Youth Sentenced To Electric Chair

After the foreman knocked on the door, signaling that the jury had reached its verdict, the word spread throughout the court building.

Spectators who crowded into the more celebrated Taborsky-Columbe trial, left the courtroom where that trial was in progress to hear the jury's verdict on Reid.

Reid took the witness stand in his own behalf Wednesday in an effort to save himself from the chair.

He described his action on the night of Jan. 15, saying he had been drinking wine before the killing.

Robbery Hold Motive

He said he took hammer from his mother's home at 536 Windsor St. He testified that he was in Windsor St. restaurant when he saw Mrs. McClure pass by.

Reid left the restaurant and took a short cut to the parking lot where he knew the woman parked her car, he related.

Then, he struck her several blows with the hammer and stuffed her in the back of the automobile.

The state contended that Reid's primary motive in the killing was robbery. This, according to the state's theory, was the element of premeditation which established the case as a first degree murder.

AEC Discloses Third Misfire In Atomic Test

A disarming party is now being "organized."

Capt. Thomas Harrell of the Marine Corps, an observer at Nevada, said the explosion was terrific when the count-down ended and there was no blast.

"Everyone was more or less holding their breath for about five minutes," he said.

The AEC said there was no alarm in the trenches and the Marine evacuated in orderly style.

Kovacs Uninjured As Car Hits Truck

Frank Kovacs, 49, 109 Hill St., escaped uninjured when his car went under the body of a tractor-trailer truck on Spencer St. yesterday.

Police said that the truck owned by the Holmes Transportation Co. of Worcester and driven by Frank McLean, 40, of Cobalt, was backing into a driveway on Spencer St. When the Kovacs car ran into it.

According to police, Kovacs said that he thought the truck was a bus on the other side of the road. The car left 100 foot tire marks in the road as Kovacs attempted to stop.

No arrests were made.

James Kowler, 22, of Covington, was arrested on a charge of following too closely. His car struck the rear of a car driven by Laura A. Sargis, 45, of Columbia.

The accident occurred on E. Middle Tpke., near the Shady Glen, when according to police, Kowler momentarily took his eyes from the road and collided with the car ahead of him.

Each car suffered approximately $200 damages, said police.

Ike Tags Boost For Mailmen As Spiral Aid

Vice President Nixon told newsmen that over the breakfast of eggs and toast the members discussed such subjects as federal aid to education, the National Gas Bill and Civil Rights.

Eisenhower, while posing for pictures afterward, remarked that he enjoyed the informal breakfast because they enabled the participants to talk about everything.

Rep. Bill Simpson (R-N.Y.) said he told Nixon and presidential assistant Sherman Adams that he did not believe bills dealing with federal school aid or natural gas controls would pass the House if they reached the floor. He added Eisenhower talked briefly about his school aid program at his table, but the reaction at the table "wasn't so hot."

Rep. Wainwright (R-N.Y.) said a diaphragm was discussed at his table with Eisenhower commenting that disarrangement negotiations, now being held in London, seem to be proceeding far better than at any time since he has been in office.

Rep. Richmond M. Simpson (R-Pa.) said the conversation covered re-

Thunderstorms Bruise Vermont

Rutland, Vt., June 28 (AP) — A 2-hour storm of thunder and torrential rain late last night washed out sections of some roads, disrupted communications, temporarily isolated some families and damaged several bridges.

The storm center was in the Tundridge and East Randolph areas, near Rutland.

Showers struck Boston and the Massachusetts South Shore yesterday but the rainfall was not widespread enough to relieve the drought in the southeastern section of the Bay State.

The rain caused a 40-minute delay in the Red Sox-White Sox baseball game at Fenway Park, Boston.

The Weather Bureau said some more widely scattered thunderstorms and warm, humid weather can be expected in New England today.

The hostess served a buffet luncheon.

