All Passengers Land on Shore (Continued from Page One) aboard and crew of 72 officials said. Eight Foot Hole in Bow The Halli Victory brought the bulk of the passengers ashore here despite a yawning eight-foot gash in her bow six feet above the water. She had the Duke of York in tow for awhile but that task was taken over later by tugs at the scene.

The 28,887-ton American-owned, Pan steanship company's vessel, the American, took 91 survivors aboard and hurried to Dover with them. Four were reported seriously injured. Survivors crowded the decks of the Halli Victory as they came slowly into the harbor at Harwich.

Her damage appeared superficial to that suffered by the Duke of York. Everything forward of the superstructure had disappeared on the Duke of York. Capt. R. B. Adams, her master, and a skeleton crew of 15 remained aboard to work the vessel, which was reported taking some water.

The Halli Victory carried a crew of 59 U. S. Civil Service personnel from Bremerhaven to the United States. Sidney L. Baker, the master, ordered a launch with seven men aboard to verify as they brought her into Harwich under her own power on an even keel.

"This is a navy ship," he said, "if you want any information you'll not get it here but from the U. S. Navy in London." Heavy cutting gear was rushed to the crippled British vessel. A British Navy motor launch sped to the area with Navy doctors and blood plasma.

Some Americans were among the survivors brought here. They included Brig. Gen. Hammond McLaughlin, a U. S. Army aviator, and a U. S. Air Force physician, The Defense department in Washington said that Gen. Monroe, a native of Barre, Vt., is Chief of Staff of the Army's Seventh Corps in the European command.

Ferraro's home town was listed as 3 Warren street, Hackensack, N. J. Ferraro gave this account: "People were screaming in the darkness. There were shouts of 'Abandon ship' and 'We're sinking.' The women and children were put in the lifeboats first but the boats were so overcrowded that they couldn't be moved and just drifted helplessly until they were picked up. We picked up an injured German from the sea. He was floating in the water, gasping."

Jack Role, 28, an Amerasia agent, was reported to have been rescued when he landed here. The sea was calm. So was the weather. Everybody behaved pretty well and there was no panic. The crew of the Duke of York shepherded us into lifeboats and we were lowered to the water. Just rowed around for about 15 minutes until we were picked up by the Halli Victory."

Britain. They have been in the Army 3-1/2 years. Laurer and Levickis were among a group of survivors that reached London by special train this afternoon. Most of them were still in night clothes with a jacket or shawl.

Paul Sengel, a Chicago, civil engineer, said the crash awakened him. "At first I thought we had crashed into the wharf and I thought 'How dumb,'" he said. "I was in a lifeboat for two hours. Nobody was panicky. There were many different nationalities, and we all had to cope with language difficulties."

For a time the crew of the Duke of York made preparations to abandon ship. Much of the vessel's forward of the bridge was gone. Later the tow attempt was decided on.

Because the Halli Victory was too large to come alongside the Harwich quay, some of the steamer's passengers were transferred to a second tug, the Gallopier port lightship.

The sea in the area was reported calm with light, broken clouds overhead. The collision occurred in darkness just before dawn. The Duke of York was about 60 miles along in her regular 100-mile run from the Hook of Holland to Harwich. She is operated by the state-owned British Transport Commission.

The first dramatic signal telling of the collision came from the Duke of York at 4:45 a. m. (11:45 p. m. e.d.t. Tuesday). Five minutes later Capt. Adams radioed: "I am sending passengers off ship in boats, require tug."

Then came these messages from the stricken steamer: "4:45 a. m.—'Halli Victory' alongside. Passengers are being put out." "4:50 a. m.—'Standing by to abandon ship.'" "5:22 a. m.—'From the Halli Victory: 'We have almost all passengers off now.'" "7:20 a. m.—'From the Duke of York: 'All passengers cleared from the Duke of York except one. We are trying to release. Whole of bow forward of bridge broken off and sunk. Waiting tug assistance.'" "At 8 a. m. s. a. m. e.d.t., she said: 'Halli Victory attempting to tow us.'"

Throgs Visit South School

Families of Pupils Tour Modernized Building. See Several Displays

The newly-renovated South School threw open its doors last night in a Family Night open house that attracted a large throng of parents, brothers and sisters of South School pupils. The visitors were taken on a complete tour of the building.

A display of items of historical interest was held in Mrs. Theodore Hurst's room. Visitors roamed throughout the building admiring the attractive changes made in the old portion of the building and the pleasant new rooms which accommodate kindergarten, first grade and part of the second grade. The original rooms of the school house the third grade and the kindergarten is now equipped to double for a lunch room and an assembly hall.

Large bulletin boards were used to advantage in each classroom to illustrate the classroom activity and interests of the children.

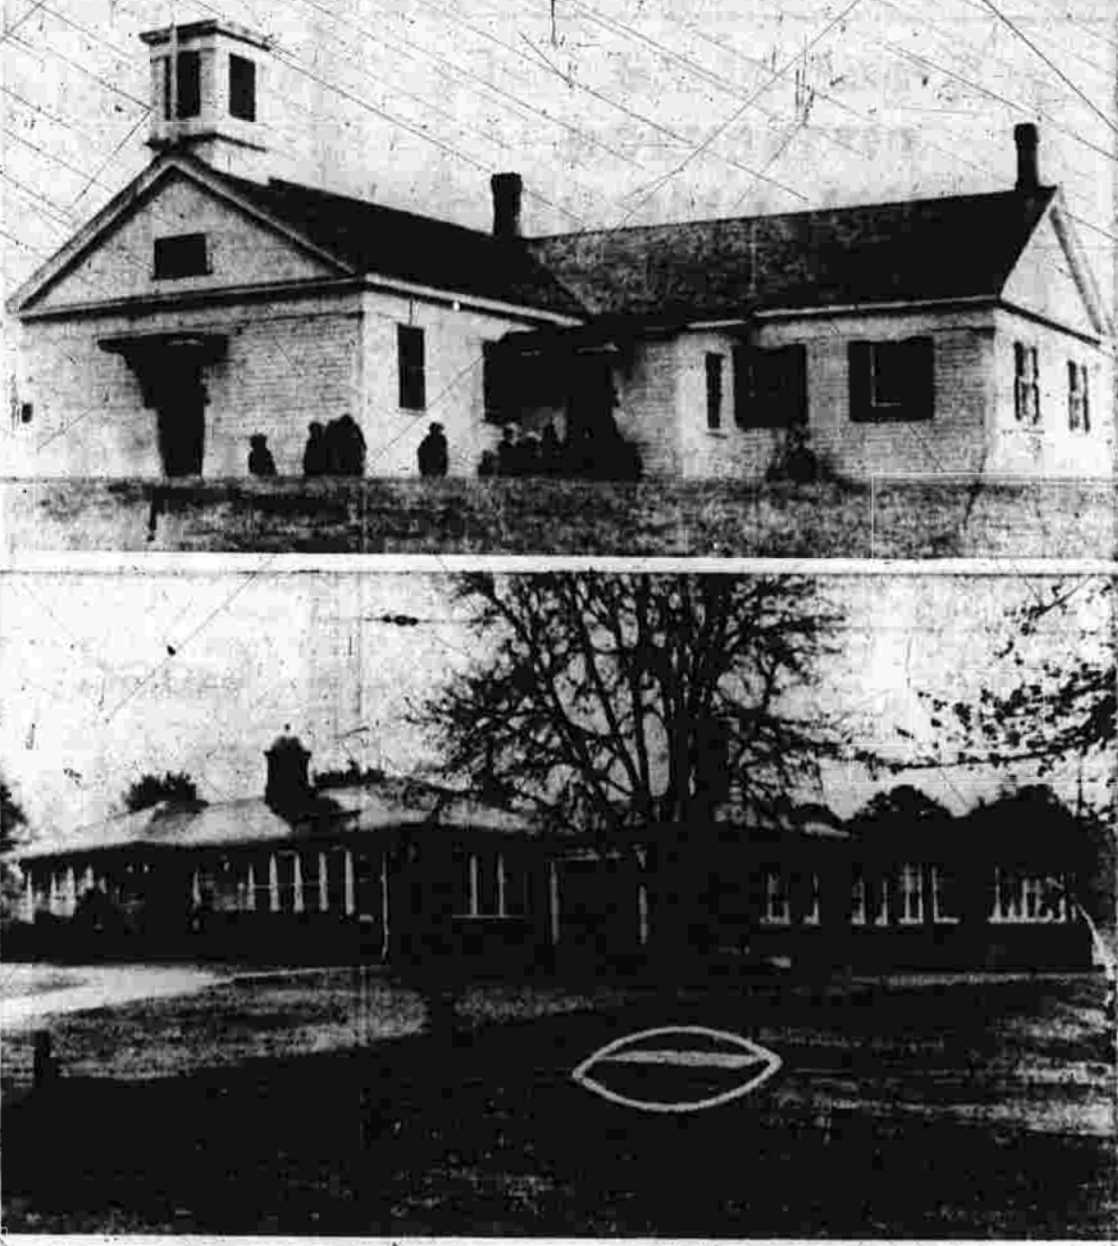

Many exhibits in Mrs. Robert Olson's kindergarten, paintings in water color and finger paint decorated the room. Small paper figures were pinned to the bulletin board to illustrate the story "The Little Rabbit Who Wanted Red Wings." A child size grocery store constructed of big cardboard boxes and large enough to accommodate several small dolls was the center of attraction for all children.

