

POWER CO. LAUDS EMPLOYEES' WORK IN STORM AREA

Emergency Organization, Aided by Relief Crews, Acted Speedily in All Districts; Women Assisted.

With food waters unobtainable and with the September hurricanes a major history, employees of the Connecticut Power Company today looked back on the two most arduous and rigorous weeks of work in the company's history, satisfied that the job of restoration and reconstruction had been accomplished at a speed which in retrospect seems impossible in view of the almost unbelievable amount of damage wrought upon the system.

The hurricane left its trail of destruction throughout the system in every one of the 105 Connecticut towns served by the company, not only by the ordinary although heavy marshalling of regular and emergency forces, which began on the night of the fatal September 21 storm but by the prompt and efficient handling of the emergency forces, which were called into service on the night of the September 22 storm.

More than 3,000 miles of electric lines were either broken or smashed completely. The repair of these lines, together with the maintenance of the huge job of assembling needed materials and supplies from points distant from the storm area, was a task which was likewise carried out with inconceivable speed.

Officials of the Connecticut Power Company are extremely proud of the praise of its employees for every detail of the work which was carried out so promptly in order that service might be restored as quickly as possible. One again they have upheld the best traditions of the electric industry.

Restlessness of the situation preceding the storm at Waterbury was early recognized despite the interruption of communications. It was not until the receipt of news of the extent of the damage to the system that the company's emergency organization was set in motion. In a very short time the central emergency bureau specifically established at Waterbury headquarters, the repair and reconstruction equipment and the dispatching of men, trucks and materials were administered. Simultaneously in each of the company's operating districts, the company's personnel, trained to work under all contingencies, was placed on an emergency footing and every member began to work tirelessly in the company's system, broken lines snatched up and materials having interrupted service everywhere. Disregarding the storm, the company's line crews in the district gave first attention to hospitals, water supply, fire houses and other essential public service.

Ordered supplies. With communications interrupted in almost every part of the state, the Waterbury headquarters did not wait to receive reports of material and supplies required in the various sections. They immediately dispatched men, trucks and equipment to the points throughout the company's territory. The engineers at Waterbury and the like were needed and they were sent on their way immediately, accompanied by maintenance men. The day of the storm, caravans of trucks with men, trucks and equipment were rolling out of Waterbury into the blackness to bring succor to the stricken areas. Quantities of the necessary materials had previously been set aside and stored for such emergency purposes, and these and the current stores were the first to be drawn upon.

Every employee, regardless of rank or normal occupation, rose to the occasion. Clerks and stenographers, mechanics, served as line-men's helpers, transported tools and materials. Women manned the telephones, drove light trucks, carried messages in private automobiles.

At the same time, hundreds of men for the emergency work were being recruited, both in Waterbury and elsewhere throughout the state. Within a space of hours, these workmen had been added to the Connecticut Light and Power Company force of 400 repairmen, and had been mobilized into a well-organized army to attack the widespread problem of service restoration.

Simultaneously, the company's purchasing department was doing some marvellous work—own—the assembling of reconstruction materials in the most expeditious manner possible. Many obstacles confronted the department. Communications had not been fully restored, highways were blocked with fallen trees and poles were being blown generally by a standstill. Business houses in other states from which materials had to be secured were closed for the day.

EDWARDS ELECTED RADIO CLUB HEAD

Succeeds Stephen Loyzims As President of Local Amateur Organization.

At the fifth annual meeting of the Manchester Radio Club, held last night at the home of Lou Melbert, 83 Palmer street, Frederick G. Edwards was elected president of the organization.

Mr. Edwards is employed at Station WTRC, Hartford, and has long been interested in amateur radio.

Other officers elected to the office of the club were Stuart Lynn (WLNK), vice president and William Matcatt (WTRC), secretary and treasurer.

Following the business session an outline was given by members in regard to the emergency work accomplished during the storm and the restoration of the distribution system.

The storm was a great relief to the club members, who had been working for several days in the restoration of service throughout the state.

The 14,000 Lichtenstein citizens will be protected hereafter by 20 policemen.

The private army of the principalities was dissolved and a police force has been organized in the town.

The government says the realists feel safe without the army which was made up of 500 farmers.

The new police force is needed because more tourists are coming in.

SPEAKERS RAP COUNTY JAILS

Homeike Cottages For Juvenile Offenders Urged At Prison Group Congress.

St. Paul, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Home-like cottages for juvenile offenders were recommended at the county jail system was questioned as "transiently undemocratic" today by speakers at the annual congress of the American Prison Association.

The cottage plan of institution was recommended as the only reasonable type for juveniles in a report to the National Conference of Juvenile Agencies by E. H. Rosell, New Haven, Conn., chairman of the committee of planning and development of institutional plans.

The committee suggested cottages accommodating a maximum of 20 children, each a complete home in normal community and not the sterile, institutional type.

Mr. Rosell said that the cottage plan is a more humane and more effective way of dealing with juvenile offenders.

THE POET'S COLUMN

Today's poem are by Helen V. Harrison of New York.

VOICES (Whelan College Chapel) Here in this quiet place, by memory's fire, I see you, Helen, as you were, as you are, as you will be.

AN OLD FRENCH DONNA SPEAKS I made my choice: 'Twas chivalry or my voice.

WAYFARERS IN THE HAZE For two those months ago a happy place; Alone we sat and the whisper of waving pine is a most fearsome in spite of sun and bird-song.

Town Clerk Samuel J. Turkington today pointed out that the recent order prohibiting hunters from woodlands in eastern Connecticut is not applicable to areas not covered with trees. The town clerk states that hunting is permissible in fields and meadows, and fishing is also permissible in lakes, access to which is not by way of woods. The purpose of the state order is to keep persons from woodlands where it is considered the dry logs of fallen trees constitute a fire hazard at this time.

The regular session of Public Notary will be held Friday night at 8 o'clock at the Manchester Green School. Playing will start at 8 o'clock sharp.

Members of the entertainment committee of Anderson-Shea Post, V. F. W. are requested to meet in the Veterans of Foreign Wars Home tonight at 7 o'clock.

Children of St. James' parochial school were given a vacation for two days this week while the teachers were attending the conference in Hartford, returned to school this morning. The time lost will be made up later.

The vacant store in the Spencer block now owned by the Savings Bank of Manchester, known as 35 Depot Square, has been leased to Erling T. Larson of 48 North School street, who will open a feed store in the place.
