PROF. PICCARD STARTS ON PRACTICE FLIGHT
 Wife With Him in Balloon — To Ascend Later on Trip to the Stratosphere.

Detroit, May 16.—(AP)—Provided with oranges, bananas, rolls and an angel cake, a racing balloon was launched over Michigan on Canada today, carrying Prof. and Mrs. Jean Piccard on a training flight for their ascent into the stratosphere this summer.

The balloon, which took off at 5:15 a. m., was piloted by Edward J. Hill, its owner, a veteran of international balloon races. The trio expected to stay up for about 12 hours. Hill said that, if possible, he would stay over Michigan. The big bag drifted slowly to the northeast at the take-off.

Today's flight primarily is for the benefit of Mrs. Piccard who hopes to earn a balloonist's license in time to pilot the stratospheric balloon for her husband. It was her first balloon ascension and Piccard's second.

Prof. Piccard is the twin of Prof. August Piccard, of Bruselas, Belgium, the first man to pilot a balloon into the stratosphere.

Mrs. Piccard explained the inclusion of dessert in the balloon's load by saying, "Jean loves angel cake."

Just in case of a water landing, the balloon is equipped with a rubber raft.

GIRLS WITNESSES IN MILLEN CASE
 Young School Teacher Tells Jury Milton Used to Frighten Her.

Déham, Mass., May 16.—(AP)—Murton Milten, 24 year old Bostonian charged with murder in the first degree, once showed a girl friend the "vise" line on the palm of his hand and said: "That means I'm not going to live until I am 25 or 26 years old."

Miss Frieda Siegman of Boston, testified to this incident today at the trial of Murton, his brother Irving and Abe Faber, charged with slaying a policeman during a bank robbery.

Miss Siegman also told of careening around a corner in an automobile with Murton and of becoming so frightened she screamed. "He said 'Well, what if it was me now?'"

The girl said everything Murton did appeared to be a new experiment to him.

"But you'd go out with him again?" District Attorney Edmund R. Dewing asked in cross examination.

"Yes," she said.

Had Her Frightened
 Miss Frieda Gunderman, a young school teacher, said almost every time she passed the Milten home Murton would force his attention on her. "He frightened me so some one in my family had to go down and make him stop," she said.

Murton smiled as Miss Gunderman said "He used to approach me with a wild look in his eyes and frighten me. I haven't seen him for four years."

David Morey of Newton, who operates a decorative advertising business, said almost every time he worked for him in 1930, "Sometimes he appeared dumb, but on rare occasions he seemed to be smart, even brilliant."

William R. Scharton, counsel for Faber, began to question Morey and as a result, he asked George Stanley Harvey, chief of counsel for the Millets, exchanged a few caustic remarks. Scharton finally got the admission from Morey that Murton did almost all the talking during a business visit Morey made to the radio shop Faber and Murton opened.

SEN. REED VICTORIOUS IN PENNSY PRIMARIES

He was asked whether this meant he would run in November. "This must not be taken to imply any decision as to my future political action," was the reply.

He said he would pay strict attention to his health between now and the fall.

Pinchot and Reed fought out the campaign for the nomination largely on the Roosevelt "New Deal" issue. The governor is a staunch Roosevelt supporter, while Reed through the campaign criticized some of the policies of the President as he has done on the floor of the Senate.

At the time Pinchot admitted defeat Reed had a lead in the state of 115,848. Of this lead Philadelphia had given Reed approximately 90,000. The governor ran Reed a close race in the Senator's home county which includes Pittsburgh.

Pinchot was eading there by a small majority on incomplete returns.

In 5,498 districts of the 7,938 in the state Reed's total was 464,528 and Pinchot's 348,680.

Guffey, Roosevelt leader in Pennsylvania, swept ahead of Poland S. Morris, former ambassador to J.-pan, for the Democratic Senatorial nomination. Returns from more than half the state gave him an advantage of better than 4 to 1.

The Republican nomination for governor was won by William A. Schnader, attorney general, who drew support from both the Pinchot and Reed camps. The Democrats chose George H. Earle as their gubernatorial candidate.

Gov. Pinchot was making his third bid for a seat in the Senate.

Reed first entered the Senate in 1922 by appointment of Governor Sprout to fill the vacancy created by the death of Philander C. Knox. He was elected to a full term the same year and re-elected in 1928.

SUES TO RECOVER IN PAINT FRAUD
 Bridgeport Man Seeks $20,000, Alleging "Valuable" Formula Did Not Exist.

Bridgeport, May 16.—(AP)—A jury at noon today started deliberations on the $20,000 damage suit brought by Alfred Morrell of Greenwich against Dr. William H. Wiley and his wife, Anna C. Wiley, also of Greenwich.

Morrell charged that in 1924, he was induced by fraudulent representations of the Wileys to invest $20,000 in the Connecticut Paint and Enamel company upon Wiley's alleged statement that he had come into possession of a secret formula for the manufacture of paint that would ultimately result in great earnings.

The company of which Morrell acted as vice-president and a member of the board of directors, passed into receivership in the state court in 1927. Morrell declared that he did not investigate the alleged formula until the company went broke and that he learned then that the so-called formula was nothing at all.

FEAR 43 MEN KILLED BY MINE EXPLOSION

said "the force of the explosion must have been terrific. There appears to be little hope any of the 43 who were trapped."

Throughout the night, women and children thronged around the pit-head crying out for husbands, sons and fathers dead or dying below.

Gendarmes had to be summoned to keep the grieving relatives from hampering the work of the rescuers.

The disaster halted a dispute between the owners and the miners, which had led to serious threats of a strike. It brought on a decision by the owners to call off a five per cent wage cut just recently announced.

The vote on the question of striking had been set by the miners for today.

sent the little sentinel craft to the bottom of the sea.

The mighty prow of the White Star liner Olympic ripped through the steel lightship off the Massachusetts coast yesterday. The small vessel sank quickly.

The liner put out life boats and rescued seven of the lightship's crew, but three of them died shortly afterward in the ship's hospital. The four missing men were given up for dead.

The four survivors, too ill to talk much about the disaster, were brought to New York today aboard the Olympic. They were suffering from shock.

The three who died after rescue: W. W. Perry, engineer, Reading, Mass.; A. Montirio, cook, New Bedford, Mass.; J. F. Richmond, officer, of Boston.

The missing men: I. Pina, cook; N. S. Rodrigues, seaman; J. Fortes, seaman; and E. B. George, seaman, all of New Bedford.

YOUTH TRIES TO STEP FROM PLANE TO DEATH
 But Suicide Attempt Is Frustrated by Pilot in Battle High in Skies.

Muncie, Ind., May 16.—(AP)—A struggle 2,000 feet in the air halted the attempt of Regis L. Scherer, 19, to commit suicide by jumping from an airplane late yesterday. Raymond Williams, pilot, left the controls of his plane to beat Scherer into unconsciousness.

Noticing the youth with one foot on the wing of the ship, Williams set his ship in a glide, grabbed a fire extinguisher and struck Scherer on the head. The pilot struggled for three minutes to get the inert body into the front cockpit.

Landing at the airport, Scherer told officers he had been brooding over low scholastic marks. Police, however, said they believed the youth was despondent over a love affair.

EPISCOPAL BISHOP MAKES HIS REPORT

Appeals for Aid for Clergy- men of Diocese Who Suffered from Depression.

Hartford, May 16.—(AP)—The annual diocesan convention of the Protestant Episcopal church in Connecticut resumed its session today with knowledge of the material condition of its parishes, clergy and laity as revealed to it by Bishop Frederick G. Budlong yesterday in Christ church parish house.

The diocesan said he would ask for no suffragan or coadjutor at this time. What assistance might be needed in Confirmation and other services would be given by visiting bishops.

In his address the Bishop made a number of suggestions which came before the convention today. He mentioned the desire of the late Bishop E. Campion Acheson that there would be an endowment fund for support of the Episcopacy; and that the Glebe House at Woodbury be developed as a National shrine commemorative of the election in it of the first bishop (Seabury) of Connecticut.

Bishop Budlong appealed for aid for the clergy who have suffered the vicissitudes of the depression.

He commended the services of diocesan officials who spoke highly of the work of the Woman's Auxiliary and asked for assistance in making the Connecticut Churchman a better paper because it fills a supremely important mission in the diocese.

The department of religious education, the church mission of help, and the work of Yale University were praised.

Financial Affairs
Referring to financial affairs of the Diocese, the Bishop asked that assessments authorized by the convention be paid by parishes more promptly, earlier and in full instead of in monthly or quarterly installments. He said these assessments were as obligatory as the rector's salary and the coal bill yet many parishes conscientiously permit the rest of them to go along.

"The Refresher Week" at Berkeley Divinity School after commencement, the Bishop said, was a means for clergy to gather for treasures of intensive study apart from distractions of parochial activity.

Of the teaching mission, the Bishop said it presents opportunity for inquirers to receive answers to their doubts and questions and problems; it convinces and stimulates those who have made their venture of faith in God.

The bishop added: "There are fatuous philosophers prevalent in the old world, old enemies masquerading in modern costumes, wolves in sheep's clothing, which threaten to poison and maim and enslave the unwary and deceive the unformed. Probably the greatest detriment to the saving power of the Christian religion today is the attack of those who profess not to believe, but the lack of deep conviction possibly the unconscious insincerity of some who profess to believe in God as revealed in and through Jesus Christ and his Sacraments."

Bishop Budlong called the convention's attention to the observance in November of the 150th anniversary of the consecration of Bishop Seabury both Nationally and at New Haven next November, the Young People's conference at Pomfret late in June, and the clergy conference at Choate School in the fall.

nominees had a membership of sixteen persons, each of the eight counties in the state being fittingly represented.

Hon. Albert E. Lavery, vice-president of the Bridgeport Hydraulic Company, it is announced by President Trumbull, will be the toastmaster on the occasion of the annual banquet at seven o'clock on the evening of the 24th at which Honorable Joseph B. Ely, governor Gheen, of New York, who with his rich philosophy and humor has inspired audiences throughout the nation, is also to be one of the guest speakers.

