Fighters Destroy Japanese Convoy; 3,500 Aboard Die

Three destroyers, Destroyer Escort Sunk By Leyte-Based Aircraft; Brings to 15,000 Number Lost Trying to Reach Island.

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Nov. 25.—(P)—A four-ship convoy carrying reinforcements for the embattled Japanese on Leyte island has been destroyed by American fighter planes and an estimated 3,500 Nipponese were killed or drowned, according to a communique announced today. The Leyte-based planes, acting as dive-bombers, sank three transports and a destroyer escort, and destroyed 15,000 of the number of Nipponese perishing in attempts to reach the island fighting scene.

Swinging Shut Trap On Nazis in Vosges; Aachen Gains Slow

Nazis Report Strong Grip Averts War Needs Lack

Leeds, Eng., Nov. 25.—(P)—Labor Minister Ernest Bevin said today a strong grip by the British government had averted war production troubles here similar to those suffered in the United States.

"The press and many responsible people in industry in America assumed the war was over," he told a press conference.

He said he would rather go out of public life than release men to civilian trades and thereby risk leaving a single soldier, airmen or sailor man short of a single weapon.

"If the British government had not had a pretty good grip," Bevin said, "this clamor for releases from the services might have had serious results here a few months ago. Everyone pestered my life out to me."

Home Defense Soldiers Defy Policy Change

Canadians Parade in Protest After King Approves Partial Conscription Measure.

Ottawa, Nov. 25.—(P)—Canadian home defense soldiers blotted British Columbia paraded in defiance of a new conscription measure that would allow the government to call up men for military service in their own homes.

The demonstrators, who carried signs and banners, protested against the new measure, which would allow the government to call up men for military service in their own homes.

Industrial Sections Of Tokyo in Flames

Bombing Proclaimed as Study Draft Of Proposal On Air Unit

Twenty-First U. S. Bomber Command, Saipan, Nov. 25.—(P)—Mighty Super-Fortress bombers left industrial sections of central Tokyo in flames, as American commanders today proclaimed the historic noonday bombing as the opening blow of a relentless campaign to bring Japan's war plants to a halt.

Nearly 3,000 incendiary bombs were dropped on the city, and a firestorm broke out in the industrial district.

Senators See Possible Help In Financing Roosevelt Observation Sets Legislators Speculating About Plans for World Rehabilitation

Washington, Nov. 25.—(P)—President Roosevelt's call for post-war strengthening of the United Nations partnership was regarded in Congress today as pointing to a possible American financial plan in righting the world's war-torn economy.

What Mr. Roosevelt said in his report that lend-lease must end when hostilities cease, his observation that the United Nations partnership must go on and must grow stronger, set legislators speculating about the President's plans for this country's role in world rehabilitation.

Manchester Is Lagging In War Bond Campaign

Only $143,000 Purchased So Far and the Quota for Town Is $2,507,000.

It is hoped that Manchester people will increase their buying of War Bonds within the next few days, according to Chairman Harold C. Alvord of the War Finance Committee, to date only $143,000 worth of bonds have been purchased. This is a far cry from Manchester's overall quota of $2,507,000 which must be subscribed if Manchester is to rank among those communities which have not let down their fighting men.

Swinging Shunt Trap on Nazis; Gains Are Slow

Multiple reported steady progress toward clearing the enemy from the Saargau pass in the Vosges above Colmar, and off the slopes of the commanding, round-topped mountain called the Ballon d'Alsace north of Belfort.

An admission that German lines in the central Vosges were "taken back at several points" came from the Berlin radio.

In the Mulhouse region between Colmar and Belfort, the Nazis were retreating desperately, with isolated battalions fighting around a number of towns.

The Germans clung to strongpoints and the French advanced around and past them.

On the central portion of the western front, Gen. George S. Patton's U. S. Third Army had won a crossing of the Rhine, last big barrier to the Rhine, at a point 20 miles south of Saarbrücken.

To the north, a three-armed Allied assault team, made up of the American First and Ninth and the British Second, fought on foot-by-foot on the flooded flatlands of the Cologne plain.