Voice Is "Squeezed"

Los Angeles, a device has been developed that "squeezes" the human voice into a narrow range for improved radio transmission. It is said to satisfy two top-priority military needs—more intelligible and a 50 per cent longer range in voice transmission in field communications equipment.

Reds Push Stallen To Bare Full Plan

Stassen to speed up his presentation.

Stassen replied that he would take a number of days for him to outline the plan formulated May 23 by President Eisenhower and his top advisers. An official said the presentation has been allowed by the need for prolonged consultation among the western Allies.

There also was speculation the United States was taking its time in the hope of dissipating the propaganda advantage Russia now has over the West.

Stassen said the fact that agreement on a partial arms reduction treaty is now in sight after 11 years of disagreement makes even more vital that the committee not attempt to make too fast a step.

Stassen has spent more than a week presenting the broad new U.S. disarmament plan. As yet he has only touched on conventional weapons, manpower levels and control organization to enforce a disarmament treaty. Still to be presented are the U.S. proposals on some of the more controversial items such as aerial inspection and nuclear weapons.

Britain, France and Canada the other members of the U.S. committee expressed general approval yesterday of the U.S. plan for a disarmament control organization.

But Zorn refused to commit himself.

The plan, which Stassen originally presented April 17, calls for a 14-nation board of control on which the present subcommittee members would have veto power and an international inspection service. The board of control would be supervised by the U.N. Security Council.

In his last unfolding of the American plan, Stassen first proposed a 3-stage troop reduction that would trim U.S. and Soviet armed forces ultimately to 1,700,000 men each if the world political climate improves. There are now about 2,800,000 men in the U.S. armed forces and an estimated 4,700,000 in Russia.

Then the American delegate suggested reduction of non-nuclear weapons be approached by each of the major powers listing specific

Flu Vaccine Announced

Indianapolis, June 28 (AP) — Eli Lilly and Co. said today it has produced a supply of vaccine to combat the new Asiatic influenza, whenever the vaccine is approved by the National Institute of Health.

The Lilly announcement said the supply on hand could be put into military use with or without NIH approval, but added that these have been no actual orders for the vaccine.

The size of the vaccine supply has not been announced.

The vaccine is being produced in Lilly's biological laboratory in nearby Greenfield, where most of its other vaccine production is concentrated.

Members of the Milltown Rescue Squad had to jack up the trailer and cut through part of its framework with acetylene torches to free the women.

Doodles

By ROGER PRICE

Chiefs Having a Cracker Barrel Discussion

Lately people have been asking me why Doodles don't receive as much publicity as all the other Atom Bombs and the Brooklyn Dodgers. Frankly the reason is I don't know my Public Relations Counselors, Dr. Schweine and Dr. Kluge, very well. But I think I can tell you how they plan to get busy and get Doodles back in the limelight. Dr. Schweine is going to sit in the audience at 230 Sullivan Street and hold a sign that says "DROODLES ARE NIFTY". Dr. Kluge is going to sit in the audience at 230 Sullivan Street and hold a sign that says "DROODLES ARE NIFTY".

Because we are a nation which sends troops to the soil of other nations, rather than a nation which has foreign troops stationed on its own soil, we have little experience with the other side of the coin involved here. But in so far as we are concerned, it is occasionally found that our foreign troops are subjected to foreign indignities about as homes about their belief that our foreign troops which might be located here would have to be subject to the jurisdiction of American courts if they should become involved in any case against American citizens.

The isolationists who have continually spearheaded the drive against "status of forces" treaties believe, then, that we are not good enough to judge others but that others are not good enough to judge us. Their idea of a proper international attitude is one in which we preserve our own privileges we deny to others.

Their sentiment is understandable, since it is a matter of open pride in our own superiority as a people and as a nation. It is not, however, acceptable, either in practice or in principle, as a way for us to deal with other nations.

President Eisenhower, describing why, despite our intention of keeping our pledge at London to agree in some measure to the treaty, we still felt uncertain about the wisdom of it, quoted Dr. Lawrence and Teller, the two H-bomb authors.

