

Parade Shows Armed Might Of 2 Powers

France and Britain in First Joint Display of Military Strength Since War in Heart of Paris.

Bulletin!

Paris, July 14.—Premier Daladier declared tonight in a world-wide Bastille Day broadcast that the French army was invincible against any attack. The premier and national defense minister, who earlier in the day watched 50,000 of France's finest troops parade on the Champs Elysees with British guardsmen in celebration of the 150th anniversary of the French revolution, said: "Any menace, any effort at domination will find us resolved to defend French liberties and to join our efforts with those of all peoples determined to safeguard their liberties."

Paris, July 14.—France and Britain staged their first joint display of military might since the World War today before throngs numbering more than a million in the heart of Paris.

Planes, tanks, big and little guns, motorized equipment and a cross section of the finest troops of both nations, 30,000 in all, paraded before a reviewing stand.

There President Lebrun, Premier Daladier, and British War Secretary Leslie Hore-Blundell stood with the high command of France and Britain's air, land and sea forces and the rulers of the French colonial empire.

Among Lebrun's guests at the main reviewing stand was Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of President Roosevelt. She came to France Wednesday to visit her sister, Mrs. Dora Delano Forbes, a resident of Paris.

Marching together toward an uncertain future, the two nations joined in observance of the 150th anniversary of French independence.

Consistent Bessie Day. The huge demonstration of unity commemorated the day in 1879 when Paris mobs crashed into Bastille prison to liberate political offenders and take the tricolor as a flag, "Liberty, Equality, Fraternity" as a motto.

It was designed to show the national prepairetation of the allies in the face of the Italian-German military combine. Historic dates

Nazi Press Hits 'Pious' Stand

Goebbels Sets Papers to Ridiculing British; Proud Hitler Is Hated.

Berlin, July 14.—Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels set the entire German press to ridiculing the "pious hypocrisy" of British propaganda today and contributed a blistering essay of his own in which he said Germans were proud that some Englishmen hated Adolf Hitler.

The sudden outburst was occasioned by the recent arrival in Germany of letters signed by Comdr. Stephen King-Hall of London. The letters, it was said, were designed to give the German people a "defiant attitude" and create disaffection for the Fuehrer.

Some newspapers devoted their entire first pages to a communiqué of DNB, the official news agency, and Goebbels' six-column "Answer to England". Both charged King-Hall with the utterance of "defiant attitude" and created disaffection for the Fuehrer.

(King-Hall has insisted that his letters, addressed to a number of German individuals, set forth his own views on foreign affairs and were sent as a private citizen. He is a retired naval officer.)

"The Fuehrer has made the German nation great and powerful," Goebbels replied to King-Hall. "For that reason he is hated by Englishmen and your stamp from the depths of their hearts. We are only proud of that."

"This hate is not only extraordinarily honorable for the Fuehrer. It strengthens our love for him. For you, Herr Propaganda Prohibitioner, can love only those Germans who are traitors to their nation."

The propaganda minister said that "it depends entirely on England whether there is a war," adding: "We do not have the impression that England has such excellent chances to come off victoriously in such a war. Perhaps you do not know it, but the German people is in a state in which it is determined to defend its national honor and existence to the last breath."

Meanwhile the German official news agency told Germans for the first time of the "voluntary" repatriation of German troops movements on Italian soil, of limited cessation of the battle of Britain to Germany and other accounts that are "many lies."

Like Frightened Fish, Squalus Leaps and Dives

Here is the submarine Squalus at the height of its leap from the depths of Portsmouth, N. H., and just before it plummeted back to the bottom with its cargo of 28 seamen who lost their lives when the underwater craft first sank. Buoyed by compressed air pumped into lifting pontoons, the Squalus surged to the surface, stood on its tail like a fighting fish, then broke away from the pontoons and dived. The disastrous minute wiped out seven weeks of hardy salvage work.

Britain Gears War Machine At Top Speed

Action Taken to Ward Off Another Autumn Crisis; Hope to See Easing of Tension.

London, July 14.—Britain geared her war machine at top speed today to ward off another autumn crisis, hoping that September instead would see international tension eased.

As the government disclosed details of a vast August-September mobilization plan, the highly authoritative London Times called attention to the "state of maximum preparedness for defense during that period of the year which is commonly regarded as peculiarly liable to international tension."

