Truck vs. Truck
In Parkway Crash

A Cambridge, Mass., trailer-truck driver was critically injured last night when his truck was struck by another truck parked on the road on the Wilbur Cross Highway in East Hartford.

State Policeman Joseph P. Calkins said Joseph Sears, 39, suffered a fractured skull and spinal injuries when his truck rammed one driven by Guy A. Curtis, 27, of Portland, Maine. Sears was admitted to Hartford Hospital, where his condition at night was reported unchanged.

Parkinson is continuing his investigation.

Easter Weather Kindly
To Hats and Egg Hunt

Manchester residents, like thousands of other Americans, went to the churches of their choice yesterday morning to start off the Easter holiday. Houses of worship were crowded to capacity and, accordingly, the weather was kind.

Easter finery was much in evidence throughout the town. After more than two days of incessant rainfall, nature relented and brought forth a bright, warm, clear day, safe for the most delicate of spring chapeaux.

After-church family gatherings were in order as groups assembled around the dinner table for holiday meals. Heavy weekend traffic gave evidence of the numerous family reunions which took place.

The Easter Bunny, all in all, was very generous to the town's youngsters in Center Springs Park in the successful search for bright-colored eggs hidden by the Bunny beneath leaves and grass.

Few eggs that had been too well camouflaged got trampled, so most spars were damp.

The Golden Egg
Children who found eggs with lucky numbers won baskets and chocolate bunnies. Grand prize, a large basket well stocked with goodies, was won by a young boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Roberts, 47, of Silver Street, Coventry. Wayne found the golden egg.

Robert Alley, chairman of the Junior Chamber of Commerce committee which helped run the affair, and James Herdic, recreation director, both termed the hunt a success.

"We hope it would be the first of an annual event for parents, awarded over the years, that would be a real treat for the youngsters," he said. "We hope it would be the first of an annual event for parents, awarded over the years, that would be a real treat for the youngsters," he said.

Korea and "removal of the Chinese Communist aggressors from Korea." Pyun said South Korea would tolerate a buffer zone that would cut Korea in half. "Any buffer zone," he said, "must be north of the Yalu River. The Yalu is the boundary between Korea and Manchuria."

In announcing South Korea's decision to attend the conference, President Rhee declared "it is a reasonable period of time has passed without concrete results, we know that the United States will consult with us, as it has promised to do, on the abandonment of discussion as a way to peace with Communism and Communists."

Highlights of Rhee's statement:
"We shall do our utmost to bring the conference to a successful conclusion. We shall do our utmost to bring the conference to a successful conclusion. We shall do our utmost to bring the conference to a successful conclusion."

Nebraska's Senate Fill-in
Is Wealthy Widow Rancher

Merriman, Neb., April 19 (AP)—A wealthy widow, who has been called a "cowbelle" moves into the United States Senate this week.

And whether or not 62-year-old Mrs. Eva Bowring writes history as a stateswoman in her allotted seven months, friends say she is a cinch to add a dash of Western color to that august body.

One of Nebraska's wealthiest widows, ranging-riding operator of a 30,000-acre sandhills cattle ranch and a long-time Republican party worker, Mrs. Bowring was appointed Friday to fill part of the unexpired term of Sen. Dwight P. Griswold (R-Neb.).

Griswold died unexpectedly in Washington April 12.

"I'm going to have to ride the fence while in Washington until Mrs. Bowring, who can't keep the ranch, but she can't leave her talk."

"What they have fun in Washington trying to teach me Nebraska," she quips.

What makes her woman in the "mistress of the Bar 89" who studied under the late President Truman in Washington as one of two women Senators and the only Nebraska woman to go to Congress.

Those who know her say she combines a drawing room charm with the ruggedness of the cattle country she loves.

Mrs. Bowring, witty, frank and friendly, is a widow of 12 years.

In 1944 she was widowed for the second time and left with the sprawling ranch near Merriman and all the responsibilities of a going business.

She decided to carry on alone.

"I've not been one to believe that the Lord should make life easy," she says. "He should be making it make you strong."

Backed by the philosophy and belief that one should never order someone else to do anything you couldn't do yourself," Mrs. Bowring has worked and prospered.

She rides her favorite saddle horses, and she has a fine collection of cattle, helping a cow deliver a calf and doing the thousand and one chores demanded of a rancher for eight years and one of the party's favorite "speech-making" campaigns, associates say, it must be only fair that she should be a part of the national scene.

