

Prof. Schenker Is Not Guilty

In town court this morning Professor Andre Schenker, of the history department of the University of Connecticut, was found not guilty of violation of rules of the court through failure to grant the right of way. Schenker was ordered into court a week ago after a collision of his car and that of Mrs. Minnie McDonald at the intersection of Center and West Center streets.

According to the testimony, Schenker was brought in for failure to keep to the right of an "imaginary white line" as it was referred to. The traffic line was once painted on the highway surface, but has since been obliterated. It was revealed Schenker said he did not know the line.

Questioning by Attorney Harold W. Garvey, defense counsel, and Prosecutor William J. Shea brought out that both automobiles were at the center of the highway at the point of impact. Schenker was not to be questioned of dangerous or reckless operation, but was claiming to have been going at slow or moderate speeds at the time.

Mrs. McDonald said she did not know Schenker until a moment before the impact. Schenker said he did see the McDonald car, and that it ran into him.

He was arrested in the course of his testimony, said he did not understand the meaning of the questions until notified through the papers. Police Officer Arthur Seaman said that he arrested Schenker at the scene.

Most of the testimony was in reply to questions concerning road width and various measurements. Found Not Guilty.

At the conclusion of the questioning, Judge Raymond R. Bowen observed that the case appeared to be more of a civil than a criminal matter. He ordered the courtroom was growing cold and that in the meantime the defendant and the legal staff agreed to discontinue the trial and the case was adjourned.

Why KOPPERS COKE GIVES MORE HEAT
Koppers Coke is a manufactured fuel made by New England labor for home heating. To make one ton of this fuel it requires the use of one and one-half tons of the finest selected coals. Just like gasoline, these coals are refined to remove the wasteful impurities. The result is practically pure carbon—which makes the heat. To you this means more heat and less waste.

Xmas Cookies Easy to Make In Your Home

By Mrs. Gaynes Madrox
NEA Service Staff Writer

You, in your own kitchen, can make those confectioners' cookies and small cakes which are a traditional part of the Christmas holidays. For a few extra pennies, with a little more time, you can turn out superb candy-like cakes and macarons which can hang colorfully wrapped or boxed, on the most beautiful Christmas tree, or be left for Santa Claus to deliver on his genial rounds.

Well Greased Baking Sheet and bake in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) for 10 to 15 minutes.

Nut Macarons
(18 Macarons)
One egg white, 1 cup light brown sugar, 1 cup chopped nut meats, 1/4 teaspoon salt, beat egg white stiff and dry. Add sifted brown sugar a little at a time, continuing to beat. Finally, fold in nut meats. Sprinkle with salt.

Use a large cookie sheet, evenly buttered. Drop macaron mixture by scant teaspoons at least 1-2 inches apart. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 20 minutes or until delicately browned.

Nickel Conservation
Italy stands to conserve between 5000 and 6000 tons of nickel since she has replaced nickel coins with those made of aluminum, a new stainless steel alloy she has developed.

Gift Jewelry Now in Vogue

Fashions of Many Types For Wide Range of Ages.

Because costume jewelry is so varied in style, because it offers so many opportunities for originality, because no woman can have too much of it, it is one of the most welcome of Christmas gifts. But to make it doubly welcome, there are certain things to remember in choosing jewelry, according to Charlotte, well-known stylist and designer.

Jewelry Fashions
"First, think of the age and personality of the recipient-to-be," she suggests. "For the college girl who is stream-lined in her thinking, choose highly-polished gold or one of the most striking combinations. But for the same age girl who is on the demure side, an old-fashioned brooch that will hold a lock of hair or portrait is just right."

"In selecting jewelry for every woman past college age, her size and weight, the contour of her face, the length of her neck, the width of her shoulders and her coloring, all must be considered, as well as her personality," the noted designer continued.

"Necklaces which are the big news of the moment, come in a number of lengths and styles, so it is possible to find exactly the style that will bring flattery to its wearer."

"For the normal face and figure, the sky is the limit as to style, and you can select with only personal preference in mind. This is the type that can wear as well the double-strand seed-pearl and golden-colored strand necklaces, the wide flat flexible gold collars with detachable pin centers, the massed gold or silver buttons strung on cords."

"The exotic woman will cherish the cold fire of man-made crystals set in highly polished metal or the Oriental look of tiny golden cornucopias holding pearls and jeweled beads strung on black nylon cords."

Pendants
"Pendants are ideal for the woman of fuller figure, for the delicate chain that falls in a V creates a slim line, while the pendant itself is important enough not to be lost against a bit of extra poundage."

"The thin face needs wide beneath it, but beware of too much bulk, which will prove overpowering. For this type, its best to choose one of the flat-collar extender necklaces shimmering with fragile colored beads."

"For the tall, stately woman, not too heavy and not too thin, who is perhaps past the first blush of youth, the multi-strand cascades are the perfect answer."

Terrorized Doe Rescued by Man
Fragaria, Wash.—(AP)—Terrorized by a barking dog, a 75-pound doe plunged into Puget Sound and struck out for open water.

Leonard Gray saw the deer tire. He roared out in a small dingy, placed the animal aboard and headed for shore.

Frightened, the fawn jumped into the water, then clambered back into the boat. Moving about, she upset the dingy.

Gray managed to place the doe on the half-submerged log and hooking his chin over the stern, he boldly pushed the boat and deer to shore.

S. T. McCormick, who saw the rescue, tells the story.

Aged Preacher Never Got Pay
Martinsburg, Pa.—(AP)—The Rev. James A. Sell, still preaching occasionally after 74 years in the ministry, never has received a salary for his church work.

The 50-year-old, peace advocate became deeply interested in religion at a young age, learned the wagon-making trade, then became a carpenter and cabinet maker to support a home and living expenses for his wife and four sons.

Following these trades, Mr. Sell traveled throughout the country preaching in churches he helped build for his denomination, the Church of the Brethren.

The minister and his 84-year-old wife, believed by friends to be Pennsylvania's oldest married couple, celebrated their 72nd wedding anniversary recently. They attributed their longevity to simple habits and temperance at all times, enjoy comparatively good health and say they expect to live for "many years."

Hills Too Much for Camel
Lynchburg, Va.—(AP)—A camel walked a mile or so for a circus but the hills of Lynchburg were too much for him. He collapsed and died of a heart attack on the way to the show grounds.

Has Autographs Ready
Raleigh, N. C.—(AP)—In his spare time, Gov. Clyde R. Hoey signs his name on blank sheets of paper. Then, when he is busy and autograph hunters call, the collector gets one of the sheets.

News: Doll Holds Girl!

When a big rag doll holds a sweet little girl, that's news. Here it is. The doll stands as high as the 3-year-old who was fascinated to the extent she forgot all about the camera and the elaborate toy piano which had previously caught her eye in a New York toyland.

Branded by Stove During Childhood

Hickory, N. C.—(AP)—A youth asked if he had any identifying marks on his body, painted brand registration officials with the reply, "Yes, Home Comfort."

As eyebrows lifted and faces became quizzical, the registrant removed his shirt and showed the official the words "Home Comfort" branded on his abdomen.

Meter Reader Found Guesing

McKeesport, Pa.—(AP)—Councilman George F. Young, acting superintendent of the city's Water Department, said he discovered that one of its meter readers hadn't read a meter for five years—had just guessed at the figures. The showdown came when the department changed books. The meter reader, no longer having old figures to guide him in estimating the water rents, actually read the meters. Among the resulting overcharges was a jump of $4 to $15 in the councilman's bill.
