Appeals Board Calls Meeting To Hear Five Petitions For Changing of the Present Zone Rules.

The zoning board of appeals will hold hearings on five petitions for changes in the zoning rules next Thursday evening. Three ask to be allowed to keep their homes and one to keep ducks. The other is for a change in a house.

Elizabeth and Ralph Goodspeed of 135 Summer street ask to convert a two-family house at that location into a three family apartment. This is located in a B zone.

John Calve, Jr., of 63 New Bolton road, asks to be allowed to keep ducks. He already has the ducks having moved to the new location recently.

Those who wish to keep chickens are Albert Agostinelli of 12 West street, Mrs. Joseph G. Parks of 49 Foley street and Arthur Gusterson of 185 Middle Turnpike, east.

Dairy, Pork And Poultry Drop Likely

Atlantic, South Central and South western states. Drought conditions late July and August have done much, the department said, to reduce food production prospects.

Under the impetus of unprecedented war demands and favorable prices, these areas had expanded livestock production rather sharply during the past few years where feed was easily obtained.

"Probably there will be more than the usual tendency" the department said, "for each area to divert livestock to the feed supply available locally."

Means Cut in Output This, officials said, probably means a substantial reduction in hog and poultry output and a somewhat smaller reduction in daily production, inasmuch as the War Food administration's program to maintain milk production at its current high level, the government may take steps to assure farmers ample supplies to feed their dairy cows.

Next year's livestock feeding operations may be determined in a large measure by the output of rye and ruck between the wild corn and Jack Frost. The Agriculture department said that this grain crop, much of which was planted late, will need good maturing weather and a late frost.

Traffic Problems To Be Discussed

Hartford, Sept. 11.—Details of enforcement and other problems affecting road traffic will be reviewed in the light of current experience by representatives of the police, courts and truck and bus operators at one of three afternoon "work" meetings of the Hartford session of the six-city Connecticut Joint Safety Conference at the State Capitol building, September 15 at 2:30 p. m.

Chief John M. Gleason, Department of Police, Greenwich village, will preside over the discussions to be led by Capt. Henry C. Bradstreet, Division, Department of Police, New Haven; Officer James Little, Safety Division, Department of Police, Waterbury, V. O. White, Director of Safety and Personnel, Associated Transport, Hartford; Kenneth K. Kohm, Supervisor Motor Coach Inspection and Safety, the Connecticut Company, New Haven; and James F. Few Opportunities To Attack Ships

Washington, Sept. 11.—Germany's battered U-boat fleet made virtually no effort to attack Allied shipping in the North Atlantic during August. Moreover, more U-boats have been sunk than merchant ships.

This report by the joint British-American-Canadian Sea command was made public last night by the Office of War Information which released August as "another successful month" in the anti-submarine campaign.

Opportunities were relatively few for attacking U-boats. OWI said, because many were revealed for reconnaissance.

Family-Sized Potatoes In Sam Nelson's Garden

Tax collector Sam Nelson never does things by halves, whether it is tax collecting or anything else. Sam has a good bit of land around his home at 364 Porter street, and every year has beautiful flowers and fine vegetables.

This year Sam's Victory garden has received a lot of his attention and the result show it—by Sam has potatoes, a single one of which would furnish enough of that vegetable for a family of five.

ture and extended advances inland and to the north he must have a base of operations. This takes time. It could be a matter of days before he approached Rome and forces before the various Allied forces were the enemy into the top of the boot where the main German strength is disposed.

In their advances the Allied troops will have the advantage of two decisive factors which the Germans lack. They will have aerial superiority over the whole front and complete domination in some areas. They also will have sea control permitting amphibious sea flanking attacks anywhere along the length of the Italian coast.

Many offer different tasks. The attempt to rid Rome of German troops may offer one of the most delicate and difficult tasks Eisenhower has yet encountered. The city may be taken in two ways, by heavy aerial assault and frontal attack or by encirclement and siege. The choice between these two probably will be determined to some extent by the size of the German garrison there and the tenacity of its resistance but there is belief here that the latter method will be most favored. It should provide the maximum safety for the religious and cultural centers.

One idea being discussed is that the Italians themselves might spearhead the force to clear their capital of the enemy but that would depend on the existence of an Italian government with the will to fight.

Will Deny Allies Advantages So long as the Germans hold Rome they will deny the Allies advantages of both a military and a political nature. The city is the hub of the country's rail transportation system. It is also the center of valuable air bases.

At the same time it is the symbol of Italian government, and German establishment of some sort of puppet administration would be a political blow to the Allies.

Adjourn, and it's another legislative day, recess, and here you are officially doing tomorrow's work.

Regard Receiving Ace in Hole "Ordinarily, from a parliamentary standpoint, it makes little difference whether the lawmakers recess or adjourn. But the political rabbit party in power have come to regard recessing as their ace in the hole and general political rabbit foot.

In convening the day after a recess is taken, the Senate theoretically picks up just where it left off the afternoon before. Actually, by unanimous consent, the first 30 minutes or so of a session is a mystical hour devoted to presenting petitions, making committee reports, and putting articles into the Congressional Record.

If the Senate adjourned the previous evening, however, the rules provide that a "morning hour" must be held to receive messages from the president, communications from department heads, committee reports and similar documents.

During the morning hour (by the way, the rules provide it may last as long as two hours) motions to amend a bill are not debatable—a point of considerable interest to members interested in preventing filibuster on a controversial measure.