Republican party faithful gathered in Lincoln for their annual state-wide "founder's day" Mrs. Bowring was named. A March blizzard had hit the metropolitan area, and Mrs. Bowring was there when she felt she had made sure her registered horse, "Ford" was safe.

She rode the land to the strong," she says, "and some of us are all here."

Retired Post at First
Nebraska's Republican Gov. Robert Croasby said it took 120 days to persuade Mrs. Bowring to accept the assignment. At one point she flatly refused.

She goes to Washington pledged to support President Eisenhower while reserving the right "to make my own decisions."

With no political ambitions beyond her present assignment, Mrs. Bowring can take a detached view of the party's furor kicked up in Nebraska by Sen. Griswold's death.

Griswold had been expected to seek re-election and GOP politicians were nervous to oppose him. In the seven years since his unexpected death, however, candidates for the six-year term have been filed by Gov. Croasby, state Republican Chairman David Martin of Kearney, and State Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, once a Democratic congressman, now a Republican.

Rep. Carl T. Curtis (R-Neb.) says he can be counted in, too, and is expected to file nomination papers.

Former Gov. Val Peterson, now federal Civil Defense administrator, had admitted to giving thought to filing.

"All of which makes it shape up as one of the toughest public relations campaigns ever seen in Nebraska."

Under state law, Mrs. Bowring's interim appointment lasts until another interim successor can be elected in November. Thus Nebraska voters in November will elect one short-term and one full-term Senator.

Mrs. Bowring will serve until the November election results are certified. The short-term term will serve the month or more remaining before the new full-term Senator takes over.

Daylight Issue
Divides Nation In Two Camps

Daylight saving time rolls around again next Sunday for millions of Americans. Some millions will ignore it.

As in the past, about 45 per cent of the population will clock ahead one hour; 55 per cent will not.

Opposition traditionally has centered in rural areas. Many farmers say that cows and pigs don't know how to tell time, but in those where the sun comes up, animals get up when they are hungry, and the clock, the argument goes, will tell them when they are hungry.

In the bigger cities, however, industrial and office workers, like daylight saving, particularly the extra hour in the evening when they can see the flower beds or play catch with junior.

There is a few new wrinkles this year. Three New England States—Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont—have decided to extend daylight saving for an extra month, until the last day of October.

The District of Columbia, Congress acts as a lower house. Last year, it didn't get around to debating daylight saving, but it did effect automatically at 2 a.m. Sunday.

Some states, like Indiana and Kentucky, have laws forbidding daylight saving, but they are ways of getting around.

The Indiana law, for instance, provides no penalty, so various county commissioners are authorized to decide about daylight saving for the general public. In some counties, the buildings grid along on standard time.

The West Virginia Panhandle, where industrial where it is located, goes for daylight saving.

But the Panhandle's daylight saving period extends from Memorial Day to Labor Day, instead of the usual longer period.

Most states provide local option for daylight saving. Thus cities go ahead or stay back.

States which will have daylight saving, either statewide or locally, include Rhode Island, Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Virginia, Montana, Kentucky, Ohio, Missouri, Indiana, Vermont, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Maryland, West Virginia, New York, New Jersey and the District of Columbia.

Benjamin Franklin is supposed to have thought up daylight saving as early as 1784.

It didn't get into this country, however, until 1918, when Congress by law put it into effect nationwide.

There was so much opposition that the law repealed the next year. The theory of daylight saving is that daylight saving utilizes more natural light, and saves electric power.

Rotary Speaker

Leonard W. Robbins

Leonard W. Robbins of Hartford will be the speaker at the weekly meeting of the Rotary Club of Manchester, Conn., Tuesday evening at the Manchester Country Club. Robbins' topic is going to be "The Story of Language."

Born in Barre, Vt., April 11, 1894, Robbins moved to East Hartford nine years later and has resided there most of the time since. Although at present he lives at 118 Oak St., Hartford, in 1924, Robbins was married. He has a daughter, who is graduated from Middlebury College, Middlebury, Vt., and who is presently employed by Acta.

Robbins' formal schooling consisted of grammar school and two years at Hartford Public High School where he studied Latin and also took a year of Greek. In 1912, he left school to take a position with the Factory Insurance Act.

