MHS Band Gives Brief Concert of Famous Marches at State Theater

State theater patrons last night were treated to a short concert by the Manchester High School Band under the direction of William Vaders. The band, shown here at its appearance on the stage, featured several selections by John Philip Sousa, former composer. The first feature last night, "Stars and Stripes Forever," is based on Sousa's life. The movie will have its final showing tonight.

Rec Board Hears Several Suggestions for Program

Nine organizations noted their desire to hold future talks on town setup. About 50 persons attended a meeting of the Recreation and Park Advisory Commission last night during which discussion revolved around possible town financial support for the YVCA program, the construction of a swimming pool, use of school facilities for community recreational purposes, a recreation program for crippled children, and the possible purchase by the town of light now located at the rear of the Community Y.

At the close of the meeting at least nine of the several local organizations suggested their desire to meet with the advisory group to help plan a recreation program. The meeting was called by General Manager Richard Martin for the purpose of beginning plans for a comprehensive passive and active recreational program.

Seek coordination. Members of the commission decided to hold an executive meeting and later to call on representatives of the various organizations to learn what programs those organizations would like to see instituted and in what ways the program could be coordinated.

The organizations which indicated they wished to meet with the commission on a recreational program are the Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Manchester Ski Club, YMCA, A and I Sports Association, Manchester Sportsman's Association, Manchester Federation of Women Clubs, Manchester Athletic Association and the League of Women Voters.

The question of an outdoor swimming pool was raised by Tom Kelley, chairman of the advisory commission who acted as chairman of the meeting. Kelley said the town's two swimming pools are in danger.

Task Superintendent Horace F. Murphy later said the town's swimming pools are in danger. He said that the town's two swimming pools are in danger and that the town should build one large pool or four smaller ones in different parts of the town.

"Thing of the Past" "is a thing of the past," asked Truman Cowles, representing the State Health Department. He explained that the State Health Department requirements for the amount of running water made it unfeasible to consider natural sites in Manchester for swimming areas.

Both Kelley and McCormick, advisory board members, stressed the fact that the recreation program was stymied because of lack of space.

They pointed out that the Board of Health has reported that the amount of running water in new schools and schools not yet built could be available in planning a long-range program, and what facilities could be

Resume Talks To Help Boost Blood Program

In an attempt to recruit much-needed blood donors for the next visit of the Bloodmobile to Woodruff Hall from 1 to 5:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 4, John D. LaBelle, Charles N. Crockett, and Ruth J. Rowley of the local donor recruitment committee have resumed speaking engagements before Manchester churches, PTA, and service groups.

During this month they have appeared before the Nathan Hale, Keeney, Verplanck, Washington and Highland Park PTAs, the Lutheran church and the Mission Church at the Emanuel Lutheran Church and the Knights and Ladies of Columbus.

The three speakers have appeared directly to these organizations to waive FBI security reports on the men named to take the State Department position for the recreation committee. Chairman Wiley (R., Wis.) said the committee agreed to take Secretary Dulles' word that an appointee is not a security risk.

Wiley said this clears the way for prompt completion of the Dulles' ranking substitutes in the new State department set up. He also reported that the organizational meeting three weeks ago that it would require complete FBI reports on every State department nominee.

Wiley told reporters today the committee has decided now it would take too long for complete reports. It was a good procedure we worked out," Wiley said. "I didn't want it."

It takes up to 60 days for an FBI check to be completed. Wiley said the committee will accept a personal letter from Dulles saying that an appointee is not a security risk as a good enough time the time being. FBI reports will be submitted to the committee as soon as they are received, he said.

Wiley said the new plan should be done on the log jam on five top State department nominees. However, at least one of them, Dwight D. Eisenhower's friend, Robert H. Taft, is in the Senate. Frank Harold President James B. Conant, selected for the post of High Commissioner to Germany, may encounter rough going from Senator McClean of Wisconsin.

Wiley said he has not yet decided today what he may oppose Conant, partly because of a speech in Boston last April in which Conant said that "schools are a divisive influence."

Conant is a Catholic layman and some Catholics have professed what they termed an attack by Conant on parochial schools. Hearings on Conant and General Edwin Bell, former Central intelligence chief, chosen for Undersecretary of State, have also been held.

Also pending are the nomination of Dwight D. Eisenhower as ambassador to France, Mrs. Oswald B. Lord of New York, and Representative of the UN Human Rights Commission and Secretary of State, Dean Rusk, to be assistant director of Mutual Security.

