HINT PASSENGER CAUSED ACCIDENT

Federal Bureau Gives Its Theory of What Happened Before Plane Crash.

Washington, March 7. (AP)—The Commerce Department announced today that it does not believe the crash of the American Air Lines plane near Goodwin, Ark., in January last year was due to a passenger interfering with the pilot.

The plane fell on the evening of January 14, about two miles from Goodwin, Ark., with 15 passengers and the two pilots.

The report listed six possibilities including: Structural failure, passenger interference, pilot error, engine failure, fuel tank explosion, and co-pilot error.
