Heard Along Main Street

And on Some of Manchester's Side Streets, Too

To Have or Not to Have? This was the question asked at the meeting of the School Building Committee of how public officials are to be selected and named when they don't.

Conventions Top A recent tour of Manchester has turned up the observation that not only flowers are bursting into bloom this spring, but also a new crop of hair colors, produced by the young ladies of Manchester High School.

Breakdowns don't come too frequently, Fred argued, and when they do the town can always close the school down for a few days and add those days on to the end of the school year.

Fred said it was customary to provide enough boiler capacity to keep the plant heated when one boiler is out of operation, but he seemed reluctant to accept the practice just because every one else does.

It was obviously, it is trying to be sure the cost of the school does not go above the $50,000,000 appropriation. If any decision is made against a possible saving, Fred is eager to see that the money is used in the most judicious manner.

An objection was raised to Fred's suggestion, however. It came from David Chambers, building superintendent and old-timer in Manchester public life. Though not a member of the committee, he is sure others present agreed with him.

Of the town builds a $5,000,000 high school and there is trouble in the boiler room, the school would have to be shut down. That would lead for both the town and the architect, Chambers said.

And yet eliminating some of the boiler capacity might result in a great saving, again, it might be said, according to one young woman who has no idea whether the extra boiler capacity should be provided or not.

That thought is in the knowledge that the town officials will consider it seriously and come to wise decision. The town officials will consider it seriously and come to wise decision.

As a matter of fact even now, most residents follow the lead of the town. They are more likely to follow the lead of the town. They are more likely to follow the lead of the town.

But to get back to the forces we were talking about, just consider the situation underlying. It is not long before that's gone. It is not long before that's gone.

People just assume that the way they are better reaching. It is not long before that's gone. It is not long before that's gone.

Local planners have been concerned. They are more likely to follow the lead of the town. They are more likely to follow the lead of the town.

Liquor Case Fine In East Hartford

Joseph E. Keenan, 17, of 3 Drive D, was fined $50 in East Hartford Town Court this morning on a charge of obtaining liquor by false statement.

Keenan and a companion, John Leader, 27, of 7 Lewis St., were picked up in Manchester by patrolmen drinking beer in a car.

After questioning, the youths were turned over to East Hartford judicial officer Paul Keenan used his 23-year-old brother's operator's license to obtain the beer from a Burnside Avenue package store.

The proprietress of the store, Mrs. Gertrude Polowitzer, was also presented in court this morning and fined $10 for selling liquor to a minor. She indicated she would take an appeal.

About 31 per cent of U. S. farm income in 1948 was derived from meat animals.

New Many Wear FALSE TEETH

With Little Worry
That talk, laugh and eat with ease, false teeth are worn by many people.

How many wear false teeth? A recent survey by the American Dental Association shows that 10 million people wear false teeth.

Actually, the Army already has suspended some civilian employees at Ft. Monmouth for security reasons. Presumably, McCarthy's investigators passed this word to him.

Anyways, McCarthy said the situation had "all the earmarks of extremely dangerous espionage."

A great many come from lips. Some are referred to McCarthy's committee from other Senate committees.

Thus McCarthy is in a position to choose from a wide range of possibilities whatever he thinks is especially desirable to investigate.

He suddenly became so interested in Ft. Monmouth (N. J.) that he interrupted his honeymoon in the West Indies, hastened home and opened an inquiry.

The Monmouth controversy developed while the three Democratic members of the subcommittee were not serving on it. They had walked off months before in protest against a ruling by the GOP majority that gave McCarthy the sole right to hire and fire staff employees.

—who asked not to be identified—did not believe so. He said he was the practice while McCarthy's office.

He called me at my home one night, two hours later, one of McCarthy's agents was in her apartment, "asking the neighbors if they had ever seen me in her apartment, if I had been there late at night and so on."

He is chairman of the committee on government operations and of its permanent subcommittee on investigations. In his recent report he wrote: "This committee is charged with the investigation of the operations of all government departments at all levels, with a view to determining their economy and efficiency."

That covers a lot of ground. Democratic Senators said they would not be asked to testify, but McCarthy's committee has been a member longer than any other.