Elsewhere, respiratory infections were running normal for the winter period. The survey indicated the outbreaks have been more distressing than dangerous. In most cases the illness lasts only three to five days. Very few deaths have resulted directly.

The four states hardest hit by infectious winter ailments—Texas, Arkansas, Tennessee and Minnesota—all reported conditions slightly improved.

Drug firms are reporting a demand for antibiotic medicines is running four to five times above normal.

Dr. R. O. Savitt, North Dakota health officer, said the number of 10,000 cases has appeared in that state with influenza and a slight gain. He said the flu outbreak is the heaviest in many years "but that the disease itself is relatively mild."

UN Blames Nam, Lee For I Ch'w Camp Riots

Tokyo, Thursday, Jan. 29.—(AP)—The United Nations Command Wednesday charged two top Korean Communist truce negotiators and a Soviet army officer with directing the bloody Red prisoner-of-war riots of 1952. The UN command said the rioting on I Ch'w camp, near the 38th parallel, was the "most serious" since the armistice was signed in July 1953. The rioting resulted in the deaths of 100 prisoners and the wounding of 200 others.

Cohen, who is House chairman of the labor committee, told newsmen that he didn't consider any lengthy discussion of the bill by party leaders necessary.

"It's a good bill," he said, "and we intend to pass it."

Governor Lodge again met with GOP leaders during the morning to discuss the bill, he reported to newsmen, reached general agreement that two special highway funds totaling $6,000,000 and set aside for highway aid to municipalities should be considered. There was general agreement also, said Lodge, that towns should be given more leeway on how to spend the state aid funds.

Under the plan discussed today, said Lodge, towns would be allowed to use the funds for snow removal, sand icy roads and take care of "damaged" or "leaky" after ice storms; and install traffic warning and directional signs.

There was some discussion also, he said, of a proposal to shift to public utilities, banks and insurance companies more of the costs of the state regulatory agencies which deal with those concerns. Lodge estimated that the state may be able to save about $500,000 a year.

The Senate session produced a brief partisan clash during which the outnumbered Democrats raised a charge of "race riots" against Republicans.

The dispute arose when Democrats sought immediate action on resolutions postponing the appointment of county commissioners until the legislature considers the question of county reform, and asking the federal government to

'New Front' Plot Linked To Moscow

A committee of top municipal officials, of which General Manager Richard Martin is a member, is reported to draft a legislative bill calling for an increase of 1 per cent on the state sales tax, the proceeds of which would be distributed to municipalities on the basis of school population.

It declared there was direct chain of command from the armistice negotiators right down to individual compounds in the present camp," the statement asserted.

The vital link in the chain, the statement said, were 12-man Communist teams equipped with Russian-made portable radio sets used to infiltrate near the prison camps. These teams maintained communications between the prisoners and North Korea.

The municipal officials are in its actions, the committee was carrying out instructions from a group of mayors, managers, and first selectmen from about 40 towns in the North State.

The committee includes Raoul Dielle, Richard Peppin, William Ayer, Donald Gehring, Peter DeCarli, John Garbarini, Paul Mitchell, Richard Little and Harold McCann.

Girls of the class will serve the baked bean supper in March for the same fund.

Plans are now complete for the March of Dimes benefit entertainment and dance at the Haylett Friday at 8 p.m. Gill Lamb, star of TV, will be the featured attraction in addition to other performers mentioned in the Haylett program. Hank Keene will be master of ceremonies during the program, is spending this week at the Keene home.

Coin cards returned as of Monday numbered 138 with a total of $217.10 in donations. Incomplete school returns total $93.25, or a grand total to date of $310.35, Mrs. Charles W. Lovv, chairman, said.

Study Underway

A study of families recently moving into North Coventry is underway this month by the rural sociology department at the University of Connecticut.

Richard A. Kurtz of New Britain, graduate assistant in rural sociology, is making a study of about 100 families who have moved to North Coventry between 1940 and 1950.

The project is designed to learn more about newcomers who are now making North Coventry their home. Kurtz will look for reasons for moving into the community, study occupations and place of work, and look for adjustments which newcomers have made in the community.

The research is directed by the Storrs Agricultural Experiment Station. Door-to-door interviews began Jan. 1. Kurtz hopes the field work will be completed by the end of winter. He says the report will be completed this summer.

Population has doubled in North Coventry from 1940 to 1950. This has made it necessary to build families into suburban areas.