Students in Mrs. Herbert McCann's first and second grade made a poster of South School in 1893 and had an exhibit of their work and the books they use in class.

Members of Mrs. Horst's class brought in old fashioned articles of interest to make up a display to include books, clothing and toys used early in the century. A life-size "Miss Manchester of 1893" was appropriately dressed and stood up against one wall. The students made a poster to illustrate the school as it looked in 1892. They also wrote short essays on old homes in the vicinity, room and home and yard activities of the day and the blizzard of '38.

Parents went to the assembly hall to see the film "The Teacher," picture illustrating the love of her profession by a teacher who found her reward in the response of children. The younger visitors to Family Night were shown cartoons shown by Vincent Ramini. The

Mull Program Of Insurance

Town's Entire Setup Is Studied by Directors, Committee of Agents

Meeting jointly last night the Board of Directors and the town's insurance committee studied the town's entire insurance program. Directors Walter T. Mahoney and Everett Kennedy questioned the insurance committee members on the feasibility of self-insurance for the municipality.

Robert Smith, head of the committee, and other committee members asserted the town was not a large enough business to afford self-insurance. Director Harold A. Turkington also intimated self-insurance involves too great a risk.

In order to insure itself the town would have to build a special fund by writing made a certain amount of revenue each year. Until the fund was large enough to protect the town from any loss through fire or liability, the town could also have to continue paying premiums on existing policies.

Smith told the board a revision

Parents of Retarded Children Have Found Mutual Aid, Comfort Through Association

By LEN ZISDENBERG

Shortly after John H. McElreavy of 384 Porter street was discharged from the service in 1946, he and his wife, Jean, took their 3-year-old son, Richard, to the Child Development Center at Yale University in New Haven for an examination. The child had had convulsions, and these had been followed by a contracted period during which the boy was sunk in a lethargy from which he did not seem able to free himself.

The doctor had diagnosed the convulsions as resulting from a form of epilepsy. The illness was regarded by the parents as an understandable effect of the illness. However, after the boy had failed in search of further aid but what they were told there was a sliver from which it took them years to recover.

"Madam," the doctor who examined Richard at the development center told Mrs. McElreavy, "you are waiting your time. You have a child who is never going to grow up. The only thing to do is to put it away and regard it as a cloud which has passed."

That was the McElreavys' introduction to the fact that they had a mentally retarded child.

They left New Haven and came back to Manchester and the start of a lonely and despairing search for help for their child and themselves.

"Our first reaction was not to follow the doctor's advice," Mrs. McElreavy said recently. "We loved the child and wanted to do everything we could for him first. We wouldn't abandon him."

Besides Richard, the McElreavys have a little girl, Ruth, age 6, a happy, alert youngster, who is finishing kindergarten at the Highland Park School. Some people have used Ruth as an argument for having Richard sent away, claiming that it wasn't fair to the normal child. Mrs. McElreavy said, "But we feel the normal child will take its lead from the parents in regard to the abnormal one, and we feel the situation here has worked out well. Ruth loves Richard, and as she gets older, we'll explain more and more of the situation to her. Right now, she knows he is sick and needs care."

The search for help during the early years, the McElreavys followed a route they later learned has been followed by other parents of retarded children. A couple as early as it was fruitless. It took them to specialists from Baltimore to Boston and organized as the Manchester Association for the Help of Retarded Children. A National Association for Retarded Children had been formed two years earlier in 1950, as the capstone of a network of local groups that have since been formed in 23 states: Hawaii, Washington, D. C., and Canada. There are local organizations in 32 towns and cities in Connecticut.

Fourth Association

The social worker organizing the local group had obtained the names of some of the parents of retarded children from training schools for these youngsters and had gotten other names through contacts.

The parents were all strangers to each other at that first meeting, but with the social worker's help, they named a committee to draw up a program for the association and picked a non-paying committee. A few weeks later, the Manchester association was formed, with Mr. McElreavy as chairman, and now it meets on the second Thursday of every month in the Covenant Congregational Church on Spruce street. The next meeting of the group, which now includes 20 families, will mark the end of its first year of operation.

The association proved to be the therapy the McElreavys needed for their own rehabilitation. "When a parent learns his child is 'retarded,'" Mrs. McElreavy said, "he must accept that fact, difficult and heart-breaking as it is, and try to ignore the situation. But more than that, he must stop asking himself, 'Why must it happen to us?' That self-torture and doesn't do any good. He must take an active role and find out what he can do about the situation."

And this is the aid the association provides. It brings together these parents and gives them the opportunity to discuss their problem among themselves and to work cooperatively for the good of their children.

"The association gives the mem-

Cancer Fund Donations Are Still Being Received

With donations of $400 from Cheney Brothers, $50 from the Rogers Corporation and $50 from Manchester Trust Company, among other gifts, the Cancer Crusade total has now reached $2,148.20 according to an announcement by Dr. Robert M. Hayburn, chairman.

Contributions are still coming in, he said, and some gift donations are still expected. The goal of $3,000 has been attained and late donations are continuing the drive well over the top.

Off his coat, which he couldn't do before, and while he still wasn't dressed himself or wash himself, he is learning, and he is also learning to speak.

The McElreavys find that the boy's sleeping habits are better and that he seems happier. As a result of all of this, he appears better adjusted, and is much more companionable.

Next Big Project

The next big project the local group has in mind is the setting aside of a playground area for Manchester's retarded children.

"While we don't want to segregate children segregated," Mr. McElreavy said recently, "it is important that the yet a real children have a playground area of their own. That they won't be laughed at which might happen in a public playground. He would like to see a public playground for the local group is 'just looking now' with the thought of buying or leasing a piece of land.

The campaign to aid retarded children is being carried forward by the state and national as well as the local level. The Connecticut Association for Retarded Children is affiliated, has sponsored a bill now pending in the state legislature which would provide state aid for mentally retarded children on the same basis as provided for physically handicapped children. Under the plan, the state would reimburse the localities for training and care of these children. The state would also reimburse the localities for the cost of the state aid. At the moment, the state is not obligated to pay such a bill, approved it.

Richard, a nine-month-old boy, is among the 11 youngsters attending the McElreavys, and his parents feel he has gained much from the training he has been getting. They say that he has not learned to walk yet, but he can't even open simple containers before started school in October, he can now. He can take

Takes Wiganowske's Plea From Agenda of Planners

A recommended zone law change that would relax the liquor laws here will be withdrawn from the agenda of the Town Planning Commission's meeting tomorrow night.

Attorney George C. Lesner, representing a group of petitioners, said that the petition will be withdrawn and a new application submitted soon.

Lesner declined to comment on what he would be more forthcoming and it will benefit the entire town.

In announcing the withdrawal, Mr. Lesner said he was eager to avoid inconvenience to persons who had planned to appear in support of or opposition to the petition.

Long Litigation

Wiganowske's action in making the application followed a zoning board of appeals decision and two court rulings which resulted in the Imperial Package Store at 218 Spruce street, several weeks ago.

The board's vote permitted him to locate at Spruce street, but the courts overruled on appeal.

The application scheduled for hearing tomorrow proposed to reduce from 1,000 to 800 feet the setback distance between liquor outlets and to amend the rules to include clubs and taverns which stores chiefly engaged in the sale of groceries which sell beer only under a package store permit.

The state legislature is asking for a change from Residential Zone to Business Zone in the area of the Community Plan of land south of Middle Street, near the intersection of Hill's Pond. A town pumping station is located on a portion of the lot. The commission is expected to let the commission it seeks the change for the purpose of erecting a shopping center.

Opposition Expected

Hillard Association, an organization of residents and property owners in the development north of Broad street and north of Middle Street, has announced its opposition to the change and is expected to present a petition and object in a group at the session.

One other zone change request would change from Rural-Residence Zone to Business Zone at the end of Windsor street near the Wilbur Cross Highway.

In conjunction with the Farm Lands request, establishment of a

Advise Move Of Poll Site

Switch Third District Post to Waddell Site, Committee Proposes

A committee on polling places voted last night to recommend to the Board of Directors, Director Harold A. Wadsworth, based on the committee's report, to move the polling site at night, the change might require a new ordinance.

Election officials are determining how to set up machines at the Waddell School and how to plan voting traffic.

