Yesterday: Having broken with Bret, Constance is about to board a train to leave the hills when suddenly her arm is pinned behind her, she is spun around.

"I told you I'd never let you run away from me!" Bret said, for it was Bret, holding her fast, looking down into her eyes.

As he talked he had led her back to the bank, he had tossed her back into the back seat of the car, and for her with a flourish and a bow.

"Where are we going?" Constance asked, but she could not see. "Where are we going?" Constance asked, but she could not see.

FIND MUCH MASTITIS IN CONNECTICUT CATTLE

22 Per Cent of Dairy Cows Affected. Pasteurization Full Protection, However.

More than 22 per cent of the 60,054 Connecticut dairy cows recently given state tests for mastitis have shown infection from the disease, it was announced today by State WPA Administrator Vincent J. Sullivan, whose workers, operating in conjunction with the Connecticut commission on domestic animals, have made the tests.

Milk in which the bacteria count is raised, due to mastitis in production, has not been found to be particularly dangerous to human beings, although it is thought that some danger results from its use.

Teaches Butter-Making And Pupils Love It!

Hydon Jan. 21.—Some of the most popular school teachers are adopting novel methods in teaching. Mrs. F. Fogli of the White Plains school, Glast, thought her primary class in social study ought to know something about butter making. This is not done so much in the schools as was the case in former days, as most of the cream goes to the cities and butter making is done on a big scale in creameries.

Mrs. Fogli thought the parents could spare enough cream to try the experiment in the school, so she asked each child in the class to bring a small jar of cream to school. This request was complied with, and the cream was brought in every top jar which would not leak, however they were handled. Instead of a big churn with a dasher to plunge up and down or a distal crank to turn, each child was instructed to shake

This Spring's Basic Dress Will Adapt to Many Uses

BY CAROL DAY
The collar, cuffs and belt of this dress are detachable so that you can change its appearance quicker than a wink. Wear it one day with linen collars and cuffs as shown in Pattern 8120, and the next with bright jewelry, a scarf of a flower bouffant. The waiting lifted at front and the panel skirt are extremely pleasing. It is the perfect silhouette for the slim, lithe, the short puffed sleeves—a detail that emphasizes the slender waist. It is a dress that young girls like very much because they find it flattering. Business women, too, approve the adaptability of this mode to their needs.
Make it up in a rayon print or in a printed silk for early spring. For summer wear, you will find it smart in fine broadcloth, linen or shantung.
Pattern 8120 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 22 and 24. It consists of 39 inches of material, plus 5-8 yard contrasting.

NORTH END FIREMEN ASK MORE SUPPLIES

Not Enough Boots, Rubber Coats, Etc., For Large Turn-out For Night Fires.

The meeting of Hose Co. 2 of the Manchester fire department last night took action on several important matters. During the past 25 days the members of the Manchester Fire Department have been called late at night to fight two fires. Chief Griswold took a check of the number of men who turned out on their rolls only to find that they were not sufficient for all cases. The North End department is composed of volunteer members. There has been an effort by the officers of the company to have their rolls only men who will respond to alarms. The last two had 60 members of the department that the average attendance at fires late at night and early in the morning was 43. The trucks of the two companies did not carry boots, coats and rubber gloves for this number of men, but it did not prevent them from going to work and in low temperatures worked just as hard as though they were fully equipped for the task. No. 2 company last night decided to present to the district officers a request for more boots, rubber coats and other needed equipment so that in future fires there will be sufficient for all cases.