His own staff and the subcommittee staff are, in effect, one and the same. McCarthy has 15 investigators and 15 clerks and 15 stenographers.

Most of the girls are pretty, this wife, the former Jean Kerr, who he married in 1948. McCarthy takes her to parties and to the White House. She is sometimes with him in the office.

McCarthy's driver, sometimes works around the clock. One of his former speech-writing assistants says "It's nothing for him to call in the morning and work through the night."

McCarthy considers all advice as a matter of opinion. He is a man of few words. He is a man of few words.

The two key men in his operation are the chief counsel, Roy Cohn, and the chief of staff, Francis X. Byrne.

They direct the investigations, receive the day-to-day reports from the agents, advise McCarthy as to the progress of the investigation.

Thus McCarthy is in a position to choose from a wide range of possibilities whatever he thinks is especially desirable to investigate.

Judge King Enters Judgment for Defendant in Mandamus Decision Recorded Saturday at Noon

The complete text of Judge King's decision on the Mandamus action is printed below. The decision was filed with the Clerk of the Tolland County Superior Court in Rockville Saturday afternoon and attorneys in the case received their copies of the decision in the mail this morning.

MEMORANDUM OF DECISION
Each of the foregoing cases was brought to the Superior Court of Hartford County and transferred by stipulation to Tolland County where hearing was commenced on March 19, 1954. By further stipulation the completion of the trial of the issues was transferred to Windham County where the trial was resumed on March 24, 1954, and completed on March 25, 1954.

While there are two separate cases, they involve the same matter and appear to have been brought because of a procedural error in the State's pleadings. The Attorney General is the plaintiff in both cases and the defendant is the Board of Directors of the Manchester School District. The Attorney General seeks a writ of mandamus to compel the defendant to issue a new bid for the construction of the new high school building. The Attorney General also seeks a writ of mandamus to compel the defendant to issue a new bid for the construction of the new high school building. Rubinow Interprets Judge As Upholding Referendum

Atty. Jay E. Rubinow, who argued the case for the mandamus on the Keeney Street school building, said today that Judge King's decision in the Mandamus case was an upholding of the referendum. Rubinow said that the decision was a clear statement that the referendum was valid and that the board of directors was not to be allowed to circumvent it.

Rubinow's statement on the decision was made in a press conference held at his law office. He said that the decision was a landmark case for the state and that it would set a precedent for other similar cases.

Criticizes Use Of Court Rule

Atty. George C. Leamer today criticized the use of court rule in the Mandamus case. He said that the use of court rule was an attempt to circumvent the referendum and that it was an abuse of the court's power.

Leamer's criticism was made in a press conference held at his law office. He said that the use of court rule was a clear violation of the referendum and that it was an attempt to undermine the will of the people.

Susan Ball Weds Starts Honeymoon

Santa Barbara, Calif., April 12 (Special)—Susan Ball and Dick Long whose marriage climaxed Holywood's latest love story, today start their honeymoon with a hotly anticipated trip to the California coast.

The striking brunette actress, who lost her right leg to cancer in January, made one of the year's most beautiful brides as she and the young actor were wed yesterday at El Montecito Presbyterian Church.

The wedding was intensely dramatic, because everyone expected the bride to come down the aisle on crutches. But Susan had vowed she would walk down the aisle unaided, and that she did.

Although she had practiced only six days with her artificial leg, she laid aside her crutches a few minutes before the ceremony.

Italy which rests on the proposed... Nonetesse, Italian justification is conceded possible, if the right price is paid. The price, the Italian theorists seem to have little hesitancy in saying, is Trieste. In 1944, it will be recalled, was promised Trieste to Italy, if it would only vote anti-Communist. And last Oct. 8, with the left still undivided, Secretary of State Dulles suddenly announced that Zora A. of the gift would be delivered immediately. This succeeded in baffling us out of that one, very quickly, and the promise of Oct. 8 is still unkept.

Indications now are, however, that, if Trieste is Italy's price for ratifying EDC, we are seeing what we can do about deepening the price. We have been in paying consultations with Tito, whose domestic economic fortunes have not been too rosy of late, and it is reported that we have been offering him certain promises of economic aid if he will subsidize our Trieste enough to let us give Italy part of it.

