Tom Trot Tells Young Fans 'Saucers' Are Real

Columbus, O., Sept. 28—(AP)—The world over, if they learned their lesson last week, now know there are such things as flying saucers.

They know because their "news-paper" told them so.

Their newspaper, "My Weekly Reader," published by the American Education Press of Columbus, one of the oldest educational publishing houses in the United States. It is required reading in many schools.

The newspaper says it has received a letter from a school in every state and 50 foreign countries. Just how many, the company says, is not known. The "My Weekly Reader" is a weekly newspaper for children, published by the American Education Press of Columbus, Ohio. It is a highly successful publication, reaching a large circulation in the United States and abroad. The newspaper has been praised for its high quality and educational value. It is required reading in many schools.

Head of School Group Releases Statement

Edgar Coughlin, chairman of the Committee for Schools This Morning, today released a statement sharply attacking the last minute tactics of the opponents of the Broad Street school who last night interjected the Rural Vernon School into the picture.

"First it was Cranby, then St. Mary's, then the Yeshiva School and now Vernon," said Mr. Coughlin. "The arguments on all the others have all been discredited and now they pull out Vernon at the last minute."

"I last night went to Vernon and thoroughly investigated their problem and plans. I have the greatest admiration for what the people of rural Vernon are doing and they are making a tremendous advance in the change from their present almost primitive facilities to their new school, but I cannot in good conscience suggest that their plans be adopted by Manchester."

"There are many items of difference between the two schools and with no desire in any way to criticize what they are doing in Vernon I do feel that I should point out these differences. Briefly: The roof deck of their building is being and completely finished and a figure of $80,000 for construction of the present unsettled conditions. If all possible it must be on the basis of our $74,000 estimated cost for the construction of the building."

"The American Education Press received a number of letters from you people, indicating your widespread 'hysteria' among youngsters about 'flying saucers' riding to earth in our neighborhood. Miss Cross' column in the paper is a masterpiece of distortion. We are in sympathy with you and we are not in any way interested in the flying saucer craze. We have given full consideration to future maintenance costs. Repairs, maintenance and insurance costs through the years must be considered in any comparison."

"There are some other differences between the two schools. The new school has no basement and is heated by two factory-type unit heaters, whereas the present school is heated by radiators and has a basement. They do not have any stage lighting or equipment. They have a kitchen which means a great deal of maintenance and cleaning. We have individual heat controls for each room. They have separate toilets for the kindergarten and first grades complete installations of showers and locker facilities. Many other differences. There are many other differences but there are enough in the greatest attention for the people of rural Vernon who are making a heroic and noble effort to build this school, but I cannot

Claims Rogers 'Being Used' Town's Spending Habits Are Compared to Nation's

New York Sept. 30.—(Special)—How much does the average Manchester family spend each year? The answer is $4,800, according to a survey of the spending habits of people in the section of the country. The copy-righted general merchandise store, which is a member of the National Retail Merchants Association, reported that the average family in Manchester spent $4,800 last year, or about 20 cents more than the national average of $4,600.

"I predicted one year ago that Rogers would be used to break a clause in the Phi Epsilon Pi constitution. At that time I also stated that, if the men in the fraternity really wish to break such a clause, it could have been done without a man being used. 'Abominably ridiculous,' was the reply of Irving R. Chaney of New Haven, president of the Phi Epsilon Pi chapter. 'It is unfortunate that this all came about because of a misunderstanding. It is unfortunate that this all came about because of a misunderstanding. It is unfortunate that this all came about because of a misunderstanding.'

Studying for Degree

Miss Carol E. Hanson, R. N.

Miss Carol E. Hanson, R. N., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Hanson of Pearl street, has resigned her position as a head nurse at Saint Elizabeth hospital, Washington, D. C., in order to accept a stipend under the National Mental Health Act awarded through the Catholic University of America where she is studying for her Master's degree in nursing education. She is majoring in psychiatric nursing with special interest in the field of child guidance.

Miss Hanson graduated from Manchester High school in the class of 1945, and received her Bachelor of Science degree from Saint Joseph College School of Nursing in 1949. She has returned to Washington after a brief visit with her parents.

Local Resident Gives Her Impressions After A Three Months' Visit

Miss Tekla Peterson, of 37 Mount Nebo Place, returned to Manchester this week after spending three months in Northern Europe. Born in this country it was her first visit to Sweden where she has relatives. She said the weather was ideal with almost no rain until the last week she was there; that the farms in the rural sections seemed to have a good summer and everything was prosperous.