Volunteering for service in World War I, Robbins spent 22 months overseas with the 102nd Infantry. He was attached to the intelligence section where he acted as translator, examiner, correspondent and statistician. By 1922, the volume of documents became so heavy that he was made official translator and now acts on that capacity full time.

In the course of his work with the intelligence section, Robbins has been called upon to translate from many languages. He has spoken at many public affairs outside his office in Angkor, Cambodia, and in London, England. He has also given considerable time to a variety of other languages, including Japanese, Hindustani and Swahili.

Reservations Due
For Spring Dance

The annual spring dance, one of the most important events in the social calendar of Manchester, is scheduled for Saturday, April 24.

A large committee under the chairmanship of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wilkie, Jr. has planned a most interesting party. The festivities will begin with an opportunity to meet old friends and many of the club members during the cocktail hour, 6:30 to 7 p. m.

With a professional accompaniment providing musical entertainment and hors d'oeuvres "on the house," the committee urgently requests the club members to forego the usual pre-dinner parties at their own homes and gather with their friends and guests at the club's cocktail hour.

Every effort will be made to serve dinner promptly at 7:30 to permit a longer evening program. Chief Bahnsen will serve his complete steak dinner.

All club members have received an invitation with the reservation card attached. The committee urges that these be mailed at once to the club manager. Both the fire laws and seating capacity will limit dinner reservations to the first 65 couples whose cards are received. Reservations will not be required for the inviting after dinner. All members and their guests are cordially invited to enjoy the dancing and good fellowship of the evening. The most moderate tariff. The Society Five will provide music until 1 a. m.

In former years the spring dinner dance was strictly formal. In keeping with the general trend this year's affair will be semi-formal.

In addition to the co-chairmen, Art and Betty Wilkie, Marge and Bill Phelan, Jean and Ed Egan, Somers, Lee and Audrey Beach, Chesley, Dick and Jan Law, Ray and Elaine Owen, Bill and Naomi Lockwood, Hugh and Ava Hamilton and Bill and Marge Hall, make up the committee.

"Via Crucis" Sung
At Center Church

The congregation, which gathered in the sanctuary of Center Congregational Church on Good Friday evening, heard a rendition by the senior choir of J. W. Coyle's "Via Crucis," a sacred cantata the pastor of our Lord written and published in Scotland. It was introduced in this country in 1936 and to Manchester in 1951 by Andrew F. Watson, minister of the church.

Following a brief worship service led by the Rev. Clifford O. Simpson, "Via Crucis" (The Way of the Cross) was presented by the choir of over thirty voices under the direction of Watson.

Soloists who rendered arias and recitatives were: Dorothy Roberts and Margery Keith, soprano; Ida Woodhouse, contralto; Frank Maloney and Henry Janney, tenors; and William Graff and James Brockert, bass.

Bolton Firemen Put Out Blaze In Trailer on Lake Street

Bolton, April 19 (Special)—Firemen in a house trailer on Lake St. East, put out a blaze today at 5:30 p. m. yesterday. The trailer is believed to be the property of Roger Hunt, although Charles Fazio Mascolini had been unable to contact the owner at a late hour last evening.

Smoke was observed coming from the trailer when the call was put in to the fire department. Firemen found entry when the trailer was found to be unoccupied. Damage was done to the trailer, but no one was injured.

Chief Mascolini said the fire seems to have been caused by a cigarette left burning in an ash tray.

Continue Case For One Week East Hartford Woman Charged With Taking Car; Busy Court Day

The case of Dorothy Kendrick, 46, of East Hartford, charged with taking a car without the owner's permission and destruction of private property, was continued for one week in Town Court today.

The East Hartford woman is said to have driven off Thursday in a car in which she had been riding as a passenger while the driver was stopped at a service station in Manchester to get gas and use the telephone.

The car was later found abandoned on Burnside Ave. in East Hartford, with its seat covers tipped. A complaint was lodged with the police and the driver was arrested after her car was found on E. Middle Turnpike Friday. She was granted bonds of $100.

Boivin had been charged with reckless driving and Mrs. Latture with violations of rules of the road. Police said the car driven by the woman was struck by a truck on E. Middle Turnpike Friday. The driver of the truck was arrested and charged with reckless driving and failure to yield to a pedestrian.

Boivin was arrested last month after a disturbance at 22 Tyler Circle in which he is said to have struck his wife and another woman. Smith pleaded guilty to both charges this morning.

