area, even in the function of making peace.

In such position, something is treated more than peace, more than the actual welfare of the people of the Near East. The nationalistic, great political interests of great outside nations are at stake.

Consequently, in spite of the rivalry between these interests, peace is being spread until it is maintained in the Near East as a result of big power efforts. Perhaps we could bluff Russia down, and use our force to maintain peace in the Near East in spite of Russia. Perhaps both sides, if it actually came to the showdown which we did break over, would sober down and still find a common cause in keeping the war from spreading until it included themselves.

But no such hopeful speculation can alter the unpleasant fact, which is that the United States is in a position of peace or war in the Near East has been made the near danger, because rival big power interests have also focused themselves on the hot spot.

Russia has now gone so far as to imply that, if the United States and Britain try to send troops to the Near East, to preserve order, Russia will comply to the United Nations Security Council about such troop movements.

That would be a novel kind of complaint—a complaint to the United Nations because somebody was trying to prevent a war.

We agree that somebody ought to go to the United Nations. That somebody ought to be the United States and Britain and they ought to go first. They should go to the United Nations to reorganize and to bring about a settlement of the peace in the Near East. The truth is that no great nation or group of great nations should be meddling in the Near East, with power interests of their own reflecting the interests of the United Nations should be in charge, there, representing everybody's interest in peace, and nobody's special interest. And that is not only the right way the issue should be handled, but probably the only way it can be handled to produce peace.

Who can be the reason?

One reason, of course, is Cyprus and the troubles stemming from it. The imperialism topmost in Greek minds is not that which looks to the north, but that which holds the island to the South.

The Cyprus issue led to last fall's anti-Greek riots in Turkey. After these riots, Secretary of State Dulles warned both Greece and Turkey against such violence. The violence had been Turkish. The Greeks had been victims.

Another reason could be that in the United States, after taking its position in Greece, back in 1947, has on various occasions felt that it had to be tough with Greece. It has to be tough with Greece, politicians, for the good of Greece itself. But not even the best-intentioned might get away with directing the politics of another.

A third reason for the present Greek attitude could be far back in the package Britain suddenly bequeathed to us in 1947, and which we so suddenly accepted, in the Truman Doctrine, in a straightforward necessity for battling Communism. There were other things besides Communism in that package. There were Churchill's insistence upon the restoration of the Greek monarchy, and his orders for shooting down Greek patriots whose guns had barely cooled from their fight against the German invaders, and these were factors which stood alongside Communism as causes of Greek unrest and civil war. We bought this package, and we supplied the military means for smashing all revolt, in all its motivations, but the story, to the Greeks themselves, has never been as simple as a thing as a battle against Communism.

Now, because things were never as simple as our policy made them, we have reached a strange and ironical turn of events in which the people we "saved" seem to lack elemental gratitude. But the story isn't that simple now, either, and the future calls for intelligent and understanding policy, which tries to hear with the Greeks instead of condemning them.

Job For The U.N. Only

To put the worst interpretations on the positions taken by Russia and the United States with regard to trouble in the Near East, we could get something like this: Russia, herself helping to fan the flames of war there, says she would rather have war than have peace accomplished without Russia.

The United States and Britain, dedicated to peace and also to preservation of their own sphere of influence, say they want peace, but would rather run the risk of war than run the risk of letting Russian influence get into that.

Dropdles

This case belongs to my nosogood brother, Duke, who happens to be the undefeated (also unrecognized) Yo-Yo Champion of West Virginia. He is unrecognized because during the try-outs for the Olympic Yo-Yo team he got caught up in a mechanical snafu, being bound by the judges for 12 hours and 22 minutes. Naturally he was disqualified, and his championship status was confiscated. This made Duke so mad he decided to "get even" and he formed an Anti-Yo-Yo Society and sent out a letter to the Yo-Yo outlaws. He wrote letters to Congressmen and distributed hundreds of "Yo-Yo Must Go" leaflets all over town but his plans never worked. But for that matter, neither has Duke.

For us and our salvation He takes the road that leads to the cross. We shall behold Him treading the wine-press alone, agonizing in the garden of Gethsemane; being betrayed by Judas and arrested; being bound by the soldiers; being led, scourged and spit upon by His enemies.

We shall walk with Him the 'Via dolorosa' to Calvary. We shall witness the horrors of the crucifixion and hear our Saviour speak precious words. We shall watch God die for man!

So, during Lent, we shall witness the horrors of the crucifixion and hear our Saviour speak precious words. We shall watch God die for man!

Washington, Feb. 20 (AP)—Sen. Bush (R-Conn.) said yesterday he has asked the Office of Defense Mobilization to continue for 90 days the program of setting aside government contracts to be bid on by firms from disaster areas. He said that would help food-hoarding firms full opportunity to take advantage of the program.

Last year may be the name given to the year containing 365 days, but the custom for women to woo during this period has a more interesting connection. Way back in 1286 a law was enacted in Scotland which some believe started the ball rolling.