Turkington said his group favored retaining the Community Center polling site in the location of voting machines and in traffic handling would be available.

The committee consists of Turkington, Walter T. Mahoney, Harry Fazio, all directors, Walter Gryn, chairman of the Democratic Town committee, Samuel J. Turkington, Jr., assistant town clerk, and a representative of the Republican Town committee, Donald Hemingway, Republican registrar of voters, and Edward Moriarty, Democratic registrar.

ator editorially. McCarthy says the editor was questioned "not as a newspaperman" but as author of a book used in U. S. overseas libraries.
Wechsler, who says he has been initially anti-Red since quitting the Young Communist League at the age of 21, has insisted McCarthy call him in a matter of "editorial comment" through intimidation tactics.
McCarthy has questioned whether Wechsler's declared break with Communism in 1937 was as complete as the editor says. Wechsler told reporters after yesterday's long session that the questioning has been "unpleasantly" about New York Post policies rather than about his book. He said McCarthy "admitted" that the subcommittee has not yet established that any of his books actually appeared in the libraries.
The Senate hearing, however, is a Senate group, the Internal Security subcommittee, meantime was questioned. Charles Kramer, former government employee and now a research economist for the Progressive party.
Kramer refused to answer questions as to whether he is a Communist or was on Soviet spy while working for the government. He pleaded his answers might tend to incriminate him.
Kramer testified his first federal job was with the Agricultural Adjustment Administration in 1933, and that he later worked for other government agencies and three Senate committees. He said his government job was in 1940-41 as a staff member of a Senate Health and Education subcommittee headed by then Senator Claude Pepper (D-N.Y.).
Kramer lives at Croton-on-Hudson, N. Y.

Register 130 Men To Go to Retreat

A total of 130 men have already registered to attend the May 13-16 week-end retreat being held at the Manchester Chapter of the Holy Family Laymen's Retreat League. It was announced last night following a meeting of promoters held at the Knights' Clubhouse.
A few more reservations can still be accepted, and any person wishing to attend are asked to contact John P. McDermott, at 8 Oxford street as soon as possible. The increasing popularity of the retreat has made it necessary to set a limit on the number who can attend.
The retreats are held at the Holy Family Monastery in Farmington under the supervision of Rev. Joseph Leo Flynn. The monastery and retreat house were built at a cost of $200,000 and were opened in February of 1951.
The increasingly large attendance has already necessitated considerable construction of a new wing.
Prior to 1951, retreats were held at the Pastoral community in West Springfield. Many men leave Manchester on Friday, and return Sunday at afternoon.

'Trade Not Aid' Step Seen Necessary by Silverstein

Stull Silverstein, president of the Young Communist League, is now being sponsored by Belgium participants. He said that the "Trade Not Aid" policy is a step toward improving conditions both in Europe and America.
Writing from Brussels at the end of a three-week visit to Belgium which included management seminars in four cities, the local industrialists say: "We just can't go on providing foreign countries with raw goods and refusing to buy their goods."
In the letter, which was dated May 2, Silverstein says that at the seminars in Liege, Ghent, Brussels and Charleroi, the Belgian participants always agreed that credit problems to regularly scheduled seminar subjects which will result in trade not aid and make it possible to evaluate the potentials of a business being accepted here.
Silverstein also says, however, that there are areas in which he has met with defeatist attitudes. "In Ghent, the low wages of Holland was ... offered by another Belgian problem for Belgians to cope with." Labor problems were also high on the list of difficulties complained of by Belgian management officials who Silverstein says feel that the caliber of labor leaders is making dealing with them futile.

Court Cases Court Continues Drug Case Again

Thomas J. Lalley, 34-year-old Hartford man who is trying to avoid prosecution on narcotics charges of two counts, received another continuation of his case here this morning.
He has been charged with obtaining narcotics by fraud, deceit, misrepresentation and subterfuge, both here and in Superior Court in Hartford.
The local case, which is being continued pending developments in Superior Court, was rescheduled today by Judge John S. G. Rotner for May 27, to allow the state's attorney to study a brief filed by Lalley's lawyer. The Hartford man is contending that the drug he allegedly bought both here and in Hartford, paragonic, does not constitute the narcotic statute.
Lalley was arrested here in March after he reportedly made several purchases of paragonic in Manchester drug stores and failed to give his correct name and address as required by state law.
Originally scheduled for March, his hearing in the local court was postponed until April 8, at which time it was postponed again until today. He is free under $10,000.
Vincent Incandella, 19, of South Main street, whose car struck and injured an elderly woman while she was crossing St. James street March 25, was fined $21 on a charge of violation of rules of the road in Town Court this morning.
The accident victim, Mrs. Lucy Lee, 86, was on her way to church when she was struck. She has since been discharged from the hospital, where she was treated for injuries suffered in the accident.
In other cases disposed of this morning, Elsworth A. Mitten, 42, of 539 East Center street, was fined $33 on a charge of violations of rules of the road; Mrs. Bertha Porter, 45, of 50 Millford street, was fined $3 for a parking violation; and Carl J. Nygren, 65, of 303 Oakland street, violations of rules of the road.
The case of Frank J. Yoo, 45, of Warehouse Point, charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, was continued until Saturday.

House's Store Opened 100 Years Ago

Manchester Population Then 2,546

In 1853 House's store first opened for business in Manchester. The town had been incorporated for just 30 years and, by the latest census, Manchester had 2,546 inhabitants; President Franklin Pierce had just been inaugurated, California had been admitted to statehood as the 31st state; Governor Thomas Seymour was Governor of Connecticut; the Hartford, Providence and Fiskhill Railroad had three years previously opened its line through Manchester and a young lawyer, Abraham Lincoln, was just getting into politics out in Illinois.

Edwin M. House was the founder of the business that was to become one of Manchester's traditional institutions. He opened a tailor shop and store on the corner of Main street and Hartford road near the location of the present Methodist Church. He had the opportunity to buy the whole corner for $300 but that was a lot of money in those days so he had to pass up the offer and chose instead to invest his savings in the mercantile business that has carried his name in Manchester for 100 years.

Early History Vague
 Little is known of the early history of the business, and no pictures remain of this original establishment. It is known, however, that the family lived above the shop and that here on Feb. 12, 1854, was born his son, Charles E. House, who for over half a century managed the family business and, when the business was incorporated in 1913, gave it his own name. — C. E. House & Son, Inc.

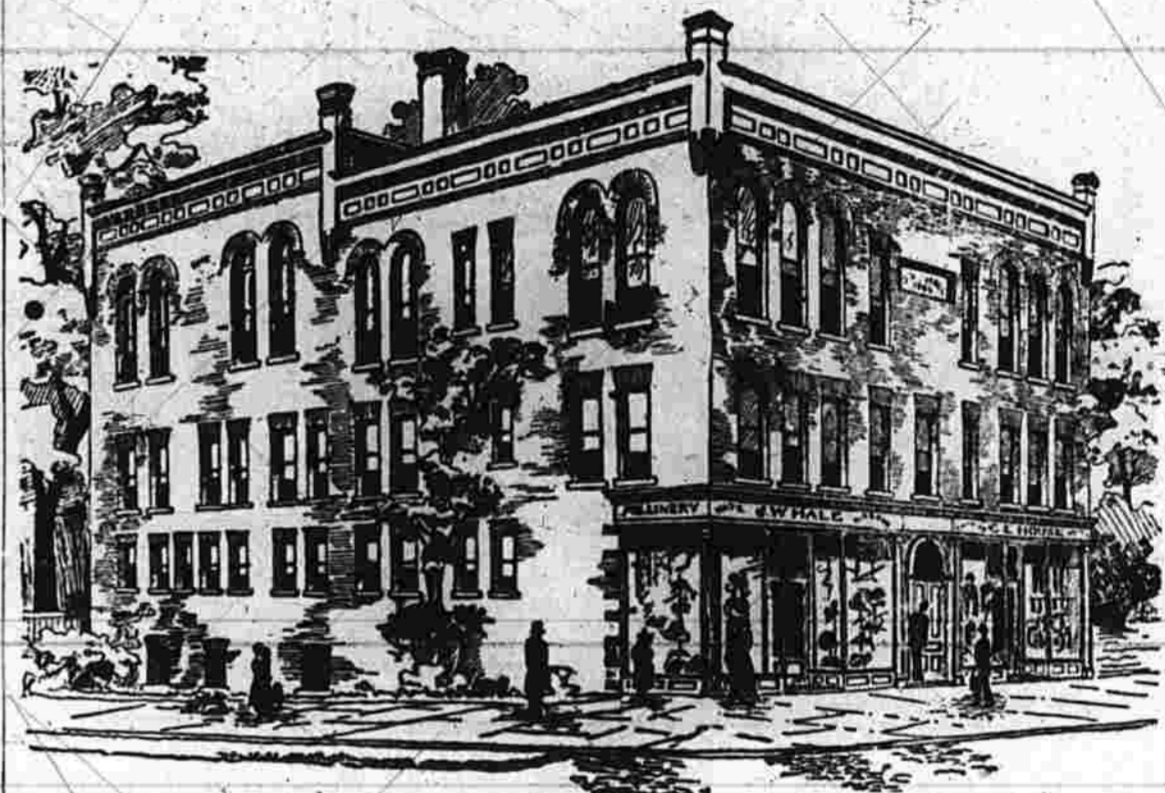

Early records show that in 1860 the location of the store was changed to another building on Charter Oak street just east of the terminus. At that period of Manchester's history the town was divided into three widely separated business areas — Depot square at the North End, which gained its name from the railroad station located there, Manchester Green, which gained its name from the green which is still in existence, and the area at the intersection of Hartford road, Main street and Charter Oak street, which was to acquire the designation of "the terminus" when the trolleys were started and this location was the end of the line which ran from Hartford to Manchester. (At this time it is interesting to remember, Hartford road actually was laid out about 150 feet south of its present location and on old line of trees in front of the Cheney home-lands which now line the street still show the line of planting which designated the borders of Hartford road in its original layout.

