Britain Takes Protective Custody of Tiny Iceland

LONDON, May 10 (AP)—In a lightning-like move to bar Germany from a strategic base in the north, Great Britain today took protective custody of tiny Iceland.

The island which is linked to Denmark by a narrow isthmus and is under British protection only until the conclusion of hostilities, it was announced, "It was not believed that the British force—an unopposed force—encountered any opposition from German civilians who are known to have entered Iceland since the outbreak of the European war."

Negotiating Trade Pact—Denmark, in explaining the move, stressed that it had no intention of interfering with the existing administration and shortly after the occupation the Foreign Office announced it already was negotiating a trade agreement.

The Foreign Office in explaining the move, said "It is clear that in the face of an attack even on a very small scale, the Icelandic government would be unable to defend itself against the German hands."

Hospital Laboratory Serves as Detective

Science Deals with Enemies Human Eye; Unable to See; Need More Equipment Here.

Science deals with those forces which are impalpable and unseen by the hand and eye of the ordinary man. The fluid in the test tube glows when a drop of chemical is added, a sign of something far subtler and more drastic than the human eye can witness otherwise.
