is at liberty pending appeal of his conviction. Death of Mrs. Kresel was attributed by friends to her grief over her husband's conviction. He was counsel for the Bank of United States.

Lake Hadn't Been Near

A salad dressing jar and containing Lake combined one day last week to bring about the death of a skunk whose great for many months overcame its natural caution to avoid the swiftness of man.

While foraging for food, Mr. Skunk came upon a large jar containing the salad dressing which had been left in a box outside one of the cottages to keep cool. Somehow the animal succeeded in uncovering the jar. Thereafter it proceeded to gorge itself on the contents.

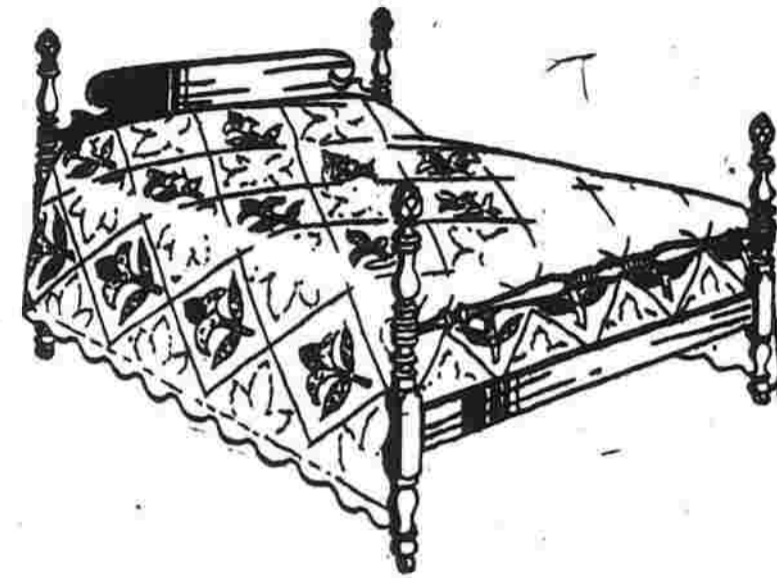

Upon finishing its delectable repast, the skunk attempted to withdraw its head from the opening in the jar. But all to no avail. Frantically in its efforts to free itself from the jar, the skunk kept backing toward the lake. There it was drowned. Cottagers found its body later in the lake and buried it.

Health Department Urges Modern Concept Which Recognizes Child as Free Individual.

MOBILIZE TROOPS IN PARIS STREETS

He warned rebellion might lead to "foreign invasion." A hint of what might be expected tomorrow was seen at Mantes during the night when 2,000 stone-throwing "anti-Fascists" battled police for five hours in the streets of that ancient city about 40 miles from Paris.

What Caused Trouble? Rioting broke out after the defeat of the "Anti-Fascist" champion, Gaston Bergery by Roger Salengro, his National Union opponent, in a by election for a seat in the Chamber of Deputies. The vote was 8,788 to 8,488.

A dozen police and 30 of the bowing manifestants were injured by clubs, feet, bats and stones before forces from Versailles swarmed into overtake the mobs.

Additional police were ordered to Mantes today to guard against a renewal of the outbreaks, while Minister of the Interior Sarraut personally directed the nationwide plans for precautionary mobilizations.

To Guard Paris Movements were centered at Paris, with arrangements to throw an airtight guard around the city. Ten thousand of the mobile guards who led in the shooting and stone-throwing fighting the bloody February riots were lined up for trouble in Paris, along with 18,000 police and 3,000 mounted guards.

A radio-equipped airplane will fly over the capital during the day directing 450 police cars manned at strategic points ready to rush to any riot scene.

THREE PRISONERS ESCAPE FROM PEN

The lower guard and slid to the ground on a sally they had brought along. They took shot-gun from the guard and cut the telephone wires leading to the prison office.

These more notorious jail breakers in the prison, Harry Pierpont, Charles Makley and Russell Clark, apparently knew nothing of the plot. Former members of Dillinger's bank raiding gang, Pierpont and Makley are awaiting execution for the murder of Sheriff Jess L. Sarber in a raid at Lima, O., to free Dillinger. Clark is serving a life sentence.

The three convicts stole an automobile as soon as they reached free ground and reports to Columbus police indicated they changed automobiles twice after that.