Buy's Main St. Land
 Shortly thereafter Edwin M. House purchased from Chauncey B. Knox property on the west side of Main street where the present high school is located. Here Mr. Knox erected a store for the business then conducted by Mr. House, and this was the site of the enterprise until 1872.

It was in 1872 that Charles E. House first joined the family store. He had just graduated from the old Academy which at that time was located on the present site of the Center street. There was no high school in Manchester then and upon graduation from the Academy young Charles House joined his father as an apprentice tailor to learn the trade. With occasional interruptions to attend high school in Hartford and later to go on the road as a salesman for Cheney Brothers he then began his long career as a Manchester businessman which ended only with his death in 1933.

In 1885 Edwin M. House died and the sole responsibility for the business was assumed by C. E. House. In 1876 he had married Grace Bisell, daughter of one of Manchester's early civil engineers. Eli Bisell, whose family farm, running east from Main street, gave the name to the present Bisell street. In 1878 their son, Her-

Early House's Store That Was Destroyed by Fire

This was the building that graced the corner of Main and Oak streets prior to 1909. That was the year that the growing business suffered its greatest setback when the entire block was destroyed by a blaze that started from a waste paper fire at the rear of the building. Hartford firemen came to town to help local companies in their effort to save the structure.

Line of Succession Unique in Business

The Centennial celebration of, and a director of the corporation. C. E. House & Son, Inc., represents a unique celebration in many ways. It is most unusual for any business and especially a retail store business to continue uninteruptedly for 100 years and for that fact alone the occasion would be an unusual one.

In addition to the century of continued operation of the business, however, House's has the unusual distinction of having the full 100 years under the ownership and management of the same family.

Edwin M., Founder
 Edwin M. House, founder of the business, owned and managed it from its beginning in 1853 until his death in 1885. During his later years he was assisted by his son Charles E. House. Upon his father's death, C. E. House assumed management of the store and continued in active management and control until his death in 1933. It was during his lifetime that the business was incorporated and in 1903 his son, Herbert B. House, became associated with him in the business.

Herbert B. House has continued in the active management of the enterprise since the death of his father and is presently treasurer

Balkner Held Loyal Officer

No account of the history of House's would be complete without special mention of Frank G. Balkner, who for over 50 years has been an able and loyal employee and officer of the corporation.

Mr. Balkner, who lives at 102 Ridge street, has been associated with House's in various capacities

Frank G. Balkner

Many Loyal Workers Have Served House's

In commenting on the Centennial Celebration of House's, Herbert B. House has paid special tribute to the many men and women who through the years and currently have given so much to the welfare of the business. "If it were not for the loyal help, cooperation, and understanding of all those who have helped so faithfully through all the years, House's would not be in existence to celebrate its 100th birthday," Mr. House said. "We sincerely appreciate the splendid spirit of cooperation and assistance which our fellow workers have given through the years."

Many of the older residents of Manchester will well remember several well-known employees no longer living who were longtime workers at the store. The late Olaf Nystrom was for over thirty years a familiar figure in House's tailor shop where he carried on the long House tradition of fine tailoring.

During the later years he was ably assisted by the late Paul Schmecke who was an outstanding tailor and the predecessor of John Zelders who since 1933 has managed the basement tailor and alteration shop.

Former Workers
 The late Edward Newton worked in the store for many years and back when ladies high-button shoes were the fashion Josephine Johnson managed the lady's shoe department, before her marriage to former Chief of Police, Samuel Gordon. Frank Elliott was another well known early clerk in the shoe department.

Thomas Brennan and Frank Balkner were clerks in the store when it was incorporated in 1913, and with the incorporation became stockholders and department managers. At the time of his death a few years ago, Mr. Brennan was since 1896. After an apprenticeship as a clerk in a Hartford store Mr. Balkner came to work for C. E. House and has ever since devoted himself to the local business. Primarily interested in the clothing side of the business he has for many years been the manager of the clothing department, and he and Herbert B. House today generally supervise the management of the store.

Fire of 1909
 With the late Thomas A. Brennan as manager of the furnishings department, Mr. Balkner and Herbert B. House have guided the operations of the store during its period of greatest growth.

Mr. Balkner was with the store during the catastrophic fire of 1909 by which time he had become a partner in the enterprise. When the business was incorporated in 1913 he became a stockholder and has ever since served as an officer and director of the corporation. He is today one of the three directors and is secretary of the corporation and is a member of the Knights of Columbus, Campbell Council, Foresters of America and Rockville Lodge of Elks.

Civic Heads Praise Firm

Messages of congratulations from civic and political leaders continued to pour in as C. E. House and Son, Inc., prepared today to open its 100th anniversary celebration.

General Manager Richard Martin commended the store's long record as one of the finest establishments of its kind in Manchester and extended his "heartiest congratulations on this most significant date in a long and distinguished history."

Jack Sanson, president of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, congratulated the store and Herbert B. House, manager and treasurer of the corporation, and expressed his "best wishes for the continuance of the splendid service the store has provided the people of Manchester for the last 100 years."

Senior citizen Fred A. Verplank, retired superintendent of schools, who remembers the store when it was a "small place" on Main street run by Charles E. House, and who knew both Herbert B. and Charles S. when they were students in the Manchester school system, sent his "warmest regards and best wishes."

Bought Bike These
 Another Manchester veteran, Town Clerk Samuel J. Turkington, who also knew three generations of the family and remembers buying his first bike at House's when it had a bicycle agency 50 years ago, said: "I congratulate C. E. House and Son, Inc., on its 100th anniversary. It has been my privilege to trade in the store during the span of three generations of House management. May the company continue to serve Manchester for many years to come."

As an "old friend of the last three generations of the House family," Frank D. Cheney, chairman of the board of directors of Cheney Brothers, we extend our congratulations to C. E. House and Son on its 100th anniversary, and he added, "I hope the town of Manchester can look forward to another 100 years of C. E. House and Son service."

And from the Cheney Brothers, itself, one of the few institutions in Manchester pre-dating House's, came this acknowledgment of the anniversary by Henry Mallory, executive vice president of the company: "On behalf of the employees of Cheney Brothers, we extend our congratulations to C. E. House and Son on its 100th anniversary. 115 years ago it has been a friend and neighbor of C. E. House and Son for the past 100 years. We extend our best wishes for their continued prosperity until the next Centennial, at which time we hope that Cheney Brothers will again be able to send greetings to C. E. House and Son."

Long Association
 Everett K. Keith, president and manager of the G. E. Keith Co. furniture store, another establishment that has had a long tenure on Main street, said, "As one of the older business places in town, we have enjoyed a long and pleasant association for over 50 years." And taking note of the continuous House management of the store, Keith said, "Any store is to be congratulated on staying in business for 100 years and under the same family management."

In a message written by its copublisher, Thomas Ferguson, The Herald added its congratulations. "We at The Herald," the message said, "wish to congratulate C. E. House and Son on the occasion of their 100th anniversary. We have been closely associated ever since The Herald was a weekly paper. Even at that time C. E. House and Son was a well-established business in Manchester. During this long connection we have always felt that the management and staff of House's were close friends rather than associates in business. We would like to take this opportunity to wish C. E. House and Son many more years as fruitful in business and service as has been their last century."

Walter Quinn, president of Quinn's Pharmacy, Inc., also took note of the anniversary, extending his "congratulations and best wishes for continued prosperity."

Household Hints

Marinate cooked snap beans in the liquid left from sweet mixed pickles or gherkins and serve as a relish or with salad greens.

Vary the usual bacon and tomato sandwich by adding thin slices of cucumber. For a delicious luncheon salad, add bits of crumbled bacon to a bowl of greens that have been tossed with French dressing.