It is said something like this: "It is stated and ordained that during the reign of his most illustrious Majesty for like years known as the year of the 'Peacemaker', the Spanish Peace Treaty and many other incidents that are not as well known, if you should like to know more about these events, let us help you find the material.

 Urinary tract ailments, such as bladder weakness, are common. They are caused by a number of factors, including infection, poor diet, and lack of exercise. It is important to seek medical advice if you experience any of these symptoms.

Don't Neglect Slipping FALSE TEETH

It is a common error, and one which you can avoid, to neglect your false teeth. They should be cleaned and adjusted regularly to ensure they fit properly and do not cause discomfort or damage to your natural teeth.

The Greek Election

The Greek elections have apparently resulted in a popular victory for the opposition, which was willing to include the Communist in its own broad-based coalition of parties, and a slim parliamentary margin for the pro-western government in power.

The escape from loss, then, seems to narrow a matter of rule can be predicted for the present government. And the implications of the vote stand as a warning to western diplomacy.

It happened that a majority of Greeks preferred a political alignment which would admit the Communists to its own membership over a government which had been making an effort to follow Western policies faithfully. They did this in spite of their past experience with the Communists, and in spite of the millions of American money spent in aid to Greece.

Who can be the reason?

One reason, of course, is Cyprus and the troubles stemming from it. The imperialism topmost in Greek minds is not that which looks to the north, but that which holds the island to the South.

A Thought for Today

The Meaning of Lent

Lent is potentially the most opportune season of the year for the enrichment of our spiritual lives. Traditionally, it begins forty days before Easter, and ends on Easter Sunday. This period of forty days, from Ash Wednesday to Easter Sunday, is observed in the Christian Church by fasting and abstinence to commemorate Jesus' fasting in the wilderness.

The church uses this holy season to remind us of our responsibilities and obligations as followers of Jesus Christ. Our attention will be directed to the figure of the Christ as He carried out His mission on earth. It is a time of reflection and prayer, a time to seek the deeper meanings of Lent, and to seek the deeper meanings of Lent, and to seek the deeper meanings of Lent.

Dinner to Honor Lodge Organizers

The Manchester Lodge of Elks will hold its regular meeting Wednesday, Feb. 22, at the Elks Home on Bristol St. at 8 o'clock. At that time, a report will be given from the Valentine Ball Committee, and the committee which is handling the dinner which is to be held March 28 in honor of the original organizing group.

The 17 members of the lodge worked hard to get this lodge organized and will be the guests of the Manchester Lodge of Elks.

The Commonsense

The British House of Commons has voted to abolish capital punishment in Britain. The result, and the size of the majority, was somewhat surprising to British political observers. But the result reflects a significant change in the feeling of public opinion over an obvious mistake in justice.

Perhaps the sharpest spur to the reform was the fact that an innocent man had been hanged for a crime he did not commit. The discovery came when the real murderer, retaining his crime, was apprehended, and hanged too.

This incident sharply underscored one of the great weaknesses in the capital punishment system, which is that its errors can never be retrieved.

Beyond that, much of the British public sickened while some part of it still took its morbid thrill, at the recent hanging of a woman.

But the basic philosophy underlying the British decision was exactly the philosophy expressed in the motion adopted by Commonsense to the effect that "the death penalty for murder no longer accords with the needs of the true interests of a civilized society."

There is no statistical proof that the death penalty acts as any real deterrent to murder, and we even have such curious facts as a native of Rhode Island which has no death penalty committing the most murders in Connecticut, which has it.

There is increasing disposition to question the right of the state to take human life. There is an increasing nausea over the type of public Roman holiday which so often accompanies the state's taking of life. And there is always the possibility of inflicting this final punishment on an innocent man, a possibility which both Commonsense and New York have been far too close to in instances in recent years.

The structure of Britain from the ranks of capital punishment nations leaves the United States, in 42 states, and France as the two most prominent examples of modern nations still retaining the death penalty, which has been abolished in Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Finland, the Netherlands, Iceland, Luxembourg, Norway, Portugal, Rumania, Sweden, Switzerland, the Soviet Union, and West Germany. Russia has recently restored it for exceptionally horrible cases of murder, and most of these nations retain the death penalty for treason in time of war.

If there is a trend, it is that more and more nations are feeling that an execution is itself a variety of murder, entirely cold-blooded at that.

Job For The U.N. Only

To put the worst interpretations on the positions taken by Russia and the United States with regard to trouble in the Near East, we could get something like this: Russia, herself helping to fan the flames of war there, says she would rather have war than have peace accomplished without Russia.

The United States and Britain, dedicated to peace and also to preservation of their own sphere of influence, say they want peace, but would rather run the risk of war than run the risk of letting Russian influence get into that.