Leonard Binford said the convicts forced him and a woman out of his car with a shotgun a short distance from the prison.

Warden Thomas said he heard a rumor several years ago that a gun was hidden "between some two by four" but had been unable to find it. Either this gun was used or a guard "sold out," the warden said.

Since the Dillinger gangsters were brought to the prison, every visitor has been searched. Today's break started in the power house where with the gun, the convicts forced 14 convicts to an ash pit and locked Ed Briggs, assistant engineer, in an ice house. The chief engineer, Roy Davidson, noticed the steam rising, falling and hurrying to power house. He was locked in the ice house, too.

The convicts then forced another guard to turn over a ladder and made for the wall.

DONNA of the BIG TOP

by BEULAH POYNTER

BEGIN HERE TODAY
DONNA GABRIEL and MADELINE SIDDAL who call themselves "The Gabriel Sisters" are trapeze performers with Reutro's circus. OON DAVID, the animal trainer, is in love with Donna who regards him merely as a friend. Madeline is in love with Con.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Chapter IV

A robin, perched on the limb of an elm tree by her window, awakened Donna at sunrise. She stretched with a feeling of well-being that made every nerve throb with ecstasy. She could hear the cackle of hens and Mrs. Planter out in the yard calling, "Here chick! Here chick!" The fragrant aroma of coffee mingled with the sweeter odors of grass and flowers and warm, moist fields.

Donna crossed to the window and, kneeling beside it, rested her elbows on the sill. She lifted her head, drinking in the beauty of the waving corn fields and the golden glow of the rising sun across the acres of growing grain. A man carrying two great buckets of frothy milk, followed by a dog, emerged from a barn. As he drew nearer, Donna recognized him. It was Bill in overall with bare, brawny arms and a looking larger, more masculine than ever.

He disappeared into a summer house adjoining the kitchen. Donna rose and bathed with the cold water she found in a pink-sprigged pitcher set in a basin on the marble-topped commode. Then she dressed slowly. Donna was unbelievably hungry, yet loath to go below and confront in daylight the unsuspecting victims of her masquerade.

At last she descended the stairs. In the kitchen she found Mrs. Planter mixing batter for pancakes. The housekeeper greeted Donna with a brief nod and an audible sniff.

"You rise early," Donna said. "Breakfast you want some breakfast," Mrs. Planter answered. "You'll have to help yourself. There's a heap to do, even if it is Sunday."

Donna poured coffee from an earthenware pot and sat down at the pine table, scrubbed shiny and white. Without speaking, Mrs. Planter set a plate of biscuits and a glass of jam before her.

"Is Grandfather up?" Donna asked.

ing living room. Donna listened attentively to Bill's low, melodious voice as he read aloud the verses that took on new meaning as she heard them and gave her strength and courage. As a child she had knelt at her mother's knee and said the prayer beginning "Now, I lay me every night, Master in hotels she had read Bibles left by the Gideons, but the reading had been only a pastime. For the first time in her life now the words of the great Teacher gave her something she wanted to cling to with fervor that saved her. She understood why the blind old man did not "walk in darkness, but in light," why the vigorous young man could cast aside his ambitions and come to the aid of another, why there was such beauty in the quaint, ugly room. Even Mrs. Planter's presence could not dispell the harmony, the peace, the sanctity of that hour.

"If only I could stay here always," she thought. "If only I really were Madeline Sidal and this dear old patriarch my grandfather!"

All too swiftly the day passed. There was dinner at one o'clock in the shadowy dining room that was used only on Sundays or when there was company.

It was a dinner of home grown vegetables, fried chicken swimming in cream gravy, hot biscuits and strawberry shortcake served with thick sweet cream to pour over it. Donna forgot her life in the circus and seemed almost to become the girl she was supposed to be. She ate of the circus, of the long, arduous rehearsals, the parades, the nomad existence she led, always traveling from town to town and from city to city.

When the sun disappeared behind the red barn she nudged through the fields with Bill to bring the cows in from pasture and sat on a little stool beside him as he milked them.

