The average on crates packed 24 quarts was slightly higher than for those packed 16 quarts.

The total sales for the week amounted to $15,969.07 in the market, this being the first week that the market has been opened. There will be no sales today, but the growers stated yesterday that a large amount of berries would be ready to pick for the sales on Monday.

In the New Haven market, which also opened a week ago, more berries have been sold and the total for the week was $28,000.00. In New Haven yesterday 1,681 crates of 24 quarts to the crate were sold, the average sales being under that brought in the Manchester market. Both markets are controlled by J. M. GRADE GLEE CLUB IN FINE PROGRAM

Lincoln Sixth Grade Chorus Scores Another Musical Triumph For Schools.

By ANN STRICKLAND— Another musical victory has been scored for the Manchester schools, enhancing the need for regular music studies in our educational system. It was the splendid show of talent of recent date in to be taken as a standard—and we believe it is! The Lincoln Glee Club and Chorus of their concert given yesterday afternoon at the Center church. The accomplishment of these youngsters with one year's training is almost beyond belief. They met the challenge in a way which leaves no apprehension for their future choral activities in Manchester. The Chorus opened the program with four numbers, "Where God hath willed," "The Old Calendar Bunch," "Amie Laurie" and "Old Black Joe."

Giving evidence of a fine sense of rhythm, together with conscientious memory work, the singers augmented this foundation with a quality of tone mature in its development. The music passages were sung at an even placement, no noticeable difference between the boys' and girls' voices marked the effect—but a perfect blending of both, merely gave added volume. In parts calling for harmony, some two, three parts, the balance was about perfect, a tribute to the director, Miss Viva Barton, for the sound of voices at close range may be deceptive at times, the audience receiving a varied impression.

The young vocalists carried themselves with decorum, yet radiating a happiness in their singing. The diction was remarkable, and the pitch of the high notes was in no way impeded by self-consciousness which might have been expected in such youthful songsters.

The Glee Club, as the smaller group, offered three numbers, in vivid contrast, "Father in Heaven" (Largo), "Hallelujah" (The Element and the Chimes), and "Singing low sweet chorale." Ranging from the solemn Largo in steady tempo, which the singers performed with the fitting dignity, the middle number about the capricious animals, put a dramatic touch to the program. It was sung with just sufficient levity and diction to put across the plot of the story to an amused audience. Especially does the first note call for mention—it was high and slightly prolonged—yet performed with perfect confidence.

The chorus closed the program with three numbers: "Stars of the summer night," "House in the woods" and "Now he day is over." The singing and phrasing of all these numbers suggested effort and time in the preparation thereof.

William Robinson played two numbers on the concert, "Home sweet home" and "Auld Lang Syne" and although he played from the floor rather than from the stage, a responsive audience gave him the applause he deserved.

Miss Viva Barton deserves to be congratulated on this pioneer effort in behalf of the younger grades. It can only be said that her hopes must be fully justified as Manchester takes off its hat to the new-born chorus recognizing another step in the progress of the March of Manchester Music.

LEGION TRYOUTS MONDAY Due to the rain, the tryouts for the Legion baseball team, scheduled for Monday at the same place, will be held Monday at the same place. Any boy in Manchester, born on or after March 30, 1921, is eligible to try out for the team whether he belongs to any local team or not.

North End Firemen Observe Anniversary

(Continued from Page Eight) Although the men who were taking charge of the purchase of the apparatus and the department looked to the future. They made provisions for future growth and built the house to take care of additional apparatus and provided a space on the second floor for a meeting place and a club-room for the members of the department, in a way to give to the members something for the service, as the department is still a volunteer department as it started out to be 50 years ago.

It was the fire that destroyed the Herald Printing Company's plant on Hilliard street in 1922 that again served to show the need for a better method of fighting fires. A pump was done by a pump was demonstrated at that time by the use of the Ahrens-Fox pump purchased by No. 1 Company of the South Manchester fire department but a short time before.

As soon as the need for a pump was demonstrated the district officers and the department heads were given the necessary support by the residents of the district and the second piece of fire fighting apparatus in the purchase of pump was made. This is all in use and capable of giving good service, as has been demonstrated on several occasions. With the two pumps owned by the district the needs of the district for sometime to come are felt to have been met.

Improved Method of Alarm The purchasing of motor apparatus was also brought about a change in the method of turning in an alarm. The Orford Soap Company, manufacturers of Bon Ami, provided a whistle at their plant on Hilliard street for fire alarms through arrangements with the telephone company a call can be sent in an special wire that will result in the alarm being taken by a man who is on duty at all hours of the day and night. The district officers, when this arrangement was made, divided the district into territories that would correspond with a box alarm. The person giving the call states where the call is coming from and this results in the number call being sounded. Today there are 37 such stations in the district, all known by the 60 members of the department and no time is lost in getting to the fires. During the past year a further change has been made. On the same wire with the call that goes to the call for the alarm is now connected the telephone of the chief and the first assistant chief. They can listen in. On getting the alarm the chief can decide if there is need for a whistle alarm or a still alarm and this has cut down the number of whistles alarms that have been sounded in the past year.

The Great Chief of All has not been too kind, it seems, to the chiefs who have served the Manchester fire department. On the retirement of Chief John F. Limerick as head of the department, but not as a member of the department, Edward
