Town Seeking Health Award

Manchester is one of 25 towns in Connecticut which has become eligible to compete for the 1939 City Health Conservation award it is announced by the State Department of Health. The award is made annually on the basis of progress made during the past year by individual cities in their effort to attain certain standards of community health. The contest this year, the eleventh such, is sponsored by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and the American Public Health Association.

Previous Winners

The placings on the health list which each competing city attains are determined from a fact-finding schedule for the state, made up by various local committees of citizens representing a cross section of each participating city or town. In the past many Connecticut towns have competed for the awards, among the prize winners being Greenwich, Hartford, New Haven, Stamford, Waterbury, and West Hartford.

Manchester's past year health records has been a factor in placing it among the 25 competing towns here in Connecticut. The state winners are compared for a national award as the national committee chooses the city or town in the country which has made the most notable advances in community health during the year.

Never again need folks of this city rely on guesswork when buying fuel! For here's a coal that is colored blue to identify it as America's Finest Anthracite—fuel that assures even, healthful, money-saving heat.

Anthracite has no equal for home heating. It gives off no dust, soot, or greasy smudges as many substitutes do. It gives clean, safe, smokeless heat that helps cut cleaning and painting bills. Your furnace was intended for anthracite. No other fuel can give the same fine results. So burn anthracite. And, remember, "blue coal" is the finest anthracite money can buy!

"Blue coal" is rich Pennsylvania hard coal, mined by Glen Alden. It is carefully prepared—and laboratory tested for purity and uniform sizing. If you want more heat per fuel dollar, order a supply of "blue coal" now.