Then night came and there were more prayers and Scriptures and another climb up the stairs to bed. For a long time Donna lay awake listening to the distant croaking of frogs and the rustle of leaves against the windows. If only she could come back again! She loved it all; the peace, the enfolding arms of nature, the old man with his snowy hair and kindly manner, and Bill. In 24 hours the young farmer who had hoped to become a physician had done what no other man had ever done—won Donna's heart. She regretted that she had not told him the truth at their first meeting. It was too late now. He would not forgive such deception. Next winter when Madeline came back to the farm (as Donna was determined she must) Madeline would have to confess to the whole affair.

But Donna would have the memory of this beautiful day to keep always. She would go back to the circus, to the armful odors of wild flowers, to the crowds and lights and music and sawdust and strive to put out of her heart and mind the sunburned, grayed boy to whom sacrifice was but part of daily living.

At nine o'clock next morning she bade farewell to Grandfather Sidal. There were tears in her eyes as his fingers caressed her cheeks. "God bless you for coming, Madeline," the old man murmured. "You'll come again?" "Oh, yes, yes." "The show life hasn't harmed you. You're sweeter than ever, child. Sweeter than ever." Bill drove her back to Lebanon. He was silent all the way. Even at the station he had nothing to say, and when the train pulled in to the platform he merely gave her his hand in parting and said he was glad to have had the opportunity to know her.

Youngsters Go Scotch, Keeping Close to Style

Clan Plaid Raglan Coat Has Room For Action.

GLADYS PARKER

The younger set has issued a warning, an ultimatum—anything to stop this wholesale thievery of grown-ups are practicing. Marauding adults are ruthlessly stealing their stuff with fond mamas and dashing debutantes shamelessly appearing in Buster Brown sailors, baby bonnets, childish collars, reefers, sailors' suits, smocks and bibs. So the youngsters have decided to go Scotch. They're being very, very cleanh about their clothes, very cleanh about their behavior.

"I hope so—but I don't really think you will come back." A pane of glass separated them. Bill smiled and waved at her. Then, whirling abruptly, he crossed to his battered car and entered it. A film of tears obscured Donna's vision. She blinked them back resolutely and opened a magazine. (To Be Continued)

The highland bonnet in the same red and blue plaid adds a gay red feather at one side. Red, yellow and blue is the loud color scheme of the outfit at the right of the sketch. Both the frock and parties are of Glasgow plaid cotton. The dress is smocked at a high waistline and has a white linen collar and buttons.

BEST FOUND BEST CURE IN HEART DISEASES

British Doctors, Experimenting With Angina Pectoris Patients, Reveal Most Improved After Four Weeks in Bed.

By DR. MORRIS FISHEIN Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

In all forms of heart disease, rest in bed has long been advised as the important item in treatment. All physicians are agreed that rest is most important in angina pectoris and coronary thrombosis.

In fact, many experts assert that if you are troubled with any of these conditions you should remain at complete rest until you are able to sit up without pain.

Some British doctors recently decided to test scientifically the results of controlled rest among 23 patients with angina pectoris. The patients varied in age from 44 to 70 years—18 of them men and 5 women.

All these people had had angina pectoris with severe pain for some time and had been endeavoring to secure relief by attending a medical dispensary regularly, where their conditions were studied and where prescriptions were given to them.

In most of these cases the pain came on following any physical exertion and there were some patients in whom any sudden strong emotion also would induce an attack. These 23 patients were taken into a hospital and put to bed, and absolute rest was given to them for at least one month. Even slight movements were prohibited and they were given the best possible nursing attention.

During the fifth week the patients were allowed to be up for short periods of time and, in the sixth week, to walk quietly about. The exercise was increased gradually in the seventh week.

The patients did not receive medicines of any kind, except for the amylnitrate which is usually used to relieve the pain of angina pectoris. The observations resulted in some exceedingly interesting facts.

First, complete rest in bed for a month or longer led to subsequent improvement in 17 of these 23 patients, and the improvement continued during periods of from 4 to 9 months after they returned to their ordinary habits of life.

Nevertheless, the attacks of angina pectoris were not completely abolished in any of the patients. They did, however, decrease greatly in severity.

The improvement was particularly noticeable in those patients who had had the disease for only a few months. It became apparent that complete rest in bed for two to six weeks is an important measure in treatment of angina pectoris.

Moreover, an associate fact of exceeding importance was the proof that those patients who had high blood pressure with their angina pectoris showed improvement which was especially great.