Next time you make stewed tomatoes, add a little Worcestershire sauce along with the salt and pepper for good flavor.

To keep your patents in good condition, use white petroleum jelly and a kannel cloth. Buff them well, removing the excess.

Before storing your suedes, give them a thorough cleaning with a dry sponge or a rubber brush. If you use a wire brush, be sure the bristles are extremely fine. To help restore the nap on damaged spots, try using a rubber eraser.

If the suedes are very shiny but otherwise good, it may pay you to have them rebuffed at your shoe repair shop. Stuff the toes with tissue paper or put them on shoe trees before storing.

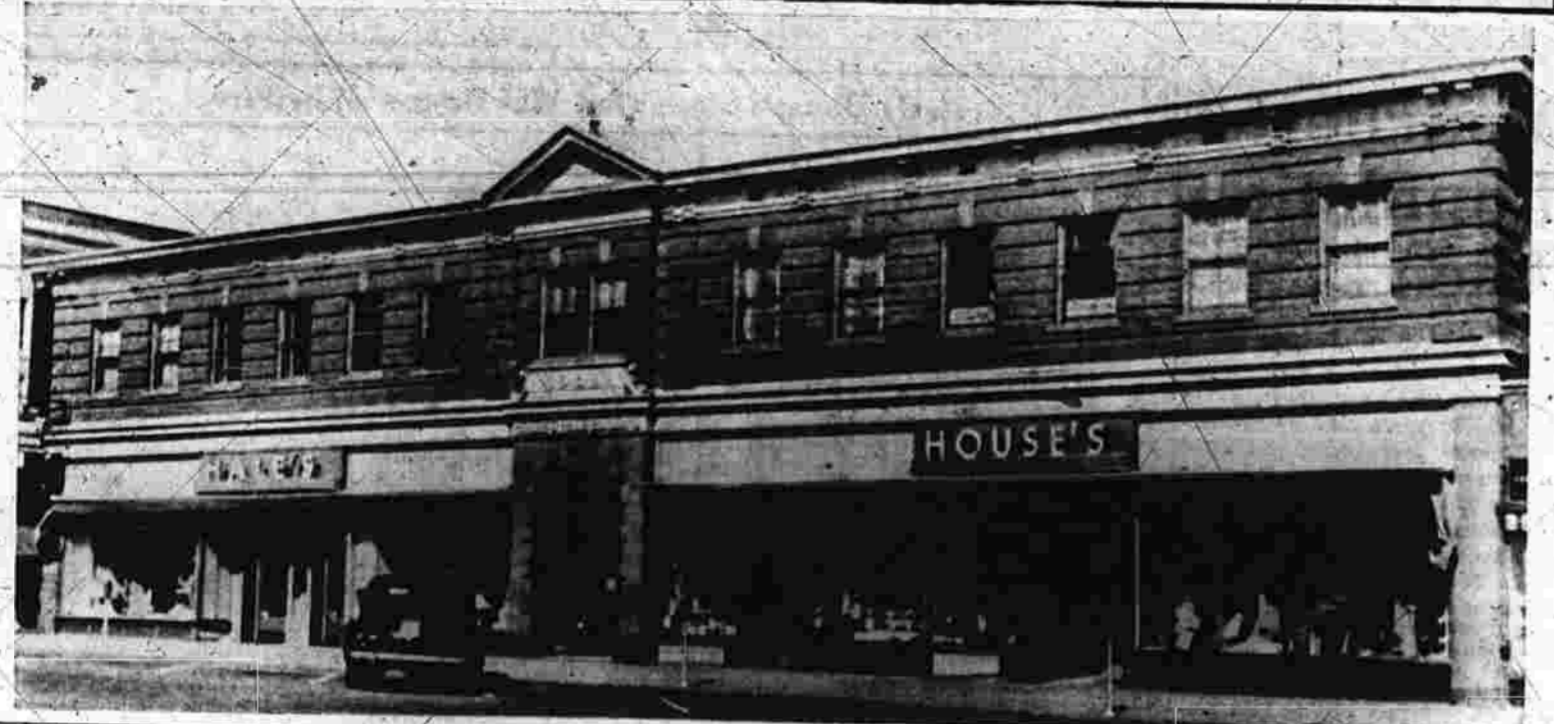

Brush your grain-finish shoes after each use and wipe off your smooth-finish ones. Don't apply polish over the soil.

If you're putting away a pair of leather shoes for a season, rub on some saddle-soap suds to prevent drying out.

Picking a travel wardrobe is easy now, like answering the $64 question. It's mostly a matter of deciding what you want - suit, ensemble, separates or all three. Since airlines have their weight limits on luggage and trains have their limits on space, it's wise to do your planning on paper before you buy. Know just what you will need each day while you're away and try to pick fashions that will perform on many occasions.

To clean starch from an iron, rub beeswax over the face and then use salt or metal cleaner or very fine steel wool. Always insist that a kitchen fan have the "Certified Ratings" label on it to show that it will give the safe performance promised. Plastic playing cards can be washed off with soap and water. Keep a galvanized steel pail of sand or water conveniently near your heating unit. It will help you to extinguish a possible fire. The nightingale often sings in the daytime.

Store Is Remodeled For Gala 'Birthday'

In anticipation of the 100th Birthday celebration House's has been recently completely remodeled and redecorated so that today it is one of the largest and most modern men's stores in New England.

The store is ideally located for convenient shopping in the heart of the Main street shopping center but with ample parking space available in the rear of the store and at the Purnell parking area. In the renovation of the store the front area has been opened so that the entire center section of the store opens out without obstruction to the view from Main street. Three large display windows offer attractive arrangements of the current merchandise offerings and three doors to Main street give easy entrance and exit to the customers.

New Fixtures
The interior has been redecorated in soft shades of green, gray and tan and with an abundance of fluorescent lighting and cleverly designed indirect display lighting all merchandise is well displayed. New fixtures in light gray blend with the background and the tan and red tile flooring make for shopping in quiet pleasant surroundings. Air-conditioning adds to the comfort of the summer shopper.

Along the long north wall is the shoe department which serves the whole family — from tiny infants' booties to ladies' evening slippers and men's heavy work shoes. New lightweight fitting chairs make for comfortable try-ons and the X-ray fitting machine makes certain that the shoes fit properly. Double stock cases provide for storage of the large inventory of shoes which provides a choice of style and model to fit every need.

Shopping Islands
Across the store from the shoe department is the large display of hats. House's has the local franchise from Stetson, one of the world's largest hat manufacturers, and attractively displayed in shopping hat display racks is a choice selection of hats of all styles.

In the center aisles are shopping islands for attractively arranged shirts, ties, jewelry, gloves, collars, belts and other accessories. Samples are neatly arranged for inspection and convenient storage space in the center sections makes available in a moment a large supply from which the customer may make his selection.

In the rear center of the store there are displayed sport shirts, jackets, sweaters, sportswear, swim-wear and an unusually large inventory of trousers of all weights, fabrics and design.

In the rear of the store and along the south wall in well lighted departments are the suits, sports coats, topcoats, overcoats and raincoats which afford one of the largest selections of styling and fabric available in any store.

in the state. Built into the recessed show cases are commodious try-on rooms for fitting and in the basement is the tailor shop, presided over by John Zaldera who carries on in the 100th year of the business the tradition for fine tailoring that was established by Edwin House in the first store in 1853.

Changes with Times
In the basement is the paneled "Boys' Shop" which was recently completed to provide quarters for the expanded Boy Scout Shop and young men's shoes and clothing. Attractively decorated and well lighted, this basement room contains on a smaller scale for boys as complete a line of hats, shoes, shirts, clothing and accessories as is available for their seniors on the main floor.

House's is proud of its renovated quarters and its modern up-to-date minute stock and arrangements for convenient easy shopping. As styles have changed from the frock coat, celluloid collar and high button shoes and lighting has changed from the kerosene lamp to gas lamps to the latest in fluorescent indirect lighting so House's has kept abreast of changing fashions and styles and now starts its second hundred years in the most modern of quarters and with the largest and most complete up-to-date minute quality merchandise in its history.

Old Associate Sends Regards

When informed that House's 100th anniversary celebration was pending, George W. Uchtmann, a retired sales agent now living in Caldwell, N. J., recalled having sold merchandise to Edwin M. House, founder of the business.

In a recent letter to Carl Biemer, manager of House's boys' department, Mr. Uchtmann wrote that he "always enjoyed talking business conditions with him (Edwin M. House)".

Mr. Uchtmann also recalled that when he first came here as a salesman the community was called "South Manchester."