The Governor's Foot Guard Band under the direction of Captain William E. Tashiro will render the musical program for the occasion.

SURVIVORS TELL STORY OF LIGHTSHIP'S SINKING

is 65 years old, said. "When I tried to move my legs, my head would go down. A spar floated by and I hung to it."

Capt. Braithwaite remembered that spar well. It was, he explained, two feet long, five inches wide and less than an inch thick. "It didn't do me much good," he said. "I gave up. The next thing I knew, I was in a life boat."

Outside of describing his own experiences, Capt. Braithwaite declined to discuss the accident, saying that an official report would be released at Boston. He did declare, however, that "everything had been functioning perfectly."

Saw Two Bodies
Passengers on the Olympic poorly knew what had happened until they felt the liner lurch when her engines were ordered reversed. The impact was negligible. One passenger, Martin Munkasici, a photographer from Germany, said he dashed out on deck in time to see a half of the broken lightship float stern and disappear. He also saw two bodies, floating face down.

Capt. Braithwaite and Mosher praised the celerity with which the Olympic launched its lifeboats. Officers of the liner declared that the first lifeboat was put into the water three minutes after the collision. Almost immediately another lifeboat was launched. Then a motor boat was sent out to find the lifeboats, which had disappeared in the fog.

Boats Return
About two hours after the crash the boats returned, the ship's surgeon attempted to resuscitate the victims and the Olympic proceeded toward New York.

Dr. T. W. Atkins, of the Olympic, said that William W. Perry, Alfred Montero and Justice F. Richmond, were dead when taken aboard the Olympic.

Captain Braithwaite suffered a severe gash on the head. Mosher and the other two survivors, John F. Perry and L. U. Roberts, were not injured.

Capt. John W. Binks, of the Olympic, tired and saddened by the tragedy, remained in his quarters when the Olympic docked.

The Olympic has always been regarded by her operators, the White Star Line, as a "lucky" ship. For almost a quarter of a century she has been in the trans-Atlantic service, with only two minor accidents.

She is the sister ship of the Titanic, which struck an iceberg on her maiden voyage in 1912, sinking with the loss of 1,513 lives — the worst peace-time disaster in modern marine records.

THE OLYMPIC'S STORY
New York, May 16 — (AP) — Weary from the strain of 80 hours on the bridge of the Olympic, Captain J. W. Binks, master of the liner, today read off some notes of what happened when his ship sank the Nantuxet lightship.

He believed the lightship to be five miles away and well off the starboard bow just before the collision occurred, he said after he had docked his ship.

"The fog was in patches," he said. "We were going at reduced speed. Sometimes we could see for miles, and then not at all. We used the radio beacon to keep the lightship on our starboard side instead of ahead as we hauled away according to the radio beacon. If I had not hauled away we might have missed her, maybe by a ship's length, but I couldn't do that I had to haul away from the danger."

Capt. Binks said he heard the lightship's fog signal twice. There were four officers on the bridge with him, he said, and they all thought it was off the starboard bow.

"But the fog fools a person sometimes," he added.

Reversed Engines
"After an interval—about eight minutes from the time we first heard her signal—the lookout on the bow warned us that the lightship was ahead. We stopped and then reversed full speed. When we were almost stopped we struck."

"It was not the speed of the Olympic but her weight that sank the light-ship."

Capt. Binks said that his radio bearing with the lightship might have been two or three degrees off. He explained that he had changed his course slightly to avoid the shoals, that if he hadn't "hauled it over" the collision might not have occurred.

Radio directional beams by means of which the lightship guided the liner, were not altogether accurate, he said. Capt. Binks also asserted that the under-water oscillations "were not very good."

Not Accurate
"The radio beams only give us an approximate bearing," he explained.

"We thought the lightship was three degrees off the starboard bow when I hauled away according to the radio beacon. If I had not hauled away we might have missed her, maybe by a ship's length, but I couldn't do that I had to haul away from the danger."

Capt. Binks said he heard the lightship's fog signal twice. There were four officers on the bridge with him, he said, and they all thought it was off the starboard bow.

"But the fog fools a person sometimes," he added.

ORDER STARTS CONFUSION
Hartford, May 16.—(AP)—Recent reports from Washington that the National Recovery administration was planning to scrap all service codes has thrown many Connecticut service trades into confusion, it was said today from William S. Meany, NRC compliance director for the state. In several cities, particularly New Haven, he said, prices have been slashed by employers.

A telegram received yesterday by Mr. Meany from Washington NRA officials stated that no order has been issued changing the status of service codes, and that until such order is issued in Washington, minimum prices set in codes for various industries should be adhered to.

You do not obligate yourself to keep the heater

We will install an electric waterheater in your home with no installation charge (except in cases of special service) for your use as long as you wish on the rental plan. We also maintain and move the heater at our expense. There is no term contract. Here is your chance to "try" electric waterheating.

Small monthly rentals applied towards purchase

The monthly rentals covering use of equipment, maintenance, and moving expense are very low, varying from $2.50 for the small heater to $3.50 a month for the large heater. Furthermore, all rentals paid in during the first two years from date of installation are credited towards purchase. If you decide to own the heater, your "trial" really costs you nothing.

A guaranteed low operating cost

Operating cost for normal use is guaranteed not to exceed a certain amount — which is surprisingly low. Be sure to ask what this guaranteed cost is for your home.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 16
HAMMER OF STRAW

No matter how necessary it may be to drive a railroad spike and no matter how obvious the necessity may be, with all the energy in the world you cannot drive the spike by hitting it with a straw. You may sing the bravest chanty and wallop away for all you are worth; you may hit the spike a billion blows, if you live long enough; but you can't drive it even the smallest part of an inch.

President Roosevelt has had a revelation. The realization has been borne in upon him that with some five million workers rendered idle by the almost total inertia of the construction business it isn't going to be easy to get general industrial and trade activity back to normal until somehow or other building is resumed and the demand for building materials has been restored.

It is in hope that construction can be stimulated that the President has sent to Congress the latest of his numerous well intentioned but so frequently over-valued schemes. This is his four-point program for federal aid to home renovation and building.

Very broadly and very roughly the scheme provides for federal loans for home renovation and federal guarantees of mortgages on existing homes up to 60 per cent and on new homes up to 80 per cent; the private organization under federal supervision of mortgage associations and a scheme for insuring shares and certificates in building and loan associations.

To all of these things the federal government is to devote, as capital, the sum of $200,000,000. That, to our notion, is where the straw hammer comes in.

The extent of the falling off in building since 1929 has been ghastly. The total annual aggregate of construction expenditures in the boom years was eleven billion dollars annually. It is now down to three billion. The former annual expenditure on residential construction alone was three billion. It is now down to a tenth of that amount or three hundred million dollars.

In home construction alone the shortage of business thus amounts to two billion, seven hundred million a year compared with the peak. Even on the basis of the peak having been extravagantly, unjustifiably high by a third, it is safe to assert that there is missing some such sum as seventeen hundred million dollars a year from the nation's normal allocation to home building.

How Mr. Roosevelt can expect to make an appreciable dent in that shortage by the employment of such a relatively insignificant capital as two hundred millions is rather beyond the ordinary comprehension.

Probably he hopes to be able to "induce private capital to come out of hiding" by force of government example. Mr. Hoover tried that on several occasions. Mr. Roosevelt himself has tried it without any astonishing results. It is not too promising an expectation.

And to make matters worse who does the President pick out as the one person best equipped to make a success of the federal boost to home renovation and construction but this same Harry L. Hopkins, whose fantastic handling of CWA and FERA operations has driven half the local relief administrators throughout the country to the verge of dementia? What Mr. Hopkins will be able to do with this newest of the alphabetical agencies one may imagine.

So long as President Roosevelt continues to stand on the side of the deflationists, as he has been standing ever since last autumn, he will be wasting his breath in trying to get people to borrow themselves out of their difficulties—of trying to

KIDNAPERS

Within forty-eight hours of their apprehension for the kidnaping of William G. Gettle, California oil millionaire, three members of the modern school of "snatchers" are today serving life sentences in San Quentin prison. There has been no speedier or more effective administration of justice in the history of American crime.

The contrast between the disposition of this case and that ghastly farce that has been dragging on and on in the state of Massachusetts, the trial of the Miller brothers, is as complete as though the two episodes were the developments of two utterly different civilizations, one of which set its face resolutely against criminalism while the other made only a shallow pretense of holding crime in disfavor.

The Californians propose to put an end to kidnaping and murder for profit. The Bay Staters take no real interest in the matter. If they did they would not tolerate any such exhibition as the Miller trial.

Incidentally the business of abduction with violence has suffered a serious setback in the simultaneous failures of the Gettle and the Robles kidnapings. The kidnapers did not get the money. That is, perhaps, even a more important fact than that three of them have been sent to prison permanently. The money is the vital factor in these criminals. The Robles child and Mr. Gettle were abducted because other kidnapings in the past had been fruitful. If there were no longer a probability that a kidnaping would prove profitable to the criminals kidnapings would, of course, cease. These two failures must go some distance in shaking the confidence of others who may be contemplating similar crimes.

From the point of view of the family, naturally, the safety of the abducted person seems utterly paramount to all other considerations. From that of society as a whole the paramount consideration is that the kidnapers should not get the money, for the money is the root of this evil.

PLACING BLAME

Nothing comes easier to the human mind than, when any kind of an unfortunate or unhappy event transpires, to instantly blame someone for it. The sinking of the Nantucket lightship by the White Star liner Olympic, with the loss of seven lives, particularly lends itself to the placing of blame. It is difficult for the landsman to see how that accident could take place if there had not been, on the part of the officers of the liner, considerably less than the proper degree of caution and vigilance.