Rest is perhaps the most important of all the remedies that a physician can prescribe, but at the same time, unfortunately, it is the one hardest to get patients to take.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

If everybody felt the way I do about it, all families would have asparagus boiled plain and served with butter sauce at least once a day as long as the luscious vegetable is in season. But that is not to say that there aren't plenty of other things to do with this versatile spring favorite. And sometimes emergencies call for a change of action.

Cream of asparagus soup, for instance, is a splendid way to serve a small amount of asparagus to a large number of people. So if guests arrive unexpectedly, there isn't enough in the vegetable state to serve everybody make a cream soup and open a can for the extra vegetable.

Cream of Asparagus Soup
One-half pound asparagus 2 cups water, 2 cups milk, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-6 teaspoon pepper, 1 slice onion.

Clean asparagus and cut in inch lengths, reserving tips. Put on to cook in cold water and cook until tender. Cook tips separately in a little water as possible. When tender drain and add water to the other asparagus. Keep tips hot while rubbing the stalks through a coarse sieve. Add slices of onion to milk and scald. Remove onion. Melt butter and stir in flour. Cook and stir until bubbling and slowly add strained asparagus stirring constantly. Cook and stir until thick and smooth and add milk, salt, pepper and tips and bring to boiling point but do not let boil. Serve very hot.

Asparagus in Crusts
One pound bunch asparagus, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 cup asparagus liquor, 1-2 cup cream, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, few gratings nutmeg, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 1 egg, 4 small French rolls or 4 popovers.

Cut asparagus in inch lengths after washing and scraping. Cook until tender, adding the tips after the stalks have cooked ten minutes. Scoop out the inside of the rolls or popovers and butter inside and out. Brown in a hot oven. Melt butter, stir in flour and when bubbling slowly add cream and water in which asparagus was cooked. Season with salt, pepper and nutmeg and bring to the boiling point. Stir in yolk of egg beaten with lemon juice. Add asparagus and make very hot but do not let boil. Fill toasted rolls with this mixture and serve at once.

Asparagus With Hard Cooked Eggs
One pound bunch asparagus, 4 tablespoons butter, 1 cup milk, 4 bread crumbs, 4 hard cooked eggs, 2 tablespoons minced parsley, salt and pepper.

Wash and scrape asparagus and tie in small bunches. Cook until tender and boiling, salted water. Place on a hot platter, remove strings. Cover with cream, minced parsley and garnish with eggs cut in halves. To prepare the crumbs, melt butter in a frying pan, add crumbs and mix lightly with a fork. Cook until rich yellow on top of the crumbs in a 350° oven.

Women Psychiatry Addicts Get Something to Think About

By HELEN WELSHIMER

For several years now the offices of the psychiatrists have been filled with women. They sit on the comfortable chairs and wait their turns to find out Things. Important Things! Just what happened between the patient and the little boy next door, when they were five, that could make the patient forever frightened at the odor of bread and shaving cream. Just how a compulsory Children's Day recitation would make a woman tongue-tied forever when it came to telling the woman's club about new crochet stitches in Tahiti, or whatever stitches they have in their habit.

Psychiatry, so its devotees have believed, was new. It was a Golden Mean that could bring you whatever you wanted—a husband, a farm or a new recipe for sponge cake.

And then psychiatry isn't new, and there's nothing magic about it, and now learn. Irwin Edman, writing about it in the current number of the Golden Book, tells us that poets and philosophers back in the days of Aristotle, on through the Middle Ages, have always known and taught the verities that the present set of men who deal with moods—mostly feminine moods—are advocating. Women, as you know, fill so many of the chairs in the office waiting rooms that few men get inside. No, if psychiatry depended on men to support it, it would again become something about which to read.

Aristotle, Spinoza, Matthew Arnold, even Wordsworth who lived by a lake and usually wrote poems about flowers, all knew the truth of the mind that women today pay money to be told about. They preached, long and long ago, in their various ages and fields and countries that if people familiarized themselves with their own natures and made the necessary adaptation, while life might not sing along as a symphony, at least it would be a good solid church hymn or a pretty ballad.

