Cheney's Plans Moving Office

The second floor of Cheney Bros. machine shop, long used as a storage place for equipment and supplies, is being transformed into office space for the firm's administration.

Buildings are being cleaned up and applying fresh paint to the walls. The second floor is being prepared for the large factory office building. The equipment and supplies are being moved into the new office building.

The Cheney Bros. office is being moved into the new office building, which has been built on Hartford Rd., which had long served as the firm's main office building.

The building was sold recently to the Conn. Power Co. in connection with the local firm's construction policy. The Power Co. will move into the Hartford Rd. building in July, and the transformation work now going on in the machine shop's second floor is expected to be completed by then.

Horace Learned, Cheney Bros. president and general manager, says that all of the operations now carried on in the main office building will be transferred to the new offices.

All the departments to be moved are the tabulating, accounting, purchasing, materials control, personnel, medical and engineering. In addition, the switchboard space, and visitors will be received in the new offices.

The new offices will be furnished with furniture to be moved out of the Hartford Rd. building as well as the firm's new York office. The company's space in New York is being halved, from two floors to one, and the extra furniture will be shipped here.

Learned says the new office should be ready by the time Cheney Bros. workers return to the job after the annual vacation shutdown on the first two weeks in July.

CHECK LIST FOR BUYING A HOME

It's better to check first than to be sorry after. Here's a quick list of points that can make home ownership more enjoyable to you.

NEIGHBORHOOD

- Is it the kind you'd really like to have your children grow up in?
- Is it convenient to schools, church, shopping center?
- Is it made up of the same general "income level" you are in?
- Are the real estate and other taxes comparable to the price of the house?

FINANCING

- Can you readily meet the down payment?
- Are you prepared to meet the additional "closing" items—such as the cost of the title certificate, mortgage recording fee and attorney's services for preparing the proper papers for FHA or VA mortgage loans?
- Are the monthly payments consistent with your monthly salary?

CONSTRUCTION

- Do outside doors open and close easily and properly? This is a sign of general quality of construction.
- If there are a few plaster cracks will the builder agree to fix these after the house has settled?
- Is there a sufficient number of electrical outlets?
- Is heat supplied by modern automatic heating equipment? (Builders can make substantial savings putting in better types of equipment. But a builder who has money here perhaps "saves" another place elsewhere.)
- Make sure the house has an adequate masonry chimney. Building one later is costly and often will increase your annual heating costs at least 25% to 50%.

GENERAL

- Are you sure the basement will stay dry after heavy rains?
- Is the foundation sound?
- Are there storm windows and weatherstripping? Are you buying for them?
- Check the probable cost of home heating. Remember any year for fully automatic use other than oil will increase your annual heating costs at least 25% to 50%.

Why not check these points with your Realtor Better Home Heat Council, Inc.

Fission Fireball Set At Three Miles Wide

bomber screaming into the air as he was off on a history-making mission. He headed his great craft to the east toward Bimini Atoll, 190 miles away. Far up, 80,000 feet there was no sign or sound of him in the dark sky, smoothly and bombarded Mr. Dwight E. Durand, chief of the project, said. They were ready. One more wide turn over a half-circle of a dozen miles and they were homing on the target which showed on the radar sight. At an altitude of about 50,000 feet a speed of approximately 200 miles per hour the bomb was dropped.

It was seven minutes short of the bullseye, but the speed of the bomb was being corrected as it fell. Smith banked the plane sharply to the right and the bomb was fired away. It probably was 15 miles distant when it exploded. A bright flash of light was seen. Behind and beneath there was the hydrogen blast in the flash of scorching heat that came almost simultaneously with the great light. The fireball reached out to shake the flimsy structure of the plane.

The timing was perfect — the product of skill and the split-second timing of the scientists and technicians on the ground. Planes called for details in the air. It came at precisely that moment. It came at 53 minutes after noon.

Down on the observer ship M. M. Merrill, the sky was lit with a brilliant light. The ship rolled slowly. It barely kept its balance. The air was full of dust and debris. The ship rolled slowly. It barely kept its balance. The air was full of dust and debris.

High density fog made the black smoke a pinpoint of light peeking through the fog. The light was instantly and became a bright white light. The ship rolled slowly. It barely kept its balance. The air was full of dust and debris.

Even through the dark lenses of the goggles the light was blinding. The ship rolled slowly. It barely kept its balance. The air was full of dust and debris.

An observer cautiously pulled down his goggles to take a look. The fireball, which had appeared to rest in his bottom a few moments before, had now disappeared. The fireball, which had appeared to rest in his bottom a few moments before, had now disappeared.

Out of the blackness a fabulous flaming sword thrust up. Then its point dimmed and it disappeared. The fireball, which had appeared to rest in his bottom a few moments before, had now disappeared.

Up there, morning light was breaking. The ship rolled slowly. It barely kept its balance. The air was full of dust and debris.

Ribicoff to See GOP Leader On Costs Curb

Democratic Chairman John M. Ribicoff, on the other hand, said he would be "very happy to serve, if the Governor honored me with an appointment."

Tax Increases Feared "Two days ago," Ribicoff said in a statement, "I was deeply concerned about the possibility of a 30-day session next year. Unless something is done to reduce mounting expenses."

Saturday Ribicoff visited Baldwin and said he was accepting Baldwin's suggestion for a study of state government.

He told Baldwin he agreed some limitation must be placed on the ever-increasing state debt. "I will be glad to confer with him at his convenience on the appointment of a joint bipartisan committee of experts."