Some of the questions in the survey are as follows:

1. The year moved into the community; former place of residence; number of children and ages of children living at home, ages and education of husband and wife, the town where the family does most of its shopping, and participation in town affairs.

Plan Would Use Sales Tax To Provide School Funds

Consensus among the officials at Middletown was that some method of raising money other than property taxes should be made available to municipalities.

The bill being drafted would raise the tax from 2 to 3 per cent.

The gas increase would mean people using the highway would be paying a greater part of highway costs, Martin said.

Proceeds would be used to construct and maintain municipal roads.

Martin said that the amount of the increase would be an indication of his ability to support the government.

Coventry Eighth Graders Plan Drive To Meet Graduation Costs

A specially designed map of the community is being used in selecting the homes in the survey.

Choir Will Meet Its New Director

James W. McKay of 500 Porter street will assume direction of the mixed choir of the North Methodist Church as he meets with the singers tonight for their first rehearsal together. Mr. McKay was secured to serve in this capacity after a search organized by Robert A. McBride, chairman of the choir committee.

Mr. McKay comes to this new responsibility with a rich background in the field of music generally. For the past several years he has been organist of the Bolton Congregational Church. He is also organist of Manchester Lodge of Masons and the Bolton Congregational Church. He has studied organ at the American Guild of Organists. He is a member of the Bolton Congregational Church, Rev. John E. Post who will be working with Manchester from Stamford Springs, Conn.

It is confidently anticipated that all the members of the choir will be present tonight, and that others interested will attend also.

Praises Work Of Girl Scouts

Over 130 adults were present with copies of the Manchester Girl Scout Annual Report at a dinner meeting held last night at the South Methodist Church, Mrs. E. W. V. Hiett of Bridgeport, who has been active in all phases of Scouting for 30 years, discussed "Girl Scouts—A Growing Force for Freedom."

She commended the Girl Scout movement with the youth organizations of Hitler, Fascism and of Russia—all three of which were under government control and in which a girl goes into Scouting by choice. Mrs. V. Hiett explained that Girl Scouts choose and plan their own programs in the troop or at camp and that with girls from all walks of life, religion or race. The Girl Scout organization is recommended by churchmen of all faiths, she said.

"This splendid youth movement from reality, Scout leaders try to train the girls to be practical through various kinds of service to the community. She said in conclusion when 8,000 women from all over the world gathered in conformity," she was referring to the Girl Scout leader's hat.

Miss Evaline Penland, local Girl Scout commissioner, presented awards to the following adult workers: five years of service—Mrs. Stanley Baldwin and Mrs. Marie Smith; 10 years, Mrs. Eleanor Gates and Mrs. George W. Jones; 15 years, Mrs. Mary Reilly; 20 years, Miss Joyce Wetherell.

The annual report indicates a total of 1,362 persons enrolled in Manchester scouting, of which 188 are adult volunteer workers. A total of 1,570 hours was spent by these adults in various courses and conferences studying the best methods of doing Girl Scout jobs. The financial report indicates a total income of $9,366 from the fund drive, sale of cookies, camp fees and miscellaneous, with total expenditures of $5,000.

Of the latter amount, camp expenses were $2,148, with staff and office expenses amounting to $2,400. The balance of the money was split up among the various committees such as training, program, etc.

The dinner was served by the Stanley group of South Methodist Church. Mrs. J. V. Carlson was general chairman of the affair. Her committee was composed of Mrs. Bruce Miller, publicity; Miss Jessie Hewitt, Mrs. Alfred Sandquist, Mrs. James E. Smith, Mrs. Eugene Freeman, tickets; Mrs. Edward Pater, Mrs. Forrest Howell, Mrs. Edwin Meyer, Mrs. Ruth Miller, Mrs. Edmond Moroney, Mrs. Edward Mortuary, Mrs. Gordon Todd, table decorations.

The head table was tastefully decorated in green and yellow with miniature scenes depicting the work required to earn Girl Scout badges. Other tables held scenes which represented the various programs offered in Girl Scouting.

Following the dinner, the Greenhills, the Girl Scout Glee Club, directed by Mrs. Herman Peterson, presented several songs. Group singing throughout the evening was led by Miss Eleanor Gordon.

Your Income Tax Special Break Offered For Some Taxpayers

Second of six articles on how to take out your Federal income tax returns.

Washington—Although tax collections are running now at a record high, some income taxpayers get a better break under the laws than they did a couple of years ago.