It is understood at this time that, with a heavy fog on the sea, the Olympic was following the radio beam sent out by the lightship to indicate its exact direction. Since to remain in that exact track must inevitably lead any ship pursuing it into contact with the light ship itself, it would seem that any ordinary sense of caution would require the oncoming vessel to make extremely sure of its position while continuing such a course. That the Olympic's command had made some sort of error—whether avoidable or not is another matter—in figuring its distance from the light station goes without saying provided that the lightship had not drifted from her station—a circumstance of which there is neither indication nor suggestion.

It will remain for the official investigation, of course, to disclose whether the Olympic's officers had used every reasonable precaution in checking their ship's position and whether whatever error was made was within the margin of tolerance which even yet must be allowed in all matters having to do with the management of ships at sea.

Marvelous, almost miraculous improvements have been made in the science of navigation. But there are still forces at the command of "that old devil" which are beyond the powers of man to combat.

Any map judgment that attributes to the Olympic unqualified blame for the sad tragedy of Nantucket Shoals, in advance of any real information as to what brought it about, would be grossly unfair.

Meantime it would seem as though the electrical scientists have before them an obvious task of the first magnitude. Will they sooner or later be able to build into their radio beam a scale of distances that will indicate not only what direction but how far?

G. O. P. STANDS PAT
At this writing the result of the Pennsylvania Republican primary would appear to indicate that the G. O. P. in that state remains steadfastly conservative, the expectation of Governor Pinchot that the majority of the party would follow him into the fields of liberalism having failed of realization.

There has been no other such test of Republican sentiment in the East since the advent of the New Deal. Pinchot stands for innovation and economic and social experimentation. Senator Reed is the embodiment of conservatism and adherence to the Old Order. A very substantial majority of Pennsylvania Republicans appears to have maintained its confidence in the principles and policies for which the senator stands and to have decided that their party should continue as the crystallization of conservative political sentiment.

There is no particular reason for doubting that the outcome of this test in Pennsylvania reflects the preponderance of Republican sentiment throughout the East. There is enough similarity between Pennsylvania conditions and those of New York, New Jersey and New England to justify the belief, in view of this manifestation in the Keystone State, that the majority of Republicans in all these states remain unshaken in their faith in political and economic conservatism.

To the extent that the Pennsylvania contest settles any doubt there may have been as to the continued existence of a solid body of political belief unshaken in its faith in the fundamental soundness of the Old Order, the fight for the senatorial nomination between Pinchot and Reed has been of the greatest service.

Health and Diet Advice

By Dr. Frank McCoy

RELIEF FROM ARTHRITIS.
A most important factor in the cure of arthritis is the patient's mental attitude, as one who has the determination not to be given up is most likely to succeed in overcoming his trouble. Much depends upon the willingness of the patient to diet persistently enough to overcome the joint inflammation and then to take corrective exercises at the right stage of the cure, in order to prevent permanent stiffness from disuse, and to facilitate return of as much movement as may be possible with the damaged joint.

The presence of acute attacks which occur from time to time in chronic arthritis seems to be a favorable indication as cases undergoing such acute attacks seem to have the best outlook regarding recovery. Chronic rheumatism may be easily cured at the start, but becomes more difficult to overcome as each new joint is involved.

Chronic arthritis is usually considered incurable, but I have seen some remarkable cures, even in advanced cases, where the patient persisted in sticking closely to the diet for a sufficient length of time. Fasting and dieting are doubtless of paramount importance in clearing up arthritis and should be placed first above all other measures. I sometimes advise a patient to begin on a five-day fast, using tomato juice, following the fasting instructions given in my Cleansing Diet Course, simply substituting the tomato juice for the orange juice. It may be advisable to repeat the short fast at intervals of about one month apart; in between the fasts the patient is to use the diet given in the last part of the Cleansing Diet, avoiding starches and sugars.

The fast will be found to have a beneficial effect in cleaning up to a large extent the focal points of infection; however, it may be necessary in addition to employ local treatments. Where abscessed teeth are present, it is desirable to consult a dentist as to treatment.

During the fast, and as long as any soreness is present in the joints, it is helpful to take two enemas daily. This measure speeds up elimination from the body one or two days ahead of the regular time.

An ordinary case of arthritis will improve markedly while following the above directions. Where the arthritis persists, the failure to improve may be due to kinks, sagging, or adhesions of the large colon and these patients should be examined to find if such a condition is hindering the cure. When such is found to be the case, suitable deep manipulations of the intestines are indicated in order to free them for normal functioning.

In every case, rest of the affected joints is advisable as long as any inflammation is present. Exercise at this stage is to be avoided, lest it increase the irritation.

As to local treatments, heat in the form of warm applications will be found to give relief from pain and is also beneficial in improving the circulation through the joint.

There is no acute inflammation noted, mild massage may be employed, followed by quiet rest. Especially valuable are the treatments with the diathermy and the deep therapy electric lamp.

When the bone has been given ample opportunity to heal, then the correct exercise should be begun to avoid the stiffness following inaction. Both perseverance and patience are needed in order that the hinging power of the joint be restored as nearly as possible and the patient develop sufficient muscular strength.

IN NEW YORK

By PAUL HARRISON

New York, May 16.—From Grand Central station there is a late-morning local train which is called the "Sing Sing Special"—the one that carries criminals up the river to the big prison.

The men, who are nearly all young men, move awkwardly through the narrow railed passage to the train platform because they are shackled together—generally by two or something individual—by to a guard. Most of them give a fleeting glance behind them, at the crowds of people who are not shackled by steel, at the groups of curious who have halted to watch them.

Sometimes there is a newspaper photographer standing there squinting intently along his camera. Frequently there are women with white, strained faces; women who came to the station looking their prettiest, or at least their best, intending to wave and smile encouragement.

But they neither wave nor smile as the men are hustled through the gate with its suggestively somber iron grill-work. The women stand silent and motionless, peering at the receding figures of the manacled men.

The "Black-Baggers"
In a few weeks, when the prisoners have been dressed in to the routine of the penitentiary, the women who watched their departure will themselves become frequent passengers on the "Sing Sing Special." Every morning there are 20 or 30 of them who go to visit their husbands or sons or sweethearts in the Big House. They bake cookies, and buy fruit and cigarettes and magazines, and pack them in little black bags. These "black-baggers," as they've been called for years, always sit in the last coach of the train. Many of them, after years of traveling together, have become fast friends. I don't know why they all choose the same type of luggage, unless it is an accepted badge of their sorority of sorrow.

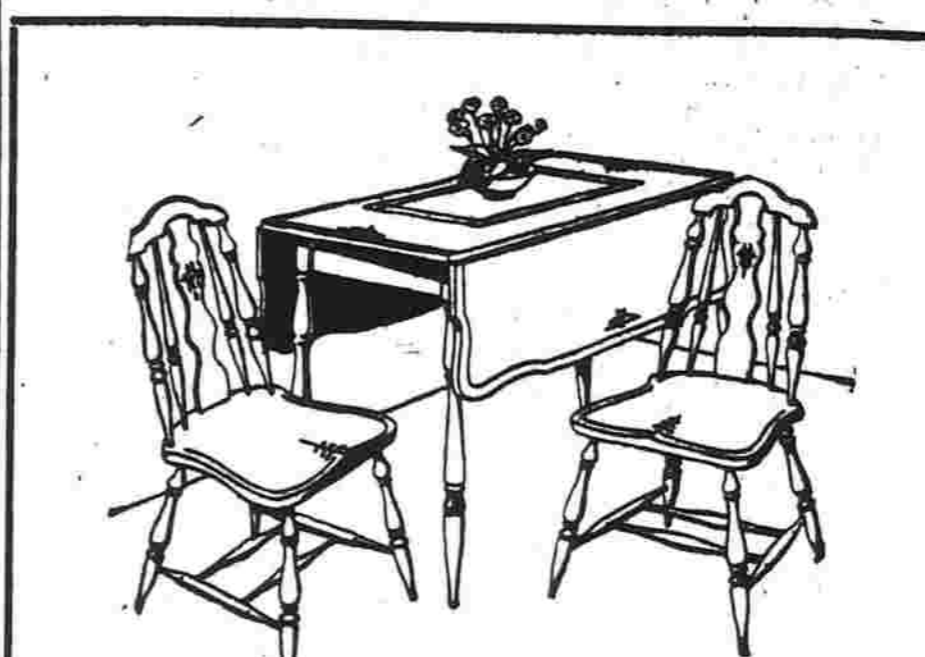

Up ahead, in the smoking car, the prisoners observe each other coolly and puff at many cigars. They sullenly look at the door and glower under the inspection of other passengers; but none seems to want to look out of the window. A few make a great show of being self-possessed, and even amused.

But when the conductor opens the door and yells, "Next stop, Oseling!" they all sit up with a nervous start. This is the last lap. For some of them it may be the beginning of the Last Mile.

Fast—and Exclusive
Next to polo and gambling, the most socially exclusive game is probably badminton—but for no reason except that relatively few people seem to know about it. New York has a badminton club more than 50 years old, and there are a couple of courts in one of the city's armories. Played something like tennis, but on a smaller court and over a five-foot net, it is exciting to watch. Racquets are used, and balls (called "birds") with tufts of tail-feathers in them. Badminton originated in India and was introduced here in 1878. Having been taken up socially, it was played in garden-party occasions for many years. Then about 1900, a tennis star named Lyle Mahan appeared in his tennis togs and trimmed all the experts, who were hampered by their chokers and Prince Alberts. Since then badminton has been played for the fast and furious game it is.

ADVERTISE IN THE HERALD—IT PAYS

BIG CROWDS WATCH NOT-SO-GOOD CIRCUS

Seating Capacity Taxed for Cheap Show That Proves To Be Just That.

What passed as a circus came to Manchester yesterday and, despite the inclement weather, played to capacity crowds at both the matinee and the evening performances. The crowd seeking admittance at the evening show was so large that many were obliged to stand in an open space near the lion's cage. Automobiles lined both sides of Center street from Adams street to Griswold street, and also took up every available inch on the side streets near the Dougherty lot at Center and McKee streets, where the circus tents were pitched.

