Hitler Inspiration for Nazi Drive on Liquor, Tobacco

Berlin, July 13.—With Adolf Hitler as the inspiration, Nazi Germany is launching a nationwide campaign today to temperance of the liquor and tobacco trade. The drive is being conducted by the National League of Alcohol and Tobacco.

The party officials have advocated moderation in drinking and smoking, especially in appeals to the Hitler Youth. Hitler, who neither smokes nor drinks, is held up constantly as the nation's hero.

The "State Bureau Against the Dangers of Alcohol and Tobacco" will operate parallel to the party office of provincial and district headquarters with branch offices under Dr. Leonardo Costi state health director.

All other organizations with similar aims either will be incorporated into the state bureau or will operate with it.

The party officials are to begin the crusade directly to the people through demonstrations, lectures and public rallies. The bureau's research, the thoroughgoing program calls for the training of both men and women consumers.

Says McNutt Should Quit Public Service If He Wants Nomination

Washington, July 13.—Senator Hatch, R., N. M., said today that Paul V. McNutt should give up his post as governor of Indiana if he wants a nomination for the Democratic presidential campaign for the Democratic presidential campaign.

Hatch, author of a bill to ban public activity by government employees, told reporters that his measure would not prevent McNutt from campaigning because it does not apply to the president, cabinet members or policy-making government officials.

But he expressed the belief that if McNutt or any member of the cabinet steps out for the presidential nomination, he should disassociate himself from his official position.

Confirmed after Sharp Debate

McNutt's nomination to be the Democratic presidential nominee was confirmed by the Senate yesterday after a sharp political debate between Republicans and Democrats.

Senator Bridges (R., N. D.) declared that the Senate should not support McNutt's nomination. He said that McNutt had not given up his post as governor and that he was not a suitable candidate for the presidency.

Stoical Slayer Roosevelt Names Three Career Men as His Aides

Washington, July 13.—President Roosevelt's initial selection of his cabinet members has been a "passion for anonymity" brought into the spotlight today. The authors of the New Deal's spending theories, a civil service expert, and a White House lobbyist, have been named as his aides.

The first three named by the president to assist in the reorganization program were Louis Brandeis, chief justice of the Supreme Court, and two others.

McKelvey, a native of Kansas, has worked continuously for the government since 1900, claiming without political aid from a stenographer in the Post Office Department to a White House desk.

He was chosen specifically to handle government personnel problems. He is the father of the present classification for service employees, and also helped draft the White House secretarial organization plan for President Hoover and Roosevelt.

McKelvey asked not to be taken off his civil service job in the Treasury, but finally was appointed with the assurance that he could return to Civil Service status when he leaves the White House.

The six administrative assistants were recommended in 1937 by the president's special commission, which said they should prefer anonymity to the spotlight.

They are the president's closest aides, and presumably they will be with the president in his liaison work with government agencies.