It would be a welcome novelty, some day in the affairs of the world, to have some proposition advanced and favored and adopted and put into effect just because it happened to be sound and wise and right.

The Cobalt Bomb

One bomb will not test that the so-called cobalt bomb. We know we can make it, as a result of our successful hydrogen bomb experiments. All we have to do to make a cobalt bomb is to substitute cobalt for the steel casing of the hydrogen bomb. That is a very simple matter.

But we won't ever test it out. The reason we won't test it, even though we make it, is obvious. The cobalt bomb, if it were exploded, would form a radioactive cloud 320 times more deadly than radium. This cloud would spread complete death everywhere it traveled.

If we were to set off a cobalt bomb out in the Pacific, 1,000 miles west of California, this is what would happen, according to Prof. Harrison Brown, nuclear chemist at the California Institute of Technology: "The radioactive dust would reach California in about a day, and New York in four or five days, killing most life as it traverses the continent."

Similarly, the Western powers could explode hydrogen-cobalt bombs on a north-south line about the longitude of France that would destroy all life within a strip of 1,500 miles wide, extending from Leningrad to Odessa, and 3,000 miles deep, from Prague to the Himalayas. Such an attack would produce a scorched earth policy unprecedented in history.

Such extinction of life with sections of continents would represent a relatively localized use of atomic bombs to all.

Making the bombs is very simple. We know how to do it. We may already be manufacturing them. But we cannot test them, because even a test might cause millions of deaths.

Perhaps some will take all this as a guarantee that the cobalt bomb will never be used. But we have to be sensible about such things. The idea of killing millions of people with one bomb is hardly any more shocking than the idea of killing 100,000 people with one bomb was in 1945. Yet that bomb was built and used, and it was used by the nation which considers itself the most civilized nation on earth.

Lyсенко And "Cocktail Hall" Three continues to be Jews out of Moscow which could not come out of Moscow, if the Soviet dictatorship were still entirely the animal it used to be.

The latest item of somewhat revolutionary news is that of an open attack on the theories of Lyсенко, which attained dictatorial supremacy under Stalin in the fields of biology and botany. The attack appears in the magazine Kommunist, considered the highest expression of official party opinion, and the feature of the attack is that it demands that Lyсенко's theories be placed under discussion and examination in a "free struggle of opinion."

A "free struggle of opinion," the mere use of these words is news, if it is not, inside the Soviet Union? In such a free struggle of opinion, it is the opinion of most American scientists, Lyсенко would go down, quickly. That prospect makes us a little sad, for there has always been something engaging about Lyсенко. He had such a charming way of going with some tomato he said he had grown under conditions other scientists considered impossible, and his assault on established scientific theory was so bold that it fronted that we frequently feared

"Ratification And Trieste Italy is not much more friendly to the European Defense Community, which Premier Schuman has now asked the Italian Parliament to ratify, than France. In France, both the extreme nationalist right and the Communist left combine in opposition to the European army project, for their varying reasons. And, although Italy was once in the vanguard from the movement toward a greater federation of Europe, there is not even much middle of the road enthusiasm for that part of the phase of European Divided Will The immediate results of Secretary Dulles' dramatic call for "united action" and then, in a slight demphasis of his own proposal, "united will" on the question of Indo-China, has been to expose a dramatic lack of unity. France, Italy, Britain, and the Philippines are openly divided on the issue. France openly reserves its own freedom to conduct its own policy with regard to Indo-China, at least until the conclusion of the Geneva Conference.

Britain is seemingly not disposed to grant Secretary Dulles much more than some polite disguise of its own refusal to go completely along with him. The Philippines are in a bad and ugly political tangle, in which some very rash things, delightful only to Communist ears, are being said. To date, Dulles has one clear acceptance—that of Thailand. This situation carries two dangers. The first is that Secretary Dulles, who was aiming by this move to get into the Geneva Conference in a position of strength, will go into it in a position of weakness.

Hal Boyle Why the Hangover Is Man's Best Friend

New York (AP)—For some years a group of scholar scientists at Yale University has been studying the problem of what people do to alcohol (and vice versa), and now they are investigating hangovers. Behind this probe is a merciful idea—the wish to find a cure for a hangover.