Only Two Bits
Of course, one cannot expect to see a really first-class circus performance for the price of "two-bits," but this did not alter the fact that the show was pretty terrible.

According to the advance notices, one would be led to believe that the World Brothers circus was second only to the combined Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey circus, but this was as far from the truth as Wapping is from Shanghai.

Only One Monkey
There was one performing elephant, four lionesses, half a dozen Shetland ponies, as many dogs, four razorback hogs and one monkey. If there were any more wild animals they were kept out of sight. The mouth touched "Jungletland" was nowhere to be seen and, instead of being permitted to view this added attraction, the people were headed like sheep into their seats.

The "greatest wild band" in the circus world turned out to be a group of four seedy, alleged musicians whose instruments during the acts gave forth a discordant medley of noise that, by rare good fortune, did not scare the elephant into a stampede. A group of boys pounding tin cans and rattling cowbells would have provided more melodious music.

Additional Prices
Advised as being a circus

which produced an entire show "just for the price of a quarter," it quickly became apparent that this admission price ballyhoo was just a "come on." Reserved seats cost 15 cents additional and there was an extra charge of 10 cents for the Wild West show.

It was announced with great fanfare that the management would pay $10 to any Manchester man who had the courage to engage in a wrestling bout with the former wrestling champion of the United States. This so-called "heavy-weight champion" was a soured, beefy bruiser who looked as if he might have the courage to tackle a kitten providing the kitten's claws were first pulled.

The Bruising Game
At any rate, Harold "Punk" Clemons accepted the challenge and, when the match was staged during the Wild West show, threw the "champion" so quickly that the latter did not know whether a tornado or a freight train had struck him.

Bud Horne, said to be a movie actor, had a splendid horse which performed intelligent tricks, but the "Congress of Cowboys" turned out to be three or four waddies who revealed they had at least an elementary knowledge of roping. Captain Walker put four docile lionesses through their paces, but the actions of his "pets" indicated he would have been as safe in a child's nursery.

Japs' Act Good
The Great Condore Troupe staged a fairly good performance, while credit must be given to the Yoshida Troupe for the difficult stunts they staged.

Essaw, the "tallest sacred camel in the world," "Kingo," the "man killer from the Congo" and "Cupid," the "$10,000 Epic-Movel of the Century" must have had the day and night off, for they failed to put in an appearance.

Well, the World Brothers circus has come and gone and it must be said that the peanuts, popcorn and crackerjack sold on the grounds were as good as any to be found at any circus.

THOMAS W. HOOKER DIES IN HARTFORD

Insurance Man Was Descendant of Founder of City and a Governor.

Hartford, May 14.—(AP)—Hartford pays its final tribute tomorrow to one of its most distinguished citizens, Thomas Williams Hooker, a descendant of the man who founded the city.

Hooker, prominent in business circles for many years, died Monday at the age of 83 of coronary thrombosis. His health had been poor since 1932 when he injured a leg in a fall.

Born in Hartford, May 10, 1871, Hooker was a direct descendant of the Rev. Thomas Hooker who founded the city. His ancestors included also the late Thomas Wells, one time governor of Connecticut, and John Howland, who came to America on the Mayflower.

He was a member of many patriotic organizations and a former member of the staff of the Governor's Foot Guard, first company.

Hooker was associated with his father for some time in the woolen business at Broad Brook and Chicago. Later he organized the insurance firm of Hooker and Butterworth with which he remained identified until his death.

He was a 32d degree Mason and a member of LaFayette lodge, No. 100, A. F. and A. M.

His widow, the former Loua Catherine Bedell, and two sons survive. The funeral will be held at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow with the Rev. John Milton Phillips, pastor of Center church, officiating. Burial will be in Spring Grove cemetery.

FEDERATION OF WOMEN GATHER IN GREENWICH

Greenwich, May 14.—(AP)—A heavy program of speeches, reports and social activities confronted the Connecticut State Federation of Women's clubs today as its 38th annual convention got under way.

After the opening preliminaries, including speeches of welcome, the program called for addresses by Mrs. George W. Ferry of Hartford and Miss Emily Louise Plumley of Glenbrook, former state presidents, and reports from the county vice presidents.

Mrs. Robert F. Gadd, who is completing her fourth term as president, presided at the opening of the two days' meeting.

Members of the federation planned to inspect the gardens of the principal Greenwich estates during the afternoon as well as the 16th annual exhibition of the Greenwich Society of Artists.

WHY do you suppose Chevrolet keeps repeating, in all of its advertising, "Drive it only 5 miles"? Very frankly, here's the reason: Chevrolet engineers have tried out all the various makes of cars in today's low-price field. They have compared performance—on rough roads, in traffic, over hills, through sand and mud and water! And they have proved, to their complete satisfaction, the same things that hundreds of thousands of Chevrolet owners are proving in their daily driving. The Chevrolet ride simply can't be matched by any other in the low-price field. That's why we urge you to "Drive it only 5 miles"—and that's why we promise, "you'll never be satisfied with any other low-priced car."

I. O. O. F. OF STATE HOLDS CONVENTION

Officers Make Reports On State of the Order— See Turn for Better.

Stratford, May 16.—(AP)—The Grand Lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows of Connecticut, in 94th annual session here today received reports on the state of the order from its retiring Grand Master, Edmund Pitzer, its Grand Secretary, William S. Hutchison, its Grand Treasurer, and its other grand officers, in what the grand officers considered conditions the past year had been one of close fraternity and co-operation.

The grand master expressed regret that economic conditions had brought some losses in membership, and a falling off in initiations. He saw a turn for the better and expressed opinion that if members expend effort many young men may be encouraged to affiliate and carry on the benevolent work of odd fellowship.

The Rebekah Lodges during the year had maintained their strength to a marked degree, and Grand Master Pitzer congratulated the new President of the Rebekah assembly, Elsie Rosin, on the bright prospects ahead, and commended Emma C. Southard, who retired as president, for the way she met perplexing problems and adjusted them "in the true spirit of Odd Fellowship."

Grand Secretary Hutchison reported the membership December 31 last as 22,825 and total assets $1,465,213. The total invested funds are $1,153,827.

The Rebekah membership is 9,887 sisters, 3,747 brothers, a total of 13,634. Funds totaled $29,153. Grand Treasurer Sidney W. Challenger reported a credit cash balance of $1,551.

Report On Home
The report of the annual meeting of the Odd Fellows Home Corporation showed that on December 31, there were 58 brothers and 28 sisters in the home at Groton and that 13 brothers and nine sisters were cared for outside the home, a total of 108. In its existence the home has cared for 833 brothers and 89 sisters, a total of 422. The cost of residents in 1933 was $44,641, and the average was 100 residents the individual cost was $446. The average age of residents is 74 years, seven months and 29 days. The oldest is 94 and the youngest 39.

Secretary Hutchison pointed out there had been a real problem to meet in 1933 and only cooperation will enable the finance committee to provide a balanced budget for 1934. The balance on hand in the endowment fund is $125,759. The finance committee suggested several changes in rules and by-laws of the corporation to enable it to meet the burden of expense during the depression.

The changes came before the Grand Lodge for action.

WIFE (NAVY) HUSBAND (ARMY) SO NAVY WINS

Couple Had Argued 14 Years Over Whether Army or Navy Won War.

New York, May 16.—(AP)—The navy won the war, Magistrate Casey ruled in his Queens court, thereby settling a 14-year argument between Clifford Brooker and his wife, Lillian.

Brooker served in Company G, 106th Infantry, in the World War and his wife was a yeomanette attached to the Brooklyn Navy Yard. Their long quarrel reached a climax Saturday night. Brooker presented the army's side of the question so forcibly that his wife had him arrested for disorderly conduct.

The case was called yesterday. "If your husband tells you that the navy won the war, will you be satisfied?" Magistrate Casey asked Mrs. Brooker.

She said she would. Whereupon the court ruled: "The judicial determination, so far as the happiness of the Brookers is concerned, is that the navy won the war. Is that right, Brooker?" Brooker nodded, and the judge suspended sentence.

LOCKER ROOM MATRON AT RECREATION CENTER

Miss Anne Clarke in Charge— Women May Now Go Direct to Showers and Pool.

Miss Anne Clarke has been appointed matron in charge of the women's locker room at the School Street Recreation building. She will be on duty every day but Saturday from 6 p. m., until the closing hour and on Saturdays from 2 to 6 p. m.

The presence of Miss Clarke in the locker room will mean that women will not be obliged to visit the office to procure soap and towels. Henceforth the only time members will have occasion to go to the office will be when they pay their dues. Members also can enter the locker room in the future without having to pass through the corridors. The new schedule goes into effect this week. Changes in the present schedule will be made according to the number of members using the building during the weeks to come.

It will be necessary in the future for women to bring along their membership cards. Miss Clarke has been ordered to look over these cards before allowing admittance to the locker room.

PROCLAIM MARTIAL LAW AS RADICALS THREATEN

Parliament Suspends in Latvia Although Government Officials Insist Peace Reigns.

Riga, Latvia, May 16.—(AP)—Parliament was suspended and martial law was proclaimed throughout the country last night, presumably because of the government's fears of outbreaks among radical elements. A heavy military guard was thrown about Parliament buildings today. Telephone and telegraph services, temporarily disrupted during the night, were resumed this morning. Government officials insisted—despite the emergency measures—that peace prevails the country over. Public opinion appeared generally to favor the energetic action of the Government under the lead of Premier Ulmanis. One of the first moves of authority today was to run up the Latvian national ensign replacing the red flag which has been flying over the headquarters of Riga's Social Democrats.

QUARTER BILLION IS DRY ERA DEBT

Citizens May Get Headache from Prohibition Hangover of Monetary Claims.