Miss Peterson called on a number of people who formerly lived in Manchester and they were eager to hear the news about the town, its growth and about people they knew. She found everybody more than hospitable and said that some of the families serve as many as four meals a day.

Highlight of Vacation One of the highlights of her vacation over there was a 15-day conducted sight-seeing tour by bus, during which the group spent three days in Oslo, three in Stockholm and three in Copenhagen, Denmark. Everything was taken care of by a hostess. This Swedish Bus company conducts tours all over the continent and with each group is a hostess and two bus drivers. The tours are popular with travelers from other countries.

Reds Losing Ground Miss Peterson sailed from New York, July 3, on the Gripsholm and returned to the Stockholm of the Swedish-American Line. She stated that after she left elections took place in Sweden, and while on shipboard they heard the welcome news that the Communists had lost more heavily than in the previous election.

Miss Peterson is employed by Cheney Brothers and will return to her duties on Monday.

Tucker Car Co. Collapse Figures in Claim Made in Court

Anybody who, in the days before the Tucker car company collapse, paid out money for Tucker accessories, thereby hoping to get first crack at a new car, has kissed his money goodbye according to a decision handed down here in a civil action alleging fraud.

In publishing his decision in the case, Judge John D. LaBelle states, "in my opinion, there is an expression for the plaintiff's plight. As an axiom of the law the expression is that 'loss in bargain is no ground for relief.'"

The action, claiming damages, was brought by Walter Hausen against Peter Kostek in Manchester Town Court September 28. The plaintiff alleged that the defendant bilked him out of $181.65 expended in the hope of being able to purchase one of the Tucker cars so widely advertised when cars were in short supply.

Issued Opinion Certificates In his decision, Judge LaBelle notes that early in the days of the Tucker rise, the firm issued option purchase certificates, the holder of which, depending on the number of which the option he held, would have a chance to buy a Tucker car. If and when such were delivered to dealers.

To get one of these options, a prospect had to lay out the sum of about $24 for an advance purchase of accessories. Part of the original financing of the Tucker concern was handled through sale of such items made in existing Tucker plants.

If a person laid out the accessories amounted to the right to buy a car.

The plaintiff, in bringing his action, asserted that purchase of the accessories guaranteed him delivery of a car.

Judge LaBelle rules this is not his understanding of the matter. He finds that the option is a very "carefully worded document" which plainly states that the Tucker agent and the company does not guarantee a deal which, in such cases, the judge states, "The plaintiff must make use of his own faculties. It is his duty to read the contents of written documents affecting his pecuniary interests. Judgment may enter for the defendant."

When the defendant did, then, says Judge LaBelle, was to lay out money to "get in on" a deal which, not guaranteed, never came off.

In such cases, the judge states, "The plaintiff must make use of his own faculties. It is his duty to read the contents of written documents affecting his pecuniary interests. Judgment may enter for the defendant."

Heard Along Main Street

And on Some of Manchester's Side Streets, Too

This nation is made up of all kinds of people and an incident on Main street brings this point to light. Two cars were parked in parking stalls in front of a store. The meter clock for each stall showed that time had expired. The merchant deposited two pennies in each meter. Soon after a policeman walked by and instead of both cars getting tagged, had the pennies not been inserted by the merchant, the officer walked up the street.

The owner of one car soon appeared. He was a snappy dressed young man in the early thirties. He had all the appearance of being a salesman. The merchant who had saved him one dollar by placing coins in the meter said to the fellow, "I've just saved you a dollar by putting two pennies in the meter after your time had expired." The car owner was quite disturbed at a stranger saying he had saved him a dollar. "If you want a touch, at least you could have saved my nickle," the car owner said as he backed out and went on his way. That's the thanks the merchant got.

Soon the owner of the other car arrived, a woman. The merchant happened by chance to be out front, told the woman of the meter running out and of the placing of two cents in the meter. The woman was most thankful and even walked into the merchant's store and made a purchase.

We mentioned here some months ago that "very" has become a meaningless word when used in such phrases as "very pretty girl" or "very lovely dress." At the time of writing we were unaware that a studied campaign against "very" began at least fifty years ago with dismal results.

