Hymns Again Vie With 'Sweet Adeline' in Chicago

Chicagoans who were dazed when they heard the strains of "Rock of Ages" coming from the corner tavern ran stop feeling their pulses. An old prohibitionist custom was revived when, as shown for sweet charity's sake—in Chicago night spots, the "Midnight Brigade" began whirling it up—both the good people as they mingled popular numbers with hymns to divert to their drum some of the change-falling across the bar, the only charge made by the "Midnight Brigade."

Clark said that unless aid is given birds during the next few weeks, the toll may be even greater. The losses vary with different spots and come from many causes other than cold, snow or ice and lack of food.