Washington, May 16.—(AP)—Uncle Sam has a quarter billion dollar hangover from prohibition days which is going to give some thousands of his citizens a headache. Forging over its books, the Department of Justice figured today that $238,000,000 is owing the government in 848,178 claims hanging over from the pre-repeal period. The department is out to collect. Of the quarter billion, $200,000,000 is being sought from bootleggers and others accused of dodging liquor taxes. In another group are about 75 companies accused of having diverted alcohol from industrial to beverage purposes without paying taxes. The government hopes to collect around $40,000,000 from them. In a third group are 2,316 cases amounting to $7,500,000. They consist of suits to be brought against surety companies which bonded liquor men who guaranteed to pay their taxes but did not do so. The last group comprises 1,359 vehicle bond cases aggregating $1,100,000. This class consists of instances in which bootleggers posted bonds to turn over vehicles ordered confiscated but failed to keep their promise. Most earthquakes happen far away from population centers.

WALL ST. BRIEFS

New York, May 16.—Consumption of crude rubber by United States manufacturers in April amounted to 44,947 long tons against 47,097 tons in March and 25,928 tons in April last year, the Rubber Manufacturers Association reported today. The association estimates total domestic stocks of crude rubber on hand April 30 at 351,981 tons against March 31 stocks of 353,242 tons. Last week's freight loadings on the Chicago-Boston route were 10,000 tons against 11,000 in the previous week and 478 in the like 1933 period. Both consumption and production of sugar in ten European countries showed an increase during the ten months from September 1 to the beginning of the crop year, according to B. W. Dyer and Co. Consumption gained 27 per cent over the corresponding period of 1933 and production was up 7.4 per cent. Brazil, with its 4,100 miles of coast-line, has a navy personnel of 12,000 men.

THE BARGAIN HOUND

Why sit through the discomfort and heat of old fashioned permanent waving when you may have the new Zotos wave with no machine and no electricity. You may even have this permanent in your own home. Dial 8011, the Mary Elizabeth Beauty Nook.

Huge pictures with pretentious-looking frames have no place on walls in the summer time. If you feel that walls without any decoration are much too bare, hang up small prints.

Inexpensive floral prints and small etchings in rather frail, dainty frames are suggested. But use them sparingly. Five or six should be enough in a living room while dining and bedrooms can do with even less.

Heavy tapestries and wall hangings must come down too. With the windows open so much of the time, they'll collect too much dust and, in addition, they make a room seem overcrowded and too warm for comfort.

Take one peep in Hale's front window. Aren't they the most darling things you ever laid your eyes on—those Hollywood two and one suits—a dress and sun suit for $1.00! They're modeled by Shirley Temple, child screen star and are the most ideal summer outfits for children I've seen in many a dog day. Sizes run from 2 to 6. I know you'll want two or three of them to take away for vacation time.

A new one on chocolate lovers—Chocolate Waffles.

One cup and 2 tablespoons flour, 2 squares chocolate, 1-2 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon soda, 2 eggs, 1 cup sour milk, 4 tablespoons melted butter.

Mix and sift flour, salt, sugar and baking powder. Add milk, stirring to keep smooth. Add yolks of eggs well beaten, melted shortening and chocolate melted over hot water. Mix thoroughly and stir in soda dissolved in a little cold water. Fold in Whites of eggs beaten until stiff. Bake on a hot waffle iron.

Don't wait another minute if you're thinking about buying a new stove! Right now is the time to take action! Watkins are having a grand stove sale. All the stoves have table tops, heat controls, and are easily cleaned. They come in various finishes so you're sure to find one to match your kitchen. And best of all you're allowed $15.00 on any coal or gas range stove in trade for one of the new ones.

Much can be achieved in the way of supplying a touch of relief to an ensemble with the detachable hot cuff. Shape, volume and fabric can make an outfit look different with every change, accompanied or not by a matching scarf or hat trimming.

The idea of having harmonizing accessories should never be carried to extremes, however. It is inclined to spell monotony, and the note of fantasy is completely lost.

FRENCH NAVAL PLANE VANISHES IN TESTS

Seaplane With Crew of Four Disappears During Maneuvers Over English Channel.

Cherbourg, France, May 16 — (AP)—Large scale naval maneuvers of the French navy in the English Channel, devoted especially to a test of air power, were interrupted today by the disappearance of a seaplane with a crew of four.

The plane belonged to a squadron of 17 seeking to impose a barrage between Brest and Cherbourg, which theoretically is under attack by a cruiser squadron.

There was rough weather when the plane disappeared from sight and fears were expressed for the safety of the crew.

A second plane was forced to descend last night near Dunkirk. Its crew was rescued by a German freighter.

scribed how he was taken to the house in La Crescenta.

"Did you write any letters while you were there?" he was asked.

"Well, this 'Boss Man' told me to write a letter just as he had written it. He said they wanted my signature. This letter was to my friend, Bill Drewes."

Gettle identified the "Boss Man" as Kirk. He said they daily declared they wanted $80,000. The millionaire said they made him write a second letter.

"Write this to Ernie Noon (Gettle's attorney)," he said, he was ordered. "He's been designated as a go-between."

At this point the district attorney Gettle over for cross-examination.

"You fell from the wall because you couldn't hold on to the top?" J. Edward Simpson, the defense attorney asked Gettle.

"Yes, sir," said the witness.

"That's all," said Simpson.

With the three men in the case ready for San Quentin, authorities were undecided what to do with two women who were arrested when found in company of Kirk.

The women, Lauretta Woody, 28, alias Ann Williams, and Mona A. Galligan, 21, alias Joan Ward, are being held for suspicion of kidnaping.

SOUTH AMERICAN NATIONS AGREE

Fears of Another War Diminute When Peru and Colombia Reach Settlement.

Lima, Peru, May 16.—(AP)—Fears of another war in South America dwindled today with announcement Colombia and Peru have reached an agreement over the disputed Leticia border area.

Although refusing to disclose details, Foreign Minister Polo said after a meeting of the Foreign Affairs advisory committee last night that only the signatures were lacking to make the agreement effective.

The committee approved a report from Rio de Janeiro on negotiations there between representatives of Peru and Colombia.

Leticia is a small village on the border land of Colombia and Peru. Peru took over the region in the latter part of 1922, but a League of Nations commission was told not long ago that the nations appear in agreement that Colombia has a right to the district by treaty. Peruvians argued, however, that the natives are Peruvians and wish to remain so and that Colombia ignores them.

SOUVENIR HUNTERS

Los Angeles, May 16.—(AP)—From the Hall of Justice, from the Beverly Hills mansion of William F. Gettle, from the Arcadia estate where the old millionaire was kidnaped a week ago, the crowds strayed today to the tiny, Spanish style house in La Crescenta, where he was held captive.

Souvenir seekers all, they invaded the property, making away with whatever could be torn loose, mostly rose bushes.

The vines that covered the kitchen window came down before the hands of the curious. In the kitchen the crowds found evidence of the hand-to-mouth living of the kidnapers—no board set for royalty, although $80,000 was sought. There were slices of cold ham, half a head of lettuce, small tomatoes, a small chunk of butter and two cartons of eggs. On the drainboard were empty whiskey bottles, apples, two half-packages of sliced bread, empty milk bottles, cans and dishes of cigarette ashes.

Eyes peered into the windows and fell upon the brown flannel coat and brown tie Larry Kerrigan, one of the kidnap gang, left behind in his hasty flight as officers raided the house, saving Gettle and catching Roy Williams, another partner in the crime.

In the bedroom where Gettle lay for five days was found a wooden

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP OF RAILS IS SEEN

Director Eastman Says It Will Be Necessary in Future; Gives His Reasons.

New York, May 16.—(AP)—The opinion that public ownership and operation of the railroads may prove necessary sometime in the future was expressed today by Joseph B. Eastman, Federal coordinator of railroads.

"I have no desire to assume the role of propagandist for public ownership and operation, or to have such a policy adopted until the people of the United States either want it or believe it to be necessary. I have believed that they should be thinking about it, for it may prove to be necessary, and in that event it is highly desirable that the country should be prepared to undertake it in the best possible way and with all possible safeguards," Eastman said.

Eastman indicated, however, that he was not urging acquisition by the government at the present time under the financial conditions facing the government. He said there are distinct dangers in public ownership and operation against which safeguards ought to be provided, but "the fact is that nobody has less to fear than the holders of railroad securities," since governments invariably pay "a fair price and usually more than the property is worth."

Rate Cutting In regard to talk of greater flexibility in rate cutting to meet competition, the coordinator asserted that in his judgment the railroads are given "too free a hand, for the expense of truck or water competition is being badly overworked and the real reason is often the pressure of big shippers and the desire to fitch traffic from other railroads."

Declaring that he was "no Moses" to lead the roads out of the wilderness, Mr. Eastman sketched proposed steps to bring about reductions in the cost of operation. He admitted that "economies in railroad operation are bound, in large part, to be labor-saving economies."

Eastman said "Since 1920 the number of employees has increased, and has been cut in half, and those who remain have suffered severely in the depression. We hope to work out a program which will afford reasonable protection to labor without stifling progress."

The coordinator said the attitude of individual railroad management was an obstacle to future possibilities. "Their immediate duty, as they see it," he said, "is to look after the interests of their own particular stockholders, without much regard for the interests of the industry as a whole."

Previous to Eastman's address, the efforts of the Federal coordinator of railroads were upheld and better times predicted for the roads by the committee on railroad investments of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks.

LARGEST FLYING BOAT TO TRY FOR RECORDS

S-42 to Attempt to Reach 20,000 Feet With Heavy Load—Test at Bridgeport.

Bridgeport, May 16.—(AP)—Poised for the flight which is expected to carry her 20,000 feet up, more than three times as high as any plane has flown with a similar payload, the S-42, largest flying boat in the United States, stood on the ramp on the lower Housatonic this afternoon, motor turning over and awaiting only the arrival of aeronauts to take wing.

Officials of the Sikorsky Aviation Corporation at Stratford, which built the monster, emphasized that the flight, scheduled for this afternoon, is merely a routine test for inspection by Department of Commerce officials. The S-42 is expected to reach 20,000 feet altitude with her 11,000-lb. payload (she already has been up 18,000 feet), but that advance over the former record of 6,500 feet established by the German Steindorf in April, 1927, will be merely incidental to the government test.

