Start Move Immediately to Send Slayer to Electric Chair— Caught in Albany Bus Station Saturday.

(Special To The Herald) Springfield, Mass., Nov. 12.—Close questioning of Alexander Kaminski in the Hampden County jail today definitely established the fact that the murderer of Merritt W. Hayden, Springfield jail guard, had no connection with a killing in Wallingford for which he was blamed about three weeks ago. The wife of the murdered man was reported at the time to have told police she recognized Kaminski as the man who killed her husband. Kaminski never was in Wallingford since his escape.

Planned To Change Nose It also was revealed for the first time today that Kaminski was intending to scold the services of a plastic surgeon to straighten out his nose.

HIGH COURT TAKES UP MOONEY CASE

California Ordered to Show Cause Why a Review Should Not Be Made.

Washington, Nov. 12.—(AP)—The Supreme Court today ordered California to show within 40 days why it should not be permitted to review the conviction of James J. Mooney, in his 18-year campaign to escape serving the remainder of his life sentence for complicity in the 1916 San Francisco dynamite explosion.

Mooney had sought unsuccessfully to obtain a writ of habeas corpus from the lower Federal courts before he appealed to the high court.

Money asserted that the state district attorney who prosecuted him knew at the time he offered certain testimony that it was prepared, and charged the district attorney suppressed material evidence.

The suppression and concealment of evidence by California through the district attorney, and the denial by the courts of any process by which the newly discovered evidence could be considered, deprived him, Money declared, of his liberty without due process of law in violation of the Federal constitution.

 HEROES OR "STUCKERS" There is at present, and for several years has been, a marked tendency on the part of a great many American intellectuals to belittle the significance of Armistice day and to create the impression that the men who fought in the American army and navy were "stuckers" rather than heroes; that this country's part in the World War was unimportant and that the investments of international money lenders and the debts owed to American munition makers are the real basis of our national strength.
 We have never gotten into that frame of mind with relation to the war—and we hope we never shall.
 We are still sufficiently naive to believe that underneath the veneer of commercialism and greed that unquestionably were closely associated with the war, there were men and women who were fighting for something more than money and power. We are still sufficiently

FATHER COUGHLIN Politicians, statesmen and the public have something new to think about and to reckon with in Father Coughlin's proposed National Union for Social Justice, the plan for which the widely known Michigan priest announced yesterday over the radio.
 For years Father Coughlin has been building up a following. Now he proposes to crystallize that following into what will have the effect, if his plans succeed, of a national political party of the left, though there is no indication of any purpose to make it a nominating party and though its leader expressed, at the moment of his announcement, an aversion to opposition to Communism as could be found anywhere.
 The purposes for which the National Union party seeks to consolidate his following into a formal organization are, in a general way, much like those aimed at by the British Labor Party, who within the next two years hope to go to the country on a platform of government ownership of natural monopolies and monopoli-stic industries and of the major public services. Especially would Father Coughlin have his proposed organization further the policy of a government central bank and a general issuance of the nation's currency.

TURNING WORMS
 A Bridgeport gangster was murdered the other day and his battered and tattered body was dumped beside a road in the town of Orange.
 He was the third member of his crew of racketeers to suffer a generally similar fate. The usual police theory is that the murder was committed by some faction of the gang seeking its control or by some other outfit trying to "muscle in" on this gang's racket.
 That is almost always the police theory concerning this class of crime; it is probably correct enough in a good many instances. But it has always seemed a little strange to us that seldom if ever has the consideration been given to a third alternative which at least might present a possible solution in a certain type of gang murder.
 It seems to be pretty well established that the particular gang in question had its major interest and major profit in "shaking down" the small merchants of one part of its town by a process which the sardonic humor of a hand-drawn cartoon is "selling protection." In plain words the victim is given to understand that if he does not pay tribute he will be taken for a ride.
 A police officer of all cities are fully aware of the extent to which this capitulation of terror, particularly against small business men of foreign origin, goes on, but they do little to prevent it because the victims are too frightened to co-operate with the authorities, will seldom even give evidence against the gangsters after arrest for fear of reprisals from mob members still at liberty.
 But does it follow that, because the little merchants, restaurateurs, tavern keepers and the like do not dare openly defy the racketeers by helping the police, they might not on occasion secretly combine to give the gangsters a dose of their own medicine? Is it altogether impossible that some of these killings of racketeers may be the work of very stealthy vigilantes who are more than gang's victims driven desperate by extortion who can see no other way out but by secretly destroying the authors of their troubles?
 It may be rather beside the question that the victims of the shake-down gang game are presumably peaceable, law-abiding individuals without criminal tendencies. It is doubtful if Mr. Average Man, compelled to hand over, every week or every

COSTLY DENTAL WORK

 Police Hope Dentist Who Did

 Teeth.
 Old Forge, N. Y., Nov. 12.—(AP)— A dentist's work upon the teeth of a man whose skeleton was found on the side of Bald Mountain more than a month ago today was the sole clue to the man's identity, still sought by state police and Dr.
 James W. Graves of Cortland, who have seen the set after it came down to nothing.
 The dental work was described as both unusual and expensive. A description of the set was furnished furnished to dental magazines by cooperators in the hope that the dentist who did it might recognize it.
 Two previous clues, one indicating that the man might be from Canastota resident, and the other that he was a New Jerseyite, fell through.

PRESIDENT IN TRIBUTE

 Washington, Nov. 12.—(AP)— Armistice Day—18 years after—moved President and Mrs. Roosevelt to pay tribute to the soldier dead who prompted the First Lady to say word of the sacrifices of war.
 The President in leading thousands on the pilgrims to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier carried wreath in remembrance. The First Lady added a white chrysanthemum.
 In a radio speech last night, Mrs.
 Roosevelt urged that youth be trained to admit and understanding the true meaning of war.
 "The glory of war," she said, "has been constantly emphasized and rarely recognized. The blood the cold, the honor of wounds and of slow death—these things are behind a wall of comradeship and patriotism." Chicago, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Announcing the election of Dr. Charles S. Johnson, head of the Department of the United States at Yale University, to the board of trustees of the Julius Rosenberg Fund, Edwin R.
 Embree, fund president, said today it was the first case in which a Negro national foundation had honored a Negro.
 Also elected to the board of trustees were Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, and Frank L. Key, presi-

 The fund was organized in 1925 and has been the largest of its had 15 presidents and 15 trustees of whom 12 are Negroes.

 DUCKS TIE UP TRAFFIC Scandia, Kas.—(AP)—A flock of ducks, swooping down on a highway suddenly, caused an accident when a motorist brought his car to an abrupt halt. At Kananda ducks also created a traffic hazard apparently mistaking a stretch of paved roadway for water in a fog.

SAVE GAME BIRDS
 Telephone men help to conserve game birds by protecting their nests from damage in pole line operations.
 The game warden has been advised of the location of the nest and asked how such an accident could happen. The report holds no malice toward either the retailer or manufacturer, because the discovery was made before the consumption of any part of the contents. However, it can assure you that in the event a portion consumption had been effected, he would have been highly indignant.
 A council in Wyoming plans to take up the experience of a member who, having bought a can of a well-known brand of molasses from a chair store, poured the stuff into a pitcher and discovered what the council describes as "a well-preserved mouse in the bottom of the can."