"They tell me," he said, "that already they are producing bombs that have 50 per cent less fallout than was the case in our original ones, or what we call dirty bombs. But they go beyond that. They say give us four or five years to test each step of our development and we will produce an absolutely clean bomb. So that the weapon becomes completely military in its application."

"If you use it on the battlefield," the President went on, "you will have an effect only so far as the blast and heat waves reach, and there will be no fallout to injure any civilian or anyone, and no collateral bystanders that are off X miles, the necessary distance to get out of the area of effect of any single bomb. A few minutes passed before May Craig, of the Portland Press Herald, could get the floor. Then he asked this question:

"Mr. President, our first atomic bomb was dropped on a city. When you speak of battlefields in a nuclear age, what do you mean?"

"Well," said the President, "I think you have a question that can't be answered, and no one else can, Mr. Craig."

But there is, of course, an answer. It is the answer we ourselves did give at Hiroshima. In the nuclear age the battlefield is the aggregation of civilian population large enough to absorb thoroughly the destructive capacity of any single bomb.

The proponents of the "clean bomb" are humanitarians in that respect. They say they want to develop a bomb which will kill only the inhabitants of one city at a time, and do it without releasing slower poison into the suburbs, or into atmosphere which might drift back into the nation which originally sent the bomb.

If, for instance, they had a bomb which could kill some 7,000,000 in New York City, and not kill anybody in Fairfield County, that would be a clean bomb. But if it killed somebody in Fairfield County, that would be a "dirty" bomb, and not humanitarian.

It also seems to be the assumption that anybody who uses the clean bomb which kills only what mere millions of people might have to be in its direct target area, would be able to do so with a clean conscience.

As a final climax to the nonsense of the day, the President expressed the hope that the Russian would learn to make the clean bomb and if they ever used an atomic bomb would use clean ones.

We can hardly wait. The President did get down to earth, and out of the nonsense, a little later in his press conference. "I have told you this time and time again," he repeated, "I am not to sleep there until we are doing something as a victorious side in a global war of the future."

Not even with clean bombs.

Sentiment Vs. Policy

The House Foreign Affairs Committee has voted, 16 to 8, to demand that the President immediately take steps to revise or denounce all arrangements with other countries in which we have agreed that American servicemen shall be subject to trial in the courts of such countries for offenses they may commit.

This action, which seems to open the way to a full-fledged fight on the issue in Congress, is a direct result of the trial case in Japan. It would, however, affect our relations with all our NATO allies in Europe. And it would require a battle already waged once, when the NATO treaties were being ratified in the first place. Then the isolationists in the Senate made their fight, and lost it, against the idea that our foreign courts anywhere could be good enough to pronounce justice on an American.

The principle involved from the point of view of the NATO treaty itself, was simple. Either we treat our allies as equals, or as inferiors. If we want to keep them as allies we make sure we treat them as equals.

Because we are a nation which sends troops to the soil of other nations, rather than a nation which has foreign troops stationed on its own soil, we have little experience with the other side of the coin involved here. But in so far as we are concerned, it is occasionally found that our foreign troops are subjected to foreign indignities about as homes about their belief that our foreign troops which might be located here would have to be subject to the jurisdiction of American courts if they should become involved in any case against American citizens.

The isolationists who have continually spearheaded the drive against "status of forces" treaties believe, then, that we are not good enough to judge others but that others are not good enough to judge us. Their idea of a proper international attitude is one in which we preserve our own privileges we deny to others.

Their sentiment is understandable, since it is a matter of open pride in our own superiority as a people and as a nation. It is not, however, acceptable, either in practice or in principle, as a way for us to deal with other nations.

2-Month Sentence

Served to Waiter

Bridgeport, June 28 (AP)—Robert Scott of Newark, a waiter who shot a man in the leg May 6 in that city during an argument over a bet, was given a 2-month jail sentence which will be suspended after three months in State Prison.