Ray Quick, inspector for the Department of Commerce, who will fly with Captain Boris Sergievsky, the S-42 pilot, today, on the two hour test hop, was to arrive at Moillon Airport this afternoon, in his own plane from Washington. John P. Heimuller, official observer of the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, will place the barograph in the S-42. Walter E. Stoddard and William St. John, also official representatives of the federation, will check the weight she will carry.

The huge flying boat was taken from the hangar at 10:45 this morning and was on the end of the ramp at noon.

Her Mite Goes To The Hospital

Janet Tracy, shown above in her hospital bed, is only thirteen years of age, but in the few short years she has lived she has suffered greatly from ill health and has been a patient in the hospital three times. This time a serious operation was performed and now she is happy because the doctor has told her she may go home.

This morning when Superintendent Mrs. Jane J. Aldrich was making her rounds, Janet called her to her bedside and handed her fifty cents and said, "I want to give this towards the Hospital Drive". The Superintendent was deeply touched, as only a day or two ago she had been told by Janet that she had seven dollars which friends had given her on their visits to her, with which she intended to purchase a pair of white shoes and a new white dress; she knew it was a sacrifice on Janet's part to give fifty cents of her little hoard.

FLIERS BARELY CROSS SEA, HIT IRELAND'S RIM

hours of the flight we had a nerve-racking time. The engine coughed and smoked while adding to our trouble, we had no idea of our whereabouts. It was a welcome relief to see the green fields of Ireland.

"We lost a lot of gasoline on the trip across owing to trouble with the fuel pipe, and this fact, coupled with a changing engine, led us to decide to land immediately.

"It was a narrow squeak. We hit a mud ditch. "After leaving Newfoundland our first trouble developed. The gasoline was not flowing freely from the rear tank to the carburetor. This gradually got worse and we lost all hope of reaching land.

Decide to Go Ahead "It was either a case of going ahead or turning back to Newfoundland or New York. We decided to take the risk and go ahead.

"I made a last desperate bid to put the gasoline trouble right. It was a dangerous job but I was ready to do anything.

"I climbed out the cockpit and cautiously made my way to the rear tank. The plane's speed had dropped to 80 miles an hour and we were then about 80 feet above the water. "It was very difficult to hold onto the tank. The plane's speed had dropped to 80 miles an hour and we were then about 80 feet above the water.

"Lose Gasoline "It was a great relief to put the trouble right, but in doing it a considerable quantity of gasoline was lost.

"When it became apparent that our hopes of making a non-stop flight to Rome was doomed and the most we could do was to reach the shore of Ireland.

"We had about 20 gallons of gasoline left in the tanks when we landed but, apart from the shortage of fuel, it was engine trouble that sealed our fate.

"As soon as I put the gasoline flow into proper order we were able to rise 5,000 feet where the flying conditions were much better, but it was still a difficult job.

"There was rain, fog, and a stiff wind which helped keep us back. "I can't praise the skill of Pond too highly. He never became flustered in the face of the worst weather conditions.

Landing where the fliers landed is a West Coast summer resort village of the Free State county of Clare, situated on the open Liscannor Bay, where the Atlantic surf rolls in. It has one of the most famous golf courses in Ireland.

ROME PREPARES WELCOME

Rome, May 16.—(AP)—Rome made ready a hero's welcome today for Capt. E. E. Pond and Lieut. Cesare Sabelli, former New York-to-Rome fliers.

Although disappointed at the failure of the airmen to make the non-stop air journey planned, officials were pleased in the greeting here should be none the less enthusiastic.

Air ministry attaches said they were happy enough to know that the aviators met with no disaster while over the Atlantic.

When the news of the landing in Ireland reached here many persons, including officials and newspapermen, were on their way to Ciampini Airfield, which had been prepared for the landing.

Franco Sabelli of Rome, a brother of Lieutenants Sabelli, with another brother and a sister from Naples sent a message of congratulation to the fliers.

STRIKERS NAME NEW OFFICIALS

Five Delegates Representing Hillard Workers Gone to Boston Conference.

Five delegates representing the strikers at the E. E. Hillard company's plant in Hillardville will leave Manchester at 5:50 tomorrow morning by automobile for Boston where by 10 o'clock there will be a hearing before the Regional Board of New England concerning the labor troubles at the mills. At the meeting E. E. Hillard is also expected to be present.

The delegation is not the same that has been representing Textile Local 2127, as there has been a change of officers recently. Bernard Halpin, who was the president of the Local when men and women left their work six weeks ago last Monday, has resigned and has been succeeded by Edward Strauss, who will be one of the delegates to the Boston conference. Raymond Walker who was the vice-president of the Local, has also resigned and his place has been taken by Henry Lachappell, who will be one of the delegates. Miss Mary Krieski is the new secretary and Edmund Daulplase and Frank Obrembski, are the other delegates.

It was learned that a conference was being held in Williamtown this afternoon between representatives of the strikers and Mr. Hillard relative to the labor troubles at the plant. If an adjustment had been reached it would have been a settlement not reached this afternoon the matter will be carried to the Regional Board tomorrow.

CHURCHMEN OPPOSE MINIMUM SALARIES

Delegates at Episcopal Convention Vote Against Plan in State Diocese.

Hartford, May 16.—(AP)—Delegates to the annual convention of clergy and laymen of the Protestant Episcopal church, Diocese of Connecticut, today voted down a resolution which would make mandatory that every parson in the diocese pay a minimum annual salary of $2,100 to married clergymen or widowers with dependent children and $1,800 minimum salary to unmarried clergymen on the grounds that its passage would interfere with the autonomy of parishes.

A resolution which stated that no parish shall call a rector to become regularly settled therein on a stipend less than such minimums without the written consent of the bishop, was also defeated.

The two members of the laity sub-committee which recommended the resolutions to the executive council of the church spoke in favor of their passage. They were William T. Severn of Bridgeport and Origen Seymour of Litchfield, the latter diocesan chancellor for laymen.

Mr. Seymour declared that "we get our religion pretty cheaply as it is," and added that "clergymen are always the first to receive salary reductions. He urged the passage of the resolutions. In his he was strongly supported by Mr. Severn.

McCook Opposes Speaking in opposition Anson T. McCook of Hartford, prominent layman, admitted that his task was a disagreeable one but stated that the passage of such resolutions would endanger the independence and autonomy of the parishes of the diocese. Many parishes, Mr. McCook declared, could not possibly raise the money required.

George E. Burry of Hartford, treasurer of the diocese, opposed the fixing of salary minimums on the grounds that such regulations would be unenforceable. In this stand he was supported by the Rev. Dr. W. B. Barclay of New Haven.

The convention voted to assess each parish one and three-quarters per cent of the average expenditures for 1932-33 for the support of the Episcopate and a similar assessment for the support of diocesan administration. An attempt to increase the Episcopate support to two and one-quarter percent, failed to muster the necessary votes.

Pioneers of Mystic Review Are Guests at Supper in Odd Fellows Hall.

Mystic Review, Woman's Benefit association, enjoyed a get-together supper and entertainment last night in Odd Fellows hall. The affair was given in honor of the pioneers, women who have been members for more than a quarter of a century. Several were present who have been enrolled considerably over 35 years.

Mrs. Thora Stoehr was chairman of the supper which was served in the banquet hall at 6:30. The tables were attractive in pink and white, and in the center was a large pink Maybaker filled with white lilies. The meal consisted of cold ham, salads, baked beans, relishes, rolls, cake and coffee.

About 7:30 a program was given under the direction of Mrs. Carrie Samlow. Miss Ad. Robinson, soprano, sang "Morning" and responded to an encore. Mrs. Stoehr accompanied her at the piano. Miss Frances DeVerney played a piano solo, and a one-act play entitled "A Lady to Call", was presented by Mrs. S. J. Kearnes, Mrs. Herbert Alley and Mrs. Stephen Miller, all of whom are members of the Pythian Sisters.

At the business meeting which followed the resolutions to the executive council of the church spoke in favor of their passage. They were William T. Severn of Bridgeport and Origen Seymour of Litchfield, the latter diocesan chancellor for laymen.

Mr. Seymour declared that "we get our religion pretty cheaply as it is," and added that "clergymen are always the first to receive salary reductions. He urged the passage of the resolutions. In his he was strongly supported by Mr. Severn.

FOLLOW UP CLUES IN ROBLES CASE

structions contained in a second ransom note; and authorities believe the kidnapers sought to lead him to the girl because they were afraid to negotiate for the $15,000 ransom they demanded.

The contact never was made. Chicago Letter The letter from Chicago and another sent to Tucson authorities from the New Mexico penitentiary remained important clues to the girl's kidnapers. The New Mexico letter, written by an unnamed convict, was forwarded by Warden Ed Swope. It disclosed an asserted plot to kidnap Congresswoman Isabella Greenway, or Budget Director Louis Douglas but authorities were interested because it made reference to a spot in the desert, the approximate distance from Tucson that June was found.

Authorities meanwhile studied utensils found in the trench with June for finger prints. Instructions of the first ransom note, delivered to Fernando Robles two hours after June was kidnaped April 25, were revealed by authorities last night. The note threatened death to the child if instructions were not carried out.

HOFFMAN WINNER AT N. J. PRIMARY

Gets Republican Nomination for Governorship; Dill, the Democratic Nominee.

Newark, N. J., May 16.—(AP)—Rolling up a plurality in 17 of the state's 21 counties, Harold G. Hoffman, youthful state motor vehicle commissioner, won the New Jersey Republican gubernatorial nomination yesterday by an unexpectedly decisive margin over his three opponents.

With but 164 districts missing out of 3,418 in the state, Hoffman's vote was 229,491. Former Judge Robert Carey, of Jersey City, carrying his own county, Hudson and Camden, was second with 94,118; State Senator Joseph G. Wolber, leading only in his home county of Essex, was third with 78,918, and State Senator Emerson Richards, of Atlantic, trailed with 48,384.

