SENSE and NONSENSE

We are constantly told that criminals are not smart. They are not. They don't need to be. On the whole the state locks out for them more solitarily than it does the poor and unfortunate.

Bridge Or? What's happened to the pleasant game called bridge a while ago? We know it by a different name. We've made a labor and a task of what was merely fun.

The wife of a certain Methodist Bishop had been under a serious operation. An aide recovered from the anaesthetic she was heard to murmur: "Am I in heaven? Oh, no, I can't be. There is John."

A 300-pound man steeved gradually at the enticing display in a man's store window. A friend tried to inquire if he were thinking of buying a new spring lavender shirt being shown. "No, I'm kicking a whipped cream out of my pipe!"

The United States government has purchased 200 especially fast cars to be used by Department of Justice agents in running down kidnapers and bank robbers.

Water — We have no fried chicken today. Don't expect about a couple of fried unbatched chickens then?

When I wish I knew how to get rid of my silly boyfriend. "Janie — Why don't you get a girl?" "Janie — Oh, I tried that, but I was just wasting my breath."