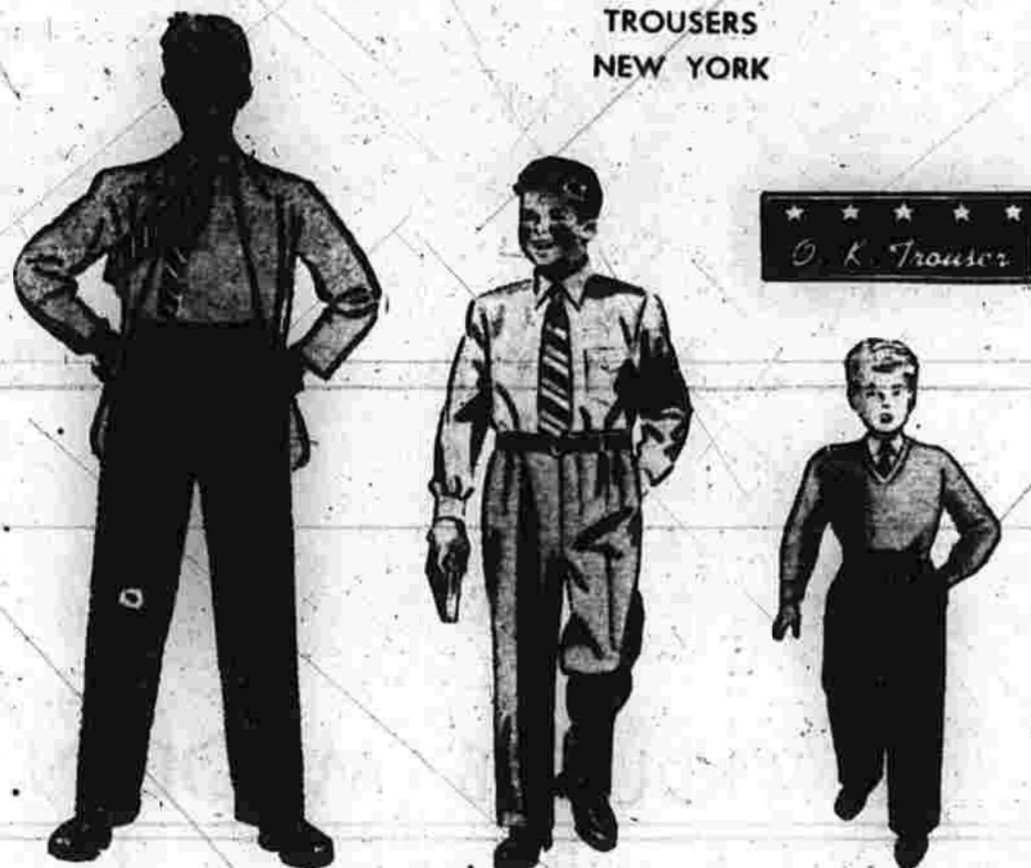

He was employed at that time by R. E. Bonar and Co., beginning 1891 and later for Miller-Allaire Co. Mr. Uchtmann closes by wishing House's great success.

BLUE DEVIL GREAT
Durham, N. C. (AP) — One of the greatest baseball stars ever to play at Duke University was R. M. Gantt, now an attorney in this city. Playing in the first decade of this century, Gantt hurled 14 shutouts, including three no-hit, no-run games.

C. E. House, Civic Leader, Viewed the Town's Growth

Few men in the business life of Manchester have contributed so much to the general activities and government of the town as the late Charles E. House, whose life-time span from 1854 to 1933 saw the gradual development of Manchester from a small village to a city.

Although the business of C. E. House & Son, Inc., to which he gave his name, was his primary interest, Mr. House was active in a large and varied type of activity for the welfare of the town. A staunch Republican, Mr. House served the town in several public capacities. For 20 years he was Republican Registrar of Voters and served several terms as chairman of the Republican Town committee. For three years he was town treasurer and in the course of the following years he was successively justice of the peace, deputy judge of the Town Court, and even served briefly, although layman, as judge of the Town Court.

He, with Fred Sweet and Elwood Ellis, took the census in 1890. In 1893 Mr. House was elected to the General Assembly.

Mr. House was a devoted member of the Center Congregational Church, and served the church through many years in many capacities. One of his first jobs was as janitor of the church at $45 a year, when we had none of the modern conveniences. The church was heated by two stoves in the rear of the auditorium, and it was his duty to cut and pile up the wood necessary to keep the fires going strong during the long church service of the time.

He was a deacon of the church and served as its clerk and treasurer for over 40 years.

In 1901 he was elected secretary and a director of the Manchester Building and Loan Association, positions which he held until his death in 1933. He was also one of the original directors of the Savings Bank of Manchester when it opened for business in 1905, and when the Manchester Trust Company was organized he also served as a director of that institution.

Mr. House was a charter member of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce and served as its president. He became active in the State Chamber of Commerce and in 1914 was one of the American delegates to the International Chamber of Commerce Convention in Paris. He was also a charter member of the Manchester Kiwanis Club.

One of Mr. House's outstanding services to the community was in connection with the war saving campaigns during World War I. "The Spies and Birdwell" History of Manchester in referring to Manchester's outstanding success in these drives says: "One of the memorable war activities in which the town distinguished itself was in the organization and development of the War Savings Campaign. This was entrusted to C. E. House as chairman of the committee, and he was indefatigable in its development."

Watkins Brothers salutes you, C. E. House & Son, on reaching the prime, young age of 100 years. We've got a few years to go but we've been friendly neighbors for 79 years. Guess that makes us Manchester's second oldest retailer. Four generations of Watkins have been your customers!

Retail stores come and go. We can recall numerous stores that were here five, or ten, years ago which no longer exist. For it takes year-in and year-out faithfulness to the shopping public to reach the exalted Century mark. It takes a store's devotion to serving its customers with the best merchandise obtainable at the fairest prices. It takes up-to-the minute storekeeping, too, with one eye always to the future. For it is such a policy that wins continuous good will, from generation to generation.

Such a store is our 100 year old neighbor, and we congratulate him on this long honorable record as a leading Manchester merchant.

Notable Associations Made Through Years

Joint Building Efforts Bring About Erection Of Shared Property With J. W. Hale Firm

No account of the history of C. E. House & Son, Inc. would be complete without reference to the associations of the store with other businesses in Manchester.

The most notable and closest association has been between House's and The J. W. Hale Corporation. Charles E. House and Justus W. Hale together erected the first House and Hale building, which, since 1907, has been occupied by the two stores. In the course of years, the House interests have acquired those of the Hale family, and both stores are now owned as separate corporations by members of the House family.

Herbert B. House is the manager of the J. W. Hale Corporation, as well as C. E. House & Son, Inc. and since the stores were first opened there has been a large connecting doorway between the stores so that customers may pass freely from one store to the other. The most friendly relationships have been maintained between C. E. House & Son and its sister institution, Hale's.

Secretary 30 Years House's has also had a long and interesting association with the Manchester Savings and Loan Association, Inc. Ten years after the association was first started, C. E. House was elected Secretary and assumed in that capacity for over 30 years. His long interest in the association has been continued by his son, Herbert B. House, who is now vice president, and his grandson, Charles S. House, who is a director and attorney for the association.

All during the time of Charles E. House's service with the association, the monthly payments of members were made through the windows of his office in the store. Even during the period when the store occupied its temporary building after the fire, payments were made at the store. When the business of the association had increased to such an extent that it was no longer possible to accommodate its business in the office at House's and the number of directors of the association had increased so that it was no longer convenient for them to hold their customary meetings in the store department of the store after business hours, the association moved next door on Main street into a portion of the building owned by House and Hale, and continued in this location until they acquired their present modern quarters further down on Main street.

maintained very close association with two other financial institutions of Manchester—The Savings Bank of Manchester and The Manchester Trust Company. Charles E. House was one of the incorporators of The Savings Bank of Manchester and was instrumental in securing its charter from the Connecticut General Assembly, and until his death he maintained a close association with the Savings Bank.

When the Manchester Trust Company was organized, Mr.

House was instrumental in this organization and served for many years as a director.

Although there has never been any business affiliation between the two stores, there have been the closest ties between C. E. House and Son and Watkins Brothers, the local furniture store.

Because of the parallel relationships between the Watkins fathers and sons and the House family, there has been over the years an unusual degree of cooperation and assistance between the two businesses, which are located across the street from each other on Oak street.

House's and The Herald Especially through the personal friendship of Charles E. House and Elwood E. House, founder of The Manchester Evening Herald, House's and The Herald have had a long and interesting association. Both Mr. House and Mr. E. House were bicycle enthusiasts in their younger days, and they took several long

Family Serves Local Business

The fourth generation of Houses in the family business is represented by Charles S. House, who since 1934 has served as president and a director of the enterprise started by his great-grandfather. Now a lawyer by profession, Charles House spent his early vacations working through the various departments of the store under the direction of his grandfather and father. Not now actively engaged in the family business, except in an advisory capacity Mr. House, after his graduation from Harvard College and Law School, opened his law office over the family store. With his father, Herbert B. House and Frank Balkner, Mr. House is the third director of the corporation.