There an Allied staff officer described every creek crossing as "almost an amphibious operation."

The average resistance was resulting in the greatest battle of the western front.

U. S. First Army troops fought their way house-by-house into the outskirts of Weisweiler, six and a half miles southwest of Jülich, the Moselle river strengthened barring the advance to Cologne, 25 miles away.

Bourbon, two miles southwest of Jülich, was cleared completely by the Germans late yesterday, a front dispatch said.

British Second Army troops, after losing Hoven and Yelding, some ground, and East of Gellenkirchen, held firmly against waves of counter-attacking enemy troops and a hail of artillery fire, and clung grimly to the high ground overlooking the German radio said the

Jessie Reynolds' Appeal Is Answered, As Usual

The recent appeal made by Miss Jessie M. Reynolds for an office desk and chairs for use at Red Cross headquarters met with a fine response, Miss Reynolds reported today.

A fine oak double door and several chairs were donated by local people.

"We never let us down when we ask for help," Miss Reynolds commented today.

Miss Reynolds' appeal was answered by the Red Cross headquarters in New Haven, Conn., which has been sending her letters of appreciation.

She said that she had received several letters from people who had been helped by the Red Cross.

General Asks More Bullets To Hold Pace

cartridges—results from battle experience on the western front in the last few weeks, Krug told a news conference today.

He said General Eisenhower had sent word that this ammunition was being expended at about four times the rate anyone had expected.

Apparently that goes for mortar shells as well. The WPB chief said that program also will have to be "very considerably expanded."

Cut Back Sharply Months Ago Like heavy artillery and other production, small arms ammunition output was cut back sharply months ago when the need for tremendous stocks was thought to have been met.

The cut in small ammunition was about 50 per cent, with some plants put on a standby basis.

Giving some indication of the said present output of 30-caliber bullets is about 30,000,000 rounds a month.

Meeting the goal, civilian production under the "spot ammunition" program will have to be tightened where ammunition plants are located in critical labor areas, Krug said.

This program permits manufacture of consumer goods only in localities where such activity will not hamper the war effort.

Will Need 62,500 More Ten of the plants included in the ammunition program turn out the finished product, while the other three make cores for bullets.

These 13 plants, now employing 53,400 workers, will need 62,500 more. An additional 15,000 will be required in brass mills.

The 13 key plants: Army ordnance plants at St. Louis, Independence, Mo.; Minneapolis, Des Moines, 20 ordnance plants near Salt Lake City which have been on a standby basis and will be reactivated at Philadelphia; the Remington Arms plant, Bridgeport, Conn.; Winchester Repeating Arms Co., New Haven, Conn.; the Western Cartridge Co., and core plants of McQuay-Norris, St. Louis; Edson General Electric, Chicago, and Willy-Oversat, Toledo, O. The latter plant also has been on a standby basis.

The Nazis were firing robot bombs at the First Army's supply lines in increasing numbers. At times they dived over as if in formation.

Southeast of Aachen in the Hürtgen forest the Germans launched a counter-attack just as the Americans and the British gained a mile.

North of the First Army, the Germans threw in at least seven divisions against the British Second Army and the Ninth Army.

Hoven and Beek in the muddy battlefield north and east of Gellenkirchen.

Both Towns Retaken (A BBC broadcast heard by the BLU network said both towns were retaken later by counter-attacking Tommies.)

Between the American First and the British Second armies the U. S. Ninth army was hammering away at terrific resistance at the approaches to the Roer river basin of Jülich, 25 miles directly west of Cologne.

Elements of five Panzer and Panzer Grenadier divisions and several Infantry divisions were opposing the Ninth.

A front dispatch said that the Ninth had won the first phase of the battle by knocking out 118 German tanks in seven days and inflicting 9,000 casualties on the enemy, but that the Ninth's tank losses equaled the Germans.

Slugging through mud the Ninth seized Patter and Lohr, three and four miles southwest of Jülich, and was locked in savage combat with the Nazis two miles west of the city, this dispatch added.