It can't be done, Frank Merriwell was unable to find a hangover remedy during the period when he made Yale famous. "You don't want the Rover boys, I have heard, spent their adult years in quest of an electric or atomic answer to the hangover, and found heavy state, wearing the Moscow version of zoot suits.

Now we don't know whether Moscow has found the proper cure for teenage problems, but we suggest that it has it right at hand, in its formula for handling Lower-10—in a free struggle of opinion in which the Moscow teenagers are encouraged to take up the problem themselves.

Even Toast Shur, the restaurant owner who collects the more interesting hangovers of his clients and passes them in his memory, book as a hobby, can recommend the morning-after remedy better than "Bloody Mary," which is vodka laced pink with tomato juice. Very popular with advertising men.

But taking another drink, the return to "The Hair of the Dog That Bit You," can not be classified as either a cure or a remedy for a hangover. It can only be regarded as the compounding of a felony, and the postponement of a just punishment.

You will notice that neither Harvard nor the Massachusetts Institute of Technology is pursuing the will-o-the-wisp lure of trying to discover a hangover cure. They may pierce the secret of the atom, but they recognize the limits of science. So does Albert Einstein, who can put the universe in a simple equation, but sensibly has refrained from attempting a solution of the hangover.

One can only say to the true-blue researchers at Yale, "On, Men, On!" But that is like egging on a bird dog to sniff for trail in a suburb. The only thing he can get is practice.

There are two reasons why they will never find a real medical cure for a hangover. First, they started too late. They don't have the material to work on. The 24-hour material, double-throw vibrating hangover is a thing of the past. It went out with prohibition. The present day hangover is just a hangover phrase used by the boys of '54, the real hangover. There were giants in the old days. There aren't any now. No one alive today that I know of could sustain the kind of hangovers the old-timers remounce about.

Second, it is against nature that there should be any cure for a hangover, except time and the acceptance of common sense. Pressure is run too far, must always be followed by pain, the penalty for foolishness. This is the law of living—that stupidity must pay the price.

Scientists are still puzzled over what a hangover really is. They seek a physical explanation to describe a rebellion of the soul. A hangover is only partly a suffering of the body. It is even more a suffering of the spirit, haggard by guilt, fear, and self-recollections for the sin of self-indulgence. In a hangover, the mind hangs on the body as much as the body hangs on the mind. A hangover is a form of self-ite. It is the facing of one's self in an interior mirror—and the universe in a simple equation, but sensibly has refrained from attempting a solution of the hangover.

But taking another drink, the return to "The Hair of the Dog That Bit You," can not be classified as either a cure or a remedy for a hangover. It can only be regarded as the compounding of a felony, and the postponement of a just punishment.

"The First Word" Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do. Luke 23:34. The first word that Jesus uttered upon the cross was a prayer. He had been in the habit of prayer since his youth. We are thrilled that this first word of prayer that he offered was not for himself, but for his murderers. The words that he said were, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do."

France openly reserves its own freedom to conduct its own policy with regard to Indo-China, at least until the conclusion of the Geneva Conference.

Britain is seemingly not disposed to grant Secretary Dulles much more than some polite disguise of its own refusal to go completely along with him. The Philippines are in a bad and ugly political tangle, in which some very rash things, delightful only to Communist ears, are being said. To date, Dulles has one clear acceptance—that of Thailand. This situation carries two dangers. The first is that Secretary Dulles, who was aiming by this move to get into the Geneva Conference in a position of strength, will go into it in a position of weakness.

The second danger is that, in a desperate effort to avoid the first danger, the Dulles policy may result in some new and drastic, and more lonely step, like that being recommended by some of the more passionate advocates of an inevitable war in Congress. Meanwhile, the best analysis in Washington still fails to discover the clear motive for Secretary Dulles' sudden action. It discovers no decision by State Department planners or by the National Security Council, to mention the views of the Indo-China situation in this country, and Mr. Dulles himself, were expressing before the 'united action' speech. It discovers no actual change in the Indo-China military situation to explain it. Only the theory that Mr. Dulles was aiming at creating a certain atmosphere for the Geneva Conference seems to hold much water, and even here there is no clear explanation as to why he should be so intent upon toppling a conference he himself once agreed to.