Continues Tradition
Continuing a family tradition of public service, Charles House has served Manchester in many varied capacities, most notably as representative and senator in the Connecticut General Assembly, as chairman of the Charter committee which revised Manchester's Town Charter and as chairman of the Manchester Board of Education for the past 10 years. He has been active in Republican politics on a state-wide basis and is presently serving as legal advisor to Governor Lodge.

In the tradition of his grandfather and father, Mr. House is also a director of the J. W. Hale Corporation, the Manchester Savings and Loan Association for which he is also attorney, and the Manchester Trust Company.

..... in February 1905, after 10 years of consideration, Manchester's first bank was opened for business. Until then local stores and factories had to depend on Hartford's banking facilities. At that time (1905) the firm of C. E. House & Son had already been in business over a half century. A brief item such as this demonstrates how deep rooted the firm is in the business life of Manchester. Today we take our hats off to them upon reaching their 100th birthday. To have survived the panics, wars and depressions of a century is truly a mark of accomplishment and bears eloquent testimony to the high regard in which the firm of C. E. House & Son has been held over the years. We have always had a close and warm feeling not only for the firm and its employees but for the House family itself. Congratulations to them all! May they long continue in the honored spot in which the affection of Manchester and surrounding towns has placed them . . . . . Moriarty Brothers,

Records Show Area Covered

Regular Trade Comes
From 25-Mile Radius
For Quality Products

While House's is locally regarded as entirely a Manchester institution it is interesting to note that its reputation for fine merchandise and exceptional quality is recognized over a wide area. The records of the store show regular customers within a radius of 25 miles who have made shopping at House's a regular habit.

Drawing on a trading area that covers a wide arc to the north, east and south, House's has many customers who regularly come to the store from points as distant as Stafford Springs, Storrs, Coventry, Andover, Colchester, Hebron, Bolton and Glastonbury. It is not at all unusual for customers from East Hartford and even Hartford to come to Manchester to trade because of the convenience in shopping and because they find at House's as large and fine a stock of merchandise as they can find anywhere under one roof.

At one time House's expanded its interests to service the Rockville area and in 1915 Charles E. House and the late Charles Murphy of Rockville joined to organize the firm of House & Murphy and purchased the Brigham Clothing Store in that city. This enterprise was continued for many years and the business still continues under the same name but before his death in 1933 Charles E. House had sold out his interest to Mr. Murphy and the local store now confines its business to the well known location at the corner of Main and Oak streets in Manchester.

bert B. House, the present manager of the store was born.

Business Had Grown

Meanwhile the tailor shop had expanded and business had grown. In addition to tailoring, the store now carried a full line of ready-to-wear men's clothes, shoes and furnishings and, as a side line, also had the Manchester agency for Columbia bicycles. It was in connection with this side line that Herbert House first became a worker at the store. It was his earliest chore to manage the bicycle department, demonstrate the newest in cycles and, as was expected in those days, give instructions to purchasers in the technique of riding the two-wheelers.

During this time another business had started which, as the years passed, became closely associated with the business of C. E. House & Son. Hale & Day, a partnership, had started a general merchandise business on Charter Oak street. The "Hale" of the partnership was Justus W. Hale whose name is still carried on Main street in the name of J. W. Hale Corporation.

As the town grew and business expanded north from the Hartford Road-Charter Oak area, C. E. House and J. W. Hale determined that the time had come for a modern business block as far north as Oak street. In 1896 they joined forces in organizing a corporation still known as House & Hale, Inc., and erected the original House & Hale Block at the corner of Oak street and Main street.

Open Clothing Store

Here in the north half of the block, as at present, the Hale enterprise conducted a general department store and in the south half of the block the House family established its store to cater to the clothing needs of men and boys. The second floor of the block was occupied by offices, and on the third floor was the Odd Fellows Hall, scene of many social activities still recalled by some of Manchester's older residents.

At this time Boston was the wholesale business center for the merchandise carried at the store, and C. E. House made many business trips there. He became well acquainted with Fred J. Kennedy, and from this friendship there developed a business connection and buying expeditions which made it possible for the local store to offer an unusually attractive line of merchandise. As Mr. Kennedy's enterprise expanded into the present chain of Kennedy Clothing Stores, Mr. House maintained his interest in the business until Mr. Kennedy's death.

Meanwhile Herbert B. House, the son of C. E. House, had graduated from Manchester's schools and from Harvard and after working for a short time for the New York Central Railroad returned to Manchester to join his father in the family business. It was at this time that the business was incorporated under its present name of C. E. House & Son, Inc. Together with C. E. House and his son the other incorporators were: Frank G. Balkner, present secretary of the corporation and the late Thomas Brennan, both of whom had earlier joined the business and risen to positions of department heads.

Disastrous Fire
It was in 1909 that the business received its greatest setback. On the Monday after Easter, while all the officers of the store were out of the building was set afire from a wastepaper fire. It was a windy day and despite all the efforts of the local fire department with aid from Hartford, the entire block burned to the ground.

The three weeks following the fire were hectic ones. Mr. Hale and C. E. House were determined to continue the business and rebuild as soon as possible. Construction was immediately started on a temporary structure in the rear of the block on Oak street. Mr. Hale and Mr. House themselves felled the apple trees on the lot, aided the carpenters and personally dug the ditches for sewer and drainage pipes.

Just 21 days after the disastrous fire the temporary store was opened for business in the building which subsequently became the first Circle theater on Oak street. During the next year the present House and Hale building was erected and has ever since been the home of the House store.

Acquire Hale Corp.
Later, upon the death of J. W. Hale, the House family acquired his interest in the House and Hale Block and in the 1930's they acquired the controlling interest in the J. W. Hale Corporation which is now operated as an independent but closely allied business to the House store.

Herbert B. House continued to assist his father in the operation of the business until the latter's death in 1933 at which time he became general manager, assisted by Frank Balkner and the late Thomas Brennan. It was at this time that the fourth generation of the family joined the enterprise.

Charles S. House, son of Herbert B. House had continued the family tradition of working in the store during vacations from school and rush periods. Upon his graduation from Harvard Law School he returned to Manchester and opened an office in the House & Hale Block. He was elected president of the corporation, a position which he still holds, and while not now active in the management of the business he also serves as a director and consultant to his father, who now manages both Hale's store and the family business.

Today House's continues as Manchester's oldest and largest retail store catering to men and boys. With a complete line of shoes, furnishings, suits, overcoats and general haberdashery for men, as well as a department for women's shoes, the store has for years used the motto "Head to Foot Clothing."

Extensive Alterations
Despite a 100-year history which can be matched by few other enterprises the store is modern in every detail. During the past year an extensive alteration program was completed. Every department in the store was completely redecorated and redesigned to offer the very latest in service and display.

During May the store is celebrating its 100th birthday.

There is no person now living in Manchester who can remember the early beginnings of the business in the little tailor shop on Hartford road but during the 100 years that its doors have been open for business literally thousands of Manchester people have traded at House's.

While looking back with pride to the tradition and reputation built up over the last 100 years, the store is looking ahead to the future rather than to the past. In commenting on the unusual standards for which the name "House's" stands.

Next in seniority among the present employees at the store, is Miss Sadie Curran, who next year will observe her fortieth year of employment by the store. Miss Curran is buyer in the shoe department and from her long experience in the store is well known to all of House's customers.

Other Employees

Another well-known employee now working in the store is Paul McKay, of 47 White street, who has been employed as a salesman in the shoe department since 1930. Charles Dolchin, of 13 Cottage street, has been employed as a salesman in the furnishings department since 1936. His wife, the late Charlotte Dolchin, was for several years employed as an assistant in the shoe department.

Carl Riemer, of Coventry, has been with the store since 1941 and is the manager of the boys' shop. He is well known to parents and boy scout leaders, as his department includes scouting and cub equipment as well as furnishings and shoes for the younger boys.

Blind Instructor Swim Teacher

Houston—(AP)—While her seeing-eye dog sits for three hours by the side of the YWCA swimming pool, Miss Betty Elbert spends two evenings a week teaching others how to swim.

Betty was blind when she learned to swim three years ago under a Red Cross program. Now she's taking the instructor's course because "I want to learn how to teach others so that I can instruct blind persons like myself," she says. "I know their problems of learning by ear and instinct rather than by sight." The planet Neptune is believed to have a mass about 17 times that of the earth and a density about a quarter of that of the earth.

This is the second store that was owned by the House family. The business was located on the southern end of Main street.

trips together. At that time The Herald was a semi-weekly, so it was their habit to leave town right after the Friday issue had gone to press and spend the weekend on trips, getting back on time for Mr. Ela to get out the Tuesday issue of the paper—which usually contained an account of "the most recent trip of the editor and his friend, the agent for Columbia bicycles."

