ABOUT TOWN

The nomination of Harold M. Reed, to whom a woman was born today before the primary, as a selectman, followed a precedent established four years ago when Sherwood Rogers was first nominated to the board the day after a son was born to him.

Mrs. Maude Woodward and Mrs. Margaret Haling, registrars of voters in the town of Bolton, met yesterday and prepared the list of voters to be made in Bolton this fall. There are 21 names on the list to be added this year. Included in this list are the names of former Manchester residents who have moved to Bolton within the past year.

The several times postponed concert by the Salvation Army band given at Depot Square last night. There was a large turnout of residents of that part of the town and also from Wapping and Tulliofield. The concert was well received and much enjoyed. This is the second of the series of four concerts that are scheduled to be held at Depot Square this summer.

The Luther League of the Emanuel Lutheran church will hold a special meeting tonight at 7 o'clock for the purpose of clearing up business that has accumulated during the summer. It is asked that all members make an effort to attend.

NOTED STAGE STAR SHOT TO DEATH IN HOME OF RICH MAN

Evelyn Hoy, of Broadway Fame, Found Dead in Room of Farm House Owned by Henry H. Rogers, Jr.—He is Held on Suspicion of Murder.

New York, Sept. 12.—(AP)—The heart-breaking lament of "Tinkles in Gambling," Evelyn Hoy, swung into her Broadway fame in 1929 as the long-stingingly "Fifty Million Frenchman" today the tragic and glamorous career of the blond chanteuse ended with a bullet after a week-long party on the Pennsylvania farm of Henry H. Rogers, Jr.

In Kiddle Reveal The diminutive actress, with wide blue eyes and a bewitching smile, left her Manhattan home in 1924 to continue a stage career in Kiddle to the town of Kiddle, Pa. In 1927 she returned to New York to marry the Broadway manager not too enthusiastically by her widower.

A vaudeville tour gave her an obscure but promising introduction to the theatrical world. She followed a road tour in "The Green-Headed Village Folks" in 1927. In 1928 she followed a road tour in "The Green-Headed Village Folks" in 1928. In 1929 she followed a road tour in "The Green-Headed Village Folks" in 1929.

The following year she decided that it would be wise to go to Europe and, as a number of other Broadway stars, she followed a trans-oceanic gateway. In London party, where Long said that "Good News" and "There followed her last night in the musical comedy, "You're Truly."

On the eve of her departure for Europe and, as a number of other Broadway stars, she followed a trans-oceanic gateway. In London party, where Long said that "Good News" and "There followed her last night in the musical comedy, "You're Truly."

Rogers was brought here on a technical charge of suspicion of murder. Police said he had been drinking and that the tragedy followed a party at the farm house. The death of the girl who popularized the song, "What Is This Thing Called Love" in the "Fifty Million Frenchman" in 1929. Rogers was co-rehearsed with Betty Compton, now Mrs. James J. Walker, in 1929.

Rogers said he was an argument during the night and that the girl, who was Broadway prominence playing the lead in "The Green-Headed Village Folks" in 1929. Rogers was co-rehearsed with Betty Compton, now Mrs. James J. Walker, in 1929.

"We heard a shot," Rogers said, "and when we ran upstairs we found her lying on the floor. A single bullet had entered the left side of the 25-year-old girl's head, passing completely through and embedding in the brain."

At her feet police found a 45 caliber pistol handled pistol. On the bed was an automatic covered with blood, and in a corner of the room was a sawed-off shotgun.

Miss Hoy's recent success in several fashionable night clubs where she popularized the song, "What Is This Thing Called Love" and "April in Paris" she became a familiar figure in the light life rendezvous of the city. She was seen in smart, smart clothes and ever present coronet of green orchids making her a word record breaker.

Her last Broadway role was in the musical comedy, "Walk a Little Faster" in 1934. She was seen in smart, smart clothes and ever present coronet of green orchids making her a word record breaker.