The group which benefits includes persons who sell their homes at a profit and invest the proceeds in another home. Also, the parents of some income-producing children, unmarried taxpayers who qualify as head of household, and all elderly persons with heavy medical expenses.

It used to be that a taxpayer could not claim an exemption for a dependent if the dependent received $300 or more income during the year. Now he or she is eligible if the income is anything less than $600—same as the exemption.

If you sell your home at a profit, one of the gains now is taxable after the sale you buy a new home costing as much as the former place sold for.

How This Works Out

As an example, suppose you bought a home several years ago for $4,000, sold it last year for $12,000. The $8,000 gain (difference between original cost and sale price) would not be taxable. If your new home cost only $9,000, then $1,000 of the profit would be subject to tax.

A non-married person who qualifies as the head of a household gets special treatment designed to give him (or her) about half the tax benefits accruing to married persons who file joint returns and take advantage of the income splitting privilege.

Schools Push Dimes Total Fund Soars Past $8,000 Mark as Pupils Give $1,224, More to Come

The local March of Dimes total pushed past the $8,000 mark today on the basis of record-breaking contributions by Manchester's school children. Incomplete school returns total $1,224.37, which already exceeds any previous polo school collection by 300 dollars.

For the first time during the current infantile paralysis campaign, Treasurer George Frost was wearing his big-brood victory smile and was predicting that once again the fund-raising job will "go over the top."

"I took the kids to get this drive really rolling," was his cheerful comment today. "The gifts were coming in at a very slow pace but this large school collection has started us rolling and I feel confident on the basis of a full mail bag of coin folders received this morning that the children have inspired their parents to get behind the March of Dimes."

Two schools, Manchester High and St. James' School, have not completed their collection returns so it is evident that the school total will rise several hundred dollars beyond the present total. Individual school returns received to date are as follows: Wadsworth, $144.23; Hollister, $132.52; Washington, $126.12; Green, $115.84; Vesperian, $115.19; Bowers, $107.88; Lincoln, $103.94; Highland Park, $73.87; Harvard, $71.25; Robertson, $70.13; Nathan Hale, $57.83; Cheney Tech, $33.28; South, $31.51; Buckland, $30.08; Keasey, $29; River Lane, $7.05.

Ugly Eczema No Joke

The itching torment of eczema is enough to make anyone wretched and anxious for relief. Sufferers from itching eczema, pimples, angry red blotches or other irritating skin ailments get Peterman's Ointment, 40¢ all drug stores. One application must delight you or money refunded. Also for itching feet, cracks between toes.

Water Rates Decision Is Three Weeks Away

Several Other Matters Facing PUC Hearings On Hike at North End Are Finally Concluded

By JIM SCOTT
The State Public Utilities Commission today ruled a problem, the outcome of which will either add or subtract more than 400 North End customers. Excluded was the latest in a series of hearings that will decide whether the Manchester Water Company application for a hike in consumer rates will be approved.

The executive secretary of the PUC told The Herald today that a decision regarding the application for increased rates would probably "take at least three weeks."

Louis B. Warren said that the PUC also has to consider several other pressing matters in addition to the local application and in view of the fact that the hearing was lengthy one, there was much to be considered. Warren indicated that a transcript of the hearing, taken down by a free-lance reporter, would be about one week away.

Testimony on Rogers
Yesterday's final hearing, reported at the request of the commission and held in the commission's hearing room at the State Office Building, Hartford, was the most surprising session held earlier in several quarters. The testimony revealed one phase of water company activity that was not generally known—a deal to supply the Rogers Corporation with water at little or no cost.

Other amended and revised evidence was of a bookkeeping variety and dealt with provisions for increased revenue or expenditures. Testimony by William Foulds, president and treasurer of the water supplier firm, caused a momentary stir among the opposition when he told questioners that "a deal" had been made in the early days of the water company with payment would appear under "accounts receivable."

This last statement was later amended to mean that Rogers has been billed for water used.

In doubt, whether any actual money was expended by the Rogers Corporation in payment of water money to the water company, Foulds said that the agreement was reached back in the days when the Manchester Water Company received its charter. The date referred to was 1899.

The testimony was one of the highlights in the reopened PUC hearing into the application of the water company for a proposed increase in rates.

The water company president assured the commission that his firm has investigated all possible "free-users" and was of the opinion that any such irregularities have been corrected if they had existed.

Pressed for an answer on the obligation of the Manchester Water Company to the Rogers Corporation would have no objection to the use of the water that came from the Lyall and Foulds plant, it was stated.

