CONTEMPT LAWS A jury is a good enough thing to be entrusted with the life of a human being but it is not in the view of the medieval judicial system still tolerated in the United States a worthy retributive for the dignity of a court. Hence the arrogated power of a judge to clap into jail, without regard to his constitutional rights, a man who has been found guilty without trial and without appeal, any person whom he may consider to be in "contempt" of the court.

On the surface there doesn't appear to be anything that can be done about this case. The judge appears to hold the whip hand. The governor of Kentucky says he can do nothing—but he may change his mind if the storm of indignation continues to grow because at least he could sign pardons as fast as the judge pads sentences. Otherwise the situation appears to be in the hands of the tyrannical judge. If, however, today to today and tomorrow will be another day, it is entirely possible, believe it or not, that Kentucky's may now see the seeds of a great reform...

IN NEW YORK

By PAUL HARRISON New York, Aug. 8.—Sleeping in an aerial Pullman is fun. At least it's fun to be in an aerial Pullman. It's first trip, even if one doesn't get much sleep. The novelty of the thing is demoralizing to commuters. The American Airlines invited a dozen newspapermen to help in a trial run with the new sleeping service between New York and Chicago. So we were taken out to Newark airport the other midnight, and there were airplanes because the top berths have more window space. In a way, though, this is not an advantage, because if you have a window you are likely to spend an hour gazing at a starlight night with a cloud wreath streaking past. There are other things to think about, too. You experiment with the ventilating device which will stir streams of fresh or warmed air in any direction. You consider the anomaly of being held in bed by a safety belt. You wonder where the stewardesses spend their nights. (She sits hot upright in a little jump seat in the vestibule.) You wonder whether any of the passengers are secretly—possibly that follow to No. 11 is des-

CHICKENS COME HOME

The extraordinary sight in sentiment among the people of the mid-Industrial village of Kohler, Wis., where apparently took place the development of labor troubles, has been one of the most puzzling of depression phenomena. It has led many people to the conclusion that the "materialistic" system of industrialism, where whose commodities are sometimes ruled in the indirect way by the owners of large enterprises, has really very little more intrinsic virtue than the system of callous indifference to the well-being of employees which has distinguished some other communities and overthrows.

Mrs. Harold F. Bidwell of Chestnut street has received a letter from her daughter, Miss Eleanor Bidwell, who is touring Europe this summer, stating that she plans to return on the Statendam, two weeks earlier than the schedule called for.

According to the original plans prepared by Town Engineer J. Frank Bowen, a choice of three being given, all of which were turned down, the State was to construct and pay for a 22-foot road from the Center to Manchester Green.

Reconstruction of Main Arteries Looms Again; PWA Plan Dropped.

The condition of East Center street, from the junction of Porter street to Manchester Green, has received among the residents of this section and others who daily drive over the street, the plan of rebuilding this section of state highway.

Three years ago the question of repairs and reconstruction of the street was discussed by the present Board of Selectmen several months ago. It was the consensus of the members that Manchester should not participate in the Public Works Administration plan, due to the difficulty of financing the work through federal bonds.

PASTEURIZED MILK KEEPS BETTER, SAYS STRAUGHAN

Wayland Straughan, proprietor of Straughan's Dairy here, has been boosting pasteurized milk especially during the hot summer months.

According to the original plans prepared by Town Engineer J. Frank Bowen, a choice of three being given, all of which were turned down, the State was to construct and pay for a 22-foot road from the Center to Manchester Green.

Not Enough Work One of the chief objections to the plan recently was the fact that the work would not furnish labor for the town's unemployed in sufficient quantity to help out in the current emergency.

The highway committee of the Board of Selectmen will recommend to the board at the next meeting, that something be done to properly condition Broad street for through traffic.

It is a certainty that the State Highway department will make no more to improve East Center street, unless the town first takes the initial step.