Maybe it is because women have had more time to think about themselves that they have taken up psychiatry. They would like to believe that a mental discovery would send them away with a flag flying and a drum playing. They have pretended. It's a nice game for little girls. But grown-up ladies should read the words of another philosopher who suggested that when one becomes a man one should put away childish things.

There is no fault with the psychiatrists—so long as they admit that their science is an ancient one and that people can organize themselves by using a little common sense.

When Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt told senior members of New York's private schools the other night to practice cooperation and helpfulness, and make their lives richer through this aid rendered to others, she was giving advice far more important than the backward burrowing into juvenile history.

We cannot live to ourselves alone. These we do, that philosophy "into our minds, that attempt to do what we do this thing, why we don't do

A BOOK A DAY

BY BRUCE CATTON

HERE'S NEW PICTURE OF THAT "NEXT WAR"

That "next war" that everybody talks about won't be in the least like the popular picture of it, if Hoffman Nickerson is right in his new book, "Can We Limit War?"

In this book Mr. Nickerson passes the entire history of war in review and comes to some interesting conclusions.

Despite all its horrors, he says, there has not been—in historic times—any such thing as unlimited war. That would involve the massacre of all the men, women, and children in the defeated nation. Nations don't fight that way and they never have, and there is no reason to suppose they ever will.

Society always has limited warfare to a certain extent. In the Roman era it was strictly limited, for many centuries; in the Middle Ages there were at least six centuries, when it was equally limited—times when two states could fight without visiting any very great suffering on the bulk of their people.

The rise of democracy brought a relaxation of the limits. Conscription came into general use, enormous armies were used, whole populations had to fight. This era culminated in the World War, with horrible results.

Now, says Mr. Nickerson, the pendulum is due to swing the other way. Warfare has been mechanized, and the mass army is out of date. Never again will we see such hordes as those that swung into action in the World War.

Banks and airplanes will be the decisive arms; the foot soldier will be relatively unimportant, as he was in the age of chivalry. Small professional armies will be the rule.

Nor does Mr. Nickerson believe that whole cities will be destroyed by air raids. In the first place, he thinks it hardly practical; in the second place, he says it wouldn't pay—and the general staffs, he adds, show it.

Published by Stokes, this book is priced at $1.75.

Women Wearing Aprons

By Helen Welshimer

WOMEN wearing aprons Make me wonder why I've no squares of gingham With wide bows to tie.

WOMEN washing teacups Sometimes make me wish I could fill a cupboard. Bright dish after dish.

WOMEN hearing children Chanting rhythmic prayers Just as though God listened In a room upstairs—

WOMEN who croon stories As the child fades nod— Have they something lovely I have missed, dear God?

SENSE and NONSENSE

The merchant's biggest business problem is to keep the red out of c-red-it.

Asible Passenger—Your husband's a poor sailor, I believe.

Imposing Ditto—Indeed he's not—he's a very rich produce merchant.

In drunkenness increasing in the city or did we simply happen to see more cases? This week we saw two young boys, three men, and one woman who had been imbibing, and apparently did not mind who knew it.

Man—Goodness! Have you had another tooth pulled?

Friend—Yes, I have a regular drawing account at the dentist's.

What a sweet world this would be if a wife paid as much attention to wrinkles in hubby's trousers as she does to those in her skin.

Barber—So your wife is away on her vacation? When do you take yours?

Man—I'm taking it now, only she doesn't know it.

A coat of paint wouldn't hurt the house any this spring, to say nothing of influence in the neighborhood.

Visitor—What became of that little kitten you had?

Small Boy—Why haven't you heard?

Visitor—Was it drowned?

Small Boy—No.

Visitor—Lost?

Small Boy—No.

Visitor—Poisoned?

Small Boy—No.

Visitor—Then what did become of it?

Small Boy—It grew up into a cat.

SENSE AND NONSENSE: Many a man and many a theory would have been great—if they had only worked. . . . Since repeat all that is necessary to acquire a headache is to ask the price. . . . It takes plenty of horse sense to keep hitched up. . . . No amount of legislation can force you to look for an opportunity. . . . It is well to remember that promises which are the hardest to obtain are the surest of fulfillment. . . . From bone-dry laws to boner dry laws, what? . . . A man's life is divided into two parts—when she hangs on his neck—and when she jumps on his neck. . . . Wise indeed is the man who can correct a mistake before he makes it. . . . Time isn't exactly money, but a lot of people spend one just as foolishly as the other. . . .