Judge John P. Cotter placed Scott on probation for two years for aggravated assault on Elizabeth Austin, 35, also of Newark. Scott had pleaded guilty.

The shooting took place, according to State's Atty. Gen. Louis W. Allen, in the waiter's quarters at a Westport restaurant after Scott and Austin had quarreled over a wager on the Robinson-Fullmer fight.

Both men disappeared shortly after the shooting. Austin is going to seek up behind a hospital curtain and stand "I LIKE DROODLES" on his head with indelible ink. On another I think will be their.

AMA Checks Influenza

Chicago, June 28 (AP)—The American Medical Assn. today urged physicians to report any suspected cases of Oriental influenza to their health departments.

An editorial in the AMA Journal says reports on the disease can be followed quickly by an investigation and laboratory tests. Epidemics of influenza have occurred in countries in the Far East, Public Health Service says in the alert for any signs that travelers have carried the disease, this country.

While it may be true more people are attending church than in any other period, there does not seem to be a revival spirit enough to judge others but that others are not good enough to judge us. Their idea of a proper international attitude is one in which we preserve our own privileges we deny to others.

Their sentiment is understandable, since it is a matter of open pride in our own superiority as a people and as a nation. It is not, however, acceptable, either in practice or in principle, as a way for us to deal with other nations.

President Eisenhower, describing why, despite our intention of keeping our pledge at London to agree in some measure to the treaty, we still felt uncertain about the wisdom of it, quoted Dr. Lawrence and Teller, the two H-bomb authors.

"They tell me," he said, "that already they are producing bombs that have 50 per cent less fallout than was the case in our original ones, or what we call dirty bombs. But they go beyond that. They say give us four or five years to test each step of our development and we will produce an absolutely clean bomb. So that the weapon becomes completely military in its application."

"If you use it on the battlefield," the President went on, "you will have an effect only so far as the blast and heat waves reach, and there will be no fallout to injure any civilian or anyone, and no collateral bystanders that are off X miles, the necessary distance to get out of the area of effect of any single bomb. A few minutes passed before May Craig, of the Portland Press Herald, could get the floor. Then he asked this question:

"Mr. President, our first atomic bomb was dropped on a city. When you speak of battlefields in a nuclear age, what do you mean?"

"Well," said the President, "I think you have a question that can't be answered, and no one else can, Mr. Craig."

But there is, of course, an answer. It is the answer we ourselves did give at Hiroshima. In the nuclear age the battlefield is the aggregation of civilian population large enough to absorb thoroughly the destructive capacity of any single bomb.

The proponents of the "clean bomb" are humanitarians in that respect. They say they want to develop a bomb which will kill only the inhabitants of one city at a time, and do it without releasing slower poison into the suburbs, or into atmosphere which might drift back into the nation which originally sent the bomb.

If, for instance, they had a bomb which could kill some 7,000,000 in New York City, and not kill anybody in Fairfield County, that would be a clean bomb. But if it killed somebody in Fairfield County, that would be a "dirty" bomb, and not humanitarian.

It also seems to be the assumption that anybody who uses the clean bomb which kills only what mere millions of people might have to be in its direct target area, would be able to do so with a clean conscience.

As a final climax to the nonsense of the day, the President expressed the hope that the Russian would learn to make the clean bomb and if they ever used an atomic bomb would use clean ones.

We can hardly wait. The President did get down to earth, and out of the nonsense, a little later in his press conference. "I have told you this time and time again," he repeated, "I am not to sleep there until we are doing something as a victorious side in a global war of the future."

Not even with clean bombs.

Sentiment Vs. Policy

The House Foreign Affairs Committee has voted, 16 to 8, to demand that the President immediately take steps to revise or denounce all arrangements with other countries in which we have agreed that American servicemen shall be subject to trial in the courts of such countries for offenses they may commit.