In 1932 she sued a handwriting expert for $20,000 claiming that her signature had been altered by a permanent waving machine.

When the party of police officers arrived at the Rogers place, found Rogers and his wife, William J. Kelly, of 149 49th street, Union City, N. J., in his car for questioning, but the chief said to Detective Grubb remarked later that the events preceding the tragedy apparently had nothing to do with the other party.

Chief Glison said that he was sure the actress had been killed.

Letter is Quoted Trenton, N. J., Sept. 12.—(AP)—The Court of Errors and Appeals in Trenton today ordered a new trial in the case of Bruno Richard Hauptmann and others charged with the slaying of the infant Charles Lindbergh.

Whether the court would consider the Hauptmann case first or last was problematical, but in any event the court would not be convened until after the next term begins.

Even if the Hauptmann case should be considered today or tomorrow and an agreement reached by a majority of the 12 judges, it probably would not be announced. A number of the court would be expected to write an opinion which would be discussed at a later conference and might even be rewritten.

The court, however, tries to dispose of all cases heard in one term of court before the next term opens. Should that be done, most of the cases filed in the next term may be tried in the next term.

Baton Rouge, La., Sept. 12.—(AP)—Louisiana's capital was jammed today by thousands arriving from over the state, Washington, and elsewhere, for the funeral of Senator Huey P. Long.

The first flock of Long's assassination over the city was quiet. It was beginning to comprehend what had happened and that the man through whose seven-year power regime it had passed with his death was a tragedy was really dead.

Many of the citizens kept a steady eye on the flag pole in the State House.

Urges "Primary Babies" As Essential To Office

Selectman Bowers Suggests Prospective Candidates Get Early Start In Campaigns To Insure Success.

Candidates for primary election nominations in Manchester would have to plan their campaigns quite a spell in advance, if the suggestion of Selectman Edward G. Bowers, contained in a letter to The Herald, is adhered to.

"It must be stressed, however, that the newcomer must be a boy, as a little girl probably would not turn the trick. At least, we have no proof of the feminine inflection so far."

"Customary Manner" Selectman Bowers recommends that prospective candidates do their planning in the customary manner. He does not offer any suggestion in case there are a dozen candidates for one nomination and all of them are successful in their planning for a new arrival just before primary day.

At any rate, judging from his own description of his "primary baby" there is another Bowers ready for the political field in about 17 years and it is a popular with the ladies than as he is now. J. H. Bowers' back may have to retire in the face of his own offspring.

Selectman Bowers' prescription for public office nomination follows: "Folks, The Herald's editorial board and myself succeeded in obtaining a republican nomination for selectman for the first time upon the birth of small sons, and I am sure you will be able to do the same thing in a few years."

"Your story about how Mr. Harold B. Reed and myself succeeded in obtaining a republican nomination for selectman for the first time upon the birth of small sons, and I am sure you will be able to do the same thing in a few years."

"I might advise them that, along with the last of next November, the Herald's editorial board and myself succeeded in obtaining a republican nomination for selectman for the first time upon the birth of small sons, and I am sure you will be able to do the same thing in a few years."

NOTED STAGE STAR SHOT TO DEATH IN HOME OF RICH MAN

Charles H. Wright Honored at Party

Salvation Army Group Presents Oak Place Youth With Purse of Money.

The residuary estate was placed in trust for the widow daughter and grandson to share equally. Son Edward, 26, was the executor.

The woman was carefully phrased, Rogers asked, so as to exclude any Rogers, namesake of the man (with the Rockefeller) who had millions in oil, from additional participation in the huge estate.

The income from the $50,000 trust fund is to go to young Rogers during his lifetime, but upon his death it is to revert to the estate. At the time of the terms of the will in a speech, presented him with a check for $100,000.

Charles H. Wright, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Wright of Oak Place, who entered the Salvation Army Training College in New York recently was honored with a check for $100,000.

Mr. and Mrs. David Wilson of West Wallingford presented the check to the young man.

The department ceased much of its activity some time before the death of the man.
