Hollywood, Calif., June 17.—(AP).—Henry J. Waltheal, the last of a colonial of the silent screen classic actors, died today at his home in a Manhattan hotel. He was 82.

The early-billed actor of Shubert City, Ala., entered the Pantheon Building at nearby Monrovia in 1910 after stage experience with the Shubert stock company of D. W. Griffith. Waltheal gained stardom, then saw his prominence in "Judge Priest" and more recently with Ronald Colman in "A Tale of Two Cities."

His widow, Mary Charleston Waltheal, former stage actress, and a daughter, Mary Patricia, 35, survive.

Few roles in the history of the silent picture industry were as popular to the public as Waltheal's inspired performance as the kindly, old-fashioned colonel in Griffith's picturization of reconstruction days, "Birth of a Nation."

The role "typed" him for casting in the picture, and he played it with little less than this country's best of sympathetic characterization.

stage work gave him a new start and he was active in the community.

He played with Wallace Rivera in "Viva Villa," the late Will Rogers

Funeral arrangements were expected to be made by officers of the Masonic lodge of which Walshall was a member.

Seven new members took their places on the executive committee with seven reappointed, besides the new chairman, John D. M. Hamilton, and the new treasurer, C. M. Goodspeed, Chicago.

Gov. Alt M. Landon and his running mate, Col. Frank Knox, headed into another battle with the committee today without announcing details of the opening session yesterday.

Knox planned to remain with Landon several days more. Hamilton's schedule called for a trip to New York by plane this afternoon to meet the New York Times.

It was he and figured prominently in the party yesterday.

Several political observers considered Lemke's bid as a candidate "before the Third-Party leader, Lemke's name, in fact, popped up in Father O'Connell's mind," said one observer, but drew no verification from him. Others mentioned the name of Alfred E. Smith, former New York governor.

Feed Babies According To Shapes, Say Doctors

Rochester, N. Y., June 17.—(AP)—A cow's milk should be fed to babies in the shape of a triangle, doctors say, all "circular" breast milk, but investigation of shapes of 200 babies showed that 98 percent were born with triangular heads.

The study was made by Dr. Wm. H. Dillman, who worked at the St. Mary's hospital during World War and was wounded in 1915 in France.

good teachers who will accept positions here that was formerly the case. Reporting that the teachers' salaries are a great turnover this summer, Mr. Illing said that teachers who will not be able to replace at the salaries being paid here.

That two Manchester high school seniors won large scholarships to college in competition with pupils of the other Connecticut high schools, was cited by Superintendent of School Illing as proof of the ability of the local teachers.

The salary situation constitutes a real threat, according to William H. Buckley, member of the Board of Education and Hartford Public High School teacher, who predicted that all of the best teachers will leave during the next few years unless it is corrected.

Manchester cut the pay of its teachers more than most every community in the state and has not restored the cuts as have many of the other municipalities, he reported.

A few, small increases were announced this year, the meeting was told by Mr. Illing. They were given to teachers receiving the lowest salaries or those whose pay is out of proportion with others doing the same work.

Manchester next year will lose income of about $11,000 and $12,000 tuition from South Windsor high school pupils, Mr. Illing estimated. Because of the decreased enrollment one less high school teacher will be hired for next year.

Mr. Illing also reported that the gain in enrollment of local pupils will make up about 30 of the 100 who will be lost to South Windsor. This year the school enrollment was increased 85 by the addition of new pupils, he reported.

The moving into town, he reported, has been a great success.

THINK EAST CENTER ST. FUND APPROVED

Announcement Made in Washington States Money Is for Road in Manchester

The announcement made in Washington early this week that the WPA had allocated $60,324 for a road project in Manchester was interpreted today by Town Treasurer George H. Waddell as meaning that East Center street will be improved this summer by the state and federal governments.

Mr. Waddell had received no notification that the WPA had approved the street improvement project, but East Center street is the only road for which money has been requested.

Last year the state highway department agreed to sponsor the work, paying the balance of the cost with state aid funds "ear-marked" for Manchester and with no direct cost to the town. Manchester has $20,000 due in state aid money, making more than $121,000 available for the work.

Plans for improving the street call for a two lane road, with a parkway between the Center to Porter street and a single road from Porter street to Manchester Green.

GLAMOROUS ADVENTURE

CHAPTER XXV
"Hello, Natalie," said Natalie, drawing out a chair at the table at which Gail was sitting. "Having an early breakfast?"

"I'm going to look at some apartments," Gail told her. "One of the real estate men I met on a trip here yesterday told me I'd better decide on one soon, even though I don't want possession until September."

"Business must be improving," Natalie nodded. She studied the menu a moment, and then asked, "What are you eating this morning?"

"Raspberries and cream, and they're delicious. This is my second breakfast," Gail replied.

"All right," Natalie turned to the waitress. "Bring me some raspberries and coffee and toast." A uniformed messenger entered the dining room and approached the head waiter.

"The messenger has brought me this telegram for someone—why, he's coming over here—"

"This is Miss Everett," Natalie told him. As Gail took the envelope, she opened it and read the short note. "It is another fortune for you, Gail."

The other girl read the telegram and said she was very glad. She knew he would never ask her to marry him. She was very glad.
