No Action Is Now Probable On Wagner Act

The victory for the forces that were sweeping the Wagner act from the law. It spelt the effort of the Labor Committee to limit consideration of the four amendments it recently approved, and left the way open for voting on dozens of broader changes.

body is going to shift, evade or force his way into this country, or get there in any way except by after overcoming the stiffest resistance that the Dutch people are capable of putting up.

The Netherlands has not engaged in a foreign war in constant memory, and it is not surprising that its people are the direct descendants of soldiers and sailors, who during more than two hundred years fought almost incessantly for land and by sea against first one and then another foreign nation, and usually to victory.

The Dutch have a reputation for religious aloofness which their martial history bears. In the past they fought not only with sturdy valor but with audacity. And the Dutch stock is practically undiluted.

There is no reason to believe that they have to fight again, they will not do full justice to the traditions of their race.

Yesterday's proclamation of a state of siege for the whole country indicates that Holland is not only resolved to fight but fully prepared to fight right now. It is scarcely an exaggeration to say that the Netherlands government and army have challenged Hitler to make good on his implicit threat.

Since both Holland and Belgium have been invaded, the state of apprehension of invasion for more than half a year it is only reasonable to suppose that the Netherlands government and army have challenged Hitler to make good on his implicit threat.

Holland is small and unaggressive. But so is a black widow spider. Mrs. Hitler seems to be up against something seriously different, not so far away as Norway.

"Children's Crusade" Under the leadership of that extraordinary dynamic person Dorothy Canfield Fisher, from which Mrs. Fisher and her friends seem to expect highly important news.

thousands of self-expatriated German states are now experiencing what so many Polish and Czechs have suffered at the hands of the Nazi camps. They are doubtless highly grateful.

The Hitlerites have been dishing out concentration camp diet to a great many innocent people for a good while now.

"See there? You've won a thousand dollars on that race, and here's the man with the money to pay you. Of course, you have to show him a grand, just to prove that he won't bet his money against you. Haven't got it with you? Oh, that's all right; he'll wait till tomorrow—he's done it for me."

California and Oregon Border Is Sore Spot

Golden State's Pride in Fruits and Vegetables Led to Setting Up Restrictions Originally.

Editor's note: This is the fifth and last in a series of articles on state trade barriers.

San Francisco, April 20—The mayor of Portland, Ore., once refused to attend a convention in San Francisco to discuss trade barriers.

It was "altogether too difficult to get into town," he said.

At a short time previously, the mayor, Joseph K. Cannon, venturing across the state line, ran smack-into a place where California officers gave him entourage a best inspection of his vehicle.

Even the most tolerant things that "golden state" has to offer, many "had to be inspected" before they could be taken into the United States.

That incident marked a high point in the balkanization of the California-Oregon border.

California's pride in her fruits and vegetables led to setting up of restrictions originally to protect her industry.

There's hardly a government office building that does not have its own "border" guard.

Some leaders among National Committee members "David E. Fitzgerald, has voiced the conviction that should President Roosevelt break his silence before the state convention, he would have no difficulty getting Connecticut's 18 delegates.

While Republicans are well along with their plans for a national convention, the Democrats have yet to get around to theirs.

Several weeks ago, the Democratic State Central Committee, one source reported, probably would be called together for a meeting.

Superstition Thrives In Rural Mississippi

Hundreds Assembled in Study Conducted by Federal Writers Project in State.

Jackson, Miss., April 20.—(AP)—If a man is murdered, bury him "right" with his arms and legs and the murderer will suffer justice.

Break ground for cotton when the first dove hollows and waxes you face in stump water for the freckles.

Keep your car-mile on the nose to cure a cold.

But never kill a hog because you will die.

These are the superstitions that rural Mississippians live by, these hundreds of others which have been assembled in a study conducted by the Federal Writers Project in State.