Indians Draw Stratford in First Tourney Test Wednesday

Santee Maps Plans Against AAU Body

New York, Feb. 20 (AP)—Santee, America's foremost hope for the magic four-minute mile today angrily drew plans for a court suit against the Amateur Athletic Union, which has barred him from track for life.

The AAU took the drastic action at its Executive Committee meeting yesterday after hearing a report by an investigating committee on Santee's expenses. The committee found $1,500 which, it said, was "overage," meaning above the allotted expenses permitted.

Unless he is backed in the courts, Santee is thought as a runner. He can be reinstated as an amateur in other sports but never again in track.

We plan to ask the courts to enjoin the AAU from carrying out its suspension," said his attorney, Charles P. Grooms of New York. "Our contention is the same that we have been making all along—that the Executive Committee of the AAU does not have the authority to bar Santee from track."

The AAU's action stands up to the fact that Santee, whose 4:06.5 is the closest any American has come to the four-minute mile, is the 1,500 runner in the world.

He was the United States champion in the 400-yard race at the AAU track and field championships in the Missouri Valley.

"I'm extremely disappointed," he said bitterly. "I don't believe I received fair treatment. I'm convinced the AAU has violated its own constitution in suspending me. If there are any new charges concerning professionalism, I'll be happy to answer them before the proper authorities—the local registration committee of the Missouri Valley Association."

The Missouri Valley Registration Committee, his home body, suspended him last October, but was overruled by the Board of Governors. Then the AAU, at its annual meeting last December, appointed a special committee headed by Phibby Sober, National AAU track and field chairman, to reopen the case.

Sober read his report, which took some five hours. On the basis of this, the committee suspended Santee by a 14-1 vote.

Lon Wilkin, AAU president last year, was the only committeeman who voted with the 20-year-old Marine Corps lieutenant.

Don Burns' Free Tries Net UConn NCAA Berth

No Joke to Joe

Storrs, Feb. 20 (AP)—Thanks to a fellow named Don Burns, the University of Connecticut basketball team can start thinking about the NCAA Tournament in March.

Burns converted two foul shots for leg honors with a victory over the University of New Hampshire in the second round of the tournament. He also scored 18 points in the final game against the Huskies last night.

The score was tied 77-77 at the end of regulation play. In the first overtime, Rhode Island scored first but then the lead bounced back and forth.

Bobby Osborn pretty neatly ended the game at the end of the first overtime. His shot with seven seconds left missed and the period ended up 84-84.

In the final overtime, Paul Kasparov drove for a layup and Ron Bushnell and Osborn hit with free throws to put the UConnans in front by four points. Then Kasparov's hook shot gave them a 90-83 lead. A layup by Frank Formando and a foul shot by Bob Stairs cut the Huskies lead to 96-88.

Violence Spreading At Republic Aircraft

Farmington, N.Y., Feb. 21 (AP)—Strikes spread today at the second plant of the Republic Aviation Corp. today, leading to the arrest of 11 more pickets for pushing, shoving and fighting.

Trouble broke out for the first time at a smaller company plant at Farmington on Long Island, which employs some 2,000 persons.

Police, however, reported that they had "pinned in the bud" further potential violence with the arrest of two strikers there. Only a handful of the company employees sought to go to work.

Further clashes also marked the day at the main plant here, resulting in the arrest of nine additional pickets during the morning.

Arrests ended Sunday noon total of several persons were reported bruised in the melee and one was taken to a hospital with minor injuries.

Union attorney Sidney R. Siben said he had been unsuccessful in efforts to confer with company officials on measures to insure peaceful picketing, and added: "This is the situation going to be serious."

About 200 pickets marched at the gates of the Farmington plant. A number of nonstriking persons slipped through the picket lines and entered the plant.

Enter Plant. Some 650 others arrived on two Long Island Railroad trains and entered the plant in the afternoon. Some company activities were resumed shortly afterward, including the test flying of an aircraft produced for the government.

Republic had suggested that employees could take trains of the Long Island Railroad to gain entrance to the property without interference from the picket lines. The company had asserted this.

Justice Ostr, president of the union's Executive Committee, said he had been unsuccessful in efforts to confer with company officials on measures to insure peaceful picketing, and added: "This is the situation going to be serious."

U.S. Lead In Missiles Race Cited

Washington, Feb. 21 (AP)—Gen. Nathan F. Twining testified today before the United States Air Force still is ahead of Soviet Russia in top quality combat airplanes, defenses and guided missiles.

But he cited a closed-door session of the Senate's Armed Services Committee which he said was held in the near future. Twining said, "The Communists can produce a missile faster than we originally predicted."

Soviet Give Extra Effort. The Air Force Chief of Staff said Soviet leaders are putting extra effort into research and development. "The greater effort could also result in the Soviets obtaining better missiles sooner than we," he added.

"They have stated they expect to have outstanding weapons in the near future," Twining said, "but they could make good this combination of promises and reality."

"The company," said Vice President John J. Ryan, "will take all necessary steps to keep its plants open despite outbreaks of violence."