This close friendship between the Herald and House's continued during the lifetime of the late publisher of the Herald, Thomas Ferguson, who was a close and intimate friend of both Charles E. House and his son, Herbert E. House.

The Circle Theater Another interesting association between House's and a local business has been that between the store and the Circle theater. When the House and Hale Building was destroyed by fire in 1909, a temporary building was erected in the rear of the present store. This building served as quarters for both House's and Hale's while the present building on Main street was reconstructed. When the stores entered their new quarters, the building in the rear became available for other purposes and it was in this building that the first Circle Theater was operated. Customers at House's who have had occasion to go upstairs in the building, have also noted the long association between the store and two well-known local dentists, Dr. A. A. Savage, until his recent retirement, maintained a dental office in the corner suite on the second floor. Dr. Ward Green, the dean of Manchester dentists, has for years maintained his well-known dental office in the southwest corner of the building.

One other very friendly relationship between House's and an unrelated business, is that which has continued between House's and the real estate and insurance business conducted by Robert J. Smith and his son, Robert J. Smith and the late Charles E. House were close personal friends and the Smith Agency has occupied various quarters in the House and Hale Building. When the Savings and Loan Association moved into the Main street office, the Smith Agency occupied quarters on the second floor of the building, and have now returned to their Main street quarters recently vacated by the Savings and Loan.

As might be expected there has been an interesting connection between House's as Manchester's oldest mercantile establishment and Cheney Brothers as Manchester's oldest manufacturing establishment. Cheney's had already been established for 15 years when Edwin M. House first opened his tailor shop, but in the early years the Cheney-Mill furnished employment to a great percentage of Manchester's residents and its growth and prosperity directly affected any store in Manchester—and particularly any store located in the area of town then known as "Cheneyville."

Worked at Cheney's Cheney's has since discontinued the manufacture of its famous Cheney Cravats, but for many years House's was one of the local outlets for this nationally advertised necktie. At one time C. E. House worked as a salesman for the Cheney firm. When Cheney Brothers prepared for the exhibit of its products at the Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia in 1876, Miss Grace Bissell who was then employed at Cheney Brothers, was sent to Philadelphia to help with the exhibition closed and Grace Bissell returned to Manchester she became Mrs. Charles E. House.

The House family records show that young Charles E. House attended the Philadelphia Exposition along with Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey B. Knox. Although there were many and varied attractions at the famous World's fair—including one of the first public demonstrations of Alexander Graham Bell's recently invented telephone—Mr. House seems to have been particularly attracted to the Cheney exhibit and its pretty young dem-

Juke Tunes May Cost Player 10c

Elmira, N. Y. (AP)—Local jukebox operators claim they may have to raise their rates to 10 cents a play to cover rising costs and deonstrator. Shortly after the exhibition closed and Grace Bissell returned to Manchester she became Mrs. Charles E. House.

One operator says gross receipts are down 80 per cent and claims that after owners of establishments where machines are installed get their cut of receipts, the amount left doesn't cover the cost of the records. And jukeboxes which cost $225 in 1935 now sell for $1,100.

In its many departments House's has become the local outlet for many nationally famous brands. Some well known manufacturers have been supplying their products to House's ever since they first entered the wholesale field.

Occasional trousers are supplied by R & H Pant Co. and Wear-Well Pant Co. White Williamson-Dickie Manufacturing Co. is the source of a large offering of work trousers. Overall come from the well known plant of W. H. Carter Co.

In the large Furnishings Department there are choice representative offerings from Reis, Van Heusen, Cluett & Peabody and the nationally known Arrow line Cuff links, studs, tie clasps and similar jewelry from Shields and Swank ties from Altman, hosiery from Holeproof Hosiery Co., gloves from Merrill Glove Co. and underwear from Tetis and Duofold present other well known brand names.

Stetson Hats
Hats come from the nationally popular Stetson line, luggage is available from Cape Way and for sweaters and jackets there is a choice offering from Alps Sports-wear and Rugby. Swim trunks by Gantner and Van Heusen complete a well-rounded line of clothes for every purpose and occasion.

Recently House's opened a new department in the basement known as the "Boys Shop" which is devoted exclusively to the needs of growing boys. Here are to be found all the essentials for the well dressed younger male, from well tailored suits and dress shoes to the presently popular dungarees and play shoes. Here also is the Manchester Headquarters for Boy Scout and Cub Scout equipment.

For years House's has been the local headquarters for official Boy Scout apparel, handbooks and accessories and neatly displayed in the padded basement "Boys Shop" is a complete array of this merchandise.

Marking 50th Year as Main Street Merchant

Herbert B. House

The year 1953 marks an important milestone in the life of Herbert B. House, grandson of the founder of House's and the store's present treasurer and manager. Not only is it the 100th year of the family business established by his grandfather, but in 1953 Mr. House has already celebrated his own 75th birthday and is this year observing his 50th year as a merchant on Main street.

Mr. House graduated from Manchester High School, attended Wiliston Academy and was graduated from Harvard College in 1902.

After a brief period of employment with the New York Central Railroad he returned to Manchester to assist his father in the family business and for the last 50 years has been a familiar figure in the town's business and community life.

President-Manager of Hale's

Since the death of his father in 1933 Herbert House has been principally engaged in directing the affairs of C. E. House & Son and The J. W. Hale Corporation of which he is also president and manager.

He has been active in the affairs of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, of which he is a past president and has also served as president of the Manchester Kiwanis Club and the Manchester Country Club.

Active for years in the affairs of the Manchester Chapter of the American Red Cross he successfully directed several of its membership campaigns and for many years has been a member of the Permanent Memorial Day committee.

On a state basis, he has been active in retail associations and in 1947 served as president of the Connecticut Retail Merchants Association.

Tell Wife 'Learn to Like Ball Games, Forget Dances'

A restless wife sent me this letter:

"I need some advice, and what married woman doesn't?"

"My husband and I have been married only three years. If it were 20 instead of just three I wouldn't expect so much. But I am 28 years old and I don't consider myself an old woman."

"The first year of our marriage we went out often with friends, sometimes as a couple. We now have a baby one year old but I can't see any reason why this should stop us from ever going out."

"I don't often ask him to go out for when I do I usually hear that he is too tired after working all day (eight hours). He doesn't work Sundays so he could rest all day Sunday if he gets tired that easily. I don't ask him to go out during the week."

"My husband likes ball games and during baseball season he sees his share of games. Incidentally he is never too tired to go to a ball game."

She Likes to Dance

"I love to dance, and I have been to but one since the baby was born. If I have to blow my top in order to get to go I don't enjoy myself at the dance."

"I hate to start going out by myself at night, but it gets mighty monotonous doing what the other guy wants to do all the time."

"What would you suggest I do?"

Start using soft soap instead of complaining or blowing your top. Tell your husband, next time you want to go to a dance, how much you enjoy going out with him in the evening. Tell him what a good dancer he is, etc. If that doesn't work then you'll have to do what most women married more than a year have to do, forget about dancing. Because as sure as you start going out alone at night there will be trouble.

You've got a husband and a home and a child to think of now. Dancing is a pretty minor issue.

And, by the way, did it ever occur to you that you might get interested in ball games, too? Why do you suppose there are so many married women who are baseball and football fans? It is because they can be taken to a ball game when they can't get taken to a dance?

Abolish Jailing Without Trial

Amman, Jordan — (AP) — Jordan has been enjoying a period of political tranquility since the government of Prime Minister Tewfik Abou Huda abolished emergency laws which permitted imprisonment without trial.

Opposition leader Hazza Majall recently explained that repeal of these laws was the main reason the opposition had calmed down following a period of unrest last November. In an interview with the Jerusalem Daily Falastin, Majall claimed victory for the opposition when the laws were repealed.

Remember when the South End was South Manchester and business was concentrated in a few buildings at what now is the junction of Main Street, Hartford Road and South Main Street... When Cheney Brothers were still doing business in a plant back of where the Main Office is now... When Main Street from the North End to the South End was barely passable in a horse and team and the road dipped clear down to the brook north of the Center where the Gammons-Hoaglund plant is now... When the Union Mill, manufacturers of gingham, was the principal industry in the North End?

... Later came the Hartford, Providence and Fishkill Railroad running through the North End to Willimantic and Cheney Brothers built a private branch line to their mills in the South End. That provided all transportation to the South End except the horse and team until the advent of the electric trolley cars.

Edwin M. House started in business back in those days when business was done in a little group of buildings at the present junction of Main Street, Hartford Road and South Main Street. The business grew steadily and was carried on and expanded by his son, Charles E. House. Under the guidance of Herbert B. House it has become Manchester's largest men's and boys' store, dealing in a complete line of clothing and furnishings for men and boys and footwear for all the family.