The water in question comes from Lyall Brook and supplies a dam at Rogers.

Rogers recanted again the early years of his company when the charter was first granted. "Our first consideration, as it is now, was service to the domestic user. Industrial users came second in the form of payment."

Walter H. Hibbard, head of a citizens' committee opposing the rate increase sought by the water company, asked for copies of the report and meeting held by the Rogers Corporation with water at little or no cost.

Under questioning, he said that since 1900 all water used by the Rogers Corporation has been accounted for and the opposition actual meter readings. Foulds stated that the Rogers Corporation had been billed for water used since 1900 and that such a record of commission members, its staff of experts, and attorneys Raymond A. Johnson for the company and John D. LaBelle retained by the opposition.

Foulds stated that in the future there will be no deviation from regular procedure and the Rogers Corporation will be billed for all water used, not only from the three regular meters but also from the one installed in 1900. Prior to this date, from 1928 on, it was indicated, the corporation had been billed for a "future basis."

There was no elaboration or explanation as to the meaning of the term.

Among the witnesses called to testify for the water company were J. Harold Burns, of the Hartford accounting firm of Burns and Whittelsey; and E. Irvine Ruth, rate expert and former PUC member.

All testified as to the revised figures, how they were arrived at and the reason for their appearance before.

A commissioner asked Foulds if he thought a dividend rate of 4 per cent was satisfactory. Foulds said he didn't believe it was and cited as his reason that a low rate would not attract new investors.

In his closing address to the commission members, LaBelle said he was "confused by a game in which the rules were changed three times" and thought it "incomprehensible that such a situation existed where a company could draw free water."

LaBelle said there were 483 signatures on a petition supported by North End residents opposed to the rate increase sought by the water company. The commission was given the petition.

"We are faced here," he said, "with a question of interlocking companies and free usage of water, something that has gone on for years—and it is difficult to understand."

He told the commission that he didn't believe the rate increase was warranted. If an increase was to be granted it should also be paid by industrial users who would receive some 45 per cent and only water from 15 to 17 per cent of the cost.

Johnson, summing his case in concluding the company's contention that a rate increase is necessary, asked the commission to observe that no attempt was made at concealment of facts or figures, he said he resented any intimation that such was the case.

Company Took Initiative
"The important feature here," he stated, "is not the cost of the water or the Rogers Corporation, but the fact that the company came forward and corrected on its own initiative, any errors that were made in an honest way."

Johnson said the two companies (Rogers and Lyall and Foulds) were in no favoritism among the companies and that each paid its fair share of cost.

This was in answer to a question by Mrs. Helen Fitzpatrick as to whether the Colonial Board Company was metered and if information about that concern was available to the commission.

Foulds said that such information had not been requested.

The reference by LaBelle to "interlocking companies" brought instant protest from the attorney for the Manchester Water Company and Foulds himself. Foulds is a high officer in Lyall and Foulds and the Colonial Board Company in addition to his presidential duties with the water firm.

An earlier PUC hearing ended after three days of testimony (Dec. 1, 15, 16) at which time a parade of witnesses for the water company sought to establish grounds for the proposed rate increase.

The Manchester Water Company seeks increases that would raise its income by $20,500; or an overall boost of some 25 per cent. This would mean, if approved, a 25 per cent increase in the cost of domestic water.

of the company makes it unattractive to possible investors, the company maintains it could not issue stock under such circumstances. Cited as main reasons for desiring a boost in rates were payment of its debt and plant expansion.

The Town Planning Commission listened to objections to all but one of 10 proposals to establish building lines on several streets in town at a public hearing in the Hollister Street School last night, attended by about 70 persons.

action was taken by the commission and chairman Joseph Lutz made it known that the executive session would be held at a later date to study comments made at the two-hour hearing.

Before the meeting was officially under way, Lutz explained the call of the meeting and some of the public questions that had arisen since the notice was posted and publicized. He read a letter from the Board of Directors who asked the commission to make a study of these narrow streets.

The purpose, he said, was to see if building lines could be established on these streets so that, in the future, if the town found it necessary to widen these streets, they would have only narrow streets, which would be a hardship on the city and not buildings.

Mayor Sherwood Bowers wrapped it up by saying the directors didn't want another Pearl street situation.

Jarvis Opposition
The second meeting of the Corporation of Alexander Jarvis opposed a 15-foot building line on Locust street, which runs 188 feet westerly from Main street.