There is one unfavorable explanation possible. It is that, having agreed to the Geneva Conference, and having immediately encountered criticism from the super-nationalists in Congress, he is back in the old Adamson groove of trying to appease the domestic critics of any effort to go into real negotiations of any kind with the Communist world. But if any clear explanation is still lacking, what is apparent is that Mr. Dulles still has a long way to go before he climbs out of the predicament in which he now finds himself. It is to be hoped that, for the good of the world, a clear showdown one way or the other can be avoided, and the Geneva Conference be restored to its rightful function as a test of Communist intentions, in an atmosphere of negotiation rather than one of ultimatum."

"The Cobalt Bomb One bomb will not test that the so-called cobalt bomb. We know we can make it, as a result of our successful hydrogen bomb experiments. All we have to do to make a cobalt bomb is to substitute cobalt for the steel casing of the hydrogen bomb. That is a very simple matter. But we won't ever test it out. The reason we won't test it, even though we make it, is obvious. The cobalt bomb, if it were exploded, would form a radioactive cloud 320 times more deadly than radium. This cloud would spread complete death everywhere it traveled. If we were to set off a cobalt bomb out in the Pacific, 1,000 miles west of California, this is what would happen, according to Prof. Harrison Brown, nuclear chemist at the California Institute of Technology: 'The radioactive dust would reach California in about a day, and New York in four or five days, killing most life as it traverses the continent.' Similarly, the Western powers could explode hydrogen-cobalt bombs on a north-south line about the longitude of France that would destroy all life within a strip of 1,500 miles wide, extending from Leningrad to Odessa, and 3,000 miles deep, from Prague to the Himalayas. Such an attack would produce a scorched earth policy unprecedented in history. Such extinction of life with sections of continents would represent a relatively localized use of atomic bombs to all. Making the bombs is very simple. We know how to do it. We may already be manufacturing them. But we cannot test them, because even a test might cause millions of deaths. Perhaps some will take all this as a guarantee that the cobalt bomb will never be used. But we have to be sensible about such things. The idea of killing millions of people with one bomb is hardly any more shocking than the idea of killing 100,000 people with one bomb was in 1945. Yet that bomb was built and used, and it was used by the nation which considers itself the most civilized nation on earth. Hal Boyle Why the Hangover Is Man's Best Friend

New York (AP)—For some years a group of scholar scientists at Yale University has been studying the problem of what people do to alcohol (and vice versa), and now they are investigating hangovers. Behind this probe is a merciful idea—the wish to find a cure for a hangover.

It can't be done, Frank Merriwell was unable to find a hangover remedy during the period when he made Yale famous. "You don't want the Rover boys, I have heard, spent their adult years in quest of an electric or atomic answer to the hangover, and found heavy state, wearing the Moscow version of zoot suits.

Now we don't know whether Moscow has found the proper cure for teenage problems, but we suggest that it has it right at hand, in its formula for handling Lower-10—in a free struggle of opinion in which the Moscow teenagers are encouraged to take up the problem themselves.

Even Toast Shur, the restaurant owner who collects the more interesting hangovers of his clients and passes them in his memory, book as a hobby, can recommend the morning-after remedy better than "Bloody Mary," which is vodka laced pink with tomato juice. Very popular with advertising men.

But taking another drink, the return to "The Hair of the Dog That Bit You," can not be classified as either a cure or a remedy for a hangover. It can only be regarded as the compounding of a felony, and the postponement of a just punishment.

You will notice that neither Harvard nor the Massachusetts Institute of Technology is pursuing the will-o-the-wisp lure of trying to discover a hangover cure. They may pierce the secret of the atom, but they recognize the limits of science. So does Albert Einstein, who can put the universe in a simple equation, but sensibly has refrained from attempting a solution of the hangover.

One can only say to the true-blue researchers at Yale, "On, Men, On!" But that is like egging on a bird dog to sniff for trail in a suburb. The only thing he can get is practice.