Richard J. Bricker, 30, of Hartford, Edward H. Frink, 30, of 67 Goodwin St., and Lawrence J. Bernovich, 25, of 56 Kensington St. were arrested last week as the result of a complaint involving a ransacked automobile, were granted continuances of one week.

Bricker and Frink are being charged with breaking and entry into a motor vehicle with criminal intent.

New Weapons Create Firepower Problems

Two or three army divisions. The control does not go back to a higher headquarters, such as a theater command, where coordination of tactical bomber and fighter-bomber aircraft of the Air Force and Navy is maintained.

Yet the range of the 280 mm. gun and bombardment rocket, and especially of the guided missile, reaches out far ahead obligingly to either side of the normal fighting front of a corps.

Two Danger Factors

Some tacticians see in this rigidity of corps control both potential inefficiency and danger, contending that:

1. A corps headquarters can decide to strike a target which is scheduled for or indeed already may have been taken care of by bombing planes sent by a higher headquarters.

2. Without coordination, planes heading for a target may fly into the path of fire from atomic cannon, missiles or rockets.

The Carolina maneuver will involve ground forces equal to an average corps—two divisions of troops.

Operating on average terrain and under average conditions, the exercise will provide an opportunity for the Army to get set for a claim that its 280 mm. cannon can hit an enemy accurately under conditions which would make the use of tactical bombers—in darkness or at night—difficult.

The problem of pin-pointing a target, a gun firing 40 to 50 miles away could be just as difficult for the cannon as for the bomber. Accuracy is at that range, far beyond vision or check by ground instruments, can be possible only through use of artillery spotter planes, some military men argue.

If a spotter plane can get through to a target, a light bomber or fighter bomber, carrying anything up to an atomic bomb, can reach and find the same target, these experts contend.

Would Wars Be?

They also say that even with a spotter plane, a bracketing fire must be used. It would work this way: With the spotter plane watching, one shell is fired. It may be under the plane's orders to make the target shell short. It may be under the third shell should be on target.

The critics say this is expensive business, even if the two bracketing shells are conventional—non-atomic shells. But they argue that, still worse, the two shots necessary to zero in on the target would warn an enemy that the atomic or high explosive warheads, and its range is equivalent to that of conventional medium-to-long range artillery. The Army announced that the rocket is in large scale production and being delivered to troops units. Its purpose is to provide close fire support in ground combat operations. The Army said it is capable of carrying either atomic or high explosive warheads, and its range is equivalent to that of conventional medium-to-long range artillery. (U. S. Army Has Second Sunrise Service

The sunrise service sponsored by the Salvation Army and held at the Regatta in Center Park yesterday morning was very successful with a good crowd in attendance. This second annual service was conducted this year by Major John Pickup with the Citadel Band and Songsters participating. It was designated last year by Captain Norman Marshall and it is expected that it will become an annual service with other churches joining.

At 9:30 a. m. the Sunday School children presented a fine program under the direction of Miss Gladys White with YFHM Russell Clough as chairman. The young people's band, under the leadership of Robert Richardson, Jr., played several selections and the vocal music was under the direction of Mrs. Lillian Perrett. The newly formed Junior Choir made its debut and was well received.

Before the evening service, the Citadel Band played a half-hour program of Easter music at Manchester Memorial Hospital under the direction of Bandmaster C. Peter Carlson. The evening service was in the form of a musical with the Songsters singing "Break Forth Into Joy" by Barbra and "God So Loved the World" by Stainer. The Band rendered the "Hallelujah Chorus" and "Road to Emmaus" by the Army composer, Dean Goffin. The program concluded with a selection by the male quartet and a short sermon entitled "The Secret Discipline," by Major Pickup.

Naguib Claims Egypt Stronger After Shakeup

and we shall go ahead in a united front in order to attain the objectives of the revolution and to realize the people's aspirations.

Nasser took a special train to Damhough Province in the Nile delta to preside at a ceremony distributing land once owned by the royal family to 168 peasant families.

Government sources said Nasser planned to step up land redistribution and industrial development in the latest lightning shift in the turbulent Egyptian political picture, the young Army officers of the ruling revolutionary council early yesterday ousted the premiership and military government from Naguib to Nasser.

The 53-year-old Naguib, who recently lost out in the fight to reform parliament rule in Egypt, swore in a new cabinet. The first, formal session, lasting less than an hour, was held last night under Nasser. He reportedly outlined general policies. Naguib did not attend.