This property is another business block for the corner long used as a parking place. Jarvis was represented by his counsel, Atherton quickly mentioned that his client wasn't looking for a building line, but for the town to buy all his property to fulfill present plans.

Johnson's position in regard to the widening of the street was based on a decision of 1928 when, following a discussion with the Planning Board and the late General Manager George H. Madell, decided that anything more to be done, it would be a one-way street.

In a July 3, 1928, decision, the board changed the existing building line from 3-1/2 feet to 2 feet.

Opposition further claimed, the street is not a main artery for traffic because it is a dead end and no plans to widen Locust street should even be considered without first widening Church street.

Proposed Locust street should be made one way or eliminated. The street was allowed on the north side of the street.

Others Buck Change
Attorney John D. LaBelle, representing several property owners on the north side of the street above the Jarvis property, also opposed the change. He felt the town committed itself with the 1928 decision when it took off the existing line. Persons he represented, he said, were not affected by the line change since they now conform with a 15-foot veranda line and 25 feet building line. However, he pointed out that if the line was established along the easterly end of the street to Main street, the land was taken for widening purposes, the clients would find their front doors opening up on the sidewalk.

Mayor Bowers took the floor to state he probably had much to do with calling the meeting, and pointed out the charter provision for holding a public hearing on the matter. All of this, he said, came about from revelations in the Pearl street situation, which, he said, was done in a hurry.

He noted that some of the streets leading into Main street were so narrow that fire trucks, when proceeding to a fire, always determined the quickest route by the widest, roads for the apparatus.

Gryk In Favor
Attorney Wesley C. Gryk spoke in favor of widening the street. He represented the Berline Gryk on 10-21 Locust street, on the southerly side of the street. Gryk said a bad error was made when the street line was set as the building line on the south side of the street.

He mentioned limited building facilities at the present Jarvis building.

George Marlow, Main street merchant and chairman of the Zoning Board of Appeals, said he spoke for other merchants and the Chamber of Commerce. "He also referred to the loading zone, claiming the existing code only called for a 20-foot loading zone. Reference was made to other cities and the disturbance of one-way streets. He favored widening the street as a one-way street.

Earl Campbell and Walter Hibbard also spoke in favor of making it a one-way street.

Martin Explains Lines
General Manager Richard Martin answered a question broached by Mayor Bowers as to why so many distances being allowed, saying he and engineer Wilfred Maxwell had made a study of the streets and proposed the building lines to conform with existing lines on the streets. Martin also said the establishment of the lines did not mean all that land would be required if widening of the streets were decided, but it would set up a ruling in case of future expansion of business in these areas, requiring buildings to be back from the street a distance.

First National Stores opposed questions two and three, dealing with lines on Maple street.

Park street lines were opposed by Thomas Toomey and Daniel Quirk of 24 Park street. Hibbard favored the proposals here, feeling this was the main artery connecting the Main street with the West Side and noting how the street is wide at the west end of the Park street bridge to the St. James street intersection and then tapering to a narrow street to Main street.

Proposed five-and-a-half-foot building line of 25 feet on the north and south sides of Forest street, Frank D. Cheney, opposed the alteration along with Mrs. David Spencer, Mrs. Spencer, who resides in the last house on Church street, mentioned an accident last year when a car went off the road, down the incline, and into the rear of her home. Lutz said if the lines were established, it would be possible to straighten out most of the curve at the top of the hill.

Establishment of a line on Park street was opposed by Jay Richnow, who said the proposal sought to put the line on the westerly side of the street and he thought it should be on the easterly side. Industrial property is located on the westerly side adjacent to a railroad siding, and he proposed Locust street should be made one way or eliminated. The street was allowed on the north side of the street.

It was the first in the world

George W. Coy (left) is shown watching boy operator Louis Frost take the first call at the switchboard of the world's first commercial telephone exchange as it opened for business in New Haven, Connecticut, January 28, 1878—75 years ago . . . eight lines, twenty-one subscribers.

THE telephone had been invented two years earlier, but it was Coy's development of a workable "switching board" that made modern telephone service possible. Today, from your home, you can be connected with 85,000 telephones in Connecticut, more than 48,000,000 in the United States, and an additional 35,000,000 in foreign countries. The growth of The Southern New England Telephone Company is the result of 75 years of pioneering under the American system of free enterprise. Telephone research has constantly sought new ways to provide better service and keep the cost down. The company has grown in the strength of its traditions of service while it has grown in size. Today, more than 9,200 Connecticut men and women are working to provide you with the best telephone service in the world.