Pointing out that Adolf Hitler had announced that this September's Nuremberg Nazi party rally which last year was the prelude to the first Czechoslovak crisis, "was to be known as the 'Congress of Peace,'" the newspaper added: "There is every hope, therefore, that in the second half of September."

Expect Fights Along Border

Japanese Consider Outer Mongolia Salient Toward Their Empire.

By Russell Brines
Harbin, Manchoukou, July 14.—The big battle of Mongolia on the disputed border of Manchoukou and Outer Mongolia is ended but recurrent skirmishes in that barren region are to be expected because the Japanese consider Outer Mongolia a salient toward their empire in the making.

Returning to Harbin—fighting of the east—after a tour of the fighting front, I was convinced the recent battle for Momonhan hill was but one phase of a Japanese campaign to eliminate the threat.

There, in a vast prairie peopled thinly by backward nomads and peasants of several races, the Japanese have concentrated thousands of troops with excellent arms and other equipment and appeals already have been made for colonists to aid the "National defense."

Normadic Mongols on the plains of the west apparently are a political factor in the faction between the Japanese in their protectorate of Manchoukou and Sovietized Outer Mongolia, both sides obviously intending to impress the silent, rowing plianism.

Hailar, a dirt-strewn settlement north of the Nonomhan battle zone, lives in fear of a Soviet air attack. Mos could, cause much havoc to the stout clay buildings and the few brick structures that make up Hailar.

I saw at least a score of bomb craters, some gaping 30 feet across and apparently from 25-pound bombs, on my way from the front back to Hailar.

The craters indicated Soviet aircraft were capable of slipping through the Japanese aerial cordon

Saves Pennies for Bicycle; Stolen After Three Days

Pittsburgh, July 14.—After saving pennies for eight years to buy a $25 bicycle, 12-year-old Franklin Langdale had his fun just three days before someone stole the wheel when he parked outside his grandmother's bakery.

"I walked all over looking for my bike," sadly commented the youth. "I just hope that person will give it back to me. It'll take me an awful long time to save another $25. I know if that person knew how much I wanted a bike and how many pictures of it I've looked at he wouldn't keep it."

Japanese Mob Shows Feeling About British

More Than 50,000 Yell And Gesticulate Before Embassy; Police Entirely Circle Grounds.

Tokyo, July 14.—More than 50,000 excited, yelling and gesticulating Japanese demonstrated for two hours in front of the British embassy today in one of the greatest exhibitions of feeling against any foreign nation in Japan's history.

Women and children, old and young took part. Some 1,000 policemen completely encircled the embassy's extensive grounds, making three deep in front of the heavy iron gates at the main entrance.

At the height of the demonstration, the throng parted and a three-wheeled motorcycle carrying four men was driven toward the gates, apparently in an attempt to force them, but the police stood fast.

Scuffling broke out as leaders of the crowd tried to climb over the shoulders of the police. They were speedily arrested and hustled away. Embassy Staff Cool

The embassy staff worked coolly through the demonstration. The only precaution was to move away from windows.

A delegation of five persons was admitted to the embassy and presented an anti-British resolution to H. M. Brain, secretary.

A majority of the demonstrators were members of the Ex-Servicemen's Association, women's patriotic societies and like organizations.

Posters and handbills bearing such slogans as "Punch the British Nose" and "Let's All Knock Down the British" dotted Tokyo. In demonstrations yesterday throughout Japan 15,000 persons were estimated to have taken part.

Says Displays Spontaneous
The Foreign Office spokesman reiterated that the displays were spontaneous and that the police would not prevent them so long as the participants broke no law.

The demonstration began at 11:30 a. m. and lasted for two hours. The demonstrators chanted slogans and sang songs. The police before the embassy locked arms and barred entrance to the embassy grounds. Some sticks

American Property Is Damaged During Riots

British Consulate Practically in State of Siege Since July 3; Japanese Apologize for Mistake.

Shanghai, July 14.—Travelers from Tsingtao disclosed today that American property was damaged in anti-British demonstrations there Monday and Wednesday and that the British consulate had been practically in a state of siege since July 3.

They said the premises of the Standard Vacuum Company, along with many British business firms and the consulate, were stoned. Later representatives of the Anti-British Committee and the Japanese consulate visited Standard officials, apologized for the "mistake" and arranged for repairs.