A woman's idea of frankness is to have some other woman say nice things about her.

Know the Truth about REFRIGERATION

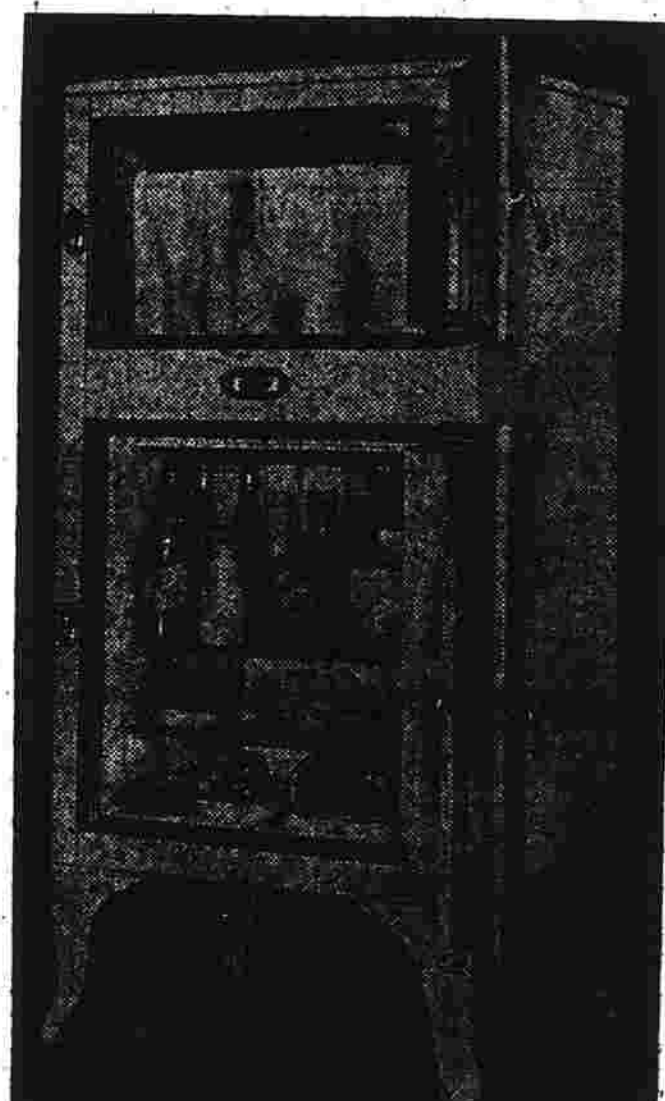

A COMPARISON of MERIT

- | THE COOLERATOR | THE AVERAGE ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR |
|--|--|
| 1 Pure, sparkling ice at all times. | 1 Heavy, complicated machinery, making noise, causing vibration, wearing out, consuming power. |
| 2 Requires re-icing only every five to seven days. | 2 Ice trays must be kept filled. Inefficient ice in hot weather. |
| 3 Melting ice in a Coolerator maintains proper humidity for food preservation. | 3 Almost air-tight compartment with circulation of cold, dry air dehydrates foods. |
| 4 The water from melting ice absorbs gases and odors that foods give off. In a Coolerator the air is washed clean and pure. | 4 The dead air in the food chamber causes the mixing and absorption of gases from one food to another. |
| 5 Melting ice is quiet, and automatically maintains the proper constant temperature. | 5 The temperature in an electric refrigerator fluctuates. |
| 6 The patented exclusive and new method of air circulation is found only in the Coolerator, insuring the preservation of foods in their natural state. | 6 Circulation of dry, stale air is an accepted poor practice of sanitation. |
| 7 No moving parts; nothing to wear out. Under average conditions, will last indefinitely. | 7 All machinery wears out—how soon—depends on principle of operation. Gas must be replaced. |
| 8 Removeable shelves, round corners, easy to clean. | 8 Complicated coils, usually with crevices and corners. Must be defrosted every few days. |
| 9 For a family of five, costs only an average of $3.50 per month to own and operate a Coolerator. | 9 For a family of five, costs an average of $7.10 per month. |