This action, which seems to open the way to a full-fledged fight on the issue in Congress, is a direct result of the trial case in Japan. It would, however, affect our relations with all our NATO allies in Europe. And it would require a battle already waged once, when the NATO treaties were being ratified in the first place. Then the isolationists in the Senate made their fight, and lost it, against the idea that our foreign courts anywhere could be good enough to pronounce justice on an American.

The principle involved from the point of view of the NATO treaty itself, was simple. Either we treat our allies as equals, or as inferiors. If we want to keep them as allies we make sure we treat them as equals.

Because we are a nation which sends troops to the soil of other nations, rather than a nation which has foreign troops stationed on its own soil, we have little experience with the other side of the coin involved here. But in so far as we are concerned, it is occasionally found that our foreign troops are subjected to foreign indignities about as homes about their belief that our foreign troops which might be located here would have to be subject to the jurisdiction of American courts if they should become involved in any case against American citizens.

The isolationists who have continually spearheaded the drive against "status of forces" treaties believe, then, that we are not good enough to judge others but that others are not good enough to judge us. Their idea of a proper international attitude is one in which we preserve our own privileges we deny to others.

Their sentiment is understandable, since it is a matter of open pride in our own superiority as a people and as a nation. It is not, however, acceptable, either in practice or in principle, as a way for us to deal with other nations.

Business May Reach New Peak—at a Price

By SAM HAWTON
(Special to This Article)
New York, June 28 (AP)—Good times seem likely to hang around the rest of the year. But most business observers are saying they will have to wait till the vacation season ends with Labor Day before we know whether the economy will come back, tanned and vital to go higher or just relax and lay low.

The odds are for a smart pickup in industrial activity in the fall after a slow—perhaps slower than last—summer.

The smart money also is on further rises in prices—notably at the producing and manufacturing level, sparked by increases this summer in wages and prices for steel and aluminum.

It is the price-wage aspect of inflation that has President Eisenhower so worried at midyear.

Harvests should reverse the rise in food costs so that the long climb of the consumer retail price index may end in August.

But the cost of doing business seems sure to go on rising, since wages have been going up faster than the output per man, hour, and some industrial materials will be going up, too.

And in time—perhaps by year's end—the effect of rising prices can be made to stick.

Work plentiful
Jobs should remain plentiful. This is based on the belief that: 1. The auto companies will be turning out 1958 models at a brisk clip this fall and adding more steel and other metals; 2. Government spending for defense, for highways and other public works and for services will go on rising; 3. Companies will go on spending all they can afford on the things they need and want.

A sharp rise of late in awards for contracts for future construction points to lots of jobs and work that industry is coming back to industrial building. But some pessimists in the field see a revival of home building just around the corner, too.

Prices and wages hold the center of the stage as the second half of the year starts. Steel workers will get a sizable wage increase Monday. Aluminum workers will

Phelon Heads Parking Unit

Manchester's new Parking Authority will start work by collecting information from other towns and organizations which have dealt with parking problems.

The Authority met for the first time yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Nancy Long, 40 Campbell Rd., who is to be the first chairman.

Among those to be contacted for information will be the Middletown Planning Commission, and the Middletown Parking Authority. The New Haven Redevelopment Commission, and the Danbury Planning Commission, and the Danbury Planning Administrator Willard Maxwell who has made a preliminary survey of parking problems in Manchester, the chairman said.

Comments from townspeople are invited and may be addressed to the Planning Authority at the Municipal Building.

The Authority will probably hold an open meeting later to hear expressions of opinion on parking needs from different sections of the community, Phelon said.

Charter help will be provided through the planning and zoning office with $1,750 set aside in the town budget out of parking meter funds.

The budget also includes $5,000 for a survey.

The next meeting of the Authority will probably be some time in the middle of July, Phelon said. In the meantime, Mrs. Long will collect information from other towns and organizations interested in parking problems.