The travelers brought the first detailed account of the anti-British outbreaks which had been in progress for three weeks.

British Consulate Invaded
The British consulate was invaded Wednesday when demonstrators seized an interpreter and one servant. Stones, bricks and firecrackers, carried to the scene by trucks, were used in the Wednesday attack.

The witness from Tsingtao said Japanese in Chinese long dress shattered the windows of the consulate with considerable accuracy. Directors of the demonstration called out targets to the Japanese and also drafted Chinese who, the travelers said, showed no enthusiasm.

The walls of the consulate general and British property throughout the city were reported plastered with insulting and obscene posters.

Police of the Shantung province port city, under Japanese supervision, were said to be halting automobiles driven by foreigners and questioning the occupants.

To Apply Greater Pressure
The Japanese, meanwhile, indicated they would apply greater pressure on the British at Tsingtao, where the British and French consulates are located.

Various Remedies Advised For Hiccoughing Policeman

Oakland, Calif., July 14.—Ella M. Hannigan, an Oakland nurse, by coming from Butte to California, O'Connor followed, intentionally or not, a hopeful suggestion by a Hawthorne, Calif., woman who wrote: "I came to California for my health and I feel better. I have arthritis."

Other Proposed "Cures"
O'Connor has not tried: "A gargle composed of camphor, tea cream and raw potatoes. What bread spread with baking soda.... Have a friend pull your ears while you drink water without breathing.... Anestida dissolved in a glass of hot water every half hour.... Stewed cranberries.... Slipping a cup of hot water in which is dissolved a teaspoon of mustard.... Keep ice in your mouth.... A glass of strong beer."

"I appreciate (sic) the kindness of these people," O'Connor said. "No doubt many of these cures (sic) worked for some people, but I've still (sic) got the hic-coughs."

Roosevelt Receives Plans for Removing WPA Strike Cause

Seas Prevent Divers Telling Sub's Damage

Heavy Ground Swell and Falling Barometer Will Cause Indefinite Delay On Squalus Salvage.

Portsmouth, N. H., July 14.—The ill luck which has dogged the submarine Squalus continued today as heavy seas prevented Navy divers from determining how much damage had resulted from the wild surge that first shot the craft above the surface and then thumped it back upon the ocean floor.

Rear Admiral C. W. Cole messaged the Portsmouth Navy Yard from the salvage ship Falcon that a heavy ground swell and a falling barometer would delay diving indefinitely.

Until men can be sent down no one can know for sure whether the dry forward compartments have been flooded, whether the three big pontoons still attached to the Squalus have been broken or how badly the ship is tangled in the broken net of lifting gear from which it broke last yesterday.

Cons At Lifting Effort Tense
Until these points have been settled the salvage experts can only guess as to when another lifting effort can be made.

Navy officers have said perhaps next week or maybe not until next September, by even later, but these estimates have been guesses only.

In one swift minute yesterday, a surge of buoyancy made the Squalus like a live thing, throwing its bow clear of the water in an explosive smother of foam and broken pontoons before it sank again, nullifying seven weeks of salvage effort just at the moment of success.

High Naval officials and technical experts conferred all through the night about the rescue ship Falcon to map out a new plan of action, but little apparently could be done until the divers determined whether any damage had been done to the Squalus herself and whether it would be possible to use any of the original salvage preparations.

Pontoons Seriously Damaged
The most seriously damaged of the four huge pontoons from which the Squalus tore loose before being flung back in the ocean was towed to the Navy Yard last night by the tug Sagamore. One of its three compartments was demolished, and another was splintered. Its air hoses

Menacing Fires In Northwest

One Believed to Be of Incendiary Origin; Battled by 1,500 Men.

Portland, Ore., July 14.—Devastating forest fires, at least one of them believed of incendiary origin, and other started by lightning in Washington, Most of them northwest timber today while nearly 1,500 fire fighters battled to control them.

Five thousand acres of timber on the Clallam Butte fire control Indian Reservation in southern Oregon were ablaze and out of control. Reservation officials said the fire was set and that they had arrested one man. His identity was not disclosed.

Several hundred fire fighters brought the flames under control temporarily Thursday, only to have their efforts annulled by a strong wind which sent the flames jumping over fire lines.