The victory of Hoffman placed him in the November election fight with William L. Dill, of Paterson, now a lay judge of the Court of Errors and Appeals and Hoffman's predecessor as motor vehicle commissioner.

Dill Also Victorious Dill, the choice of the State Democratic organization of Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, was an essay victor in his primary contest with Assemblyman Theron McCampbell, of Monmouth county.

U. S. Senator Hamilton F. Kean was selected as the co-standard bearer of the Republican Party with Hoffman, defeating James C. Blairvelt, of Ridgewood. With less than 700 districts missing, the vote for the veteran Senator was 230,265; for Blairvelt, 82,989.

With fewer districts reported, apparently because of the lack of interest in McCampbell's futile opposition, the vote for Dill was 194,574, compared with the Assemblyman's 26,428. McCampbell, however, was nominated for the Assembly in his home county.

Thirteen incumbent New Jersey Congressmen sought renomination and were successful. The fourteen, Oscar auf der Heide, Democrat, of the 14th District, retired and Edward J. Hart of Jersey City was named in his place.

Five of the incumbents—Charles A. Wolverton, First; Charles A. Eaton, Fifth; and George N. Seger, Eighth, all Republicans, and William H. Sutphin, Third, and Edward A. Kenney, Ninth, Democrats—had no opposition.

The others who gained renomination were Isaac Bacharach, Second; D. Lane Powers, Fourth; Donald H. McLean, Sixth; William J. Park, Seventh; Fred A. Hartley, Tenth; Peter A. Cavichia, Eleventh; and Frederick R. Leilbach, Twelfth, all Republicans, and Mary T. Norton, Thirteenth, Democrat.

Mrs. Norton received 24,717 votes in defeating C. Driscoll, who received only 1,729.

PETITION SEEKS CUT IN COLLECTION COSTS

Surrender of Ninth District Charter Also Desired to Reduce Expense to Town.

A petition was started in circulation this afternoon to be presented to the Selectmen and the town Board of Education, also the Ninth School Board, asking that the charter of the Ninth District be surrendered and that the collection of such taxes necessary for the upkeep of the library and the Recreation Centers, be placed in the hands of the Board of Park Commissioners, the Board of Education, or some other department of the town, with the taxes collected by the town tax collector.

The preamble of the petition states that the object is to reduce the cost of collections and do away with a double duty, which would be a saving for the district and the town.

For the present, her parents and doctors said, she must rest—and forget.

GIANTS DUMP CUBS OUT OF LOOP LEAD WITH 10 TO 3 WIN

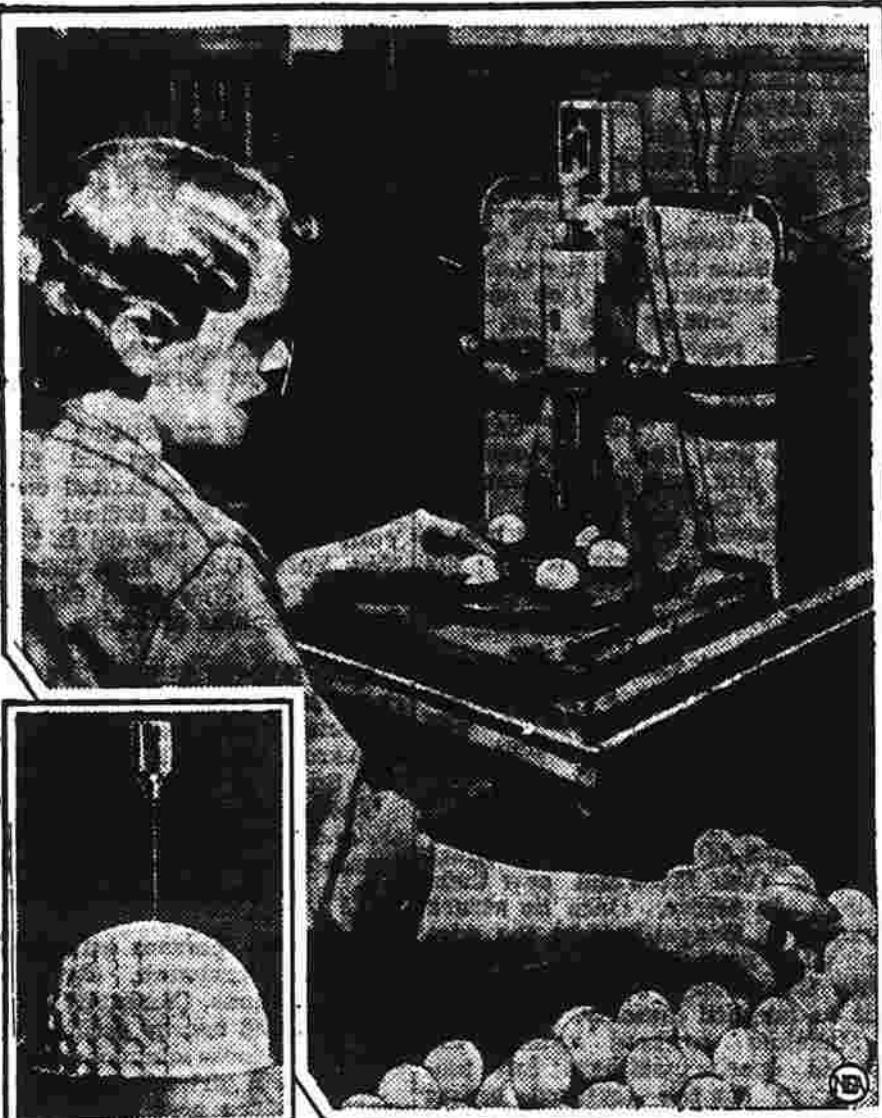

Triumph Leaves New York But Half Game Out of 3rd Place; Pirates Back On Top; Dodgers Edge Cards.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR. Associated Press Sports Writer.

In the course of a disastrous tour through the western sector of the National league the Giants have managed to prove only that they still are dangerous when Carl Hubbell is pitching. What started as a joyous jaunt for the league leaders ended with the Giants in fourth place after losing eight games and winning five. But they found one bright spot in the picture yesterday when they celebrated their release from the terrors of the road by smashing out a 10-3 decision over the Chicago Cubs behind Hubbell's hurling and knocking the Cubs right out of the lead.

The triumph left the Giants only a half game out of third place as Brooklyn's Dodgers also staged a finishing celebration and beat out the Cardinals 6-5. Although defeated the Cardinals ended their home stand with nine victories and only three losses, a record exceeded only by the Pittsburgh Pirates who won eight and lost two to end in first place. All other major league games were washed out.

Golf Ball Goes Lively, Too

Your new lively major league baseball won't be more sprightly than the golf ball when manufacturers get through with it. They are now giving it a "shot in the arm" with a hypodermic needle to increase pressure and bring about longer drives. Above a number of balls are being "inoculated," and inset is a closeup of one with the needle sticking in it.

Local Sport Chatter

Meriden High is making rapid progress toward the C. C. I. L. baseball title, having turned in four straight victories without a defeat. The Silvery City nine trounced East Hartford, 9-2; West Hartford, 16-8; Bristol, 7-1; and Middletown, 23-5.

As a result, Meriden is in first place in the League standing. Manchester is second and has a chance to strengthen its hold on that place by whipping East Hartford today. Bristol is in third place.

The unofficial standing is as follows:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Meriden	4	0	1.000
Manchester	2	0	1.000
Bristol	2	1	.667
West Hartford	2	3	.400
East Hartford	0	2	.000
Middletown	0	4	.000

Harry M. Burke of New Haven has been appointed chairman of the recreation committee of the Connecticut AAU to succeed the late Thomas J. Tracy, who held the office many years. Burke coaches novice swimmers at Yale and heads the Clear Lake swimming association recently admitted to membership in the union. Charles Wigren, Manchester High track coach, is also a member of this committee.

Manchester High's tennis match with Hartford Public was rained out yesterday afternoon and postponed until a later date, as yet undecided.

For more than two hours last Sunday afternoon, we sat enraptured at the tennis exhibition given by Henry Cochet and Vincent Richards, Martin Pias and Bruce Barnes, at the Hartford Golf Club. Cochet and Pias won both the singles matches but lost the doubles, the latter being more or less of a hilarious affair that featured the clowning of the French duo.

Cochet, short and slender and young looking, displayed his net wizardry only a few times during the afternoon when he did it was easy to understand his domination of the world of tennis for so many years. He covered the court with amazing speed and his forehand and backhand returns were like rifle shots.

He never exerted himself in serving, meeting the ball with his arm bent instead of going up into the air after it. He and Pias gave the impression that they could have swung through the American pair with the loss of very few games if any at all.

Observers of the local baseball situation are already predicting that the battle for the title will be between the Catholic Club nine and the Bluefields. However, the half dozen or so other teams may have something to say about the matter before the season closes.

Only three schools in the C. C. I. L. include pole vaulting on their track schedules, namely, Manchester, East Hartford and West Hartford. The others feel the sport is too dangerous. It's been part of the local program for 10, these many years, and in one of the more exciting of the field events.

Harold Clemon proved himself a versatile young man last night, much to the misfortune of the World Brothers circus, which played a one-day stand in town. Clemon, who has made a habit of winning masquerades, took on the circus wrestling champ, when the spidery proclaimed that ten dollars would be paid to the one who threw the grappler. Clemon, according to those who witnessed the match, didn't have much trouble in winning a fall and the ten bucks.

Did you know that when a batter swings at the ball and the pitcher hits the bat and then the plate and bounds into fair territory it is a fair ball and goes for a hit if the runner makes first safely? It's a new ruling that many teams haven't followed.

PLAN DOUBLES MATCH IN HORSESHOE SPORT

A doubles horseshoe pitching battle for a purse of $25 has been arranged on a home and home basis with Billie Gess and Henry Lang meeting Jim Thomson and Guido Georgetti. The first half of the match will be rolled tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock at the rear of Georgetti's home. The details of the match had not been set at this writing. The four tossers are considered among the best in town and a closely-contested match is expected.

