farm operator. This was suggested by Aiken as one way of giving the family-sized farm a break in competing with big corporate operators.

3. Which party formula should be used in fixing the levels for government supports? An older formula, now expiring, gives a wheat farmer 25 to 30 cents a bushel more and a cotton farmer 1 to 2 cents more a pound. Parity is a legal standard for farm prices said to be fair to producers in relation to their costs.

4. Whether the administration's flexible price supports should be retained or modified. The House last year passed a bill to scrap them and return to the old system of fixed supports at 90 per cent of parity for basic crops. Many Democrats and some Republicans advocate such a step. The administration, however, contends that such production incentives led to the present huge surpluses.

5. Whether a two-price system should be tried for wheat, rice and other crops. This proposal calls for two price levels — a higher one for crops used for food, and a lower one at market levels for crops exported or used as livestock feed. Neither Eisenhower nor Aiken included this in their recommendations.

Senate in Closed Session

After Aiken had concluded a lengthy questioning session in which he contended he did not know all the details of the administration's new program, the Senate group held a closed session with representatives of all big farm organizations.

There was no unanimity on the proposals by the farm organizations but they agreed to keep working together. Eisenhower said later, "It was encouraged because the area of disagreement is not too large."

Eisenhower said he still hopes to get a new farm measure through Congress by Feb. 1. He predicted the Senate would act after three or four days of debate.

Aiken said in a separate interview.

long as he cooperated in the investigation.

General session Judge John A. Stulen emphasized that the prosecution was in no way accused of any part in the alleged crime.

"Authorities said that although a homicide charge against the two defendants.

"The fact that Morales could establish that he witnessed a girl dead of abortion and could have the girl was Miss Smith, his testimony might be accepted as sufficient proof that a crime did take place."

Miss Smith came from Lebanon, Pa., about a year ago with ambitions of becoming a fashion designer. She met Daniel last June and dated him steadily. She was never seen again after a Christmas Eve rendezvous in Dan's apartment.

In Montreal, newspapers, police and the public were told that a man was picked up because he resembled an artist's drawing of a man wanted in connection with the death in London.

On Jan. 10, five-year-old Susan Cadogan, Cookdon said an earlier report that the man had made a statement to her brother, 9 and 10 years old, as to what he had done.

previously were seized Sunday just after raiding. Here, however, the missionaries had been seen in the jungle.

Abraham Vanderpuy, president of the Inter-missionary Fellowship of Ecuador, said the missionaries had worked since last September to make friends with the Aucas. The diary gave the description of their first meeting, on Jan. 6, with the tribe.

First Contact with Aucas

"Today is a great day for Christ's evangelists. This morning we had our first contact with the Aucas. The beach on the Curaray River is 200 yards long. Edward McChesney was at one end, and I was at the other, and Roger Wood, a missionary, was in the center."

"From time to time we shouted words of the Aucas language which we had learned. Suddenly we heard a loud masculine voice from the other side of the river and immediately three Aucas appeared. Two women and one man waved to us from the opposite river bank. My heart leaped."

"The man probably was about 20 years old. He had a dark complexion, perhaps under 20 and the other about 30. They were completely nude."

"They showed no fear of us, and we were able to take many excellent pictures of them."

The missionaries had many nights over an Indian village on the river and lowered gifts to the tribesmen. The Indians were evidently pleased by the gifts, and the Americans landed on a beach along the river Jan. 3 and put up a prefabricated tent in a tree as an advance camp.

Aucas Bloodthirsty

The Aucas Indians are a naked, bloodthirsty Ecuadorian tribe still living in the stone age.

They know almost nothing of modern civilization. They are savage and brutal. They are a cruel, bloodthirsty people, and they are a danger to the world.

This is the picture presented to a U.S. government agency by field agents who surveyed the region for possible rubber development.

"They are still Stone Age Indians... never contacted by white men or civilization," extremely savage and bloodthirsty," says one report.

Bolton Plan Commission Soliciting For Committee Volunteers

Bolton, Jan. 12 (Special)—The Planning Commission, which is planning a program this week recommended last January in the report of the study committee which led to the creation of the Commission, letters were sent to about 70 towns in the state to solicit volunteers for the study committee.