Several Set by Lightning
Harry White, assistant in the U. S. Forest Service's fire control department, said several fires were set Thursday morning by lightning in Snoqualmie, Mount Baker, Chehalis and Wenatchee National forests in Washington. Most of them had been controlled, but C. J. Conover, assistant forest supervisor, said at Seattle that two fires in the Snoqualmie forest were threatening.

One hundred men were battling a small but stubborn blaze near White Salmon, Wash. which spread into green timber last night.

Crews were dispatched to 34 fires in the Wenatchee forest set by lightning which crossed and recrossed the huge stand Thursday.

The size of the fires was unknown. Crews covering 700 and 300 acres in the Okanogan National forest in central Oregon were patrolled by OOC men. Both reached sparse, scrubby stands of pine and fir but threatened richer forests. Both were set by lightning.

Household Is Divided In Views on WPA Strike

St. Paul, July 14.—(AP)—LIFE in the Watson household starts out something like this these mornings: Chester Watson, who is the president of the Minnesota Workers Alliance, gets up and goes out to exhort WPA workers to stay away from their jobs in protest against the new relief regulations.

Mrs. Watson gets up and goes down to the municipal auditorium to her job as a WPA project supervisor.

She's been on the job every day since the walkouts started. It's a matter of law, she explained, to a questioner. As a supervisor, she belongs to a non-striking union and is forbidden by law to strike.

Roosevelt Will Send Message On Neutrality

White House Officials Refuse Any Clues on Contents; Understood He Urges Quick Action

Washington, July 14.—President Roosevelt completed today a message to Congress on the neutrality situation and arranged to send it to the legislators about 2 p. m., east.

White House officials would not give any clues as to its contents, but it was understood, the president would again insist on prompt action on a neutrality bill.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted this morning to defer consideration of the neutrality issue until next session, thus sidetracking the administration's neutrality program.

The president was asked whether he had discussed the possibility of a congressional recess until October and replied that he had not talked about it.

In Foreign Relations Committee, meanwhile, moved into the spotlight again today by Chairman Egan (D., Nev.), predicting approval soon of his resolution to ban shipments of war supplies to Japan.

The committee was called together for a morning meeting to discuss the Pittman proposal. Louis Brandeis, responsible for shelving the administration's bill to repeal the general arms embargo moved also to block this resolution—or at least to have it "thoroughly debated."

At the conclusion of the meeting it was disclosed that the committee asked Secretary Hull for an opinion on whether the Pittman resolution would violate a 1911 treaty of amity and commerce between Japan and the United States.

Pittman said discussion hinged largely on this point. He expressed the belief the Hull opinion would be written.

Meanwhile, as President Roosevelt

Recommendations Given President Personally By Labor Officials; Executive States Clearly Position on Walkouts by Saying "You Cannot Strike Against Government" as Now.

By The Associated Press

Soon after characterizing WPA strikes as strikes "against the government," President Roosevelt personally received from officials of the American Federation of Labor today a set of recommendations for removing the cause of contention.

Upon quitting the conference with Mr. Roosevelt at the White House in Washington, William Green, A.F.L. president, reported that the president would "accept" the recommendations and "do what can be done."

He declined to discuss what proposals were offered but said that members "were on three" A. about time before, at his press conference, Mr. Roosevelt had stated the position on the WPA protest walkouts in these six words: "You cannot strike against the government."

WPA Strikes Within Category
Asked whether the WPA strikes fall within this category, he replied: "Meanwhile, with thousands of relief workers staying away from their jobs and with Department of Justice agents investigating and our reports of law violators, the National Conference of Mayors meeting in Washington, added his voice to the rising clamor of demands that the administration

Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York, conference president, announced it had been decided to submit suggestions to Gov. F. D. Roosevelt for "ending" the WPA strikes.

He kept details secret but said the suggestions were designed to "avoid" a narrow vote on the construction of some provisions of the recently-enacted WPA bill.

The strikes grew out of a resolution

Quotations-- Flying Wing Being Tested By British Plane Company

The true safeguard of peace is not to be in the hands of the people's elected representatives, but to elect representatives whose judgment and self-control people are not afraid to trust.
The British flying wing overcome this difficulty by shaping the fuselage like a bullet and by the use of a 180-mile-an-hour commercial transport on domestic airlines, the wing proper, shorter than ordinary, is attached to each side of the fuselage.