A former newspaperman writes that he has handled the word at least a million times in editing copy over a period of 45 years. He says: "An eloquent statement concerning its use is credited to the editor of the Leavenworth (Kansas) Times, fifty or so years ago." He told his reporters times innumerable.

"When you feel you have to use 'very' in a story, use instead the word 'damn.'" "What makes 'very' so difficult to exterminate is its usefulness to little children who are beginning to talk. With vocabularies of just a few dozen words, 'very' is indispensable. It does the work of hundreds of adjectives when hooked on to such words as big, old, little, tall, mean, bad, or good. As we grow up, we should discard it. If we can't think of a strong word than 'important' to describe a distinguished person, we should be satisfied to call him important instead of belittling him by calling him 'very important.'"

The fire which gutted the Hubbard home on Cambridge street, Wednesday, prompts us to call attention to the fact that October 8 to 14 is National Fire Prevention Week, and to state some of the findings of the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

They claim that in eight minutes a blaze can grow 50 times. It first flame under control immediately the house could be gutted before the fire department arrives. The point is not to let the first flame get a head start. Recent statistics reveal that the family's careless placing of cigarettes and smoking habits are the largest single cause of the home-malfeasance. It does the work of hundreds of adjectives when hooked on to such words as big, old, little, tall, mean, bad, or good. As we grow up, we should discard it. If we can't think of a strong word than 'important' to describe a distinguished person, we should be satisfied to call him important instead of belittling him by calling him 'very important.'"

Unless you are a professional witness and know the tricks of the court room, the following question asked at a witness in a recent trial is a neighborhood lawyer might inquire. Shouted the attorney: "Can you or can you not, in full awareness of your oath, testify that you did or did not, on the occasion under dispute or at any time or subsequent thereto, say, aver, indicate, hint or imply to the defendant or anyone else, that the charges imputed to you, be they valid or not, and denied by plaintiff, were a matter of little moment? Do you hear me? Did you or did you not?"

The Manchester Evening Herald is good to candidates. Sure, we give them a rough time after they get elected, but while they are posing prettily before the voters we print their pictures, their letters from friends, endorsing them, their releases in which their attributes are delicately set forth.

We also give them advertising space in 10,000 papers at 80 cents per column inch. As far as we can find out, there is no other newspaper in the nation that is so kindly crazy. People tell us so. Every other paper feels that it should take at least half the scalp out of each candidate's pocket. We don't. We know that even little weekly papers, with less than 2,000 circulation, are up to the $1.50 per inch level of charges. We still don't scalp.

We have a firm conviction that every public official should enter his term of office with a few cents in his pocket after laying it out for his campaign.

After all is said and done, the League of Women Voters, by its questioning of candidates for the Board of Directors and the Board of Education has performed one of the few worthwhile voter services so far accomplished this political season.

Not that the answers the League got, in themselves, might be construed in many cases as either "specific," as asked for, or complete. It's hard to tell what you think in 150 words. Also it's hard to be specific.

We don't consider that being in no-one's problems on a Development Commission is a specific answer as to Manchester's future economic well-being. We like to see a candidate specify what he would like to see done and the channels through which it might be accomplished. Too many of the League's answers merely widened the channel without setting up any channel beacons.

But the answers at least gave the public an idea of the candidates' interests, their thinking, and their ideas of what interests the voters.

Of all the candidates, that is, except Walter Mahoney. He did not reply, intimating that, for the League of Women Voters at least, he has no ideas on anything. Oh Happy Day!

The way we sum up the school issue is this: shall we have the cheapest education we can get or the best we can afford?

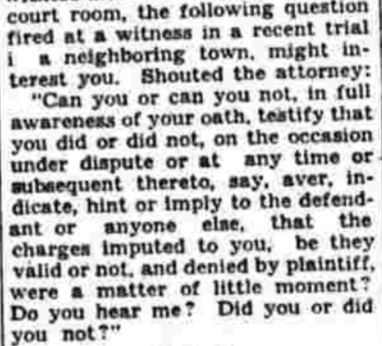

Children understand a lot more about politicians than most people. The season is explained this way by one of our young friends: "First comes the town election, and then comes the state election and then Santa Claus comes."

Are we the only ones who wonder why it is that Manchester's "school economy experts" wait until the eve of a referendum—a substantial amount of taxpayer's money has been spent in preparing plans—before giving birth to "startling" ideas on economical methods of constructing a school? A Non