'Way Down on the Farm

A corn-fed farmer? Yes, bo! And Primo Carnera probably did plenty of this before hitting the pugilistic pike. Anyway, the champion appears perfectly at home in the garden of the Pompton Lakes, N. J., training camp, where he is preparing for his battle with Max Baer on June 14.

West Sides To Place Team On Field Again This Year

The West Side club, which for the last four years has been represented on the baseball diamond, will again endeavor to give the ardent baseball fans of the West Side a team that will even surpass the brilliancy of last year's outfit, which clinched the Town Series. It was thought at first that the town champs would not organize this year, but the cash customers who supported the team last year demanded a team and are willing to do their bit towards putting another winning ball club on the field. Despite the opposition received from the Catholic Club and the Bluefields in their quest for players, the West Sides feel that there is still plenty of available material in town to mould a team which will prove worthy of the support of their loyal fans. It is expected that all of last year's players will be back fighting for their old jobs with a lot of new faces to give them plenty of opposition. There will be a special business meeting at the West Side Rec tomorrow night at seven o'clock for players who are interested in trying out for the team. A very flattering proposition has been offered the team by a successful businessman which will give the West Sides a good foothold in opening up their season. Don't forget tomorrow night at seven. Competent officials will be elected to guide the destinies of the team at tomorrow's meeting.

TWO FAMED VETS GIVEN RELEASES FROM MAJORS

Grimes and Judge Cut Adrift by 23-Player Limit; Both Had Brilliant Careers; Many Other Changes Are Made in Big Leagues.

By HERBERT W. BARKER Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, May 16.—(AP)—Major league rosters had been whittled down to the 23 player limit today and two famed veterans of the game were looking for jobs. Forty-year old Burlington Grimes, hard hitter, right-hander, and 39 year old Joe Judge, in his hey-day one of baseball's finest fielding first basemen, were cut adrift by the St. Louis Cardinals and Boston Red Sox respectively.

Brilliant Career In his 19 years in the big leagues, Grimes served with every National league club except Cincinnati and Philadelphia and he may complete the swing before he's ready to call it a career. Judge, who spent the first of his 20 years in the big time with the Washington Senators before shifting to Brooklyn and then to Boston, can charge his unconditional release in part at least to the trade whereby the Red Sox parted with about $20,000 cash and Fred Muller, rookie infielder, to the New York Yankees for Lyn Lary.

Muller won't need to be measured for a Yankees uniform just yet for Manager Joe McCarthy sent him to the Newark Bears along with Charley Devens and Norman Kies. Muller's experience will be just the reverse of that of Jim Weaver, six foot six inch right-hander, Weaver was turned back to Newark by the St. Louis Browns yesterday and a few hours later was sold to the Chicago Cubs who made room for him by dispatching two young pitchers, Lynn Nelson and Dick Ward to Atlanta and Los Angeles respectively.

Other Releases Necessary for the 23 player limit rule saw the Brooklyn Dodgers sell southpaw Phil Page to Kansas City and dispose of outfielder Glen Chaplin to Albany; the Boston Braves send MAX BAER TALKS SELF OUT OF JAM Suspension Lifted and Then He Nearly Gets in Bad Again.

Silver City Team Offers Little Opposition as Locals Gain Fourth Straight Dual Triumph; Rainy Weather Bar to Good Performances.

New York, May 16.—(AP)—(AP)—Max Baer has talked himself out of one jam with the New York State Athletic commission and just missed talking himself right into another. The California challenger for Primo Carnera's heavyweight championship appeared before the Solons yesterday to explain just why he failed to keep an engagement with them a week ago. He talked so persuasively the commission lifted the indefinite suspension it had plastered on Baer and his manager, Ansel Hoffman, for their failure to appear on time. Then Max almost spoiled it all again. He went into a long monologue explaining how, when and why he would knock out Carnera when they meet in Madison Square Garden bowl June 14. "He gave an illustrated lecture on boxing," said Bert Stand, secretary of the commission. "He was the only speaker because no one else could get a word in edgewise."

Manchester High's track and field appreciation was furnished little in the way of opposition by Meriden High in a dual league meet at the West Side field yesterday afternoon and the Red and White swept every first place, eight seconds and five thirds in a ten-event program to chalk up one of its most decisive triumphs. The final score was 78½ to 11½, giving Manchester its fourth straight dual victory of the season.

Face West Hartford The meet was run off on a wet track and rain swept the field with a chilling wind to add to the physical discomfort. The inclement weather hampered the athletes in turning in better than average performances but the local team had no trouble at all in demonstrating its superiority in both track and field. Friday afternoon, Manchester is host to West Hartford High at the West Side at 3:45 o'clock and is hopeful of keeping its record free of defeat. West Hartford lost to the locals by only two points last year but is understood to be considerably weaker this season.

Overwhelming Edge Seconds in the broad jump and 220 yard dash were the best that Meriden could produce against the Red and White, with the Ryan brothers featuring for the visitors. Manchester outscored Meriden by 40 to 5 in the track events and 88½ to 5½ in the field events. In the 200, mile and javelin, the Red and White romped home with all three places, Leary, Carpenter and Johnson being the first place winners in the respective events. Leo Johnson was the highest point getter for Manchester with firsts in the shot and javelin, while Garrone took first in the discus and second in the shot. The pole vault and relay were not included on the program.

Levinsky Still Missing And Chicago Is Worried

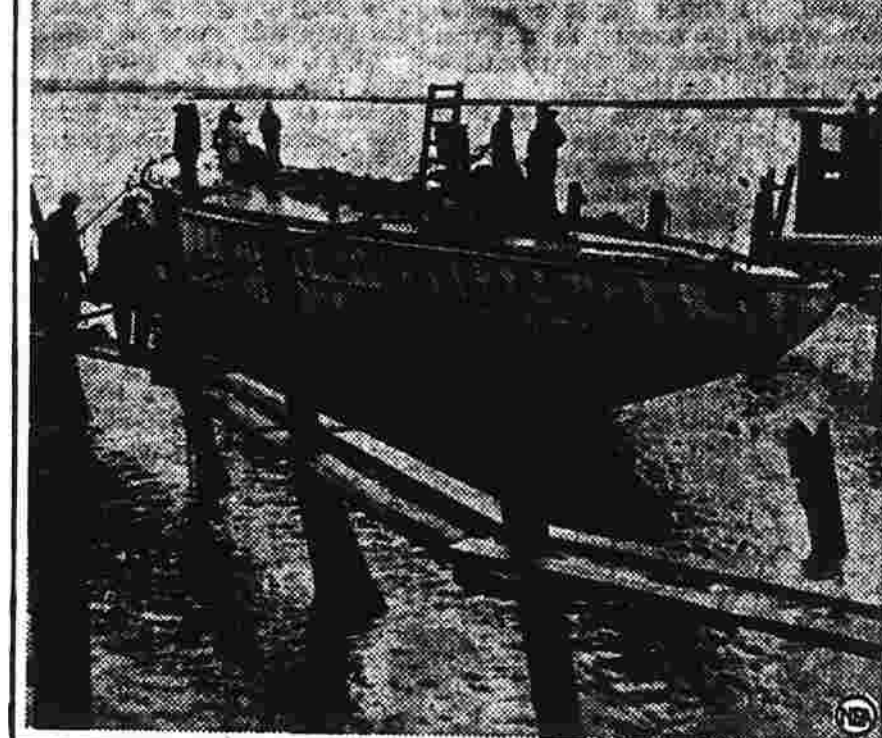

Chicago, May 16.—(AP)—A man hunt—not for John Dillinger—but for King Levinsky had the Maxwell street sector in the throes of excitement today. Three physicians, their stethoscopes primed for action, and members of the powerful Gian Levinsky, were on the lookout. A number of others, including Promoters Lou Daro and Tom Gallery of Los Angeles, for whom the King was to have fought Art Lasky of Minneapolis last night, waited hopefully. Last reports from the celebrated Kingfish came from Tucumcari, N. M. He passed through there in a big black sedan, Chicago bound. Non-traveling members of the Gian Levinsky said they had heard nothing from the King and Lena, his sister-manager, but admitted they were "very worried." They were worried because the all-too-few reports said the King—his King—was sick. Ill or not, the King faced other troubles. He was suspended last night by Dr. Harry W. Martin, chairman of the California Athletic Commission, from California rings for not less than a year. Promoter Daro also planned to start suit against Levinsky to recover $300 advanced on the boxer's purse.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
DONNA GABRIEL and MADELINE SIDDAL who call themselves "The Gabriel Sisters" are circus performers. Years earlier Madeline ran away from her grandfather's farm.
 When Donna is injured by a fall from the trapeze Madeline arranges for her to be taken to GRANDFATHER SIDDAL'S farm to recuperate. To please her partner Donna pretends to be Madeline. She falls in love with BILL SIDDAL, Madeline's cousin, and though she is ashamed of deceiving BILL and Grandfather she is afraid to tell the truth.
 Meanwhile Madeline marries O'D'AVID, animal trainer with the circus, and although terrified of the lions and tigers takes part in his animal act.
 Back on the farm BILL confesses his love to Donna and asks her to marry him.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVIII
 Donna and Bill decided to be married in September. From the day the decision was made Donna was in a fever of excitement. One moment she was determined to tell BILL the truth about her coming to the farm; the next she was just as determined to go through with the ceremony, keeping him in ignorance as long as possible.
 The longer she postponed the telling, the more fearful she grew that in some manner he might learn the facts from someone else. She had visions of the real Madeline walking into the church just as the minister was about to pronounce her BILL's wife; visions of an indignant letter arriving to inform Grandfather Sidal that the girl he had taken into his heart and home was an impostor; visions of BILL repudiating her, casting her out without even giving her a chance to defend herself.
 Although these fears overshadowed her happiness, Donna continued to reassure herself that Madeline could not do such a thing. Through the deception Madeline had won the man she loved. From without she had taken one step toward the goal she had set for herself.