During the morning hour (by the way, the rules provide it may last as long as two hours) motions to amend a bill are not debatable—a point of considerable interest to members interested in preventing filibuster on a controversial measure.

Longest Days Ended by Deaths "Ordinarily, from a parliamentary standpoint, it makes little difference whether the lawmakers recess or adjourn. But the political rabbit party in power have come to regard recessing as their ace in the hole and general political rabbit foot.

In convening the day after a recess is taken, the Senate theoretically picks up just where it left off the afternoon before. Actually, by unanimous consent, the first 30 minutes or so of a session is a mystical hour devoted to presenting petitions, making committee reports, and putting articles into the Congressional Record.

If the Senate adjourned the previous evening, however, the rules provide that a "morning hour" must be held to receive messages from the president, communications from department heads, committee reports and similar documents.

Sunday School Lesson. Coming Peace Our 'Promised Land'; Will We Be Equal to Supreme Test?

By William E. Gilroy, D.D. "Promised Land for every land. The irreverent trader, horn, whose African experiences made for the public a best-selling book some years back, said of the famous missionary, David Livingstone, that he was more of a warrior than a missionary. The enemy of progress have never been strong, or so powerfully organized, but their power is waning and there is little doubt as to it.

As a matter of fact Livingstone was both a man of prayer and a man of action, and both go together in all sincerely religious life.

We have had in the previous lesson the story of Israel's consecration, or at least the record of the effort of Moses to establish a nation in integrity and strength. It is his insistence that only a holy nation could be chosen of God.

We now see Israel on the march, beginning what was to be a long and troubled journey to the Promised Land. Unfortunately the people did not respond to the way in a very practical manner. The leeching of Moses concerning the nation's failure to live up to the ideal of a holy and chosen people led to their tragic wanderings in the wilderness.

The Promised Land has always been a goal of the human race toward something better. Canaan is the homeland of the soul's deepest yearning; it is the tomorrow which the world is seeking in a better society.

The story of Israel is the story of the pitfalls and dangers of the human race. The goal is the same as in the story of the positive inspirations and purposes which can make our journeying effective. There is a better society.

Common Sense Ruled
Russia not only saw and approved the terms of the armistice granted Italy, but Russia is to have membership in the Mediterranean Commission.

It was, as we saw it this week, fine, clean, wide-awake childhood, something to warm the heart and once again to the children of France, anything which indicates the closing of that gap has almost equal importance with some purely military victory.

 No Need to Stay "Run Down"
 The patient who is convinced that he is "run down" may develop any one of an infinite variety of symptoms, such as: unpleasant breath, coated tongue, a bad taste in the mouth, poor appetite, excessive gas, indigestion, constipation, dizziness, heartburn and a tired feeling. The cause of these symptoms is principally lack of strength, complaining that he is not strong enough to handle the case in his present position to give some constructive advice regarding treatment.
 The most suggestive remedy possibly give to those who feel they have a "run down" condition is to be examined to find out why they feel "run down". The modern clinic of diagnosis has a great deal to offer such patients and they will usually find that their symptoms are due to some definite cause which may be "run down".
 Those who need this suggestion may very easily find normal health and strength within their reach. In the vast majority of cases there is little need to be "run down" in the first place, but if you have been careless and find yourself in this state, there is no need to stay "run down".
 Questions and Answers (Desires)
 Question: M. W. wants to know: "Will you suggest some simple and healthful desserts to use with a 'run down' condition?"
 Answer: Try using gelatin, steamed fruit such as grapes or apricots, baked apple, cooked apple sauce, leas or sherberts fresh berries, freshly sliced peaches, baked peaches, etc. A small serving of ice cream or custard also makes a good dessert. Fruit whips are often enjoyed. Any ready or wishing some dessert recipes is welcome to send for an article which I have prepared on Healthful Dessert Recipes by writing to the McCoy Health Service in care of this newspaper, enclosing a large self-addressed envelope and ten cents.
 Question: Ruth inquires: "Should a patient with gall bladder trouble use any very fatty foods?"
 Answer: As a general rule patients with gall bladder trouble need not avoid all fatty foods. It is not so much the fat in the food as it is the amount of fat. Very fatty foods are to be avoided.

Heard Along Main Street
And on Some of Manchester's Side Streets, Too.
There never was a time in the history of the country when so much interest was displayed in gardening and canning as the present season. Prudent and patriotic housewives all over town have been putting up an immense amount of vegetables and many fruits as they have been able to secure them. The home dried fruit opening and Field Day held at the Y. M. C. A. last Monday gave ample proof that this spirit still lives in a circle, granite state on which all the men and women from Manchester who served.

Community spirit... that thing which binds us together as a community is still evident at the Y. M. C. A. last Monday gave ample proof that this spirit still lives in a circle, granite state on which all the men and women from Manchester who served.

At the present time few people ever visit the top of the hill at the Bagpole in Center Park. There is a simple area there for the construction of a suitable War Memorial and if it were destroyed, the entire flagpole area might be at- tached to the street and the hill at the North End are still in har- mony with one another. The Fire Department and Improvement Asso- ciation put on this show for one purpose of selling bonds but it proved something else again. We at the South End, said the South Enders, "are higher scattered around more and have many new- comers who have hardly acquainted with each other. But over there we concluded, "the community spirit still lives in a circle, granite state on which all the men and women from Manchester who served."