There are two reasons why they will never find a real medical cure for a hangover. First, they started too late. They don't have the material to work on. The 24-hour material, double-throw vibrating hangover is a thing of the past. It went out with prohibition. The present day hangover is just a hangover phrase used by the boys of '54, the real hangover. There were giants in the old days. There aren't any now. No one alive today that I know of could sustain the kind of hangovers the old-timers remounce about.

Second, it is against nature that there should be any cure for a hangover, except time and the acceptance of common sense. Pressure is run too far, must always be followed by pain, the penalty for foolishness. This is the law of living—that stupidity must pay the price.

Scientists are still puzzled over what a hangover really is. They seek a physical explanation to describe a rebellion of the soul. A hangover is only partly a suffering of the body. It is even more a suffering of the spirit, haggard by guilt, fear, and self-recollections for the sin of self-indulgence. In a hangover, the mind hangs on the body as much as the body hangs on the mind. A hangover is a form of self-ite. It is the facing of one's self in an interior mirror—and the universe in a simple equation, but sensibly has refrained from attempting a solution of the hangover.

Hebron 4-Pots to Hold 1-Pot-Luck Supper At Family Night

Hebron, April 12 (Special)—A 4-H club members are notified of the annual 4-H Family Night, to be held at the Elementary School auditorium, April 22, at 7:30 p.m.

Preparations are being made for the 4-H club members to be the hostesses. The event is for all 4-H'ers and their families in the town and will start with a pot-luck supper at 7:30.

There seems to be quite a lot of 4-H club members either going on now or to come. Among local clubs reorganizing and planning active programs for the year is the "Garden Spots," of which Victor Rydholm is the club leader. A list of club members acting as junior leaders includes Charles Schriber, Allan Rydholm and Zave Lenefsky, all of whom have done records for their clubs.

Charles Schriber and Zave Lenefsky recently received special awards for outstanding dairy records kept during the past year. Charles Schriber was placed third in the dairy class record and received a cash award, besides his ribbon copy of a 4-H book for leaders and teachers.

Zave Lenefsky was placed fourth in the dairy better record class, and received a similar award. The two boys topped their clubs.

Joyce Kinney won a cash award for outstanding dairy records kept during the past year. Arthur Pyrhman, Albert Rydholm and James Novak won a red ribbon and an honor certificate.

The awards were made at the Home Hotel, Monday night, at the Sealtest Foundation sponsors. Thirteen Tolland County youth were prize winners, which means a pretty good showing for local 4-H'ers.

Speaks at Healy Charles Schriber was speaker at the Annual 4-H rally on the importance of keeping record books, and how much they mean to the club members. Charles spent the weekend as a guest at the University of Connecticut, accompanied by other high school students of the University 4-H clubs.

Secretary Listed The secretary of the Gilead Sewing Club, which was held on Monday night, is Margaret Prachia.

A daughter, Gay Ann, was born Tuesday at the Windham Community Memorial Hospital to Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Williams. F. J. Williams is a former member of the Tolland County 4-H club.

Tax Payments Roll In Tax-collector Mrs. F. Ellen Post, who was at the Town Clerk's Office Saturday to receive tax payments, said that for delinquency in coming in fairly well. She said almost all taxpayers are inclined to groan over the size of their taxes. Some of the farmers are assessed $1,000 as their bill to help the town expenses along.

In some cases she will accept partial payments, but says that she is not supposed to do this as a general thing.

Card Party Planned The last of the series of card parties, sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Amston Lake & Lake Road Club, will be held on Monday night, April 19, at the home of Mrs. Martin S. Saxe, Jr. High scores were Mrs. Robert F. Dimmock, Mrs. Martin S. Saxe, Jr., Mrs. C. Burdick and Mrs. Robert A. Fred. Floyd A. Fogel of Gilead was also a winner.

The Auxiliary plans to have another card party series next fall. Proper-Thalatta Miss Beverly Proper of Amston was guest of honor at a bridal shower held recently at the home of Mrs. Harold Field, Mrs. Clifford Pearson and Mrs. Rydholm.

The marriage of Miss Proper to John Thalatta, will take place May 2. She is employed at the Colchester Bank and Thalatta is employed at the Pratt and Whitney Aircraft plant.