The Board also distributed printed copies of the study committee's report to the towns. The report was prepared by the study committee, which was created by the Planning Commission in 1954.

Club Chooses Cast for Play
Drama Group to Offer "Life with Mother" in Auditorium March 2

The Broadway play, "Life with Mother," an adaptation from Clarence Day's widely read book, will have a one night engagement in the high school auditorium on Friday, March 2.

The cast will be Linda Nelson, 16, as mother; Bob Anderson, 16, as father; Brown, 16, as son; and John Francis Robinson, 16, as daughter. The play, which has been produced in many schools, is a comedy about a family of five who are living in a small town. The father is a doctor, the mother is a housewife, and the three children are in various stages of adolescence.

Varsity M Group Plans Dance Soon
Plans for a Varsity M dance were begun at the last meeting. When Bill MacArthur, the Varsity M president, asked if the club wanted to have a dance, it was agreed unanimously. No definite plans have been made as yet except that the dance will be held sometime in February.

Bill MacArthur also stated that the drive for books is still continuing. So far the club has collected and delivered 8,000 books and magazines to the various state institutions. The goal of the Varsity M Club is to deliver more than 15,000 books and magazines. If anyone has any books at all, they are asked to bring them in to the MHS office or call the office and a club member will be around to pick them up. "Squat," 27

State Labor Leader Tied To Red Unit

New Haven, Jan. 13 (AP) - A government witness at the trial of eight alleged Communists yesterday said a Connecticut labor leader was a member of a secret defense board that controlled the Communist Party of the United States during the spring of 1954.

The government witness, Harold Dichter of Bridgeport, executive director of the Communist Party of the United States, said he was a member of the defense board which was set up by the Communist Party of the United States to coordinate the defense of the eight men charged with espionage for the Soviet Union.

Dichter, who was a member of the defense board, said he was a member of the Communist Party of the United States during the spring of 1954. He said he was a member of the defense board which was set up by the Communist Party of the United States to coordinate the defense of the eight men charged with espionage for the Soviet Union.

The committee suggested steps to coordinate the three-billion-dollar federal radar system being developed by the Defense Department with the approximately 400-million-dollar air traffic control system, being developed by the Civil Aeronautics Administration (CAA).

It said the radar system "could be adapted to provide the main elements of safe and efficient aircraft separation and traffic control" while also carrying out its defense duties.

The committee said the CAA has been handicapped by insufficient funds and "by the lack of realistic long-range program for the future when commercial aircraft will be operating at 1,000 miles per hour and at altitudes of 40,000 feet or higher, and when operating aircraft may number 117,000, a third more than the figure now."

Sense and Nonsense

The day was drawing to a close, Judge J. Jones, witness and lawyer were all growing weary. Counsel for the prosecution was examining the defendant, an old dork.

Attorney—Exactly how far is it between the two towns?

For some time Uncle was lost in thought, then he said:

Uncle—Bout five miles as the crow flies.

Attorney—You mean "as the crow flies" (leaning forward)—No, Judge. He means "as the fly crows."

Little Frederick was saying his prayers one night. His mother, listening in, lost her breath when she heard: "And please make Tommy stop throwing things at me. By the way, I've mentioned this before."

Mr. Jones was visibly undone as he staggered into the locker room. (Sympathetically)—What's the matter old boy?

Mr. Jones—I just killed my wife, that's what the matter.

Pro—Good God, how did you do that?

Mr. Jones—I was over on the practice tee and didn't see her coming. I took a back swing and hit her on the head. She dropped dead.

Pro—That's tough. What club were you using?

Mr. Jones—A niblick.

Pro—That's the club.

Southern California (home from a vacation trip out of the State)—Ah-ho! Don't the old bus ride nice, now that we've got the lines lined again with this wonderful Los Angeles air?

No one can command greater respect from his neighbors than he is willing to give himself.

A man jinned under his car was being questioned by a policeman. Policeman—Married?

Motorist—No. This is the worst fix I've ever been in.

West End—I'll give you forty dollars for that pup.

Coater—Can't be done, sir. That pup belongs to my wife, an she'd

Florida Base Take-off Site For Satellite

Washington, Jan. 13.—Navy and Air Force announced today that the launching site and earth satellite project will be Patrick Air Force Base, Cocoa, Fla.

