Tomato Crop Rarely Fails

Probably Most Popular Vegetable Grown in Home Garden.

New Haven, May 15—(AP)—The tomato is probably the most popular vegetable grown in the home garden. Because of its adaptability and productivity, a crop rarely fails. But there can be a great difference, both in quantity and quality, between a crop that will succeed and one that is merely stuck in the ground. Based on many years of research, and practical experience in their own home gardens, research men of the Agricultural Station in New Haven have many ideas on tomato growing that amateurs may find of help.

Don't be in too much of a hurry to plant tender things outdoors, is one suggestion. Little tomatoes are best by planting tomatoes this week, even if hot caps are used to protect them from the cold. Tomatoes are a "warm weather crop" and will not stand still until the temperature is right. This year you may have frost until June, so tomato planting can't be delayed until then, or at least until the last week of the month. A safe time to plant them is when the popular varietal appears in bloom.

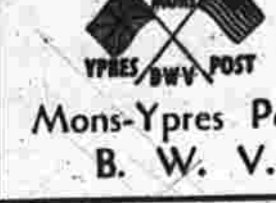

Like plenty of space. Unstaked plants can be set three feet each way, or better yet, three feet apart. Experiments have shown that staked plants, unless planted twice as thick as unstaked, produce no more per given ground space than do unstaked. Nor do staked plants begin yielding at an earlier date than those allowed to grow naturally. Chief advantage of staked plants is that they have a heavier yield of early fruit than unstaked plants covering the same area. Because much of their foliage is lost through the pruning out of their side shoots, the fruit of staked plants is more subject to blossom end rot and cracking, and the yield is lighter toward the end of the season. After the soil has been dug, raked and allowed to settle for a few days, the plants can be set out. A level tablespoonful of commercial fertilizer—the 3-8-7 victory fertilizer is satisfactory—is placed at the bottom of each hole and two or three inches of soil thrown over it. The plant is then set on top of this, a little deeper than it was growing in the frame. Another application of commercial fertilizer can be given when the first green fruits begin to show. Either a tablespoonful can be applied around a circle around each plant (about half this amount for staked plants) and raked in, or it can be scattered along the rows, about a pint per 30-foot row, and raked in.

Meat Rationing Curbs Are Eased

Washington, May 15—(AP)—The Office of Price Administration eased its meat rationing regulations today as they apply to farm consumption of home-produced livestock.

Under the new regulations, a farmer having his cattle slaughtered and dressed will not have to surrender red ration points for the meat. Heretofore, custom slaughtered meat required ration stamps. Livestock killed and dressed on the farm was exempt.

A farmer now may consume meat raised on any farm he owns or operates and may transfer most from one farm to another to provide food for members of the household without giving up ration points.

The "city farmer," however, still must pay with red stamp, if he consumes meat away from the farm he owns, he must surrender stamps, but he need not pay himself cash for his own meat.

Weldon Studio No Restriction Orders On Painting, Decorating

To correct misunderstandings which have arisen with regard to the job of painting materials in essential repainting and redecorating, and to emphasize the vital importance of maintenance and repair, by John I. Olson, of 12 Jackson Place, Manchester's favorite painter and decorator, gives the following information:

The War Production Board in a statement issued on June 22, 1942 declared emphatically that painting and redecorating without authorization is permitted under the terms of Conservation Order L-41 restricting building operations for maintenance or repair purposes. Says the statement: "Repainting and redecorating needed to maintain an apartment or home or office in reasonable satisfactory condition or return it to that condition is permissible. For example, if a new tenant occupies an apartment home or office which has been left in an unsatisfactory condition by the previous tenant, the landlord may redecorate. Also, ordinary redecorating which is done as part of a customary maintenance program is permissible."

Don't Neglect Building. As can be seen by this statement, Uncle Sam doesn't want you to let your home, apartment or home get run down. Repairs and redecorating which can be done at the present time without too much cost, may cost much more in the near future. That is why John I. Olson wants his many friends to place their names with him for looking as soon as they can. There is no way of telling how long this condition may prevail.

Remember, if your home needs a paint job, what has to be painted at once!

Here's the clincher for me

This is my kid. He's a pretty good kid. I always used to figure he'd get along all right in the world, the same way I did. But a war starts you thinking. Nobody knows for sure just what kind of a world my kid will have to grow up in. But whatever kind of a world it is, a little money behind him will help. That's why I'm selling money away for his now. I'm not taking any chances with his future. I'm guaranteeing it in the best way I know how.

Every pay day, nearly a quarter of what I make goes into War Bonds. Not just when I can spare it. But every single pay day—week in, week out. It's taken right out of my pay, on the Payroll Savings Plan. That way, I hardly miss it. But it mounts up fast. And every one of those War Bonds will pay back four dollars for three. Pay it back when my kid may need it most. Sure, I'd be buying bonds anyway. I know the Government needs money to win the war. And, it's the least sacrifice a guy can make for the country that's been good to him.

Those Americans who have joined the Plan are investing, on the average, 10% of their earnings in War Bonds. (If you haven't reached 10% yet—keep trying!)

But America's income this year will be the highest in history—about 125 BILLION dollars! In spite of all taxes and price rises, the average worker will have more money than last year—more than ever before! That is why Uncle Sam has a right to ask us, individually, to invest more money in War Bonds, through the Payroll Savings Plan. He asks us to invest not 10% or 15% or 20%, but all we can!

YOU'VE DONE YOUR BIT --- NOW DO YOUR BEST!
