The WORLD This WEEK

America Swings Into Action

A HUSKY, top-coated figure dashed down the capitol steps Tuesday afternoon, jumped into a waiting taxi, sped to the White House with a thin brief case.

Franklin D. Roosevelt was waiting at his desk at 3:51 p. m. He signed bill 776, the "lease-lend" bill, which Chairman Michael Kirwan (D-Ohio) of the House Committee on Enrolled Bills had delivered to him.

His biggest peace-time appropriation in history—to finance further lease-lend aid to fighting democracies.

The rushing of the bill to the President's desk wound up four days of the legislative action.

With startling swiftness Administration forces battered down amendments after amendment. Formerly opponents watched the bill roar to 80-31 passage.

The House quickly re-ordered the bill. House action mirrored down to approving Senate amendments, all approved by the Administration and all but one of them minor.

The exception was an amendment by Senator Byrd (D-Va.) preventing future army and navy appropriations from being used to buy war.

At 3:55 the President ordered a list of war supplies on its way to England and Greece. The act authorizes him to transfer $1,300,000 worth of existing materials immediately. Then, at his regular press conference at 4, he told reporters he has now asked Congress for $7,000,000—the nation's largest peace-time appropriation in history—to finance further lease-lend aid to fighting democracies.

The rushing of the bill to the President's desk wound up four days of the legislative action.

With startling swiftness Administration forces battered down amendments after amendment. Formerly opponents watched the bill roar to 80-31 passage.

The House quickly re-ordered the bill. House action mirrored down to approving Senate amendments, all approved by the Administration and all but one of them minor.

The exception was an amendment by Senator Byrd (D-Va.) preventing future army and navy appropriations from being used to buy war.

The ABC Of What May Be Sent Abroad By The President

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT was given new articles only when Congress has approved the contracts. He must report developments to Congress every three months.

Less than 24 hours after he signed the bill, the President sent his request for $7,000,000 (which includes the $1,300,000 worth of material now existing on order to Congress. Budget Director Smith said this should be enough for the material.)

The largest item was $2,054,000 for "aircraft and aeronautical material," $1,300,000,000 for "agricultural, industrial and other commodities and articles," $362,000,000 for tanks, trucks and other vehicles.

The President may not send "more than $300,000,000 worth of materials already in the hands of the army or navy or other departments for, he may or may not lose through starvation if he can.

An authoritative source said plans called for rushing a substantial number of "mosquito boats" and other diminutive craft to England. It was said the OPM had worked out a method that will yank "mosquito boats" off the assembly line as fast as automobiles," in a month.

With each new reverse at the front, a cabinet meeting has gone to the front. By last week-end, eight had gone, including Count Ciano, Italy's foreign minister. With the collapse of Italian Somaliland it was announced that one of the regime's most colorful figures, Count Dino Grandi, minister of justice and former ambassador to London, was leaving for war service.

Mussolini himself was reported by Italian prisoners to be directing the Albanian front, venting the fighting.

Political Loopholes

A free translation of the Hatch Act established the Republicans to spend almost $15,000,000 and the Democrats around $10,000,000. A Congressional Committee reported.

The committee disclosed that the Hatch Act limiting contributions and expenditures of National committees to $5,000,000 for each party in a "mushroom" growth of "independent committees" each reaching the right to raise and spend $3,000,000.

It said that more than 100 of the independent groups operated during the last campaign with most of them supporting the Republican Presidential candidate.

In addition, the committee criticized the $5,000 limit on individual contributions because it exempted contributions to state or local groups. It cited that family contributions totaled $166,780 by the Dupons, $106,225 by the Fowlers and $54,000 by the Rockefeller, all to Republicans or affiliated groups.

The special committee suggested reforms but offered no specific "legislation." The bill should be developed, it said, by the regular Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections.

● The Army passed the million man mark Monday.

● The United States has been calling men into the Army by picking numbers from a bowl. European countries, in contrast, usually had all youths of a given age, so as 21, into service for a year or so.

Report On Big Business

For two years and nine months the monopoly committee, headed by Senator Charles McNamara (D-Ill.) and the House Committee on Economic Affairs, has been working into the history of big business. On Monday O'Mahoney offered some conclusions.

He said the trouble was that "business organization has grown to such proportions that neither the people as individuals nor through their local governments are able to cope with it. Even the governments of the states themselves are in truth and in fact submerged by modern business organization."

He feared that further centralization of economic power would lead to further centralization of political power and proposed that it be avoided by returning to truly free enterprise. His main proposal was to require national corporations to obtain national charters. In this way, he said, local business could be differentiated and national business kept national.

Matador's Woes

Until two weeks ago failure of a matador to "fulfill his obligations" and kill the bull was punishable in Mexico by a fine of about $200. But so enraged were Mexicans when about $1,000 and a provision was made for jail sentences.

Some thumbs up, some down, but most of them still stayed minus.

Two Conceptions Of What Is Going On Abroad

"The New Order" "Lying in Providence Bulletin" "Ready?"

Matsuoka Begins A Long Trip

GERMANY'S Fuehrer has demonstrated that he believes the campaign is partly won if he can throw a scare into his opponents beforehand.

Almost exactly a year ago he set the stage for invasion of Scandinavia and the Lowlands when he held a spectacular meeting at the Brenner Pass with his still neutral partners, the Danes.

To call another such conference now—after recent Italian reverses—ought not to be effective as a fright-ener.

Observers weren't certain, during the past week, what his present main plan is. But it was quite clear that such a crisis in the East would have allowed Yugoslavs to remain neutral.

By last weekend, German efforts to recruit Yugoslavia had produced only a promise to sign a non-aggression pact with Germany. That would have allowed Yugoslavs to remain neutral.

French Demand Bread

"The country is suffering." That was the terse summation of the French people's protest against the blockade of Germany when the Chief of State foreign his food supply and foreign ministers had told of France's desperate need for wheat. (French have been called the world's heaviest bread eaters.)

Food Minister Achard declares that 18,000,000 bushels of wheat were urgently needed from the U.S. Admiral Jean Darlan, vice-premier as well as foreign minister, said bitterly:

"If the British continue this blockade... I will be obliged to ask permission to provide arms and join the Axis. A mere non-aggression pact would not be enough. Yugoslavia 'agreed' in principle.

On Britain's Many Fronts

Britain's war with the Axis, both in the air and at sea, resumed yesterday. The British refused to relax the blockade of Germany when they rejected Herbert Hoover's plan for establishing experimental soup kitchens in Belgium.

Labor: CIO Is Active In Key Industries

A UNION is like a big spider's web. Once inside the web, the spider can move. This is the strategy of the CIO, which is active in key industries.

CIO employees at the Edgewater plant of the Aluminum Company of America struck after charging the company with violating contract overtime provisions.

In Washington, President Roosevelt said that:

1. He did not think the nation could approve in any shape, way or form, a jurisdictional strike caused by inter-union bickering.

2. He was considering establishment of a special board not only to mediate strikes but to consider problems of labor, production and other factors arising in disputes.

TREND OF STRIKES DURING NEW DEAL

Millions BASED ON MAN-DAYS IDLE DURING EACH YEAR

Year	Millions of Man-Days Idle
1933	25
1934	20
1935	15
1936	10
1937	5
1938	5
1939	5
1940	5

Estimates by the Bureau of Labor Statistics

With the spotlight on labor relations in several key industries, a survey of strikes during the past eight years shows they reached their lowest point in 1941. The latest month for which statistics are available shows 625,000 man-days of idleness, a rise of 225,000 from December 1940. This represents a decline of 35 percent from the 970,000 man-days of idleness in the year 1933.