The two services said the base was selected "on the basis of operational requirements for large rocket launchings, and is suitable to the scientific needs of the program."

The base has a firing range for rocket and missile tests which extends southeastward over the Atlantic.

The statement recalled a previous announcement that test firings of the components of the satellite would be carried out first, although exact launching dates have not been determined.

It added that a complete "vanguard" satellite unit "will be launched after flight tests of the components indicate that there is a good chance of putting the satellite into orbit."

The satellite plan, to be part of the International Geophysical Year in 1957-58, was announced by President Eisenhower last week.

Under the program, several satellites are to be fired into lower fringes of space. It is anticipated that they will orbit about the earth at altitudes of several hundred miles for several days.

At the time of the President's announcement, scientists said the satellite probably would be about the size of a basketball.

There have been indications since that they were thinking in terms of a somewhat larger sphere.

Last October the Navy, which has been assigned the overall directing of the launching program, announced that a contract for building the vehicle had been let to the Glenn L. Martin Co., Baltimore. The General Electric Co. holds a subcontract with Martin for part of the propulsion system.

The Aerofut Corp. of Azusa, Calif., holds a subcontract for another part.

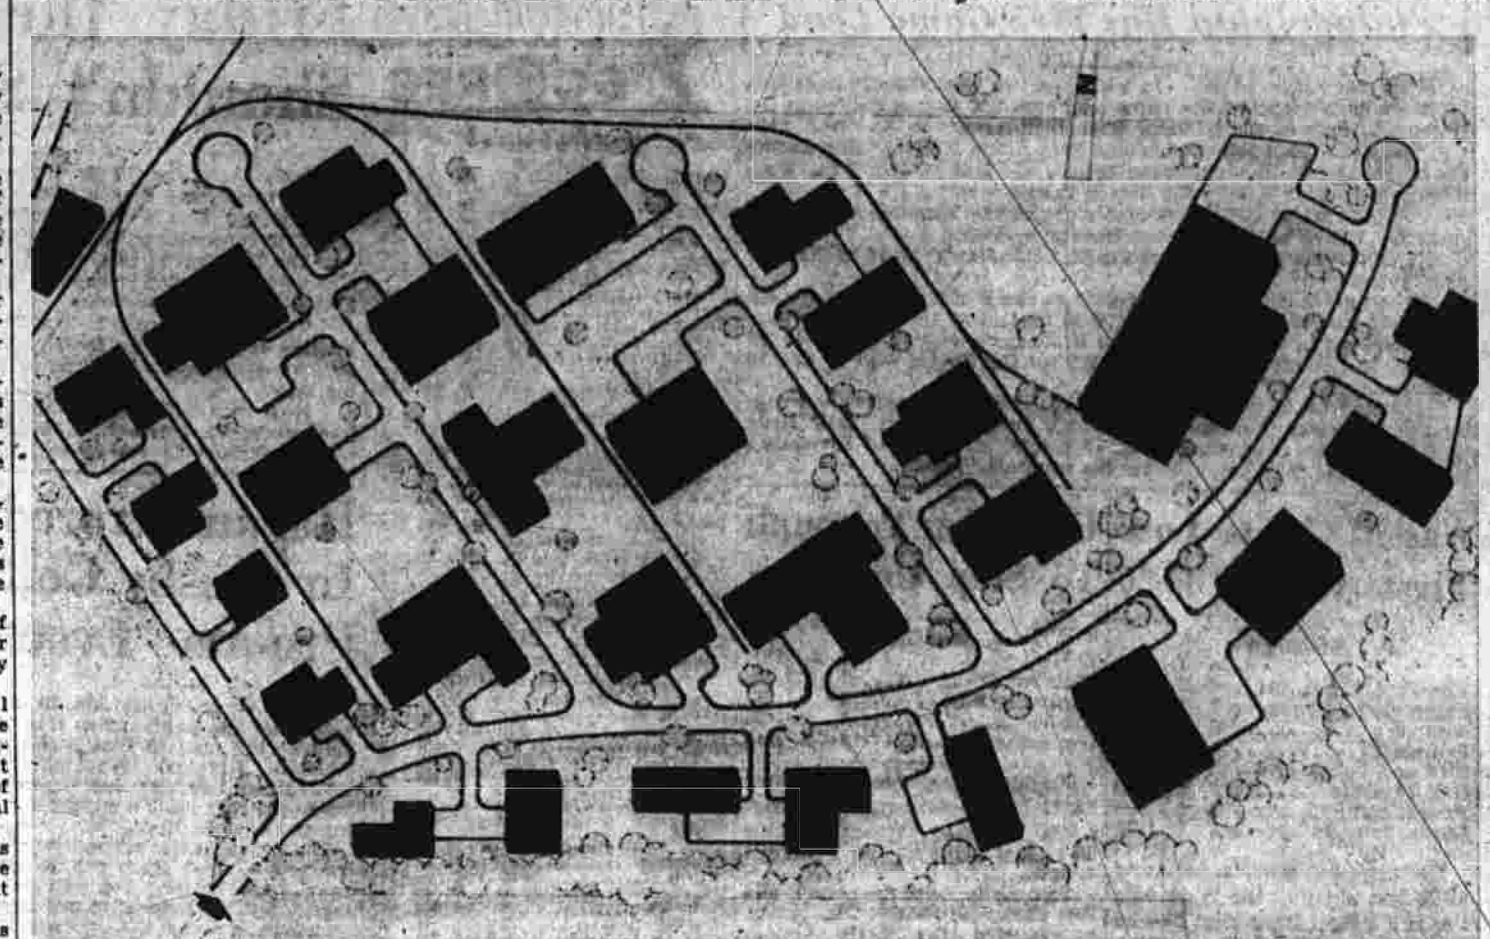

Contracts for other components are being made.

The satellite project is a joint effort of the U.S. National Committee for the International Geophysical Year, established by the National Academy of Sciences, and the Defense Department.

It is part of the projected worldwide cooperative effort by the United States and many other nations including Russia to get new knowledge of the earth, its oceans and the atmosphere above it during the International Geophysical Year.

The satellite project itself is expected to provide a means of obtaining further information about the earth, the sun and the universe—information which conceivably might improve methods for mapping the world, lead to improved radio and other communications, improved weather forecasting, and improved navigation on the sea and in the air.

Green Manor Estates Announces Plans For Industrial Park off Parker Street