Fall Report Not Confirmed In Holland the British Second army closed in on Venlo, the Maas river stronghold and gateway to Germany's Ruhr. There was no confirmation of a French dispatch saying Venlo had fallen.

To the south mechanized cavalry units of the U. S. Third army crossed the Saar river 28 miles south of the Nazi fortress of Saarbrücken.

Elements of the 90th Infantry and Tenth armored divisions reached the Saar near Schwervorf, 20 miles northwest of Saarbrücken.

The 8th division in advanced up to three miles reached Remagen, east of Metz and only 11 miles from the Saar border and 13 miles south of Saarbrücken.

It was estimated that more than 40,000 Germans have been taken prisoner by the six attacking Allied armies since the start of the current winter offensive, and many more remain to be counted.

Study Draft Of Proposal On Air Unit

Cuba has been their chief spokesman. Side Work Continues Side work on the "with freedom" problem, described as an economic and operating rather than a political issue, continued. The effort is to reach a mutually satisfactory formula for handling intermediate traffic on long line routes. The United States and Britain are agreed that there should be some limitation but the Americans, while conceding that, over-use of the privilege could divert local traffic arrangements or crowd out competition, are unwilling to go as far as the British. The United Kingdom would not provide extra capacity for such traffic. Although necessary that it be carried in space available from the existing equipment for the long haul. The United States wants the intermediate traffic—traffic carried through into the volume on which the capacity quota would be asked. The United States claim that such a system is necessary to make long line routes economically practical. The British say the American idea would supply extra capacity to "ply for tramp traffic" and inflate capacity along the route.

Loss of Hwatyachen Strongly Indicated Changsha, Nov. 25.—Loss of the Kwangchow railway town of Hwatyachen, 50 miles west of fallen Luchow, to advancing Japanese troops was strongly indicated today by an announcement of both Chinese and Japanese patrol actions west of the town.

Yesterday's American Air Force communiqué said Hwatyachen had been bombed repeatedly by American planes, but a Chinese Air spokesman insisted it was still in Chinese hands.

Would Supplement State Threat The high command said Chinese troops were back another enemy position during the night of Nov. 24-25, 44 miles northwest of Kwelin, from which the Japanese apparently were uncovering another approach to attack Wednesday. They destroyed 38 Japanese planes on Mandat airfield, sank a large freighter and a gunboat in the harbor, and destroyed nine other ships.

That night the Japanese made one of their heaviest raids on Moroc, U. S. air base island 300 miles south of the Philippines. Nine attacking bombers dropped incendiary bombs on the island, causing some damage and casualties. One was shot down.

Japs Claim Two Transports Sunk By The Associated Press A Japanese imperial communiqué claimed today that raiding Japanese planes sank two U. S. transports and damaged another transport in the Philippine Sea. The report is wholly unconfirmed by Allied sources.

The communiqué, broadcast by Tokyo radio and received by the Federal Communications commission, said 17 aircraft failed to return from this and other raids on Leyte and Morocai island Wednesday and Thursday.

An English language broadcast said that the Japanese had captured a large freighter and a gunboat in the harbor, and destroyed nine other ships.

Chinese Capture Four More Strongpoints Southeast Asia Command Headquarters, Manila, Nov. 25.—Chinese troops have taken four more strongpoints in Szechuan north Burma stronghold, the southeast Asia command announced today.

A communiqué said elements of the 86th Chinese division engaged the waders in the Japanese defenses north of the Bhamo airfield.

Serves on Proud Craft In Amphibious Landings

At a Mediterranean Port—When they step aboard, you know she's a proud ship, as the base every bomb exploded near them, knocking out their lives.

This LCI (landing craft infantry) has engaged in five amphibious operations in the Mediterranean area. At Sicily, Salerno, Anzio, Elba and again in southern France, she helped to topple the house that Hitler built in Europe.

What's more, her crew recently received an efficiency award for their part in the Sicily operation. The effort is to reach a mutually satisfactory formula for handling intermediate traffic on long line routes. The United States and Britain are agreed that there should be some limitation but the Americans, while conceding that, over-use of the privilege could divert local traffic arrangements or crowd out competition, are unwilling to go as far as the British.