YOU Get The Most With Blue Cross

Blue Cross Paid $1,581.60 ON MY HOSPITAL BILL

Says Mr. Potratz:
Before I was rushed to the hospital with a bleeding ulcer and a one-in-a-hundred chance to live, I had no idea how expensive Special Services could be. I didn't even know what a Special Service was. I do now, though.

I used just three Special Services during the 38 days I spent in Stamford Hospital. The cost for these three—laboratory, drugs and X-rays—came to $1,125.60. My Blue Cross paid that amount in full.

Believe me, I did some thinking after I saw that bill. Suppose Blue Cross placed a financial limit on Special Services? I had to have them. They saved my life.

Blue Cross puts no ceiling on these necessary hospital "extras", and that's important. When you go to the hospital you never know just how many you'll need, or what they will cost. But with Blue Cross you get the care you need to get well—not a certain cash limit like in many hospital plans.

In addition to full coverage on Special Services, my Blue Cross paid $456.00 toward the hospital charge for room, meals, and general nursing service.

All in all, I came to the conclusion that You Get The Most With Blue Cross. You can't beat it for coverage on really big bills.

Karp, Gryk Reach Agreement On Way to Handle Judgeship

When Town Court opens Monday, Deputy Judge James Karp will assert his claim to the judgeship, and he will be sworn in. But he won't serve, at least not for the time being.

He will relinquish the bench to Judge Wesley C. Gryk, and resume his role as deputy. Then both men will sit back to await a court decision as to which of them is the legal judge.

This is the basis of an agreement being worked out between Karp and Gryk in an attempt to preserve the dignity of the court while the judgeship battle is being resolved.

Under the terms of the pending agreement, Karp will not pre-empt his claim to the judgeship by sitting as deputy judge until the issue is adjudicated. And the court should find in favor of Gryk's claim, Karp would merely continue to sit as deputy.

The agreement, which Judge Karp is now putting into written form, embodies an understanding to abide by the decision, and the judge and Gryk arrived at during an informal discussion on Monday. At that time, "we agreed on a course to follow," Judge Karp said today.

Court Appointments
According to Judge Karp, the agreement will also cover the matter of court appointments. The court employees who come up for reappointment on Monday, are named by the judge.

Judge Karp said that under the agreement, Judge Gryk will make the appointments but "without prejudice" to Judge Karp's right to rescind them in the event the courts declare him the legal judge.

The present court personnel consists of Atty. John R. Fitzgerald, prosecutor; William DeHon, assistant prosecutor; Atty. Anthony Gryk, clerk; Mrs. Mae Yennard, assistant clerk; and Leo Bianchetti, court officer.

The question as to who is the legal judge also exists in two other towns and involves three other judges.

Second Church Granted Permit For New Wing

Permission was granted to the Second Congregational Church to build a new parish house by Building Inspector Griswold Chappell today.

The 23 by 73 foot, 2-story building is to contain a parish hall, kitchen, stage, and church, parlor on the upper floor, and classroom, office space, and a small chapel on the lower floor.

The Rev. Arnold Toner said the new building will double the size of the present building and will give the church almost 20 classrooms.

Overall plans include renovation of the present hall, and creation of new classroom space in the present building, and creation of new classroom space in the present building. The cost for the complete job will come to $153,000, said the Rev. Mr. Toner.

Lt. Findell Taking Air Force Course

Air Force Second Lieutenant George Findell Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George Findell of 60 Coburn Rd., Manchester, is presently enrolled in the Primary Phase Navigator Course at Hurlingham Air Force Base, Hurlingham, Tex.

The 12-month course, conducted by Air Force Base under the jurisdiction of the Flying Training Air Force, is designed to qualify aviation cadets and non-rated officers in the fundamentals of electronic dead reckoning and radar navigation, as pertains to today's rapidly advancing field of aviation.

Upon completion of this training Lieutenant Findell will be awarded his silver wings.