Green Manor Estate plans to develop an 88-acre industrial park on land it owns off Parker St. in the northeast section of town.

The firm would build the land to grade, put in utilities and roads, and bring in rail spurs from the New York, New Haven and Hartford tracks that bound the land on the west.

The park would be the first of its kind in Manchester. Plans for the development were disclosed yesterday by Neil Ellis, president of the real estate and development firm.

While Ellis said it was too early to estimate the size of the development in terms of dollars and cents, he ventured that the plan would provide Manchester with a "terrible tax potential."

In announcing plans for the development, Ellis said there is a present "definite shortage of industrial acreage" here and that this factor has discouraged a number of industries from coming into town.

He said the only industrial land here is in "very expensive" parcels of two and three acres.

He also said there are several prospects interested in locating plants in the proposed park but declined to name them at this time.

Must Seek Zone Change

The first hurdle to be cleared before work can begin on the development is the rezoning of a zone problem. The land, north of Lydall and Foulke Paper Co. and about a mile south of the Vernon town line, is in Rural Residence Zone.

However, Green Manor, which yesterday filed its application with the Town Planning Commission to have the zone changed to industrial, is expected to get a sympathetic hearing from that board.

The firm's proposal lies in neatly with plans the TPC has long had for that area.

Willard Maxwell, town planning administrator, when asked to comment on the proposal, said he feels "rather good about it. I am pleased that this company has the foresight to develop this land for industrial purposes."

Maxwell said he could not speak for the Commission but felt that the area is "potentially industrial." In this connection, he went on, "one might assume that the Commission will look with favor on the pending application."

Thomas McPartland, chairman of the town Development Commission, was enthusiastic when informed of Green Manor's proposal. "This is something we've been hoping for for a long time," he said.

The industrial park would enable his commission to offer prospects a definite site already equipped with utilities and reserved for industry, he said. The lack of such a park has been the commission's biggest disadvantage in competing for industry, he declared.