Nasser now appears firmly entrenched. He has behind him the assets power in Egypt ever since he engineered the 1952 Army rebellion against ex-king.

New Post Created

A new cabinet post, the ministry of presidential affairs, was created. It is expected to have the job of keeping Naguib in a back position where he cannot again threaten the rule of the military council.

Wing Cmdr. Hassan Ibrahim, a member of the council, got the assignment.

The latest changeover, with Nasser and Naguib conferring, laughing and joking, was carried off smoothly and without any disturbance.

The struggle between the two top of reformers three days ago when Naguib collapsed. The Revolutionary Council announced it had cancelled his plans for elections in July.

Nasser announced yesterday that his older rival had stepped down because of ill health and a desire to devote his full time to the post of President.

The reshuffled cabinet includes all members of the council except armed forces commander Maj. Gen. Abdel Hakim Amer, Lt. Col. Anwar El Sadat.

The Army announced the missile is now being delivered to troops for use in support of ground operations. It is powered by a rocket motor and can travel at several times the speed of sound. The Army said the weapon can be equipped with an atomic or conventional type warhead to strike targets deep in enemy rear areas. (U. S. Army Photo via AP Wirephoto).

Ryan on Indochina Viet Nam Can Be Saved But Time Running Out

America's military observers, the Vietnamese army will not be able to hold out for long before the Viet Nam army as an effective fighting force can shoulder responsibility for the defense of its own nation.

No direct powerful propaganda to areas not yet within its grasp. There has been little to counter it. Ho's iron discipline, his rigid control and his total mobilization of the areas he controls, are met by the other side with half measures.

Impossible Situation

Gen. Rene Cogny, French commander in north Indochina, and Maj. Gen. Thomas J. H. Franel, military commander of the U. S. Military Assistance Group, seem wholly agreed it is impossible to separate the political and psychological from the military aspects of the Indochina war. Little has been done by the French and Vietnamese.

Even the French—those who speak frankly—admit Ho has a strong grip on the imagination of a large number of illiterate, landless peasants and even on intellectuals outside the areas he controls. The Vietnamese masses know nothing about the little war between democracy and communism. To many of them, Ho is a Nationalist, a patriot who is going to drive out the foreigners and who is going to give them land.

In free Viet Nam there is no cohesive force, no nationwide, no ideal, no leader who can capture the imagination of the whole people. Nor has there been any effective counter-propaganda to Ho's promise.

To say Chief of State Bao Dai is a puppet leader is to do him a disservice. From all I could gather in Laos and Cambodia in the past, Bao Dai ever did was to create the throne of Annam in late 1945 and join Ho's cabinet as an adviser.

Not Known by Peasants

Bao Dai has almost no connection with the people. A peasant in rice fields knows nothing about him. Intellectuals of the country dislike and even despise him. His influence is limited to a most narrow group. He has never been perceived in the past to be anything but a puppet of the French, never permitted to be a real leader of his country.

On the contrary, to many Vietnamese Ho is a patriotic leader. Only a few know anything about the fact that Ho belongs to Moscow. Some people drifting back from the United States to the United States have heard of the Communist Party. But for the most part, the peasant reaction is one of hope that all foreigners will go home. He wants land and he wants to be left to till it in peace. For him all other things are largely meaningless. Talking to him in terms of intangible ideologies is useless.

In Viet Nam, the reaction to the war against Ho is vigorous from apathy to outright hostility. Vietnamese young men are not happy about being drafted into the French army. Many dodge the draft, or buy their way out, or desert to areas unknown when the draft is near.

No Active Remedies

There is much talk of tightening up loopholes, of rationing and clamping down on black markets and graft. It is well known that Saigon an active black market trade supplies the Vietnamese with food and supplies, for example. But this far, the remedies are only in the talking stage.

The French insist the Vietnamese already have reached the peak of their effort, that the rebel forces can improve in quality with Chinese aid and supplies but not in quantity. Yet the same French admit that Ho's forces even now remain at full strength, despite his steady and heavy losses.

With his system of recruitment, starting at the village level, his pool of reserves seems almost bottomless.

The French say they hope by 1955 to develop a Viet Namese army which can take over national defense. There is even some French hope that by next fall the Vietnamese can take over large areas in the Red River delta of Tonkin and elsewhere, permitting the French to launch a more offensive against Ho. The prospects, however, seem dim.