Ellis said Green Manor has been working on the project for a number of months. Plans for the development, to be known as the Green Manor Industrial Park, were prepared by the Manchester architectural firm of Scudieri and Manley.

The park would be similar in purpose to many, but 125 such developments which have cropped up in various parts of the country.

Ellis said Green Manor has been developing a park in its South Manchester section, where it has a writer Co. as the largest tenant.

The purpose of the park is to provide a segregated locale for plants and to give these plants roads, utilities and rail to serve.

Built according to a comprehensive plan, the park is designed to provide easy entrance and exit, and ample parking. Restrictions are placed on the dumping of waste and other nuisances are meant to keep the park orderly, clean and attractive.

Green Manor would either sell or lease the park or build and rent factory buildings, in either case.

Utah Mother Vows To Regain Young

Mrs. Black for two hours yesterday to sign an affidavit which would enable her to keep her children. The document requires that she not teach her children polygamy nor practice it herself.

But she refused and the children immediately were taken into custody.

Welfare Commissioner H. C. Shoemaker said Mrs. Black is one of three wives of Leonard Black, who was among a number of Short Creek men convicted of unlawful cohabitation by Arizona authorities two years ago. Black lives on the Arizona side of the two-state settlement, but his wife Vera lives on the Utah side.

The Blacks are members of a "fundamentalist" cult which believes polygamy is God's law. The fundamentalists say they are following early-day doctrine of the latter-day Saints (Mormons) who lived in Utah in the 1840s.

Mrs. Black, 42, walked there from the meeting and went to an adjoining room where her children waited and told them: "I am going to have to give you up children, but I'll get you back. I love you and I'll fight with every drop of my blood to keep you."

The three smaller children, Emma, 8, William, 14, and Francis, 5, bawled out loud and embraced their mother.

"Don't let them take us!" William cried.

Years ago, Mrs. Black, who was a member of the cult, was taken to the children's home. She was told that everything will be all right for them.

Today the children will be put in foster homes in Provo.

Driver Arrested Following Crash

A Hartford woman was arrested and charged with operating a motor vehicle without a license yesterday afternoon after a two-car wreck on Main St. north of Wells St., police said.

She was Mrs. Loretta Moore, 21, released under $50 bond for court arraignment Jan. 23 after investigation of the accident was completed by Patrolman Emanuel Motola.

He reported a pickup truck driven by Robert P. Donahue, 17, of 90 Cooper Hill St., was heading north and attempted a U-turn when it was struck by a car operated by Mrs. Moore, owned by Ann M. Olynick, Westford.

The woman driver said she was in Manchester seeking a job at the time of the crash.

Motola estimated damage at $300 to the car and $100 to the pickup. No one was injured.

"I'm here to win. I'm going to talk to as many people as possible and include shaking their hands; that's how I like to meet people."

The Senator arrived by automobile in Hampton, near the Massachusetts-New Hampshire border, at 10 a.m. EST, and promptly started shaking hands.

He greeted warmly many reporters and cameramen, some of whom had covered his 1952 campaign here.

Kefauver told them he hopes to better the 5,000 vote margin by which he defeated President Truman in 1952.

He began a three-day political rally in the state in hopes of capturing its eight votes in the Democratic National Convention.

He concluded he is aware of the prestige and more practical political benefits that might stem from a victory in the nation's premier political primary.

As he emerged from his car at the Hampton hotel, he was greeted by a crowd of supporters and photographers.

He addressed a crowd of about 500 people in the hotel ballroom, where he was joined by his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Kefauver.

He said he was "very big help financially to our campaign," the Senator jokingly told a reporter.

Attending Reception
Kefauver then was hosted by a group of local leaders and officials.

Other stops on today's crowded schedule include a luncheon at the hotel and a visit to the state capitol.

He will leave for Rochester, N.Y., tomorrow morning.

Portsmouth, N. H., Jan. 14 (P)—Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.) returned to New Hampshire today and announced he will conduct another vigorous, handshaking campaign in an attempt to repeat his 1952 presidential primary triumph.

Smiling and expressing confidence despite a rainstorm that beat down on him and other members of his party, the tall Tennesseean told newsmen:

"Here to Win
"I'm here to win. I'm going to talk to as many people as possible and include shaking their hands; that's how I like to meet people."
